Wagner raises questions after audit

BY KYLE GARGARO
Clarkston News Editor

The annual audit of Independence Township has raised questions about the township's internal control structure and Trustee Dave Wagner is looking for answers.

At the heart of the issue is a lack of bank reconciliations and quarterly adjustments throughout the past year. The lack of timely procedures created more work from auditor Plante & Moran PLLC and could cost the township as much as $32,000.

"For approximately one year there are no journal entries made," Wagner said. "I can't imagine this not being done. Plante & Moran had to put extra people over and above the normal audit and that is going to cost the township."

Plante & Moran audit partner Joe Hefferman said while some other communities have this problem, it is new to Independence Township.

"This is a definite slip from the previous years," Hefferman said. "How serious it is is hard to tell. I really think they ought to be doing it (the updates). I talked with the finance director and am optimistic they will follow our advice in the next year."

Hefferman gave the township their report at a special meeting July 8. They identified the township as having a reportable condition which is "significant deficiencies in the design or operation of the internal control structure that have come to our attention and, in our judgment, could adversely affect the township's ability to record, process, summarize and report financial statement."

Wagner, who is running for supervisor against incumbent Dale Stuart, blames Stuart for a lack of leadership.

"The supervisor is in charge of the budget. The bank accounts are not getting reconciled, there are no journal entries and he has no idea what is going on. If we don't get this fixed it could make the $32,000 look small," Wagner said. "That is what ticks me off about him. He has no leadership skills and no teamwork skills. He does not keep on top of anything. It is pathetic."

Stuart agreed the records necessary for the audit were not done in a timely manner. However, he disagrees with the contention he should have caught the error at the outset.

"It is the responsibility of the finance director Sue Hendricks and she is the best we have had. She is smart and competent but she let some things slip," Stuart said. "It happened and the only thing you can do is take steps to make sure it won't happen again. The finance director reports to the clerk and the clerk is responsible."

Stuart said the mistake will cost the township, which is unfortunate, but will not have a long term effect.

Wagner also accused the supervisor of waiting to schedule the annual Plante & Moran presentation to the regular board meeting to Aug. 4, one day after the primary election.

"Everything is ready to be presented. Everything is finished. This should go before the board at the July 20 meeting. It is obviously politically

Video catches robber in action

BY DON SCHELSKE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Oakland County Sheriff's investigators hope a surveillance video will lead to the apprehension of a man who robbed a Clarkston State Bank branch last week.

The incident took place at about 12:33 p.m. Friday, July 9 at the branch inside the Farmer Jack store at Dixie Highway and White Lake Road.

The suspect approached the teller's counter and said to the teller, "Give me all your money and you won't get hurt." While no weapon was displayed, a weapon was "implied" by the suspect's comment, reports said.

Demanding money in $20, $50 and $100 bills, the suspect placed the cash in a small, brown paper sack then left the store on foot. He escaped with approximately $4,000 cash, reports said.

The suspect was described as a white male in his mid-30s, about 5 feet, 9 inches tall with medium to stocky build, with short, dark hair, mustache and facial stubble. He was wearing a dark-colored "Harley" t-shirt, a University of Michigan baseball cap, full-framed sunglasses and white tennis shoes.

Deputies were unable to determine a direction of travel nor a vehicle used by the suspect to escape.

There was a second bank teller on duty at the time, reports said, but that person was not in a position to see the robbery, nor did Farmer Jack employees witness the incident. Sheriff units were assisted by the Michigan State Police in securing the area, and the FBI is assisting in the investigation.

Those with information about the suspect should call 1 (888) TURN-1-IN.

Waumegah Lake well request returns to circuit court

BY DON SCHELSKE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The fight for an augmentation well on Waumegah Lake continues on two fronts, both through an appeal to the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality and a lawsuit in Oakland County Circuit Court.

The double-strategy action by the Waumegah Lake Improvement Board came after an informal attempt to get Oakland County Circuit Judge Rudy Nichols to reverse an April 1 MDEQ letter denying the request for the well.

Charles Dunn, an attorney representing the lake board, said the latest MDEQ decision flies in the face of a 1997 ruling from Nichols establishing a legal lake level of 1,049.9 feet.

"It was our belief that, by not issuing the permit under the grounds we were increasing the lake size, that was contempt, because the judge had set the lake level," Dunn said.

That move was unsuccessful because the lake board was not technically a party to the original case, so the group decided to pursue the "contested case hearing process" through the MDEQ.

"The permit denial we have is not a final decision from the agency," Dunn said, and he believes the department's own written "guidance" on augmentation wells shows the denial as improper. "It's our belief they denied a permit we did not apply for."

Charles Dunn

Dunn described the lawsuit, to be heard by Circuit Judge Edward Sosnick, as a "parallel" move intended to expedite the process. The "complaint for declaratory relief" essentially asks the court to rule on the essential facts of the case, again with emphasis on the MDEQ's allegedly improper jurisdiction in the matter.

"That is a means to go into court so we don't have to wait around for the [MDEQ] appeal," Dunn said, noting the MDEQ process could take from three months to a year.

The state agency was expected to file briefs in reply to the lawsuit by early this week.

The lake, which straddles the Springfield-Independence township border, has been a topic of debate — and legal action — since 1996, when a retention dam failed.

Campaign Web sites increase, inform local voters on issues

BY ALICIA DORSET

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Looking to find more information about candidates running for township trustee? Curious about local issues? The answers to these questions can often be found by simply turning on a computer.

Internet Web sites are providing area residents with important information on candidates for this year's Aug. 3 primary election and Nov. 2 general election as a crucial tool to a successful campaign.

"An Internet presence can do so much for somebody," Luc Poirier, Slick and Bubba's Elite and Expeditious Websites co-owner, said. Slick and Bubba's is a company that builds and maintains Web sites.

Poirier believes this year's presidential election sparked the increase use of political Web sites all the way down to the local levels.

"It's a trend that this presidential campaign started," Poirier said. "(John) Edwards got the ball rolling on that."

In addition to background information on the candidates for a personal feel, many campaign Web sites display information on related experience and stances on important issues.

Slick and Bubba's maintains a Web site for Dave Wagner, a current Independence Township trustee who is running for supervisor.

"He (Dave) had specific issues he wanted to focus on with his platform," Poirier said of the candidate wishes for his Web site. "He wanted to tastefully set up a site so we weren't mudslinging."

Larry Kozma, a candidate running for a district judge position with the 52-2 court in Clarkston, used part of an existing Web site for his law firm to inform potential voters more about himself and his desire for the job.

"It's another avenue of information for voters to talk about my background and qualifications," Kozma said.

One of the benefits of an Internet presence is the quick response time for both candidate and resident.

"If someone wakes up at 3 a.m. and wants to know something, there's an Internet presence to Dave Wagner so that they don't have to wait until 9 a.m. the next day for a response," Poirier said.

Web sites allow residents to learn more about volunteering for a campaign or issue and to donate money to a specific cause.

"If I wanna give him (candidate) $50, boom, you're done," Poirier said.

With the ability to quickly add or modify information, Web sites can contain the latest news on an event or candidate appearance.

"You want to keep the lines of communication open and the Internet can do that," Poirier said. "That's the wonderful thing about the Web: it's so dynamic, you could change things at the drop of a hat."

Keeping voters informed is something district court judge candidate Kelley Kostin found valuable.

Kostin established a Web site for herself when she ran for the judge position in 2002. She noticed since then the use of the Internet for her law firm has exploded and has a campaign Web site currently online.

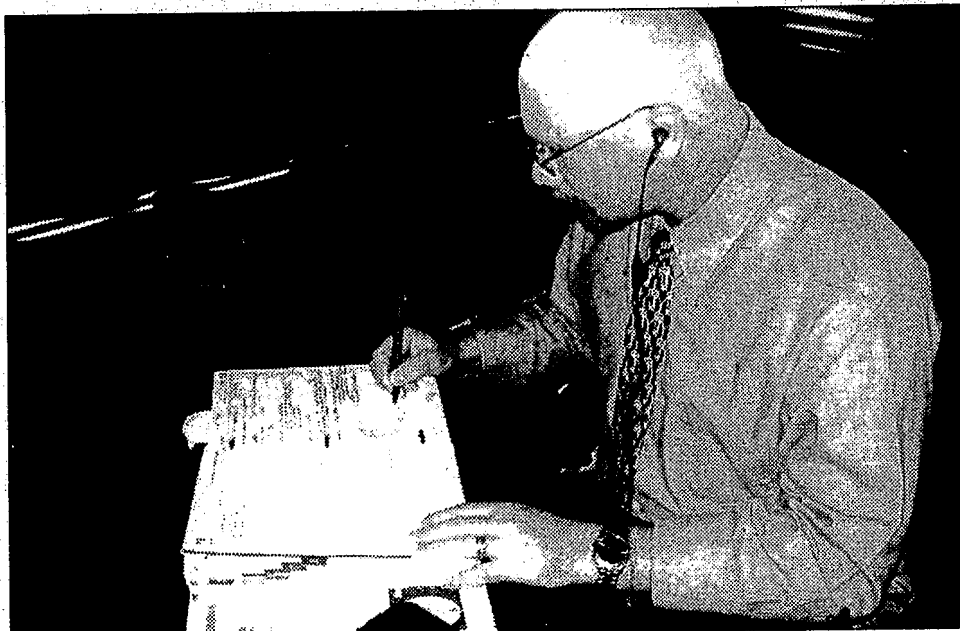

"I think people like to go on to utilize Web sites to find out more," Kostin said. "I thought it was important to get one up."

