Residents want better cable service Independence fields complaints daily

BY JENNIFER NEMER

Clarkston News Staff Writer It seems Comcast Cable Communications is channeling some negative energy among Independence Township residents as of late. The Clarkston News has received recent letters to the editors. "Maybe we should get a dish!!!" one angry writer said. "Is there any way we can get another cable company in Independence Township?" another said. Independence Township Clerk Joan McCrary said her office fields two to three complaints a day, an ongoing problem she's been dealing with year after vear.

Complaints include: the cable's out, not being able to reach anybody for help, automated telephone services and answering machines, repair service unavailable for two to three days, a two to

But, Comcast says they are committed to good service.

At a recent board meeting, McCrary made mention of a letter from Donald Stephan, vice president and general manager of Comcast.

"Because of our dedication to quality customer care, our call center provides service 24 hours a day, seven days a week," the letter reads. "A local call center servicing the Michigan East region recently opened in Sterling Heights, and convenient evening and weekend hours are available for home installation and service calls."

In Stephan's letter, it assures customers, "Comcast is working hard to connect residents to what's important in their lives with new services like high-speed Internet access and digital cable."

The Second Front Halloween cartooning: a 'boo-tiful' lesson

BY JENNIFER NEMER

Clarkston News Staff Writer From bats to aliens to monsters and more, Halloween cartooning can be lots of fun and tons of area kids found that out at a recent Clarkston Community Education workshop.

Neal Levin, a self-taught freelance cartoonist who has created over 500 original characters, brought his teaching to Clarkston, October 16, for the tenth year in a rów.

Since 1988, Levin has taught over 54,000 elementary and middle school students through over 1,200 workshops in approximately 30 Metro Detroit school districts.

Besides introducing the kids to drawing cartoon characters, Levin's hour and a half workshop also helps kids create their own original cartoons, learn humor techniques, and develop a personal style.

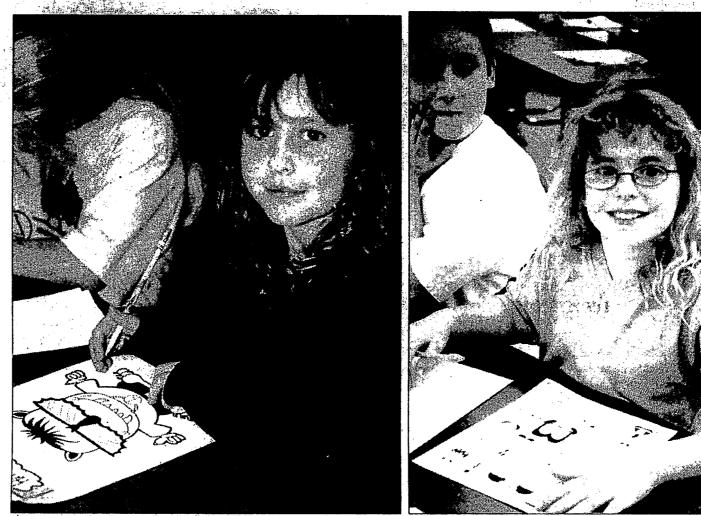

"One of the great things about cartooning is that you can do it anywhere," he said. "All you need are paper and pencil."

"Drawing cartoons is an excellent way to get kids interested in art since it is relatively easy and provides instant results. Cartoons are also something they can relate to personally."

SMS assistant principal embraces opportunity

BY JENNIFER NEMER

Clarkston News Staff Writer

One local teacher is taking on a new challenge. Dan Ferguson, former Clarkston High School social studies teacher and newly appointed Assistant Principal at Sashabaw Middle School, said, "I always tell my students—all decisions involve a struggle with security and opportunity and you have to choose between the two. I've always embraced the secure decision. This is the first time I said let's go with opportunity."

The 1996 University of Michigan graduate began his teaching career in Royal Oak, where he also acted as evening supervisor, coordinating all after-school activities.

He stayed there for two years before transferring to CHS, four years ago. As the student council advisor here, he admitted his career change is bittersweet.

"I'm a little jealous when I look at the clock and know they (the student council) are meeting and I'm not there," he said. "I truly believe I dealt with 36 students with tremendous character and respect toward each other. I'm excited at what they'll be accomplishing this year."

One of his fondest memories of his high school career was the opportunity to work with fellow teacher Greg Warner in "looping" 60 students, teaching them as freshmen and again when they returned as sophomores—an elementary philosophy to help students feel safe and secure in a new environment.

"You get to know the students on a different level and you see such growth," Ferguson said. "It was the most rewarding experience in teaching; an unbelievable experience."

Ferguson, who at one time in his life wanted to be a comedian, leaves behind another sort of legacy at the high school as founding member and choreographer of "Andy 5." The faculty/staff boy band delighted students with their hilarious performances at Homecoming festivities.

"It's good to let students see ourselves be humbled.

They get to know you at a different level. "It helps build relationships with them," he said. "They need to see you without the suit and tie sometimes, although that is appropriate as well." Ferguson, who finished his master's degree in education leadership in the spring from Eastern Michigan University, said, "I loved the classroom, the involvement with student council, and the outstanding leadership at the high school. I was content." But on the first day of school this year, when he heard about the open position, he had to go for it.

"We have strong instruction here," he said, of the middle school. In his new role, he wants to make sure that strength continues. "I want to support the teachers so teaching and learning continues to be a high priority."

Ferguson also hopes to be a part of the diversity efforts, at a school where many students speak English as a second language, he said.

And he wants to model to students and staff, a high energy, strong work ethic.

"I'm very thankful for the warm greeting and acceptance of the staff, both office staff and teaching staff. And principal Tom Bialk has been extremely supportive," Ferguson said. "My last thank you goes to the leaders at the high school, especially John Diliegghio and the four assistant principals."

The Swartz Creek resident, is married "to an amazing woman," Jennifer, a first grade teacher at Davisburg Elementary. The couple is expecting their first child in February.

Oakland County seeking grants for Ellis Barn transport

BY JEFF PATRUS

Clarkston News Staff Writer The Oakland County Board of Commissioners has thrown its support behind the donation of a historic barn to Springfield Oaks County Park.

On Oct. 1, the board voted to seek $600,000 in grants to move the 117-year-old Ellis Barn from its current location on Dixie Highway in Springfield Township to the county park.

According to Greg Givens, fiscal services writer for the fiscal services division of Oakland County, the county met the Oct. 2 deadline for filing for grant money from the state. Givens said the county will pay $600,000 toward the cost of relocation, with the hope that it will receive the grant money from the state to reimburse them for their share of the project.

"It's federal highway money that comes back to the state," he said. "There will be reimbursement from the Michigan Department of Transportation. We'll do the work and we'll pay for it. It will get reimbursed by the state if we get the grant."

Givens said he was impressed by the number of government bodies and historical societies that have supported the project.

"I think what's unusual about this application is how many companies were involved collaboratively," he said. "It's a real multiagency effort that's the high point of what this application is."

According to Dan Stencil, admin-and Gibson's donation, other donors to the barn relocation fund are the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Department, who is donating $50,000; the Springfield Township Board, who is donating $20,000; and Mrs. Dorothy Ellis, the former owner of the property who is donating $10,000.

Between the time it takes to go through the grant process and the actual relocating of the barn, Stencil said it will take at least between 9-12 months for the project to be completed. He said the grant process typically lasts between 3-6 months, and then the relocation would take a minimum of six months.

According to Stencil, once the barn is reassembled, there will be very little costs expected for maintenance.

"Initially, there will be new paint and a steel roof, so the maintenance costs will be negligible for about 10-15 years," he said.

system

BY JEFF PATRUS

Clarkston News Staff Writer City residents will have another chance to voice their opinions on another phase of the water system.

The Clarkston City Council, at its Oct. 22 meeting, approved a necessity hearing to be held sometime~ between Nov. 26-28 at Independence Township Fire Station #1, on Citation Drive.

As of press time, City Manager Art Pappas saidhe has not had a chance to set up a specific date and time.

