TWENTY-FIVE CENTS

Development seen around Twelve Oaks

By PHIL JEROME
Novi officials expect that 1979 will be the year in which the development of the so-called peripheral properties around the Twelve Oaks Mall will begin to take place.

Although the vast majority of the commercial development will occur within the shopping mall itself, the overall development plan also calls for additional commercial development on the peripheral properties.

The peripheral properties are defined as those parcels of land which are located between the ring road which encircles the mall and the two external roads — Novi Road on the west and 12 Mile on the north.

The original shopping center plot showed a total of 18 lots on the peripheral property. That does not necessarily mean, however, that the regional shopping center will be surrounded by 18 stores on the north and west sides.

By splitting the 18 original lots, there could be considerably more stores. In fact, there could conceivably be as many as 72 stores since each individual lot can be split as many as four times.

At least one of the original lots has already been split by the developers and now contains three different stores. Sherwin's Shoes and La-Z-Boy Chair are presently open and doing business on the first of the 18 peripheral properties. A Denny's Restaurant is currently under construction on the same lot.

Three additional site plans have been approved by the Novi Planning Board at this stage of the development of the peripheral properties.

McDonald's Restaurant is open and doing business on a lot located immediately west of the 12 Mile entrance to the shopping center.

Site plans have also been approved by the Novi Planning Board for a Newton's

Furniture Store to be located off Novi Road and for an Englander Triangle Furniture Store to be located off 12 Mile, immediately west of the existing McDonald's Restaurant.

Concerns over the theoretical possibility that the regional shopping center could be surrounded by as many as 72 additional stores led the Novi City Council to adopt a lot split ordinance last September.

The ordinance prohibits the splitting of platted lots without the approval of the city council.

In some respects, adoption of the lot-splitting ordinance could be viewed as an indication that the city council had lost a degree of confidence in Dayton-Hudson which was responsible for the development of the peripheral properties at that time.

Whereas the council at one time had assumed an attitude of "if you can't trust Dayton-Hudson who can you trust," adoption of the lot split ordinance would seem to indicate that the council had decided that even Dayton-Hudson has to be watched carefully.

Dayton-Hudson's real estate branch is no longer in charge of the development of the peripheral properties. That responsibility was passed on to The Taubman Company at the same time that Dayton-Hudson divested itself of its mall management responsibilities.

The changeover in responsibilities for both management of the mall and development of the peripheral properties occurred in October.

Officials with The Taubman Company reported last week that they presently have no hard and fast plans for the development of the rest of the peripheral properties.

One of the items which they will be taking a careful look at is the lot-splitting ordinance.

Another item which will receive careful scrutiny before the formation of additional development plans is the city's new Planned Development (PD) Options.

At this point, nobody really knows what will happen with the rest of the peripheral properties. At least nobody is saying what will happen in the way of development on the parcels.

Officials from The Taubman Company state only that they are formulating plans while reviewing the city's newly adopted ordinances.

Census takers report poor citizen response

The holiday season is causing real problems for census takers who are trying to update population figures for Novi. At this point city officials are not sure how long it could take to complete the special count.

Pat Loder, of the city clerk's office, said the census takers are having an unusual amount of difficulty finding people at home, possibly due to the holidays. She also reported some people are not cooperating with the census takers.

Some 21 census takers have been going door to door since Monday, December 18, asking questions concerning the number of persons living in Novi households and the employment of residents. They also are asking where residents lived before moving to Novi and how long they have lived in the city.

When no one answers the door to respond to the questions a card is left on the door, which requests the census information. Residents are asked to leave the card taped to the door with the information requested, so it can be picked up the following day.

The cards are being removed by the residents, but they are not being returned with the requested information, Loder said. The census taker must continuously return to the home until the information is posted on the door, she explained.

By not filling in the cards, residents are creating "quite a problem," Loder said. She asked residents to "please, don't throw the cards away." The numerous call backs the enumerators must make to the homes are slowing the count.

The cards left on the doors explain that a census is being conducted in the city under the supervision of the Secretary of State's office and it asks for a list of persons living in the home. It further states that the information must be divulged as a requirement of the law.

If residents continue to ignore the cards, the employees in the clerk's office could be forced to start telephoning people and using other tedious methods to get the information, Loder said.

Some persons may be afraid to answer their doors during this time of year for fear of having Christmas presents taken, Loder surmised. However, she said the census takers all have credentials, which residents can request to see. The census counters also are known by the police so residents with suspicions can get verification from them, Loder added.

Another problem has arisen with persons who are refusing to offer information because they have heard the census is being conducted so Novi can obtain more liquor licenses. Census takers have met persons who believe the city does not need more liquor licenses as well as people who are "death on anything that has to do with liquor" and will not answer the census questions, Loder said.

Enumerators do not argue with such persons, but they do inform them the information must be reported as a requirement of law, Loder said. When residents do not cooperate the information must be gathered by contacting employers or other time consuming methods.

The Russian way of life was not to the liking of Novi City Councilwoman Pat Karevich

Moscow visit

Novi councilwoman dislikes Soviet life

By KATHY JENNINGS

Visiting the United Soviet Socialist Republic is not really a vacation. It's more of an interesting learning experience, an experience Novi City Council Member Pat Karevich said is not for those who expect to be pampered.

From her experiences in Leningrad and Moscow, Karevich said she found the USSR to be a country with all the necessities, but none of the luxuries of life.