Maintaining a Web site requires a lot of time and attention to detail, according to Poirier. When originally designing Wagner's Web site, partner Brad Saeger started off by doing research on what made a successful political site. This is the company's first venture into campaign Web sites.

"It takes a good amount of time to get involved," Poirier said. "This is our (company's) way of helping get the right people in the right places for all of us."

Navigating the Internet to learn more about local officials is in reach for all residents, Poirier believes, no matter how much someone may know or not know about searching for information.

"The immediate area (Clarkston) is a progressive community and I believe the residents are Internet-savvy on some level," Poirier said. "I don't think it would draw any negatives."

Luc Poirier of Slick and Bubba's Elite and Expeditious Websites looks over important information for the company. Along with partner Brad Saeger, the company launched its first political Web site for township supervisor candidate Dave Wagner. Photo by Alicia Dorset.

Independence Township Supervisor Dale Stuart will soon launch his own campaign Web site as a way to give greater details on complex local issues. The site will have an e-mail component to hear public comments.

"There are a number of things for people who want more depth," Stuart said. "I could talk about more issues in detail."

For those interested in finding out more about this year's various elections and candidates, selecting a Web search engine, such as Google or Yahoo, and typing in the candidate's name can bring up related Internet sites.

"I think this is a period of enlightenment," Poirier said. "What could be wrong with that?"

Happy with his presence on the Internet for this year's election, Wagner was optimistic about his Web site and decision to start one.

"The Web site's the thing," Wagner said.

Bomier named to fill empty seat on school board

BY DON SCHELSKE

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Barry Bomier's experience as a past school board member was cited as the primary reason for his selection to fill a vacancy on the Clarkston Community Schools Board of Education.

The choice was made Monday, July 12 by the six other trustees after interviewing seven applicants for the seat formerly held by Tony Miller.

Miller, elected in 2003, resigned effective July 1. His resignation came too late to include that seat on last month's school election ballot, so the existing board was required to fill the vacancy.

Bomier will be sworn in at the July 26 meeting, and will serve until the 2005 school election (likely to be scheduled in May under new state election laws).

All seven hopefuls had submitted applications to the board, and the board conducted individual 10-minute interviews with each.

Trustees said all seven were qualified, but Trustee John Koval said Bomier's service on the school board from 1994 to 1996 was the deciding factor, even though he knew many of the applicants personally.

"I just had to remove the faces and go instead by the notes and resumes," Koval said.

Trustee Sheila Hughes agreed. "He brings some knowledge and experience that we need."

Trustee Ron Sullivan said that is an important consideration as the board prepares for a new school year and ongoing budget and construction issues.

"We can hit the ground a little bit quicker than with some of the other candidates," Sullivan said.

No other nominations were considered, although new Trustee Joan Patterson said she "struggled" with the decision, noting Jean Dasuqi's qualifications as an early childhood specialist.

Bomier had previously admitted to not attending many school board meetings in recent months, but said his concern and passion for local schools have never waned.

"When my term was up [in 1996], I felt very complete in my service at that time," he said, but issues such as school funding and the reconfiguration of grades 6 through 9 are new challenges. "I think it's going to challenge everyone's ability to come together and go forward."

Bomier previously earned "certified board member" status from the Michigan Association of School Boards, and said he would work hard to get up to speed on current issues and policies.

He also said he is "very comfortable" with the current district administration.

Bomier is program manager for military projects for Michelin and is involved in several community service activities. "It is my intention to restructure my time" to fulfill all the duties of a trustee, he said.

Other applicants included Jeffrey Allsteadt and Diane Weller, unsuccessful candidates in 2003 and 2004; Jean Dasuqi and Sherrill Kerby, who ran in 2003 but not 2004; and newcomers Robert Bice and Larry Stephens.

Citing a desire for "continuity" on the school board, Hughes asked Bomier if he would run for election next year.

Bomier, who was also an unsuccessful candidate in the June election, answered in the affirmative.

"I was able to retrieve 83 of my campaign signs," he said.

Local residents seek help to fight poverty in Congo

In the Democratic Republic of the Congo, a country of nearly 52 million people in the heart of Africa, people are dying from malnutrition and dozens of diseases related to unsanitary conditions. An ongoing civil war causes political and economic instability.

Despite these conditions, two local residents have taken the initiative to help two religious sisters feed the hungry and unfortunate school children in the region.

Since 2003, Drs. Anne-Marie and Joachim Kupe have helped the two religious sisters, Sister Ambrosine and Sister Pascaline of the congregation of the Sisters of Mary in Kwango, Congo, with the support of both Clarkston and Davisburg communities to feed the hungry indigents and orphaned school children.

Anne-Marie Kupe

"We have been trying to help people but they have no steady source of funds," Sr. Pascaline said, "I am so overwhelmed, I see all this misery: the unstable buildings made of hay and ready to collapse with any bad weather; the children sitting on tree trunks for class; and the need for medical care which, at this moment, is non-existent."

Three years ago, Drs. Anne-Marie and Joachim Kupe began helping the region through a program called Operation Soup Kitchen for the slums of Kinshasa, the capital of Congo.

"Operation Soup Kitchen is very important to us because we are able to show these people in need that they are loved and not forgotten," Anne-Marie Kupe said.

"You see sick and hungry children lying on the ground, in the dust of the roads with big bellies for they have not had food for days, many of them handicapped and orphaned. It is unbelievable, this poverty is shocking," she said.

Even a local volunteer is shocked, saying, "I really didn't realize that the suffering of these people has reached this point in this country, a country that used to be so rich in natural resources but has been exploited by political instability."

Miles away from Kinshasa, in the village of Kikwit, Sr. Pascaline wrote to Operation Soup Kitchen of the needs in her region.

"I don't know where to begin. I cannot sleep at night at the thought of the immense need. Please, tell people of good will to help us."

The Kupes have taken on the challenge of responding to her letter. The children and the two sisters are very touched to learn that Americans who don't even know them, are trying to rescue them.

On Saturday, July 17, St. Daniel Parish in Clarkston will host an informational breakfast to increase awareness of the situation in Africa. This family-friendly event will feature speaker Anne-Marie Kupe and will include information about the region, why the conditions have deteriorated and what can be done to help the situation.

Breakfast will be served at 9:30 a.m., with the presentation and questions from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. Voluntary donations will be gratefully accepted, and will directly benefit the children of Kikwit.

Over the past 20 years, the Kupes have helped international relief organizations provide humanitarian aid for Latin America, Asia, and Africa. Dr. Anne-Marie Kupe has a Ph.D. in Microbiology and a Masters in Nutritional Science. Of her work in this area, the 48-year old mother of five said, "I have been called to serve."

Police millage vote slated in Springfield

BY DON SCHELSKE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Springfield Township voters will be asked to renew one of two police protection millages in the Nov. 2 general election.

The township board on Thursday, July 8 accepted a recommendation from Supervisor Collin Walls to ask for a 10-year renewal of 0.7289 mill.

Officials believe the tax began as a 1-mill levy in 1974, and was renewed in 1994 at 0.7920 mill. Headlee Amendment-required rollbacks have reduced that levy to 0.7289.

In a memo to the board, Walls said the current tax levy should be sufficient to cover the cost of the current 10 contracted deputies from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

"The test we face for the police millage will come in the 2006 election, when we need to renew the millage expiring in 2007," Walls said.

The latter millage rate is currently at 1.3255 mills. Walls suggested the board eventually should discuss future police services.

"Depending on what happens with the economy and other things, we might want to increase [the second millage] so we could consider increasing our coverage beyond the current 10 contracts," Walls said.

A mill is $1 for every $1,000 of a property's "taxable value." If voters renew the 0.7289-mill levy, the cost to the owner of a house with a taxable value of $100,000 will be $72.89.

Although it's a year early, officials agreed it is best to have such questions on a general election ballot rather than schedule a special election.

"We have never scheduled a special election for these questions," Clerk Nancy Strole said.

Parent/child yoga class focuses on positives from within

BY ALICIA DORSET

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Sometimes the best way to improve features on the outside of your body is to look at what's happening on the inside.

With that philosophy in mind, Chris Weber leads both parent and child in a group yoga course through Springfield Township Parks and Recreation that not only improves health but self image as well.

"We're teaching kids from early on about positive body image and to listen to their bodies to relieve the stress of everyday," Weber said.

Weber, who runs Lavender Lotus Yoga Studio in Clarkston, guides parent and child through traditional yoga moves and positions modified for smaller bodies.

"Fire breathing" is a traditional yoga technique that Weber calls "bunny breathing" for child participants. In her class, which runs now through Aug. 25 in Davisburg, the relaxation portion of the workout is shorter than a traditional cool-down period to accommodate small children with shorter attention spans.

One of the benefits of yoga is a better understanding and appreciating of one's body, according to Weber. With that attitude, Weber's class teaches students, specifically young girls, to appreciate their bodies and who they are as individuals.

"Yoga gives kids, early on, ways to understand their bodies," Weber said. "It's about self-acceptance."

