Help wanted: Watershed group to plant new garden near Mill Pond Saturday

BY LAURA COLVIN

Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Clarkston Watershed group hopes interested volunteers will show up in the city's downtown area Saturday, June 9 with shovels, trowels and gloves to help install a new garden in celebration of River Day.

The group will work between 9 a.m.-1 p.m. to install native plants and flowers along at the corner of Main Street and Washington.

Storm water runoff from the adjacent parking lot has caused erosion and sedimentation in the pond, but native plantings, say group members, will assist in stabilizing the area and deter further damage.

"It's not a rain garden, but the idea is similar," said Trish Hennig, owner of American Roots Native Plants and Wildflowers, who is a member of the Watershed Group. "We'll start along the fence and move in a southerly direction, using plants that will serve as a buffer to absorb storm water before it flows into the pond.'

The project was made posthe Mill Pond parking lot located sible through a grant from Oak-Native Partnership Initia-

The Initiative aims to ensure native plantings are designed, executed, and maintained into the future with strong commitment and informed respect for the land.

Clarkston was awarded the grant in 2006 as well, for the installation of the rain garden near the city offices at Depot Park.

The Depot Park rain garden, located near the village offices, is a collection of native plants set in the drainage path from the village parking lot to the park Millrace and Clinton River, a design that helps prevent storm water runoff from dumping pollutants into the river.

The garden was funded by a $750 grant from Oakland Native Partnership Initiative. The grant is meant to pay for native plantings and other measures to prevent runoff, as well as encourage public concern for water and shorelines.

Policing at night

Clarkston takes on full-time police work

BY LAURA COLVIN Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Clarkston Police Department expects to officially reclaim its midnight shift and resume a 24-hour presence in the city beginning at 11p.m. June 30.

After nearly six-and-a-half years of outsourcing midnight services, the city council voted unanimously to cancel a subcontract with Independence Township for midnight policing provided by the Oakland County Sheriff's Office.

Returning the midnight shift—and making the city's top brass into a "working" chiefwill save about $15,000 a year, said interim Chief Jim Thomp-

Contract cancellation requires

30-day written notice.

The city doled out about $31,000 for midnight police service during the 2006-2007 fiscal

Full time policing provided directly through OCSO, rather than through a subcontract with Independence Township, would run approximately $430,000, according to estimates provided by Undersheriff Mike McCabe May 27. A subcontract with the township would total around $175,000, including the township's standard 10 percent fee for services provided to Clarkston residents.

Thompson said the city will see other benefits in addition to anticipated cost savings.

"We'll have a dedicated car in the city patrolling the streets and watching for crime." he said. "The contract with (OCSO) reads that they will respond to calls for service. I don't know how much neighborhood

Where's the chief?

Eleven resumes from applicants interested in serving as Clarkston's next police chief had arrived in the city mailbox as of Monday, and will be turned over to a committee appointed to begin the selection process.

Advertisements were placed with two sources, said City Manager Art Pappas, including the Michigan Municipal League. Resumes will be accepted until June

The committee, which consists of city council members Kristy Ottman, Mike Gawronski, and Bill Rausch, will glean out top resumes and conduct an initial interview with top candidates.

Police Committee members Charles Inabnit and Steve Arkwright were also asked to sit on the committee.

"I'd like to have the committee rank those top people," said Councilman and Police Liaison Bill Rausch, adding that he would like the group to prepare for the process. "What I'd like you all to do is think about what questions you want to ask a potential chief."

The police chief position is advertised with a salary range of $38,000-$42,000, with minimum healthcare benefits available.

The Oakland County Sheriff's Office agreed to provide a background check for potential chief candidates.

Undersheriff Mike McCabe said the OCSO provided the service when the City of Lake Angeles hired a police chief a few years back, and would do the same for Clarkston-no charge.

"We'll assign a seasoned investigator who does a complete background on the person," said McCabe, noting the service would include interviews as well as employment, credit and neighborhood checks. "We verify everything they put in their application. It's an extensive process."

It will be the first time the city has completed extensive background checks on police personnel.

A public hearing on the proposed 2007-2008 budget for the City of the Village of Clarkston is scheduled for 7 p.m. June 11 at the City Offices, 375 Depot Road.

Copies of the budget are available at the same location.

"The big issue is that over the last four years revenues are down $119,000 while disbursements are only down $88,000," said City Councilman Cory Johnston at the council's regular meeting May 28. "We need to start looking at alternatives—there's nothing left to cut."

City parks commission a possibility

In related news, the Clarkston City Council is considering the formation of a parks commission after the topic was brought up during public comment at the May 28 council meeting.

"We seem to have a large number of well-meaning individuals working in (Depot Park) and no one is overseeing anything," said Robyn Johnston, city planning commissioner.

Plans are underway for a bridge to cross the river, the gazebo needs repair, several groups are putting in plants, signage is needed, and the Clarkston Watershed Group is working with University of Michigan students to develop a master plan for the park.

Local man arraigned for lewd library behavior

BY LAURA COLVIN

Clarkston News Staff Writer

A Springfield Township man was arraigned in 52-2 District Court on two counts of aggravated indecent exposure by a sexually delinquent person after he was allegedly seen exposing and fondling himself inside Independence Township Library last week.

Andrew John Hamilton, 23, was confronted by a male library staff member on May 20 after two 14-year-old female patrons reported seeing the man walk by with his private parts exposed.

Hamilton reportedly left the library in a silver, four-door vehicle before he could be identified, but was seen utilizing a bottle of hand lotion in the library May 24.

The man again left the library, but was quickly apprehended by police who identified the suspect by a description given by library personnel.

"We retrieved video from both dates from the library's video security system," said Sgt. Matt Baldes of the Oakland County Sheriff's Office Independence Township Substation. "It shows him lurking in the library and (using the lotion on himself)."

According to Baldes, library staff informed police they had independently searched security tapes and found the three other times recently.

'He was seen displaying the same behavior," Baldes said, noting the video showed the man at times with his pants unbuttoned, or removing something, possibly lotion, out of his pocket. "His behavior is that of a sexually delinquent person."

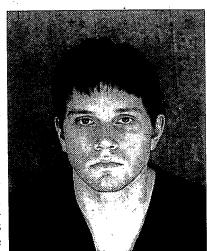

In December 2006, Hamilton was arraigned on a disorderly person charge out of 52-3 District Court when he was found engaging in the same behavior while viewing pornography on a computer at the Oxford Township Library.

Hamilton charged with two counts of aggravated indecent exposure, but because of the repetitive nature of the incidents, said Baldes, each count was enhanced to read "by a sexually delinquent person.'

"The Oxford case as well as him going back to our library led to those charges," Baldes said, noting the enhancement classifies the crime as a capital offense life felony with a sentence range of one day to life in prison. "It shows a pattern of behavior."

Hamilton was held at Oakland County Jail on $20,000 bond, no 10 percent, but was released after posting bond last week. Bond requirements and not go near any library.

patrol they were doing."

The return of the midnight shift is also likely to increase the number of tickets written within the city.