She cited the examples of the hotel beds which were so thin and narrow her husband was prompted to take a picture of it to show the folks back home and the restaurants which have no menus but which offer only the meal of the day.

Karevich and her husband Leonard recently travelled with a group of 180 on a tour sponsored by distributors of Carrier heating and cooling equipment. The couple spent four days in Leningrad and four days in Moscow.

The country does not provide comforts because it is culture-oriented instead of people-oriented, Karevich said. She learned the USSR government spends millions each year on cultural improvements such as refurbishing cathedrals and museums.

These buildings and the culture they represent to the Soviets is for the people, Karevich said. Since the museums and buildings belong to the people the museums are kept up so the people can visit them and enjoy the material possessions which are theirs, according to Karevich.

Overall, her impression of the country was "drab" and "very blah," she said. There is a lack of creativity, which she noticed in the Soviet architecture.

Karevich said architects had been brought to the USSR from other countries and their work had either been rebuilt or copied. "Nothing is original," she said.

The quality of the workmanship in the country is very poor and Karevich said she believes it is because the people have no incentive to do better. She said it is evident they are all of one class and they have no reason to try and improve their work.

She blames the lack of incentive on the state. From her impressions of the country she said she did not believe the Soviets have responded to the idea of working for the state and therefore working for themselves.

The people also seemed unhappy, Karevich said. They never smile, at least never in public. In fact, when one of the group wanted to take a picture of one of their guides the girl agreed but said she could not smile "because no one would recognize me as a Russian," she told the group.

The group also was amazed at the lines of people found everywhere throughout the cities, Karevich said. The people formed lines, waiting quietly and patiently, to get inside even jewelry stores and toy stores. Mothers stood in lines with their children waiting to try on winter coats, and even the children were quiet and orderly as they waited, Karevich said.

Her attempts to mingle with the Soviets were frustrated because none of them would talk to her, Karevich said. Side trips to shops made in hopes of striking up a conversation to learn about the people, revealed only that they would not talk to outsiders.

"They don't talk because they don't know who you are and they don't trust anybody," Karevich said. She explained that police and military personnel are everywhere. She said in Leningrad alone there are 2,000 police and 20,000 militia.

City to move offices

Novi city offices will be closed Monday and Tuesday next week (January 8-9) while municipal officials and employees roll up their shirt sleeves to pack records, equipment, and furniture for the move into new facilities at the corner of Ten Mile and Taft Roads.

Municipal offices are being moved into the uncompleted half of the Novi Public Library.

Skeleton crews will man the telephone lines and conduct routine business, but city officials are reminding residents that few city records will be available for inspection since most of them will be packed away.

Assistant City Manager Alex Allie reported that city offices will not be in total operation and expressed the hope that the city will not inconvenience many citizens.

The move represents the first step in a plan to consolidate all city offices, including the police department, on the 160-acre site at the corner of Ten Mile and Taft Roads. The former Fuerst Sisters Farm was purchased by the Novi School District several years ago for the purpose of ultimately creating a city-school complex. The new Novi High School is located on a portion of the property, while the remainder of the site has been sold to the city and the Novi Library Board.

Municipal offices which will be moved into the unused portion of the library include the city manager, city clerk, finance director, assessor, building and safety department, and the water and sewer division of the department of public works. The move will bring together city offices which presently are scattered in seven different locations around the city.

The new municipal offices will comprise approximately 9,000 square feet and cost approximately $248,000 to construct. A city general obligation bond, which was approved by the voters in 1977, will fund the construction of the offices.

Allie said the new municipal offices in the library are slated to be completed and ready for occupancy by the end of this week.

"The builders are just taking care of details right now," commented Allie. "We have had some problems getting cabinets and filing space, but we were promised they would be completed by January 5."

Novi is not employing the services of a professional mover to relocate their offices. Instead, city equipment, files, and furniture will be carried to the new facilities by the members of the DPW staff. Allie reported that city personnel will all be wearing blue jeans next week to assist in packing up the trucks.

Each department is responsible for moving its own equipment and files, stated the assistant manager. The packing process began at the end of December with the labeling of all items scheduled to be transported to the new facility. Allie said he hoped the move will take no longer than the two days which have been scheduled for the transfer. The new offices are slated to be open for business on Wednesday, January 10.

Allie also indicated that there are some features of the new offices which will take awhile to get used to. The new municipal offices utilize what is called "open landscaping," which means that it has no closed doors. All offices will be out in the open.

"There won't be too many secrets which may be a good concept for offices which are supposed to be open and accessible," stated Allie. "We're looking forward to see just how it's going to work."

City officials also hope to increase the efficiency of city employees by bringing them together in one location. Employees will gain time once spent travelling from one office to another.

Other city agencies to change locations

The move of Novi city offices from their current location to new facilities at the corner of Ten Mile and Taft Road will eventually prompt the relocation of some other city offices which are not moving directly to the new municipal site.

While the new police department is to be constructed at the municipal site during 1979, the current police headquarters will be moved from Novi Road into the vacated city offices. Police officials report they hope the move is completed by the end of January.

Ground breaking for the new police station is set for January. It will be located one-quarter mile east of the new high school on the municipal site. It is hoped the department will be constructed within 12 to 14 months.

Police officials said moving twice within a year will not cause any problems, and actually view it as a benefit. The move is needed because the department currently does not have enough room. It is not a complicated move and city and police officials do not anticipate any problems.

