According to police reports, after complaints of a loud party with possible underage drinkers on December 31, Oakland County Sheriff's Deputies paid a visit to the Strutzes Pinewood home. On arrival, deputies: noted 20 cars parked on the street and in a turn-around next to the house. They watched as six people ran into the house from outside and shut off the inside lights when party-goers spotted the officers. Homeowner Michael Strutz, 49, assured deputies there were no underage drinkers in his house or anyone in the house besides he, wife Peggy, 49, and their two children.

The Second Front Reflections on the past, thoughts of the future Budget a challenge for schools in 2001

BY JEFF PATRUS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

The past year marked many challenges and achievements for the Clarkston school district, and next year promises to be no different, according to Dr. Al Roberts, superintendent of Clarkston Community Schools.

The year 2000 began, as is usually the case within the district, with a board retreat. It was at that point, Roberts said, that the board decided to schedule the dialogue sessions, involving board members and administrators, that currently take place.

Roberts said dialogue between the two parties is essential for the district to be successful.

"The board, by nature of its position, is our policy arm," he said. "The role requires them to be concerned about policies, the budget, and to be responsible for the personnel actions that we recommend. The administration, by the nature of its role, must focus on the operational piece of the school equation."

Roberts said the district has four main priorities to keep in mind: curriculum, finance, enrollment/facility use, and communication.

At the heart of the district's mission, he said, is education. "Student achievement is the focus of any school system worth its salt," he said.

To that end, Roberts pointed to several accomplishments in the past year of which the district can be proud.

One of these achievements is the district topping the list of Oakland County schools on the 5th grade MEAP writing test. Clarkston students achieved a 90.7 percent proficiency rate in that regard, while Oakland County achieved 76.5 percent proficiency, and the state of Michigan, 67.8 percent.

Roberts said that is a significant achievement, considering that the Clarkston district ranks among the low-

"That is phenomenal," he said. "I think it proves that money alone does not make for a quality education. We have great kids."

Another significant accomplishment, Roberts said, is the recognition of Springfield Plains Elementary School as a Michigan Blue Ribbon School. That award was announced in December.

Roberts said the Blue Ribbon application process is extremely beneficial in helping the school understand what makes them tick.

"It's a strategy that really helps a building to dig deep into themselves, to understand what they're all about," he said. "I'm very proud of the staff and the writing team. I think that's representative of our schools."

Roberts also pointed out several accomplishments within the past year at

ALS, Clarkston Creek are past and future concerns for Independence

BY JENNIFER NEMER

Clarkston News Staff Writer The year 2000 was a successful one for Independence Township, according to Supervisor Dale Stuart.

The Advanced Life Support (ALS)* program for the community of Clarkston* and Independence Township was approved by voters in August and will be initiated this year. Last year, the Township Board approved the Fire Department's purchase of three new emergency vehicles and are preparing for a community-wide Automatic External Defibrillator (AED) program.

As far as successes go, Stuart said, can't get higher than that." "It will make a significant change in what the Fire Department offers to the community and it will very likely save lives," he said. There were also challenges last year After negotiating throughout the year, the township finalized a deal with Clarkston Creek developers to keep the golf course along with wetland area miligation rights sold to the township. Developers will be allowed to build 165 condos plus office and retail space near the site on Maybee.

Stuart said while Clarkston Creek was a challenge, it was also one of the biggest achievements of the year to have voters approve to preserve open space: There were surprises every day Dale Stuert said Clarkston Creek and ALS are past and future chal-lendes. (last year)," said Stuart. "Never a dull moment.

One problem still to be resovled is flooding on Almond Lane caused by stormwater runoff at Clarkston High School.

Almond Lane is a difficult situation, we have attempted to work with the schools for a number of years to deal with this problem they caused," said Stuart. He added he doesn't "see the school board standing up to their responsibility," forcing the Township Board to look for alternatives. Stuart, however, does not know what those alternatives may be at this time. "But we can't have the people on Almond Lane continue suffering.

In October, the board approve a proposal to install a gravity pipe from Clarkston High School to Gulick Lake that would direct water away from resident's backyards and basements.

The cost would be around $183,000. The township agreed to pay 25 percent of the cost and direct $25,000 from the Road Commission for Oakland County to the project. The township would like Clarkston schools to pay the balance, but they have.

refused to do this, so far.

AN ANTANA NO

The schools have said they can only afford to pay for a pump station which would direct overflow storm water runoff from school detention ponds into Clarkston road culverts and wetlands near the school administration office building.

"You learn from everything you come across," the supervisor said. "We stand on the shoulders of everyone who came before us."

Looking into the future, Stuart said, "The township is coming into a difficult time."

4 Wed., January 10, 2007 The Clarkston (MI) News CHS pool to be run by Community Ed.

BY JEFF PATRUS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

A changeover in managment of the Clarkston High School pool has put a temporary halt to some swim programs for the community.

The Clarkston Community Schools district is in the process of turning over control of pool programs to Clarkston Community Education.

The schools finalized a decision in December to take over programming responsibilities from Independence Township's Parks and Recreation Department. Parks and Rec. had been running the swim programs since the pool opened in 1998.

According to Anita Banach, public relations coordinator for Clarkston Community Schools, the swimming lessons at the high school pool are on hold until the district can find someone to fill a pool coordinator position.

The job was posted prior to Christmas, and the district is currently reviewing applications, Banach said. The position would pay between $35,000-40,000 per year.

Rich Ashley, aquatics director for Parks and Rec., managed operations at the pool until he was informed the schools were taking over, he said on Monday. He added he was asked to apply for the job at the schools, but declined because he enjoys his association with Parks and Rec. Ashley said he will continue as aquatics director for Parks and Rec, running the Team Reptile program and swimming programs at the beaches.

According to Mike Turk, acting director of Parks and Rec., the board approached the township about taking over the program approximately three months ago. Parks and Rec. did not register people for swim classes beyond the end of last year.

"It was something that they wanted," said Turk of the board's desire to run the pool.

At the time the high school opened, the district was not in a good position to operate a swimming program, according to Turk. That led to the township getting involved in conducting swimming classes as well as holding open swim days at the pool.

"It was a joint venture when (previous director) Ann Conklin was here," he said. "They weren't really equipped to run the pool, so we helped them out. And we'll be glad to do what we can to help them now."

Once the swimming lessons resume, they will be conducted through the district's community education department, according to Banach.

"They've (the schools) been investigating what would be the best way to run the pool," she said. "It was a natural time for us," she said.

She said there would be no plans to change any of the existing swimming programs, and, in fact, hopes that the district will be able to offer additional programs.

