Parade, ceremony highlight Memorial Day activities

Clarkston joined the rest of the nation this week in taking time out to honor those who lost their lives in service to our country.

Hundreds of residents came together at Main Street on Memorial Day morning, May 28, to honor veterans with the annual Memorial Day parade.

After the parade, the crowd made its way to Lakeview Cemetery where several speakers paid tribute to the nation's war veterans.

The ceremony started out with the National Anthem, performed by the Clarkston High School Band under the direction of Cliff Chapman. An invocation was given by the Rev. Jonathan Heierman, pastor of Calvary Evangelical Lutheran Church, and then America the Beautiful was performed by a vocal group.

Following that, the roll call of deceased veterans was read, and Dr. Robert Walters, retired pastor of Calvary United Methodist Church, read "Gettysburg."

The keynote address was given by Independence Township Supervisor Dale Stuart.

Afterwards, a vocal group performed "Tenting On The Old Camp Ground Tonight," and then a memorial wreath was presented as "Taps" was performed.

Dick Morgan's gone the extra mile

BY ED DAVIS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

He's nearly earned a reputation as Clarkston's own form of roadside assistance. Going those extra miles for his customers helped Dick Morgan win the business person of the year by the Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce.

"It makes you feel awful proud," Morgan said.
"I don't think it's something the community owed me, but I'm glad they think I earned it. I didn't think
I had it coming."

Morgan was honored at a ceremony May 23 at Liberty Golf Club for his service of nearly 70 years as owner of Morgan's Complete Auto Service. During his time there, Morgan has seen hundreds of people come and go through his shop and through the city of Clarkston. But the main reason Morgan was honored is because when people leave his store after having their vehicle serviced, they come back if their car needs more work down the road. It was the first time Morgan was honored with the award.

Morgan said he had no idea he was going to be happy. named business person of the year.

"I was surprised, that's for sure. I think why we've been successful is because we have lots of returning customers," Morgan said.

While interviewing Morgan several of his faithful customers entered the store and shared their thoughts and stories on why they've done business with Morgan's for years.

John Nicholson Jr, whose family has done business with Morgan's for 35 years said, "They're nice, honest and give good service. I come in here because I know these people."

Marquis Harris, a Clarkston resident for 32 years, agreed that Morgan's ran an honest business.

"These people are honest, they're trustworthy and they're professional," Harris said. "I remember one New Year's Eve a couple of years ago when Dick spent the whole night with me when I was stranded on I-75 and M-24. I couldn't find anybody else who would help. They've continued to be trustworthy, honest and dependable people to this day."

Lenny Green, who worked for Morgan from 1991 to 1998 spoke very highly of his former boss.

"He's honest and he's got integrity. When I worked for him I remember one time a family's car overheated on I-75 and they pulled in. They didn't know about this place (Morgan's). Dick could have ripped them off like a lot of other places do, and charged them $800 for a new radiator. Dick didn't do that. He told them the problem was only a drain plug — a 30 cent part. He didn't charge them anything. I'll never forget that."

Green went on to tell more stories about Morgan.

"Here he is, this 80 year old guy, and I saw him tow cars out of ditches kids in their 20's couldn't get out. I can't tell you the number of people he's helped right on I-75 with traffic going 80 mph right next to him. The man taught me more in four years than I probably learned in school. He's taught me so much about life in general," Green said.

As highly as his customers and friends spoke of him, Morgan kept a low profile and didn't want to brag. Instead, he let his customers do the talking and simply smiled and greeted his customers on a first name basis as they walked in and out of his service station.

During the course of his business, which opened January 7, 1932 with $200 he borrowed from his grandfather, Morgan has seen a lot happen in Clarkston, but he said he has not seen much change overall.

"Some people come in here and think, boy you must have seen lots of changes, but not really. The thing that has changed most about downtown Clarkston is the people. Sure, there may be a new paint job here or there, but for the most part downtown looks the same as it did years ago," Morgan said.

One of Mogan's most faithful customers has been Bob Jones. Jones has been doing business with Morgan's since its doors opened almost 70 years ago. He started as a trainee at the old Clarkston State Bank and worked his way up to upper management. Jones is retired and spends half of the year in Florida and the other half in Clarkston.

