'We're going broke'

Johnston says scrutiny, planning key to city's economic survival

BY LAURA COLVIN

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Challenging the appearance of disinterest in Clarkston's 2007-2008 proposed budget—by community and city council members both—Councilman and budget committee member Cory Johnston delivered a bleak outlook on the city's financial

At the June 11 public budget hearing, attended by two residents, Johnston warned that the city will face economic ruin unless the council begins to take a careful look at the numbers and plan for the long term.

Councilman Bill Rausch advised Johnston to "be thankful" for a shortage of comments regarding the city's shrinking bud-

"I'm not thankful," Johnston snapped. "I'm actually quite upset. I was quite upset with last year's budget because we didn't do anything and it came up to the day we voted and (City Manager Art Pappas) said it was too late to make changes, but we would address it later in the year. We never did."

Johnston acknowledged he was as much at fault as the other six council members, but said the process needs significant improvement.

'We're going broke, it's that simple," he said. "And there is no plan to do anything about it. We need to either raise revenues or go beat on Jennifer's door and say 'what are you going to do for small communities?""

Referring to Michigan Gov. Jennifer Granholm, Johnston said he didn't hope for much help from Lansing.

The city will operate on an anticipated budget of $776,532 during the coming fiscal year.

Johnston, a first-term council member, reiterated worry that revenues have decreased by about $119,000 over the last four years, while disbursements over the same period dropped a disproportionate $88,000.

Based on those numbers an average of $30,000 in lost revenue per year over the fouryear span—the city managed to cut expenses by about $22,000 Please see Council on page 12A

Shared-service study may prove feasible after all

BY LAURA COLVIN

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Officials are reconsidering a sharedservice study after an acrimonious start threatened to thwart efforts and redraw old battle lines between Clarkston and Independence Township.

"We had a really good positive meeting with the city (of Clarkston)," said Independence Township Trustee Dan Kelly, who proposed the feasibility study in March, claiming taxpayers could save as much as $1,000 annually if the two municipalities became one. "I found the three council members to be open minded, and trying to do what's best for the city."

Kelly, who met with Clarkston City Council members Cory Johnston, Kristy Ottman and Jim Brueck, along with township Trustee Charles Dunn, said collection would be the primary goal of the proposed study, with a focus on the current exchange of fees and services.

Kelly has said he owes it to Independence Township residents to make sure the township is receiving a fair price for the services it provides to the 962-resident village.

The township currently levies a fee of $154,365 for fire protection, and $36,725 for library services to Clarkston residents, including a 10-percent administrative fee of about $19,100.

"There really is no relationship between the services provided and how we're charging for them," said Kelly. "There's no rational basis for (the current system of) charging amounts based on (Clarkston) property values, and charging the same as we would charge our residents."

The city also paid $31,700 last year for midnight police protection by the Oakland County Sheriff's Office, but that contract will end July 1 when the city reverts to fulltime policing by its own

The proposed feasibility study—paid for by Oakland County's Capital and Cooperative Initiatives Revolving Fundhelped fuel a tense situation, however, when Clarkston City Council members learned of Kelly's bold consolidation proposal through secondhand reports.

"I take some responsibility for that," said Kelly. "I thought coming forward and showing the city I could save as much as $900 or $1000 a year per home would be enough, but obviously the process is going to be a little longer."

According to Kelly's estimates, residents in Independence Township and Clarkston could save a combined $300,000 annually in taxes through such a measure.

Still, Kelly said, community reaction most of it negative—illustrated that many Clarkston residents are willing to pay higher taxes to preserve the community's historical features.

Kelly said he was eager to move forward, and revised the study application to remove any direct reference to con-

"This study is going to produce beneficial results to both communities," he said. "We're going to have greater sharing of resources and we're going to save taxpayer money as a result of this entire initiative."

Jack Lorimer of Clarkston celebrated the start of summer break by catching a 21-inch-long fish.

Local fisherman nets big catch

Jack Lorimer, Clarkston eighth grader, pulled a 5.5-pound bass out of Peanut Pond in the Bridge Valley subdivision June 12.

He was fishing with his brother Brian Lorimer and close friend Grant Huber.

The 21-inch-long fish put up a fight, Jack said. "I couldn't believe my eyes. The last fish that fought that hard was a salmon I caught on Lake Michigan," he said.

Grandparents Bernadine and Bill Lorimer hosted the day's event at their home in Bridge Valley, Mike Lorimer, Jack's father, took the opportunity to teach him and his friends the importance of such a catch.

"It's all about the story," Mike said. "We were sure to measure it from all angles, and how you hold the fish makes all the difference for the cameras."

Jack attends Clarkston Junior High. This was his first outing with his friends since the summer recess began. When asked, Jack said the most exciting part of the day was "reeling it in!"

Briefly

School budget hearing Tuesday

The public will have a chance to talk to the Clakston Board of Education Tuesday about the school budget.

Public hearing and school board vote on the 2007-2008 budget is set for the June 25 meeting.

Revenue is about $73.8 million, up from $73.0 million in 2006-2007. Expenditures are about $77.3 million, down from $78.7 million last year, mostly due to budget cuts. This year's deficit is about $3.5 million, down from $5.7 million last year.

The school board's goal was to reduce the deficit in half this year, with the rest eliminated next year.

The board meets at Clarkston Community Schools Administration Building, 6389 Clarkston Road, at 7 p.m. Call 248-623-5400 for more information.

Clarkston cuts sandwich boards

Business owners in Clarkston can no longer use sundwich board signs to attract customers.

The city council voted 6-1 June 11 to begin enforcing an ordinance banning the signs from any public right-of-ways, although the boards may still be placed on privately owned property.

The ordinance has not been strictly enforced in the past, and business owners were allowed to use the signs as long as they were brought inside at closing time.

Many downtown shops, however, did not comply with the request, and numerous issues arose.

Members of the council said they planned to address the issue, agreeing businesses do need an alternate form of street advertising.

City Councilman Jim Brucck said the council would be open to suggestions from business owners. "They know better than us what "They know better than us what would work and what wouldn't," he

Business owners will receive a letter notifying them of the new policy, which will begin July 1.

Concerts in the Park start Friday

BY TREVOR KEISER

Clarkston News Staff Writer

It's that time of year again when bands rock the stage at the annual Concerts in the Park series June 22 through July 27.

This is the 28th season of Concerts in the Park, hosted by Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce.

"We are looking forward to this year," said Executive Director Penny Shanks. "We have all new bands as headliners this year."

Shanks will be working alongside Maureen Murphy-Boyd and Carol Peters, co-chairs for Concerts in the Park.

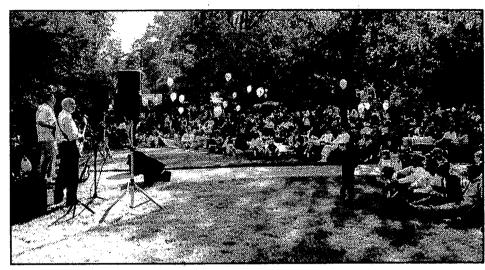

"They bring a lot of energy to the committee and this whole event," said Shanks.

Included at this year's concession stand will be The Chocolate Moose, who will be offering Mackinac Island Creamery ice cream.

Another concession stand will rotate among non-profit organizations, such as Rotary Club, Optimists, and Clarkston Village Players.

"It has been a lot of fun, and we get a wonderful response," said Murphy-Boyd.

The Concerts in the Park series offers families of all ages a time to enjoy the summer season together,

Beaumont location still a sticky issue

BY TREVOR KEISER

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Beaumont plans are scaled back, but location is still a problem for many residents and township planners.

The Independence Township Planning Commission met June 14 to review preliminary plans for Beaumont's hospital complex on M-15 just north of I-75.

According to Beaumont officials, the medical center would be a great investment for the community. In a low Michigan economy, the complex would open up 1,500 jobs for the community, as well as meet the need for a local nursing home.

However, many residents said the location is a "very invasive gesture on Beaumont's part."

"Beaumont hears us but they do not take us serious, we don't want massive development that invades major neighborhoods, violates our master plans, and violates our height restrictions," said resident Neil Wallace. "The board needs to stand firm and send them back to the drawing board."

