Area stands to lose more than $900,000...

Local communities hit hard by state cuts

BY KYLE GARGARO

Clarkston News Editor

Local communities will need to tighten their fiscal belts if recent cuts in state revenue sharing are not overridden by state lawmakers.

Governor John Engler made the revenue-sharing cuts last week in a move which caught many at the local government level by surprise.

"I think it was a surprise to everybody. We will lose a sizable amount of money. We already lost money from earlier cuts," Independence Township Supervisor Dale Stuart said. "By all appearances a deal was made to raise the cigarette tax and not make cuts in revenue sharing."

Independence Township was hit especially hard by the cuts and will lose $704,117. Springfield Township will lose $172,327 in the cuts, while Clarkston will have to budget for $32,681 less.

"We got a note from State Representative Ruth Johnson where she said this was the estimated amount we would lose if Engler signed the bill," Clarkston City Manager Art Pappas said. "We'll have to rearrange a lot of things. We'll have to make some cuts -- where, I don't know."

Local government leaders will need to begin looking at their budgets to see where they can afford to make cuts. The decisions need to be made by Oct. 1 which is the beginning of the fiscal year and when the cuts go into effect.

"We are in the process of investigating where cuts can be made," Stuart said. "We have asked each department what they can do as far as voluntary cuts without cutting personnel. We are going to need to plan for the worst case scenario."

While local governments are planning for the worst, they are hoping for the best. There will be a rally at 9 a.m. Aug. 13 on the State Capitol Lawn to protest the cuts. Representatives of different municipalities have been urged to attend.

The hope is the Senate and House of Representatives will be able to have the two thirds majority to override Engler's decision. A veto attempt has not been successful in Michigan since 1977. It would be only the second override in the last 50 years.

Lawmakers return to the capital on Aug. 13.

"From what I hear this is hardly a done deal," Clarkston Mayor Sharron Catallo said.

"I think there will be some big noise. I'd wait and see what happens when it does clear."

If the override does not occur, lo-

Fortinberry and Kostin move on to general election

Candidates will battle in November for 52/2 Judge seat

BY KYLE GARGARO

Clarkston News Editor

Dana Fortinberry and Kelley Kostin emerged from a highly contested primary for judge at the 52/2 Court Aug. 6.

With 45 of the 49 precincts reporting at press time, Dana Fortinberry received the most votes with 6,062 (43 percent), of the voters of this district," Fortinberry said. "I am honored to receive that endorsement in such a resounding fashion. I congratulate Mr. Houlihan, Mr. Knight, Mrs. Kostin and Mr. McNulty on the fine campaign they ran and I look forward to building on a great victory as we look towards November."

The 52-2 District Court in Clarkston serves most of northern Oakland County.

The court's jurisdiction currently includes the villages of Holly, Ortonville and Clarkston in addition to the townships of Holly, Brandon, Groveland, Springfield and Independence. New legislation has mandated Rose Township and White Lake become a part of the 52-2 district Jan. 1, 2003.

The judge seat is open due to the retirement of Judge Gerald McNally.

The two primary winners will square off in the general election set for Nov. 5.

Township Hall proposal fails

BY KYLE GARGARO

Clarkston News Editor

The voters rejected an idea of a new Independence Township hall at the Aug. 6 primary.

The proposal lost by a 3,984 to 2,363 margin and left those in the old building disappointed.

"I think it was a victim of not enough publicity," Independence Township Clerk Joan McCrary said. "I did think people would want to improve the park."

This proposal covered the building of a new township hall and making improvements to Clintonwood Park.

The improvements to Clintonwood include road and parking as well as the creation of eight new soccer fields.

If passed, it would have been a $7.5 million bond to be spread over 20 years. The estimated millage in the first and subsequent years was .43 mills. This is equal to 43 cents per $1,000 of taxable value of real and tangible personal property in Independence Township.

The Township Board has a meeting Wednesday, Aug. 7 to decide what to put on the November ballot. Among the options for the ballot are a community center and senior center. Nov. 2 township hall can be added to the list.

"We have a board meeting, but I have no interest in putting this on the ballot in November," McCrary said.

■ Library Millage Renewal and Increase passes. The Independence Township Library was given a renewal on their operating millage by the voters, but not by a wide margin.

The proposal passed 3,199 to 3,174.

The library .75 operating millage was originally approved in 1990 and was renewed for four years in 1998.

Over the years, the millage has been rolled back to .6993. The library was seeking to renew and restore the .75 mills. This will provide approximately $941,000 which can only be used for library support, maintenance and operation. This is approximately 70 percent of the library's total budget.

■ Police Millage Renewal. The Independence Township Police also were given a renewal of their millage by the voters. Their millage passed by a 1,086 to 2,312 margin. This is a renewal of a previously authorized millage, and will continue the levy of up to 2.504 of one mill, for four years, starting with the December 2002 levy.

Rotary Club plans fundraiser

On Aug. 8, the Clarkston and Davisburg Rotary Clubs will host a fundraiser to help support the worldwide effort to eradicate polio from the 10 remaining countries.

Although there are fewer than 600 cases reported in the last year, it will cost nearly as much to eliminate these last cases as it did to eradicate polio from all of the Americas.

Anybody can help in the fundraising effort while enjoying an evening of food, beverages and fellowship in the beautiful woods of Shepherd's Hollow.

Shepherd's Hollow, in combination with a number of microbreweries, will provide an extensive menu of appetizers and Michigan beers. Appetizers will be in coordination with 12 types of beer, and will include Miniature Beef Wellingtons, bite-size quiche, shrimp and pork wontons, assorted domestic and imported sausages and many more.

For tickets, please contact any Rotarian, Shepherd's Hollow or call 625-4244 or 338-1087.

In 1985, the 40th anniversary of the United Nations, Rotary pledged $120 million to buy polio vaccine in support of a global effort to immunize the children of the world. Through the immensely successful PolioPlus campaign, Rotarians raised $247 million. Clarkston and Davisburg Rotaries have both participated in this program since its inception.

Independence sets meeting agenda

The Independence Township Board of Trustees has a meeting slated for Wednesday, Aug. 7.

The big item on the agenda is the discussion, and possible decision, on a community center. The board will decide whether to put the issue on the November ballot.

The meeting is set for 7:30 p.m. on Aug. 7 at the Independence Township Library. The meeting was moved to Wednesday due to the primary election held on Aug. 6.

Taste of Clarkston plans set

The Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce is planning the annual Taste of Clarkston for Saturday, Sept. 28 from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Taste of Clarkston is part of the Fall Fun Daze which includes a fun run, 5K and 10K races, children's games, DJ music, live band, dancing in the street and other activities.