Another longtime Morgan customer is Detroit News writer Joe Falls, who was the speaker at the Chamber of Commerce ceremony where Morgan was honored. Falls is a friend of Morgan. The two have attended Tiger games and spring training in Lakeland, Fla. together.

Morgan offered this bit of advice for people who are looking to better service their vehicles.

"To get long miles on your vehicle, the best thing you can do is get your oil changed every 3,000 miles," Morgan said

Morgan's services cars and trucks and specializes in brakes, tires, mufflers and other routine maintenance. They are closed on Saturdays throughout Labor Day, but will be open late a few days per week. Morgan said construction has not slowed down his business one bit. Not by a long shot. They service an estimated 10-12 vehicles per day and he was working 12 hours per day, six days a week before the change in hours.

John Morgan, Dick's son, said the change in the schedule is long overdue.

"We're just trying to accommodate customers who can't drop their car off for the day for routine maintenance. Everyone I've talked to said I should have closed on Saturdays years ago. A lot of people think I'm nuts for working as much as I do anyway," Morgan said.

Like father, like son.

It's that working attitude, and honesty which have helped build Morgan's into a favorite of many people in the Clarkston area.

And to others who were given a free drain plug, instead of being charged $800 for a radiator.

Youngsters, oldsters and those in between were honored May 23 for their dedication to making Clarkston a better place at the annual Michigan Week Community Awards Breakfast.

Sponsored by the Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce, 166 people attended the event, held at Liberty Golf and Banquet.

Citzen of the Year: Wendy Halsey "She has a terrible problem -- she can't keep her hand down," quipped Independence Township Clerk Joan McCrary, calling Halsey a "perennial volunteer," as she spoke about her commitment to many service clubs and good causes in the area:

Halsey is a past director of Lighthouse Clarkston, past president and current board of directors member of the Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce, a SCAMP volunteer, founding member of Clarkston Coalition for Youth and very active at Mt. Zion church, among other commitments.

Also nominated for Citizen of the Year were Herbert Harthun and Ken Nuss.

Adult-Youth Volunteer: Ray Neubeck "Anyone who knows me knows this is a special day, because I'm wearing a tie for you, Ray," joked Clarkston schools Athletic Director Dan Fife, as he spoke about Neubeck's dedication to his unpaid part-time job as president of the Athletic Boosters.

"Clarkston Athletics could never repay Ray for what he means to our program," said Fife. Neubeck works 25 to 30 per week during the school year, organizing parent volunteers, stocking supplies, making deliveries and dealing with health and school officials, said Fife.

"He keeps saying he'll do this for one more year. For the sixth year, Ray ran unopposed. He's irreplaceable," said Fife.

Also nominated for Adult-Youth Volunteer were Don Brose and, Jeff Lichty.

Business Person of the Year: Dick Morgan Pam Ford Morgan called Morgan an "all around great guy," as she listed his contributions to the community over the last 50-some years.

Solutions to be implemented next year

Schools grapple with overpopulation

BY JEFF PATRUS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Summertime is a time to hit the beaches, fire up the barbecue grill, and take family vacations.

In the case of Clarkston Community Schools, it is also a time to further analyze the district's space woes and find solutions.

Based on the district's Feb. 14 enrollment figures, the high school figures to face overpopulation concerns in the years ahead.

According to David Reschke, assistant superintendent for K-8 operations, dialogue sessions involving central office administrators and members of the Clarkston Board of Education will continue this summer.

Previously, the district has brainstormed since December on potential long-term and short-term solutions. Reschke said the district will continue discussing and working through solutions during the summer, and begin to implement solutions 'sometime next year.'

According to Reschke, the enrollment projections at the elementary school level indicate "we're in reasonably good shape," although he said things will be a little tight at North Sashabaw and Pine Knob Elementaries.

In addition, he said there is an imbalance between the populations at Clarkston Middle School (1,076 students as of Feb. 14, 2001) and Sashabaw Middle School (691 students) that needs to be discussed in the next 12-18 months.

Projected totals at the high school for the next five years indicate the school's population will exceed the student capacity of 2,200 in each of those years. Based on current middle school enrollment figures, in 2001-02, the projected high school enrollment is 2,323, while in 2002-03, the projected enrollment is 2,484.