According to City Councilman Scott Meyland, the hearing would be similar to the informational meeting held earlier this month at the fire hall, only with more specific information.

"It's a first step in creating a special assessment district," he said. "It would be more of an explanation of what the cost would be, and what the project would entail. The idea is to determine the necessity of creating a district. It's a chance to provide more detail to the public."

In a related decision, the council authorized Meyland to negotiate the final draft of a fact sheet on the water system with city engineer Gary Tressel of Hubbell, Roth & Clark. Meyland will be the city's represenative in this matter, and city attorney Tom Ryan will also review the fact sheet.

The final draft of the sheet will be mailed out the week of Nov. 5 to city residents, and will be enclosed with their sewer bills, according to Meyland. The mailing will allow residents approximately three weeks to review the material before the hearing.

According to Meyland, the fact sheet will present more specific details on the cost of the project as a whole, as well as the cost to individual homeowners.

HION Letters To The Editor

Editorial Committed Chamber. benefits all

Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Penny Shanks recently said the Chamber is entering a new era, and we agree.

Over the last four years, the Chamber has broadened its networking--social club status to one that has assumed a leadership role in many areas.

Partnerships with the schools have led to career exploration events for students. A new committee has been set up to host educational and training events for members. And sponsorship of events benefitting everyone in the community has increased.

Another important leadership role the Chamber assumed this year is support of downtown Clarkston businesses during Main Street construction.

The Chamber focused business owners in a positive direction by promoting their businesses through sponsorship of three scavenger hunts, weekly meetings and monthly breakfast meetings targeting marketing small businesses.

According to Shanks, the Chamber intends to increase the number of activities planned for the downtown area to every four to six weeks. This decision was made when the downtown business owners started meeting at the beginning of the construction period. The retail and restaurant owners made-clear their challenge to bring people downtown to shop in a bedroom community surrounded by highways leading residents outside the area.

For the last three decades downtown business owners have not functioned well promoting themselves as a group. The reasons are varied, and not the least of which is the high rate of turnover in the retail business. The Chamber helped the diverse group stay focused on the task at hand, moderating differences and offering concrete goals and solutions to problems. We believe having outgoing Chamber President and Clarkston State Bank Vice President Dawn Horner, and former CSB vice President Jack Shubitowksi on board were part of the reason for the success of the plan. They understood well the challenges faced by downtown business owners. Kurt Miller, Chamber Treasurer and a member of the Board of Directors, was another reason for that success. He led the weekly meetings of the downtown business owners and remained consistently positive and kept the group focused on short- mid- and long-term solutions to a decades-old problem. Shanks and secretary Terri Bendes are equally part of the mix, continually coming up with creative ideas to promote the downtown, or bringing to life the ideas of others. We expect the attention paid to the downtown to continue. New Chamber President Fred Ritter is well-acquainted with the unique challenges of being a retail business owner. Miller is president-elect, and will take over in September 2002.

What a bunch of smarties we have here intelligent, committed people than we have in this area? I don't think so.

Two weeks ago I attended an Independence Township Planning Commission meeting at the Independence Township Library. It's been awhile since the last meeting I'd attended, and I had forgotten just how smart you all are.

Planning Commissioners listened to a presentation from representatives of Recticel, a company that makes instrument panels, door panels and air bag covers for cars. The presentation, questions from the Commissioners and audience members lasted over two hours. I'm not complaining - I was fascinated.

Recticel wants to build a 120,000 square foot office, research and assembly facility on Bow Pointe Rd. off Sashabaw, south of Waldon. The presentation Fire Marshal Greg Olrich reviewed plans and operations and said there did not seem to be any activities that would endanger the community. But wait a minute. We have a guy in the audience. Greg Batchik, who's in charge of building paint shops parts that can become poisonous if there is a fire, his questioning pushed Recticel's reps to further explain that the compounds they would be using were more stable. Olrich's review showed that chemicals brought into the facility would be housed in a contained system. But after continued questioning from the audience, company reps explained that raw chemicals would only be brought into the facility once a week. The truck would be unloaded inside the building in a holding facility. If there was a spill it would not be washed into the township waste water system, but vacuumed out and removed.

Can there be a community populated by more plans indicated a 280,000 square foot facility which could mean more chemicals or processes could be used in the future.

> Well, yes, that's possible, said company reps. Recticel is in negotiations with an auto company which could increase their business in the future. This triggered more questions from Planning Commissioners.

> Batchik, Citizens for Orderly Growth Director Theresa Bickford-Laub, other COG members and audience members pushed for more detailed explanations of what would take place.

> The Planning Commissioners may have arrived at that destination on their own. They are an intelligent, wise and experienced group, but they had more information available to them than audience members did. Still the audience brought enough to light to make the Commissioners seek more documentation before final site plan approval is granted.

Batchik said later that he wasn't attempting to stop the project by his questioning, just to make sure Recticel wouldn't give the community any undue risk. "Chemicals can become a problem when there's an accident. We need to know what we're getting involved with," he said. Batchik said he grew up 30 miles south of Clarkston and loves this community. He seemed pretty cut and dried. Independence Township added he's attended some COG meetings, and will probably join formally in the future.

Okay, that sounds much better.

When company reps said the state told them they didn't need air quality permits because they had a clean process, they were challenged by another audience member who asked the board to take a "state of Missouri--show me" approach. He added the original

Based on the grilling developers have received about the Holiday Inn project, Ryder Truck and others, developers would do better to go somewhere else.

A couple of weeks ago the Independence Township Board listened to a resident request adoption of an ordinance banning pit bulls -- American Staffordshire Terriers.

Ten years ago, Waterford adopted such an ordinance. We live in Waterford and I have to honestly say it made me more comfortable.

A pit bull that lived two blocks away gave us the heebie jeebies because it looked so mean and menacing. It never attacked a dog or human, but after the ordinance was passed its owner kept it muzzled whenever he took it for a walk.

The years, they have come and gone

The regular three readers of this column (my wife, my mother and mother-in-law) will be happy to know that, in 20 years, I have not changed "a bit.

This startling (and not unpleasant) revelation was revealed to my bride and myself last Saturday in Waterford's Number One Night Spot. There, within the swinging halls of pine logs, as the loud and oh-so meaningful sounds of the 1980s boomed from the speakers; as the stuffed dead animal heads stared down with blank glass eyes, from their wall mounts to the dance floor at all those nearly 40-ish hips gyrating to the music; as we grooved at the mecca of all that is hip and cool (the Oakland County Sportsmans Club) folks from the same graduating class as I(your hero), said over and over, "you haven't changed." Whenever someone made that declaration, I smiled, said thanks, and stealthily (as not to be accused of spousal abuse) would hit the back of Jen's head with a quick whack. It was for her own good. Her eyes were beginning to get stuck in that rolled back state.

Have you ever tried to introduce your wife with only the whites of her eyes showing . . ? "Hey Jon, good to see you after all these years. This is my wife, Beelzebub."

Let me tell ya folks, it don't work.

I suppose Clarkston High School's Class of 1981 is as polite as any other class in any other building of education. It would be tres drol to say, "Hey Don, I haven't seen you in 20 years. Boy, you sure have packed on the pounds since last I saw you. Whoa, beards went out with Jesus. And, I hear Grecian Formula for men does wonders hiding those pesky gray hairs."

While technically all those statements would be considered truthful and therefore a good thing (as we tell our children), it wouldn't be conducive to a gay old time. It is something to consider: After we spend all that time pounding into our childrens' heads the virtues of truth telling, we then send them into the world to learn the art of diplomacy on their own.

Life ain't fair.

What do you talk about after not seeing or thinking about these folks for 20 years? You talk about your kids, your crappy old house, your job, etc. I did not hear too much bragging going on, as I thought might be the case. Everybody seemed pretty secure in the worlds they have created for themselves.

Mark Reene became Tuscola County Prosecutor; Maria Livieratos became a doctor and practices in Clarkston; Steve Wyckoff teaches at Clarkston; Jon Territo teaches in Florida ... the list could go on until it hits me, the lowly scribe.