"Moving into the vacated city offices will give us a chance to implement some new programs and get the problems worked out so we can slide right into the new department in good shape," Lieutenant Richard Faulkner said.

During the next year the police department hopes to be able to centralize its record keeping into one location and transfer all of its outdated records onto microfilm, Faulkner said. A program for completing the move as well as these projects is being developed and written so it can be submitted to Police Chief Lee BeGole for approval, Faulkner explained.

Once the police department leaves its current headquarters on Novi Road, the Novi Parks and Recreation Department is expected to move in.

City officials said the Parks and Recreation Department could be moved from its current location in the old

For year of 1978

Charter township status top story in Commerce

Commerce Township's top story of 1978 occurred in September when the board of trustees voted to incorporate as a charter township under a new state law that protects the boundaries of certain urbanized townships, ending a decade-long threat of annexation.

A group of Commerce residents in 1971 applied to the state boundary commission for permission to become a home rule city, a move designed to block two anticipated annexation requests by the city of Walled Lake.

Wolverine Lake Village residents, also fearful of annexation, filed a similar petition that later was amended to include a portion of the township.

The boundary commission, however, decided in 1972 that Commerce and the village should be incorporated as one city. Village officials challenged the order in court, but an Oakland Circuit Judge and the State Court of Appeals upheld the commission.

Last January, the Michigan Supreme Court refused to grant leave for further appeal, prompting village residents to lead a petition drive to force an election on the cityhood question. The petitions met state requirements, but before the election could be scheduled, the legislature passed the new charter township law and Commerce officials took the first steps toward gaining protection of their boundaries.

An election on the cityhood issue still must be held, according to Boundary Commission Executive Secretary James Hyde. The commission may set the election date later this month or early next month, he added, and the balloting probably will be held this spring.

Commerce Supervisor Robert Long says he doesn't think the cityhood election will be a controversial issue, as long as the township still qualifies for protected boundary status.

However, some legislators have indicated that they may attempt to amend the charter township act in the next session to incorporate recommendations made last year by the governor's task force on municipal boundary changes.

The major difference between general law and charter township status is the township's fiscal year. As a general law township, Commerce's budget was adopted in April and ran through the following March. As a charter township, the fiscal year now coincides with the January-December calendar year.

As a charter township, Commerce no longer will have to hold an annual meeting in April.

In addition to the possible amendments to the law—some of which may affect Commerce—another question that will have to be answered this year is the relationship between the township and the village on tax collections and municipal services. Existing law in this area is rather vague, according to Long and Township Attorney Doug Chartrand. The township board has asked the Michigan Townships Association at its annual convention next week to call for legislation that would clarify the issue.

Another highlight of 1978, according to Long, was the approval in October of a contract with Fleet Ambulance Service to provide an advanced life support unit in the lakes area.

Fleet officials had said that the specialized emergency service would not be economically feasible in the area without a government subsidy. Wolverine Lake Village and Wixom decided not to participate and Walled Lake has not made a decision on the program.

Commerce agreed to pay a $24,000 annual subsidy for the service. In addition to allowing Fleet to use Fire Station Number Two as headquarters for the unit, Township residents receive a 50 percent discount on the life support service, while citizens of other communities must pay the estimated $75 charge.

Other achievements of the last year, the supervisor said, were the opening of a hot lunch program, sponsored by the Oakland Livingston Human Services Agency, in the township hall; approval of a lease agreement with the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority (HCMA) for 115 acres of park land at Bensten and Glengray that will be used for ball diamonds; construction of a shelter in Bicentennial Park; the purchase of a new fire truck; and the election of two new trustees—Republicans Bruce Einfeld and Paul Colton—to the township board.

The Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority finally approved the Oakland County Advance Reservation Transit (OCAART) system which will absorb the Lakes Area Special Dial-A-Ride program, Long noted, but not before a disagreement over funding of the existing van threatened continuation of the service.

New housing construction in 1978 was "a little more than the year before," Long said, adding that Commerce also had "quite a lot of industrial growth" primarily in three industrial parks.

"Growth is continuing with or without the freeway (M-275) and sewers," he said.

Stephen Rosman, a township resident, proposed a growth limitation ordinance in May—patterned after similar laws already on the books in Colorado, New York and California—but Commerce officials questioned the

Wolverine officials experienced busy year in 1978

Although Wolverine Lake Village officials spent a great deal of time last year trying to obtain state and federal approval for a 50-percent federal grant that would help pay for the proposed lake restoration project (see story on Walled Lake Page One), a number of other issues cropped up.

In February, long-time Clerk Irene Savich announced that she planned to retire in August. A 19-year employee of the village, Mrs. Savich had served as clerk for 9½ years.

The council in April hired Dolores Schierlinger under the federal comprehensive employment and training Act (CETA) as an administrative assistant so she could learn the clerk's job prior to Mrs. Savich's retirement.

Problems arose, though, in August when Mrs. Schierlinger charged that Council President John McEllan and Administrator Bill O'Brien promised her a raise. Both men denied the allegation, and recommended that Mrs. Schierlinger should be hired as clerk effective September 1.

Six days after taking office, the new clerk was fired by the council following a dispute with O'Brien. Mrs. Schierlinger called the administrator a liar and said he couldn't be trusted. O'Brien said he couldn't work with the new clerk and Mrs. Schierlinger was fired.

Village officials hoped to hire another new clerk under the CETA program, but county personnel officials rejected the move because of a hiring freeze resulting from uncertainty over new federal regulations for the programs.