"I'm sure there's going to be an increase in the number of traffic violations we're writing," he said. "Simply because until about two or three in the morning there's still a good amount of traffic on M-15. Everyone knows we go home at 11, and it's like a free-for-all out there."

Thompson assured city counc members the department will be ready to handle the midnight shift when the fiscal year begins July 1.

Three new part-time officers were hired in anticipation of the change, and with interview and background checks complete, only licensing and swearing-in procedures remain.

The department is in the process of performing background checks on several other candidates, as wellfully staffed, eight part time, and two full time officers, including the chief, would comprise the city's force.

The OCSO began policing the half-square mile, 962 resident city in March 2001 under the recommendation of then-Clarkston Police Chief Paul Ormiston, who at the time told The Clarkston News such a change would allow greater police presence in the city during daylight

"The whole concept is not a money saving scheme," he was quoted as saying. "It is an attempt to increase the level of service during the hours which it is most needed. which are days and afternoons."

In November 2003, then-Chief rnest Combs asked the council to bring back the midnight shift, and continued arguing for the switch until he left the department in March

In further preparation for the switch, the city council also approved up to $6,000 for a new incar computer for the city's Crown Victoria police car. The funds will be drawn from the police budget.

According to numbers released at Tuesday's council meeting, $26.828.10 remains in the city's $237,088.81 police budget, with less than 30 days left in the fiscal year.

Leftover money, said City Manager Art Pappas, would roll back into the general fund.

Memorable Memorial Day?

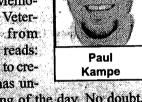

As far as somber days go, Memorial Day is as far from "memorial" as it could be. If there had not been discussion in our news room about covering the Memorial Day Parade in town, it would be a safe bet I wouldn't have thought much of the holiday myself either.

It's not that I feel the day isn't worth observing or those for whom the day is intended are not worthy of such a dedication...far from that. The idea I thought of to keep people in "remembrance mode" would likely fail because it would strip Americans of the liberty granted by those who deserve our remembrance.

My plan is simple. Every American visits a memorial parade, donate their time to some sort of Memorial Day effort, watch some sort of documentary or, heck, even surf the Web to learn more about the day. Spend a couple hours doing one or more of those instead of cruising the interstate for a "retreat." Plenty of people gave their lives so you could have that three-day weekend.

A segment of a 2002 Memorial Day address from the Veterans of Foreign Wars, from www.usmemorialday.org, reads: "Changing the date merely to create three-day weekends has undermined the very meaning of the day. No doubt, this has contributed greatly to the general public's nonchalant observance of Memorial Day."

Going

My biggest complaint is that people just look at the weekend as another excuse to vacation or party. Would the day be better remembered if everyone was supposed to be at work and not given the day

Much of the American workforce enjoys the unofficial kickoff to summer. But the rest of the working corps, remains at their jobs, because with the day off comes the opportunity to capitalize on their spending by retailers, restaurants etc.

"Money makes the world go 'round," I've been told. Not that I didn't believe it as a youth, but I see and revile in it each and every day as I grow older.

Also as a child, my parents reminded me that even though stores were open on Sundays, it didn't used to be that way. Everything used to be closed on Sunday and just because someplace is open, in doesn't mean we need to go there. And as I grew older, I began to forget about what they had said and even they themselves violated their rule.

As an adult, it can be annoying if I need something from a smaller store because it's closed on Sundays, but refreshing all the same.

While it does make life convenient, should anything be open on Memorial Day? Even gas stations? If everyone were forced by federal law to cease business operations, travel, and recreation and spend time with their families and remember the fallen, then the day would serve the purpose I believe it was designed for.

But forcing observance of the holiday would be unfair and "Gestapo-like," and go against the freedoms bestowed us by war heroes.

view Our Time for township to move on

It's time for officials working for Independence Township to come to grips with reality: Voters of this community do not want to spend their hard earned (and fast dwindling) dollars on a permanent senior citizen facility.

It is time for all those being paid by taxpayer dollars to stop toying with the idea of a new center. It is time to work on maintaining a balanced budget and ways of lowering the local tax burden.

Why, some may ask? Independence Township is the land of milk and honey. Only good things happen here, our economy is running gain-busters, our residents feel no pain in their wallets nor their bank accounts. Everybody's got a job and all are happy.

That is not the reality in Michigan nor our community.

A quick call to the township's assessing office found a "dramatic" increase in the amount of recent home foreclosures. Currently there are 129 homes somewhere in the process of foreclosure (whether bank owned or in the starting process). This number reflects back to 2005. Since the beginning of 2007, 51 homes are in foreclosure. These homes are not dilapidated homes -- they run the gamut from starter homes to million dollar jewels. Independence Township is not immune to the state's

Besides economic realities, township paid officials need to look at what the community has said

Voters do not want to pay for permanent senior citizen facilities. The township paid twice to ask and twice voters said "no." A 2002 proposal would have collected $26 million for a new township hall and community center, with facilities for seniors. It was defeated by more than 5,000 votes.

Last November's proposal would have collected about $3.1 million for a new adult-activities center. It was defeated by about 3,000 votes.

The township does not have the money to spend on creating temporary facilities and more millage

The reality of the situation is clear, borne out by two elections. Independence Township voters do not want to pay for a new senior center. - PC

*Dear Editor' (letters from our readers)

Trustees ignore voters with proposal

Independence Township trustee's Charles Dunn and Daniel Kelly have it all wrong.

The claim that the township's senior center program and its dilapidated building is something that was thrust upon them and the township is utterly ridiculous.

It was not the voters of Independence Township who decided to start or finance a senior center program. That decision was made by township officials without voter approval.

It was not voters who decided to put seniors in an old dilapidated farmhouse. That too was a decision made by township officials without voter approval.

However, the voters did decide three times that they did not want their tax dollars used to build or run a new senior center.

Which brings us to the miraculous discovery of an extra $250,000 that Mr. Dunn now proposes be used to build a new senior center and remodel a carriage house.

Has he forgotten that Independence Township passed a deficit budget last year? Are we to believe that a township that passed a deficit budget last year suddenly has $250,000 to waste on a project voters have said numerous times they do not want?

Contrary to Mr. Dunn's claims, it is the voters, not the township, who continue to have the senior center thrust upon them.

Mr. Dunn's proposal to raze the current senior center and replace it with a temporary structure foolishly ignores voters wishes and should be tabled quickly by the board.

It's time for the board to consider the option of life without a senior center. Simply put, the public has never supported the use of our tax dollars for a senior center because it is a luxury that we do not want to fund with our tax dollars.

To blame the public for conditions it did not create is another absurd claim coming from an Independence Township official.

A peek back at those thrilling days of yester-year as reported in the pages of The Clarkston News

"Operating renewal passes; 2-mill package falls" About 4,400 voters decided to renew a 19-mill for school operations, but turned down an additional 2-mill tax and Schools of Choice. With the defeat, the district was set to cut $1.1 million.

"Mayoral race highlights city's first election" Village President Sharron Catallo was set to face off against Charles Webber for Clarkston's first mayorship. Catallo had been village president for six years and trustee for two.

