More space, no car wash

BY DON SCHELSKE

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Independence Township officials will seek building proposals for an addition to the Department of Public Works complex, but an automatic car wash is not part of the package.

The township board on Tuesday, July 1 approved a plan submitted by Dave Belcher, director of facilities and maintenance.

In addition to giving the DPW more room for their vehicle storage at the Flemings Lake Road complex, the addition will also provide a place for facilities and maintenance to store their equipment.

While the addition will include a separate area for washing vehicles, the plan no longer includes automatic washing equipment. That feature caused significant debate in April when trustees approved $5,700 for architectural drawings.

DPW Linda Richardson said employees would continue to use manual power washing equipment to maintain the fleet of about 35 vehicles. Previously, she said having DPW employees handle that task costs about $28,000 annually.

The addition, to include a 110-by-64-foot garage, a 20-by-60-foot wash bay, septic system improvements and new paving, has an estimated cost of $442,000. The proposal is a scaled back version of an original proposal with an estimated price tag of $810,700.

Belcher asked for permission to seek specific proposals from several specific builders rather than go through the traditional competitive bid process.

"I want to try to get a total number so I can come back to the board with something definite for a price," he said.

"I think that's a good idea," Clerk Joan McCrary said, referring to Belcher as the township's "general contractor" for the project. "It seems it will save weeks of work, time and money.'

Supervisor Dale Stuart agreed, but emphasized that the report to the board must be specific for budget purposes.

on destruction

The Oakland County Sheriff's Department in Independence Township is seeking any information that could help to find who is responsible for a number of malicious destruction of properties.

Det. Scott Patterson said there have been a number of vehicle and home windows shot out with a BB gun. "Just the other night we had 10. They come in spurts. Last month we had six to 10. I don't know if it's because school is out and this is the in thing to do."

Patterson said the crimes are happening after 10 p.m., and owners are finding their property damaged in the mornings. The same has been happening in Brandon and Springfield townships as well.

But the police have no suspects or suspect vehicle information at this time.

Any information will help, Patterson said. If anyone has information, they are asked to call the Independence Township substation at (248) 620-4968 or dispatch at (248) 858-4950.

The Fire Department estimated between 5,000 and 7,000 people attended the parade.

"It went as expected with no major glitches or no major surprises," Independence Township Fire Chief Steve Ronk said. "It is a lot of work but we have a pretty good idea of how to do this event."

A storm swept through the area around 1 p.m. and put a damper on some of the enthusiasm as many ran for cover.

However after the weather broke, many residents filled Clintonwood Park to continuing the Independence Day celebration. The fireworks were moved up a few minutes because organizers were worried another storm would hit.

"I definitely think the storm hurt us a little bit," Recreation Programmer Kelly Arcello said. "But once the storm let up we got back in full swing. A lot of people waited it out and came to the park after the rain. A lot of the crafts people had to leave be-

School officials link central administration to classroom quality

BY DON SCHELSKE

Clarkston News Staff Writer Public education is, by nature, laborintensive. Clarkston school officials believe their "team" is working with tightened belts and a cooperative spirit.

"We don't squander the public resources," Superintendent Al Roberts said. "We try to forward the resources to the classroom."

The budget adopted by the board of education last month gave teachers a "pretty meager" pay hike, Roberts said, and both teachers and administrators fall below the level of many other Oakland County school districts. Officials previously announced build fund equity long-range efforts to build fund equity back to 15 percent. An anticipated freeze in the state per-pupil foundation grant added an extra challenge, and the budget for the 2003-2004 school year includes a number of previously-reported reductions in planned spending.

With 86 percent of the new $65 million budget going to personnel costs, administrators say they worked hard to trim as much as possible without jeopardizing classroom instruction. The district achieved a goal by cutting at least three full-time equivalent teaching positions, teachers agreed to larger class sizes and compromised to allow alternative health care coverage.

In building and district administration, officials believe it is already tight.

Anita Banach, director of communications and marketing, said the Oakland Schools directory shows Clarkston has fewer people in central administration than most districts in the county.

"The place I came from had five times as many [administrators]," Banach said, and Clarkston currently has no assistant principals at elementary schools. "We're pretty lean when it comes to that."

Roberts said the state-contracted Standard & Poors report on public schools shows the same thing.

"We are light administratively," he said. "If we could have cut any more without jeopardizing what we do as a school system, that would have been considered. But we feel we're very light, and I think the data supports that."

The Standard & Poors report for 2002 computed the cost of administration at $831 per student, "moderately below the state average of $956, but comparable to the peer group average." The same conclusion was made concerning overall operational costs.

Banach said the district currently employs about 1,200 full-time and parttime employees. She estimated between 480 and 500 as being certified teachers.

With the current district administrative structure, the emphasis is still on supporting the classroom, Roberts said.