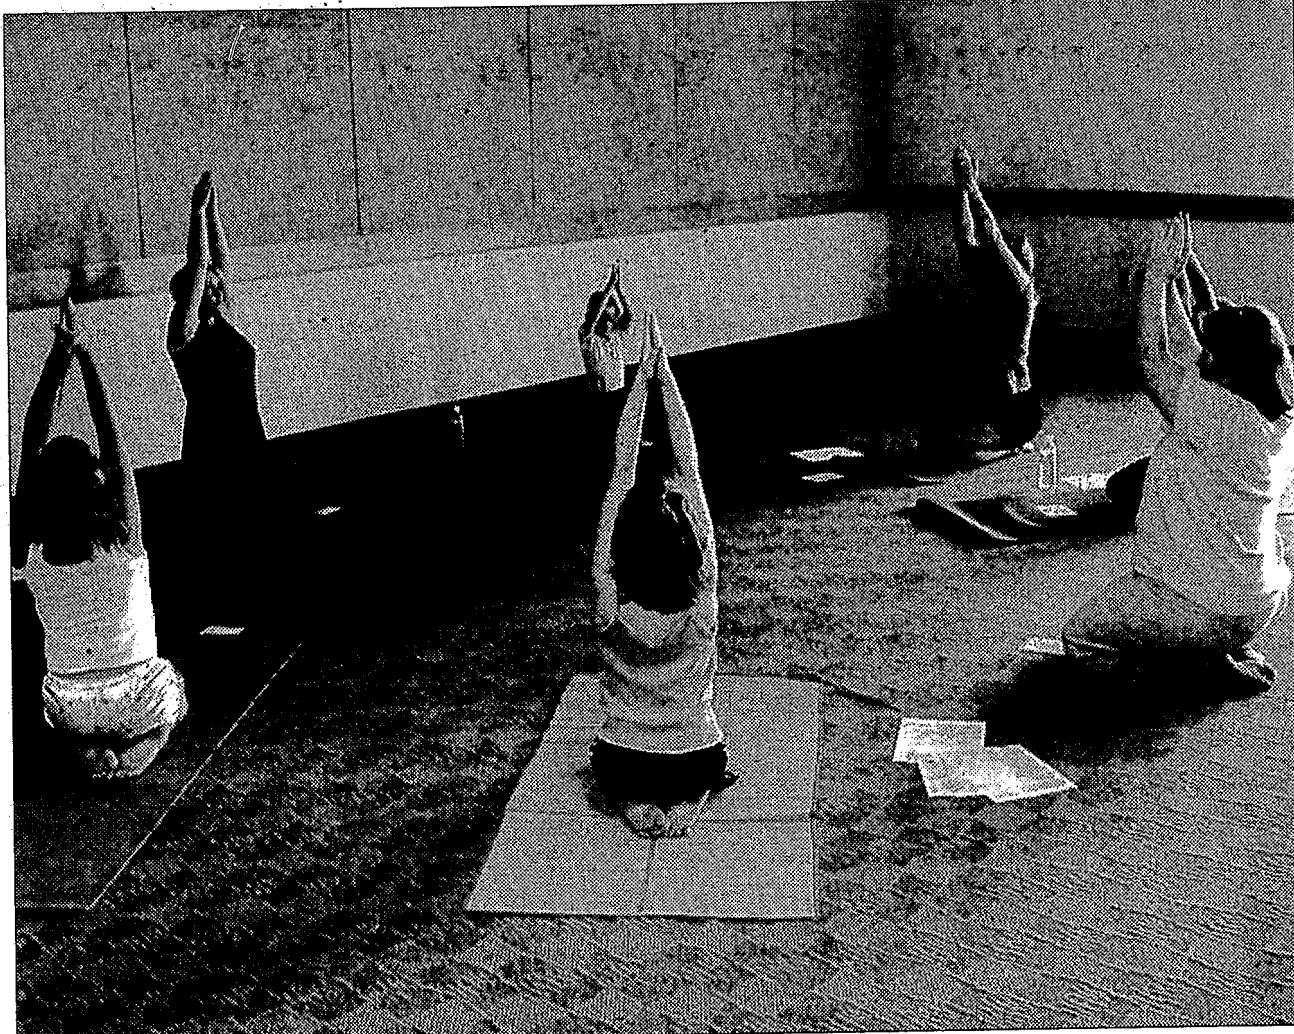

On the first day of Weber's class, with soft music playing and the lights off inside the Springfield Township library, participants took turns demonstrating a pose, such as "warrior", and then having classmates mimic it in return.

"Anybody can do yoga," Weber said.

Students learned how to successfully transition from one pose to the next and what each pose means to their workout.

"It's not about how far or deep we go with our poses, it's how comfortable we are," Weber told students.

Another benefit of the class is the ability for a child and parent to engage in an activity together. Weber found that often times a parent sits sideline to a child's activity, such as a soccer game, but a yoga class allows the two to have fun together.

"During summer break, this is something for stay-at-home moms," Weber said. "This is a great way to incorporate a physical activity and to get kids and parents to do something together."

At the end of a yoga session, students of all ages take away new ideas about themselves and a greater appreciation of what they already are.

"Everybody's the best at what they're doing in yoga class," Weber said. "That's my theory."

To find out more about parent and child yoga, call the Springfield Township Parks and Recreation office at (248) 634-0412.

Lynox Weber demonstrates the proper way to execute "down dog", a traditional yoga pose. Weber modified traditional poses for her younger students.

Just a few rules

Both on the national and local level the political season is beginning to hit a fever pitch.

Our opinion pages have been filled with local citizens pitching in their two cents about the upcoming primary election. I am not complaining, because I love it.

However, I thought this would be a great time to revisit our paper policy on Letters to the Editor. Our first request is for the writer to keep the letter as short as possible. This way we can run more letters and also keep readers' attention. We want to make sure you get your point across, but we also want you to get your point across just one time per letter.

The Clarkston News also only runs letters that are signed. It is easy to attack individuals and policies while not stating your name. Just this week I got a great letter to the editor from an individual who wanted to withhold his name. I thought this person had an interesting opinion and would have loved to see it in print but he was hesitant because he was not sure what the reaction from co-workers and friends would be.

We realize some individuals have reasons for not wanting to have their name linked to a specific opinion, but it is paper policy.

While I realize some of the political letters can get negative, I just want to make sure they are factual. If you include specific facts in your letter, do not be surprised if you receive a call from yours truly to find out where you got your information. Even though we are not the ones writing the letters we are still responsible.

So make sure you have your facts straight when you include them in a letter and please don't take offense when I question them. As a newspaper our number one goal is to be accurate so a source would be fantastic.

And don't worry if writing is not your best talent. All we ask is that you get your point across. We will edit for spelling, punctuation and clarity. The community does not need to know if you end sentences in prepositions.

And of course we have the liberty of printing, or not printing, any letters.

With that in mind keep sending us your letters. You can drop them or mail them to 5 S. Main Street, Clarkston, MI 48346; fax them at (248) 625-0706 or e-mail shermanpub@aol.com.

We try our hardest to get each letter we receive in that week, but you need to make sure the letter gets to us by noon on Monday to get that consideration.

A friendly reminder that all political letters to the editor speaking about the Aug. 3 primary needs to be received by July 19. We will not be running any letters concerning the primary in the July 28 issue.

We will however be having a special political section that week so that you can learn more about the candidates who are seeking your vote.

It is time for a change in Independence

Can you imagine this: 12 years ago Dale Stuart ran on "It's time for a change," "Let's end the conflict between the township and the schools, provide full disclosure to citizens, and when taxpayers say no to new projects, it means no."

There are so many more things that are too numerous to list. The conflict between the schools and the township board did nothing but escalate and it has been shown by the way they unabashedly talk about the school board at the township meetings. The business community has been virtually shut out by Stuart.

And as the seniors say, "he's been in office for 12 years and has not even been in the senior center 12 times." Isolation is what he stands for.

Just look at what he's done. He moved his office out of township hall. Do you think he has any idea about what the employees are doing? Absolutely not.

One of his biggest accomplishments is the fact that he increased our legal expenses by 200 percent, while taking $170,000 out of parks and recreation, which directly affects our kids.

One of the things that we are in dire need for is an additional soccer field, which he also talked about two years ago. Oh, by the way, that was turned down two years ago by voters along with the senior activity center.

Now with election year here, he promises the seniors that they will have a new center this year, but he has no way to pay for it. Although he did mention that he would take it out of the water fund and that parks and recreation would be responsible for paying it back at the tune of approximately $280,000 a year. And as I've said, the list goes on. Is this really the kind of leadership you want to continue in this township?

I would urge you to vote for David Wagner. He has proven that he can work for the schools and the business community. He's not one that makes promises in an election year just to get re-elected. He will work for you, 100 percent of the time. He is a team player.

Dr. James O'Neill

Wagner bent on negative campaigning

Well, it's starting.

After reading last week's letter to the editor in The Clarkston News from "Slick" defaming Dale Stuart, our township supervisor, and recently receiving candidate Dave Wagner's negative rhetoric aimed in the same direction, I personally feel compelled to offer some commentary of my own as we head into the local primaries.

I happened to talk with Stuart while petitioning trustees to block a rezoning attempt initiated by one of Wagner's staunch and published supporters. This special interest rezoning request was not only in violation of the township's master plan but ignored the overwhelming objections of the general neighborhood. Fortunately, for now, the request was turned down by the trustees and eventually Wagner, who remained mute during most of the meeting.