"Burned at the clock" For a media project, Clarkston High School students produced a parody newscast about the 1910 Seth Thomas clock in downtown Clarkston. Students portrayed Clarkston and Independence Township officials struggling over the timepiece, since it was purchased by the township for its sesquicentennial but was on the future city's property.

"Residents demand taxes stay same" Most residents offering public comment to the school board opposed increasing taxes to the Headlee Amendment limit. At the Truth in Taxation meeting, residents said schools should make do with what they have.

"Long, hot summer looms for school negotiators" District officials and teachers agreed that the main issue was economics. Salaries were to be frozen. Teachers requested expedited bargaining, but were turned down by the school board.

"Pine Knob paving possibilities explored anew" Residents on Pine Knob from Clarkston Road to Bailey Lake Elementary called for help from Independence Township, school district, developers, and neighbors to pave the almost half-mile stretch. Don't try to save me, Dad.

When I hear a sentence starting or ending with, "back in the good ol' days," I automatically roll my eyes. I can't help it, it's instinctive. And I can honestly say the muscles that control my rolling eyes are ripped. They're taunt and buff. They get exercised like no other muscle in my body.

Longing for the good ol' days, besides being an act of folly, is a waste of energy, too. The good ol' days weren't always good, just like our today's aren't always bad.

Life was "simpler" back then only because we survived -- we know how things turn out. We know the end of those past chapters. That part of life is simple. Stuff gets more complicated or hard when you contemplate the now as it relates to the future -- that which you don't know.

I state that to lead into this contradiction: Things sure are harder now than when I was a kid.

I came to that startling revelation while experiencing a deja vu moment watching the Detroit Pistons professional basketball team. Watching Cleveland Cavalier LeBron James cut his teeth on the Pistons, reminded me of Chicago Bull Michael Jordan who cut his teeth on the Pistons in the early 1990s. Overtop of the Pistons, Jordan ruled the NBA for a decade. Similarly, LeBron has now been anointed king. But, I digress . . .

It was shortly after 9 p.m., the lads (Shamus, 9 and Sean, 7) were safely ensconced under their respective blankets having gone to bed an hour earlier. It was then Mr. Sean stumbled into the living room, eyes squinting as he came from the dark into the light. He was sniffling as he came up to me and sat on my lap.

"Dad," he managed between sobs, "if a car is going to hit me, don't try to push me out of the way."

Between his sobbing and NBA sportscaster Marv Albert's gushing over LeBron's game I couldn't quite understand what my son was saying. "What, Sean?" I asked, turning the TV's volume down.

"Don't try to push me out of the way. Give me a signal, but don't try to save me," he said, sniffling all the way. His little blond head was resting on my left shoulder, his body was shaking. I then understood what had so profoundly upset my son. Sean had had a nightmare and in it I got smashed to smithereens trying to push him out of the path of a moving vehicle.

He was heartbroken. I smiled to myself, but at the same time wished he wasn't so upset. You -- or at least I -- hate to see children worry.

Childhood anxiety is something I understand. I know I had angst as a kid. And much to my chagrin, I'm sure all kids fear their parents leaving or being taken away, too. My insecurity manifested itself much the same way as did Sean's. The difference, my dream was cartoonish, Sean's was disturbingly real. I can only attribute this to the fact things are much more (too) real these days than in the 1960s.

I still remember my anxiety-ridden dream. It took place in Mom and Dad's bedroom at 9902 Berwyn Street, in Redford Township. The terror for me began when the grotesquely blue-faced winged monkeys from "The Wizard of Oz" popped up out of the cream-colored, 12-inch linoleum tiles laid out on the floor. These vile creatures were in my home for one reason and one reason only -- to steal Mom and Dad. The scoundrels scooped up my parents and flew around the room as if they were attached to wires.

I had to save my parents!

My dreamworld mind had the answer: I, little mildmannered Donald P. Rush, was Mighty Mouse. While Mom, Dad, the monkeys and the room were lifelike, I was a cartoon character. Yep, complete with drawn in mouse ears, nose, yellow leotards and red superhero cape, I could fly. While it was a vivid dream, when I awoke, I knew it was a dream nonetheless. Harmless. How or why I dreamt of a cream-colored floor I'll never know -- my parent's bedroom floor was hardwood.

Little Sean's dream was disturbingly real (at least to him) and I blame it on technology. Back in the good ol' days monsters and villains of any sort were not too realistic (unless you say gluing on cardboard horns onto monitor lizards so you can film a dinosaur movie is realistic). These days, with great and ever improving technology, nothing looks fake or cartoonish. Which means even in a kid's dreamworld, everything looks real. The line between reality and dreamaility is now very thin.

It melts the frozen cockles of my stone-cold heart he loves me such that he would be sad should I perish -- I just wish he wouldn't think of those things.

Ah, I pine for those good ol' days of yesteryear ouch! Damn, for some reason my eyes just rolled back into my head?

There's way too many books written about way too many things. I picked up a book while waiting for my friendly (?) urologist, titled: "Where & When To Stop When You Have To Go."

The author thought we need a travel guide when going' with an overactive bladder in the U.S.

To me it listed the obvious: National Parks have welcoming restrooms, as do most convenience stores and highway rest areas. Nowhere in the book did I see trees and bushes for the really overactive bladder sufferers.

Jacob Beno feeds a belt of 7.62mm blank ammunition into his M240H machine gun for aerial gunnery training. One of his duties as flight engineer is to serve as a door gunner.

Beno's Army career takes flight

BY PHIL CUSTODIO

Clarkston News Editor

Planning a full 20-year career in the U.S. Army, service in Iraq is a near certainty for Jacob Beno of Clarkston.

When that happens, he wants to be behind the controls of a Blackhawk helicopter.

"I've wanted to be a pilot since I was a kid," said Beno, home on leave from his duty station in Ansbach, Germany.

In the two years since he joined the Army, the 2004 graduate of Clarkston High School has been promoted three times, to the rank of E-4 specialist, and been accepted to Warrant Officier Candidate School to become a helicopter pilot.

Assigned to 5th Battalion, 158th Aviation Regiment, 12th Aviation Brigade as a flight engineer, he works on helicopter maintenance and repair between flights. In the air, he monitors mechanical systems and works a door gun.

In February, he submitted his application to flight school 8. at Ft. Rucker, Ala., his second attempt. He was notified May 18 of his acceptance.

After flight school, he hopes to be assigned to a UH-60 Blackhawk utility helicopter or CH-47 Chinook heavy-lift chopper. The AH-64 Apache attack helicopter was a favorite of his youth – his room was plastered with Apache posters - but isn't so much now.

Blackhawks are more versatile, used for troop and VIP transport, medivac, and light cargo work, he said.

Blackhawks are everywhere," he said. "They give the opportunity to change roles - there's always something Chinook-piloting skills may be more useful later as a civilian, he said.

"If you can fly it, you can fly anything," he said.

He also enjoys the camaraderie of the bigger helicopters. Blackhawks carry a crew of four, while Chinooks have 4-

"There's no rank, especially with the warrant officers - we do the job and go out and have a good time," he said. "It makes it easier in high-stress situations."