"You need to have the right support mechanisms in place for any organization to function," he said. That includes items such as transportation, food service, administration of grants, evaluation of programs and personnel. For example, "If you don't get the students to school on time, that hurts education.

"Those things, hopefully, are seamless but don't make it to the eye of the public very often because they're focused on what's happening in the classroom."

Roberts serves as the "chief executive officer" of the district, working with the board of education to establish and carry out goals and policies. His top administrators are divided roughly into areas of "operations" and "instruction."

Deputy Superintendent Dave Reschke falls primarily into the operations category, giving oversight to people

(Note: Figures represent a 2 percent increase for teachers and administrators. In addition, "Step 16" teachers received a one-time additional payment of $1,500. Building and district administrators were eligible for a "performance incentive" of up to 3 percent of their salary if they achieved specific job goals in 2002-2003.)

How do salaries compare?

Part of the presentation of the new Clarkston school budget included the belief that salaries for teachers and administrators are below the average for Oakland County districts.

Bruce Beamer, executive director for business and financial services, quoted a consumer price index of 2.9 percent, but most employee groups were given only a 2 percent pay hike for 2003-2004 (in addition to some "performance incentives" for administrators and a one-time lump sum payment to the top class of teachers).

For the new budget year, teacher salaries range from $34,320 to $79,107, depending on the teacher's education and years of service.

Using figures for the 2001-2002 school year, the American Federation of Teachers has reported the average salary for a beginning teacher in Michigan at $32,649, with the average teacher in the state earning $52,497 (second highest in the nation).

The state-contracted School Evaluation Services from Standard & Poors shows a 2002 average teacher salary in Michigan at $49,379. The average listed for Clarkston teachers was $49,705.

By comparison, Standard and Poors showed a 2002 average of $48,013 for teachers in the Brandon School District, $56,939 in Lake Orion and $52,504 in Waterford.

such as Bruce Beamer, executive director for business and financial services; Linda Nester, executive director for personnel and auxiliary services; and Matt McCarty, executive director for technology services, in addition to handling oversight of special education.

Reschke's role also includes "anything I can't get my hands on in a given day," Roberts said, and he is a "major advisor" on budget and policy decisions. All that is in addition to being clearly "in charge" if Roberts is unavailable.

Nester's administrative umbrella also includes oversight of the district transportation system, Roberts said.

Roberts works directly with John Diliegghio, executive director for middle and high school education; and Geri Moore, executive director for elementary education; to guide building administrators in cooperative efforts for curriculum and instruction.

One of the primary tasks for Diliegghio and Moore, Roberts said, is to ensure that all students have "the same opportunities" for quality education.

"If we didn't have standard policies clearly defined, Roberts said he and others are regularly involved in community activities not required by their job descriptions. In addition, he believes there is a spirit of teamwork transcending the formal duties.

"We really do rely on one another as a team to assist with the 'hot spots,'" he said. "We make up for our lack of numbers in our ability to work with one another."

In addition to growth in the district (and Roberts believes there has been relatively little increase in the number of administrators), central office responsibilities have increased because of government regulations and the expanding role of schools in dealing with problems in the lives of students.

"The more regulations they thrust upon us, you're going to see those [administrative directories] getting thicker," he said. "The decisions that need to be made in those reporting instruments we receive can't be relegated to a clerk."

Roberts said he supports the concept of accountability, but not the way the state and federal governments are trying to Wed., July 9, 2003 The Clarkston (All) Acus J A

With the increasing emphasis on technology in both business and classroom applications, the district believes in the need for at least one full-time person in that role.

"I think every district has one," Banach said. "We're one of the only districts that doesn't have two people [as technology administrators].'

Although officials defend the use of Oakland County districts for comparison, Roberts said there is a concerted effort to meet Clarkston needs.

Roberts understands it is natural to be critical of top management, but he does not believe the number of administrative positions is a bone of contention within the community.

Dealing with telemarketers

At the risk of piling on let me just say telemarketers are the most annoying individuals in the world. Which says a lot since there are a lot of annoying people out there.

Their calls during dinner or while I am on the Internet have grown very tiring. And most get a little testy when you are not buying into what they are selling. While some may say they are trying to make an honest living, I say if you interrupt my dinner then all bets are off.

The national do not call list, has been all the rage. In case, you have not heard, the federal government is allowing residents to register on a list which would prevent most telemarketers from calling their phone lines. Some notable exceptions are charities and companies you have recently purchased goods from. At last check 17 million people have signed up on the list.

While you can currently sign up by going to the website www.donotcall.gov or calling (888) 382-1222 the program will not start until Oct. 1. So have a good summer everybody.

While the list is a great call (pun intended), I found an alternative solution to slow down telemarketers a number of years ago. My idea was simple, make the callers feel as awkward as possible.