Eventually, the council hired Donna Thorsberg, a former Wixom city clerk who worked for the 52nd District Court, as the new clerk. Mrs. Thorsberg took office Tuesday.

A petition drive conducted by village officials and residents was carried out in March to call for an election on the state boundary commission's order for Commerce and Wolverine Lake to incorporate as a new city.

After the petitions were filed, the state legislature adopted a law that offers boundary protection to townships that meet certain urbanization criteria and Commerce took advantage of the measure by voting in September to incorporate as a charter township.

State officials say a cityhood election still must be held—probably next spring—but township and village officials agree that there is little doubt that incorporation as a city will be rejected by the voters now that Commerce is safe from annexation.

Councilman Dean Ratliff died November 2 after a lengthy illness. He had been appointed to the council in 1977 to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of P. Robert Kaiser. Ratliff also served a two-year term on the council several years ago.

Geri Matkowski, chairman of the village's zoning board of appeals, was appointed to the council vacancy in December.

Mrs. Matkowski's term will expire following the April village election along with the seals held by McEllan and Councilman John Coxeter and James Hall. Hall has said he won't run for reelection, while Coxeter and McEllan have indicated that they will seek new terms.

'Pied Piper of West Grand Boulevard'

New library board member cited by legislature

The newest member of the Novi Library Board knows more than a little about libraries.

Jim Evenhuis, who was appointed to the board by the city council recently, holds a Masters Degree in Library Science from the University of Michigan and has been a member of the staff of the Detroit Public Library for almost 18 years.

Furthermore, his work with the State Legislature to pass a resolution in his honor and earned him national acclaim.

In fact, the work that Evenhuis has done to resurrect dying inner city libraries and make them a vital, relevant part of the community has earned him the title of "The Pied Piper of West Grand Boulevard."

Evenhuis went to work for the Detroit Public Library after graduating from Hope College in 1960. The first 10 years of his service with the Detroit Library were spent with the Extension Service in which he was active in taking the library out into the community, including such places as the Detroit House of Correction.

It was in 1973 that Evenhuis was placed in charge of an experimental program designed to make the library a more relevant part of the overall community.