"So Don, what's going on?"

"Well, not much Greg. Only about 20 years worth of crap - give or take a few days. Got married. Got divorced. Got married, got kids, got a leaky roof. How about you?"

No wonder I didn't have too many in-depth conversations with classmates.

Dear wife Jen, ever the good sport, actually said she had a fun time, "Everybody was nice." She also noticed that 99.9 percent of the gents there had hair - their own, for godsake.

"Must be that good Clarkston water," she added. Yep, Dear, any water you can smell has got to be good for you. That grit on your teeth after a good swig can be easily brushed away with toothpaste.

The 20 year reunion was a nice way to see faces I haven't seen in, well 20 years. Cory and Jan and Shelly and Rich and whoever else who worked on it, did a decent job.

Between all the hugs and stories I told all who asked if they could read about the party in my column, "No."

Well, I lied. Like a bad toupee and lied. Too bad. Comments, suggestions, complaints, for the overweight, graying and bearded Don can be e-

Morning radio, and that's about the only kind there is in my house, promotes callers to report road tie-ups. I wonder if some callers, when they first get up, call in false accidents? Say their route is I-75. There is always a back-up at Sashabaw and Rochester Road. Couldn't a caller report a nonexisting tieup so others will avoid the area, thus giving the caller an 85-mph trip to work?

One of the minor perks empty nesters have is they no longer have to concern themselves with which way a child-proof aspirin bottle cap is turned. We have to look for perks to offset remembrances of baby smiles, first steps and babysmell hugs that are like no other.

My favorite sandwich is toasted bacon and tomato. Forget the lettuce, as in blt.

My sandwich is only available in Michigan during its tomato-growing season, which is almost over. This has been a lousy year for growing tomatoes. You may have read of this column's crop failure this year, but, according to my roadside observations, others have had the same luck. L came cross-country from Ithaca a few weeks Few were "select." But, I selected a bag. And, they were good. Had fine, Michigan taste, but wouldn't make a calendar.

So much for the tomatoes, now for the bacon. My sandwich takes six strips of bacon, three each way. So, I cook a pound at a time. A pound often has 12 acceptable slices, plus one skinny one cut to make 15 ounces 16 ounces.

Right here, let me interject, don't talk to me about cholesterol. That's why they make Lipitor, to allow us to eat the food we love.

Back to bacon, or more precisely, the cutters of bacon. I think bacon slicing should be an Olympic sport. There must be a million cutters to think they can slice slabs of smoked pig thinner than anyone else. And each has named brand, or store brand sponsors.

What makes these ultra-thin bacon slices really bad is they make it impossible, when laid in the pan with normal slices, for them all to get done at the same time.

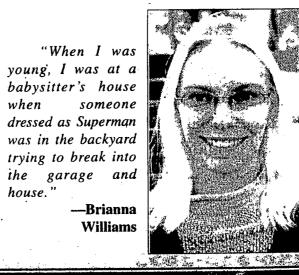

Hazel could make a Thanksgiving dinner of turkey, dressing, mashed potatoes, squash, veggies and hot buns presentable at the same time, but couldn't get all the slices of bacon in a pan to be crisp at the same time. And, it was never her fault.

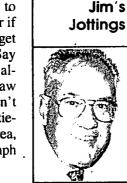

Name brand bacon pushers would do better to put 17 ounces in a pound package, especially when their name costs $4.45 a pound versus the $2.59 on store brand. Pass the Miracle Whip. -10

In fact, The Center for the Analysis of Commercialism in Education (CACE) indicates the number of press citations referring to the commercialization of schools has increased nearly 400 percent over the past decade. The report indicates that there is a growing connection between the schoolhouse and the marketplace. It also suggests that "marketers are attempting to create a seamless ad environment that surrounds children in and out of school."

Alex Molnar, a professor at The University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee and the director of the CACE, believes it is a disturbing trend because some schools are engaged in activities that undermine their curricular message and promote unhealthy lifestyles for the students. The National PTA seems to agree, as is indicated by their support of policies that protect students from exploitation. In fact, the National PTA would like to eliminate programs that require students to view advertising and restrict surveys the use of data gathering tools that are used to target students for marketing purposes.

It is interesting to note that policies covering school-based commercial activities are not as uniformly accepted or consistently applied as one would think. interrupt our positive school environment. Fundraising is a hot topic for citizens across the nation and Clarkston is no exception. It is important to note that our attention to ôcommercialismö started at the district level. In fact, very specific guidelines have helped us to avoid unsightly signs and prevent us from promoting unhealthy habits. Yes, we must continue to work with students, parents, staff and community members to develop a set of common understandings/agreements; but I am pleased to say that our school district is tackling the complex issues that divide other communities. While we will continue to rely on parents and other citizens to provide funding for the activities that the budget simply cannot support, we will do so with the understanding that solicitation of funds from students must be limited! Listed below are key points from our policies and guidelines. These excerpts will help readers appreciate the fact that we do have a plan of action, and may serve to increase community awareness of acceptable practices.

Fundraising by students in school, on school property, or at any school-sponsored event is permitted only when the profit is to be used for school purposes or for an activity connected with the schools.

■Approved school organizations, those organizations whose funds are managed by the District, may be permitted to engage in fundraising in school, if authorized by the principal. The Superintendent may permit such fundraising off school grounds.

Fundraising by students on behalf of school-related organizations, whose funds are not managed by the District (Boosters, Parent Groups, etc.) must be approved by the district administration.

In general, students are not permitted to participate in door-to-door solicitations. This is especially important in situations where they do not know theparties they are soliciting.

Readers can easily access our board policies relating to this and all functions of our district which are included on our website at www.clarkston.k12.mi.us. While a balanced approach to fundraising can help us afford the "extras," it is a vital step in avoiding today's 24-hour marketing and advertising blitz.

Although she is excited about the commercial, Banycky said she does not know yet what the final format will look like when it is aired, although she said to expect a picture of herself honking a horn as she is driving.

Diversity comes in many forms, and the respect of these commonalities and differences between people is a lesson Clarkston High School leaders want students to ace.

"You get a narrow view if you live in a narrow environment," said CHS Social Worker Jim Butzine, a founding member and co-chair of the district's diversity committee. "Walk through these halls; we are they fear each other, and they fear each not a very ethother because they don't know each nically diverse other, and they don't know each other school," he because they are often separated from said. "Our kids are going to be members of a world community, and their views are limited unless they seek out other views of life. We need to let them see what the world is really like." To do this, the school brings to the student a variety of activities.

There are motivational speakers, productions, games, an intercity school exchange program, Martin Luther King activities such as poetry and poster contests for cash prizes, the STAR Club (Students Teacning Acceptance and Respect), and much more. All of which are financially supported by the school's general fund plus in-kind assistance such as services from Oakland Schools, said Clarkston Schools Superintendent Dr. Al Roberts.

portunity to express their feelings." These are also key points found in the Clarkston district-wide Respect Code, a student generated policy initiated last year. At the beginning of each school year now, students are given the option of signing a pledge to follow the code.

Of course, some don't. English Teacher and STAR Club Advisor Nancy Gingell said some students have admitted promoting acceptance isn't an easy thing. "It's hard to stand up to someone and say, 'look you' shouldn't say that," she said.

"People hate each other because

But the 30 STAR Club members do their best to hopefully change this way of thinking.

Junior Erin Sullivan, secretary of STAR, said "we try to reach out to a lot of people, bring everybody together, and allow them to get to know each other. We want them to be able to say 'hi' to someone in the hallway whether they are a cheerleader saying it to a drama club member or whatever."

STAR President Bharath Surapaneni said being in STAR is a blessing. "It allows us to bring unity to other students. It is important and needed because there is no diversity here. It feels so good to get the message out."

similar efforts.

"We have to prepare them with the ability to work in a world that's diverse--a whole lot more diverse than we are in Clarkston," said Dr. Roberts. "Many kids leave to go to college, or the world of work, and have adjusting to do."