I thought what better time to share my knowledge with my loyal three readers than when the topic is being talked about. So with that in mind let me share some options with you.

• Tell the telemarketer you are busy but would love to hear what they have to say if they would only give you their home phone number where you will call them later that night. When they decline, ask if they would rather not be bothered at home. When they say yes, reply "neither do I" and hang up.

• After answering the phone continuously say, "I am sorry, I can't hear really well, could you please repeat yourself a little louder?" After growing annoyed at yelling into the phone, the telemarketer eventually hangs up in frustration.

• Repeatedly ask them, "Who let the dogs out?" until they eventually realize being on the phone with you is not worth their time.

"By the dawn's early light..."

Well, it wasn't that early, but you had to get up relatively early to reserve a good spot on Main Street to watch Clarkston's Indepen-Reporter dence Day parade. With all due respect to the pa-At Large rade participants (who put on a fine march), it's almost more fun to watch the people in the crowd on such a festive occasion. Stars and stripes...red, white and blue...flags waving...it was great.

The rookie still doesn't know all the ins and outs of the parade organization, but if there were prizes there has to be a new category: best effort to cool down a crowd on a hot day. If there were any major objections to waters hoses and super squirt guns, we didn't hear them. (Had to be careful of the camera, though...)

Wonder how much free ice cream was given out? Hope there's a good business write-off for the generous folks who provided that service.

It was good to see respect for the American flag and the national anthem, but it's apparent that a lot of guys never learned the etiquette of removing their hat for the salute to the flag. Perhaps our friendly veterans organizations will help promote that more next year.

Those in the parade itself may have been caught a bit off guard with the road construction on Waldon; hope there weren't too many trips and bumps along the way.

marching band is always a personal favorite. Anybody who doesn't appreciate the physical ability to coordinate left and right feet, while marching in a straight line, while remembering where they are in the music, while trying not to pass out from the heat, etc., should try it just once.

It seems to be a challenge to most small towns in getting more music in parades. Have we offered invitations to marching bands from neighboring communities? Just wondering. Credit to the small church band in the pickup truck, by the way. That was a welcome addition.

A more enterprising investigative reporter would probably care enough to find out, but did the guys from the Clarkston Union pull a permit from the health department to serve all that fresh fruit with a chainsaw?

The parade was only half the fun, of course. Clintonwood Park was the place to be for the afternoon (except for that brief time when the sky was falling; my clothes are still drying out).

Let's hear it for all the people who worked so hard at serving up the fun! The energy of the young parks and recreation workers was matched only by the energy of the senior citizens at the food tent. The kids, again, provided much of the entertainment for some of us older folks.

There was a lot of action in the arts and crafts area. Lots of creativity, skill and even humor.

One booth displayed a sign: "Everything in this booth was made in White Lake, not China."

Fireworks fans, of course, were not disappointed, and it all came together for a great way to celebrate our nation's birthday. Unfortunately, we have to wonder how many people really thought about that throughout the day, but at least we count our blessings knowing we have the freedom to have that kind of party!

Faded

· Say you are giving them three chances to say your name correctly. When they use up their three guesses, say you are sorry and hang up.

I have gotten Carl Carcaro, Lyle Gargero and Kyle Garg in telemarketing attempts to ask for Kyle Gargaro. I mean Kyle Garg just shows you are not even trying.

• The only really productive way to end the calls is for people to stop purchasing items from telemarketers. If they were not making money by placing these phone calls then obviously they wouldn't be subsidizing them.

So those are just a few simple solutions. Sure it is easier just hanging up, while some might feel better if they yell, but I find the most amusement by creating awkward situations for the telemarketers.

It was another eighty degree day and the swimming pool was very popular with the little ones, which kept me watching to make sure someone was life-guarding.

Grandson Dan had my permission to dig holes for horseshoe pitching in my yard. I think I saw someone pitching once. At the time I gave the nod I figured it would grow back. I haven't totally convinced myself yet.

The big game in Dan's life now is Frisbee golf. In case you don't know what it is, chains hang from a circular lid and when a thrown Frisbee hits the chains it falls into a saucer-type bottom.

It's as exciting to watch as horseshoe pitching. Then there was beanbag throwing. The idea is to have the bag go through a hole in a slanted piece of plywood. Few succeeded. Watching that drove me to drink. Of course, there had to be a setup for volleyball. This also required holes in my lawn. That too, will heal, I guess. Now, then, if I have presented this gala as I intended, you will see that it was excessive. When seldom seen cousins meet, they do not immediately pitch horseshoes. They pitch something else. During this graduation Open House season the graduate's peers are either having their own parties, or spending a little time at each, timed so that when the last one ends they will have time to get to a concert at some outdoor theater. Thus the games for the late-teenagers are a totally unnecessary and a lawn-damaging extravagance. Understand this is only my opinion, which will be ignored in three years when the next grandchild, Karen, is expected to graduate. However, in her case, it may be four years.