Questions were raised concerning lighting, parking lot size, ground water, entry way off M-15 and its proximity to the I-75 entrance ramp, widening of M-15 at Clarkston Road, and how the hospital affects the value of houses surrounding the facility.

"Anytime you have 100-plus residents voice their concerns, they are valid and we need to take them into account," said Planning Commission member Curt Carson.

Resident Karen Mee said she used to own a house near the Beaumont hospital in Royal Oak and was able to sell it for three times what she paid for it.

"I understand the concerns of many of the residents, but I do believe that this is for the overall good of the community," she said "Especially bringing in jobs during a low economy."

Beaumont officials say the project will include 63-percent green space once all phases are completed. Planning Commission Chairwomen Cheryl Karrick said the green space could be better used to relocate some of the buildings, and move them away from residents.

Beaumont did a Residential Impact Study on three other medical centers to determine what effect the hospital would have on residential home val. . .

According to Carson, the other projects were located in highly commercialized areas. The house values were in the $100,000-200,000 range, while here, house values are $400,000-$1 million.

"It's a whole other ball game," he said. "They are not comparable."

The board set up a sub-committee to go over the questions, before they move on to a public hearing. The sub-committee will consist of three planning commission members, building director, township consultants, and Beaumont consultants.

"My biggest concern with moving forward with the public hearing is not knowing whether we have clearance for an entrance off M-15 with the location of the I-75 onramp," said Karrick.

Beaumont official Dick Baubien said it could take 3-6 months to get an answer from Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) and the Federal Highway commission.

Eric Hunt, vice president of operations for Beaumont's Hospital Ambulatory Services Division, was unavailable for comment.

Local author draws on family's experiences

BY PHIL CUSTODIO

Clarkston News Editor

The inspiration for Clarkston author Rosemary McDunn's first book came from her grandparents.

"As a child, my grandmother would share stories of how they lived then," McDunn said.

Her grandparents, George and Marie Berger, lived in North Dakota in the 1930s, as does the family in McDunn's historical-fiction novel "The Green Coat: A Tale from the Dust Bowl Years."

"Those were some trying times. She would tell us in her thick, German accent about the drought – she said they went seven years without a drop of rain."

Families lost their crops, livestock, homes, and businesses, but managed to survive, she said.

"It was a different time," she said.
"People worked together."

The book, published last year by Bezalel Books, tells the story of a young girl who, along with her brother, is "farmed out" as a domestic worker to help her family.

"At first, she hates it, but she preservers and finds that she has skills she can use," she said. "It's a heart-warming story."

The character is based on her mother, Theresa Candella, who experienced similar events growing up.

A sixth-grade teacher at Our Lady of the Lakes school in Waterford, McDunn includes a teachers' guide with the book, with sections on vocabulary, question-and-answer, and Treasure Hunt for figurative language such as similes, metaphors, and personification.

Growing up, she read Little House on the Prairie, Nancy Drew, and many other book series.

"I loved to read as a kid," she said.
"I loved the sound of words and figurative language. I wrote poetry. I always liked putting words to paper."

Her second book, "When Kids Dream and Trucks Fly," published this year by Bezalel, was written before her first.

"I finished it about five years ago," she said. "I didn't think about publishing it until the success of 'The Green Coat.' I'm really pleased with both of them."

"When Kids Dream," a picture book, was inspired by her childhood.

Growing up in Berkley, Mich., she and her brother Tom would play on an old flatbed truck behind the local corner gas station every day during the summer.

"In our imaginations, it would become a fire truck, or a ship sailing out to sea," she said. "It was a great tool for our imaginations. That was what kids did back them."

The story, told in whimsical poetry form, encourages imagination, she said.

"It's important to use your imagination and be creative in play, and depend less on video games," she said.

She gives author presentations at local schools, emphasizing children's imaginations.

"I make it interactive – kids love it," she said.

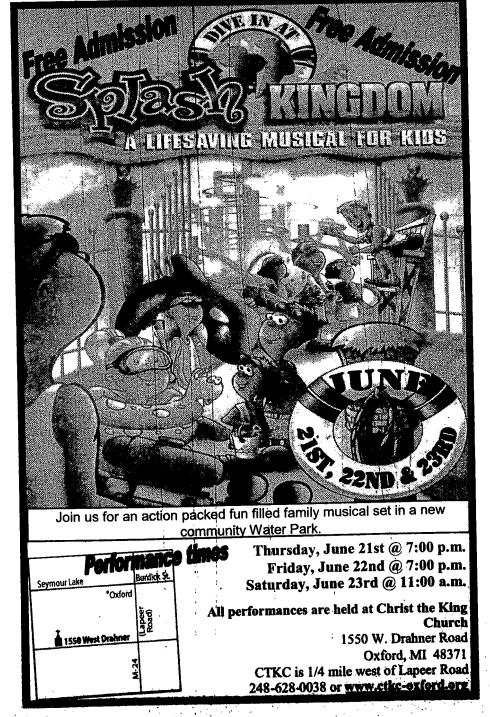

She and her husband, Pat, have lived in Clarkston for the past 22 years. They have two sons, Kevin, set to attend Argosy University in Chicago, and Michael, student at Oakland University.

With the positive response to her books, she plans to continue writing.

"I'm definitely planning a sequel to 'The Green Coat,'" she said. "I plan to get cracking on it this summer."

Her books are available at BezalelBooks.com, Amazon.com, and BarnesandNoble.com.

Walkers help fight cancer at local relay

BY PAUL KAMPE

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Volunteers looking to donate their time to a great cause are filling local tracks to benefit cancer research through the American Cancer Society.

The same goes for Kim Fischer, second year chairperson of the eighth-annual Relay for Life Clarkston, which begins Saturday at 10 a.m. at Clarkston Junior High School. The event will open with a "victory lap" for cancer survivors and then each team, Fischer estimates about 25, will keep a team member circling the track until 10 a.m.

Last year's relay raised about $100,000 and the goal is $10,000 more for this year, Fischer said.

Each team will sponsor different fund-raising activities such as dunk tanks, karaoke, and ice cream sales. Some laps will dictate the outfits of each walker such as Hawaiian and patriotic-themed laps.

One of the highlights of the nighttime walk is the 10 p.m. luminaria display. Luminarias, available for a $10 donation, will have lighted candles inside paper bags in memory of cancer patients.

Relay for Life began in 1985 when Dr. Gordy Klatt, a surgeon in Washington, wanted to raise money for the local office of the American Cancer Society. City should follow its own laws

Dear Editor,

I'm sorry: I just don't get it!

The City of the Village of Clarkston was created by an affirmative vote of the residents in 1992 to adopt a proposed charter, thus creating the municipality we have today.

According to the Preamble, citizens agreed that "We...establish this Charter for the City, in order to secure the benefits of local self government...."

The charter carried over "all valid ordinances, resolutions, rules and regulations" which were in effect at the time of the passage of the charter. Additional ordinances and resolutions have been added since 1992.

These sure seem like the "laws" of our little city. But, according to some city council members, and the city attorney, these laws may be followed in a manner which and when the city council sees fit.

I don't understand.

If these were the laws voted into existence by city residents, or by their elected representatives, why aren't they being enforced?

We are a country of law; it helps us proceed with our lives in an orderly way. If laws can be "selectively" followed by our government, then what is there to keep us from deciding what laws we want to follow? What happens to order?

I sure do hope that our city leaders can get it straight: laws are made to be followed, not broken!

Tom Stone Clarkston

City's input needed on Beaumont issues

Dear Editor

Well, I don't get it either.

I was ready to write an opinion about the finances and budget for the City of the Village of Clarkston. The budget plan for any community gives a sense of the health, priorities and what is planned for the future.

But, only two residents came to the public budget meeting last week, the draft meeting minutes show only one comment from the public and no comments from your elected council members. I guess this is not considered that important and an opinion piece in this paper would probably bore everyone.

That's a pretty strong concession for an elected council member with regards to one of the most important issues in any government. I'm sure I will continue to make comments about our city's financial condition but if no one wants to talk about the budget now, we can move on to other subjects. So instead of budget and finance, I decided to offer some opinions on last week's Independence Township Planning Commission meeting.

I was at that meeting with what has been reported as over 100 people. I recognized many of my neighbors, some who live on Main Street, and many other concerned citizens.