Projections made during the 1995-96 school year listed the projected enrollment for Clarkston Coumminity Schools during the 2000-01 school year at 6,912. The actual total for the district this year is 7,551. The projections were made by the Stanfred company, hired by many school districts for those purposes.

Clarkston High School Principal John Diliegghio said the school has taken steps to deal with the issue and will continue to do so.

"We have done some creative things to make sure our schools fit in this year," he said. "We schedule so that every room is used every hour of the day."

Diliegghio said the only rooms not used for classes right now are those not conducive to classroom settings, such as the child care laboratory. In addition, he said the school's large group instruction room is not used for classes at this time.

Currently, the high school offers a few classes during what is described as "zero hour," which lasts between 6:30-7:30 a.m.

These courses are offered primarily in the fine arts, according to Reschke. He said the primary reason the classes are offered during that period is to give students additional class time, as opposed to space concerns during the regular school day.

"We've done that for a long time, in order to increase the amount of learning time," he said.

While the district is currently addressing its current space issues, population projections suggest the school district will have to plan accordingly for the expected growth in the township's population.

"We'll have to acquire more learning stations," Reschke said. "We'll have to use the learning stations we already have. We'll have to use the space we have."

He said the learning stations could come either additional buildings, or by construction of additional classrooms.

"It depends on what the community wants at that time," Reschke said.

According to Independence Township Supervisor Dale Stuart, the township's population is expected to increase to approximately 45,000 within the next 25-30 years.

State law limits how long the district can project into the future when asking for a bond. Currently, districts are allowed to use only five-year enrollment projections in making that decision.

According to Reschke, that law was born out of

Letters To The Editor

Paint the Town particpants are angels in disguise

When I think of saying, "Thank You," there are few words that adequately describe my deepest gratitude. There are just so many things that bring a smile to my face and warm my heart when I look at our home and think about the absolutely incredible task that you planned and accomplished.

There were no details left out of this project! The power washing, deck staining, beautiful landscaping including shrubs, flowers, top soil, grass seed, mulch, clean up, and muscle; and of course paint, paint and more paint all came together to create a beautiful and charming update for our home. For that we say, "Thank You!"

There are many things about the project that will remain in my heart longer than any of the materials will even last. Your hard work, willingness and desire to participate in a community service project, your smiles, great spirit, kind words, and your obvious generous, selfless attitudes will last forever! Our family will be forever grateful. For that we say, "Thank You!"

From the first contact that we received about the project until the last good-bye at the end of a very long day, everyone we encountered was respectfully professional and pleasant, and projected a genuine enthusiasm for the project. For that we say, "Thank You!"

Our thanks also extend to the community and the businesses who donated so generously to the project and to each of you who worked so hard to secure the donations. Without this generous spirit, there could not be an all-encompassing project such as this. For that we say, "Thank You!"

Last and certainly not least is a special "Thank You" to Dan Ferguson and his wife, Jen. Dan, you did an excellent job leading the team and keeping everything running so smoothly. Jen, how kind of you to join the project. It is an honor to be a co-worker of yours! The students of Clarkston High School are so fortunate to benefit from such fine role models.

For that, we say, "Thank You!"

Our neighborhood is a wonderful place to live. It is comprised of people from all walks of life, including married, single, young families, middle-aged families, and senior citizens. They have all marveled at the hard work and beautiful job that each of you did. Not only did you beautify our home but you enhanced our neighborhood as well, and left an indelible mark in the hearts of all who live here.

The seniors were especially touched by your spirit and commented that they have renewed faith in our youth.

Our neighbors are still talking about the home at 5989 Princess Lane! For that we say, "Thank You!"

God bless each of you, Cathy, Amanda and Rob Sabo

Adventures of a first-time computer owner

It's finally happened — your fearless reporter has joined the hi-tech age.

The purchase of a new computer for my humble abode in Clarkston made that official. Now comes the fun part — how to figure the thing out.

First things first. It turns out that searching for all the right parts to make the computer go can be an expensive proposition in and of itself, in addition to the actual purchase of the PC. For crying out loud, even a seemingly innocent thing like a power pack to plug in all the various computer entities is not cheap by any means.

Next is the actual putting together of the computer. With the able assistance of my sister and her fiancee, the computer was installed. Actually, my sister just looked on while her fiancee did all the dirty work but that's beside the point.

work, but that's beside the point.