Clarkston's goal, Butzine said, is to have students be more open and accepting by the time they get to the high school.

So diversity teaching starts at the elementary age.

How do other students feel about the diversity efforts?

"I can honestly say it doesn't help," said senior Nic Thompson. "They banned all field trips for everyone unless it comes out of an organization's budget like music, or drama. There's no Continued on page 15A

Students get taste of discrimination in 'The Game of Life'

BY JENNIFER NEMER Clarkston News Staff Writer It was unlike any other game they have ever played.

The object: feel what it's like to be discriminated against.

Players: a select group of Clarkston High School students who dared. October 18, to sign up to participate in "The Game of Life," a simulation-style game which teaches how to understand and accept diversity.

How they played: each student became another person, indicated by a code worn around their neck.

One player took on the persona of a rich, white male. Another, a homosexual. Another, an African American. And so on.

The students, unaware of who they are, figure out their new person by the way others treat them as they visit various stages of life.

Tables, set up around the school's gym, constituted different establishments like education, employment, housing, transportation, food, and banking.

But getting a house, or a job, or something to eat wasn't as easy as the students thought it would be.

"We don't serve your kind here," some heard. Others were repeatedly attacked with an array of slurs or discriminatory acts. Many had the obstacles of disease or crime to overcome as they were either thrown in jail or told to enter a health care clinic.

How they won: by walking away with a lesson learned.

November 8, 2001 6-8 pm

Clarkston Middle School Counselor Rob Albee, playing the part of a doctor, tells high school student Casey Conner his character is suffering from depression and must enter a health care clinic.

RJB and Associates, a small Lansing-based firm spreading the acceptance of diversity, brought the game to Clarkston.

"We must realize that our world is shrinking. Modern travel, technology, and changing political views have all played an important role in creating a global society," the firm claims. "No longer can one expect to exist within the confines of their local neighborhoods. We must learn to welcome, accept, and work well with a wide variety of people."

Bev Thompson, right, a volunteer mom, plays a doctor in "The Game of Life" and works with sophomore Brandi Zinski, who's character has been told is an alcoholic.

A 14 Wed., October 24, 2001 The Clarkston (MI) News Bow Pointe Rd. in Independence Recticel gets conceptual OK from Planning Commission

BY MARALEE COOK Clarkston News Editor

などなる教育をある人

Independence Township officials have long been waiting for their first occupant to take up residence on Bow Pointe Road, and they may have found their tenant.

Planning Commissioners gave conceptual site plan approval October 11 to Recticel to build a 120,000 square-foot facility on 9.11 acres on the north side of the end of Bow Pointe. The area is zoned Industrial Office Park, and runs east off Sashabaw Road, south of Waldon.

Approval is subject to comments by Planning Commission members, requests by Township Planning Consultant Dick Carlisle and Township Engineering Consultant Randy Ford.

The building would serve as North American headquarters for the company, and would include office, research and assembly facilities

The company makes instrument panels, door panels and air bag covers for cars. Pending final approvals, the company plans to begin construction in January, and expects to be complete in nine months. The company would be served by about 50 percent of its staff -- about 50 people -- while machinery is set up for production and testing. The company is aiming for 2004 car models.

When fully operational there would be two shifts, operating from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Recticel representatives received over two hours of questions from Planning Commissioners and audience members. Concerns included future growth, traffic in and out of the facility, nature of the business, raw chemicals being used in the building and transportation of those chemicals in and out of the community, and disposal of waste.

Independence Township Fire Marshal Greg Olrich had been provided with a video detailing the company's operations. He said his research into the proposed project showed no hazards to the community. He added inquiries into another plant owned by the company in another state indicated there were no complaints from the fire department about operations at that plant. While chemicals are used, they are inert, according to company officials. In addition, the truck used to transport them to the facility would be unloaded inside the building in a contained area. Spills would be removed; by vaccuum process and trucked out. Spillage would not be washed into the township's stormwater system. The company expects one tanker truck per week would be unloading chemicals into the storage containment facility. Additionally representatives said the compounds do not burn easily. There would be little noise from the facility because it is a robotics operation.

Clarkston Eagles organize Halloween benefit for Haven

A night of "frightful fun" is planned for Saturday, October 27 as the Clarkston Eagles #3373 host Halloween for Haven, a fundraiser to help support programs and services for Haven.

The event is from 5 to 8 p.m. A $6 donation includes a spaghetti dinner, adult Halloween costume contest, raffles and 50/50 drawing and entertainment provided by the Country Junction Band.

The Eagles is located at 5640 Maybee Rd. Donate any used cell phone for Haven's 911 program.

The company expects a maximum of 18 truck trips per day for vehicles delivering parts to and from the facility.

Carlisle required the company to construct a 50foot transition buffer which the company expanded to 94 feet. Office, research and rab uses would be located on the portion of the site adjacent to the neighboring residences Loading, truck traffic and assembly would be on the opposite side, well-shielded from resi-dential property. Truck traffic would be limited and buff-ered away from the adjacent residential area.

Planning Commissioners want more information on the raw materials used in the facility, plus disposal of waste, scrap material and air quality. Planning Commissioner Dan Travis said, "We have been in great competition to secure this company for Oakland County and Independence Township. It meets all the criteria of the Master Plan, and one of the principals lives close by. Recticel will be a good neighbor to us and dur community " more student-paid trips where we might go somewhere that actually has diversity like Detroit, Chicago or Washington D.C. We're trying, but it seems (school leaders) keep pulling the reins back." Thompson added, "In light of recent events in our country, they seem to be afraid to send us out because they can protect us a bit by keeping us in the school."

However, Dr. Roberts said the revised field trip policy, discussed at the October 8 School Board meeting, was looked at long before September 11. He admitted they want kids to be as safe as possible, but said the policy change came about because charging students to pay for field trips is clearly illegal, according to the Free and Appropriate Education Act. A curricular field trip, a supplement to enrich classroom instruction, should be paid by the school or through donations.

Thompson, on the other hand, praised the intercity school exchange program, put on by Student Council annually. Last year, he traded CHS life for Pontiac Northern life.

"That's the biggest thing, I think, we can possibly do for diversity," he said. "To put us in that type of a situation for a day--it really helps."

Sophomore Coleen Fell said, "I don't think (the diversity efforts) are working. We are doing a lot with assemblies, doing things with foreign exchange students, and we have STAR . We're trying to improve, but it doesn't work when they are just telling us and not showing us," said Fell.

She feels a more hands-on approach is more effective then assemblies or lectures. But Butzine said sometimes assemblies are more appropriate to reach a large group.

Butzine suggests students unhappy with the diversity efforts come forward and discuss it with a school leader.

Tori Lauzun, a senior, said, "The school is working really hard. There's always going to be students who won't be accepting to others with differences. Maybe that's because of how they were brought up, I don't know. But (the efforts of the school) are working because they are making an attempt to help us realize diversity is all around us and that we shouldn't be afraid of it."

Butzine said he believes most kids hearts and minds are in the right place with this.

"If we can help kids question their beliefs it's healthy," he said. "We don't want them to change their beliefs, but we want them to know it's okay to change if it's based on good information."

He added, "The acceptance of people is crucial to happiness in life."

Clarkston Chamber enters a new era

BY MARALEE COOK Clarkston News Editor

If it's possible for an organization to "come of age," that time is now for the Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce.

That is how new Chamber president, Fred Ritter, sums up this time in the 14-year history of the organization. He made the comment at the Chamber's annual dinner meeting September 27 at Liberty Golf and Banquet center.

"There are defining moments when several things happen. That's how I see the Chamber right now. I see the Chamber coming of age. We have to provide more, and more is expected of us," said Ritter.

Ritter, has lived in the community for 35 years, and his family owned the former Ritter's Farm Market at the corner of Maybee Rd. and Dixie Hwy: He owned The Town Shop, a clothing store in downtown Clarkston in the early 1970s, and also served as Independence Township trustee for four years, and treasurer for six years. He's owned Clarkston Auto Wash since 1988.