We were all there to hear what Beaumont hospital and the Independence Township Planning Commission are proposing for the development at the northwest corner of I-75 and Main Street, just outside of the Village of Clarkston city limits,

Now this is how a public meeting should be.

Lots of people, lots of comments, feedback from the Beaumont representatives, courteous responses from the Planning Commission members, and overall an informative and well controlled meeting. This is what I thought government and public involvement was all about Beaumont is, in my opinion, a great hospital, has some great doctors, and as an asset to our community you probably couldn't do much better.

But I do hope everyone realizes that along with all the other concerns expressed at this meeting, a major portion of the increased traffic that they are predicting for M-15, and the proposed widening at Clarkston Road, will be in the City of the Village of Clarkston, not Independence Township where the proposed hospital will be Something has to happen with the 2,100 cars they are planning to provide parking for and I doubt they will all go north or get on the expressway. Beaumont apparently doesn't think so either since they have proposed a three stage plan to alter and increase the traffic on Main Street to at least Clarkston Road, if not further Anybody spent time on Main Street just north of Clarkston Road?

It is a race track from the stoplight north. It is an extension of the expressway exit ramp from I-75 south. The Clarkston Police, not the County Sheriffs employed by Independence Township, constantly perform traffic control on Main Street between Miller and Clarkston roads as gridlock already occurs on a regular basis. If you are walking or riding a bike, don't even try to cross the street as neither the motorists nor pedestrians have a clue to who has the right of way.

This is also at the beginning of the recognized historic residential district in the City of the Village of Clarkston and we are very proud of it. Beaumont's planners want to widen this street and add more traffic.

While we all like to refer to ourselves as from Clarkston, and we generally get along just fine, to the best of my knowledge no one is talking to anyone in the City of the Village of Clarkston.

Has anyone asked if it would be OK to widen our Main Street to four or more lanes, add a couple thousand more cars every hour, add noise, speeding, accidents? Who is going to pay for the added traffic control and the potential loss in property value? Clarkston certainly does not have the money to do it but apparently our opinion is not considered important.

Yes, I want Beaumont to be a neighbor and they have stated they want to be a good neighbor. Someone please tell me how any of this makes them a good neighbor to the Village of Clarkston, especially since no one is even talking like good neighbors do.

Of course, no one wants to talk about budget and finance either.

A Look Back

A peek back at those thrilling days of yester-year as reported in the pages of The Clarkston News

15 years ago - 1992

"Pay-to-play possible" Clarkston school officials were considering reinstating interscholastic sports for grades 7-9, which were eliminated as part of $1.2 million in budget cuts. To fund them, athletes would be charged fees ranging from $125-$225.

"DDA says schools should get the money" Clarkston Downtown Development Authority recommended rebating some of the school district's share of the DDA budget, about $900,000, to help with its budget. Independence Township and school officials were set to meet July 6 to discuss the issue.

"Parents angry over busing out of fifth-graders" Dozens of parents spoke to the Clarkston Board of Education to request reconsideration of a plan to transfer some students from North Sashabaw to Pine Knob Elementary. The plan called for students to be shuttled to Pine Knob to balance the number of students at each school. Parents suggested using a portable classroom, transferring kindergartners instead, consolidating special education, and using the Community Education building.

25 years ago - 1982

"Free' dumping overwhelms officials" In March, Independence Township officials set up 10 free dumping sites throughout the township. Residents quickly filled them to overflowing with trash. Officials estimated clean-up costs of more than double the $4,000 in federal funds set aside for the project.

"Key school issues at June 28 meeting" The Clarkston Board of Education was set to discuss and vote on its $13.6 million budget. The budget was considered tentative because state revenue depended on fall enrollment, and the state aid formula wasn't set vet.

"Village threatens to sue 93-year-old resident" Clarkston Village Council ordered the resident to stop renting out rooms in his house to summer tenants. The resident and village officials disagreed about the house's zoning.

50 years ago - 1957

"Flower Show outstanding event" Clarkston Farm and Garden Club hosted the Flower Show at Clarkston High School. Plants and flowers filled the school entryway and cafeteria.

"Clarkston Merchants win again" The Merchants class E baseball team maintained a perfect exhibition record by beating Cranbrook's class D team 3-2. Pitcher Jerry Wilmot gave up only four hits and two unearned runs.

"Clarkston locals" Larry Nicol, young son of Mr. and Mrs. John Nicol, has been confined to his home for a week and a half with the mumps.

First a story, then a letter to a senator

I have two reasons to believe this story is acceptable for a community newspaper. First it was told to me in the Flint Elks Club men's room, and second, our recently-acknowledged, 50-year-old daughter said it was ok.

An Irishman has been doctoring for some time, and this was the day he was to get the diagnosis.

He asked his son to drive him to the doctor.

Jim's Jottings

Jim Sherman

The doctor asked his patient to sit down while he read the report. The MD said, "You have terminal cancer, and you have maybe six months to live."

The Irishman goes out to the car, tells his son the results, then asks, "Would you drive me to the pub, I wanna tell my buddies?"

Inside the pub the Irishman announces, "I have AIDS and they've given me six months to live." They have a few pints, then our man returns to the car. The son says, "You have cancer, why did you tell them you have AIDS?"

He said, "I don't want them mess'n around with me wife after I'm gone!"

I was asked to pass along the following letter from a man in Maryland. Since the letter reflects my feelings, I'm passing: Dear Senator Sarbanes,

As a native Marylander and excellent customer of the Internal Revenue Service, I am writing to ask for your assistance. I have contacted the Dept. of Homeland Security in an effort to determine the process of becoming an illegal alien and they referred me to you.

My primary reason for wishing to change my status from U. S. Citizen to illegal alien stems from the bill you voted for.

It is my understanding the bill says as an illegal alien who has been in the U.S. for 5 years, all I need to do to become a citizen is to pay a $2,000 fine and income taxes for 3 of the last 5 years. I'd like to get in on that.

Simply put, those of us who have been here legally have had to pay taxes every year, so I'm excited about the prospect of avoiding 2 years of taxes in return for paying a $2,000 fme. Is there any way that I can apply to be illegal retroactively?

Additionally, as an illegal alien I could begin using the local emergency room as my primary health care provider. Once I have stopped paying premiums for medical insurance, my accountant figures I could save almost $10,000 a year. Another benefit in gaining illegal status would be that my daughter would receive preferential treatment relative to her law school applications, as well as "in-state" tuition rates for many colleges throughout the U.S. for my son.

Lastly, I understand that illegal status would relieve me of the burden of renewing my driver's license and making those burdensome car insurance premiums. This is very important to me given that I still have college age children driving my car.

If you would provide me with an outline of the process to become illegal (retroactively if possible) and copies of the necessary forms, I would be most appreciative. Thank you for your assistance.

Enough already! Let's get serious. Aspire to inspire before you expire.

Camping tip: When using a public campground, a tuba placed on your picnic table will keep the campsites on either side vacant.

New drug: Jakasspirin-Relieves headache caused by a man who can't remember your birthday, anniversary, phone number or to close the toilet lid.

You think retirement is slowdown time? I'm busier than a one-toothed man in a corn-on-the-cob eating contest.

Feeling good in the neighborhood

Observation of the day: I never thought I'd feel all warm and fuzzy when shelling out $3.01 for a gallon of gas -- I suppose I still don't, but it sure feels better than paying $3.50 a gallon.

All I can say is the brain-washing by the fat cats has worked. But (and there is always a butt), while I am all grins and smiles paying $3.0 anything per gallon of gas,

I still have a question: Why, with today's technology, when you pre-pay for your gas, does pump slow WAY down with 60 cents worth of pumping left to be completed? Is it some sort mind game -- customer pyscological tactic to make us not as mad at high gas prices? If it takes longer to pump, do they think we think we're getting more gas?

Okay that was three questions.

But, seriously, does anybody out there know why the pre-paid customer gets hosed for his or her time? Come on -- we can send a chimp into space, access how to build bombs online and my toaster cooks an egg, sausage and toast so all finish at one time. With all this techno-wizardry, I would think somebody could make a gas pump, pump fast and then stop when my money is spent, and not a drop before or after.

I'd like some egg-head engineer-type to give me the answer.