Through this stressful time in our West Waldon Road neighborhood area, Stuart was quite accessible and although objective in his remarks, did help us understand the rational behind the townships 2020 plan and area neighborhood density issues.

It seems clear that Stuart, Joan McCrary, Dan

Travis, Larry Rosso and others on the board remain concerned over the potential impact this particular type of special interest rezoning represents. Although these situations should be considered on a case-by-case basis, such high density rezoning in country, rural areas such as the case in point have the potential to turn our unique community into another Sterling Heights, Rochester or Troy, areas many of us moved away from to avoid such obvious over population.

Wagner seems bent on running a negative campaign which appears light on facts and heavy on criticism. As with most issues, including the Senior Center discussions, the facts are more intricate than a few campaign comments on a negative campaign brochure.

While Wagner offers his politically bent criticisms, it's apparent that the experience, actions and foresight of Stuart and most board members dictates otherwise and seems to have the best interests of the overall township at heart.

Let's keep Stuart as our "steward" for the future of Independence Township.

Do all children really count in Clarkston?

If "children count in Clarkston" as the Clarkston School Board states every time they want more money, where were they when the high school girls softball team, for the first time in school history, was playing in the semi-finals for the state championship in Battle Creek?

You would also think the athletic director for the high school would be there. Perhaps, if it were a boy's basketball or football team playing, he would have found time to be present.

Congratulations to the girls softball team and especially Kelly Robinson for her performance during the season and the playoffs. Without her pitching, they would not have been there.

Eliminate fireworks in own backyards

With the Fourth of July behind us, I would like to address the excessive use of fireworks in our own backyards.

City of Clarkston offers a free great fireworks display, as do other neighboring parks. They do it one night for one hour.

But fireworks night after night, for hours at a time is simply too much. Please respect and consider your neighbors. We all don't enjoy endless fireworks.

Change is a good thing, right?

I must be a very shallow man. Maybe I'm just thick in the noggin? Son Shamus has taken to calling me, "Dad." I'm not used to it and I am not sure how I feel about it.

Let me back up here a moment. The word "dad" is not a four-letter word, hence some would say it is not a bad word. As a matter of fact, "dad" is something I called my father all the time (except when I wrote about him, then it became Pops Rush). I like the word "dad." I have mucho-grande respect for "dads" of all colors, shapes and sizes. I love my dad. I am a "dad" -- I just have to learn to respond to it.

Dad.

It just doesn't sound right.

For nearly six years now, the Rush lads Shamus and Sean have conditioned me to move, sit, roll-over and beg to the word "poppy."

"Poppy, get me some more milk."

"Poppy, put up a swing set."

"Poppy, wipe my butt."

Ever the obedient pet, I am only too happy to comply with their commands. They have strong bones because they drink plenty of milk. They have a fun time in the back yard because their "mom" bought them a swing set that I their "dad" then put up. And, (for the record) they have clean bums. But, as an old dog can I learn new tricks? I guess technically I don't have to learn any new tricks, I just need to perform them when commanded to with a new name.

"Dad, can you get me a beer?"

I don't know if I'm up for this.

Poppy is a good name. I recognize it when Shamus and Sean (the children of the corn) call me poppy. When we're in a park with lots of kids and fathers and there are plenty of "dads" being shouted, I can hear the word "poppy."

When one of the boys call out "Poppy," I am on point, prepared for whatever may arise. Ready to jump into action. I imagine under my street clothes is a colorful tight-fitting, polyester body-suit with a big, bold emblazoned "P."

Invincible!

Poppy to the rescue!

Somewhere in the distance I hear music. It's getting louder... they're playing my song...

Don't
Rush Me

Don Rush

I am Poppy, hear me roar
Some say too big to ignore

And I know enough

because I can fix a broke door...

I see wind blowing through my long, flowing dark hair. My cape flutters in the breeze. I can see myself silhouetted against a light shining from somewhere. And with a deep voice, resonating from the depths of my barrel chest...

"I am here, Son. What is your problem?"

Dad.

There goes the wind and the music is gone. Oh yeah. I have short, grayish, brownish, reddish, blondish hair with an ever growing forehead and, my barrel chest fell a few inches south.

Dad. When I type it, it doesn't look correct.

"How are things going, Dad?" Shamus recently asked. Then asked again when I kept on doing whatever I was doing, not acknowledging his presence. I wasn't ignoring the boy, it just took a second for the word "dad" to tingle that part of my gray matter that responds to labels.

I've been called and have responded to many things over the years: Donald, Donald Patrick, DP, Don (never Donny), Rush, Hon, Honey, Big Fat Jerk-off, You Rat Smackin' Mean-Spirited-Homophobic and Racist Neanderthal. To all these words I turn, smile and reply, "Yes... how can I be of assistance..." But, for a few awkward seconds after Shamus said "dad," nothing happened.

Silence isn't golden when your boy is trying to get your attention by calling you what 99 percent of American boys call their father and you sit their like a deadbeat until you realize the quiet stillness was caused by your own blizin' rizin' slowness.

Shamus will be seven years old by the end of November and he's in a stage now where he wants to be the big boy... the number one son. He wants to be the next best thing to grown up, which is to be six but think you're 27. He still uses the word "poppy" but "dad" is creeping in more and more these days.

So, the little blond-haired, blue-eyed boy is growing up and I guess "poppy" sounds immature. Dad, I guess, with a little work I can get used to that label. Yep, "Dad" is good. (I just hope he doesn't want to call me, "Don, You big fat jerk" or anything else. I'm not good with change.)

Who says toys are just for kids?

In keeping with the topic of meaningful birthdays later in life, another topic came to my attention recently: exciting birthday gifts for adults.

I celebrated my 24th birthday on July 6 and wasn't expecting anything big from my birthday in terms of presents. The usual items flashed through my head as safe gifts from my family: new clothes, a Best Buy gift card or two, etc. However, I had the best birthday in recent years thanks to some spectacular gifts that reminded me toys are great for any age.

On the 'tech' toy aspect, I received my first digital camera, joining the rest of my friends who said goodbye to film a while back. It's quite fabulous, if you ask me, and I've already had fun taking test photos of my feet and various pieces of furniture in my house.

However, the other gift for my birthday ranks high on the "I'd never buy this for myself because I'm embarrassed to admit I really want it and I'm an adult" category and has grabbed all of my free time.

I, Alicia Dorset, a 24-year-old college graduate, screamed with joy when I received a limited edition color Game Boy Advance.

(For those of you unfamiliar with Game Boys, this little gadget is a hand-held video game player.)

About a month ago I came across this new product that looked just like the original Nintendo Entertainment ment Systems game controller from my youth. In addition to the "retro" look, a series of classic NES games, such as "The Legend of Zelda" and "Ice Climber", had been rereleased in their original glory for the new Game Boy.

I made sure to casually mention what a technological achievement this was to my mom and how fun it would be to play it. It was the type of moment that mimicked Ralphie asking for a Genuine Red Ryder 200 Shot Carbine Action Air Rifle in "A Christmas Story."

You can imagine my excitement when I opened the little box to see my new toy on my birthday. My happiness multiplied when I opened my brother's present of "Super Mario Brothers" and "Donkey Kong."

"I think this is the dumbest gift ever. Happy birthday," his card read to me. It didn't even phase me.

I spent the rest of my evening refining my Game Boy skills and spending a little quality time with Mario and Luigi. It's amazing how I can't remember the geometry formula for corresponding angles but I know where every extra life for Mario is on my Game Boy.

My new Game Boy has momentarily taken over my life. I take it with me wherever I go so I can sneak in a few minutes here and there building tracks on "Excite Bike."

And the novelty of a color console still blows my mind. I remember being thrilled when the original Game Boy came out and featured a lovely yellow-green screen.

I won't lie. I've already been to Toys 'R' Us to look for more games. I found myself surrounded by 10-year-old boys craning my neck to read the list of

A Look Back

At our community's history through the pages of
The Clarkston News

15 YEARS AGO (1989)

• With pay-to-play sports looming on the horizon, the best athletic director Paul Tungate can hope for is to avoid the worst. Until the students show up with money in hand, ready to sign up on registration day, he won't know how bad (or good) the situation will be for the 1989-90 school year for Clarkston Community Schools. "I hope it won't have an impact, but at this point, I'm in the dark," Tungate said.

• Reports of sick children have prompted the closure of the Hidden Springs swimming pond in the Independence Oaks County Park on Sashabaw Road. Health Department officials have begun testing the water for the shigella bacteria, which is known to cause the symptoms reported. Independence Oaks personnel closed the pond Monday after receiving calls from about 20 residents since last week, according to Ray Delasko, supervisor of the county park.

• A plan to better control the exterior condition of homes in Independence Township won a first approval from the township board July 11. Members unanimously approved an addition to the Property Maintenance Ordinance, which establishes a procedure for handling property violations. The new provision requires property owners to maintain exterior improvements so they will not result in a blighting effect, a reduction in surrounding property values or harm surrounding properties.

25 YEARS AGO (1979)

• Spurred by citizens' complaints, Oakland County Sheriff's deputies are taking steps to curb the youth parties which have taken place in Clarkston's Depot Road park throughout the summer. Deputies who regularly patrol the park said they would begin issuing citations to minors caught possessing alcoholic beverages and ordinance violation tickets.