In 1987 the Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce grew out of the Business Association of Independence Township with 47 charter members. Two years ago membership was 372 and has grown to about 441 today, said Ritter.

His goal is to see membership grow to 475 during the next year, but he's equally concerned with retaining members who cancel their memberships.

Ritter said the October 25 wine tasting event at Parks of Stonewood is doubling as a celebration of the new fiscal year for the Chamber as well as a membership round up. Members attend at a cost of only $10, and prospective members may attend at no extra cost.

During his tenure as president, Ritter said the Chamber hopes to pursue corporate members with a national presence such as Kroger, Walgreen's, Blockbuster and CVS. Through sponsorship of Chamber activities such as the Michigan Week Community Awards, 4th of July Fireworks, Concerts in the Park or the Holiday Fest woodcarving competition, these companies can give back to the community, he said.

Ritter said the Chamber will also make more of an effort to work hand-inhand with other service organizations such as the Rotary and Optimists clubs. "Maybe we can standardize college scholarship forms so high school seniors don't have to fill out separate forms. And next year we hope they'll share in the Holiday Fest or other events," he said. Ritter also wants to increase committee membership. The Chamber currently has about 15 committees with over 100 participants.

2001 was a big year for the Chamber. The business offices were moved from a small office in the Clarkston courthouse on Citation Drive to 5856 S. Main Fred Ritter, owner of Clarkston Auto Wash, took over as Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce president last month.

Street, near the Clarkston Post Office Annex building.

"The Chamber's entering a new level," said Penny Shanks, executive director. "It's been almost like a rebirth. The last five years we've continued to grow."

"The Heart of Clarkston Holiday Fest will be very successful.

People need a sense of spiritual goodwill toward mankind," she said. The Heart of Clarkston is a three-day event November 30, December 1 and 2 that includes a Christmas sing-along, chainsaw wood carving contest and parade.

There are 15 committees which operate Chamber-sponsored events, engage in strategic planning or plan community outreach programs.

This year the Chamber sponsored meetings, breakfasts and events for downtown Clarkston merchants to help offset business downturns due to Main Street road construction, And Shanks said after the first of the year the Community Promotions Committee will focus on developing activities for the downtown area every four to six weeks.

Outgoing Chamber president Dawn Horner, senior vice president at Clarkston State Bank, "was a dynamite president," said Shanks. "She set tangible goals, one of which was networking with other chambers."

Shanks said input from the Sterling Hts. chamber has been very helpful.

While that group is much larger, their goals in terms of community activity are similar. Sterling Hts. businesses had also been through tough times while M-59 was under construction.

Shanks said that group is serving as a model in many ways, including partnering with businesses and other groups and helping to create actual business marketing plans.

A Look Back

25 YEARS AGO (1976)

15 YEARS AGO (1986)

There was a shortage of people on both sides of the table at a special budget meeting of the Springfield Township Board on Oct. 22. Township Supervisor Collin Walls, Clerk J. Calvin Walters and Trustee Glen Vermilye provided a quorum for the meeting, called to Clarkston Village Planning Commission and considerhear a public hearing and then adopted the Springfield budget for 1987.

A separate Cable Television Fund now exists for Independence Township and Clarkston, but debate continues on $20,000 not spent by the cablecasting board in previous years. After about 45 minutes of discussion, the board created the fund requested by the township-appointed cablecasting board but took no action on the $20,000 request.

Two new fire trucks have been ordered for the Independence Township Fire Department. On Oct. 21, the township board accepted Pierce Manufacturing's bid of $121,190 each for the automatic transmission pumpers. Each of the standard fire trucks will have a 750-gallon water tank, a jump seat in the rear of the cab and a 1,000-gallon-a-minute water pump.

The planning firm of Vilican-Leman will be hired at a cost of $10,000 to devise a master plan for the village of Clarkston. The decision of the Clarkston Village Council followed a joint meeting with the able discussion at the Village Council meeting Oct. 25.

Independence Township may be getting ready to enter a consent judgement with the would-be developers of the north end of Deer Lake. A special meeting has been called for Oct. 29 to consider the problem, which has been pending in and out of the courts for the last three years.

Springfield Township is eligible for $31,500 in Housing and Community Development funds to be used after July 1, 1977. Residents suggested several possibilities for its spending at a public hearing of the township board Oct. 20. Beryl Samuels of the Springfield Township Library Board asked that the funds be used to blacktop the library drive, provide sidewalks and correct a possible drainage problem at the library. site

At a special meeting of the board of directors called by R.L. Jones for Kenneth Hogg, chairman of the 1950 United Fund campaign for last year, held in the Independence Township Hall on Oct, 23. Floyd Andrews was chosen temporary chairman of the committee for 1951. He was instructed to call a meeting of the new committee as soon as possible.

This being United Nations Week in churches and in Rotary throughout the world; a number of Rotarians attended the Clarkston Methodist Church Oct. 21 to hear Reverend Atkins deliver a sermon on the subject. On Oct. 22, for a rare time, there were no visitors at the meeting of the Clarkston Rotary Club. Appreciation Awards were given to Erich Lines of Clarkston Union Bar and Kitchen and Jim Scharl of Kieft Engineering.

Lines and the Union staff were honored for hosting breakfast meetings for downtown Clarkston businesses free of charge, demonstrating a "commitment to a stronger downtown."

Scharl, a charter member of the Chamber, provided the Chamber with a "beautiful (office) location and a reasonable rent." When the move to a new location and adding staff depleted the Chamber's budget, Scharl also provided the Chamber with a new sign at his own expense. He was recognized for out standing support of the Chamber.

Liberty Golf and Banquet, formerly Clarkston Creek Golf Club, received a Beautification Award for makhance its aestheic value and appearance.

Two businesses received the President's Award. Tim Smith accepted on behalf of Palace Sports and Entertainment, owner of DTE Energy Theatre, and Kurt Miller accepted on behalf of RDM Associates.

Smith serves on the Chamber's Board of Directors and several chamber committees including Community Promotions. The Palace underwrote the printing of Clarkston Area postcards, new Chamber letterhead, and purchased the sign faces for the new sign on Main Street.

The Palace and DTE Energy Music Theatre were corporate sponsors for three major Chamber events: the Golf Classic, Fireworks and the Music Stage at the Taste of Clarkston.

Smith also served as a guest speaker for the Golf Classic, visits with high school student leaders and lends support to a variety of community programs and projects.

Miller is Chamber treasurer and a member of the Board of Directors. He updated the treasurer's reports and worked with the staff to adopt new contact base management and fax software. Miller is chairman of the Community Promotions Committee and worked with that committe and the downtown Marketing Committee to promote the community.

He led three to four meetings per month and met with downtown business owners to encourage involvement. His "visionary enthusiasm has provided momentum for the Chamber's strategic planning process."

Business Appreciation Awards were given in recognition of top 10 chamber supporters who give substantial financial and in-kind services or donations to Chamber programs and projects: All

Once the quilt began taking shape, the family approached the Independence Township Library about the possibility of holding a quilt raffle there. Their only request—that all donations go to The Salvation Army Disaster Relief Fund, to benefit victims.

Independence fielding cable complaints

It continues, "Despite the ready availability of small satellite dishes and other video providers, Comcast continues to attract more customers because we're working diligently to remain the best value in home entertainment."

Olivia Visperas, corporate affairs manager for Comcast, addressed some of the resident's concerns.

She said if anyone has been having a hard time getting a hold of a Comcast representative lately, it's because in the last couple of weeks, there's been a national problem with 1-800 numbers. But, she said, it has been fixed. "Depending on what hours you are calling, you should always get a live person," she said. Visperas said Comcast doesn't receive the complaints she's hearing from The Clarkston News and the township.

"We'll be happy to check into these," she said. Visperas plans on calling McCrary for names of residents unhappy with their cable service. "We want to address these internally to rectify the problem."