"Hopefully, they'll just be expanded," Banach said. "We can offer the community the programs and then some."

She said that once activity resumes, the pool will be running the same way as it has been under the township's direction.

"Residents should feel confident that the pool will be operating as they're accustomed to," Banach said.

Springfield receives award for headwaters project

BY JEFF PATRUS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Springfield Township has received recognition from the Michigan Society of Planning for its efforts to preserve the Shiawassee and Huron river areas.

The township was one of five that received an Outstanding Planning Project award for the Shiawassee/Huron project. The other four are Highland, Milford, Rose, and White Lake Townships, The five participating townships combined with the Village of Milford on the project.

According to the December 2000 edition of the Michigan Township News, "Township and village officials came together in 1997 to preserve and protect the natural areas along the Shiawassee and Huron rivers, while still allowing development to occur. A Natural Areas Opportunities Plan was prepared to establish an open space system of linked natural areas throughout the six-community project area."

The effort was co-chaired by Springfield Township Supervisor Collin Walls. According to Walls; the participating communities each received a plaque at the society's annual conference, held in October.

Walls' said many of the recommendations made in the report are being taken into consideration by the township board.

"Several of the policies and suggestions are being incorporated into the master plan update," he said.

Wed., January 10, 2001 The Clarkston (MI) News 5. Comcast Cable has come to town

BY MARALEE COOK

Clarkston News Editor Comcast Cable Communications has officially taken over provision of cable services in Clarkston, Independence and Springfield townships.

The changeover became effective January 1, but it will be awhile before residents may notice many changes.

Bill Black, director of public affairs for Comcast said the company has been preparing for the transition for 18 months. "We have a general idea of what we want to do, but we want to spend the next few months finding out what's been provided and what's important to the community."

As of last week township officials weren't sure what the changeover will mean for their communities. But Independence Township Supervisor Dale Stuart hopes it means an improvement in service.

"What they intend to do for the township I don't know. We'll have to wait and see, but I would like to see improvements in the system and service," he said.

Predecessors TCI and AT&T did not do a good job for the community, Stuart said. "They were bad on service -- hooking up, answering complaints. They didn't do things they ought to do.

"We need higher quality equipment, better service and better programming. We're one of the worst (communities) in terms of programming. We need a better channel selection and more channels. The sta-

In communities already serviced by Comcast, subscribers can receive a variety of packages, Black said. An additional 230 digital channels costs about

Local meetings should be televised

Wed., Jan. 10, 2000

Comcast Cable Communications officially took over cable operations in Clarkston, Independence and Springfield townships January 1. According to Bill Black, Comcast's director of public affairs, the company is looking for input from the community on service and programming upgrades

We suggest the city, township and school board officials cooperate with Comcast to broadcast their meetings on local access channels. Channel 65 currently tapes Independence Township meetings. No meetings are taped in Springfield, A few years ago, school board and Clarkston city council meetings were also taped. That ended when AT&T took over.

Black said focus groups tell him residents aren't interested in watching the meetings. Springfield Township Supervisor Collin Walls said Monday he thinks fewer than 12 people have asked township meetings be televised.

We believe them, but that isn't the point. The meetings should be televised as a community service. There are many people who are unable to attend the meetings. Also, there are often topics of interest to residents discussed at meetings that are not printed on agendas.

While the decision to watch or broadcast meetings may not be a popular one, sometimes you just have to do the right thing. This is one of those times.

Confessions from a soda pop addict

Writing works up quite a thirst.

That's my excuse for all the calories, sugar and caffeine I thoroughly enjoy downing at least once a day.

My name is Jennifer. And I'm a popoholic. On average I put away three to four cans a day, easy.

What is it about pop Llove so much compared to any other drink? I don't know.

But I've found a wonderful source to feed my addiction. His name is Rudy and I can always find him at 9 S. Main St. when I need a fix.

That's right, Rudy's Market.

I was told, when I first started this job, one of the perks working here was trying all the goodies at Rudy's next door.

Index fingers extended and thumbs together for an enthusiastic valley-girl "whatever!" It was a hard one for me to believe. It's a market. How exciting can it be?

I've since seen the light, though. Like a child coming of age, I understand now.

But in the beginning, that wasn't so. When I first met Rudy, I was on a mission. I grabbed a Mountain Dew, paid and left. Not noticing much else in the store.

Second time, same thing, this time add a candy bar. Still thinking, what's the big deal?

Third time-yes, third time, that's when it all changed.

That's when I was introduced to Stewart, Jones, oh there are so many. Rows and rows of endless brands of pop (or so my mind likes to think).

Not just your typical Pepsi or Coca Cola products, either. Yeah, they have those too, and even better is a substantial stock of lesser-known soft drink companies with not-so-typical flavors.

There are Lemon Meringue and Key Lime Pie from Stewart's, Black Cherry and Vanilla Cream from Route 66, Grape Soda from Jones...wait.

tastebuds were driving me next door.

Okay, I'm back and now with an Orange Cream Soda by Iron Horse in hand. Where was 1?

Most of these sodas come in cute glass bottles with embossed designs like that of a lassoing cowboy for Sioux City or embossed names like IBC, all tempting my senses through sight.

Catchy phrases always get me, too, like the ever famous Jolt which proudly displays "Caffeine x2" on the bottles and come in a variety of flavors like Cherry Bomb, my personal fave.

> The bottle for this Iron Horse Orange Cream Soda I've got reads, "Iron Horse Orange Cream. Smooth. Believe that dreams come true. Believe in Orange Cream. Orange Cream like you've never tasted."

Strong words, but "I believe."

I even get a kick out of my not-sogood carbonated ventures like Ginger Beer by Sioux City or Old Fashioned Spiced Ginger Ale by Stewart's-virtually same taste sodas.

Spiced Ginger Ale, that just sounds too intriguing I thought. I have to try i even if I take one sip and throw it out And that's what I did. Imagine the spiciest food, except your're drinking it, and now make it carbonated.

So, where do my sodas and I go from here? I gues I'll continue consuming every unique soft drink at Rudy' while I work right next door. I know, I know, this time a big capital Lon the forehead, for loser. But I don't care. I've accepted that.

And I've accepted that my pop addiction is probably going to be a lifelong battle. There are no 12 steps, no patches no gum for pop junkies like me. Even in John 4:13 Jesus said, "Everyone who drinks this water (or pop in this instance) will be thirsty again."

That's not what I needed to hear.

In John 4:14, though, "whoever drinks the water (that I'm sorry, all this talk was too much for me, my crafty symbolism thing this time) I give him will never thirst Indeed, the water I give him will become in him a spring of water welling up to eternal life."