At the same time, his unit has been training for deployment to Iraq. He has earned two Army Achievement medals during training, one for number of flight hours and the other for aerial gunnery with an M-240H 7.62mm machine gun.

Orders for flight school should come in 2-3 months. The deployment order will probably come sooner, he said.

He's ready to go either way, he said.

"I try not to think about it too much," he said. "If I go, I'll do the best I can. Politics will be out the window. It'll just be you and your crew."

"We're very proud of him," said Kristi Beno, his mother. "In a short period of time, he has advanced considerably his dream is taking shape."

Sheriff provides free drug-testing kits

The Oakland County Sheriff's Office announced last week it received the first annual "L.E.A.D.ership" award for fighting substance abuse within local communities.

"I am honored to receive this award and look forward to continuing the fight against drug abuse," said Sheriff Michael Bouchard. "It's a team effort and every step towards building healthy, safe communities for our children makes a difference."

Through L.E.A.D. (Law Enforcement Against Drugs), the

OCSO purchases drug kits, which are made available to parents in the community at no cost.

The kits are funded by drug forfeiture dollars, and are one of the cornerstone programs in the Sheriff's community outreach efforts.

"By making these kits available to parents, we are putting one more tool in their hands to help combat substance abuse while also helping their children lead healthy, productive lives," Bouchard said.

For information obtaining a drug kit, contact the Oakland County Sheriff's Office at 248-858-5009.

Talk to your doctor if you can't shake those blues

By Ernie Harwell

From time to time, we can get down and just not feel like ourselves. It happens to all of us. You don't live on the mountain all your life, you have to come down in the valley. For most, it's a temporary thing and we "play over it."

But for others, it's not that simple. For them, feelings of hopelessness can last much longer and have a big effect on their lives. Experts can't put their finger on it, but they think depression is caused by things like our genes, chemical imblances in our brain, stressful events in our life, or a combination of these.

If you're feeling blue and it's just doesn't seem to be getting better, talk to your doctor and ask if you might be experiencing depression. If you are, your doctor can work with you and give you the help you need, so you can start feeling like yourself again.

And remember, take care of your health before it's lonnggg gone!

Ernie Harwell, "the voice of the Detroit Tigers" for more than four decades, retired after 55 years behind a major league microphone. Today, at age 86, Ernie's days are filled with serving as a health and fitness advocate for Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan, public appearances, writing, traveling and taking long walks with "Miss Lulu," his wife of more than 60 years. His latest book, a collection of his baseball columns entitled "Life After Baseball," is available at local bookstores or by calling 1-800-245-5082.

Historical society preserves Clarkston area

BY TREVOR KEISER

Clarkston News Staff Writer

In 1830, a man by the name of Linus Jacox became the first pioneer settler from New York to what became known as the Village of Clarkston. The village was named in 1842, after the two settlers who did the most to improve the town – their names were Nelson and Jeremiah Clark.

The history and even existence of this village was almost lost about 35 years ago, when the state of Michigan planned to widen Main Street to at least four lanes.

This plan would have caused many homes and businesses to be moved or torn down. But a group of determined and concerned citizens stopped the construction and worked hard to preserve this village by adding Clarkston to the National Register of Historic Places. That group of citizens became known as the Clarkston Community Historical Society.

The CCHS has been working hard since 1972 to preserve and educate the community about the history of this special village.

One of ways CCHS has preserved village history is through the Clarkston Heritage Museum, which opened seven-and-a halfyears ago in Nov. 1999.

The museum is located in a room at the Independence Township Library. The CCHS paid $50,000 for the room. It was known as the Community History Room for many years, before it became a museum.

"We are proud of our endeavors and accomplishments," said Jennifer Arkwright, president of CCHS Board.

Joining with the library also opens up opportunity for grants.

"Having a library-museum partnership is very valuable," said Toni Smith, museum director. "This situation is great for us because we don't have to be here at all times, and people can visit the library as well as the museum."

The museum exhibits are changed every six months. It costs about $4,000-$6,000 per exhibit. On exhibit now is "Clarkston Childhood; From Schoolyard to Farmyard."

A few of the exhibits have included Clarkston Schools' early years, early days of the Civil War and World War I and II, as well as different clothing fashions from late 1800s to mid 1900s.

The next exhibit is entitled "A Village Vacation" because Clarkston drew in many travelers from Pontiac and Detroit, who were looking for some cooler air and prettier scenery. It should be ready for viewers by the end of June.

Pictures, postcards, letters, and artifacts for the museum are found through antique shows, searches on Ebay, and donations. Smith is the only paid staff member.

"One of the unique things about having Toni as the director is that she has a background in graphic design and is an avid antique collector," said Arkwright. "She loves what she does and you can tell. She is very creative and professional."

Members of other historical societies have been impressed, including directors of Cranbrook and Meadowbrook halls, noted both Smith and Arkwright.

"The museum and the quality of it is taken with great pride," said Arkwright.

"It's very unique; we are not just about the historic district, but about the community and all the history."

The biggest source of funding for the museum is through Art in the Village, which this year marks its 33 year. It is set for Sept. 15-16 at Depot Park.

About 90 percent of proceeds from this event make up the whole year's budget for the museum. CCHS is always looking for more help to run this event. Other funding comes from grants and membership to the CCHS.

Other events put on by the CCHS include house and barn tours, which had more than 300 people this past October, cemetery walks, story tellers, and historical speakers on such topics as the Civil War and Women in History. The next barn tour will be Oct. 21.

In 1995 the CCHS also published and edited a book called "Our Children's Heritage - A History of Clarkston/Independence Twp." This book is currently used in local elementary schools to teach second graders about Clarkston's history.

The book was written by three school teachers, Bill Genshaw, Rosemary Lewis, and Julie Matthies. They wrote three books, all of which can be purchased through the museum or at the Union General Store for $10 each.

Arkwright is very proud of the individuals who represent the CCHS Board.

"We have a dedicated group of 10 people on our board, the support of CCHS membership, which enables us to provide professional, interesting, and fun activities for the communities, from our newsletter to Art in the Village, to our museum and everything in between."

For more information about the museum, call Smith at 248-922-0270 or visit www.clarkston historical.org.

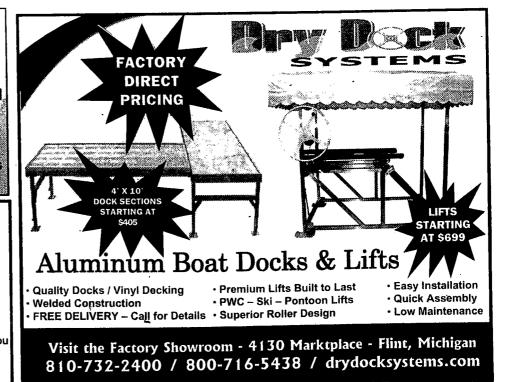

The museum is located at 6495 Clarkston Road and is open Mon-Thurs 10 a.m.-9 p.m., Friday, 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Saturday, 10 a.m.-5 p.m. and Sunday, 1 p.m.-5 p.m.

With Ladies wearing their long dresses, however, being on the opposite side of these conveyances, presented a bit of a problem.