Here is something from the Ayn Rand Institute regarding hate laws. It's a few weeks old:

Last week the House passed a measure that extends the federal "hate crime" law to include attacks motivated by the victims' gender or sexual orientation.

"Congress should not extend the federal 'hate crime' law," said Yaron Brook, executive director of the Ayn Rand Institute. "It should abolish the law.

"The government's job is to punish criminals for initiating force against other citizens; objective laws that ban the use of force and fraud are its means of doing so. But 'hate crime' laws undermine objective law at the root by punishing criminals, not for their actions, but for their ideas.

"According to 'hate crime' laws, a murderer deserves a greater punishment if his crime is motivated by an idea such as racism or sexism. If the government assumes the power to punish on the basis of 'unacceptable' ideas, it has assumed the power to exonerate and offer leniency to favored ideas. If anti-abortion religionists hold sway in government, on the premise of 'hate crime' laws, a zealous Christian who guns down an abortion doctor could receive a lighter sentence or be exonerated—on the grounds that such an act is evidence of noble 'idealism.'

"Once the government starts punishing criminals for acting on 'unacceptable ideas,' it has assumed the role of arbiter for which ideas are acceptable or not. If whoever wields power can shape the law to advance an ideological agenda, then it cannot be long before merely holding unorthodox or unconventional ideas becomes a crime that the government punishes.

"The government has no business punishing people for their ideas, no matter how repugnant. By demanding the government do precisely that, 'hate crime' laws threaten our freedom of thought—and undermine the system of objective law that protects it. Such laws should be abolished."

And, lastly . . . Bill Kalmar of Lake Orion has a little suggestion for helping the Governor balance Michigan's budget: "For some reason when voters select a Governor and that person is sworn into office, it is only then we discover that a spouse is also part of the administration - another two-for! That sidecar on a motorcycle in Michigan is First Gentleman Dan Mulhern. He wasn't on the ballot but somehow he has inherited his own office and staff. His function is fuzzy but weekly missives from his pen entitled Reading for Leading are nothing more than cutesy vignettes of pabulum.

"... Here's my suggestion: dismantle the office of the First Gentleman along with the staff. It may represent a pittance in the overall budget but in these trying times allowing self-serving projects to function sends the wrong message to those who are in a belt-tightening mode. And then maybe have the First Gentleman position himself at the Michigan borders providing well wishes to the throngs of departing residents who have somehow been effected by the Governor's exclamation: 'In five years you're gonna be blown away.' Unfortunately for Michigan, the time frame has been accelerated to the point that an ill wind of bad news has 'blown away' all semblance of hope!"

You tell 'em, Bill!

Work your memory, not just your muscle By Ernie Harwell

There's a stereotype that as people get older they automatically start losing their ability to remember things. I've always felt that everyone loses their memory from time to time, no matter what age they are. Just look at the tests a 16-yearold kid flunks here and there.

To my mind, it's a big mistake to accept that just because we're getting older, we necessarily will start forgetting things more often.

We can all keep our memories sharp by challenging ourselves to remember things. You can practice memorizing anything really, but it's always more fun if it's something you're interested in. (I, personally, like to memorize poems, Bible verses, and bits of Shakespeare.) You can buy inexpensive memory games, find them for free on the Internet, and even create your own. Memorization can be a lot of fun and it's one of the best ways to give your mind a mental workout - no matter how old you are.

And please remember to take care of your health before it's lonngggg gone!

Culver's joins local community

BY TREVOR KEISER

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Culver's Restaurant made a groundbreaking entrance June 11, next to Ruby Tuesday's on the northeast corner of I-75 and Sashabaw Road.

The new "metro" style 3900-square-foot restaurant will employ 65 part- and full-time employees; many will be high school students.

New franchise owner Katie Schmitt will start hiring her crew in the beginning of July. Training will begin on July 30.

Schmitt, a science professor and soccer coach for three years at Johnson County Community College in Kansas, moved to Michigan from Kansas City, Mo., about two years ago with her husband Brian.

"I was looking to get back into the community. I always wanted to own my own business, and I have family in the restaurant business who own restaurants/bars in Wisconsin, Iowa, and Missouri," said Schmitt who had previously been in medical sales.

After talking with a lot of restaurant owners in the area, Schmitt found that Culver's was very supportive of its franchise, as well as very community and family oriented.

Ruth and George Culver, who owned an A&W restaurant, decided to de-franchise and start a restaurant under their own name. Culver's opened in Sauk City, Wisconsin, on July 18, 1984.

According to Ruth and George's son Craig, cofounder of Culver's, the restaurant struggled its first year to survive and has now grown to over 385 restaurants in the Midwest region and over 20 in Michigan.

Culver's is known for its "ButterBurger," a mixture of ground chuck and sirloin, and its premium frozen custard ice-cream that is made fresh throughout the Craig Culver, said he is very optimistic, excited and enthusiastic about the new franchise.

"It's another opportunity to come to a new area, not only to sell our products, but to sell our hospitality," he

"Business is not just about selling a product, but hospitality and customer service is the driving force."

Culver has confidence that Schmitt will do a fine job. Working alongside Schmitt will be General Manager Mike Brookshire, and other managers Miranda Legg, Damain Buitkus, Robert Fittonneville, and Susan Murray.

"I am very excited to start my new endeavor," said

The ground breaking also featured a prayer and blessing from Father Chris Maus of St. Daniels Catholic Church.

The restaurant is set to officially open on Aug. 6.

her council members dispute 'sky-is-falling' claims from each year's budget to compensate. Although Johnston said he found the feat "amazing" and "incredible," he also warned such a trend could not continue.

"We will be broke," he said. "We will be bankrupt and the township can pick us up for a penny on the dollar. There has to be some planning."

Longer-term budget preparation, said Johnston, who prepared a four-page, 23point list of possible cuts and increases to the city's administrative, police and DPW expenditures, is crucial to the city's economic survival.

"We have no plans for anything after next year's budget at all," he continued. "We know there are expenses coming up, but we haven't addressed them. We've ignored our charter requirements, and we've ignored ordinances and laws where we're allowed to charge for permits and fees."

Codification—collecting, restating and arranging laws, ordinances or other guiding principles into a systematic order— Johnston said, is another issue needing council's attention.

The process is costly and has not been completed in Clarkston, although the city charter calls for codification three years after incorporation and every 10 years thereafter.

The city incorporated July 1, 1992.

"We said we don't have the money for it," Johnston told the council. "(But) the charter requires it. If we can ignore our charter because we don't have the money, we can do anything we want because the charter doesn't mean anything. I don't know where it stops."

City Attorney Thomas Ryan disagreed, however, stating his opinion that ordinances not yet codified were still quite valid.

"Nobody is trying to violate the charter," he said. "The charter requires us to (codify) within three years, (but) we never had the money to do it. It doesn't impact the legality of the ordinances."

Ryan, who noted the service typically costs between $10,000-$20,000, said the city should plan to codify at some point.

"It would be nice to do it someday, but we're not picking and choosing," he said. "It's a directory, not a mandatory issue in my opinion. That's what I said 15 or 16 years ago when it came up, that's what I'm telling you today."

Clarkston Mayor Sharron Catallo, who sat on the budget committee, agreed city expenses must be prioritized.

'We run tight on everything," she said. "I'd like to see everything codified but we're a really small community, there are certain things we're going to have to get to in time. I don't care what the charter says about that. We can only do so much."

Earlier in the meeting, Catallo pointed out the budget committee may have inadvertently neglected to budget funds owed to Independence Township -about $15,000—for six months of midnight-shift police services from the Oakland County Sheriff's Office. Such an oversight would reduce the city's fund equity from $17,000 to a mere $2,000.

Catallo noted that although she would like to watch city coffers fill with funds for police vehicles and other large expenses detailed by Johnston, such a banking of cash was not likely to occur any time soon.

"They're all good things, and they're all things we know about," she said in reference to Johnston's budget considerations. "It's just that in our every day running, some of those things don't matter as much as others. We try to get what we can out of what we have. It's very difficult."

Councilman Dan Colombo also disagreed with Johnston, contending Johnston's "the-sky is-falling" warnings were unnecessary.