I've got that. Hey, maybe things aren't as bad as ight for this soda fiend. At least I've got Someone of

When did we have too much fun?

List week's ramblings of stupid things (and not a list, that would be tooooooo long) I did as a kid prompted one reader to report of her childhood affinity to fire and her husband to guns.

She wrote:

"I searched my brain for my own 'stupid' stories and only one really comes back clear in my mind. Now, when I think about it, I wonder if I should have had professional help. How scary. I think I used to have a fascination with fire. I played with matches all the time. I would light up whole books and throw them. I used to take them and crawl under my dad's speed boat which was on a trailer in the yard and light em up. Later I found out I was doing this under the gas tank.... I'm glad I outgrew that.

"My husband's stupid story is worse. He lived in the country and guns were a way of life for him. He says that he and his brother used to take the gun cabinet door off its hinges and steal all of his stepdad's ammo and replace them with duds or blanks? Then they used to practice on the hubcabs of moving cars!"

Laundry should stay women's work

For some time now I've been thinking I ought to learn how to do the laundry. Our laundry room is another of "Hazel's Rooms" (like all the other rooms in our house, including "my" den).

It's a room off the hall, and that's all I know about it. I don't invade it and I'd really appreciate it if Hazel would not invade the little, tiny space in " the basement where I have a defined place for each nail, screw, nut, bolt and washer size.

Likewise, I have a place for screwdrivers (electric and all sizes of manual, including one 3-feet long), drills (antique and electric quarter, threeeights and half inch), hammers (ballpeen, tack and claw), pliers (wire cutters, vice grip, needle nose and Robo Grip), and, well, you get the idea.

daughter Luan, I learned to put the liquid in a trough in the washer, shut the lid, turn a switch and presto. Operating the drier was much easier. If a person can read a little, turn a knob and clean out a lint catcher, they can dry clothes.

The people who invented the electric washers and driers must be big hits on April Fool's Day and at practical joker conventions What kind of a chip did they put into those machines, and how did they write the programs for them that makes them turn my indershorts inside out?

Ticket scalpers and peddlers congregating near the Pine Knob Music Theatre off Sashabaw Road have spurted Frank Campanaro to seek help from the Independence Township Board. Campanaro, a Mt. Construction in 1986 will equal or possibly exceed that which took place in 1985, predicts Kenneth Delbridge, director of the Independence building and planning departments. He bases his promising forecast for the new year on figures he compiles annually. Those figures include permits for residences, commercial developments. housing additions, swimming pools, garages and sheds.

The number of building permits issued in Springfield Township keeps going up. The fiscal year runs from March 1 through the end of February and during the first 10 months of this period, there was a substantial increase. So far for the 1985-86 period, 188 permits have been issued, compared to 124 for the full year in 1983-84.

Property owners in 30 sections of Springfield Township will have to take a flat 10 percent increase in assessed valuations from the township this year, and they may be liable for another seven percent which the Oakland County Equalization Department has said it must tack on. Springfield Township Supervisor Don Rogers told township board members the finished assessment figures must be ready by next week.

Recommendations for three kinds of zoning along M-15 between I-75 and Cranberry Lake Road were made to the township board by the Independence Township Planning Commission at its meeting last week. # Kevin will be long gone by this time next year -- good luck!

I've been talking about applying to colleges for out into the cold to find out if the quite some time. Now that some results are coming back, let's put it to rest once and for all.

Those of you who know me personally probably know I applied to Oxford University (yes, the one in England) in the fall, and it's been my top college choice all along. I wasn't sure how far my application would get, since I had only a shady idea what my British competition would be. But I had done plenty of research, so I knew what Oxford was looking for and what I could expect if I was accepted.

I'll skip the long, boring account of the application process, which differs greatly from that for an American college, and cut to the most recent development. The professors at Oxford had told me to expect a response from them before Christmas. Nothing showed up in the mailbox on Saturday, and no mail was to be delivered on Sunday or Monday, Christmas.

I enjoyed my family's Christmas festivities, but there was a constant underlying worry about the letter that was floating around the postal system somewhere between here and England. I was fortunate enough to be traveling with the marching band to London the day after Christmas, but this created the problem of either getting the mail before we left for the airport or having to sit through the whole flight knowing that the letter had probably gotten to my house and I was still unable to know the contents. Our mail comes right around the time we had to get on the road, so I spent the whole day in nervous anticipation, causing a nice little breakout of zits.

The mail did come before we left, so I shuffled letter had come. It had. I would have opened it right there in the street, but my parents wanted me to bring it into the house so they would see my ecstatic joy or profound sadness for themselves. I imagine my blood pressure was rather high as I tore into the envelope to find out that I had been accepted.

I've never been so happy about something in my life, and it's still hard to wrap my head around all of it at once (the zit situation has cleared up significantly).

The first reason I thought of Oxford as an option was my love of England, so I'm excited to be spending my next few years there. But that alone wouldn't have been enough to apply: the academic program is also something I can't get here.

Wherever I was going to go, I knew I'd be majoring in English. Oxford, though, doesn't even really have majors, since you only take one course: I'llionly take English for the full time I'm there, which is only three years compared to our typical four.

You can't go into it undecided, since you apply specifically to that one course and are admitted based solely on your work and interest in that course.

It certainly isn't the well-rounded approach American schools favor, and I will miss history classes and the like, but the prospect of studying English literature in depth for three years is thrilling.

I often get asked how much it's going to cost Compared to some of the schools I looked at, it's cheaper, and the absence of a fourth year makes a significant dent. While I was waiting for the Oxford letter to arrive, though, I received a scholarship I didn't even know existed for over full tuition at U of M. No part of me. wanted to go there, but the wallet part of me --- or rather, of my parents - was suddenly more attracted to it.

I didn't even want to tell my dad about the scholarship for fear that any possibility of going to any other college would end. But my parents have been very supportive through this whole college thing. They're as excited about Oxford as I am and equally as unwilling to turn it down. Still, we look at what the bottom line would be at U of M in disbelief of what we are giving

High school seniors often get asked where we're going to college, but many schools don't give a reply until April, so most of the time the answer is "I don't know yet."

I feel lucky to have an answer this early. The comfort of knowing exactly where I'm going to be in eight months is a wonderful relief, and I'm looking forward to that place being Oxford.

The only problem is that it makes calculus seem like a waste of time and energy, but I know I still have to do it, no matter how little I care about it. How sad for me. No, I really don't have anything to complain about, which is an odd sensation. I think I'd better get it checked out.

There's a new man at the helm of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department's Springfield Township substation.

Sgt. Ken Quisenberry, formerly road sergeant at the Independence Township substation, has taken over as commander at the Springfield post.