It wasn't long before the idea to enclose the conduit system was utilized, leaving a much larger issue to be dealt with, disease downstream from exposure to the refuse and sewage.

This eventually led to the system we utilize today where sewage is treated and storm water is discharged directly to rivers and streams.

Nothing much has changed since the early separation of these waters except for the variety of pollutants and the shear volume of contamination, given the enormous percentage of impervious surface we have created as a nation.

Normally, when it rains, most of it seeps into the ground and travels as interflow to supply the surfacewater bodies that we use for any number of purposes.

This natural process is important as bacteria in the soil chow down on some of the contaminants while others simply attach themselves to the pollutants, preventing them to enter the watershed.

Conversely, as rain water washes over pavement, it collects anything and everything that might be on those surfaces: oil and grease, radiator fluid, salt, pesticides, sediment, pretty much anything you can think of that might be on your average tion of the month.

In the early development of our pavement. It is then discharged into those little drains you see along the roadway, which carries the run off and everything in it, directly to your local water body without being

That's right, no treatment. Direct discharge. Every bit of contamination is being washed directly into your local watershed. The more development, the more impervious surfaces, the more pollutants.

Are you starting to see where I'm going with this?

When you think of a watershed, you need to consider that although nature can and does compensate for a certain level of impact, there comes a point when the health of the ecosystem begins to decline.

Water is the life blood of the planet and nothing alive today can exist without it. Reflectively, rivers and streams are like the blood circulating in our bodies.

Consuming consistent and ever increasing amounts of junk food will eventually impact anyone's health. Some may be able to get away with it for a while, depending on genetics, but keep it up and eventually it will take its toll.

Our natural ecosystems are the same. There is only so much they can take before the results become evident. Depending on the hydrogeology of the area, the impacts will become noticeable at differing rates.

Living in the land of lakes means that our local vulnerability is remarkable. Lake and river levels are fed by infiltrating and interflow waters. Decrease in undeveloped land, coupled with filling in of wetlands and increase in impervious surface means less uncontaminated precipitation reaches it natural destination.

Once a watershed is in excess of 10 percent impervious surface, degradation will continue at ever increasing rates. This is why estimates of between 1/3 to 46% of all surface water bodies in this nation do not meet water quality standards.

Even if you believe the lesser of those, it's a whopping and very apparent impact.

Wolves advance to regionals with 8-3 win over Mott

BY PAUL KAMPE

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Using a "running start" philosophy, Waterford Mott should have had more than enough left for a second game Friday afternoon against Clarkston. But the Corsairs came up short in an 8-3 loss at Clarkston in the district finals, after stopping archrival Waterford Kettering 2-0 to start the day.

The Wolves, on the other hand, were able to sit out the first game due to forfeiture by Pontiac Central in their district semifinal.

"It makes no difference," Mott coach Ray Reid

"The advantage goes to us because we played first.

"I have no qualms about how I threw my pitchers."

The difference-maker, Reid said, was the number of errors the Corsairs (15-17) allowed in multi-run innings by the Wolves. Clarkston (22-14) posted three runs in the first and four in the fifth inning when Mott made four errors, to pull away.

"If we don't have the errors, we would have been back in it. We can't afford the errors. We can play with (Clarkston) and Kettering any day of the week," Reid said.

"It's hard to play through those. That's been one of our tendencies, if we have errors, we have more than one at a time."

The win gives Clarkston its first district championship since 2004 when they made their way to the state quarterfinals. The Wolves will get to play in the regional playoffs Saturday against Birmingham Seaholm, again on their home field.

"You're always going to have more fans when you play at home and it's a comfort zone. They play on this field all the time and they know it better depthwise," Clarkston coach Don Peters said.

Peters said the victory was "sweet" because Mott eliminated the Wolves each of the past two seasons in the playoffs.

The Corsairs' early game victory affected their play in the nightcap, Peters said.

"They had to get pumped up to beat their rivals, that was an advantage to us."

The Wolves' hitting and efficiency around the bases projected them to the win, Peters said.

Dare to Dream summer basketball camp for girls coming soon

Clarkston girls basketball head coach Tim Wasilk, his coaching staff and current Clarkston players will teach students the fundamentals of basketball. The camp is designed to help everyone improve their game, from beginners to longtime players. The camp will have instruction on shooting technique, ball handling drills, defensive fundamentals, station work, competitive games, hot shot, lightning, one-on-one and free-throw knockout.

The Dare to Dream basketball camp is from Monday, June 18, through Thursday, June 21, at the CHS gym for girls entering fourth-ninth grades. The camp runs from 9 a.m. - 1p.m. and registration is $140, which also includes a basketball t-shirt.

Camp registration forms can be found at any Clarkston Community School or the CHS athletic office. For more information, e-mail head coach Tim Wasilk at wasilktl@clarkston.k12.mi.us.

"We try to make things happen. We're a slapperand dragging-type team and we move the ball around and it worked," he said.

"That doesn't just happen, we work really hard on that."

The Wolves used a good day from their top four in their batting order, which has returning All-State honorable mention Katie Smith batting at leadoff and Kara Wandrie, Jenny Jochum, and Taylor Hasselbach behind her. In the Wolves' first, fifth, and sixth innings, the first three batters reached base and Hasselbach cleaned up, with a four-RBI performance.

"She is the catalyst. She gets it started and all three have confidence in her," Peters said.

"They're all similar players. We teach them to do all three, they hit, slap and drag. They stay after practice and they've worked hard at it all year long and it paid off."

Peters sees great potential for his freshman slugger Hasselbach.

"As a freshman, she's got tremendous composure, great bat control. She's got good speed and power. What more could you ask for? To have her for three more years," Peters said.

May 12-13, Clarkston Select Soccer Club's Impact '96 boys white under-11 team took the 25th annual Midland Invitational tournament. The boys are one of two teams in the age bracket, which began when the players were between 7-8 years old.

"Their teamwork really developed this year and helped them do well in the tournament," Tracey Trim, whose son Alex is in his third year with the team, said.

"They're really becoming united and you can see that at this age."

The boys posted two shutout wins in four games at the tournament and outscored their opponents 11-4.

The boys finished second in the major blue division of the Michigan Youth Soccer League last fall and were rewarded with a jump to the premiere division this spring.

Tryouts for the 2007-'08 team will be June 15-16 at Clintonwood Park.

CSSC will have new team tryouts for boys and girls ages 7-17 June 16-18, also at Clintonwood Park.

Wolves advance to soccer district finals with 1-0 win

BY PAUL KAMPE

Clarkston News Staff Writer

They say dog is man's best friend, but a crossbar on the north end goal of Karl Richter soccer field in Holly ended up being Clarkston's at the end of the day Thursday. Clarkston keeper Demaree Wells was aided by the top iron post on two Lakeland key scoring opportunities where the Eagles (2-12-4) couldn't find the net, giving the Wolves (6-13-1) a 1-0 win in the district semifinals

Clarkston advanced to play the Grand Blanc in the district final Saturday.

Each team had plenty of chances to net the game-winner, but Clarkston capitalized first when Courtney Meharg booted the ball nearly the entire length of the Lakeland zone on a break, beating Eagles keeper Sam Miller with 21:13 remaining. Wells stopped all 11 shots the Eagles gave her and the two from premium scoring position by Lakeland's Katie McNulty.