"It's like yelling fire in a movie theater," said Colombo, who is currently serving his fifth, perhaps final term on the council. "You don't do it. Even if there is a fire, you say 'OK, let's contain it in one area and get the people out orderly.' We don't want to create mass hysteria."

Colombo said he feels the city is "above water" and in comparably better shape than other municipalities, both locally and nationally, who have been forced to make drastic cuts to departments and staff.

We do a remarkable job stretching the dollars we do have," he said.

"There isn't any community that gets the services we provide for the same dol-

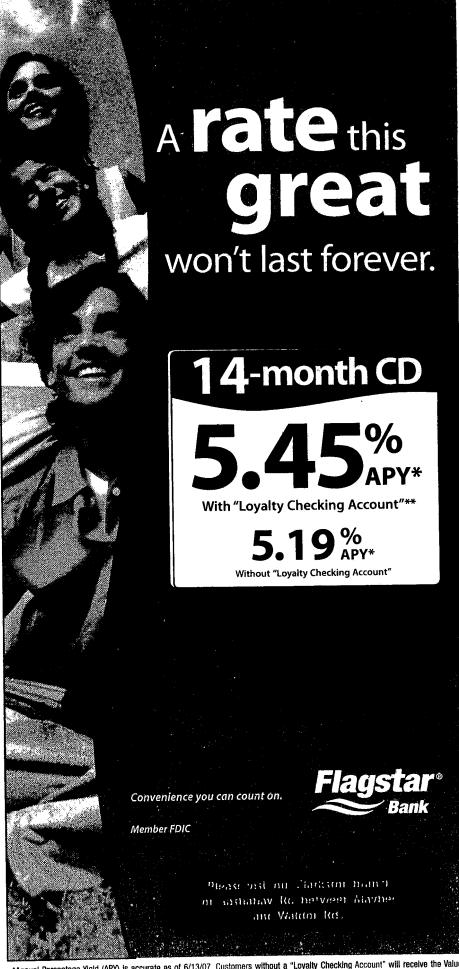

After 10 years on the budget committee, Colombo said, he's familiar with the process and doesn't say a lot because 'there isn't much to say."

"I have a problem with people who think they can come in their first year and make that big of an impact without knowing the background," said Colombo, noting his view that the small city is non-conforming by definition. "If Art (Pappas) tells me we're going broke, I'll worry. He's on top of it, he sits with the auditors and he knows what's going on."

Still, the hard numbers remain.

"We have balanced the budget by taking $20,000 out of it every year," said Johnston. "I don't know how long we can keep doing that. Wages go up, gas goes up, park maintenance goes up, the cost of maintaining our buildings goes up. I'm appalled that nobody has addressed this

Financial Tips for Newlyweds

It's June - a popular month for weddings. If you're getting married this month, you have a lot to think about: a rehearsal, a ceremony, a reception, possibly a honeymoon. But most important of all, you've got the anticipation of starting a new life together. To help make that life a happy one, you and your new spouse will need to communicate with each other on all types of issues - and one of the most important of those issues is your joint financial situation.

So, once the wedding festivities are behind you, take some steps that relate to your future financial well being. Here are a few suggestions:

- Establish financial goals. You and your spouse can become disciplined money managers if you're both working toward some joint long-term financial objectives, such as a new home. If you eventually have children, your goals may expand to include college. And throughout your working life, you'll want to put money away for retirement. ou'll have a better chance of achieving them if you set out a strategy - and stick to
- Don't put off investing. How much money you have available to invest depends on your income and expenses. When you're just married and establishing a household, you may not feel that you have a lot of cash to spare, but make it a priority to put away something each month, even if it's only a small amount. If you can get into the investment "habit" right away, it will serve you well throughout your married life.
- Take advantage of retirement plans. If you and your spouse are both working, you may each have access to a 401(k) or other employer-sponsored retirement plan. Contribute as much as you can afford to each plan - at least enough to earn the employer's match, if one is offered. Also, look closely at how you are each allocating your dollars within your respective plans. Try to avoid duplicating each other's investment choices. By spreading your money around a range of investments, the two of you can potentially reduce the effects of market volatility and give yourselves more chances for success. A financial advisor can help you identify the investment choices that are appropriate for your risk tolerance, goals and time horizon.
- Get control of your debts. Your debts, and those of your new spouse, are now of concern to both of you. While some debts - such as a mortgage - may be inevitable, it's generally a good idea to keep your debt load as low as possible. That's because the more money you spend on debts, the less you'll have available to invest for your fature. By going over your student loans, car loans, credit cards, etc., you may be able to develop a strategy to reduce your overall debt load.

Study could examine services among schools, city, townships any talk of consolidation was a dealbreaker, they said.

"We had a long discussion about that," said Councilman Cory Johnston, part of a three-member committee formed to address the issue on Clarkston's behalf. "Since we became a city (in 1992) there hasn't been a lot of discussion about anything between us and the township. To go back now and consolidate would be ridiculous. We need to start with something smaller."

Clarkston residents and officials alike have argued that while township does provide services city residents rely on, the city also provides many benefits to the community at little or no cost—Art in the Park, Taste of Clarkston, Concerts in the Park and a number of parades, for example.

Johnston said he favored a study to look at better ways to structure agreements between the two municipalities in a way that would benefit both par-

However, an interest expressed by Springfield Township and Clarkston Community School board members at a June 7 Leadership Clarkston meeting may have changed the study's direction.

"It is my opinion, and I believe that of the other committee members," said Johnston on Monday, "that if we can make this study benefit more people, and in a greater way, it would be a better use of funds and services offered by Oakland County."

volvement of schools and other municipal governments would give the study potential for "a truly unique and cooperative effort" and ultimately save more taxpayer money than the original proposal or other previous initiatives.

"We are now working out exactly what would have the most benefit to evervone." Johnston said.

It was clear Monday, however, that each entity had individual ideas about defining a "benefit"—outside the broad goal of saving money, overall objectives had not been established.

Springfield Township Supervisor Collin Walls said last week he was interested in the possibility of taking part in a study, but noted many questions were yet unanswered.

"If Clarkston and Independence Township are interested in broadening the scope of their study, or submitting a request for a second study, it would behoove Springfield Township and the schools to sit down and talk to them about it," said Walls.

"But before we involve Oakland County or anyone else we need to have representatives narrow the scope so we can mutually agree on what we want to accomplish."

As written, he said, the application for the feasibility study does not apply to Springfield Township.

"It's entirely possible we could be talking about—and maybe we should be talking about—two different studies," ston and Independence Township exploring costs for current shared services.

Later, he said, a second study could include Springfield Township and the local school district in a study to look at potential for area-wide collaboration.

Walls said he previously contacted Oakland County officials regarding the possibility of joint purchasing between government, schools, and businesses, but the venture did not come to fruition.

"There are programs, activities, and services we provide to our taxpayers that we could do more efficiently, or at less cost, or both, by working together," he said. "Taxpayers have a right to expect that the people they place in leadership positions can work together to solve mutual problems without taxing them to death and providing duplicate services."

Those taxpayers, he said, are seeing reduced or eliminated services and programs as businesses go under and local governments and school districts struggle to cut budgets in careful, creative ways.

Springfield Township is currently working on a program with Rose Township, Holly Township, Groveland Township and the Village of Holly for shared fire service.

Walls described ideas for beginning or increasing cooperation across a broad spectrum of local organizations —joint purchasing, combined police, fire and DPW services, and central building maintenance services, for example.

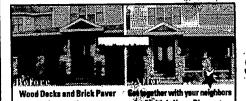

But, he said, 30 years of experience in local government has shown him nothing is accomplished when elected officials and other leaders ignore their true

"Optimum collaboration can only happen if we forget our parochial interests and the boundary lines that divide us," said Walls, "And look at what we have in common, and what our purpose is and that's to serve our residents."

Trustees should accept people's votes on senior center

Dear Editor,

Voters should remember the names Charles Dunn, Daniel Travis, Larry Rosso, and Daniel Kelly so that they know who to blame in the future for the misuse of $250,000 of our tax dollars on a new "temporary senior center."

By approving this proposal, they have knowingly opposed the wishes of voters and are going full steam ahead with plans to use our tax dollars to build a new senior center.

The boards actions can be likened to a spoiled child in a candy store that refuses to take no for an answer.