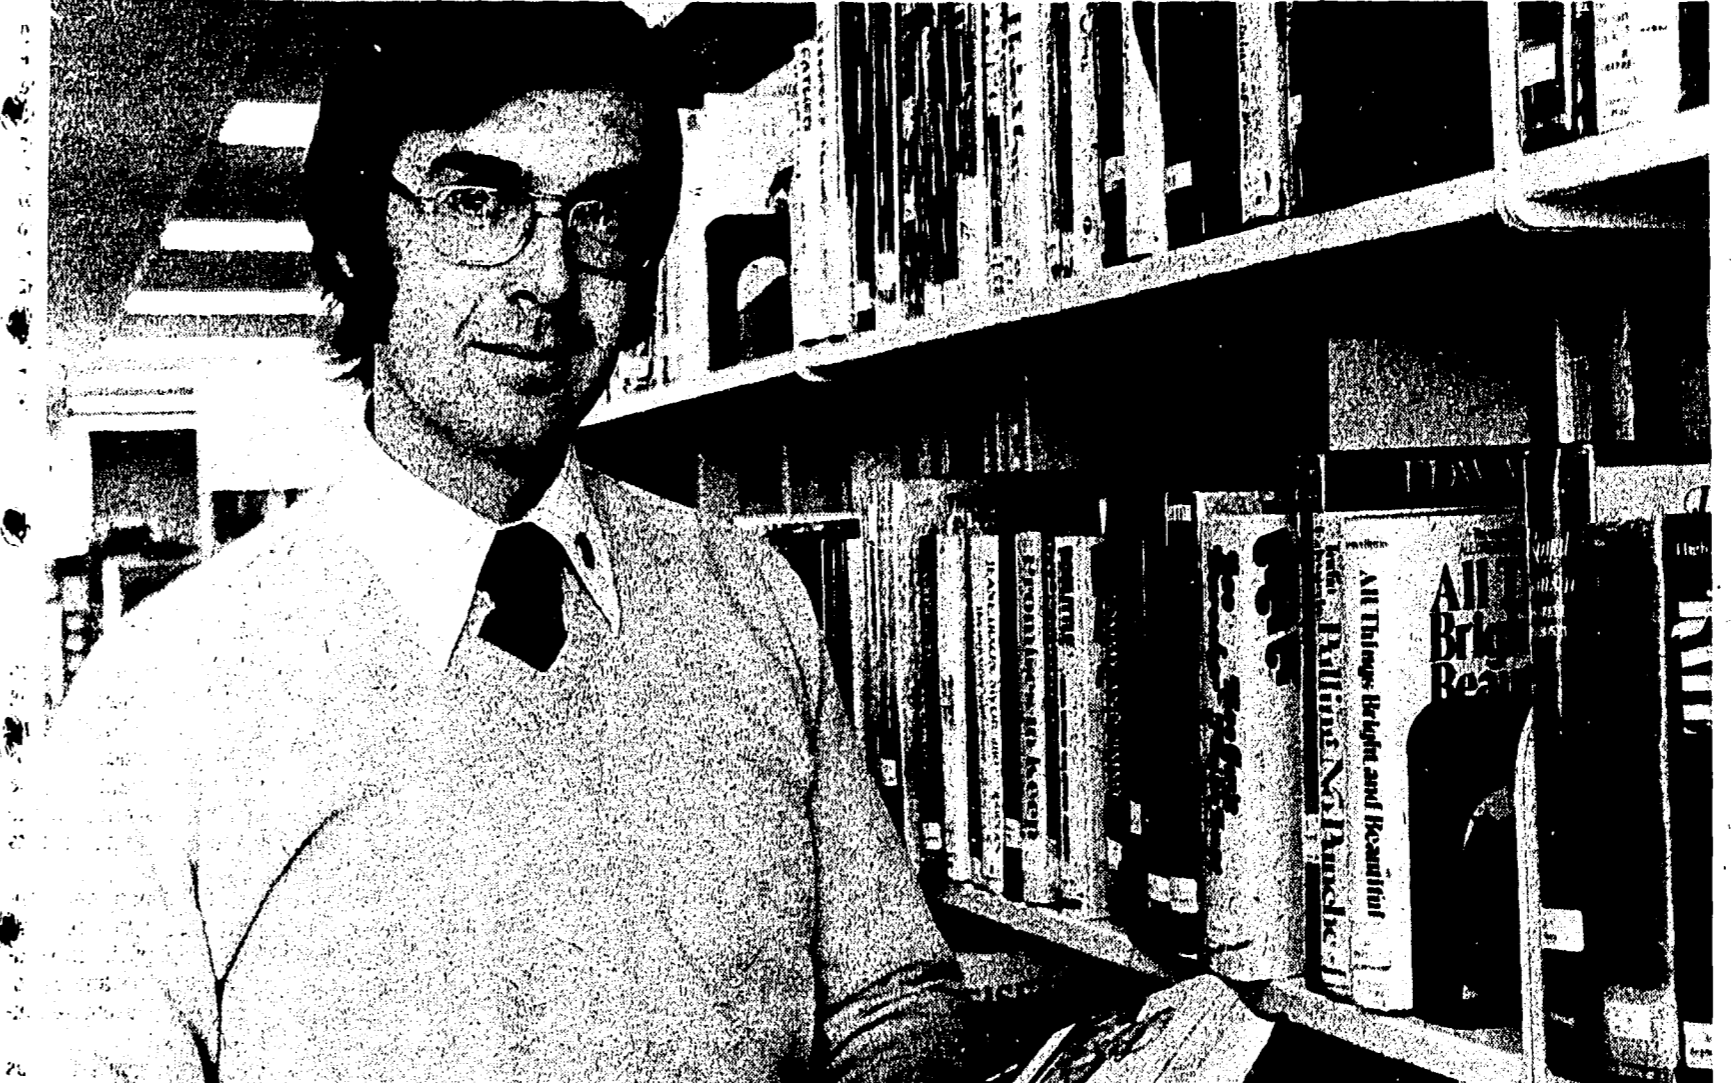

Specifically, he was assigned to the Bowen Branch which is located in a predominantly Latino community on the southeast side of Detroit.

"Our mandate was to make the library relevant to the Latino community and the other ethnic groups located in that section of the city," explained Evenhuis.

"Three bilingual staff members and myself were assigned to the program to see if we could bring the Bowen Branch back to life. What we found when we were there was a library that was not a meaningful, relevant part of the lives of the people who lived there."

In just two years, Evenhuis and his staff successfully brought about the revitalization of the library.

"Community happenings" were set

Jim Evenhuis brings his enthusiasm for community-oriented libraries to the Novi Library Board

'Novi Library to be one of best'

The thing that strikes you about Jim Evenhuis is his great enthusiasm.

"It was this enthusiasm for life, his job, and his community which won him the title of "The Pied Piper of West Grand Boulevard" in conjunction with his work in revitalizing inner city libraries in Detroit.

Evenhuis brings the same enthusiasm to his new role as a member of the Novi Library Board.

"I see the inner city of Detroit as a dynamic frontier," he says. "My professional career has been to work on that frontier, adapting the Detroit Public Library to a vastly changing social situation."

Novi represents another frontier to the energetic 42-year old who has been a resident of the city for just three years.

"Novi is really an exciting place," he says.

"We're right on the threshold of great expansion and development in this community and it's exciting to be a part of it."

Evenhuis' enthusiasm and energy does not represent a solitary light in the forest. The enthusiasm and energy he exudes about the future of the library is shared by the other members of the Novi Library Board, Library Administrator Diane Bish, and the library staff.

Evenhuis commends the city council and his predecessors on the library board for their foresight in constructing the present facility on 10 Mile near Taft Road.

In the years ahead, he says, Novi has the potential to have one of the finest libraries in the Metropolitan Detroit area.

"I think Novi can have a library that is the equal of the public libraries in Farmington Hills and Grosse Pointe and will approach the scope of the Henry Ford Centennial Library in Dearborn," he states.

The future of the library in Novi is currently being plotted by Mrs. Bish, the professional staff, and the members of the library board.

In addition to Evenhuis, other members of the library board include President Paul Black, Secretary Jon Dostal, Treasurer Frank Carter, and Gladys Dahlberg.

Right now, most of the major changes in library service are still in the planning stage. Members of the library staff plan to circulate a petition throughout the community early in 1979 to give residents a chance to indicate what type of services they would like to see provided through the library.

Members of the library staff are moving ahead with a number of plans, however, in advance to the completion of the results of these surveys.

One of the areas which the library staff is investigating involves the accumulation of specific collections.