15 YEARS AGO (1988)

• Building in Independence Township was strong in the first half of the year but there were fewer new home permits than during the first six months of 1987. So far in 1988, 264 permits were issued, compared with 275 for the first six months of 1987. Permits were issued for swimming pools, garages, decks, additions, new houses and new condominiums. "Overall, permit totals show us neck and neck (with 1987)," said Beverly McElmeel, director of the township building department.

 With the motion already defeated, village council Trustee William Basinger voted with ease against a two-spot $6,000 parking bay for downtown Clarkston. "I wavered a lot during the past two weeks but since my vote won't matter anyway, I vote no," he said. President Sharron Catallo's motion to approve the expenditure for the parking spots was defeated by a 4-2 margin. Trustee Eric Haven was the other council member to vote with the president.

· Every summer, skateboards are out in force in downtown Clarkston. Every summer, pedestrians complain to village council members about the hazards the sidewalk surfers create. Due to complaints the village council voted 6-0 to adopt a traffic order July 11 that bans riding skateboards on the sidewalks adjacent to Main Street in the village.

25 YEARS AGO (1978)

• Rev. Robert Walters was named Clarkston School Board president Monday night in a quick, unanimous action by the board. Walters, former vice president of the board, succeeds David K. Leak, who had headed the panel since 1973. Leak retired from the board this year after serving three terms. Walters, pastor of Calvary Lutheran Church, is beginning the second year of his second four-year term on the board.

 The Clarkston Village Council ordered three new "no truck" signs to be posted on Holcomb Street at the northern village boundary, the east end of Miller Road and at the Holcomb-Washington intersection. The village was ordered to remove signs banning trucks weighing more than 5,000 pounds on May 11 by 52nd District Court Judge Gerald McNally.

• An Independence Township Fire Department equipment carrier was stolen from the scene of an accident on the corner of Waldon and Sashabaw Roads last week. It was found two days later east of Rochester in Macomb County, according to Township Supervisor Floyd (Whitey) Towers. A motorcyclist from the Rochester area found the truck in a field on July 6 and called the fire department.

• The voters in the Clarkston Community Schools District are reminded the Annual School Election will take place at the Village Hall on Monday, July 13. The polls will be open between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. So far the only announced candidate for the school board is Jack Murton who is seeking re-election.

• One evening last week about 75 relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Goulet on Baldwin Road to help them celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary.

• Last Saturday was an ideal day in Clarkston, even to the weather. The air was cool and invigorating and the happy crowd which gathered to celebrate the fact they lived in America as free people were glad that the village had firefighters civic-minded enough to sponsor such a program.

State-of-the-art PDA for Clarkston Police

BY JENNIFER NEMER

Clarkston News Staff Writer

With the commendable action of a Clarkston police officer, the department is the first in Oakland County to implement state-of-the-art equipment for officers not using patrol cars.

Officer Alan Kitzens, with money out of his own pocket, has purchased a handheld Compaq Ipaq Personal Digital Assistant (PDA) that runs with CLEMIS, Courts and Law Enforcement Information Management Systems, to use on patrol with a motorcycle, a vehicle Kitzens also funds himself.

The software for the PDA currently has access to LEIN (Law Enforcement Information Network), Secretary of State information, and a messaging system for communication with other police officers.

Phase two of the software will include dispatch capabilities. It is unknown when phase two will be implemented.

The PDA allows an officer -- whether on a motorcycle, on foot, boat, etc. -- to have the same capabilities as one would have with the computer in a patrol car.

The Oakland County Sheriff's Department is currently testing the PDA equipment. "That's why we were able to program and use the software," Kitzens said. Oakland County is using Clarkston as the "poster child" of the program.

Without a PDA, an officer uses their radio to access information during a traffic stop.

"If you are on the LEIN channel it takes you out of the loop from the main channel," Kitzens said. "On that aspect, it's somewhat of a safety concern."

Let's say, Kitzens had a citizen pulled over on Main Street and was checking the driver's information on the radio. He has to remain on the channel until the information sought is received.

"A (police) chase could be coming through town and I wouldn't know about it." In fact, in the early 1970's, Henry Wolf, an Oak Park officer was killed in that manner.

Kitzens said the PDA is proving itself useful already for the Clarkston police.

On its first day on the job, Kitzens used the PDA within three hours.

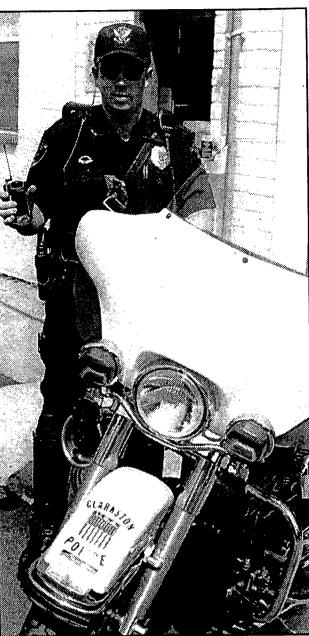

"It aided in finding an improper plated vehicle that should not have been on the road.'