Supervisor Dale Stuart said the township is in negotiations over a franchise agreement with Comcast, but it is moving slowly. He said he could not talk much about it, but said "hopefully we'll bring this to a resolution." Of getting a different i cable company in town, Stuart said, "Unfortunately, there's no one else available to take over if Comcast wasn't here. But we're not leaving any option out."

When the contract discussions reach an end, a resolution will be brought to a future township board meeting.

Freshman makes it to finals before losing to Troy's O'Keefe

This year, Clarkston's Lauren Little made it to the state tennis tournament. Next year, she hopes the rest of the team will join her.

Little, a freshman, competed among the state's best players at the tournament, held Oct. 19-20 at Midland. She earned a number two seed in the state tourney, and received a first-round bye.

She made it all the way to the finals of the tournament, before falling to first seed Caitlin O'Keefe, a sophomore from Troy, 6-1, 5-7, 6-3.

In the quarterfinals, she defeated Grosse Pointe South's Cora Graneist, 7-5, 6-2, and then defeated Livonia Stevenson's Erin Mazzoui in the semifinals, 6-3, 6-3. Soccer team's district game postponed

BY JEFF PATRUS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Clarkston soccer team's opening round district matchup with White Lake Lakeland on Oct. 22 was postponed due to weather.

Wed.: October 24, 2001 The Clarkston (MI) New

The two teams are scheduled to make up the game Oct. 23, with the winner of that match taking on Waterford Kettering, who had a first-round bye, in a semifinal match at 5 p.m. Oct. 24 at Grand Blanc.

Clarkston and Lakeland were originally scheduled to play their opening round contest at Lakeland. However, as of press time, Clarkston coach Dan Fitzgerald said he did not know where the two teams would play the rescheduled game.

Besides the Clarkston-Lakeland game, the other first-round game in District #12 scheduled for Oct. 22 was West Bloomfield against Walled Lake Central. Host Grand Blanc and Waterford Kettering each received first-round byes.

Fitzgerald said Grand Blanc is the likely favorite in the district. The Wolves dropped a close contest to the Bobcats, 1-0, in a Sept. 19 game at Clarkston.

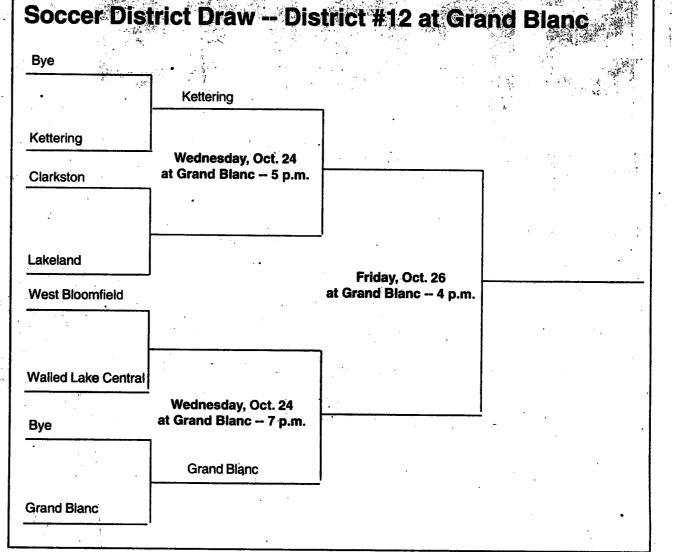

Despite that loss, Fitzgerald said he likes the Wolves' chances against Grand Blanc should the two teams meet in the district finals. "We think we can compete with them," he said.

The Wolves closed out their regular season with two Oakland Activities Association Division I contests.

On Oct. 17, they routed neighboring Brandon, 10-0, in a game which saw several Wolves get into the scoring attack. Sean Gardner, Grant Henderson, Arial Darnay, and Edgar Grech-Cumbo scored two goals apiece, while Mike Holody and Daniel Gutierrez each scored one goal.

The Wolves followed that up with a season-ending loss to Troy Athens, 2-1, on Oct. 18, in a game played at Costello Elementary School in Troy instead of Athens' home field.

Athens scored a goal in the first half to take the early lead, but Grech-Cumbo scored a goal 10 minutes into the second half to tie the game at one. However, Athens would answer back with another goal 10 minutes after that to clinch the victory.

Despite the loss, Fitzgerald said he was pleased with how the team performed.

"I think the conditions were very windy," he said. "The ball was up in the air quite a bit, and they're probably stronger than us in the air. They're one of the better teams in OAA I, and we played them fairly even."

Clarkston finished in second place in OAA I, behind Royal Oak Kimball. The Wolves finished with a record of 11-7 overall and 7-3 in the league.

title, with the Wolves finishing in second.

Clarkston finished with a dual meet record of 4-1 in OAA I.

"They beat us pretty good," said Clarkston coach

Five Clarkston runners finished in the top 15 to all-league honors. Liz Mengyan was the leading for herself at the league meet. "Gillian Nordquist ran an outstanding race," said LaBrosse. "She came through for us big time. Everyone else had an off day."

Clarkston, ranked sixth in the state, prepares for regional action Oct. 27, where they will once again get acquainted with their rivals from Adams. Along with Romeo, the Wolves and Highlanders are considered runner for the Wolves, finishing third overall. Gillian the favorites to win regionals. All three teams are ranked in the state's top ten.

Golfers end year with fifth place at league meet

Shook shoots 76 to earn second place finish among individual golfers at meet

BY JEFF PATRUS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Rainy weather put a damper on the Clarkston golf team's last match of the season.

The Wolves placed fifth at the Oakland Activities Association Division I meet Oct. 17 with a score of 329. Rochester took first at the meet with a score of 313.

Clarkston coach Tim Kaul said although the golfers played under adverse conditions, he still expected a better performance out of the team.

"It was cold and windy," he said. "One team (Rochester) played well, and the others didn't play that well. I was a little disappointed. I thought we should have done 5-6 shots better, even with the weather conditions."

The Wolves did receive a strong performance individually from Zack Shook, who finished with a score of 76 to earn second place at the tourney. "Zack Shook was a very pleasant surprise," Kaul said.

Other Clarkston golfers placing in the meet were Dustin McMillan with an 82, Adam Groh with an 85, and Robert Wood with an 86.

An injury to Carlos Galaviz, one of the top golfers on the team, didn't help matters for Clarkston. Galaviz hurt his elbow before the match and had to take himself out of the lineup, according to Kaul.

When she was a youngster, Casey Bolten went to Michigan State University for a gymnastics camp.

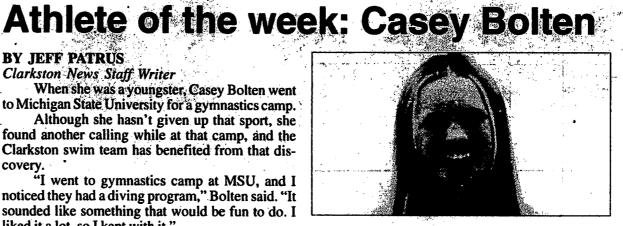

Although she hasn't given up that sport, she found another calling while at that camp, and the Clarkston swim team has benefited from that discovery.

"I went to gymnastics camp at MSU, and I noticed they had a diving program," Bolten said. "It sounded like something that would be fun to do. I liked it a lot, so I kept with it."

Bolten, a junior, has consistently excelled in the diving events for Clarkston this year, usually placing Michigan University for the state diving competition first among competitors at dual meets. She has been on the team since her freshman year.

Gridders end season on positive note against Kettering

Despite a losing record, the Clarkston football team, particularly this year's seniors, ended their season on a positive note.

The Wolves defeated host Waterford Kettering, 27-19, in an Oakland Activities Association crossover

Clarkston coach Kurt Richardson said he was particularly happy that this year's seniors were able to get a win in their last game for the Wolves.

"I was happy for the seniors," he said. "It was important for them to win their last one. Some of the seniors made big plays for us."

Among the seniors Richardson mentioned for their contributions were running back/defensive back Mike Loveless, who made key contributions on both sides of the ball; quarterback Eric Kieras, who threw two touchdown passes; wide receiver Chris Cutler, who was on the receiving end of one of those touchdown passes; and defensive back Jason Setla, who intercepted a Kettering pass.