Mrs. Bish announced recently that the library has obtained the start of what will eventually become a complete legal library. Librarians are also looking at the possibility of compiling a "religious" collection filled with the works of major theologians.

At the present time, city officials are being transferred into the unused "half" of the library. Long range plans, however, call for the ultimate construction of a new municipal complex. When city offices are moved out of the library, the library staff plans to be ready to expand throughout the building with the special collections contained in special rooms.

Another service currently being contemplated by library officials involves the implementation of a community referral service. The library has already hooked into the Michigan Human Services Network and will ultimately be able to answer questions and make referrals when individuals call the library with special needs or requests for assistance.

Yet another service contemplated by the library staff involves special sessions for both municipal government and the area's business community.

Mrs. Bish reported that the library ultimately hopes to be able to provide the research that might be requested by an official with the city government or by a local businessman.

Other programs involve an extension service in which the library reaches out into the community. Library services will be taken into the schools or out into the nursing homes so that residents will be able to utilize the resources of the library without having to go to the library.

"Novi is a dynamic, vital community and we plan to make the library a vital, dynamic, and relevant part of that community," states Mrs. Bish.

"We think we're off to a good start."

George Broutillette plans to pursue a career as a professional violinist with a major symphony orchestra

With Interlochen orchestra

Violinist returns to Walled Lake

Everybody knows that high school homecomings occur during the football season. But homecoming for Walled Lake's George Broutillette this year will occur Thursday, January 10.

That's the date when the 16-year old junior will return to Walled Lake Western as a member of the Interlochen Arts Academy orchestra to perform in a 12:30 p.m. concert.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. George Broutillette of Arvida in Walled Lake, George is a product of the Walled Lake Western and further developed his abilities as a member of the Oakland Youth Symphony.

Ironically, neither of his parents admit to any musical ability. "The only instrument I can play is the radio," says his father with a laugh.

Development, revitalization top Walled Lake stories of 1978

Development and revitalization were the key words in Walled Lake in 1978. A $5-million Kmart store was proposed for construction at Pontiac Trail and West Maple Road by a developer, Stuart Frankel, who also helped city officials create an economic development corporation (EDC) to encourage new construction and expansion of commercial and industrial facilities.

Expansion of city facilities also was discussed last year and the council, after failing to win federal funds to pay for the projects, authorized the administration to have plans drawn up for additions to the city hall and library and construction of a new fire hall. The council still must find a way to pay for the improvements.

Two new council members were appointed to the legislative body in 1978: Don Lee was named in January to fill the vacancy created in December 1977 by the resignation of Al Holdridge, who moved to Arizona, and Cameron Ross was named in November for the opening left by James L. Scott, who moved to northern Michigan.

Although Scott and other city sources said his resignation was prompted by the move, city auditors later charged that the councilman may have been in violation of the city charter because he owed the city some $3,200 in unpaid sewer tap, sewer debt and permit fees.

Lakes group lists concerns over project

The Commerce Lakes Study Committee and the Huron River Watershed Council have raised a number of specific questions on the possible effects of the proposed Wolverine Lake restoration project on downstream areas.

McLellan said the committee's questions have been turned over to Dr. John Snell, consulting engineer on the lake project, for a response. Village Administrator Bill O'Brien added that he may invite Jardine to accompany Commerce Supervisor Robert Long and himself to an as yet unscheduled meeting with Snell.

Long is expected to meet with Snell for information to support the village's request for funds from Commerce and Walled Lakes to help clean up the Greenaway Drain.

EPA plans meeting on lake restoration

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) project officer in charge of reviewing Wolverine Lake Village's application for a 50-percent federal grant to help pay for the proposed lake restoration program says he hopes to set up a meeting next week with state and village officials to discuss a number of "unresolved problems" with the restoration plan.

Doug Ehorn, a project officer at the EPA's regional headquarters in Chicago, said Tuesday that he has prepared a list of questions and problems that village officials and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) will be asked to address before a decision is made on grant eligibility of the lake project.

McLellan has said he is optimistic that the federal grant can be approved in time to start final engineering work this spring and the drawdown in August.

Village officials have said they feel the main hurdle to EPA approval of the grant application is the nutrient loading problem allegedly caused by the Greenaway.

In an effort to improve the drain, Wolverine Lake officials have proposed the construction of a $100,000 retention basin on land in Walled Lake, just south of Wolverine Drive and the lake. The property is the site of a proposed 400-unit apartment complex that has been submitted to the Walled Lake Plan Commission for site plan review.

As We See It

Bureau deserves another review

The end of the calendar year traditionally is a time for the compilation of facts, figures, and statistics in municipal government.

In no way would we fault that decision of the council. The decision to disband the bureau was carefully thought out and based on important financial and law enforcement considerations.

These are not good times to suggest that the city consider reestablishment of the traffic bureau or any other new programs for that matter. City administrators face an unenviable task of budget preparation in light of the effects of the passage of the Headlee Amendment and cutbacks in CBTA funding.

Still, we would suggest that it may be prudent to take a second look at the decision to disband the traffic bureau. The increase in fatalities may have been nothing more than an unhappy coincidence.

Funds for library

The Walled Lake City Council has been asked to decide whether the library fund should receive a share of the city's state single business tax revenues.

As a compromise, Mayor Gaspare LaMarca last week proposed that the council should earmark one-eighth of an $8,000 urban grant the city is expected to receive from the state to the library fund.