"It's cutting edge," Kitzens said, of the PDA technology. "We've made it into the 21st century even with

Clarkston police crack down on drunk drivers

Department participates in "You Drink & Drive, You Lose," program

BY KYLE GARGARO Clarkston News Editor

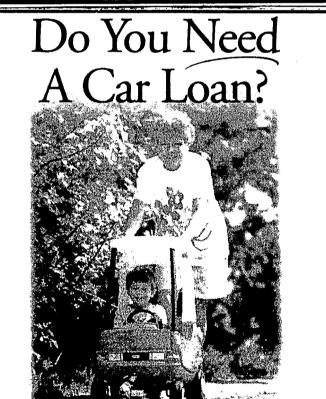

The Clarkston Police Department is joining law enforcement agencies in Michigan in attempting to crack down on drunk drivers.

During the national "You Drink & Drive, You Lose," program, between June 27 and July 13, Clarkston officers will be out in full force for two nights Combs said.

Law enforcement officials will be receiving help by five truck companies participating as "Night Owls." The truckers will help identify possible drunk drivers, increasing the odds that those driving drunk or impaired will be stopped and arrested.

Truckers from the "Night Owl" companies travel an average of four million miles in the state each month. Many operate at night and have first-hand experience with drunk drivers.

Nearly 35 percent of all traffic fatalities in Michigan involve alcohol or drugs. Studies by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration show that motorists are more likely to drive sober when patrols are combined with highly visible public awareness efforts.

Vandalism concerns Springfield Twp. couple

BY JENNIFER NEMER

Clarkston News Staff Writer

One local couple is frustrated about the consistent vandalism of their Springfield Township property, and are not going to sit back and accept it. They're speaking out.

When Pam and Rob Aughe were looking to relocate to Michigan from Philadelphia because of Rob's job, they looked at places like Rochester Hills and Lake Orion, but were most impressed with the Clarkston area. its schools and sense of community.

"We just loved this house and neighborhood and community," Pam said. The Aughes, who have two children, live in a subdivision off Bridge Lake Road.

After relocating last April, they quickly became involved in local happenings -- attending special events, joining organizations like the Clarkston Women's Club and the Mom's Club of Clarkston, and enrolling their eldest son in Funshine early elementary. Getting involved helped the family meet new people.

"I like to be involved in different things in the community. I think it is important to be involved in the community and give back," Pam said.

Unfortunately, in the past year they've seen a side of the community they didn't expect and are quite unhappy about.

'It all started last summer when we woke up to find someone had thrown toilet paper rolls at our home and decorated our trees," Pam remembers. "We figured it was just kids and let it go."

But on a different date, the Aughes had parked a car for sale on the street in front of their house. It was shortly egged. And then, someone placed a sign on the vehicle telling the Aughes to move their car.

"I respect someone's opinion," Rob said. "But come to my door and tell me face-to-face to move my car. There are no signs that say I can't park on the street."

Most recently, someone drove, what appears to be golf carts, on to their lawn, leaving tread marks.

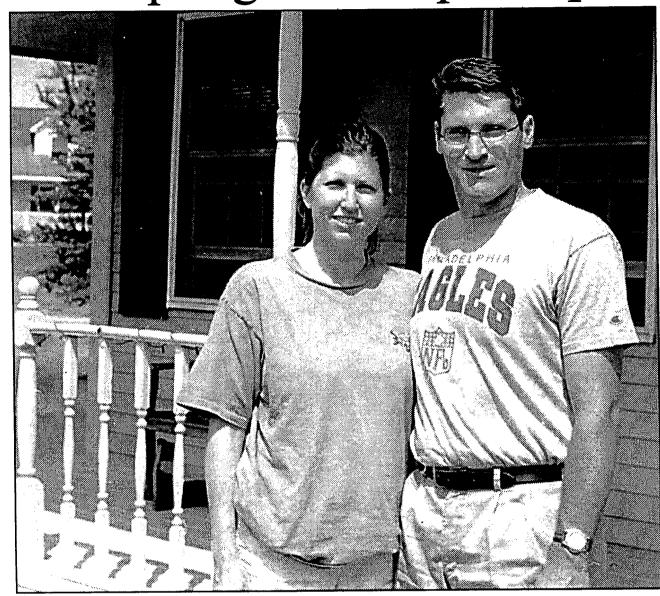

"We see kids travelling around on these golf carts, so we assumed that's what happened. But that set me over the edge. That was the last straw for me," Pam said, who has also found beer bottles trashed in the yard and too often sees a driver disregarding the speed limit Rob and Pam feel it may be harmless pranks by local teenagers but find it disrespectful and unacceptable behavior.