• Clarkston Mills shopping mall developer Marc Alan is remaining tight-lipped as to when he'll deliver the $15,000 he promised to the village for the proposed Depot-Hblcomb-White Lake roads intersection improvement project. At its July 9 meeting, the Clarkston Village Council tabled action on the proposed road improvement project on the advice of Trustee M. James Schultz.

• The Independence Township Planning Commission has again held the line on three-acre house sites. The largest zoning in the township is three acres. Commission member James Brennan made the latest request for a zoning reduction at last week's meeting. In a 6-0 vote, the commission denied the request for rezoning from three-acre sites to one and one-half acres on the 40-acre parcel.

50 YEARS AGO (1954)

• By a four to one vote the school electors endorsed the Special Education Act which will give the handicapped children in the county a chance for an education.

• On Monday, July 19, a "Pat Cleary" Caravan will tour northern Oakland County. "Pat" Cleary is a candidate for Governor in the Primary Election on Aug. 3.

Seniors stretch, strengthen for better health

BY ALICIA DORSET
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Realizing the importance of physical fitness later in life, the Independence Township Senior Center is testing several new classes for this fall to promote health and well-being for area residents.

On July 8, the center held a "trial" strength and stretch class taught by Nancy Boch at St. Daniel's Catholic church in Clarkston.

"Don't stretch beyond what is comfortable. Stretching should feel good," Boch told the participants during the workout.

Boch, a certified senior fitness instructor, teaches classes throughout northern Oakland County in addition to Clarkston.

"This is geared toward seniors," Boch said. Class participants worked on routines in addition to relaxation techniques after the hour-long workout. According to Boch, the class focuses on building strength with lightweight resistance bands for added effectiveness.

The class also featured a dance aspect that promoted cardio vascular activity which in turns aids in weight loss and better utilization of blood sugars.

"Since I've started taking this class I'm so much stronger and healthier," Elaine Sheppard said.

A regular workout participant, Sheppard has been taking classes with Boch for the past two years.

"I usually don't miss a class," Sheppard said.

Not only was the class a beneficial workout, it also gave participants a chance to meet new friends in the area.

"It's nice companionship," Sheppard said.

The strength and stretch class isn't the only new class slated for this fall at the senior center.

In addition to a dance and stretch class, Boch will be debuting a Chi Gong class. Chi Gong is similar to Tai Chi and is often thought of as "Feng Shui for the body."

"It's similar to Tai Chi, but mess less complex," Boch said. "It focuses on healing through movement, breathwork, visualization and self massage."

According to senior center director Margaret Bartos, the classes are a direct result of member requests.

For more information on this fall's classes or how to get involved, call the center at (248) 623-8231.

Solo performance showcases talent

BY ALICIA DORSET
Clarkston News Staff Writer

"I've been singing since I could speak." With that passion driving his music, Matt Chesley will entertain July 16's "Concerts in the Park" audience with a set of original material as the next "local spotlight" installment.

Familiar to many in the Clarkston area as the former lead singer for the group Exit 89, Chesley taught himself to play the guitar at age 15.

"It took a while to get real skill down," Chesley said. He spent four years with the hard rock band before they recently broke up. He's currently recording a solo album and looking for a studio.

Chesley compares his music to that of popular singer/songwriter John Mayer.

"It's a form of self expression and expression in general," Chesley said. "I can speak for myself and others."

Chesley found out about the local spotlight possibility through a connection with Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce director Penny Shanks. For the July 16 performance, Chesley has planned a mix of up-tempo songs, ballads and a surprise cover for the audience.

"I hope they (audience) have a good time listening to my music," Chesley said.

Around Clarkston, Chesley can often be heard at his church, Clarkston United Methodist, and the Clarkston Christian Association.

"That's where I test out all my new songs," Chesley said.

A recent graduate of Clarkston High School, Chesley will attend Central Michigan University in the fall.

"I hope to actually go somewhere with it (music)," Chesley said. "I want it to be my job."

Chesley takes the stage at 6:30 p.m. before main act Bobby Lewis and the Crackerjack Band, an oldies and classic rock group, takes the stage at 7 p.m.

Tax money should go to the children

Why do two employed male sodomites lose benefits because of a ban on gay immorality?

It is not marriage in which they wish to engage. It is double dipping at the trough. If they are working for universities, corporations or municipalities they are well covered individually.

Those who are truly married and raising and educating children should be the taxpayers' primary concern.

Children are the future. That's where our taxes should go.

Independence needs a leadership team

We the people expect our elected officials to be ethical, credible and fair in responding to the needs of residents and businesses in Independence Township.

Bureaucratic bickering, endless delays and micromanagement serve only to frustrate and inevitably slow the pace of progress. We need a leadership team that will keep these hindrances to an extreme minimum.

We need a strong team who will follow our Township's 2020 Master Plan, not change it every time we disagree with its use.

We need an insightful team who will understand there's no value in countless meetings and studies that result in large consulting fees straining budgets and adding to our taxpayer's burden instead of benefits for our residents and businesses.

We need a proactive team who will empower talented department heads and administrators to make decisions and carry out necessary planning, not micromanage them through non-stop assemblies.

This call for strong, insightful and proactive leadership can be found in the team of Dave Wagner, Sheleigh VanderVeen and Charlie Dunn, collectively providing us the depth, experience and guidance needed to ensure a carefully planned residential and business development that will be in harmony with this great township that we live in.

Murphy highly qualified for judge position

I have known Colleen Murphy for many years through the University of Michigan. She is of the utmost character and intellect. I am sure she would make a great judge for the following reasons...

- She was a former member of the White Lake Township Zoning Board of Appeals — she resigned this campaign in order to avoid any potential ethical or conflict of interest issues.

- She is a lifelong resident of White Lake Township — therefore acutely aware of the issues facing her community.

- Supported by Judge Dana Fortinberry. She and Judge Fortinberry have a great working relationship — so her election will offer continuity to her communities.

- Supported by members of law enforcement, law enforcement groups, labor unions and influential members of her community.

- She is respected, knowledgeable, and has great integrity.

- She is a second generation attorney and magistrate.

- She will bring honor, integrity and a proven work ethic to the bench.

- She will be open to new ideas and programs that will benefit her community.

I think these are plenty of reasons that she should be judge!!

Clarkston author relives his disc jockey days

BY KYLE GARGARO
Clarkston News Editor

Clarkston resident Peter Cavanaugh spent his life living rock n' roll history and now has written about it in "Local DJ, A Rock n' Roll History."

"It started when I would be at the bar having a couple of beers and talking about the radio days," Cavanaugh said. "I decided I should write some of those stories down. Every Irishman believes he has a book inside him somewhere."

Cavanaugh began the process of writing in April 1994. The Clarkston resident had no outline for the book and ended up with a lot of material having been in the radio business since 1957.

"The book is about the culture of rock n' roll," Cavanaugh said. "Rock n' roll was not only a musical form but also an attitude."

The book relives Cavanaugh's experiences in the business which included promoting and producing literally hundreds of early concerts with the likes of Chuck Berry, The Rolling Stones, Jimi Hendrix and The Who. The book also contains plenty of stories about Michigan rock bands including Bob Seger, Ted Nugent and MC5.

Cavanaugh began his radio career at WNDR in Syracuse at the young age of 16.

"WNDR was an original top 40 station. It was my hometown and I loved working there," Cavanaugh said.

Cavanaugh worked at the station through his college years before moving to Flint and taking a job with WTAC.

"That was also a big top 40 station. We had an enormous listenership," Cavanaugh said.

Cavanaugh held many jobs at WTAC including program director, president and general manager.

In the 1980's, Cavanaugh teamed up with Flint native Michael Moore and even gave Moore a radio show.

"I could tell the first time I met him that he was a bright guy. I pretty much let him do whatever he wanted," Cavanaugh said. "He put on some great shows. Michael really developed his persona on the radio. He has always been very consistent in his beliefs."

Cavanaugh has followed Moore's career closely and still keeps in contact with the filmmaker with weekly e-mails. Cavanaugh is proud of Moore and is enjoying the mainstream success he has received.

"I mean he is on the cover to Time magazine. It is just amazing," Cavanaugh said. "I am really happy with Fahrenheit 9/11. I think it is a great film."

After his time in Flint, Cavanaugh also spent time at stations in Toledo, Cincinnati and Youngstown.

Cavanaugh and his wife Eileen retired to Clarkston. The couple recently celebrated their 40th anniversary which according to Cavanaugh, "had more to do with the patience Eileen had for Peter than any precision talent I had for marriage."

The couple decided on Clarkston because it was near their four daughters and grandchildren.

"It has been wonderful to come back to Michigan and we just love it in Clarkston," Cavanaugh said. "We love the people here. I remember when I used to put on shows down here in my younger years. This place is the best combination of a small town feel and big city accessories."

Those interested may purchase the book at www.wildwednesday.com.

The Road Commission for Oakland County prohibited left turns from Sashabaw Road onto Waldon Road in Independence Township on July 12 as part of the ongoing widening of Sashabaw between Waldon and Maybee.

Once imposed, left turns will be prohibited for Sashabaw traffic at Waldon until Oct. 31.

The left-turn prohibition was necessary because Sashabaw will be reduced to one lane in either direction at the Waldon intersection. If turns were allowed from Sashabaw onto Waldon, significant traffic delays would result on Sashabaw.