The Wolves spotted Kettering a 7-0 lead in the first quarter, and answered back with a scoring drive of their own, culminating in a one-yard touchdown run by Loveless. Later in the quarter, junior running back Ryan Talbott added a touchdown run to give the Wolves a 12-7 lead over the Captains.

In the second quarter, Clarkston added to their lead, as Kieras found senior tight end Case Bannasch in the end zone for a 37-yard touchdown pass, giving the Wolves a 19-7 lead. Kettering would score a touchdown before the half to cut the Clarkston advantage to 19-13.

Kettering scored a touchdown later in the quarter to cut into the Wolves' lead, but Clarkston was able to hold on for the win.

Kieras completed eight-of-23 passes in the game for 132 yards and two touchdown passes, while Loveless and Talbott paced the Wolves' rushing attack. Loveless rushed for 49 yards on 14 carries and one touchdown, while Talbott added 52 yards on 23 carries and one touchdown.

Cutler led the Wolves in receiving with 68 yards on four receptions and one touchdown, while Bannasch added 40 yards on two receptions, scoring one touchdown.

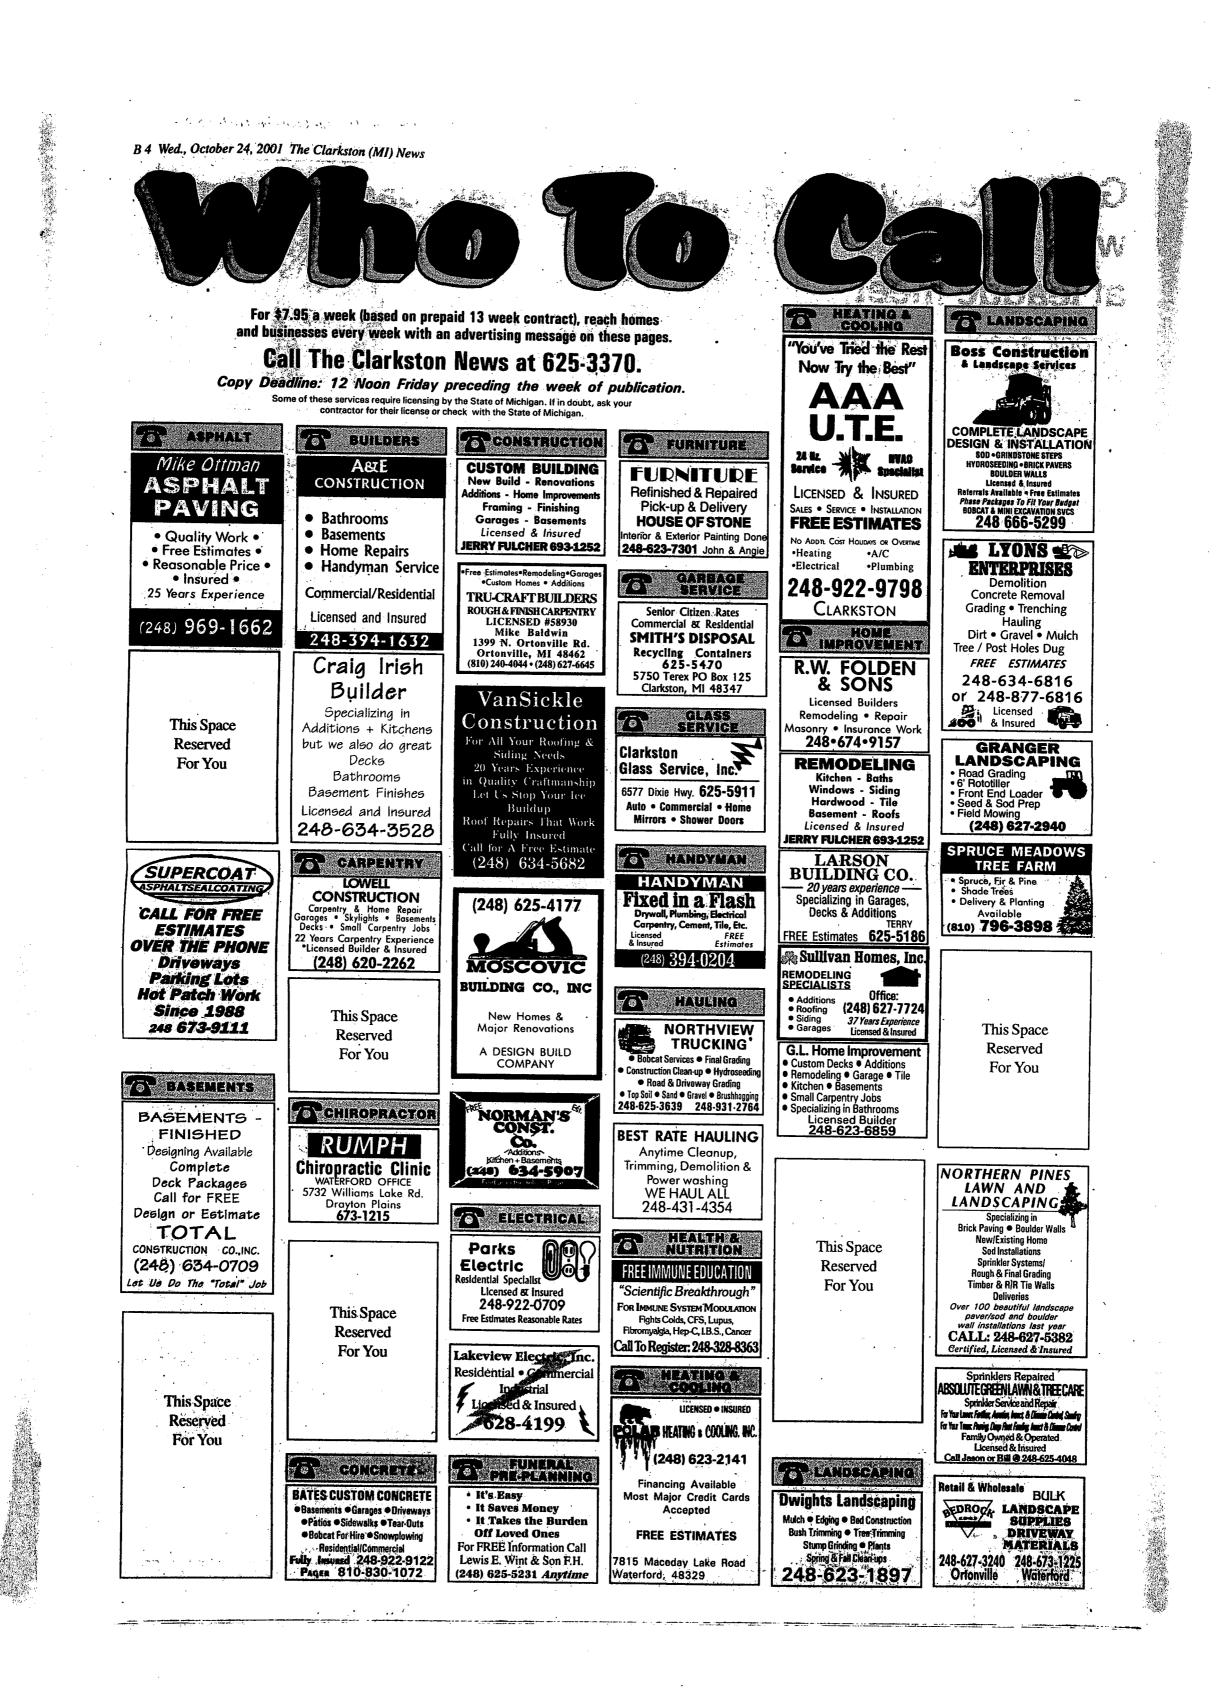

Defensively, Loveless and junior defensive back Miles Purdy led the charge for the Wolves, garnering seven tackles apiece. Junior linebacker David Kittle added five tackles, while junior linebacker Derek George added three tackles and one interception.