This is the fifth year of the event with an estimated 3,500 people attending last year.

The event is set to take place in the Washington Street parking lot in historic downtown Clarkston. There will be first place plaques awarded in the following categories: Most Attractive Booth Display, Best Appetizer, Best Entree, Best Dessert, Friendliest Service, Best Overall Menu, Most Creative Menu and a new People's Choice Menu.

Falls receives 'biggest honor' in induction

Longtime Detroit sportswriter and Clarkston resident selected to Baseball Hall of Fame

BY JEFF PATRUS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Longtime sportswriter and Clarkston resident Joe Falls estimates he has been to the Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, New York about 10-15 times.

Up until he was inducted into the writers wing of the Hall on Sunday, July 28, he never thought he would join the select few that are enshrined.

"It's the biggest honor I could have in my life," he said in an interview after returning from Cooperstown. "I never dreamed it would happen. I tried to show my great appreciation and have fun with it."

The honor of getting into the Hall struck Falls when he was at a hotel in Cooperstown the weekend of his induction. He noticed Hall of Famers Brooks Robinson, Jim Palmer and Bob Feller jumping up and yelling, "Joe, Joe, Joe."

"Then it hit me," Falls said.

He estimated there were approximately 22,000 people in attendance that day for the induction ceremony, which featured the induction of Falls and former San Diego Padres and St. Louis Cardinals shortstop Ozzie Smith.

Before making his speech, Falls determined he would keep the focus on others rather than himself.

"I decided in my speech I would not talk about myself or my career," he said. "I thanked the Hall of Fame, the Baseball Writers Association of America (which selects one of its members to the Hall of Fame each year) and the man who gave me my first job, Ted Smits, the sports editor for the Associated Press in New York."

He commented the July 28 induction ceremony had the highest turnout of Hall of Fame players in history, with 48 in attendance. Of that total, Falls noted there were only two players he had not met prior to the ceremony — Tom Seaver and Juan Marichal.

That fact speaks to Falls' longevity as a sports writer, a career which began working for the Associated Press in New York in 1946 as a copy boy. After working for the New York and Detroit AP, he moved to the Detroit Times in 1956. From there, he worked at the Detroit Free Press from 1960-78, and has been at The Detroit News ever since.

Falls attended the ceremony with wife Mary Jane, daughter Leslie (also a Clarkston resident), granddaughter Mia, his best friend, Paul Hunt, and cousin (also named Joe Falls).

In fact, Falls noted how excited his granddaughter was about all the festivities. He recalled her saying, "Man, this is the happiest moment of my life." He stated the fact his family and friends were so happy about his induction meant the most to him.

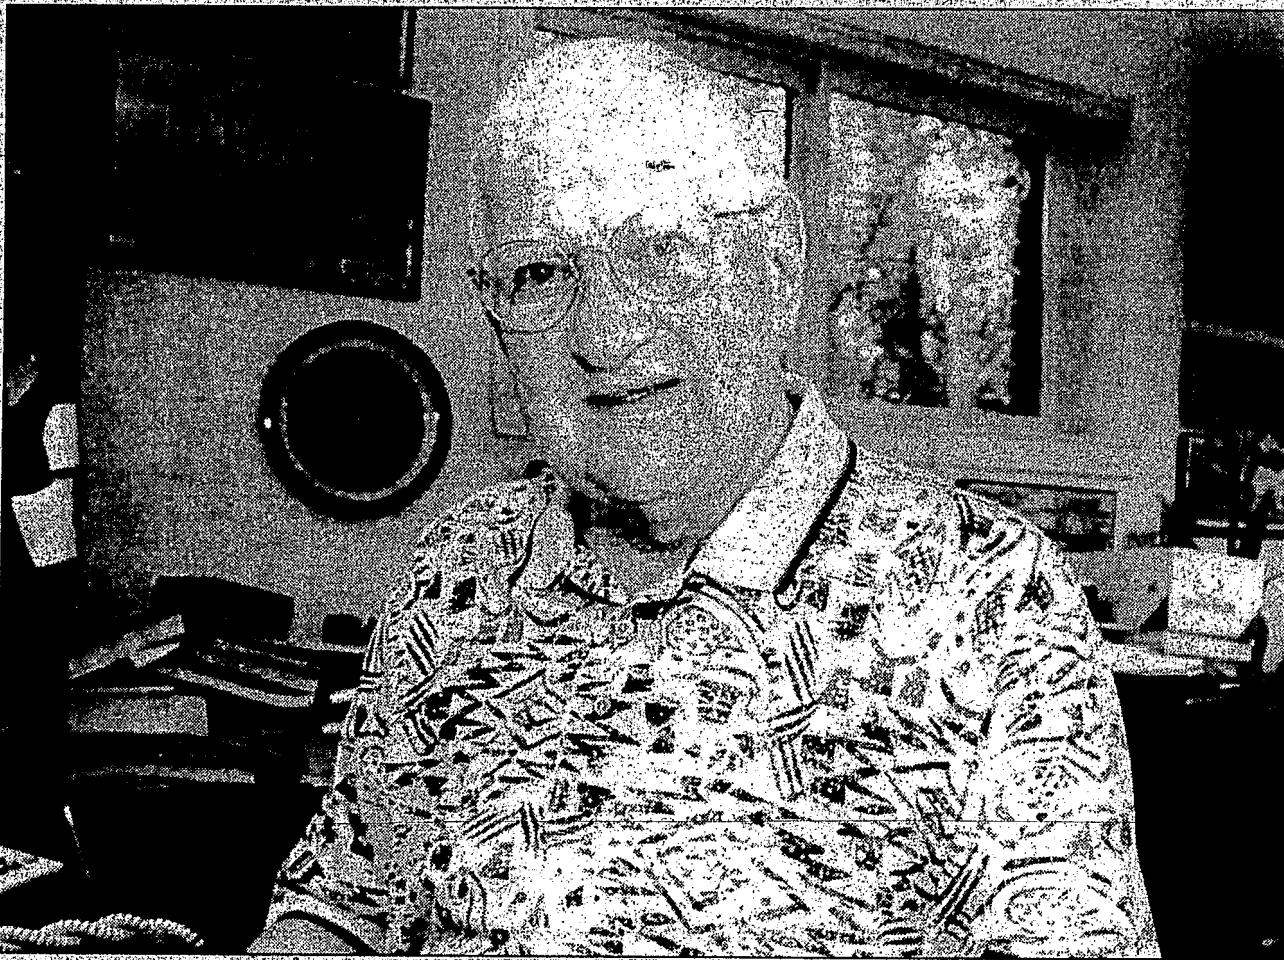

"The thing that pleased me was they were happy for me," he said. "That told me more than anything. They were all very kind to me."