He replaces Sgt. Patrick Miles, who was transferred to the Sheriff's Department's Detective Bureau, located at department headquarters in Pontiac.

Quisenberry assumed the Springfield commander's spot in mid-November, and said things have gone well for him as he gets accustomed to being a substation commander for the first time.

"It's been going extremely well during that time," he said. "We've been very busy, but we've been able to stay on top."

Quisenberry said the winter storms have made things busy at his office.

"The recent weather has created some difficult working conditions, but all in all, we've handled it well," he said.

Sgt. Ken Quisenberry has taken over as the commander of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department's Springfield Township substation.

Quisenberry, a lifelong resident of Ortonville, has been with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department for 22 years, with most of that time spent as a patrol officer. He was promoted to sergeant five years ago

"I did most of my road patrol work in Springfield, Brandon, and Independence (townships)," he said

As substation commander, he oversees a staff of ten officers -- the tenth one coming on board at the start of this year.

He said his primary responsibility as substation commander at Springfield is to make sure the township's residents continue to live in a safe environment.

"Springfield Township is a growing community, and it's my goal to maintain and improve the police services provided by the sheriff's department, that keeps pace with the growing community," Quisenberry said, "I think it's important that the people in the community enjoy a certain quality of life. Part of the quality of life in northern Oakland County is due to its police service.'

The Independence Township Board denied one but approved another concerning two rezoning requests that were on the agenda for the December 14 meeting.

A request to rezone a 4.43-acre parcel from a single family residential to multiple family was denied five to two by the board.

Petitioner Thomas Wilhelm of Clintonville Pines LLC received approval from the Planning Commission in November to rezone the land on Clintonville Road for condominiums.

The Township Board felt differently. Supervisor Dale Stuart said the rezoning would intensify problems in an already dense area.

However, Treasurer Jim Wenger and Trustee Dan Travis voted for the request.

During a public hearing with the Planning Commission in November, area residents in attendance voiced concerns of an increase in traffic and noise problems if Wilhelm's development progressed.

Planning Consultant Dick Carlisle said no one likes to hear of increased density in the community but the area could benefit from this and needs it.

In other township news, the board approved a request to rezone a parcel on the west side of M-15 near Cranberry Lake Road from a residential to office service.

Clarkston State Bank president Dave Harrison said this is the start of a long process. Now, in its early stages, the 3.5 acre property will eventually be home to a new Clarkston State Bank branch.

The 2,000 square foot bank will have a lobby, drive-up ATM and three to four drive through terminals. The bank will be part of a 30 to 35,000 square foot office building, said Harrison.

Construction should start at the end of 2001 and could see business at the end of 2002.

Schools approve designation of 2000 Durant proceeds

BY JEFF PATRUS

----la. Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Clarkston Board of Education approved the designation of its third installment of Durant I settlement funds at its December 17 meeting.

The board, by a 5-1 margin, authorized $138,300 in proceeds to be used for nine different projects at the elementary, middle, and high school levels. Trustee Mary Ellen McLean voted against the move; trustee Kurt Shanks was absent from the meeting at the time of the vote.

The funds were received in November. The original Durant lawsuit, filed in 1978, contended that the state of Michigan fell short in paying its share of special education funding. Over 100 school districts statewide took part in that lawsuit.

The list of projects recommended by Craig Kahler, the district's director of business services, for Durant settlement designation are as follows: Bleacher repairs, Clarkston Middle School:

$9,000

Gym divider repair, Clarkston Middle School: $15,000

Storm sewer repairs, Clarkston Middle School, North Sashabaw Elementary, and Independence Elementary: $10,200

Water softener connections, Clarkston High School: $30,000

Irrigation system, ball fields, Clarkston High School: $25,000

Removal of tennis courts, Sashabaw Middle School: $12,500

Utilities to portables, Pine Knob Elementary, Bailey Lake Elementary, and Andersonville Elementary: $16,600

Air conditioning unit repairs, Springfield Plains Elementary: $17,000

Installation of a fencé at child care, Clarkston High School: $3,000

In a Dec. 7 memo to Superintendent Dr. Al Roberts, Kahler said that "most of these projects have been completed out of necessity, but the limited resources available for such projects have driven this recommendation."

"A lot of it was stuff that did come up outside of what would be a normal plan," he added at the meeting.

Roberts said the district did not have funds targeted for these needs.

"We didn't have money budgeted for those," he said. "This is an infusion of money. We need to take another hard look at our budget and where we spend our dollars."

According to Kahler, the first two installments of the Durant settlement were used last year to complete improvements at the district's transportation facility, including mechanical system upgrades, locker room and rest room upgrades, the addition of a driver's ready room, and improvement of office space.

Residents write letter asking for environmental study

BY JEFF PATRUS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Parke Lake residents have sent a letter to three different governing bodies asking that an environmental study be conducted on a matter concerning their > property.

The residents, in their letter, are requesting a study be done on the routing of storm water from Clarkston High School property to the Clarkston Community Schools administration building, which will eventually make its way to Parke Läke.

The letter was sent to the Clarkston Community Schools district, Independence Township, and the City of the Village of Clarkston.

"We're not angry with anyone," said Tom Stone, a resident whose property is accessible to Parke Lane. "We would like to know, is our lake going to be safe?...We're people that share a focus: The focus is the lake. We wouldn't want to see anything destroy it."

In addition to asking for a study, the residents also requested in their letter "that a public hearing be held to present and discuss proposed routing plans and/ or the results of the impact study."

Stone said the residents' letter is merely a precautionary measure on their part, and added that no problem currently exists.

"We're not any organized group," he said. "There is not a problem. We don't want there to be a problem."

On July 27 of last year, the Independence Township Board and the Clarkston Community Schools district held a joint meeting to try and resolve the water drainage problem that came from Clarkston High School.

At that meeting, Independence Township engineer Tom Biehl of Hubbell, Roth and Clark, presented four options to be considered: 1) installing a gravity outlet, coming out of the wetlands, south of the high school retention pond; 2) looking at an off-site storm sewer, staying in the Waldon Road right of way; 3) looking at a permanent pump outlet on the property; 4) putting a pump station on the school property.

At this point, no resolution has been agreed upon by either side. The district opted to support the fourth option, which would have cost $108,100. The school district would have paid $58,100 of that cost, while the township would have paid $25,000 and the Road Commission for Oakland County the remaining $25,000.

However, the township board, at its Oct. 17 meeting, voted to support a modified version of the first option, at a total cost of $183,000. The township would have picked up 25 percent of the cost ($47,750), the Road Commission would have picked up $25,000, and the school district the remainder of the cost ($110,250).