The board has grown tired of hearing "no" and has now chosen to steal from taxpayers what it could not get them to approve.

More than $250,000 of our tax dollars are now being stolen from you and me by our "trustees" to build a new senior center.

The decision by our paid public servants to raid the general fund for this project is a slap in the face to voters that can only serve as a launch pad for future senior center funding proposals.

It's time for the board to move on and forget about plans for a new senior center.

Like it or not, that decision has already been made by the people who pay their wages.

The fire marshall should do the community a favor and close down the "unsafe liability to the community" that our board has created and free taxpayers from the costs of supporting a program we have continually said we do not want.

Michael Powell Independence Township

Work together on senior center

Dear Editor.

About the senior center in Independence Township, I feel a new senior center is really needed.

In the past 10 years, it has been voted on, talked about, mulled over, and dissected by different groups and people.

An article in your paper caught my eye on the above thought. Next to "South Sashabaw to be demolished" (June 13 edition), for approximately $60,000, was "Senior center interim project gets the goahead," for $250,000.

I understand the South Sashabaw school had been looked at by a senior-center advisory committee, with the cost being over $100,000 to fix it.

However, the school board wanted to lease it, not sign it over, to the township for a senior center.

We already paid for the building.

It would have just gone from one part of the community to another. Who is trying to look good here?

Give the building to seniors and forget it. Don't spend the money for nothing, on its demolition.

The township could have taken this $310,000 and fixed up South Sashabaw Elementary into a senior center. It had plenty of square footage, gym, and yard for seniors.

Let's use some common sense and work together for a much needed senior center.

Keeping those (s)kills sharp at camp

BY PAUL KAMPE

Clarkston News Staff Writer

For Clarkston volleyball coach Kelly Avenall, there have been several changes in her sport since taking over for Gordie Richardson almost five years ago. Changing faces, rule changes and, most recently, a change in the entire season volleyball will be played during next school year. Some things that will never change, however, are the fundamentals Avenall is trying instill in incoming players.

Avenall, with the help of Clarkston players past and present and coaches from the school's volleyball programs, taught about 130 girls from fifth through 12th grades at the Clarkston Volleyball Clinic June 11-15.

"It's a great opportunity for everyone to work on skills," she said.

The youngest group, fifth-eighth graders, worked on passing and serving, while the older girls, ninth-12th grade, worked to develop team skills such as serve reception, defense and communi-

"We really break down a lot of skills,"

The experience can be crucial for girls at a young age who haven't been shown proper techniques to play the game, she said.

"For young players, this might be the first time they've played the game correctly and they will learn how to be aggressive," Avenall said.

New this summer, Avenall, coaches, and volunteers divided into different workstations, which made for more oneon-one instruction. Having instructors not far removed from their playing days at Clarkton proved to be a great help, Avenall

"It's fun to see them in that atmosphere. As a coach, I've only seen them as players. Now the shoe is on the other foot," she said.

"They give the students better images. It helps them to visualize the skills."

Fifteen-year-old Maralyna Doyle, who played with the freshmen squad last season, was excited to see her teammates after having been away from one another during AAU travel season.

"It's fun to come back and work with other people," she said.

The clinic is an annual affair for Katelyn Coates, who will be a senior next year and played varsity volleyball for Avenall in the winter. Coates made her fifth trip to the camp after entering the summer after seventh grade.

"I like seeing who's coming out for next year's team. It gives me an idea of how we're going to be for the season," Coates said.

Shadowing former Clarkston and current collegiate players is a draw for

"I like seeing the older graduates. They all went to college and played. I like playing with them and getting to know them," she said.

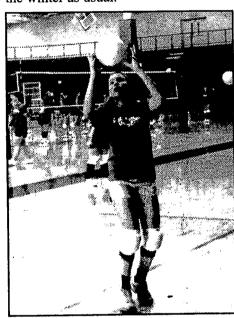

Although the five-day camp didn't need to be altered to accommodate for volleyball's realignment in the fall season, there was an added importance now that the season begins following summer

"A couple months down the road, we're going to be jumping right back into it," Avenall said.

"Before, this (camp) was to keep in shape over the summer. Now it's a lot more important," Coates said.

Clarkston volleyball try-outs begin Aug. 13 after conditioning the week prior.

Avenall noted that unlike the high school level, the middle school season still begins in January and is played during the winter as usual.

Sidewinders take Memorial Day Classic to open season

BY PAUL KAMPE

Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Oakland Sidewinders went 6-0 in the Memorial Day Classic in Farmington Hills to earn the tourney crown. The girls' dominance from the plate resulted in a 68-5 advantage over the six-game period.

"That was the best-hitting tournament in the four years they've been together," coach Stu Hastings said.

The victories marked the beginning of the season for the 12-and-under team from the Waterford fast- is to have no turnover, unless someone moves or (bepitch softball league. The win also earned the girls a berth in the NSA national competition scheduled for July in Indiana.

The Sidewinders' typical strengths are their defense and pitching, so the awakening of their bats at Mott high school and travel tournaments on the weekthe tournament was a relief for Hastings.

When you have all the hitting, it makes playing defense easier," he said.

After the Sidewinders lost their team MVP, firstbaseman, and third baseman, Hastings approached this season with caution. The season's first six victories showed him the girls' off-season work was paying divi-

'So far the work we did over the winter seems to be paying off, (but) I don't want to be over-confident based on the tournament," he said.

"We'll be competitive with most teams we're going to play."

Hastings said the team does its best to keep the same core of girls together year in and year out, building a stronger foundation for the group.

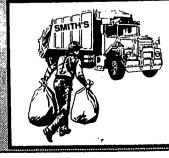

'As long as they want to play, there's going a spot for them.

"The goal is to take these kids and build...our goal comes too old for the division)."

Wolf cubs learn on the diamond

First eighth-grade team takes valuable lessons for high school

BY PAUL KAMPE

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Setting their sights on future success, Clarkston's inaugural eighth grade softball team finished its season earlier this month with a 6-4-1 record. The girls earned second place in the Waterford Spring League.

The girls learned the same skills as the high school varsity team, to help prepare them for the future, only a year away. They started by learning some of the small things.

"It's a blast watching them progress and giving positive recognition. I would love to see these girls get into the varsity level and make it," coach Jim Altene said.

"My goal was to teach the basics to get started.

"I didn't realize the kids would learn as quickly as they did. I spoke with parents at the beginning of the season and I said, 'I'm not looking to win games, I'm trying to teach them basics they will need in high school.

'They've improved 200 percent. The first time we practiced, we knew we had a lot of basics to teach. Now they know exactly where they need to go and what to do.'

Altene learned the game by playing baseball and followed softball as his daughter, Sarah, 13, began her career at age 8. Jim Altene stepped in to coach Sarah's travel league tournaments and his position as skipper was set.

called upon Reeves for assistance.

"Ever since Don Peters came to the program, he's been encouraging girls younger and younger to get started," Altene said.

'He's been hands off because he's been involved with the varsity team...he's got enough confidence in the two of us to teach the basics."

Reeves, who has been with the Stars for six years, took additional training over the winter at a conference he attended with Peters. Reeves estimated the girls had at least doubled their talent in the time the season took place.

"I was hoping they would take off like this. When we had tryouts, it looked like we had a lot of teaching to do. They . took to it real quick," Reeves said.

"They're really impressing me, I'm really proud of how they're doing. It's been real nice seeing them get better."

The girls' tenacity showed through during team practice.

"When we do fielding drills, they don't want to quit. They just want to keep on practicing. They're like a sponge, soaking everything up," Reeves said.

Ultimately, Reeves agreed with Altene, the girls' biggest mission this season was to learn and have a positive outlook on the game.

"That's the biggest thing we're trying to teach them, how to play the game and have fun. It seems to be working that way," he said.

Brittany Edwards gives it her best shot from the plate.

Sarah Altene pitched in the Wolves' final game, a 5-2 win over Troy.

Clarkston boys tennis will also change this fall

BY PAUL KAMPE

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Following a season where Clarkston finished second in Oakland Activities Association division II boys tennis, the Wolves will undergo their biggest re-structuring since coach Chaz Claus took the helm in 2004.

"I graduated some real good players and it's a very strong senior class that will be departing," Claus said.