"We've been talking about that all season. She's a sophomore and that's her fourth or fifth goal. That's why she plays forward, because she'll attack the ball and shoot it," Clarkston coach Sarah Smith said.

Although the Wolves earned a berth in the district finals, Smith felt the girls could have played with more passion.

"It's a win, (but) it was an ugly win," Smith said.

"There was no intensity in the first half. We came out better in the second half. I still feel like we were a little bit in slow motion."

The Wolves came out differently than they had in an 8-0 win May 29 in the district opener against Waterford Kettering.

"We were intense in the wrong way.

It was just kickball and yelling today. Against Kettering, we had intensity in the right way," Smith said.

Smith was certain Clarkston would return and play strong in the finals against the Bobcats. After scouting both potential opponents for the finals, Grand Blanc and Milford, Smith decided both teams to be too far out of character because of injuries to get a significant gauge of either for a finals showdown.

While Wells owned the net for Clarkston after making the jump from junior varsity late in the season, Lakeland coach Curt Whitefield was forced to pull up six members of the Eagles' lower ranks. Four Lakeland starters missed the game due to attending senior prom.

Whitefield remained pleased with his girls' performances throughout this season

"These girls have fired up toward the end of this season. We've had a lot of things we've had to battle through with injuries," he said.

"What you got was the best game we've played this season with just incredible opportunities to tie or win this game. It's actually nice to end the season on a note like this, but it's kind of bittersweet because we think we could have won."

The Eagles' battle plan to stick to the outside of the field may have been executed too well, Whitefield said.

"The only thing I could begin to criticize is that we stuck to our game plan and hit the corners. At the end when we're really trying to score, the girls were looking toward the goal a little bit more. They did make some good moves up the side," he said.

In 2006, Clarkston lost in the district finals to Rochester Adams. Look for the results of the district finals at www.clarkstonnews.com.

U of D Jesuit takes 15-3 win in regional lacrosse play

BY PAUL KAMPE Staff Writer

After checking off "win regional opener" from their playoff checklist for the first time, Clarkston is left with another goal for next year's boys lacrosse season: advancing to the regional final.

The Wolves fell 15-3 to the University of Detroit Jesuit at Walled Lake Northern Thursday in the regional semifinals. The win propelled the Cubs to the finals where they were to meet Birmingham United Saturday afternoon.

Clarkston (12-9) came out firing in the first six minutes of the first quarter, getting a goal from Steve Giannaris and another by Jon Avery five minutes later with 6:12 remaining to post a 2-0 lead. Clarkston wouldn't change the illuminated maroon light bulbs of the scoreboard until Chris Salo scored with 7:24 remaining in the game.

UDJ (6-14) added the final four goals of the first quarter, playing like a team possessed with their fast-paced game.

"We knew U of D was a quick team and they're used to playing at a faster rate. One thing we wanted to do was slow the ball down and once they got it rolling, it was tough for us," Clarkston coach Bryan Kaminskas said.

"They're used to playing faster and the ball bounces their way when that happens."

The Wolves try to prepare for the advanced level of play expected in the playoffs by scheduling non-conference challenges with strong programs, Kaminskas said.

"We were anticipating playing tougher teams at this point in the year, we were doing our best to prepare," he said.

"We scouted them a few times and the things we coached to prepare for in practice, we mastered. The certain plays they ran, we locked down and did fine. This is the speed we expected and we're just not there yet."

Clarkston forced UDJ to play a "run-and-gun" game and search around the field, Kaminskas said.

The Cubs posted three goals in the second quarter, giving themselves a 7-2 lead at the half and pulled further away with a fivegoal third quarter. UDJ fired 29 shots on Clarkston keeper Zack Lewy.

"He did alright. The problem with the speed of the game is that the goalie is going to get hung out to dry like that,"

Kaminskas said.

"He stood tall and did a pretty good job. He's an All-State candidate and he played deserving of that."

Cubs senior attackman Tim Van Tiem, who scored four goals, has ascended to team-leader status, UDJ coach Sean Leary said.

"He played phenomenal. He's a kid that's been hurt a lot of the year," Leary said.

"He's the quarterback of our offense and not having him hurt us because we couldn't get in a flow on offense. He possesses the ball well and he creates things and can settle things down."

A win over a quality team like Clarkston bodes well for the Cubs as they move on in the playoffs, Leary said.

"They picked up the effort and played very hard. That was the big difference. Our guys played as hard as they have all year," he said.

"They're a good team and you don't come out and play hard and make mistakes, they're going to take advantage.

"We stopped making mistakes and started to play harder after the first six minutes."

Avondale prevails in hitter's duel, 18-17

BY PAUL KAMPE

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Friday's baseball district final between Clarkston and Auburn Hills Avondale was all about momentum. The Yellow Jackets had plenty coming off an 8-7 win over Waterford Mott in the semifinals, where sophomore Steve Bohne hit a solo shot in the bottom of the seventh to win. The Wolves made their way into the finals much easier, with a three-inning 19-0 route of Pontiac Central.

The Yellow Jackets (20-11) were able to carry the energy into the first inning nearly an hour after an elating victory, knocking Clarkston (15-18) starter Josh Hall for nine runs in the first inning. The Wolves pecked away at the lead with a run in the second and two in the third, but exploded for seven runs on seven hits in the fourth inning to tie the game at 10 runs apiece.

After late rallies by both teams, the Wolves came just one run shy of pushing the game to extra innings, 18-17.

"The momentum just carried right over in that first inning where we scored nine runs," Avondale coach Tom Kurczewski said.

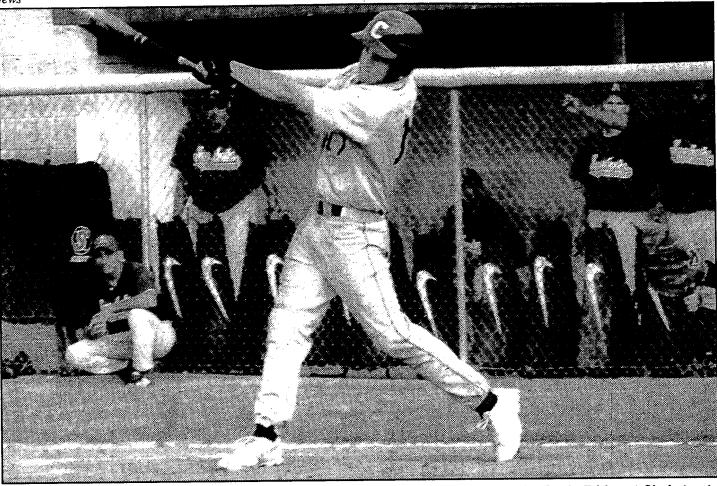

"It's not surprising, but at the same time the way the game turned out, (it) was a rollercoaster."

For the Yellow Jackets, their first year playing in division I proved to be fruitful as they claimed their first district championship since 2002. Avondale returns to Clarkston this weekend to play in the regional playoffs.