One thing I discovered while the thing was being put together was that you can actually play music CD's on the CD-ROM drive. Shows how much I still have to learn about the wonderful world of technology. Anyway, there's nothing like hearing U2 through the computer speakers while typing a letter.

Searching for a book for computer novices like myself can also be an adventure. While making a trip to a Borders bookstore, I was overwhelmed by the amount of computer books they have there. It seems like they have books for every type of computer program you can possibly imagine, and books for every type of computer-related purpose you can think of.

Hey guys, I'm only looking to get started, not become a walking encyclopedia of high-technology. Anyway, I bought the book Internet for Dummies, since I figured I'm going to be surfing the Web quite a bit.

Since I am going to be using the Internet, it makes sense to call an Internet provider, right. Upon searching for such companies in the phone book, it was amazing to find the amount of providers listed and the services they offer. I called one of the companies to sign up, and they told me it would be about 3-4 days before I would receive a packet in the mail.

Sure enough, I received that packet in the mail, and after much trial and error, the Internet is now officially on my computer. As a result, your fearless reporter can now e-mail and surf the Web to his heart's content (and believe me, I've done just that).

The hard part will be figuring out how to surf the Net without tying up my phone line for an inordinate amount of time. I mean, what if Publishers Clearing House calls to tell me I won $10 million while I'm searching for information on last night's ballgame?

In all seriousness, I've been on the other end of the fence, where I've made phone calls only to get busy signals constantly, knowing full well that the busy signal is likely due to someone surfing the Web. I'm sure there is some way of working around that, but I haven't figured it out yet.

The purchase of my own computer has created quite a buzz in my family. My dad, for one, wants me to teach him the fine art of hi-tech and surfing the Web. Hey, Dad, I'm still trying to figure out the darn thing myself, but when I do, I'll let you know.

That's about it from the world of hi-tech. It will be intriguing to see how my computer adventures turn out in the future. Like anything else man-made, it can be used for good or bad purposes; the trick is focusing more on the former than the latter.

No, no, we didn't read the Bible together or go over the Bill of Rights. Nothing so lofty. As a matter of fact it was rather, sub-lofty. Some would even say what we did was below sub-lofty. We watched some good-old boys race their Nascars for the Coca-Cola 600.

Mind you, we're not a big autoracing family. Jen and I had to both put our heads together to figure out what type of cars they drove at the Indy 500. It was only after fifteen or so minutes of word association that we came up with the word "cart."

"I think there's some rivalry between Cart and Nascar," I said.

We came upon the Coca Cola 600 merely by chance. Young Shamus R had turned on the television and was flicking through the channels. Fast cars filmed with slick camera work grabbed his attention. Then it was just a matter of picking our guys.

Shamus, ever the lover of tools, picked the Home Depot car -- oh -- and then the Lowe's Car. Since one-year-old Sean could care less and would spend point zero, two, three seconds watching the cars going, round and around and around and around and . . . we picked for him. We saw a Cheerios car (No.

was given car No. 32 -- the Ford car driven by Ricky sors' stickers can they fit on a car, anyway.)

race would last 4 and a half hours -- until about 10 p.m. We watched a few laps, told Shamus to go play and turned off the TV.

Four and a half hours of cars circling seems like an eternity, and yet I've heard that the No. 1 spectator sport in the good ol' US of A is auto racing. I guess I just don't see it. The only exciting thing about auto racing is when somebody crashes. Maybe in that statement is my answer: Auto racing fans are actually auto accident gawkers

Four and a half hours -- six hundred miles -- of round and round and ... I can paint the hallway and watch it dry in less time. I could paint the hallway. I need to paint the hallway. I did not paint the hallway. I have no excuse save to say I watched the Coca Cola 600.

Maybe there is a reason to watch auto racing? How did our picks turn out, you are asking? Well, as we missed the end of the race, I had to look up results. A quick trip to Nascar.com gave me the answers I was looking for.

Sean's guy, the Cheerios driver, wasn't even listed. I don't know what happened to him.

My guy, the Tide man, finished (barely) in the 31st position (he started at number 20), with only five cars slower than he. Jen's cutie-pie, with the backing of big-money company DuPont, finished 29th. (So much for being cute with a lot of cash -- sort of makes guys like me feel good.)