At that meeting, Dr. Al Roberts, superintendent of Clarkston Community Schools, said that the district could not afford to commit any more money than the $58,100 it had agreed to pay for the first option.

Independence Township Supervisor Dale Stuart said that he has read the letter sent to him by the resiship Board and the Clarkston Community Schools dents, but still said the schools' solution to the probdistrict held a joint meeting to try and resolve the water lem will not work.

> "I think the potential solution that the schools have hooked onto is the least viable," he said. "I don't think it does much good to have an environmental study on a solution that I don't support."

> Clarkston City Manager Art Pappas said the members of the City Council haven't had a chance to read the letter, but discussed the issue at their Monday meeting.

"I put it in for the packets at the council meeting," he said. "They haven't had time to look at it."

Roberts said that the district would not be opposed to an environmental study, but reiterated that the district has done what it could in terms of a financial commitment to alleviate the Almond Lane situation.

"I understand that the letter was sent by Dr. Tom Stone, whom I respect a great deal," he said. "We have no objection to that (doing an environmental study). We have no jurisdiction in terms of doing a study or not doing a study. From our vantage point, we at least stepped up to the plate and said here is the money we have. We are not in the water management business. We feel we've done our part."

Roberts said it would be inappropriate to commit an inordinate amount of school funds to the problem when it has not been proven that the district was the root cause of the problem.

"There are lots of reasons why that could have occurred," he said. "We're kind of in a logjam here. I hope we'll be able to find a way out of it."

City to write Stone, contact township and schools regarding Parke Lake

BY ED DAVIS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Parke Lake resident Tom Stone may get his wish, but it won't be the city who flips the bill.

Stone recently asked the Independence Township Board of Trustees, Clarkston Community Schools Board of Trustees and the City of the Village of Clarkston to conduct a study of the possible impact on Parke Lake of the routing of storm waterfrom Clarkston High School property to the Clarkston Schools Administration property.

At its regular meeting Jan. 8 the city council discussed Stone's letter and said the three parties should meet to discuss the matter.

In response to Stone's letter, city-manager Art Pappas will be writing a letter back to Stone and send copies to the township and the schools. He said he will suggest those two parties to contact the Department of Environmental Quality and the Oakland County Drain Commission if they have not done so already.

Mayor Sharron Catallo said the council is more than willing to discuss the matter with the township and school board, but said it should be the schools who take the initiative.

"I think the schools should take the lead on us

(the council), the township and the schools meeting. But I am willing to take the lead," Catallo said.

However, city attorney Tom Ryan said the city does not have the money to fund a study.

Councilman Walt Gamble said the problem may also include the Clinton River system.

"If there is a problem it's probably impacting the system. This is similar to the Mill Pond situa<sup>4</sup> tion in that it involves the township and part of the city. These people need to form their own committee. We should participate but not get embroiled in the funding of this," Gamble said.

A concept that was discussed at a board meeting in December, and will be addressed further in January, is the middle school teaming concept. Roberts said while that system is very much a work in progress, team teaching, if implemented properly, will allow students and teachers at the middle schools to benefit from the experience.

"While it's an unfinished work, that philosophy, focusing on student learning and team planning, we believe will get us to that point," he said.

Roberts emphasized the importance of eliminating any unnecessary barriers that students may face in the learning project, and encouraging students to become lifelong learners.

While he said, "I'm a perfectionist — I'm never satisfied," Roberts added that he is realistic and understands that each student has different skills.

"We need to challenge every youngster in the school system to be the best that he or she can be," he said.

Roberts said the key challenge the district faced this past year, and will continue to deal with in the year ahead, is the budget.

He said the district's fund equity must be increased to the 15 percent level, in order to avoid the type of cash flow problems the district is currently experiencing.

"We have some budget problems that need to be addressed," he said.

Roberts said the district must have a budget that, is capable of supporting a maintenance plan, as well as the ability to cycle in furniture, equipment and technology purchases

He said the district recently received a certificate of recognition from the Association of School Business Officials, a national organization.

Student enrollment and space needs are other issues facing the schools, according-to Roberts. The Clarkston Board of Education has conducted a couple of workshops recently in which board members and administrators brainstormed to find ways to deal with the situation.

The board will receive a report from administrators Dave Reschke, assistant superintendent for K-8 operations, and Patricia Brumback, assistant superintendent for 9-12 operations and special services, in January.

"We feel we're moving in a deliberate and positive way to examine all the practices that can accommodate the kids we have," Roberts said.

He commented on other concerns facing the dis trict next year.

"Busing has been a real challenge," Roberts said "We're not reimbursed by the state for busing, excep for special education students. I still don't think ou community understands school funding as it relates to Proposal A."

The Clarkston district will participate in the third Durant lawsuit against the state of Michigan, seeking their share of special education funding from the state

"The Durant issue is intriguing," Roberts said "The Supreme Court has seen it the same way we do — we're underfunded. I don't understand why Lansing doesn't see it the same way we do. The courts have spoken. The shell game won't work anymore."

He said that without appropriate funding from the state, the district has to take money for special education from its general fund, which he said hurts all students in the long run.

"I'm the superintendent of all the kids," Roberts said. "It puts all superintendents in a bad spot where they have to take funds from general education funds None of our kids should be shortchanged, whethe they're classified (as special education students) or nonclassified. My concern is, what we absolutely don' need is a divisiveness between parents over who gets the dollars, who will benefit. The state needs to step up to the plate and fund special education the way it is meant to be funded."

Overall, Roberts predicted some obstacles in the future, but said the school district's staff and community is more than capable of taking on that responsibility.

"I think we're on the right track," he said. "We have a long way to go yet. We have some challenges ahead of us. The test of leadership is what you do with more difficult problems. We're looking forward to the challenge. We have a team that's up to the challenge."

New gallery features local artists

BY JENNIFER NEMER

Clarkston News Staff Writer As an artist and art teacher, Jo Grossmas saw a need for a specialized business in the area and decided to fill that need herself.

She rented a small space for an art studio in the lower level of the Tierra Jewelry building at 64 S. Main at the corner of Waldon. Then she had a better idea. She decided to expand it into a gallery.

"I'm surprised by the amount of local artists there are in Clarkston." Grossman said, who felt there was a great need to have a place where local artists could showcase their work.

Grossman said the response from the public has been good since she opened her doors October 26.

Grossman who has been a teacher for 20 years, teaches art at Holly High School. She feels many art teachers, especially, don't have the opportunity to exhibit their work and that's where Seescape steps in. Grossman would like local artists

Grossman would like local artists to participate in the different shows she intends to have approximately every other month.