Falls also noticed that two of his colleagues at The Detroit News who attended the induction ceremony, Tigers beat writer Tom Gage and sports columnist Rob Parker, were genuinely happy for him. "I could see the delight they had," he said.

During his career, Falls estimates he has seen approximately 6,000 baseball games and between 45-50 World Series. He is gratified people have recognized him for his work.

"I don't need to be in the limelight, but to hear people care so much, yes, it does please me," he said. "It's been quite an experience."

These days, Falls is very much in tune with what's going on with baseball. After speaking with this writer about his Hall of Fame experience, Falls offered his opinions on three baseball-related subjects: the current state of the Tigers, baseball's labor situation and his favorite moments he has covered as a sportswriter.

Even though the Tigers are in the midst of their ninth consecutive losing season, Falls still believes Detroit is a quality baseball city and will support the team if they become competitive. He stated the Tigers have a lot of history and tradition, dating back to the days of Ty Cobb, Harry Heilmann and Charlie Gehringer.

"This is an established community," he said. "Even when the team is bad, we have a sense of history. That's a great foundation. It's been a great baseball town, and I believe that if they had a decent team, they would draw a lot of people."

Still, Falls is not sure how long it will take for the Tigers to return to respectability.

"It's almost hopeless," he said of the Tigers' current state. "The easiest thing is to make fun of them. I don't know what's going to happen. It will depend on how much money they spend."

As far as the labor situation is concerned, Falls believes both the players and owners will have to give in a little for the good of the game.

"It will get settled eventually," he said. "I've found that the emotions go high. In all strikes, each side has to prove they're right. You must make a compromise. A strike seems very silly and stupid. It's a good business and a prosperous business. The players haven't lost one time. They don't want to lose now."

Falls doesn't know whether the two sides will settle in time to avoid a players' strike, but he stated if there is a strike, it would be a grave mistake.

"If they go on strike, I think they (owners and players) will be the dumbest people in sports history," he said. "If they go, maybe for the first time, I won't care."

Falls also talked about some of the greatest moments in baseball history he has witnessed, and named three that stood out. Topping the list is Bill Mazeroski's decisive home run for the Pittsburgh Pirates against the New York Yankees in the ninth inning of Game 7 of the 1960 World Series.

While Falls recalled that as "the greatest thing I've ever seen in my life," he also remembered going into the Yankees dressing room to find Hall of Famer Mickey Mantle lying down on the ground, crying because he was so upset at the loss.

Second on the list was Don Larsen's perfect game for the New York Yankees in the 1956 World Series against the Brooklyn Dodgers. "That one has grown in time, because it was such a great moment," Falls said.

The third moment on Falls' list was former Tiger Kirk Gibson's pinch-hit home run for the Los Angeles Dodgers in Game 1 of the 1988 World Series against the Oakland Athletics. Falls recalls having to switch the focus of his column instantly upon Gibson's home run.

"Jose Canseco had hit a home run in the first inning, and the A's were in control," he recalled. "I had my column ready to go, and then Gibby hit the home run."

Faced with having to rewrite his column, Falls decided he would focus on getting the facts right and not worry about grammatical mistakes. "You write as fast as you can, and not worry about being grammatically correct," he said.

These are just some of the moments Falls has witnessed during more than 50 years of covering baseball.

"Baseball is a game that's meant to be enjoyed," he said. "I think a day at the ballpark is very meaningful. I think it's the best game of all."

These days, Falls is still going strong, even though he has diabetes and can type only with his two index fingers. He still enjoys the challenge of crafting a story and connecting with readers.

"My mind works, and I can still create a story," he said. "At age 74, the reason I don't retire is I would miss the chance to write something that someone would find pleasurable."

Locals vote in primary, winners look towards November

Middleton, Stakoe, Bishop and Bullard clear first hurdle

BY KYLE GARGARO
Clarkston News Editor

Tom Middleton and Bill Bullard Jr. took giant steps in their quest for County Commissioner seats on Aug. 6.

Middleton won the Republican primary for the 4th District, while Bullard took the Republican primary for the 2nd District.

Middleton, who is the incumbent knocked off Joan McCrary and Hope Brown in a tight race.

Tom Middleton

Middleton finished with 2,534 votes (53 percent), while McCrary had 1,912 votes (40 percent) and Brown came in third with 351 votes (7 percent).

"It was a nice win," Middleton said. "I have ran other campaigns and I always focus on honesty and hard work and I did it again this time. I went door-to-door and was upfront on the campaign."

Middleton will face Democrat Charles Inman who ran unopposed in the primary in the Nov. 5 general election.

"I have run against Charles before and I don't anticipate there will be any surprises," Middleton said.

With 18 of the 22 precincts reporting, Bullard was beating Brian by a 1,998 (57 percent) to 1,521 (43 percent) margin. The state senator who is leaving the senate due to term limits will face Fenton resident Roy Dennison in the general election. Dennison ran unopposed in the primary.

John Stakoe

The race for 44th District State Representative was also highly contested. Highland Township Supervisor John Stakoe beat Steve Sanders by less than 250 votes.

Stakoe totaled 3,100 votes (33 percent) while Sanders finished with 2,879 votes (31 percent). Additional results included Russ Tierney with 1,665 votes (18 percent), Sean Hogan with 1,006 votes (11 percent) and Terry Lille with 727 votes (8 percent).

George Bryan ran unopposed on the Democratic side of the ticket and will face Stakoe in the general election.

Mike Bishop took the first step in earning the 12th District State Senate Seat Aug. 6 by handily beating Clarkston's David Galloway.

With 119 of 120 precincts reporting at press time, Bishop had 12,302 votes (63 percent), while Galloway had 7,166 votes (37 percent).

On the Democratic side, Tomas Werth was leading Joseph Barrera 9,690 to 8,837 with one precinct still not yet reported.

Clarkston High graduate leads the marketing way

BY JENNIFER NEMER

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Amanda Hall is ready to lead.

The Clarkston resident recently completed training at Eastern Michigan University in preparation for leading more than 7,300 members of the Michigan DECA, an association of marketing students and organization focused on developing future leaders of marketing and entrepreneurship, towards a successful year.