Shamus' two picks were good ones. The Home Depot car came in third and his competition from Lowes finished 11th.

Who would have thunk a car sponsored by Citgo would win? We passed him right by, yet Citgo guy, Jeff Burton, finished first.

After the race, we saw a video clip of him shaking a bottle of Coke, spraying the crowd and taking a chug... I wonder what happened to champagne for the winners. Political correctness has even reached the good ol' boy network . . . but I guess that's another column.

A Look Back

15 YEARS AGO (1986)

On the ballot for the annual school election are candidates for the Clarkston Board of Education, a 5mill tax renewal, and candidates for Oakland Community College trustee seats. Incumbent Mary Jane Chaustowich is running unopposed for a four-year term. Vying for the two years remaining in the four year term of a board member who resigned are Bruce W. Harlton and John H. Needham.

The Clarkston Post Office building location is going to change, according to Postmaster William O. Kinsley II. A building four times the present size with more parking spaces has been approved by the United States Postal Service, and the search has begun for a 5-acre building site. Several factors influenced the decision to move, including inadequate building size with not enough acreage for expansion.

Voters who cast their ballots in four elementary schools in the Clarkston school district will no longer have to step into booths in the hallways. For the first time, voting will take place in the new multipurpose rooms at Andersonville, Bailey Lake, North Sashabaw, and Pine Knob elementaries. The change was made primarily for the voters' convenience, said district financial manager William Jackson.

25 YEARS AGO (1976)

Plenty of excitement in Springfield Township election races is promised by the number of candidates meeting the filing deadline for the Aug. 3 primary. Five people, including incumbent Donald Rogers, seek the nomination for supervisor. Another seven hope to replace E.L. Rundell as trustee. Competition is promised in all other races, as it is in all but one race in Independence Township.

Tentative agreement on a one-year contract between teachers and the Clarkston Board of Education was achieved, according to Superintendent Milford Mason. The contract remains to be ratified by the Board of Education and the Clarkston Education Association, which represents the teachers. The June 1 settlement is the earliest such an agreement has ever been reached, Mason said.

Rain dampened the turnout for Clarkston's Memorial Day parade and the opening of two parks in Independence Township. American Legion Campbell Richmond Post No. 63 sponsored both the parade and the ceremony which followed at Lakeview Cemetery. Independence Township's new park, Clintonwood, opened to sparse traffic. At Independence Oaks, traffic from the south end of the county provided acceptable first day figures.

Lloyd C. Magee, an executive of the Southeastern Division of the Consumers Power Company, and a resident of Clarkston, was elected Governor of the 222nd District of Rotary International, a worldwide service organization, at Rotary's 42nd annual convention. He will serve for the fiscal year 1951-52, and will take office July 1. Magee has served ten years as a trustee of Clarkston. He is a member and past president of the Rotary Club of Clarkston.

Many of our youth in this district and many parents will be happy to learn that the local 4-H Club is about to be reorganized. The Clarkston Rotary Clubdecided to sponsor this worthwhile youth organization and has named George Perry and Ed Rummins chairmen of the project. Mrs. Ralph Walton has consented to be the leader.

At the meeting of the directors of the Clarkston Rotary Anna at the home of Mrs. Fred Groven, the group elected Mrs. William Sharpe as president for the year 1951-52. She will take office July 1. Other officers elected were: vice president, Mrs. Fred Groven; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Robert M. Atkins; recording secretary, Mrs. Ronald Walter; treasurer, Mrs. A.E. Butters. The other two members of the board are Mrs. Byron Nolan and Mrs. W.H. Stamp.

Cooking class teaches residents the art of fine cuisine

BY JEFF PATRUS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Clarkston's version of Chef Emeril held court May 23.

Clarkston resident Gregg Markowski taught the second of a two-week cooking class that evening at Clarkston's Community Education Center. About seven people out of the 10 that registered showed up for the class.

Markowski has taught his students a good deal in his two-week class.

"Last week, we did seasoning rubs, which is a mixture of herbs and spices," he said. "We marinated barbecue salmon, rib-eye steaks, peppers, and onions. Tonight, we're going to do pizza and ribs, and grilled fruit for dessert."