The Sashabaw project involves widening Sashabaw to a four-lane boulevard between Maybee and north of the Waldon intersection.

Helpful tips to keep children active in summer

School has been out almost a month now and my child is starting to whine: "there's nothing to do!" How can I prevent this from being repeated in the future and to what extent am I responsible as a parent to provide his entertainment? My son is 9 years old.

Sometimes those words sound like fingernails on a chalkboard! You'll want to use encouragement with your child so they learn to think for themselves. Responses like, "I'm confident that you can come up with something," or "Why don't you sit quietly for a minute and I'm sure something will come to you" will communicate that you think he can handle figuring it out without your help. You are showing them that you have faith in him. This kind of communication helps build self-esteem. Also, when you let children come up with their own solutions to boredom, you're helping them develop important problem-solving skills. When your child comes up with ideas, take time to listen and discuss any necessary precautions.

Try not to be an instant idea source for your bored child; it's ultimately their responsibility, not yours. However, if your child's creative juices just aren't flowing on their own, suggest a few ideas to jump-start the process. Be prepared to accept that they may just be bored for a bit. Being bored is OK. Boredom is a natural phenomena in human life. It will not harm our children to experience boredom, especially in today's over-programmed child world. Down time may just be the ticket to teaching relaxation, a phenomena many adults today do not experience! (Note: whining accompanying boredom is not acceptable. Ignore this behavior as it is an inappropriate bid for attention.)

A fun thing to do with your child at the beginning of the summer (or as soon as you realize you need to!) is to create a list of summer activities. The mother of one grade school student uses this creative way to beat summer boredom. She and her son make a list of things he can do when he is bored. They write activities on slips of paper and put them in a jar. They label the jar as the Boredom Jar. As the summer progresses, new ideas are added to the Boredom Jar. Then when the child gets bored, he picks something to do from the jar.

Other pointers for keeping "boredom" at bay:

- Sit down with your child in the evening or first thing in the morning and plan how to structure the day. This gives your child a firsthand lesson in how to plan and make each day just what he wants it to be.
- Put something special on the agenda for a specific time so that your child has something to look forward to. It need not be anything extravagant; often a play date with a friend or an hour set aside to play board games with mom or dad will be enough to add a little pizzazz to the day.
- Do the same old things but in NEW ways. For example, make lunch a picnic; have friends come over in last year's Halloween costumes; line the kitchen chairs up in rows in the TV room, pull the shades, pop popcorn and "go to the movies"; pitch a tent in the backyard (or make one out of blankets over a table) and go camping; paint shaving cream pictures on the sidewalk, then run through the hose when you rinse them off.

• Finally, get into the fun of it all with your kids. If you join them in getting something started, they usually can take it from there—making your day and theirs a lot more enjoyable.

When your child is happily engaged in an activity, use encouraging words that notice that behavior. For example, "you look so pleased that you found something fun to do." Encouraging words that notice help build self-esteem. A child who feels good about themselves is a child who thinks for themselves. When our elementary age children head off to high school, we want them to have learned how to think for themselves. Using encouragement with summer boredom (the kind that shows faith and notices) will serve a purpose for more challenging issues in your child's future.

Stretch yourself by pursuing opportunity

By Ernie Harwell

"For all sad words of tongue or pen,
The saddest of these: 'It might have been!'"

- John Greenleaf Whittier

Whittier was describing a lost chance for love, but these words apply to any missed opportunity, really.

An important way to keep our minds sharp - and make life interesting - is to take on challenges and hunt for opportunities not in plain view.

When I was 16, I was a faithful reader of The Sporting News, but I was disappointed they didn't provide much coverage from my part of the country. So I decided to offer my services as a correspondent for them in the Atlanta area. They accepted my offer and it was a great start to my career. And I've always been grateful that I didn't let my young age keep me from pursuing it.

When we challenge ourselves (physically, mentally or both!) we stretch ourselves as individuals and discover more about ourselves - no matter what age we are.

Take some time to think about your interests and what opportunities you could pursue. It's great mental exercise and, when you go after that opportunity, it's certainly a lot more rewarding than someday saying, "It might have been."

And remember to take care of your health before it's longgggg gone!

Ernie Harwell, "the voice of the Detroit Tigers" for more than four decades, retired after 55 years behind a major league microphone. Today, at age 86, Ernie's days are filled with serving as a health and fitness advocate for Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan, public appearances, writing, traveling and taking long walks with "Miss Lulu," his wife of more than 60 years. His latest book, a collection of his baseball columns entitled "Life After Baseball," is available at local bookstores or by calling 1-800-245-5082.

Packed SCAMP celebrates Halloween in July

BY ED DAVIS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Most people have heard the phrase 'Christmas in July.' But how many people have the opportunity to celebrate 'Halloween in July'?

That was the very opportunity given to 360 people enrolled in this year's SCAMP Program. The program offers fun and creative activities for people with disabilities of all kinds. People participating in the program, called Scampers, range in age from three years old all the way to 43, first-year director Elanor Hallman said. She served as assistant director last year.

July 1 SCAMP hosted Halloween in July at Independence Elementary. There, Scampers were encouraged to dress up in their favorite costume and then danced the Monster Mash before participating in a parade around the school showcasing their costumes. Scampers dressed up in creative costumes ranging from rock stars to superheroes to witches and football players.

SCAMP has seen an increase in recent years, Hallman. This year's SCAMP was actually over the 350-person cap, Hallman said.

To get someone to enroll in SCAMP, Hallman said an application must be dropped off in March to Clarkston's Student Support offices. The deadline, she said, is in April, but applications are taken until the maximum of 350 (or more in this year's case) is reached. If more than 350 applications are taken, then SCAMP has a waiting list. Participants in SCAMP come from all over Oakland County and southern Genesee County, Hallman said.

"We pretty much take all of them. They just have to have a disability of some kind. Our youngest group starts at three, so they need to be considered at risk," Hallman said.

While participating in SCAMP, Scampers take part in various indoor and outdoor activities including visiting the Clarkston Christian Association, bowling as well as classic outdoor activities such as swimming and boating.

Hallman has been involved in SCAMP since she was 10 years old. This marks her 16th year in the program, which she says continues to be rewarding, challenging and fun.

"I think I knew pretty much what to expect (as a first-year SCAMP director) going in," she said. "But you never know really what to expect each and every day. But at the same time, that's what makes it fun."

Hallman said anyone can participate in SCAMP in some capacity. Volunteers start out as young as in seventh and eighth grade. Additionally, high schoolers work as paid student aides. There are also several adult aides, which must be at least one year removed from high school. Jamie LaBrosse and Aaron Dobson are among this year's lead teachers. Kim Fletcher serves as an assistant director.

"We really look for people who really want to be here and be involved with kids. We want our workers to be in the water with the kids and doing all the things that the kids are doing—having fun with them," Hallman said.

Hallman said the increase in enrollment has come as no surprise to her. She has been involved in SCAMP long enough to see the same people return year after year and they are always happy to return and sad when the five-week camp, which is currently at its halfway point, reaches its conclusion. The camp runs Monday through Thursday from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m.

"I think it's just having a fun summer. There's something fun for them to do every day. There's never a dull moment here. Between swimming, boating, music and art, I think kids really love it. Mainly what I hear from parents is that their kids look forward to every year and they can't wait to come back," Hallman said.

Big 3 of Clarkston baseball named all-state

BY ED DAVIS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

League championships and district titles are nothing new to members of the Clarkston High School varsity baseball team. But a new honor came its way recently to a few key members of the team.

Seniors Addison Turk, Sam Palace and Aaron Powell were all named all-state this year. The three have all played varsity baseball since their sophomore seasons, when the Wolves made it to the state semifinals. The last two years Clarkston has enjoyed being crowned OAA I league champions and advanced to the regional final each of the last two years. Turk, Palace and Powell were three of the biggest reasons for Clarkston's success this year.

The three were some of the most consistent hitters on the team, along with Mike Kittle and Jono Moehlig. All three will be playing at the collegiate level with Palace attending Kent State University. Powell will be attending another Mid American Conference School in Eastern Michigan University while Turk will be playing at Macomb Community College.

The three are close friends and have shared a lot of memories the last few years.

In addition to having sports in common, Powell and Turk also share a common interest in their future field of study. Both plan on studying criminal justice. The two both took John Zittel's Law and Society class at Clarkston High School and Turk said Zittel piqued his interest in the field.

"I've always kind of been interested in that," Turk said. "But Mr. Zittel made it interesting made me want to get into it more."

The three saw lots of wins the last several years and admit that leaving Clarkston will be tough, but at the same time, they are welcoming their next wave of challenges. Turk was named all-league last year, but this marked the first year he made all league. However, as much as he was happy to be named all-league it's the friendships he maintained through baseball which will be what he remembers most.

"It's a great honor to be mentioned with the best baseball players in the state," Turk said. "But I think myself, Addison and Sam took it upon ourselves to be an example for this team. Being able to play with my best friends each day and winning the league back-to-back, those are things I won't forget."

Powell said getting named all-league came out of left field to him, especially when he rethinks his baseball past.

"I thought I should've gotten it my sophomore year, but I didn't, so I really didn't come into this season with any expectations," Powell said.