Even though this year I lost a lot of seniors (in 2006), I retained a lot of my upper-level singles players. It was rebuilding the middle of the lineup, not the

"We'll really be rebuilding all the way to the top." Departing from the team are No.'s 1, 2, and 3 singles players, including Chris Graczyk, No.'s 2 doubles, and half of the third doubles rank. Will-be fourth-year senior player Erik Ejups is expected to be the front-runner for the top seed on the singles side after playing No. 4 this season. An open tryout is expected starting in the fall, when the sport picks back up.

"He had a great year at number four, but that's a tough step to make. Beyond that, I'm not sure exactly what my lineup will look like, whether I keep my doubles players at (that) or if I move everybody up in order. We'll see about that in the fall," Claus said.

Ejups' confidence and increased physical size over the past three years, along with his ability to shape a match by playing to his strengths, bode well for him, Claus said.

Having Ejups at the top would be a good tone-setter for the Wolvest Claus said.

'If they're working hard (at No. 1), it rubs off. He'll be an excellent leader for us at number one singles."

No. 1 doubles this past season, soon-to-be seniors Matt Graczyk and Scott Dutcher have expressed interest in moving over to singles play.

"It's a year where I won't have a good sense of my lineup until well through tryouts," Claus said.

"We'll have to try different combinations and see what works."

The boys return to the courts in less than three months due to re-scheduling by the Michigan High School Athletic Association, which shuffled several high school sports in response to legal action finalized in April after about 10 years of litigation.

The change from spring to fall should be helpful for all teams because it gives them an eight-month season, continuing with their own work in the summer and resuming when school does the same.

"My players will be used to playing outdoors all summer and instead of coming in as mid-winter couch potatoes, they'll be coming in off the summer," Claus

Erik Ejups is expected to make the jump from No.4 to No. 1 singles in the fall. The season will shift from spring to fall next school year due to a change made by the MHSAA. Photo by Paul Kampe

Dear Editor,

The Clarkston Athletic Boosters would like to thank the POH Medical Center, Clarkston Medical Group, Dr. Renny Abraham, Dr. Nancy Crossley, Dr. Drew Moscovic, Dr. Tim O'Neil, Dr. Larry Baylis, and Dr. David Machnacki for donating their time and fees to us from the sports physicals done on May 23, 2007, at the high school.

Thank you also to our Athletic Trainer Stephanie LeBeau for her help with this. The Boosters and student athletes appreciate their generosity.

Thoughts about closing of Farmer Jack's?

"I'm sad. I don't want it to close."

-Audrey Lyn

"It's their own business debacles that caused that. Kroger and Meijer have better selections and they're better laid out. They didn't keep up with the times."

Gustina Sell

"I'm really disappointed in that. I used to shop there quite a bit, that's my usual shopping place."

– Barbara Reed

"It's realy sad. I feel really bad for the employees. We can always find a grocery store, but can they find jobs? The economy in this area can't take anymore hits."

Involvement in Clarkston SCAMP can come about in many ways. Marlene Stone, 2008 president, became acquainted with the group five years ago as a business consultant.

Stone, founder and president of Intellitrends, a market vision and strategy company from Independence Township, was asked to oversee a meeting of the SCAMP board. Stone's company, in the business of helping others grow, spurred her own involvement with SCAMP, introducing her to the organization as the two worked together.

"It's a fabulous group of people," Stone said

"It's amazing how many people are extended from SCAMP and know someone who is involved with SCAMP."

At the time, Stone and her family had lived in Clarkston for about 15 years, but had yet to come in contact with the group.

"I had heard the name, but didn't really know about them," Stone said.

"It's becoming bigger and bigger. The schools are a great conduit. It's a great way for us to increase awareness at a base level here."

SCAMP begins at the end of June and will continue through the beginning of August at Clarkston Junior High School. The camp gets about 300 SCAMP-ers each year, Stone estimated.

In May, Stone chaired the annual SCAMP Walk and Roll for the fourth year. The event raised about $25,000 for the program, she said. The Stone family, Marlene's husband Keith, daughter Lindsay, 16, and son Forrest, 13, volunteers their time for the annual Homes Tour, held two weeks ago.

Lindsay and Forrest will also be volunteering at the camp this summer.

In addition to Forrest and Lindsay, the Stones' eldest son Brent lives in Boston and used to serve in the United States Navy.

Stone has been a part of the 17-member SCAMP board for five years. As the head of the group next year, she hopes to work heavily with acquiring donations for the group. She aims to implement a database system to organize volunteers, sponsors and donors to facilitate funding.

She would also like to create more awareness for SCAMP and increase attendance at SCAMP events such as the Walk and Roll and the Clarence Catallo 5K Run.

"We have so many people with arms and legs in SCAMP to some degree and it's really important to know who those people are.

"I'm still surprised that even though SCAMP has been in the community for so long, there are so many people who still don't know what it is. It's a tremendous organization and I would really like to see increased awareness for SCAMP."

Attendance at SCAMP events may be taking a cue from the local schools and their "Fun Run" events.

"I see the tremendous turnout they get that and I think, 'We could have more of that for SCAMP.""

Her plan also includes continuing an already established SCAMP-ership program for campers.

"It's a great way for a company or an organization to be directly involved with the children, versus just making a donation. That's a program I'd like to see expanded, there's a lot of potential there," she said.

"We're the funding organization, (children) are the heart of SCAMP," she added.

Stone enjoys meeting positive people associated with the organization.

Marlene, who was born in Sarnia,

Ontario, received her bachelor's degree in 1985 from University of Western Ontario in political science and an honors degree in French. She worked for a member of Canadian parliament from Toronto for the next year prior to moving to Michigan.

Marlene met Keith while he was sailing as a crewmember in the Port Huron to Mackinac race. The couple has now been married for 21 years.

In 1990, Marlene started Intellitrends from her family's home. The transition from politics to consumer research wasn't tough for her because she was still gauging personal perspectives with her new career.

Intellitrends clientele includes the likes of Daimler Chrysler, Little Caesars Enterprises and Macomb County.

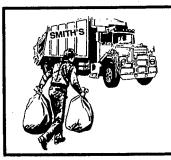

Keith has worked in various high-tech positions for more than 30 years and joined Intellitrends five years ago as vice president.

Recently, the company published a research project entitled, "Go Green," about saving the environment. The study has been picked up nationally and will become a quarterly study, Stone said.

"It's a very conscious topic. It's a topic a lot of people are interested in, and this takes it a little bit further," she said.

The idea for "Go Green" came from brainstorming efforts at Intellitrends. The group also looks at the public's use of media, the number of television channels available to consumers, impact of rising gasoline prices and analyzing the Hispanic population.

as a one state recession.

Negative economic currents have been shaking the entire nation but Michigan seems to have more negatives than positives in comparison to other locations. This situation could give us a sense of hopelessness or it could give us a sense of resolve that will place us in the front of future economic rebounds.

When going through difficult times we have two choices: to see them as a curse or see them as an opportunity.

When we choose to see things in the negative light we may become defensive and possibly even go into retreat mode. If we choose to see it as an opportunity for the future we will prepare ourselves accordingly.

The Bible teaches us to be reflective in times of trouble.

This principle of self-examination is the underlying teaching of the Lord's Supper or Holy Communion. The Bible says that is we will judge ourselves we will not be judged nor condemned with the world.

During this time our state must take a hard look at all the aspects of our governance and the prevailing attitudes and make the necessary changes that will put us back in the forefront of the twenty-first century to the degree that we were previously.

These examinations are not determinations of right and wrong but determining whether we are willing to change. Many of the things that have guided us to this

Michigan is in the midst of what is being referred to point were good in their day but we must now ask ourselves will they be good for the future?

As Christians, many of our churches are faced with the same problems. Changing social and cultural attitudes are reframing the entire country.

If we are not careful, we can become irrelevant for the future when God has called us to be a light to every generation.

We can not live on yesterday's success alone.

It is very easy for us as Christians to get in an "I'm right and you're wrong" perspective. We need to be careful in this time to set a positive agenda while determining how we can have an impact on our world.

In the last century, we could tell people how the family should be structured and expect them to follow. The greater society reinforced our prerogatives and everything went smoothly for a while.

Then marriages began to crumble, family relationships deteriorated and everyone was left wondering how we should define family.