"Coming into this year I thought we had a pretty good squad, but we got off to a poor start in OAA III," Kurczewski

"Once we fell out (of contention) we played up and down all year. I kept telling the guys they had a second chance in districts.'

Seven errors in the first inning broke the Wolves' backs, Clarkston coach Phil Price said.

"It was some timely hitting and some poor defense in the field for them and for us. We can't afford to do that. You can't afford to give a team four, five, six or 10 outs an inning. We gave them 10 outs in that first inning. You can't do that," he said.

"I was proud of the kids, they fought back and battled. They dug themselves a pretty big hole and they came back. This was one of our better-hitting games."

Josh Lawrence came in and steadied Clarkston's ship in the second inning, allowing two runs over the next four innings to keep the Wolves in a position to

"He did an extremely good job. He pitched three innings on Tuesday, so I felt he gave us a great opportunity to get back in the game," Price said.

"He came in and shut the door on them and really gave us a chance to get back in the game. He pitched really

With a seven run fourth inning, the Wolves essentially made the game a new, three-inning affair, Kurczewski said.

Leading 11-10 in the sixth inning, the Yellow Jackets managed to crack of the inning. Lawrence after Ryan Ahern led off the inning with a double. Nick Shamoun came to the mound and found trouble immediately. He walked Donovan Rigel on four pitches and Bohne's successful bunt loaded the bases. Shamoun then walked Caleb Tift to score a run. Bo Thomas' RBI double to right field scored Rigel and Bohne for a 14-10 Avondale advantage.

Alexander Carter relieved Shamoun with no Yellow Jackets out and Avondale scored four more runs before the inning was over.

"When you give up nine runs in the first inning, that's tough to battle back from," Price said.

"Eventually we chipped away and had a big inning of our own and that put us right back in the game. (But) then we opened the door for them."

In the home half of the sixth, Richie Woods led off with a double and Joey Preston scored him on a single in the next at bat. Brandon Harris reached base on a Yellow Jackets' error and Eric Ogg loaded the bases. Steve Harvey's bloop single to right field scored Harris' pinchrunner Cody Noel. Kurczewski brought in Bohne to pitch and he struck out Hall and Taylor for the first two outs

Shamoun was walked with the bases loaded to make the game 18-13.

After Joel Lange's infield RBI single, Woods had a two-RBI single of his own to close the gap to two runs, 18-16. Joey Preston scored Lange with an RBI single before Noel lined out to Austin Hill at second base to end the rally.

Hall came back from playing right field to the mound in the seventh inning and Avondale couldn't get anything started.

Ogg flied out in an attempt to start another Clarkston rally in the seventh inning. Harvey gave them signs of life with an infield single, but Hall flew out and Taylor grounded out to first base to end the game.

Kurczewski felt the Yellow Jackets visit to Clarkston in a late-season 10-1 loss allowed them to get a bead on Hall, the Wolves starting pitcher who had 11 strikeouts in that game.

"We knew what he was all about. Guys were ready right at the beginning of the (first) inning. (Clarkston) made some errors in the inning, but we hit pretty well," Kurczewski said.

Touchstone hurdles way to All-State honors

BY PAUL KAMPE

Clarkston News Staff Writer

For Clarkston junior Autumn Touchstone, being an All-State hurdler is a family affair. Her mother Kimberly completed the feat in high school and like her mother, Autumn is in the record books.

Touchstone (15.31) took sixth place in the 100-meter hurdles Saturday at East Kentwood in the state finals after taking 16th place in 2006. As a freshman in 2005, Touchstone also qualified for the state meet.

Touchstone adds'the honor to her regional championship in the same event. She was also Oakland Activities Association champion in the 300-meter hurdles.

Touchstone qualified for the state meet in three other events: 300-meter hurdles, long jump and as member of the Wolves' 400-meter relay team.

This season was Touchstone's third at the state's grand stage, a fact she hoped would calm her nerves

Clarkston finished 3-2 in meet competition this season, and second overall in OAA division I. The Wolves also put together a regional track championship at the event, which it hosted three weeks ago.

Consistently racing against some of Oakland County's premiere talent is an excellent preparation for the state meet.

"There's no surprises, I know what to expect for states and weekly we're going against tough competition in every event," Touchstone said.

"We know what they're bringing to (their) team."

A hurdler since middle school, Touchstone took up track because of her mother's past in the sport.

"She helps me because she used to coach track and she knows form and what I need to fix and with her help and (coach John) Yorke's help, it really helps me out," Touchstone said.

Touchstone has been running in the 100- and 300meter hurdles in addition to the long jump. Her flexibility is a boon for Yorke because he's been able to shuffle her around for a fourth event.

Touchstone

"She's the most versatile athlete we have," Yorke said.

"It helps the team and it helps her for her own training to be able to run different events."

Touchstone's maturation into this season has continued to set her apart, Yorke said.

"Her dedication for all these years has been the biggest thing. She matured this year and realized she is a multi-event athlete and not just a hurdler."

Yorke remained confident in Touchstone's ability to place in one of her events at the state meet. The 300-meter hurdles are her strong suit, he said.

"She's put the time in to become conditioned for that race. You need to have more endurance for the 300-meter hurdles than the 100," Yorke said.

"You're running for 45 seconds and you really have to be in condition to sprint that whole distance and that's where she's put the time and effort into to get better this year."

With another year remaining in her high school career, Touchstone is looking into running track in college at University of Michigan or Michigan State University. She hopes to pursue a degree in secondary-level education and her goal is to become an English teacher. In her free time, Autumn enjoys reading and likes creative writing and opinion pieces.

With expansion in its eyes, Clarkston Medical Group has been adding physicians each year as they anticipate a move to a medical campus with McLaren Health Care Corporation. Dr. Christina Joslin D.O., of Rochester, joined the group as a doctor of family medicine about one month ago.

Joslin has been practicing medicine for five years and joins CMG after working at a private practice in Washington Township. Joslin enjoys the flexible scheduling and "strong hospital-based medicine" CMG can provide.

Joslin enjoys communicating with patients and curing them after getting to know the family all together.

"It's a privilege that people come and they're willing to tell you very intimate details and trust you with that knowledge and expect you to take that information and help them," she said.

"People come in with physical complaints, but you don't understand the psychological picture behind that and why they're having all these symptoms where it really could be psychological, emotional or mental and how all of that factors in, especially from a family practice stand-

"You're able to help the family along if you know several members of the family instead of being in a sub-specialty."

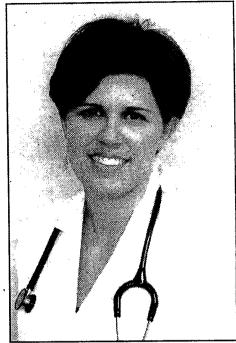

A mother of four children, Joslin said having children has helped her while practicing medicine.

"Children are not little adults. They express their pains differently. They can't tell you their stomach hurts the same way and they don't express themselves the same way adults do," she said.

"Listening to my own kids and figuring out what they're really talking about definitely helps me with speed and accuracy with pediatrics."