Powell said he did receive all-county honors in both his sophomore and junior seasons, but this was his first year being named all-state.

Next year, while attending EMU, Powell will play probably either third or first and the minutes of playing time he receives rests solely on him, he said. He said the Eagles basically lost their entire infield this year, so there is indeed a lot of opportunity. He just needs to make the most of it.

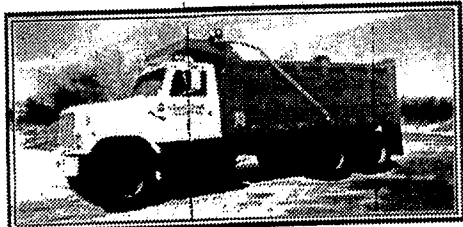

"They told me I'd be able to play. It just depends on how I do. If I play well, I'll play a lot, if not, then well, I won't be," he said.

Powell, who was the starting pitcher in Clarkston's final baseball game of the year, a heartbreaking regional final loss to Brother Rice, said he won't be a stranger to CHS.

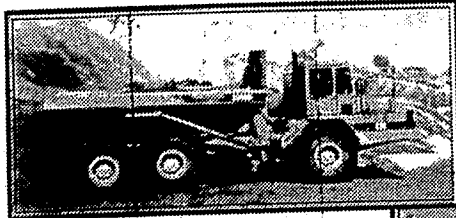

"We had a great year and it was great to be named all-state with Sam and Addison, but I'm sure I'll be back to Clarkston to check out some games, both baseball and football," he said.

The three were also key players last season's football team and will be three of the biggest holes coach Phil Price has to find a way to replace next spring.

Lake

Since then, a number of lake owners have attempted to see the lake level restored, and have used Nichols' 1997 ruling as leverage.

In the meantime, some residents claimed the proposed augmentation well would threaten groundwater throughout the area for the benefit of only a few. That claim was denied by lake board proponents, and a Jan. 6 public hearing at the Springfield Township hall drew a standing-room-only crowd to debate the issue.

Although MDEQ officials admitted they have no jurisdiction over groundwater impact, they ruled against the well based on wetlands concerns, saying the result would be "significantly higher than the historic or natural high water mark of the lake."

Dunn said the history of the project — and the "temporary nature" of the depleted lake — have muddled the definitions.

"The state does not have the authority under the regulations to interfere in this project," Dunn said. "The people around Waumegah Lake, represented by the lake board, merely want to put the condition back the way it was. This is not an enlargement of the lake."

Audit

motivated. The taxpayers have the right to know what is happening with their money," Wagner said. "I don't want to be another Flint. Don't get me wrong, we are not anywhere near that yet but my point is accounting practices can get you in a lot of trouble."

Stuart denies the his decision was politically motivated.

"It will be on the agenda the first week of August. There is no rush to make the presentation. This issue should not be mixed with politics," Stuart said.

The Clarkston News contacted Hendricks who declined to comment on the situation.

Toys

games to be released this summer.

I'm not the only one amazed by this great birthday gift. All of my friends have tried their hands at attempting to beat "Super Mario Brothers" while remarking how the color screen could be the best technological innovation since pasteurization.

Seeing the big smiles on my friends faces when I show them this spectacular gadget proved to me no matter how old you get, a toy every now and then is just fine.

One drawback though: Apparently my eyes aren't as sharp as they were when I received my first Game Boy some 15 years ago. I'm pretty sure I'll be blind by the end of summer from squinting at the little screen.

But at least I can't shoot my eye with this toy unlike poor Ralphie...

Delasko splits time between desk, outdoors

BY DON SCHELSKE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

For more than 30 years, Ray Delasko has been employed with Oakland County Parks, and has been park supervisor at Independence Oaks County Park since it opened in 1976. While he is an administrator and has an office, he also likes getting outside as much as possible.

"I have the best of both worlds," he said.

Delasko struggled with career decisions after high school, so he served in the U.S. Army for two years. After attending Oakland Community College for two years, he transferred to the University of Michigan-Dearborn with a major in business.

It was not easy study for someone who was raised in a coal-mining community in Pennsylvania.

"I found that kind of boring, because I was always an outdoors-type person," he said. "I couldn't see myself sitting behind a desk."

In the mid-1960s, he found "parks and recreation" in a career catalog, then saw a sign recruiting for Oakland County Parks. He eventually finished a degree at Michigan State University during which time he worked as an intern at Groveland Oaks County Park.

In 1971, the parks system began the master plan process for Independence Oaks, and Delasko jumped at the chance to be involved. He helped develop the plan for trail and building placement, but he didn't know it would turn into a long-term assignment.

"I thought it was just a stepping stone, but I loved the park so much I decided to stay here," he said.

Delasko married in 1972; he and his wife eventually moved into a home on park property. She was from Hamtramck and had some adjusting to do, but "she would never go back to the city now."

As park supervisor, Delasko is in charge of budget planning and other administrative details at both Independence Oaks and Orion Oaks parks, and supervises a small full-time staff and seasonal employees.

"They're the ones who make the park work," he said.

He really enjoys the diversity of the seasons and the activities offered at Independence Oaks, including the beach in the summer and ski trails in the winter. The growth of the area and the proximity to I-75 have made Independence Oaks a valuable escape for many.

"We're kind of an oasis," Delasko said. "It's still so natural, and we're going to keep it that way."

There's a delicate balancing act in that

'We're kind of an oasis. It's still so natural, and we're going to keep it that way.'

Training program prepares students for future counselor jobs

BY ALICIA DORSET

Clarkston News Staff Writer

It takes a lot to be a camp counselor with Independence Township's Parks and Recreation department. This year's counselors-in-training are finding out just what it takes.

The CIT program through the department allows students the opportunity to see firsthand the role of a camp counselor and receive the training necessary to lead a group of students on their own in the future.

"They (CITs) spend their days out doing just what a counselor does," Erin Trepte, day camp director, said. The department has nine CITs this summer.

CIT training runs throughout the summer based on various camp sessions. Trainees are traditionally high-school age and participate in the program as often as they'd like. Counselors for the department's camps are hired after senior year.

After an interested student signs up for the program, they must follow specific guidelines, such as attending one full camp session at one of the department's various locations, a full-day training session, attend staff and weekly group meetings and participating in leadership events.

The CITs can be seen throughout the community outside the camp setting. As part of the leadership events, trainees participate in service projects such as assisting Meals on Wheels or helping out at the annual Festival of Fun during the Fourth of July.

"We're trying to build positive role models in the community," Trepte said.

For CIT David Rodriguez, a regular in the program every summer for the past few years, learning counselor basics is a good way to enjoy the summer months.

"It's a good way to be outside in the summer. It's one of the better jobs to have in the summer," Rodriguez said.

The ability to return to the training program is appealing to many students.

"Lots of the CITs are returners and we're happy to have them," Trepte said.

Being a regular with the program builds a strong bond with the returning campers as well. Many campers look for familiar CITs when a new summer camp season starts.

"Watching the kids grow up is so cool," Ashley Rodriguez, CIT, said.

Not only must CITs meet the requirements associated with daily camp activities, they also practice interviewing skills (for possible future jobs as full-time counselors) and overall performance abilities.

"These are our future leaders," Trepte said.

When the training and camp sessions are complete, the favorite part for most of the CITs is almost always the same: the kids.

"I just love the kids," Kaitlyn Brown, CIT, said.

Get a fresh start with God

A woman prayed, "Dear Lord, so far today I've done all right. I haven't gossiped, haven't lost my temper, haven't lost my patience, haven't been greedy, grumpy, nasty, selfish, or overindulgent. I'm really glad about that. But in a few minutes, God, I'm going to get out of bed, and from then on I'm probably going to need a lot more help! Thank You, Amen."

Ever feel like that? I have. Even though I'm a pastor and I'm supposed to be "spiritual" all the time, there are times (more times than I care to admit) when I'm in a rut. Over the years I've discovered two ways to get out of that rut.

First, I reaffirm my faith in Jesus Christ. I take some extra time for Bible reading, prayer, and private worship. I face my grumpiness and nastiness and take it to God. I ask for forgiveness and cleansing.

Second, I force myself to thank God for his many blessings. Yes, I say "force" myself, because when I'm in a bad mood, I don't want to thank God. Sometimes we get so focused on our problems that we forget our blessings.

An old hymn tells us to "Count Your Many Blessings" to see what God has done. I've learned that my attitudes will follow my actions. If I DO the right things, my feelings will follow.

Maybe you need a fresh start with God. Why not put these two habits into practice in your life?

Maybe you have never invited God into your life. If so, I want you to know that God loves you.

Maybe you have really messed up your life. God still loves you and he offers you forgiveness, cleansing, and a fresh start. That's why Jesus died on the cross — to take away our sin.

So ask Jesus into your life. The Christian faith is not about rules, rituals, and regulations. It's about a relationship with God through faith in Jesus Christ.

I also want you to know the Church is God's tool to change the world. The Church is God's family, where we find friendship and encouragement. God wants his individual followers to come together and relate to one another on the basis of their common commitment to Christ.

As followers of Christ we are to form mini-societies (churches), where we show the big society what God intended society to be. As others look at us relating in love they will ask, "Hey, I like that. Can I get in on that?" And we'll say, "Sure! There's plenty of room in the family."

So, do you need a fresh start with God? Participate in a church that is purposeful in being the family God wants it to be. Receive God's love.