Seescape recently wrapped up its Relative Aperture show featuring work by Alan Wichar which Grossman described as "photos of man made structures and perspective."

Grossman called the current show of work by artists Marcia and Bill Finks

Seescape Studio and Gallery owner Jo Grossman wants to give local artists a place to feature their work.

of Fenton, "sophisticated yet simple primitive figures from rusted steel."

Grossman also has her own work on display in different media. These include "Into You," an acrylic painting of two faces appearing to melt into one another, and "Innerscape" where Grossman incorporated likenesses of her students in a spiral-shaped collage, and more.

"My work typically has a reference to women's roles because women are very much responsible for the emotional environment for which we live," Grossman said.

Seescape will display the works of Terry Tracy in February in a show titled "Natural Encounter". In April watercolor artist Rob Lennox will have his first professional show, said Grossman.

Everything is for sale in the 400square foot room she remodeled herself.

Grossman is collecting names of people who would like to start a group for local artists to lend inspiration to each other.

She also would like to work with Clarkston Schools, allowing students to visit the gallery, or to host shows for them.

The name Seescape comes from a combination of art, Grossman's love for the ocean and a sense of escapism. It's open Wednesday through Friday 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday noon to 4 p.m. Call 922-9116 for more information.

Tempt your tastebuds at The Chocolate Moose

The Chocolate Moose. Just the name is enough to tempt your tastebuds and drive you inside. Upon entering your eyes dance across an assortment of truffles, moose tracks, and nut clusters. It's nearly heaven.

Owner Christie Kojima, born and raised in Clarkston, started out by making candies from her home. She contemplated opening a store "for quite some time" and to the sweet delights of the Clarkston public. The Chocolate Moose opened Dec. 9.

The business name has been passing quickly by word of mouth, said The chocolate shop has goodies starting from 75 cents on up. Seven kinds of truffles range from raspberry to capuccino and make up a portion of the moose's menu. Get a four-truffle assortment for $7.50.

Nut clusters come in white, dark and milk chocolate for $11.50 a half pound and $13.95 a pound. Add a dollar and they libe packaged in a gift box.

Other delectables include peanut butter cups, moose macaroons, molded chocolate suckers, sugar-free chocolates and pre-packaged chocolates. And of course, moose tracks, which Portela described as a "giant turtle. They're very large and very good." Gift baskets are available per manager and Kojima's best friend Gaylene Portela

"We've had very good business, even with all the snow," said Portela, who noted the staff of "two moms working during the day and seven teens who fill in after school and on Saturdays,"

> The Golden Rule of Smart Tanning: Don't EVER sunburn

The ability to ten while minimizing the risk of surburn is one of the main reasons people come to indoor tenning facilities. Although many people know that too much ultraviolet light exposure results in sunburn, most don't really understand what it is. So what exactly is a sunburn?

Sunburn - medically referred to as anythema occurs when too much energy is absorbed by the skin. That bombardment of light causes tiny blood vessels in your skin to swell or even burst. That's why a burn appears red on the surface of your skin.

Today, we know that sunburn is an unnecessary injury on top of a tan. Unfortunately, previous generations of sunlovers thought that sunburn was simply an inconvenient precursor to developing a tan. They thought their burns were necessary "jump starts" to their tan, and that sunburn would eventually fade into not a tan.

Today we know better.

Metropoli7an Tanning Salons are dedicated to helping you achieve the best tan possible while teaching you how to avoid sunburn and overexposure, both outdoors in the sunshine and indoors in our facilities. Call us today to schedule an appointment with one of our certified tanning specialists. Mention this Smart Tanning information and your tan is free!

"It'll take awhile to find a home for everything and get things set up," Stewart said. She hopes to get settled in in the next couple weeks with a small or limited Clothes Closet up in mid-February.

Lighthouse Clarkston helps 300 households a month throughout North Oakland County including Independence, Springfield, Waterford, Brandon, Holly, Groveland, Orion, Oxford and Leonard Townships as well as the City and Village of Clarkston, said Administrative Assistant Connie Stapleton.

Individuals seeking assistance can visit Lighthouse Clarkston on a walk-in basis. Registration is necessary and specific identification is required for qualification. Those who qualify can come in once every 30 days for food. And once the closet is open, clients can visit once a week for clothes. All is donated used apparel in clean and good condition, said Stewart.

Other programs are offered throughout the year like holiday meals for Thanksgiving and Christmas, Christmas gifts for children, Easter baskets, back to school supplies, and referrals to other agencies if clients need additional help.

Approximately 100 volunteers—"a great bunch of volunteers," said Stewart—work with the organization along with the five staff members.

Through the volunteers, Lighthouse Clarkston can extend its programs to phone reassurance for seniors (a simple call to see how someone is doing) or scheduled rides to doctor's offices or hospitals with the help of volunteer drivers, and more.

Lighthouse Clarkston's funding comes from federal, state, local, churches and individuals. Other monies and goods come from drives such as Boy Scout/ Girl Scout fundraisers as well as the "Take a Sack and Bring it Back," a month-long drive for food with eight participating local churches.

"That keeps us stocked with food all year long," said Stewart.

Stewart said Lighthouse Clarkston is eternally grateful for the community's support in the past and present and asks the community to be patient while Lighthouse gets settled into a new home.

Eight minors were found in the kitchen area of the house and six more hiding upstairs. All were given preliminary breathalizer tests and those registered at .000 were allowed to leave.

Seven teens, all 17 to 18-years-old, were ticketed for consuming alcohol and were turned over to their parents.

They now face a six-week drug diversion program taught by Clarkston High School student assistance coordinator Kelly Kanigowski through the district's community education, said Lt. Dale LaBair, commander of the OCSD Independence Township substation.

The class begins January 10 Kanigowski said, adding, "This particular case has been getting a lot of attention, but there are parties every weekend where teens get ticketed. We developed this program to hopefully reduce those numbers."

The teens' first-offense tickets have been recorded on their driving records. The charges will be removed after successful completion of the class, said LaBair. Thecharges will stay on court records in case there is a second offense.

The program is a collaborative effort between the district and probate courts, police officials and Clarkston schools, said LaBair.

Wolves down Groves, get strong games from Gower, Humphreys

BY ED DAVIS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Clarkston varsity volleyball team's motto is every player, every ball, every play. The Wolves needed a total team effort to defeat Birmingham Groves.

The Wolves improved to 5-2-1 and 1-1 in the Oakland Activities Athletics Association Division I with a league win over Groves Jan. 4 at Clarkston High School. The Wolves won 14-16, 15-11, 17-15.

Clarkston coach Gordie Richardson said his team played strong in several areas.