"It may seem like simple and petty stuff, but if you think you can get away with one thing, and then another, when does it end?" Rob said. "Is this (vandalism) the norm here? I'm not comfortable with that."

The Aughes did not file police reports for any of the incidences. Rob said he felt it pointless to do so. "(The police) will just write it down and place it in a file. That doesn't do it for me."

Sgt. Frank Schipani of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department in Springfield Township said when crimes of this sort are known, police patrol can be stepped up.

"They need to report these things because we can't have extra patrol if we don't know about it."

Schipani said any information can help in locating a suspect, such as information on a suspect vehicle. "We need to have an idea of what we're looking for," he said. "I wish people wouldn't be so reluctant to call us. All crimes need to be reported even if you don't have a suspect. We need to know so we can give extra attention to it."

Schipani said in the last couple of weeks there has been an increase in vandalism. "They come in spurts."

He said a large percentage of the crimes are done by juveniles. "Either they are grudges or a group of kids on sprees. If it's not revenge it's an entertainment thing. Typically, they are short-lived (crimes) or they (the responsibles) lose interest."

Rob said, "We're an easy target because we're on a corner property." The Aughes say they don't take the vandalism personally.

The couple are curious to what will happen next to their home. Do they need to be concerned with the safety of their children, pets and visitors to the home, they wonder?

Mostly, the Aughes want the parents in their subdivision to be aware of the potentially dangerous behavior of their children.

"If my kid did this," Rob said. "It wouldn't happen again.'

And they hope speaking out opens up the lines of communication within their neighborhood, which they feel is suffering.

about each other and watch out for each other," Pam said.

"The problem is we moved from a very friendly neighborhood in Philadelphia," Rob said, who was born and raised there.

The vandalism hasn't gotten to the point where they Aughes would consider moving. "There's an awful lot of good in this community," both feel.

But they are hoping to see an end to the vandalism. "It's uneasy," Pam said. "Especially if he's (Rob) travelling for work. I'm in the middle of the country. I should feel comfortable in my home."

SCAMP to say thanks to founders

BY JENNIFER NEMER Clarkston News Staff Writer

After years of service to special education, a dedicated couple are receiving their due recognition.

Clarkston SCAMP, a summer camp for those with special needs, will "celebrate the legacy" of Jack and the late Alice Hunt, Thursday, July 17, at noon, at Clarkston Middle School where the five-week long camp began June 23 and runs through July 24.

The council of the City of the Village of Clarkston, in appreciation, even adopted a resolution at their June 23 meeting that July 17 be recognized as Jack and Alice Hunt Day for their contributions to SCAMP.

But let's take a look back at how it all began.

Living in southern Indiana, Alice and Jack met in high school. Alice's dad was also the local dentist. She would often be in the office, while her father worked. And every time Jack had to go to the dentist, he kept his eye on her.

Jack and Alice soon began a friendship that would last a lifetime.

When Alice, who was two years younger then Jack, graduated from high school, she struggled to find a job.

Her Uncle Ernie came to Pontiac in 1924 after losing the store he owned from a depleting economy during World War I. She followed and found herself a job at Kresge's, five and dime store, in downtown Pontiac.

Jack came to Michigan in October 1925. With an engineering degree, he was hired at the Fisher Body Plant for 90 cents an hour.

One day Jack went shopping for "better work clothes." He was walking down Saginaw Street in Pontiao when he ran into Uncle Ernie who said, "Did you know Alice is in town? This is a lonesome place for her. Go see her."

So, Jack went to visit her at the store. "When she seen me she came out from behind the counter with her arms open. That was our first hug and kiss."

Before he left the store, he asked her to have an ice cream soda with him after she got off work. She agreed.

The two dated 14 months and were married August 7, 1927. The Hunts had two children, Anne, born in 1929, and James, nicknamed "Bud," born in 1934. (They also have four grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.)

In 1962, the Hunts were personally touched by someone with special needs. Their grandson, Bud and his wife Luella Bell's son, Mark Jerome Hunt, was born with mental and physical impairments. This

And so, as they were in marriage, they became in their support of the special needs community: "a team."

In the 1950's and 1960's facilities and programs for the handicap were nonexistent. Many with impairments were put into institutions.

Jack and Alice wanted this to change. They wanted to "improve the abilities and cial education programs in the public school system in 1972.

In 1976, Jack and Alice had $1,200 given from the ARC Waterford Township chapter, where Bud was president. The Hunts, with the help of other concerned individuals in the community, used the money to fund the first SCAMP program, which sought to provide recreational activities and

Wint Nature Center helps residents learn about West Nile

BY KYLE GARGARO

Clarkston News Editor With the West Nile Virus being a concern this summer, Oakland County Parks are set to have an educational program at Wint Nature Center at Independence Oaks County Park.