Hall was named the 57th Michigan DECA State Vice President, and was one of 10 student leaders sworn in at the 56th Annual State Career Development Conference, March 10. The leaders make up the Michigan DECA State Action Team, and were elected by their peers after presenting their abilities and ideas in a two-day campaign process that included creating a campaign booth and presenting a speech to more than 2,000 Michigan DECA members.

Of being elected, Hall said, "I'm excited. It's a big responsibility, but I'm ready. I like a challenge."

But she'll admit she wasn't always comfortable being a leader, and she was definitely uncomfortable with speaking in front of crowds.

"I was afraid to give a speech in front of 30 people. Now I've given a speech in front of 2,000." And even larger crowds are to come later this year, she said.

She first felt her fear of speaking in public slip away two years ago, during a DECA speech in front of 600 people.

"I still get nervous beforehand, but I'm fine once I'm up there because I can see people are involved."

The 2002 Clarkston High School and Oakland Technology Center Northwest Campus graduate revealed, "DECA has done a lot for me. It's given me leadership skills and a better direction for what field I want to follow."

Hall first got involved in DECA three years ago through the marketing program at OTC, when students were given the opportunity to go to a district competition. At "Districts," she explained, students were asked to choose a career field, (she chose fashion), take two tests and role play before judges. Two years ago, Hall and others considered the "best in Michigan" went to international competition in Anaheim, Calif.

Before DECA came along in Hall's life, she was interested in becoming a fashion designer. She did some career aptitude testing and found out, "I knew nothing about fashion."

DECA, she said, helped her decide to study international business at Baker College of Auburn Hills this fall, perhaps obtain a masters in political science, and run for senator at one point in her life. Hall, through DECA, met with senators in Washington D.C. earlier this year, and was inspired.

She wanted to run for a DECA state office because she wanted "to give members a great experience and bring them even more opportunities."

During her year term, Hall and fellow leaders will develop and execute a Program of Work, which this year includes increasing awareness of Michigan DECA, educating the public about muscular dystrophy in an ongoing partnership with the Muscular Dystrophy Association, coordinating a teddy bear drive contest, sponsoring Toys for Tots, and creating more of a presence on the international level.

Leaders like Hall—who has attended eight Michigan DECA conferences prior to becoming vice president this year—are also requested by chapters throughout the state to share their knowledge of leadership and the many benefits that DECA provides to high school students who are working towards a successful future. They also preside over the 15 student-oriented conferences held throughout the year.

The daughter of Linda and Jim, Hall is also actively involved with lacrosse and singing and teaching youth at her church, First Social Brethren in Pontiac.

The lifelong Clarkston resident encourages others to look into DECA. "If you want to learn more about the marketing field, get leadership skills, have the opportunity to earn scholarships and meet people, DECA is a great experience."

For more information on the Michigan DECA logon to www.mideca.org.

Principal search continues

Jan Meagher, assistant principal at Clarkston High School, was named acting principal, as the search for a John Diliegghio replacement continues.

Clarkston Community Schools public relations coordinator Anita Banach said the goal is to find a permanent principal by February.

"It could be sooner, but we're allowing time."

She also noted there have been quite a few inquiries, but no applicants as of yet.

The position has been posted through various educational outlets for more than a week.

Michigan drops the ball

Our state government, especially outgoing Governor John Engler, has taken the easy way out in the latest budget cuts and it is at the expense of the everyday citizen.

First they decided to raise the cigarette tax by 50 cents and then they pass the tightening of the belt off on local governments.

The revenue-sharing cuts recently made by Engler will hit our local communities. Independence Township stands to lose $704,117. Springfield Township $172,327 and the City of the Village of Clarkston $32,681.

First let's discuss the revenue-sharing cuts. This was a poor decision by our governor at the end of his term. Instead of making the tough decision and cutting some fat from the state budget he passed the buck.

We elect our leaders to make tough decisions, not so they can pass off those decisions to others. Local government provides important services and should not be expected to lose portions of their budgets on such a short notice.

Let's hope the Senate and House of Representatives does the right thing and overrides Engler.

The cigarette tax is just as wrong. Personally I don't smoke, but I would be greatly annoyed if every time the state needed some money they went after one of my vices.

The lawmakers said they hoped this would deter smoking, but their job is not to deter people from smoking. If it is legal, who are they to say if citizens should indulge.

And for those who say smokers drive up health costs, I would say you have a point but need to develop it further. If we are going to tax tobacco, then raise the taxes on beer and Twinkies because both are horrible for ones body.

The cigarette tax passed because the group does not elicit much sympathy. They are an easy target because a good portion of our society sees the habit as disgusting and those who don't quit as weak. The government better hope many don't quit or they will be out some serious money.

By the way, does anyone remember that huge pay increase the legislature got a few years ago when times were booming. It was something obscene like a 30 percent increase if memory serves. Now that the state has fallen on some hard times do you think they will give some of that raise back?

I am not holding my breath.

Gargaro Hall of Fame: All the political candidates, win or lose, who took the time, effort and money to put themselves out there in the democratic process. I have immense respect for all candidates and their hard work.

Gargaro Hall of Shame: Ticketmaster. Wanted to purchase some tickets on the Internet and this ticket monopoly attempted to take me to the cleaners.

In addition to the eight dollar service charge, they also wanted to charge me eight dollars per ticket for an Internet charge. So basically I would be paying $22 for the ticket and $16 in service fees. Something needs to be done about the monopoly Ticketmaster has on concert goers.

Writer feels high prices caused Harmony House downfall

The Clarkston Harmony House closed its doors for good on Sunday, Aug. 4, just one in the chain that will be no more by the end of the year.

In a recent article in The Clarkston News, a Harmony House regional manager was quoted as saying the Internet and Napster as well as stores like Best Buy and Circuit City are to blame for the downfall of the independent music store chain.

I'm sorry, but I have to disagree completely here and clear some things up: their downfall was their high prices.

Why would I pay $18 for a CD at Harmony House (the regular asking price) when I can get that same CD at Best Buy and Target, to give a couple examples, for $13 or less?

Actually, I've gotten to the point in the last year or two, that if I have to buy a CD for $13, that's pushing the limit. Most consistently, I buy CDs for $10. And that's what I expect to pay when I go to buy a CD. In fact, the least I've paid for a CD has been $5.99.

These aren't used CDs, they're not coming in damaged cases, these are brand new, in good condition CDs.

They're just on sale, or are featuring an "everyday low price."

You can't blame these stores for selling their merchandise at more reasonable prices, in turn, causing your downfall.

Independent stores have to keep up with the competition to stay alive and offer something unique to bring customers to that shop instead of the big box stores.