Other Wolves contributing on defense were Setla, who picked off a Kettering pass; and junior defensive back Jay Martello, who recovered two fumbles for Clarkston.

Richardson said the offseason will be key in order for the team to improve next season.

"Our offseason has to be extremely good, and our number one goal is to get stronger and faster," he said.

Among the Clarkston seniors who made contributions in their last game for the Wolves, a 27-19 win over Waterford Kettering on Oct. 19, were wide receiver Chris Cutler (top), who caught a touchdown pass, and running back/ defensive back Mike Loveless (above), who ran for a touchdown on offense and garnered seven tackles on defense.

Boys' harriers take fourth in league

BY JEFF PATRUS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Clarkston's boys' cross-country team is getting solid contributions from its top three runners - it's the rest of the team that needs improvement.

That was evident at the Oakland Activities Association Division I meet, held Oct. 18 at Lake Orion. The Wolves finished in fourth place at the meet with 70 points, and also wound up finishing fourth overall in OAA I.

Lake Orion and Troy tied for first with 61 points, but the host Dragons won the meet on a tiebreaker, as their sixth-place runner finished 32nd overall, while the Colts' sixth-place runner finished 33rd. Rochester Adams finished third with 64 points.

'It was the closest league meet in many years," said Clarkston coach Mike Taylor.

The Wolves had three runners finish in the top 15 overall and thus earn all-league honors. Jared Elmore was the Wolves' leading runner, finishing fourth overall, while Mark Sitko was right behind in fifth place. Derek Coe was the third Clarkston runner to earn allleague-placing 11th overall.

Sed., October 24, 2001 The Clarkston (MI) News 5 E

Other Clarkston runners competing in the meet were Jack Kinsey, who finished 23rd overall, and Mike Wilder, who placed 28th.

We did well enough up front, but our fourth and fifth men have been weak for a couple of weeks, and that continues to hurt us," Taylor said.

On Oct. 27, the Wolves will compete in regional action at Springfield Oaks County Park, beginning at 10 a.m. Taylor said Utica Eisenhower is the favorite to win the regional title, with Lake Orion being their strongest competition.

After that, Taylor said the rest of the field is wide open, and the Wolves figure to be right in the mix behind the other two teams.

"Our shot's as good as anyone else's," he said.

Swimmers continue drive for division title

BY JEFF PATRUS

Clarkston's girls swimming team is continuing their push for the Oakland Activities Association Division IV title.

The team earned a hard-fought win in an OAA crossover meet against visiting Bloomfield Hills Andover, 97-89, in their Oct. 18 meet. The Wolves are now 6-2 overall, 4-0 in the league.

The Barons actually won more events than the Wolves, taking first place in eight events to Clarkston's four. However, the Wolves' depth allowed them to earn more points in the second through fifth place in each event, thus picking up the win.

The meet started out slowly for the Wolves, as Andover took first place in the 200-yard medley relay, 200-yard freestyle, 200-yard IM, and 50-yard freestyle.

"She did excellent," Manojlovich said. "It's just amazing for a freshman to make it to the finals. Even man last year."

However, junior diver Casey Bolton continued her strong performances this season, and give the Wolves their first event win of the meet, taking the platform diving competition with 209 points.

After Andover won the 100-yard butterfly, Clarkston's Alex Beck came back to win the 100yard freestyle with a time of 1:02.12. The Wolves' other two event wins came in the 100-yard backstroke, which was won by Sue Fisk with a time of 1:08.36, and the 100-yard breaststroke, where Sara Zerba set a school record with a time of 1:19.96.

In addition to Zerba's performance, the Wolves set another school record at the meet. This record came in the 500-yard freestyle, as Andrea Galaviz earned a time of 6:10.88, which placed her second in that event.

The Wolves travel to Farmington Hills Mercy Oct. 27 for the Mercy Relays.

She hopes both the team and herself will make it to the state competition next season.

"I think we can do it next year," she said.

"That was one of our goals, to win this year. Through the season, we've been playing well as a team."

Lowney said Parkin contributed a good deal to the team's win. "She had a great game," Lowney said. "It was by far the best one she's played."

The Wolves earned the win on their opponent's home floor, returning the favor from Oct. 11, the Lakers defeated the host Wolves; 55-53.

Lowney said the main difference in the two games was the Wolves winning the battle of the boards and taking away the Lakers' inside game during Friday's contest.

"We played a lot more zone and forced them to beat us from the outside," she said. "We prevented them from getting a lot of rebounds."

Junior guard Jenn Carlson led the Wolves with 14 points.

The Wolves started the week with a win over division rival Troy, 45-31, on Oct. 16. Carlson led the Wolves with 15 points, while Megan Renda added 10.

Two days later, the Wolves had little trouble in defeating division rival Oak Park, 73-39, to improve their record to 9-5 overall and 8-1 in the league.

The undermanned Knights fielded only seven members on their team, and fell into a hole early, trailing 17-7 at the end of the first quarter. Oak Park turned the ball over frequently, allowing the Wolves to score in transition.

By the half, Clarkston was in complete control of the game, taking a 39-16 lead into halftime. Eleven different players scored for the Wolves, led by junior guard Kira Karlstrom's 19 points.

The Wolves have two games remaining in their league season. They host Waterford Kettering Oct. 25 and then conclude the regular season with a home game against Rochester Oct. 30.

Even though the Wolves have clinched the league title, Lowney said it is important for the team to maintain their concentration for the remainder of the regular season. "I want to win these next two games," she said. "I hope we don't lose focus."

Assorted thoughts on fall sports

Seems like just yesterday that the Clarkston fall sports season was just getting underway. Now, several teams, including football, golf, and tennis, are done for the season, and the others are heading into the homestretch.

There have been plenty of highs, and a few lows, to mark the past two months. Here are just a few thoughts on those events:

Congratulations to the girls' varsity basketball team, who clinched the league title with a 54-50 win over league rival West Bloomfield Oct. 19. The league crown is the Wolves' first since 1997. The return of junior guard Kira Karlstrom to the girls' basketball team has been an added boost to the Wolves. Karlstrom has already given the Wolves an offensive spark in their most recent games. Junior guard Jenn Carlson is the leading scorer, but Karlstrom, junior guard Anna Trimm, and senior forward Jenn Karstensen have all been steady contributors for the Clarkston cagers this season.

Hats off to freshman Lauren Little, who represented the Wolves at the state tennis finals this past weekend in #1 singles competition. Little lost in the finals to Troy's Caitlin O'Keefe, but the fact that Little was ranked second in the state heading into the tournament shows how well-regarded she is by her peers. Little excelled against other teams' #1

Time flies when you're having fun, doesn't it? singles players throughout the year. With Little and Colleen Mead, a sophomore, leading the way, the Wolves should be a team to be reckoned with next year.

A silver lining that can be found in the disappointing season for this year's football team is that reinforcements look to be on the way from the freshman and junior varsity teams. In particular, the freshman gridders had a quality season, finishing with a 7-1-1 overall record. The Wolves' varsity may have had a down year, but with the performance of the freshmen and junior varsity, don't expect them to be down for very long.

The girls' cross-country team continues to break new ground. In addition to breaking the top ten in the state (the Wolves are currently ranked seventh), Clarkston recently brought home the Oakland County title for the first time in school history, outdistancing league rival Rochester Adams Oct. 3. The Wolves lost out in their bid for the league title, finishing second to Rochester Adams at the Oakland Activities Association I league meet at Lake Orion Oct. 18. However, with the number of underclassmen returning next year, the future looks good for the girls' harriers

Clarkston's soccer team wrapped up its season last week, and headed into district action Oct. 22 in good shape and very much in contention for a district title. Sean Gardner, Sean Dougherty, Mike Holody, Grant Henderson, and Tim Moyer have all made solid contributions to the Wolves this season. They battled all season for the league title before falling short at the end, but the Wolves still can hold their heads high over a strong season.