For Joslin, a 1999 medical school graduate from Michigan State University, a change of heart got her into medicine as an undergrad at University of Michigan. While at UM studying to become a chemical engineer, she discovered she wanted to use her personality in her line of work, something not easily done in a cubicle.

"I decided that I had much more of an interest talking to people, in that human

Dr. Christina Joslin joined the Clarkston Medical Group one month ago and practices family medicine. Photo by Paul Kampe aspect rather than working on chemical formulas," Joslin said.

"Sitting and working on a formula all day wasn't my thing."

CMG's expansion with the McLaren project, where patients will be able to get several different treatments accomplished in the same campus, was also a big prospect for Joslin coming to the practice.

"At most places, you're sending people everywhere," she said.

After physical exams, patients realistically only get to half of the places they were assigned to go by their physician because it becomes too burdensome, Joslin said.

"This is huge to have so many subspecialties under one roof," she said.

Joslin's husband Anthony is an emergency room doctor at Beaumont Hospital in Troy. The couple moved back to Michigan from North Carolina wo years ago after Anthony finished his ork with the armed forces. The couple en oys traveling and entertaining friends.

Christina, a running enthusiast, is looking to get back into the sport with a triathlon or a half-marathon.

A section dedicated to showcasing the reasons this is a great area to live and work!

Independence Township resident Paul Ulrich spends Thursdays brightening the remaining days of terminally ill patients at a local hospice facility. Above, Ulrich and hospice patient Virginia McCauley, 92, share laughs during lively conversation.

[t's not sad' Man brings companionship and comfort to terminally ill

BY LAURA COLVIN

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Every Thursday, Paul Ulrich climbs into his car and steers north on M-15 to Genesys Hospice, where he spends his day visiting with the terminally ill.

It's a volunteer endeavor he began some two years ago, six months after his wife Mary Ann passed away.

'We lived the American dream," said Ulrich, 71, a retired engineer. "We got married and had four boys. We got a mortgage, planted a tree and bought a new car.'

But Mary Ann suffered a stroke in her early sixties, and spent four years battling back from seizures and paralysis.

It was a long process, but she was recovering, and ready to re-apply for her driver's license when the unthinkable happened.

Mary Ann was diagnosed with stagefour, inoperable lung cancer.

'It was horrible," Ulrich said, remembering the helplessness of watching the woman he loved suffer so much. "She was in pain, she couldn't breathe. It was terrible. Terrible.

And a difficult experience in the hospital made it all worse.

The entire family was stressed, not eating, and running on two or three hours sleep every night.

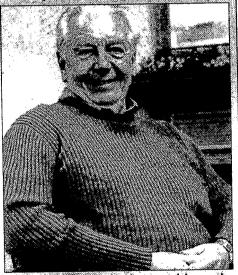

A new crisis hit, every half hour, it seemed, for 10 long days, as the veracity of Mary Ann's illness set in.

"It was unbelievable," Ulrich said. "How could this possibly be happening? But it is. The reality is, she's terminally ill. Really, truly terminally ill."

And so he made a decision; remembered a promise.

Mary Ann was going to die, that seemed certain.

But if her husband had his way—and he would—she would not die in pain. She

"I have friends who have a big problem with how I can even come here. But the fact that I feel I'm accomplishing something worth while is what its all about."

Paul Ulrich, Genesys Hospice volunteer would not die in the hospital environment where her family was treated as if they were in the way.

So around 7:30 one evening, Ulrich made the call to Genesys Hospice in Goodrich, where a dear friend had recently spent her last hours.

The load immediately lightened as a woman's voice assured him a bed was available for his wife.

Call first thing in the morning, she said, and we'll make arrangements to bring her

"By 11 o'clock, my wife was ready to see us," he said. "And her hair was combed and she's in this beautiful little flowered gown and everything is as neat as a pin.

After the family visited about three or four hours, he remembered, a nurse came in and asked whether they'd eaten anything

Of course, no one had.

Suddenly, there were turkey sandwiches for everyone, and coffee and pop. And people who cared whether or not the family needed to be fed.

"There's this holistic approach," Ulrich said. "You can just feel this unbelievable weight lifted off your shoulders. There's all these people who's mission it is to take care of you."

gratulations and celebrations.

It is an exciting time of many transitions. It is a time to look ahead as well as a time to look back. It is a time to experience the satisfaction of accomplishment and anticipation about the future, and yet it is also an occasion of loss of the familiar.

Above all, things change upon graduation and there is an abundance of advice from many sources about life and how to live it.

Of all the wise and helpful words that can be shared at graduation time, I believe there is none more basic and none more easily forgotten in the busyness of life, than something I learned even before I completed kindergar-

You probably even know the song. It goes like this, "Jesus loves me this I know..." I am loved and accepted by God no matter what career path I take, no matter how much I achieve or how much money I make. And God will love and forgive me no matter what mistakes I make on the journey of life.

Above all, God desires to have a relationship of love with me. God is faithful and will always be there for me.

When I base my life on this fundamental trust in God's goodness and grace I am free from having to always prove my worth and value. I am free to mold my life around God's will and purpose, and to follow Jesus' example. I am free to do everything I can to grow in love towards God and others (see the Great Commandment

For graduates everywhere this is a season of con- in Mark 12:28-31). I am free to do all of this not so God will love and accept me, but because of it.

God never promises we will have an easy life if we stay close to him and follow his way, but he does promise that our life will have purpose and depth, and that we will not be alone. That is enough for me.

A short time ago I shared with the graduates in our church a word of blessing and challenge. I have adapted it from something called simply "A Franciscan Blessing." For me it captures what is different about a life lived with Jesus. It is about so much more than being religious.

It is a different way of going about life that goes deeper. It is not the easy way, but I believe it is God's

May God bless you with discomfort at easy answers, half truths, and superficial relationships, so that you may live deep within your heart. Amen.

May God bless you with anger at injustice, oppression, and exploitation of people, so that you may work for justice, freedom and peace. Amen.

May God bless you with tears to shed for those who suffer from pain, rejection, starvation and war, so that you may reach out your hand to comfort them and to turn their pain into joy. Amen.

May God bless you with enough foolishness to believe that you can make a difference in this world, so that you can do what others claim cannot be done. Amen.

May God bless you with the assurance of his amazing grace, that you may always know that nothing can ever separate you from the love of God in Christ Jesus.

For Pack 499 Cub Scouts of Pine Knob Elementary, May 19 was a day to fish.

Scouts and their families learned from professional and tournament fishermen at the fifthannual Fishing Derby at Crooked Lake, Independence Oaks.

Participants were given rulers, pens and tracking logs to record the inches of each fish caught. The catch-and-release event was based on the honor system. At the end of the three-hour fishing tournament, four young scouts were awarded trophies for the most total inches of their top five fish aught. In addition, kid's fishing ats were awarded for smallest and largest catch of the day.

At the end of the event, each participant received a souvenir T-shirt provided by the two fishermen, a certificate of participation and special drawings for several tackle boxes and rod/reel sets and miscellaneous prizes donated by the Gillman brothers and the Oakland County Sportfishing Association.

Two scouts and their parents headed out on each of the tournament boats to fish and learn some angling techniques from one of the experienced anglers.