Some may argue Harmony House offered a bigger selection and hard-to-find music.

I disagree again.

Have you looked at the Best Buy selection? They have everything you'd be looking for, and in a rare instance, they don't have something, they can order it.

And for the Internet/Napster thing...

If this argument were true why aren't Best Buy and other big box stores downsizing their music departments?

People aren't downloading the latest music releases, and racking up personal collections of only burned CDs. Of course, there will be some extremists out there who do abuse the free music downloads offered on the web. But the majority of music fans want the actual CD in their hands and in their music collection and will purchase it.

Most that I know who download music frequently off the Internet get rare, unreleased music; older music, and songs here and there that are performed by bands not worthy of a CD purchase.

It isn't enough to bring down the music industry, and/or music stores like Harmony House.

Personally, I can't believe Harmony House stayed in business for more than 55 years. Every time I walked in there to purchase tickets at Ticketmaster I looked at the prices and said, "How?"

■ "There's Always Time for Greatness" by Andrew Postman is an interesting little book I picked up recently, on "who did what when from ages 1-100."

Here's a few excerpted tidbits:

At the age of 0-1, Mary, of the House of Stuart, became Queen of Scotland; Mickey Rooney debuted in the family vaudeville act, and Brooke Shields was selected the Ivory Snow baby.

At 3, Tiger Woods shot 48 for nine holes on his hometown golf course in Cypress, Calif.

At 5, Beatrice d'Este had her hand offered in marriage by her father to the Duke of Bari, age 29. They married 11 years later.

At 19, Bill Gates cofounded Microsoft.

At 30, Thomas Edison invented the phonograph. (The first-ever recording is of Edison himself reciting "Mary had a little lamb.")

At 42, Rosa Parks refused to give up her seat on a Birmingham, Ala., bus.

At 55, Harrison Ford had his ear pierced, something he claimed he'd wanted to do for a long time.

At 63, Arceli Keh, of California, gave birth, the oldest known woman to do so.

At 72, Peter Mark Roget finished compiling his "Thesaurus," after 12 years of work.

At 81, Jerry Wehman of Florida bowled a perfect 300 game.

At 91, Maude Tull of California got her first driver's license.

At 98, Dimitri Yordanidis ran a marathon in Athens, Greece, in seven hours and 33 minutes.

And at 100, Ichijirou Araya climbed Mount Fuji.

Military personnel, parents, et al

It's been nearly a year since those tragic images of airplanes crashing were burned into our memories. September 11, 2001, truly a day which will live in infamy, was a day an entirely new generation of Americans grew up. Not since the sobering days of World War 2 have Americans been well so shell shocked. But, grow up we did.

And, we grew together.

With the first anniversary fast approaching, we at this newspaper would like to honor the men and women who, at this moment, are fighting our war on terrorism. It's the least we can do for these soldiers as they fight for freedoms we enjoy (even while some Washington DC legislators and a certain Attorney General try to take them away in the name of fighting terrorism - which is another column).

If there are any proud parents or grandparents out there whose family members are in the service, drop us a line and let us know. We don't want to compromise any security -- so all we need is name, rank, what branch they're serving in, hometown and the name of their folks (grandparents, too). If you have photos, great! Send them to us with the info.

As the community's newspaper of record, it is our duty to put these names to paper with ink, for posterity.

You can e-mail me the info at donrushmedon@aol.com or send it to this newspaper. Your deadline is August 31. And we'll publish our list with a big "thank you" on Wednesday, September 11.

Exactly who is Walt and where does he get all his crawlers?

One of the great mysteries of local life (to me, anyway) has been the identity of the person behind all those yellow Walt's Crawlers signs you see at area gas stations and party stores. For years I have wondered about those signs but up until now was too ashamed to ask.

Go ahead and say it, cuz you are probably thinking it. It must be a slow column week if I'm wondering about worms.

Through the years there have been a number of Caped Crusaders. On film Adam West, Val Kilmer, George Clooney and Michael Keaton have donned the Batbelt and protected Gotham City from such sinister villains as Egg Head, the Penguin, King Tut and more.

In these parts, we have our own Dark Knight protecting us from evil. And since bad guys don't read the newspaper, I can reveal to you the secret identity of the person behind mask and in front of the cape -- Sean Rush, 2. Not exactly the wealthy Bruce Wayne, Sean is at least a bachelor with a brave heart beating true within his chest (he hasn't learned about fear yet).

I am not sure from whence Sean's, "I am Batman" proclamations have come, nor do I know why. I'm hoping it's a normal boy phase thing. I think he is shedding his baby ways and becoming a big guy (which, coincidentally, has come with using the toilet.)

I do know this: With his two little 12-inch legs, he crouches then jumps off the couch with reckless abandon. When he lands he kicks up one leg and then throws a couple of punches. I think once I saw a "POW!" and a "BIFF!" float by during one of these demonstrations of testosterone. Whether or not he is fighting imaginary villainy or just practicing his moves, I do not know.

The pint-sized crime fighter has requested his dear old mother make a cape for him out of his beloved "nee-nee." Nee-nee, for those not familiar with his Bat essentials, is the little, 14 by 24 inch blanket he sleeps with. The other day he even wanted to go to the grocery with said nee-nee -- er, cape. (Oops, that was almost a parental faux pas.)

It's good to see he has an imagination and it'll be interesting to see how far and long this super hero "phase" will last.

Until that time, bad guys beware.

They're not training for an Olympic sport

Our grandchild twins, Haley and Trevor are 35 months old, and potty training is a challenge, especially when there is a deadline.

I know, your grandchildren could walk at three months and speak three languages before they were 35 months.

I don't want to hear about them. Their accomplishments surely aren't as image producing as tiny tots sitting on a huge porcelain bowl with little or no idea of how to go about doing something on purpose that hadn't interrupted their days since birth.

Their mother did not just now begin this training. Susan has spent more time on the bathroom floor than Johnson's wax. She reads and re-reads baby books which they enjoy to the point that they will go into the bathroom and call for Mommy to come and read.

Encouragement is a major ploy, that hasn't worked. Susan knows it's bad to threaten kids that age, but I'll bet she's tried. Her current trick is bribery. Seems the twins' daycare workers have found that a promise of a cupcake works for kids' liquid relief.

The first time the workers tried it on Haley, it worked, which got Trevor's attention. "I can do that," he said, and he did.

But, that's the easy train. The more than once a day emissions are apparently taking more than cupcake pledges. Coaxing, promises, loving, threats of their father taking over and tons of patience have not produced results for the other task.

Until recently!