This is Markowski's first time teaching the class here in Clarkston. In fact, he has a unique twist on how it all came about.

"I came in to sign up for Spanish class as a student, and I left as a cooking instructor," he said.

Markowski, a 15-year resident of Clarkston, said he cooks as a hobby, and has been doing so all his life. He said his favorite things to cook are wild game and seafood.

His full-time job is as a financial planner and investment advisor, with an office located above Clarkston Cafe.

In June, he hopes to teach a class on garnishing fruits and vegetables.

One photo, digitally stretched, can also make a one-

The process, she explained, is to scan the photos into a computer, crop them, arrange them artistically, edit and blend. The mattes are then cut out at Accent on Art in Lake Orion, where they are also on display.

> With the help of the computer, Kock and Fisher can change or enhance a photo by adding texture, changing color to black and white, or adding color to black and white.

In the past, they've even taken off a subject's braces, whitened teeth, diminished wrinkles and more. "There's a lot we can do with a photograph," said Fisher.

color guard for two other Clarkston parades, the fourth of July and Labor Day.

Lynch, a veteran of World War II, joined the post in 1959. He described his duties as adjutant as similar to that of a secretary in other organizations, taking the minutes for the meetings and taking care of administrative paperwork.

The post holds their meetings on the first Wednesday of each month.

He said about 10 percent of the veteran population from World War II joined the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and other organizations.

"We're the two largest," Lynch said of the American Legion and VFW. "An awful lot hold dual memberships."

He said World War II and Vietnam veterans comprise the majority of membership in the American Legion, with the majority of members waiting to settle down before joining. "Most don't join until they have their family established," Lynch said.

He said the national American Legion membership is currently 2.7 million, which is down from years past due to the number of World War II veterans that have "A few years ago, we had three million, but the World War II population is dying at about 1,000 a day,"

Currently, the American Legion is focused on meeting the needs of veterans, particularly those that are disabled. Lynch said more funding is needed from the federal government to meet the needs of disabled veterans.

"The American Legion is heavily involved in maintaining the Veterans Administration, which will pay attention to disabled veterans," he said.

Tommy Phipps, commander of the Campbell Richmond post, said the Legion is involved in various community functions.

"We used to let the township use this as a voting precinct," he said. "We do community service work, (such as) if people need help for a funeral dinner...We've progressed along, doing fund raisers for our building fund.'

One of the key fundraisers for the Legion, according to Phipps, is the collection of pop tabs, which is used to raised money for VA hospitals.

"We save pop tabs, take them, and turn them in," he said. "We have donated about $35,000 for the purchase of medical equipment from these tabs."

Seniors top 100 wins

Clarkston's softball seniors have amassed over 100 wins in their career

This just may be their year.

The Clarkston girls varsity softball team, led by a veteran group of seniors in Lindsay Simko, Lisa Ferguson, Mary Warchuck, Tracy Honey, Tricia Brewer nd Nicole Thrift, have their eyes set a number of things this season. But as a group, they've already accomplished something incredible — a 100 plus win career.

The senior class on the Wolves' softball team have combined for well over 100 wins this season. Heading into their final regular season game against Troy May 23, pitcher Lisa Ferguson said the total was at 109. But the number just continues to grow.

Simko made sure her last game at Clarkston High School was one to remember. She hit a grand slam, the first of her career.

"I can't believe it!," she said from the dugout with a huge smile: "I've never done that. In my last game here at kston I finally got one."

In addition, the Wolves got another solid game from Ferguson on the mound.

Land said earlier this month that a sore back may keep Ferguson out of the playoffs, but she looked strong during the game and did not give any signs of her back giving her trouble.

The Wolves wrapped up their regular season with a decisive win over Troy and are now in the midst of their playoff

Clarkston's first round opponent was Pontiac Northern. Results were not available at press time. Assuming the Wolves advance, their second round opponent will be against Waterford Kettering June 2 at 12 p.m. The Captains were the Oakland Activities Association Division I league champions last Gordie Richardson and Walt Wyniemko would have liked to have seen some of their best athletes in action May 25, but that didn't happen.

Terrible weather, which included thunderstorms, lightning and a tornado warning forced the Oakland County Track Meet to be cancelled for the first time in its history. The meet was not rescheduled because of end of the year activities within schools such as graduation and prom, according to league officials.