(Greg Henneman is pastor of Clarkston Community Church.)

Learning camp basics at Camp Caterpillar

By Alicia Dorset

Concentrating on the brightly colored bowling alley, Hunter Gosley sends a ball down the alley. The pins, filled with mini balls, were a hit with the campers during the July 9 morning session at Camp Caterpillar at Bay Court Park.

A game of "Popcorn" forces these campers to keep a steady grip on an oversized parachute. Activities were developed to prepare small children for day camps in the future.

Nicklaus Begien puts forth a full swing on the course. Begien switched between mini plastic and metal golf clubs while out on the links.

Hitting the links keeps these young golfers busy. A small course, complete with junior clubs, was set up for the pint-size players.

Sports writer gives more fantasy football advice

Due to the overwhelming response from my last column by both of my readers, it is now clear that one of several things must be true:

1. There are more fantasy football dorks like myself out there than I originally thought

2. Sports are so slow this time of year, that people are itching for football as much as I am or

3. I am such a fantasy football guru, that this fall my inbox will be flooded with e-mail on Sunday morning with people asking me which players to start.

I don't consider myself a fantasy guru, and since each of the last three years I have finished below .500 in the league I am by no means an expert. However, I do think I have learned some basic draft and playing strategies which helped me the last few years including the following:

1. Always go against Detroit - As much as I am a big time Detroit Lions fan, picking a team defense that goes up against the Honolulu blue and silver should rack you up some nice points.

2. Stay away from injury-riddled players on draft day - There's nothing more risky on draft day than picking on potential. Pick players who have proven they battle through pain and will start nearly every week. Brett Favre and Steve McNair are two that come to mind.

3. Look at recent trends - If a guy is getting up there in age and his numbers are starting to decline, he most likely won't rebound this fall unless he's battling for a contract or perhaps is under a new coach or on a new team. If a guy is starting to show his age, look elsewhere.

4. Don't panic - I have to tell myself this at times. If your league limits the number of free agent acquisitions you can make, don't be too quick to release a defense or tight end because they didn't do well in weeks one and two. You'll want to save those waiver wire pickups for elite guys, bye weeks and when your own players suffer injuries.

5. Don't pick homers - And no, I don't mean Mr. Simpson. Don't pick only your favorite players, or be afraid to trade your favorite guys away. Sure, we all have our favorite players, but if the guy isn't putting up numbers on Sunday, he shouldn't be on your roster. Deal him if possible.

6. Be a student of the draft - This is very hard to do, but if you can analyze who around you has taken what positions, then you can evaluate how likely another GM is to take a certain guy. For example, if the first seven picks are all running backs, you can guess that there's a decent chance the next time around they might look for a quarterback or elite wide receiver. Use that to your advantage.

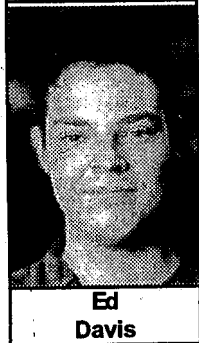

7. Stock up or balance? - This is an argument that perhaps will never be settled. Some fantasy experts claim the only way to have a successful draft is to spend at least your first two picks on running backs. While this might work for some, one of the best teams in my league last year didn't pick a running back until round three and he finished well above .500. If the choice is between Randy Moss and a middle tier running back, you might be best going with Moss.

8. Pay attention to training camp - There's nothing worse than picking a guy, only to learn later on that he's number two on the depth chart. Sometimes the depth chart of a team is not finalized until nearly the season opener, but do everything in your power not to pick guys who will be riding the bench this fall.

mission, and Delasko admits there is a challenge to provide desired services while maintaining natural beauty. The 1,100-acre park has only about 60 developed acres, but there were several years of discussions as to whether to pave the park's roads.

Pavement was found to be more environmentally-friendly in the long run (eliminating the need for annual chloride treatments), and there is now a move to pave bicycle trails throughout the park.

"It continues to be a struggle," but Delasko believes there is still a sense of "wilderness" in most of the park. Park patrons have responded favorably, with many donating trees throughout the years. The staff also works to keep everything clean and neat.

"I think the public respects that," and they help keep things clean, as well.

The park is so popular that there are occasional challenges in handling parking. When they reach the 1,000-car level, there are concerns about handling everyone. Delasko remembers one occasion in which 1,400 cars were in the park and they had to close it to additional visitors.

He also finds spring a challenging time, since county budget planning happens the same time the park staff is gearing up for spring and summer programs. That's when Delasko spends the most time behind his desk, but when summer hiring is complete he likes to head out into the park to conduct inspections and talk to staff and visitors.

He and his wife often enjoy walks through the park, but he tends to notice things that need work or gets involved in picking up litter.

"My wife says I can't relax in this park," he laughed, so they like to take time off to visit state parks.

Having raised three sons on park property, Delasko and his wife (a nurse) are beginning to think about retirement in the next year or two, after their third son is graduated from college.

They have a summer cottage in Oscoda that may become more of a permanent home.

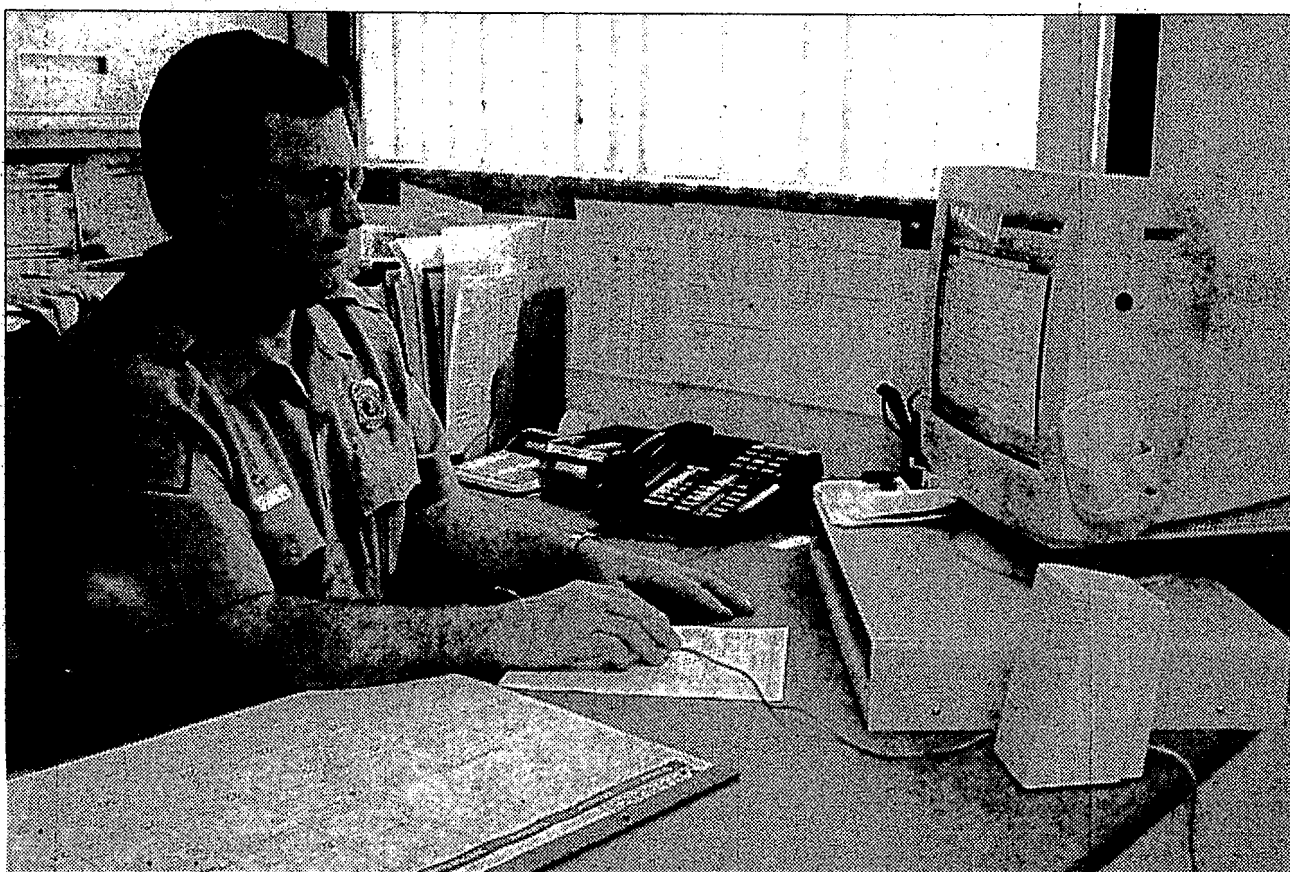

Because his home at Independence Oaks has so much wildlife and open space, however, Delasko admits retirement will have a different flavor.

"This is like a vacation home here," he said. "It's going to be different having neighbors."

Despite his full-time job, Delasko still enjoys the outdoors for leisure activity. Biking, hiking, swimming and cross-country skiing are all part of his schedule, and he's joined a county golf league, as well.

Delasko has also enjoyed relationships with former park employees, some of whom met their spouses on the Independence Oaks staff. Some still keep in touch, and even schedule occasional reunions.

"It's nice to see that. They'll come back with their kids and their grandkids." After thinking a minute, he added: "I've been here a long time."