With one successful displacement, Haley broke into a new universe. Smiles, clapping, jumping and shouting, "Now I get to go to preschool!" That's the deadline I mentioned. To get into preschool a child has to be able to perform the adult way, alone. (Unless you're the adult we see in TV commercials.)

Soon as daddy came by Haley exclaimed, "I'm a good girl," which her mother had already told her several times. Tim tossed Haley into the air, laughed and played loudly, while repeating, "Yes, you're a good girl!"

Happiness! Rejoice! She's gone!

Susan and Tim do not live in a huge home, and Trevor, who had been enjoying his relaxed throne-sitting, heard all the praises being extolled on his twin sister, and he apparently didn't like being left out of this Norman Rockwell-type family scene.

So, here comes Trevor, out of the bathroom, pants around his ankles, sadness in his eyes and on his face as he says, "I've been a good boy, too!"

That brought a smile to his parents' faces, but it also was just a short interruption to the primary plan. His training continued shortly thereafter.

I will not let you know when Trevor becomes a "good boy."

I read Mort Crim's "Second Thoughts" three days a week in the Free Press. The former television news anchor is also on WWJ-AM radio. His comments are short, informative, entertaining and thoughtful.

I particularly like this poem that concluded a column headline, "The grass is always browner somewhere else."

From the day you are born,

There's nothing so bad that it couldn't be worse.

A look back

From The Clarkston News

15 YEARS AGO (1987)

■ Loose litter laying around downtown Clarkston will no longer be an eyesore, the village council decided Aug. 10. Village employees will be asked by the council to work additional hours to help remove trash from the downtown area and in the Main Street parking lot. The issue was raised in a letter to the village council by Dennis Kacy.

■ Letters were sent from the assessor's office last week to notify commercial and industrial property owners of a reappraisal of their property in Independence Township. The last overall appraisal of commercial and industrial property was 15 years ago, said township assessor David Kramer.

■ A public hearing has been set for Oct. 5 to further discuss the plan for condominiums on six acres near Deer Lake. On Aug. 3, Dan Rush, a representative of Vintage Construction Co. in Auburn Hills, presented the Clarkston Planning Commission with the proposal that would require rezoning. The plan calls for 24 units to be built, each about 1,500 to 1,800 square feet.

25 YEARS AGO (1977)

■ The get out the "yes" vote campaign succeeded Monday as the 3.79 mill increase for operation of the Clarkston School District was passed by voters with a margin of 546 votes. More than 100 people began cheering as election results were read at the school board offices. It had become apparent the jobs of 34 teachers and the programs of the students would be replaced had the millage not passed.

■ Citizens of the Woodhull area, beset by vandalism and thievery costing hundreds of dollars in recent months, are establishing an organization for citizen patrol and all out enforcement of the township ordinances. They have petitioned Independence Township for added police protection, as well, and the intention of the group is to prosecute both juveniles and parents.

■ The old Clarkston Village Hall at 25 S. Main stands deserted, awaiting the auctioneer's block. The Village Council, Planning Commission and ZBA have moved into their new municipal building at 375 Depot Road after 25 long years of planning, waiting and building.

50 YEARS AGO (1952)

■ The primary election for state and county offices will be held next Tuesday. Independence Township voters will cast their ballots at the Township Hall in Clarkston and this year, for the first time, will cast their ballots on the new voting machines. This election is important in that this is the time to choose the best men of each party to run at the general election in early November.

■ Leon Strain, Detroit Mail Advertising writer, will be the speaker at Clarkston Rotary on Monday, Aug. 4. Strain has spent many years working with businessmen in all fields, helping them develop more effective advertising programs. Before the war he had his own retail advertising service in the Midwest.

■ The following items were on special at Terry's Market in Clarkston: smoked picnics, small and lean, 39 cents/lb.; frozen peas, two packages for 43 cents; head lettuce, large size, two heads for 35 cents; corned beef, 45 cents/can; butter, 73 cents/lb.; peaches, two pounds for 25 cents; frozen french fried potatoes, two packages for 43 cents.

Man dies of heroin overdose

A 28-year-old man died of a heroin overdose Friday, Aug. 2. The man was brought to the Independence Township Fire Station #2 at approximately 2:45 p.m. by his mother and her boyfriend to be treated.

The 45-year-old mother told police someone dropped him off at a trailer she was house sitting in the Sashabaw Meadows Mobile Home Park in Brandon Township.

She was outside watering the garden, while her boyfriend and son were inside. She heard her boyfriend yell the son was having a seizure. She noted to police he has a closed head injury which causes him to have seizures. He was also on four medications for his seizures as well as allergies. She helped him through the seizure and he fell asleep on the kitchen floor. About 15 minutes later she noticed he was foaming from the mouth and nose and his lips were turning blue. She attempted CPR.

The woman told police she was aware her son did heroin and that he did it that day. She originally told police a neighbor drove her and her son to the fire station, but later revealed it was actually her boyfriend who dropped them off. Police reports indicated the woman was lying to hide she and her boyfriend's use of drugs.

The victim was transported to Genesys Hospital and was pronounced dead. The case has been turned over to the Brandon Township detective bureau.

Contractor to pick up expenses

BY JEFF PATRUS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

The City of the Village of Clarkston has taken steps to remedy holes in their parking lot — and they won't have to pick up the tab.

VII Construction Company of Sterling Heights, which has subcontracted the work to another company, will be picking up the expenses for the work, according to City Manager Art Pappas.

City Councilman Scott Meyland stated the patching up of the holes is finished, and VII Construction is in the process of determining what to do next.

"They've repaired it and patched it up," he said.

"They're in the process of doing some more testing on it. In the fall, they'll put a top coat on it, and in the spring, they will repulverize and reaspalh the parking lot."

Pappas stated the overlay should be finished this season, and the remaining work on the parking lot will be concluded in spring 2003.

The contractor began work on filling up some of the more dangerous holes earlier this summer in anticipation of the crowds that filled Depot Park during the Concerts in the Park series. "They did some of the holes, so people wouldn't fall during the concerts," Pappas said.

Local business helps White Lake boy enjoy outdoors

BY JEFF PATRUS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Many youngsters combat the hot weather by heading outside to swim.

However, White Lake youngster Gary Hooker, 4, wasn't able to do so — until Pool Mart, a Clarkston business, stepped in to have a pool built for Hooker so he could experience the outdoors.

Jim Miron, general manager at Pool Mart, explained how everything came together.

"What happened was the Department of Community Health contacted us," he said. "We then contacted JoAnn Bullock at Doughboy, a pool supplier. We were able to get him a free pool and get everything at cost."