This year, however, City Manager Peter Parker felt the funds were needed in the general fund and, armed with an opinion from City Attorney Paul Bibeau, he did not provide the business tax revenues in the library fund budget.

Even if the council goes along with the mayor's proposal, we feel council members should address the library board's request by deciding whether a portion of the business tax revenues should be contributed to the library fund each year.

Library board members have presented the council with copies of opinions from then State Treasurer Allison Green, the deputy director of the Wayne-Oakland Library Federation and an analyst with the state office of management and budget which indicate that the library may be eligible for a share of the SBT revenues as a separate taxing authority in the city.

The library board has saved some $40,000-$50,000 to help pay for an expansion of its present facilities or the construction of a new library. No other city board or commission has been asked to help pay for the three municipal building projects that the council is now reviewing.

Wixom officials see 1979 as year of accomplishment

Wixom officials are looking forward to 1979 as the year in which the results of their labors in 1978 will begin to take form. Mayor Lillian Spencer and Mayor Assistant Stephen Bonczek report that the groundwork for many of their goals in 1979 was established during the 1978 calendar year.

City officials developed an application for a grant for a Historical Survey and Planning Project. The survey, which involves an in-depth study of all existing historical sites and locations in the city, could pave the way for establishment of a historical district in Wixom.

involve the preparation of a recreation plan through the year 2000. Included in the plan are provisions for development of two major community parks as well as a citywide system of bike paths.

M-275 proposals still unresolved

The fate of a north-south state trunkline road through western Oakland County appears to be more uncertain with the start of the new year than it was a year ago. Last January, the Michigan State Highway Commission narrowed the list of proposed alternatives to the cancelled M-275 freeway down to two.

Orchard Lake Road, connecting with M-15 through Clarkston to I-75. Also in the last year, the Walled Lake City Council proposed — and then withdrew — an alternative that called for construction of a parkway along Novi Road and East Walled Lake Drive to Bensten, connecting I-96 to M-59 or I-75.

Some officials and organizations said they felt the advisory vote was an endorsement of the original freeway, while most people believed the ballot proposal was too vague and confusing.

Novi councilwoman dislikes Russia

As she was adjusting to the country, Karevich said. She explained they visited Leningrad first and there they learned they could not drink the water because it contains a parasite which local residents are immune to, but which makes Americans ill.

"We had a discussion about the lack of different odors there when we reached Metro Airport and none of us could say what the country smelled like, but some people thought it was the smell of smoked fish," she said.

Suzanne Cook promises to be a top performer on the balance beam for the Warrior gymnastics team

Seasoned seniors lead Western gymnasts

The future looks bright for the gymnastics program at Walled Lake Western.

But it may be necessary to wait a year or two for the points to come rolling in.

Denise Kin takes over the Warrior gymnastics team this year from Gail Cotter who coached last year's squad to a highly respectable 8-5 record and a place in the MHSAA Class A regional tournament at Ludington.

And even though many of the top performers from last year's team will not be returning for another year of action, Kin is enthusiastic about the Warriors' prospects for the future.

The major source of her optimism is a large turnout of potentially talented underclassmen. There are approximately 20 girls on the 1979 edition of the Warrior gymnastics team, and more than half of them are freshmen.

What's more, just three members of the squad are seniors — giving Kin plenty of time to build for the future.

It will be the seniors, however, who will carry the brunt of the burden for the success of this year's team.

Heading up the 1979 edition of the Warrior gymnastics team are three seniors who have been in the program for four years — Suzanne Cook, Shelly Squires, and Kendra Marsh.

Squires may prove to be the top individual point scorer for the Warriors this year. Kin plans to make abundant use of her talents this year and has tentatively slated her to compete in all four events which comprise the gymnastics program — floor exercise, balance beam, uneven parallel bars, and vaulting horse.

Marsh is also slated to see plenty of action for the Warriors this year. Marsh is almost certain to be competing regularly in both the bars and floor exercise, and more than likely will be called upon to represent the Warriors in vaulting as well.

Joining Squires and Marsh at the top of the point list for the Warriors will be Cook who will probably be the top performer in both the balance beam and floor exercise.

Novi boasts accomplished grads

Novi has only had a full-fledged senior high school for 10 years now, and was competed in only one league (the Southeast Conference) since then.

Despite the lack of years with an established sports program, though, the Wildcats have hardly lacked in outstanding athletes.

During their short tenure as a Class C B competitor in Michigan sports Novi has had three individual state champions plus a football team that could well have been the best of its class, even though there was no state football playoffs at the time.

Just for fun, here's a look back at two of the outstanding athletes Novi produced, and what they're doing now.

JIM VAN WAGNER, a 1973 graduate, is now a professional football player. The former Michigan Tech University All-American, who led the nation in rushing twice and finished runner-up once during his years with the Huskies, was drafted by the San Francisco 49'ers in the seventh round in 1977 but walked out of training camp later that year.

After getting back together with the 49'ers Van Wagner was put on waivers, but cleared them and was later picked up by the New Orleans Saints.

He was used primarily on the Saints' specialty teams during the early part of last season, and played in the team's first five games before suffering a knee injury that required surgery and kept him sidelined the rest of the year. He currently lives in New Orleans with his wife and plans on being with the Saints again next season.

During his senior year at Novi Van Wagner rushed for 941 yards and led the Wildcats to their first of four straight SEC championships. He was also selected to the Class C All-State football team that year after sparking Novi to a perfect 9-0 record and a number two state ranking.