The program, entitled "Mosquito Smart," is set for Saturday, July 12 from 10:30 a.m. to noon.

"We wanted to be proactive and make sure people have all the information they need," Parks naturalist Kathleen Dougherty said. "We wanted to take an active role."

Dougherty believes the program will be fun, entertaining and easily understood. The Oakland County Health Department will help with the program.

"You can protect yourself from the West Nile Virus and still enjoy the outdoors," Dougherty said. "We will talk about items such as getting rid of standing water, cleaning your gutters and bird baths."

There will also be a puppet show for the children in the crowd. The show will teach the ecological role of the mosquito, plus participants will learn the three R's of West Nile Virus which are reduce, repel and report.

"We are trying to make it an informal educational program. When we are doing any program we want to make sure kids will enjoy it as well," Dougherty said.

Additional information about the West Nile Virus can be found at the Oakland County website at www.co.oakland.mi.us/health or by calling (877) 377-3641. Independence Oaks County Park is on Sashabaw Road, 2.5 miles north of I-75 in Clarkston.

The cost of the program is $1 per person and you can pre-register by calling (248) 625-6473. The program is not appropriate for pre-school age children.

Religion

Built on Christian principles

America's Founding Fathers believed.

The Declaration of Independence (1776) states, "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal. That they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

The Supreme Court in 1882 wrote, "Our laws and our institutions must necessarily be based upon the teachings of the Redeemer of Mankind. It is impossible that it should be otherwise; and in this sense and to this extent, our civilization and our institutions are emphatically Christian."

Guest Columnist Norman Clothier

America's Founding Fathers believed that a widespread faith in God was the true source of America's greatness. They would see today's war against Christianity by our government, our educational institutions and through our popular culture as a grave threat to the survival of America as a free nation.

George Washington proclaimed in October 1789, "It is the duty of all nations to acknowledge the Providence of Almighty God, to obey His will, to be grateful for His benefits and to humbly implore His protection and favor." Washington served as the chaplain He has spent his life involved in youth ministry.

Patrick Henry stated, "This is all the inheritance I give to my dear family. The religion of Christ will give them one which will make them rich indeed."

John Adams in 1756 wrote, "Suppose a nation in some distant region should take the Bible for their only Law Book, and every member should regulate his conduct by the precepts there exhibited, what a paradise would this region be."

In 1962, the Supreme Court of the United States prohibited the reciting of a simple nondenominational prayer in the public schools. In 1963 the Court banned Bible teaching in the public schools. In 1980 the Court ordered public schools to remove the Ten Commandments from student view.

Since then, teen suicide is up 450 percent, illegal drug use is up 6,000 percent, child abuse is up 2,300 percent, SAT scores are down 10 percent, criminal arrests of teens are up 150 percent, births to unmarried teen girls are up 500 percent, and divorce is up to 350 percent.

How long will our nation last with this rush to immorality? Greece, Rome and other nations went down because of immorality.

We sing "God Bless America." We need a great change in morals if our country is to survive. We were given a great start by our Founding Fathers.

Norman Clothier is a college professor in Pontiac.

Davisburg doctors need your help to feed hungry African children

Sisters Pascaline and Ambroisine of Sisters of Saint Mary, a school in Kikwit, Congo (Africa) need your help. They can no longer feed their students.

Pascaline and Ambroisine need $3,000 to feed at least 500 children for a period of eight months. Most of these children are orphans or their parents cannot feed them.

Because of the civil war in Africa, the country is paralyzed, causing people to suffer tremendously. These people are not in the world's agenda and are completely excluded by the world. But Jesus has not forgotten them. He is helping them through YOU.

Thanks for your generosity, in Jesus name, Sister Pascaline and Sister Ambroisine

Marine spends July 4 in hometown of Clarkston

BY KYLE GARGARO

Clarkston News Editor

Ben O'Rourke had a special reason to enjoy Clarkston's celebration of Independence Day last weekend. The 1990 graduate of Clarkston High School was home for a weekend visit on the heels of fighting in Operation Iraqi Freedom.

After spending six years of duty in the Marine Corps, and working in the corporate world in California, Orourke was called back into active duty in January of 2002.

"I was brought back for rapid response for the support of homeland security," 'O'Rourke said.

After a year of heavy training, the 1994 Notre Dame graduate was deployed to Kuwait on Feb. 1, 2003.

"I kind of expected it since early in the summer of 2002 I had a 99 percent chance of being deployed to Iraq. There was a mixture of excitement about being able to get called back for an important mission and apprehension to have my life uprooted," O'Rourke said.

O'Rourke is the Weapons Platoon Commander for G Co, 2nd Battalion, 23rd Marines, 1st Marine Regiment, 1st Marine Division.