According to Pete Gannon, chief executive officer of Pool Mart, a pool such as the one donated to the Hooker family would cost between $3,200-$3,500.

He stated the company has donated pools in the past, based on requests from non-profit organizations. "There's been about three or four times per year we work with different charities, such as Make-A-Wish," Gannon said.

Gary Hooker was born April 12, 1998 with a condition called Ectodermal Dysplasia, which affects skin structures such as sweat glands, teeth, hair and nails. According to his mom, Michelle Hooker, he was unable to go outside and play in the warm weather due to his body not being able to produce enough perspiration to keep his body cool.

Hooker contacted the Department of Community

Health in April about possibly getting a pool for her son. The community health department contacted Pool Mart July 1, and the pool was installed July 19.

"He (Hooker) hasn't been able to come outside for more than five minutes at a time (because of the hot weather)," Miron said. "Now, he can come outdoors."

Michelle Hooker commented her son has suffered from a lack of sweat glands since birth, and was amazed at the difference in her son's activity since the installation of the pool.

"He doesn't play outside unless the sun goes down toward the evening," Hooker said of Gary's pre-pool lack of outdoor play. "Now, he has been outside from morning to night swimming. He loves it."

Hooker was pleased by the response from Pool Mart.

"I was surprised that they helped me out that way," he said. "They were wonderful."

She expressed her gratitude to Karin Hopkins from Children's Special Health Care Services in Oakland County, as well as the State of Michigan for helping to make the pool a reality for Gary. She also wanted to thank the staff at Pool Mart for "going above all expectations in a business," and the installers at Dig It Pools for helping to put the pool together.

Construction causes delays on Dixie

Traffic back-up - Construction began last week on a new safety path along the west side of Dixie Highway, from Lingor to Pine Tree Road. Independence Township Trustee David Wagner and board representative for the Safety Path Committee said the new traveling path is meant to be a link for residents in the Waterford Hill Manor Subdivision. It is "virtually impossible" for residents to cross Dixie Highway to get to the sidewalk on the east side, Wagner said. This will give them convenience of traveling around more of the area safely. The township received several resident requests to consider this improvement, and Wagner said he pushed to have it approved, knowing first hand it was needed, having once lived in the subdivision for 16 years. The Township Board approved the construction this year. Construction should be completed within a month to six weeks, Wagner said.

Craven first artist to be showcased at Independence Library

BY KYLE GARGARO
Clarkston News Writer

The meeting room at the library looks more decorative these days. That is because the first artist of the month, Clarkston's George Craven, is being displayed in the room.

Craven is a local watercolor artist who's primary interest is to paint scenes of the English countryside. He also paints a variety of other subjects in watercolor, but always returns to paint scenes of his native England.

Craven has had several successful one-man shows and several of his paintings have been reproduced onto music boxes.

"I have been doing watercolors for more than 30 years and was painting oils before that," Craven said. "I always enjoyed art as a teenager and have been at it for many, many years. It is in my blood. I guess You don't realize it is there but it is."

The 47-year Clarkston resident finds painting very relaxing and usually paints three of four days a week.

"It is a good relaxing therapy. If you get a headache, painting relaxes you," Craven said.

Craven recently completed a large watercolor of the English countryside which was commissioned by The Artful Framer in Clarkston. His painting and music boxes are on display and for sale at Whittington's in the Olde Canterbury Village in Orion.

Craven is very excited to be showcased at the library, as are the organizers of the art display, Jean Cavalier and Del Miller.

The idea first started with Independence Township Clerk Joan McCrary. Cavalier got involved in trying to get the senior center on the ballot, concentrating on getting a room for artist.

"Joan knew this and came up with the library as a place where we could showcase local artists," Cavalier said. "The community really needs an art area. We are really happy to have this. We want to thank Joan McCrary so much for making this happen."

There is currently 15 hooks for the art to be displayed, and they are looking to expand. One local artist will be featured each month.

"There are more artist around the area than you really realize," Miller said.

If any local artist is interested in having their work displayed they can call Jean Cavalier at 620-1128.

"I think this is great," McCrary said. "When I walk into other government buildings I always enjoy when they have art hanging. I am excited about having a new artist every month displayed in the library."

Fife deserves credit for making NBA summer league

A year ago, if you would have said Dane Fife would be in the NBA summer league trying to make an NBA team, many people would have thought you were foolish.

After all, Fife, a former Clarkston player and winner of the 1998 Michigan Mr. Basketball award, had experienced plenty of adversity during his first three years at Indiana University.

He came into the 2001-02 season with a career scoring average of approximately four points per game, and had reportedly considered transferring in 2000, after coach Bob Knight was fired, before assistant Mike Davis was promoted to the top job.

Although it looks like he will have to continue his career overseas or in the CBA — his father, Clarkston basketball coach and athletic director Dan Fife, recently stated Dane would likely not be invited back to the Houston Rockets camp — he did well to even earn a look from the Rockets this summer.

Fife signed with the Rockets to play on their summer league team, which ran through Sunday, July 21. In addition, three other teams — the Indiana Pacers, Miami Heat and Toronto

Raptors — were interested in having Fife sign up for their summer league teams.

Things fell into place for Fife in his senior year at Indiana, as he developed a three-point shot and continued playing the defense that had become his calling card, even when the scoring wasn't there. He was eventually named co-Big Ten Defensive Player of the Year.

Moreover, the Hoosiers, who entered the NCAA tournament as a fifth seed with a 20-11 record, came together and surprised everyone by making it all the way to the championship game before losing to Maryland. Fife was named to the all-tournament team for his play during the Hoosiers' run.

Back in his high school days, Fife was the toast of Clarkston, displaying skills on the gridiron as well as the basketball court. Every big-name college out there in addition to Indiana — Duke, North Carolina, Michigan, Michigan State — was interested in signing him up for their program.

Then he gets to Indiana, and things get harder. He's no longer the big man on campus, and experiences self-doubt and loss of confidence.

Now, he's carved out a niche for himself and will have his place in Indiana basketball history. Granted, he'll have to continue his basketball career elsewhere besides the NBA.

However, he earned his chance to go up against the big boys, and deserves credit for that.

What's up with that!

Football coaches enjoy All-Star experience

BY JEFF PATRUS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Conditioning begins this week for the Clarkston football team, but two members of the varsity staff experienced a taste of high school competition this weekend.