"Our hitting percentage was very good and we were strong in serve reception. We were excellent in serve efficiency. We were 92 of 95. We matured a lot mentally since the Athens meet," Richardson said.

The Wolves led Troy Athens 14-6 in game one of their league opener Dec. 20, but let an eight point lead slip away.

As soon as the Clarkston varsity basketball team seemed to be on the right track they were derailed by the Class B defending state champions.

Clarkston suffered its fourth defeat of the season by losing to Orchard Lake St. Mary's Jan. 3 at Clarkston High School 51-47. The Wolves are now 2-4 overall.

The rundown

The game: The Wolves

led 42-35 in the third quarter, but scored only five points the rest of the game.

It was another case of

Clarkston getting outscored in the fourth quarter. High scorers: Bryan Endreszl had 14, Ryan Matt Pearsall added 10.

Once again it was a fourth quarter let down that led to the loss.

Fourth quarter have letdowns plagued the Wolves in several games this season. They gave up 33 points in the fourth quarter to Rochester Clarkston was tied late in the game in the season against opener Pontiac Northern and lost.

Clarkston coach Dan Fife said games shouldn't come down to the fourth quarter.

"It shouldn't come down to that. The game should be decided before it ever getsthere. If we play our game in the first. three quarters then it wouldn't come down to the fourth," he said.

In the third quarter Clarkston rallied from a five point halftime deficit and led by seven with less than six minutes to play. Ryan Briceland's three-pointer gave the Wolves a 42-35 lead.

But the Eaglets responded with an 8-2 run and took a 44-43 lead with less than three minutes to play. Orchard Lake St. Mary's made it a three point lead with just over a minute to play.

Senior point guard Ryan Kaul cut the lead to one by making a layup with 51 seconds remaining.

The Eaglets then fouled senior forward Bryan Endreszl, who tied the game at 47 with a free throw. However, the Wolves allowed the Eaglets to retake the lead on their next possession.

Clarkston had one last chance to the or win, but Kaul's pass was intercepted by an Eaglet and the Wolves were forced to foul for the remainder of the game.

Clarkston's leading scorer was Endreszl who had 14 points. Briceland added 11 and Matt Pearsall scored 10 points for the Wolves.

Fife said the loss was difficult, especially after

Members of the varsity basketball team had a hard time watching the fourth quarter against Orchard Lake St. Mary's.

Ryan Briceland heads to the basket in recent action at Clarkston High School:

Clarkston played such a strong game against McKenzie High School over Christmas break.

'I hope it's just a slump. I hope that's all it is. We played so well against McKenzie. I'm not sure what the problem is. Maybe I'm not the coach to get it out of these kids," Fife said.

Fife said the slow start should not be attributed to a lack of desire because of Clarkston's varsity football team's playoff loss. Twelve members of the basketball team also played football. Maybe some of the kids want to attribute it to football burnout. That's the easy way out. If they're Clarkston's next game will be Jan. 12 at Pontiac Northern. The Wolves fell to the Huskies in the season opener at Clarkston High School 61-56 Dec. 6.

recap and hopes for the new year

A year in review from yours truly. Okay, I'm a few days late, but last week's paper didn't have room for my column and the week before I just had to vent about the Lions. So, without further ado, here's my take on the sports world, as I remember it, both locally and nationally Clarkston Sports - The football team had a great run in winning their league, district and regional for the second straight year. Ed Davis The girls basketball team won its first district in over 20 years. The boys basketball team won their district. The girls ski team went to states. The boys ski team sent two individually. The hockey team had Steve Badger and Tom Newman named All-State. Clint DeGain made it to states as a freshman wrestler. Cheer team took 15th at state championships. The boys and girls swim teams both won their leagues. Matt Harrison went to state in golf. The softball team won their district. Boys track finished second in the county meet and won the Ashley Relays while the girls took fourth at the county meet. Girls golf finished second in their league in their first season. The boys tennis team went undefeated in dual meets, won the league meet and two tournaments. Pat Heber graduated with 67 wins. Can you say success?

Michigan Football - Good finish to an up and down season. It was the most entertaining early bowl game on New Years Day. Henson put up tremendous numbers and the A-Train got his rushing record. But it's the guys up front who deserve most of the credit.

MSU Basketball - Izzo and company were crowned NCAA Champs in an exciting tournament. I'm not a huge college hoops fans, but I enjoyed their run in March.

MSU Football - From 8-2 to 5-6. It's too bad really, but I still think they should have finished higher than Michigan two seasons ago.

Red Wings — Another disappointing early playoff exit at the hands of Colorado. The Wings are legitimate contenders for the cup again this year, but anything but a favorite. However, myself. being a New Jersey Devils fan couldn't have been happier with how the playoffs panned out.

Pistons — I went to a game a few weeks ago against Minnesota. I fell asleep. This team is remotely, exciting, but they haven't been a contender in almost a decade.

Tigers — Speaking of not being a contender, how about these guys? They peaked our interest for about a 10-day span when Detroit sports fans Clarkston hockey coach Bryan Krygier did not like the officiating in his team's last game. He didn't like the result either.

The Wolves fell to league rival Royal Oak 3-2 Jan. 6. Clarkston now stands at 9-2-1 and 4-1-1 in the Oakland Activities Association Division I.

The two teams combined for 17 penalties in what Krygier described as a slow and choppy disappointing toss

"We're such a disciplined team it's not like us to be penalized like this. I think the refs did a poor job calling the game. They whistled us for our first penalty two minutes into the game," Krygier said.

The teams were tied at two heading into the final period. But Royal Oak tallied its third power play goal of the game in the third for the game winner. Clarkston's goals came from Jeremy Gabriel and Jon Bemis. Mike Cholette and Eric Plante earned the assists. Brendan Czarniecki stopped 26 of 29 shots.

"Gabriel is coming back. He was scoring for us early in the season and then he had a bit of a lull. But he's working hard and scoring again," Krygier said.

While Royal Oak made the most of their power play opportunities, scoring three with the man advantage, the Wolves didn't score on the power play in their six opportunities Krygier said.

"We're going to stress the power play in practice this week," Krygier said. "It's a tough loss for us, es-

Two weekends ago the Wolves won the Alpena Christmas Classic by defeating two of the best teams in the state in Alpena and East Kentwood. Clarkston is currently ranked fifth in the state in Division I.

"I don't think we were over confident. It was just hard to concentrate out there with all the choppy play," he said.

The Wolves resume action Jan. 13 when they have a rematch with East Kentwood on the road.