In order to stay on top of things we must recast ourselves to fight for and defend the family, while at the same time providing the necessary healing resources to deal with those caught in the pain of the transitory times.

To bring this down to personal terms, many of us are in times of distress either from the current economic and/or social conflict.

Many people are moving out of Michigan in search of better opportunities. I believe many are moving because to them it seems as if the change will benefit them for a myriad of reason.

Stay united when setting discipline

Mom's Talk

Susan Graham

My husband and I have a great relationship, but when it comes to disciplining the kids we can't agree on anything. I know this is working against us. Are we the only parents that can't get it together? How can we show our kids we're really a team?

"You must appear as a united front, even when you don't agree. I've had to literally bite my tongue and walk from the room when I thought my husband was being too tough on my son. It's necessary, or your kids will learn to pit you and your husband against each other."

-Beth (children ages 3, 5 and 9)

"We never agree. I think this is our biggest downfall."

-M: (mother of 5-year-old and 8-year-old)

"I can't stop interfering when my husband is disciplining. I'm with the kids all day long, and he's so much harsher than I am. I have to keep in mind he's never rough and is probably teaching our children very valuable lessons."

-Sue (children ages 1, 4 and 7)

"I'm the disciplinarian. My husband's the softie. Some days I get really tired of always being the "no" man.

-Cynthia (mother of 7-year-old and 12-year-old)

Expert Sherry Daniels, LPC:

It's important to realize moms and dads have very different roles in the family. Often, dads tend to be the disciplinarians and moms the nurturers.

While this may lead to initial conflict, the goal for both parents is the same: raising a confident, self-reliable adult. Here are some tips for staying on task:

1) Set basic rules. Everyone should understand the family's core values and general household expectations.

2) Provide a united front. Use a signal if a private discussion between you and your spouse is required. Tell your child you'll return in a moment.

3) If your spouse ignores or misses the signal and continues to discipline in a manner that you don't agree with, do not interrupt. (Unless, the child is in danger.) Walk away if you have

4) Be consistent. Agree on reasonable punishments and follow through.

Summer camp at Sashabaw set July 23-27

Camp Invention weeklong summer day experience for children entering grades 1-6 is set July 23-27 at Sashabaw Middle School.

Five age-appropriate modules each day include:

• Disassembling old machinery and using parts to make inventions in "I Can Invent";

• Traveling around the world to deliver secret documents in "The Wild Blue Y'Under";

• Building communication centers to respond to alien radio signals in the "Tape Me to Your Leader";

• Using forensic science as crime scene investigators in the "Solve It: The Missing Inventor's Log"; and

• Creating mind-boggling new games in "AMAZing Games."

Kara Lomazov, third-grade teacher at Independence Elementary, will be camp director. Dennis Klenow, fifth-grade teacher at Independence, will be assistant director. Local certified teachers will lead the five modules and curricula each day. Enthusiastic high school and college students will serve as counselors.

The program features a low staff-to-child ratio, with one staff member for every eight children.

Registration fee, $199, includes snacks and T-shirt. Register before May 31 to receive $19 off. Call 800-968-4332 for more savings opportunities. Registration limited to 110 children.

Drum-unity

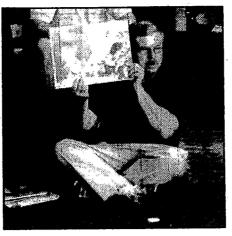

Parents and kids gathered for Drum-unity at Springfield Township Library June 11. The event marked the beginning of summer reading.

John Stakoe, Michigan Representative from the 44th district, began the festivities reading to the children.

"There has been a tendency with the electronic age not to read. I love to read and it's fun to share," Stakoe said.

"We've de-emphasized it and it's something we need to spend more time encouraging with our children."

Students build houses for ducks

The Clarkston Junior High School Student Leadership class designed and built 15 wood duck nesting boxes this spring throughout the community.

The academic service learning project was designed to help preserve the local wood duck population.

Students also contacted other schools within the "flyway," land over which ducks travel in their north-south migration, to build boxes as well.

The project was led by student leadership teacher Jonathan Paddock and ninth-grade student Dylan Hitchcock.

Charles Meyers, area chairman for the Clarkston chapter of Ducks Unlimited, provided the class with plans to construct the boxes, as well as a link to the Oakland Land Conservancy.

Paddock and a couple Leadership students mounted one of the nesting boxes in a flooded wetland behind Clarkston Jr. High School on June 6.

Shoppers sad, mad about closings

BY TREVOR KEISER

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Shoppers have mixed emotions as the July 7 closing date draws near for the 66 grocery stores in the Farmer Jack chain, being sold by its corporate owner Greater Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. based in New Jersey.

Customers of Farmer Jack at 7121 Dixie Highway expressed their feelings.

"I am sad to see it leave and it's too bad another store in Clarkston is closing," said Joanne Gemborys. "It's too bad it's that way and we hope they can find jobs.

Sadness is not the only emotion being felt.

"I'm mad," said Virginia Lewandowski, realtor with Max Broock. "Why are they closing? What is going on in Michigan? I am a realtor and it's bad enough I can't sell houses."

To others, Farmer Jack has had a home-like atmosphere to them.

"Aw man, I hate it like heck," said Jimmy Welch. "I live right behind here and for the last 12-13 years, I have grown to know these people by their first names. I feel so bad for them."

Farmer Jack has been the only store to shop at for one customer.

"I am going to miss it," said Joanne Womack. "I have been shopping here for years and I don't like Kroger, or Meijers. And I don't particularly care for VG's or Tenuta's, so now I don't know where I will shop."

Joanne Womack will miss Farmer Jack. Photos by Trevor Keiser

At least 21 of the grocery stores are still without a buyer, according to The Detroit News. Richard DeSanta, senior director of communications for A&P did not return calls for comment.

change every day," Stone said.

Stone had a choice to make three years ago after outgrowing their original office in the Clarkston Mills business complex on Washington Street. After reviewing ideas to move out of town, Stone and Intellitrends were able to move to another building, on M-15 north of I-75.

'We needed more space and we were looking to expand," Stone said.

"We loved the community so much and having been downtown, we wanted to stay in the area and stay close.

"It offered us a lot more flexibility and we enjoy the environment. There is a different pace of life in the community you live in as opposed to a larger, more business oriented community."

Staying in the Clarkston community reinforces her company's desire to have personal connections in the business community as well.

380 CARD OF THANKS

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT

You make me see everything and show me the way to reach my ideals, You give me the divine gift to forgive and forget the wrongs that are done to me and you are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short diamy iffe with me. I, in this snort dallogue, want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desire may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones, in your perpetual glory. Amen. Persons must pray this prever 3 consecutive days without prayer 3 consecutive days without asking for your wish. After the 3rd day, your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then promise to publish this dialogue as soon as your favor has been granted.

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN

(Never been known to fail.) Oh most beautiful flower of Mount Carmel, fruit-ful vine, splendor of Heaven. Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin assist me in my necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me you are my mother. O Holy Mary Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth, I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in my necessity (make request). There are none that can withstand your power. Oh Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (3 times). Holy Mother I place this prayer in your hands (3 times). Say this prayer 3 consecutive days. Mother of the Son of God, Immacu-Say this prayer 3 consecutive days. Publish it, it will be granted to you. In loving gratitude.

YOU WILL GET RESPONSE! Guaranteed .

Our pledge to you: if after 30 days you don't get any inquiries on your want ad, we'll refund your money (less a $2 service charge. Automotive specials not included).

We guarantee it. Here's how it works.

1. Run your want ad with us for at least two weeks and pay within one week of the start date.

2. If no one contacts you within 30 days after the ad's stop date, fill out a refund application and mail or bring it to

3. We will refund the cost of the ad (less the $2 service charge) within 7 days of receiving your refund application... Or, we'll run that ad again for the original number of weeks. The choice is yours, a win-win situation all the way

(We can only guarantee that you'll get inquiries--not that you'll make a deal.)

This guarantee applies to individual (noncommercial) want ads. You can pick up a refund application at any of our offices. In Oxford, at 666 S. Lapeer Road. In Lake Orion, 30 N. Broadway Street. In Clarkston, 5 S. Main Street. The refund must be applied for between 30 and 90 days of the want ad's start date.