In his first month in the Middle East, O'Rourke and his unit were responsible for providing security for Marine headquarters at Camp Commando.

On March 19, the unit made their way towards the Iraq border.

We spent the day hitting the deck as SCUDS were fired. We had our chemical suits and gas masks," O'Rourke said. "When you hear the explosions you realize this is for real and not training. Luckily none hit our area. That night we loaded the trucks and took off towards al-Nasiriyah."

O'Rourke and his unit were responsible for pushing through straight north up route seven. During their push, the group encountered various resistance.

"Our job was to make sure it looked liked we were the entire division," O'Rourke said. "We were responsible for securing the towns."

The unit finally arrived in Fajr where they rested for five days. They raided Baath Party headquarters and captured a large amount of weapons.

The unit moved across the Tigris River and moved on to Baghdad. They arrived in Baghdad on April 18.

"We went further into Baghdad than any other unit. We took the Republican Guard compound and secured it for the night. It culminated in securing the United Nations headquarters," O'Rourke said.

After their action in Baghdad, the unit moved on to Tikrit where the war ended.

"We met some resistance in Tikrit which is Saddam's hometown. There was a fire fight but we were able to secure Saddam's Palaces," O'Rourke said. "It was a pretty impressive place. It was a subdivision of about 40 palaces."

After his job was done, O'Rourke was headed back maintenance academic work to multiple impaired children and young adults. Seventy-five students attended. At this time, Jack and Alice went to Lansing to see SCAMP become a nonprofit organization. Since, SCAMP has flourished. Last year, 354 students attended the camp.

"They had a vision of what could be and made it happen," Donna Clancy, SCAMP director, said. "And now Jack is working diligently to assure SCAMP will go on forever."

"Jack Hunt has been involved in every single fundraiser since day one. If he's not on a committee, he's at an event as support."

Specifically, he was instrumental in recruiting the Civitans to serve refreshments annually at the Walk & Roll; seeing the Knights of Columbus from various communities donate a portion of their Tootsie Roll sales to SCAMP; implemented the Home Tour; and much more.

Of the Hunts, Clancy said, 'He was the backbone. He's very personable and likes to got out and do all the talking. Alice's background was in special education. She did all the behindthe-scenes work. She was a quiet person, but strong and instrumental in the background."

The special July 17 event was the idea of a friend of Clancy's, who volunteered at this year's Home Tour, where she had a chance to talk and get to know Jack.

She suggested to Clancy, Jack should be honored for all he's done. Clancy took control and has made it happen. (Jack can't say enough good things about Clancy, and feels she is doing a tremendous job as director.)

Pat Brumback, former director of Student Support Services for Clarkston Community Schools, will return to Clarkston to emcee the event. "She and Jack go back to the very beginning," Clancy said.

Many will be in attendance for the affair, including the Hunt family from North Carolina and Grand Rapids, past SCAMP directors and board members, old time friends, and many others.

Jack, who will even be sporting a brand new suit, featuring the SCAMP logo, the SCAMP board purchased as a gift for the event, is pleased to be part of this event, mainly for Alice's sake. Alice passed away in 1990 from cancer after "64 years, four months and four days of marriage."

Jack, who'll turn 96 on Christmas Day and is "going for 120," said, "Alice never got a thank you. She was never recognized. This is my opportunity to highlight Alice. She did her share. I couldn't do it all by myself. Everything I did, as long she lived, Alice had her hand in. This is a great opportunity to say thank you to Alice."

to California where he was welcomed back by his parents.

O'Rourke was not surprised the war went so fast.

"All the calculations we saw said the majority of the Iraqi soldiers did not want to fight. We were very concerned about chemical weapons but there was a vigorous campaign to convince the people on the ground not to do it. The way I looked at it was it could go really fast or get really bad."

O'Rourke survived on four to six hours a sleep a night and one meal a day when he was in Iraq. However, the experience of liberating the Iraqi people is something he will never forget.

"It was pretty incredible. As we were driving down the road people we running and yelling, 'Good, Good, USA,' and 'Yes, Bush, no Saddam.' A teacher came up to me and said that he wanted Iraq to become the 51st state," O'Rourke said.

The Clarkston native tells a story about an old man from the village saying he wanted to join the Marines on their way to Baghdad so he could slit the throat of Saddam and drink his blood out of a glass in retribution for Hussein killing members of his family.

The biggest sense of satisfaction O'Rourke received was by getting all 66 members of his unit to return to the United States safely. O'Rourke said that was the biggest challenge and number one goal as the unit went through training.

O'Rourke had another important message for the citizens of the United States.

"It is very important that we don't forget the people still over there who are still at risk," O'Rourke said. "We also must remember that some families of loved ones are not having the welcome home celebration that I did because their loved one was lost in the war. We need to remember them during all this."