"I'm sure they'll have payback on their minds. We'll have to be at the top of our game. They're not going to hand us anything. We've got our work cut

Athlete of the week: Ben Horstman

He drained five three pointers against Rochester and led the team with 16 points. But Ben Horstman thinks things can only get better. The 6-foot senior has seen an increase in playing time this season on the varsity basketball team. Horstman played some varsity last year, but has shown vast improvements in his senior season coach Dan Fife said.

"Ben is an outstanding shooter. I'm confident in his shot. He's getting used to the quickness and strength at this level and he's really coming along nicely," Fife said.

Horstman said his jump shot is his biggest strength.

"I've been working on my jumper my whole life. That, and my help side defense are probably the things I do the best. Coach Fife and coach (Doug) Colling have really helped me along, Horstman said.

Horstman said Fife's confidence in him has also helped his game.

"He tells me how much confidence he has in me. I've also been playing more lately," Horstman said.

Fife said as good a player as Horstman is becoming on the court, he's just as good a person off the court.

They didn't make that same mistake in their match's against Groves.

Clarkston dropped the first game 14-16, but rallied from a 9-2 deficit to win game two 15-11. The third game was a back and forth battle Richardson said.

"We were up 10-7 and then they tied it at. 10. Then we went up 13-10 and then they got four straight to go ahead 14-10. But we rallied, tied it at 14 and ended up winning it; "he said.

CHS varsity skiers race in Colorado, aim for U.S. Junior Olympic team

BY ED DAVIS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Clarkston skiers Brandon Rosengren and John McNew haven't made the U.S. Olympic Ski Team yet. But if they keep doing what they've been doing, they just may.

Rosengren qualified for the U.S. Junior Olympic ski team in 1999 and 2000. He also represented Clarkston at the state championships last year.

He has been a member of the U.S. Ski Association Central Division for seven years. He competes in races throughout the Midwest and Colorado against skiers up to 10 years older than he is. But he doesn't let that age gap get in the way.

Instead, he took 12th place in the giant slalom at the Mid-Am Race recently in Colorado. The competition lasted six days. Rosengren spent four days in Winterpark and two days in Loveland. But it was his 12th place finish in the giant slalom in Winterpark that he considers his shining moment of the competition.

"It was a fast course and I just let it go. I didn't hold anything back," he said: "It was definitely one of my best out west races."

Rosengren's 12th place finish against some of the nation's toughest competition was quite an accomplishment, coach Tom Halsey said. Halsey served as Clarkston's varsity ski coach. from 1992-96 and accompanied Rosengren and McNew on the trip out west, and the second second

"Brandon is on track to have a good shot at being an Olympic skier someday," Halsey said. "He's a very coachable kid and really takes suggestions well. He doesn't let his own ideas get in the way. He's got a tremendous work ethic out there."

Halsey is currently the ski coach at Cranbrook and has been a skiing coach for 16 years. He is also involved. in the Thunderbolt Training Program which is a developmental ski program. Well over 300 high school skiers from Mt. Holly and Pine Knob ski resorts compete in the organization. Halsey said Rosengren is one of the elite skiers in the program.

"He's one of the best I've seen and he's certainly the best sophomore: ** We're very proud of him," Halsey

"It doesn't bring with it much wealth or fame, but he's on track to achieve that if he sets his mind to it," Halsey said.

Rosengren will compete in the U.S. Junior Olympics the first week in March at Beaver Creek Ski Resort in Colorado. . . . . . . 100 10 qualified for the Mid-Am races. Halsey said simply qualifying was quite an accomplishment.

"John was one of the last to qualify, but just to get there with only five (USSA) races under his belt is something special. I think for John it was just a great learning experience to be competing against some of the best competition around," Halsey said. Halsey said McNew almost fin-

Questions on the Wolves troubles on the hardwood this season

1. Q: Clarkston is 2-4 (at press time). What's wrong?

A: They can't finish. In the loss to Orchard Lake St. Mary's the Wolves were outscored 18-8 in the fourth quarter. In their loss to Rochester they gave up 33 points in the fourth quarter. Both games were theirs for the taking and they didn't seize the moment. They were also both lost on Clarkston's home court: 15

2. Q: It's not like Clarkston to be 2-4. Are they really having that much trouble this season?

A: They could easily be 4-2. They had their opportunities against Orchard Lake St. Mary's and against Rochester. They also could have beaten Pontiac Northern in the season opener. They lost to the Huskies by only five. Clarkston went into double overtime with the Eagles.

3. Q: How do they get back on track?

A: It all starts with communication and attitude. Twelve of the basketball players were part of the varsity football team. They knew how to win and refused to lose on the grid iron. That same killer instinct is not evident in the gym this year. Somebody on the team needs to take a leadership role. It doesn't seem to me like the players are helping each other out on the floor. They need to talk to each other. 4. Q: What are the positives the team can build on? A: Unfortunately, Clarkston's lost the three games I've seen them play this year so the positives haven't been many. But I have seen good things from Bryan Endreszl in the paint. He's a hard worker and does a lot of dirty work. As a result, he's usually one of Clarkston's top scorers. Matt Pearsall and Ben Horstman have also shown a good jumpers at times this season. Mike Blicher is an exciting guard who isn't afraid to get inside and makes things happen. Ryan Kaul is a good point guard and is acrobatic, but sometimes it seems like he tries to force things.

5. Q: Where's the jungle?

A: No clue. While talking to a few parents and fans last week they told me about how the old gymused to be packed and there was nowhere to sit. I remember much larger, louder crowds last season, especially in the student section. Granted one game I attended was the day before Christmas break and the other one was on a Wednesday, but the stands are anything but packed. It reminds me of a Pistons game.

In addition to his 12th place finish in the giant slalom at Winterpark, he also finished in the top 30 out of a field of over 100 skiers in the super giant slalom.

Rosengren said he did much better than he expected in the giant slalon. t

"It was the first time I've ever raced that course. It's a long course with a tough s-turn with lots of trees. It's tough to control your speed through there. I was just hoping to end up in the top 40," he said

As a result of his hard work and dedication to the slopes, Rosengren may end up on the U.S. Ski Team one day. But Halsey said being an Olympic skier is not all that glamorous, and above made for much tougher competition.

"It was a big accomplishment just to be there. It was my second time out there racing in Colorado. I felt more comfortable out there this year," he said:

Last year, while competing in the 13-15 age group, McNew finished 40th. This year he took 52nd in the super giant slalom while competing in the 15 and over age group.

McNew said he hopes to qualify for Junior Olympics also. He made the team last year and is aiming for a repeat performance later this winter. This year I'd like to finish around 25th. The top 25 qualify," he said. AT THE REAL PROPERTY AND A STOCK