Two different times of lightning being spotted in the sky forced fans, athletes and coaches to file into the Clarkston High School gym and wait. The schools were forced to wait until 30 minutes had passed after lightning was spotted before attempting to restart the meet, one coach said:

After the second lightning waiting period had passed, athletes and fans returned to the track, but rain showers came and ended the meet after a judges' decision.

Together, the Clarkston boys and girls track teams will be sending 16 athletes to the state finals June 2 in Rock-

Trim leads golfers in OAA I league meet

Wolves finish fifth in league meet at Indianwood May 25

BY ED DAVIS

Clarkston News Sports Editor

Poor weather conditions and tough competition combined to give Clarkston senior Lauren Benner a tough time on the golf course May 25.

Benner, one of only two seniors on the team, competed in the Oakland Activities Association Division I league meet last week/at Indianwood Golf Course.

Spotty showers and a lack of sleep from Clarkston's prom being held the night before hampered Benner, who has been one of Clarkston's best golfers this season.

Benner finished the day with a score of 114, a very disappointing round for her, she said.

"I've never shot this bad in my life," Benner said during the match. "I'm on only a few hours of sleep because we had prom last night. The weather isn't helping any either."

As a team, the Wolves finished in fifth place, one place higher than they finished in the team's first league meet April 11. Benner shot a team low 92 at that meet and a 97 at regionals earlier this month

The other top Clarkston golfers were sophomore Anna Trim who finished with a team best 102. Taylor Wilburn shot a 118 while Lisa Lesko ended her round shooting 119. Laura Barnett and Meghan Williams also played for Clarkston.

"It's tough to shoot out here in these conditions," Trim said. "It's been a long day out here."

Trim has been one of Clarkston's best golfers this season along with Benner. Trim is only a sophomore and hoping to build on what has started out as a promising career.

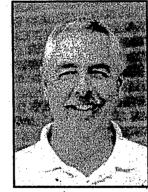

She missed qualifying for state this year, although she did have the best score for Clarkston at the regional, finishing with a 93.

"I was hoping to make it to states this year, but I've got next year and my senior year still to get there," she said.

'I'm satisfied with how we ended up this year. We didn't play as well as I thought we could have, but just for Lauren (Benner) to be out there the day after prom says a lot about her character.'

year, but this year that title belongs to Clarkston. The Wolves clinched a share of the league title earlier this month, but the win over Troy gave Clarkston the title outright. It is the first league title for the Wolves under coach Al Land's 10year tenure.

With the win, the Wolves improved to 28-6 overall and 15-2 in the OAA I. Last year the Wolves won a record 32 games, but look for that record to be broken this year.

Clarkston's team may be even stronger than last year's team which won the district, but then fell in the regional final to Kettering, Land said.

"I've had teams that could hit better, pitch better or play defense better than this one, but I don't know if I've ever had a group that could put it all together like this one can," Land said.

Clarkston uses an effective combination of strong pitching, timely hitting, smart base running and stingy defense. They lost a solid group of three seniors from last year's team in Jennie Winn, Melanie Arnold and Candace Morgan, but have retooled and seen several underclassmen step up and play key roles this season.

Sophomore Missy Parsons has been solid at second base and the freshman tandem of Heather and Suzie Giroux have also played well.

But this is the year for seniors and what a solid group it has been.

With the league title under their belt and a district championship very likely if they can get past Kettering, there is no telling how far this pack of Wolves can (Top left) Senior Lindsay Simko was all smiles with her teammates after hitting her first career grand slam in Clarkston's win over Troy May 23. The win gave Clarkston sole possession of the OAA I league title. (Top right) Coach Al Land said back problems may keep pitcher Lisa Ferguson out of the playoffs, but she pitched well against the Colts May 23. If the Wolves get past Kettering, they'll take on the winner of Waterford Mott and Pontiac Central in the district final June 2 at 2 p.m.

Trim's coach, Larry Sherrill said earlier this year that Benner and Trim were his two best chances to qualify for states. And although neither of them did, he had lots to be proud of this year.

"I'm satisfied with how we ended up this year. We didn't play as well as I thought we could have, but just for Lauren to be out there the day after prom says a lot about her character and what kind of leader she was on the team," Sherrill said.