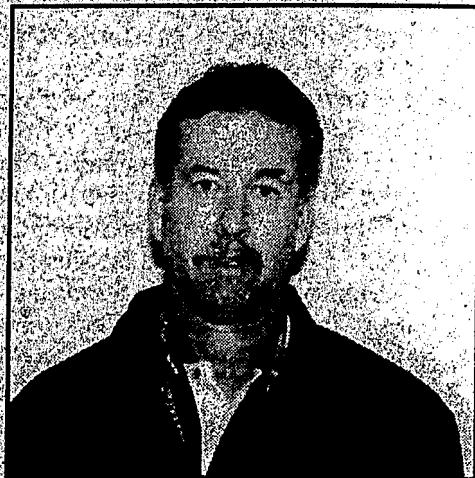

Head coach Kurt Richardson and offensive coordinator Mike Stefanski were assistant coaches on the East squad in the Michigan High School Football Coaches' Association all-star game Saturday, Aug. 3 at Spartan Stadium in East Lansing.

The East squad triumphed 28-7, and Richardson described the game as "up-tempo and a lot of fun." The game is comprised of players who have graduated from high school and have not yet competed at the college level.

Richardson was chosen to be the first assistant under Dearborn Fordson coach Jeff Stergalas for the East team, and served as the defensive coordinator and defensive backs coach for the team.

In turn, Richardson was allowed to pick one of his assistants to join him on the staff, so he picked Stefanski, who worked with the linebackers, to join him on the staff.

The players and coaches from both sides arrived in East Lansing Friday, Aug.

26 and stayed until Aug. 3. Despite having to stay in the MSU dorm rooms during last week's stretch of hot weather, Richardson stated the week allowed him the opportunity to meet a number of top-notch players and coaches.

"It was a chance to meet some very skilled kids," he said. "They were good kids and fun to work with. I also met several coaches and we got to exchange ideas on football."

Fife states ruling would not affect scheduling

BY JEFF PATRUS
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Clarkston athletic director Dan Fife stated a recent court ruling that may switch volleyball and basketball seasons would not have an impact on practice time for either team.

However, he cautioned it could present problems with regard to finding enough officials for both boys and girls basketball.

The U.S. Federal District Court in Kalamazoo, in an Aug. 1 ruling, rejected a plan by the Michigan High School Athletic Association (MHSAA) for the realignment of sports seasons.

Furthermore, the court ruled the MHSAA had to submit a revised plan by Oct. 30 that must include the switching of volleyball to the fall season and girls basketball to the winter.

Fife noted the current gym schedule allows the boys basketball team to use one-half of the gym for practices, with the volleyball team using the other half. He said if the ruling holds up, the girls basketball team would use the other half of the gym during the winter sports season.

While space isn't expected to be a problem in that instance, finding enough officials might be, according to Fife. He stated it is hard enough finding officials as it is.

"They can't find officials now," he said. "It could have some major impact on the officials and the quality of officiating for basketball."

According to Fife, 45 other states have their high school sports teams play under that arrangement, so if the decision stands, he will find a way to make it work.

"I'm not sure about the mechanics of it," he said. "I'd rather not get it where they switch the other sports. I'm going to have to wait to see how it goes. I honestly don't believe it helps or hurts girls."

The ruling was issued at approximately 9 a.m. Aug. 1, and the MHSAA posted a response later that day on its Web site, www.mhsaa.com.

The court gave the MHSAA three options to choose from in realigning the seasons:

- playing all sports with male and female participants in the same season.

- reversing two girls seasons with two boys seasons from among four sports (soccer, golf, tennis and swimming and diving).

- combining two of the four seasons from the above list and reverse seasons in one of the other two.

Although disappointed in the ruling, MHSAA communications director John Johnson stated the association will now prepare for an appeal of the case to be heard before the U.S. Court of Appeals in Cincinnati, Ohio.

"What we feel is that the court has done today what it said in December it would not do," he said. "The court said in February that we had many options. Now they've reduced it to three. The court told us in December to equally distribute six seasons. We did, and we added additional opportunities. Now they tell us we have to equally distribute participants. This brings us one step closer to the appeals process. The important thing is we need our focus shifted from Kalamazoo to Cincinnati. The need for a full appellate review is larger than ever."

Johnson added the earliest the sports seasons could change, provided the plaintiffs ultimately prevail in the case, is the 2004-05 season.

He also noted whichever side loses at the appeals level will likely take the case before the U.S. Supreme Court, further delaying any action.

"It will take 9-12 months for the case to run its course at the appeals level," he said.

On Dec. 17, 2001,

U.S. District Court Judge Richard Enslen ruled that the Michigan High School Athletic Association (MHSAA) must submit a plan by May 24, 2002 for a new schedule for girls' sports seasons that would take effect for the 2003-04 school year.

Note of caution — Clarkston High School athletic director Dan Fife believes the potential switching of girls basketball and volleyball seasons could have an impact on the quality of officiating for boys and girls basketball. The Clarkston News file photo.

Clarkston was well represented at the Michigan Senior Olympics Aug. 4-8.

Six local residents took part in the 23rd annual event, which was held in Midland. A total of 950 people competed from throughout the state in the Senior Olympics, which are geared toward people age 50 or older.

The local participants took part in track and field, volleyball and bowling events.

One of the Clarkston participants in the Senior Olympics was Charles Gavette, 70, who took part in the 100 meters, 200 meters, and high jump. He was also scheduled to take part in the long jump, but opted out of that competition.

Gavette finished with a time of 16.7 in the 100 meters, and a time of 34.6 in the 200 meters, and finished with a jump of 40 inches in the high jump. After the race, he stated he was disappointed he didn't do better and would have liked to have trained longer for the competition.

In particular, he was optimistic about his chances as he began the 200 meter race. "I was doing real well in the first 125 yards, but then I pulled a hamstring," he said.

Another Clarkston resident, Len Bokuniewicz, 55, made his fifth trip to the Senior Olympics, and was scheduled to compete in the 100 meter and 200 meter events.

After placing third in the age 55-59 division of the 100 meters with a time of 13.33, Bokuniewicz discovered his leg was quivering, and since he suffered a pulled hamstring June 30, he decided to drop out of the 200 meter race.

However, one of Bokuniewicz's training partners, Jim Beall, 73, of Waterford, did quite well for himself. Bokuniewicz met Beall while the two were training at Beall placed second in the 70-74 division in the 200 meters at 33.17 and took first in the 800 meters with a time of 3:07.

Other Clarkston residents who competed in the Senior Olympics were Ernest Cosma, bowling doubles and bowling singles; Fred Hehl, volleyball; George Vieira, bowling mixed doubles; and Marie Vieira, bowling mixed doubles and mixed singles.