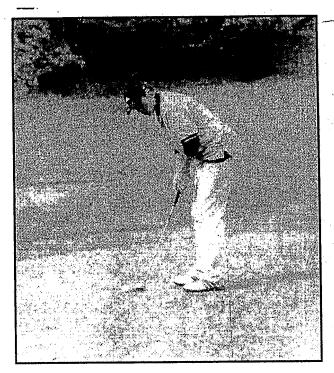

The Wolves, although only in their second year, made the move to the OAA I. They defeated a 5-0 Troy team this year and lose only two seniors — Benner and Kelly Haggard — to graduation. However, they also lose Taylor Wilburn, who will be moving to Indiana.

Trim will return next year, along with freshmen Lisa Lesko and Nina Jackson. Laura Barnett also returns next season.

"I'm expecting big things from Anna and Laura next season," Sherrill said. "We're young and we have a lot we can build on. I think the biggest thing with this year (being the first in the OAA I) was our girls getting used to playing the tougher courses. We played Pine Trace, Indianwood and Birmingham Country Club. These are tough, tough courses," Sherrill said.

"I was hoping to be in the top four teams, but the weather didn't help any and the prom was something too. But those are things you have to fight through. But we're still very young and we have a lot of returning players next year," Sherrill said.

The Wolves finished 4-6 in the OAA I this year. Final league standings were not available at press time.

Rain hampers end of year activities for Wolves

This recent bad weather we've all had to endure the last few days is really starting to get old.

Clouds, rain showers and even tornado warnings followed me during several assignments I had last week.

1. The OAA I Golf League Meet — Both times I hopped in a golf cart and watched Larry Sherrill's girls compete this year. it rained on me and, of course, on his team. Maybe I'm bad luck, I don't know. The first league meet his girls finished sixth, but this time around they finished fifth. Hats off to Lauren Benner, who even though she struggled on the course, made it out there and competed in very little sleep the day after prom.

2. The County Track Meet — I got there a little after 3 p.m. for field events. By 4 p.m. the skies were threatening. By 4:30 lightning was spotted. I came back about 45 minutes later and was greeted with the scene of hundreds of area athletes sitting on the track, waiting and waiting. The meet was cancelled for the first time in history.

3. Prom pictures at Depot Park — I felt bad for you seniors and your folks. You all wait 12 years for that day and when you trotted out to Depot Park for your pre-prom pictures, umbrellas once again became a hot commodity. I've never seen so many people crammed under a gazebo in my life. But everyone still

Hearing
Thursday, June 14, 2001
On Thursday, June 14, 2001 at 7:30 p.m., the City of the Village of Clarkston Zoning Board of Appeals will hear Cases B-78 & B-79 at the City Hall, 375 Depot Road, Clarkston, MI

Case B-78 is a request by Dan and Elaine MacLennan for a variance for parking recreation vehicles on the property at 6140 Overlook, Parcel I.D. 08-29-127-007.

Case B-79 is a request by Richard Olsen for a variance on parking recreation vehicles on the property at 6123. Overlook, Parcel I.D. No. 08-29-176-017.

James Schultz, Chairman Zoning Board of Appeals

I had planned to hit Cedar Point Monday, but after checking the Sandusky, Ohio forecast on the Internet my wife and I decided not to go. Instead, we spent the vast majority of the weekend overdosing on war mov-

We saw Pearl Harbor opening night. I won't pretend to be a bonafide film critic, but here is what I took away from the movie.

Special effects — By far, this was the film's biggest strength, but there was nothing really revolutionary here either. Still, this movie should be seen at a good surround sound, Dolby Digital theatre to be really Acting — It was pretty good. I've seen more inspiring performances, but I didn't think the acting took away from anything.

Plot — It was better than I thought it would be, and even though it ran around three hours I didn't look at my watch once.

Realism — I'm not WWII guru, or a history major, but from what I could gather it was somewhat realistic. One interesting fact here though is that the film is said to be longer than the actual attack was.

Overall — My wife thinks I'm very critical of movies, but I thought it was pretty good. See it on a big screen and take it for what it is - a summer blockbuster movie, not a PBS documentary.

Pearl Harbor is worth seeing if you like war movies, but neither compares to Saving Private Ryan. I wonder if anything ever will.