Her 15.0 clocking in the Class B state finals was a state record, and it still stands as a school record. It also marked the third straight time she'd competed at the states (her first two appearances were marred by falls in the preliminaries).

Cook also holds the school record for the long jump (17-2), and was a state qualifier in that event in her senior year as well. She placed fifth in the long jump.

Know what some other old Novi graduates are doing these days? If so, feel free to send any information you might have on them to the Novi News office, located at 1340 South Commerce Road in Walled Lake, zip code 48088.

Midget hockey squad gains tourney finals

A pair of ties plus a victory over Lakeland last week vaulted Northville-Nov's Midget AA hockey team into the finals of a Christmas tournament in Dearborn Tuesday night. The local squad battled from behind three times to the Garden City, 3-3, the day before Christmas. They blew a three-goal lead in the last period and deadlocked with the Brownstown Thunderbirds, 4-4, two days later before beating Lakeland, 4-1, last Saturday morning.

In cold winter weather

Proper footwear important to keeping body warm

If your feet are cold, put your hat on. If that doesn't work, look to your footwear.

"Your feet and your head are probably the two most important parts of the body to keep warm," says Paul Risk, Michigan State University Extension specialist in park and recreation resources. "Even at relatively high temperatures — around 40 degrees — the average person loses 50 percent of the heat his body produces if his head is uncovered. At five degrees, you lose 75 percent. Oftentimes, covering your head to conserve that heat will enable you to warm your own feet."

"That's not to say that it doesn't matter what kind of footwear you choose for outdoor activities in cold weather." Selecting footwear appropriate to your activity is very important in keeping you comfortable.

The best type of boot for you depends largely on whether you'll be moving around a lot or staying relatively still. Boots for hiking and snowshoeing, for instance, need not be so thickly insulated as boots for snowmobiling or icefishing. Hiking boots need grippier soles of some sort and better foot support.

The ice fisherman needs a boot primarily for insulation. All it has to do is keep his feet warm and dry while he's sitting or standing on the ice. A hiking boot, on the other hand, needs to support the foot and ankle and provide good traction and protection against briars. It should also be waterproof and well enough insulated to keep the feet dry and warm.

Boots are available with leather, nylon and rubber uppers and a wide variety of sole materials and textures. Leather, lace-up boots were generally designed for use under moderate temperatures. Those with nylon uppers and rubber soles tend to be warmer, but they're a little floppy for snowshoeing and similar activities.

Right now it's a status thing to wear ankle-high mountaineering boots. They have cleated soles, which are good for clinging to narrow ledges, but their steel shank makes them too inflexible for comfortable hiking. They're also very heavy and not insulated well enough for cold weather use.

One of the warmest boots around is the "Mickey Mouse" boot worn by U.S. troops in Korea. These boots are so heavily insulated that it doesn't matter that the wearer's feet get soaked with perspiration. With any other boot, wet feet means cold feet.

Moisture transfers heat away from the body much faster than air at the same temperature. It also fills up the pores in insulating material, replacing pockets of air in the material with pockets of water. The more a boot acts like a vapor barrier and prevents moisture from escaping, the more likely it is that your feet will get wet and cold.

Anyone planning to be active outdoors in cold weather should carry at least one extra pair of felt inner boots and a change of socks. Being able to exchange wet ones for dry can make the difference between warm, comfortable feet and cold feet or even frostbite.

For good traction, try cleats over any other type of sole. It's like the difference between snow tires and slicks. Cleated soles are not recommended. The crosswise ridges allow the foot to slip sideways.

Ankle-high boots are probably high enough for most people under normal conditions. Higher boots may be necessary for keeping snow out or protecting the leg against briars or other hazards. If snow is your only worry, buy a pair of waterproof gaiters to wear over short boots.

When buying boots, as with any other footwear, be sure to wear the socks you plan to use with them when you try them on. Two pairs are usually recommended: a thin cotton sock with a thick wool one over it. Two socks help insulate the foot and minimize blistering as they will move against each other so they don't rub against the foot. Because these fibers are absorbent, they also help to keep the foot dry.

Treat new leather boots with Bear Grease or some other waterproofer. Rub it into the leather by hand, concentrating on the seams and the junction between the upper and the sole. Then warm the boots near a heat register or in a very low oven so the grease will melt and soak in.

Waterproofing is really a compromise measure. It keeps snow from soaking through, but it also limits the leather's ability to let the moisture inside out.

One final note: there is no such thing as "a boot for all seasons." A boot that is comfortable in winter will be too hot in summer. A summer boot may keep you reasonably warm in cold weather as long as you're active, but as soon as you stop moving, you're going to get cold.

Travelogue journeys to Norway

"Exploring Norway" is the title of the next travelogue in the Travel and Adventure Series sponsored by the Lakes Area Chamber of Commerce.

James Forshee will provide the film and narrative for the trip to Norway which will be shown in the E. V. Ayers Auditorium at Walled Lake Western High School this Sunday (January 7) at 1 p.m.

Tickets may be purchased at the door for $2.50 per person. Season tickets are still available at a price of $10 per person or $25 per family.

Additional information on tickets is available from the Chamber office at 624-2828 or Betty Sipeak at 963-1547.

James Forshee is an Ann Arbor resident who served with the United States Marines in Japan and the Pacific. After World War II he entered the automotive industry as an engineer, working for the Ford Motor Company for several years.

During the last few years, his hobby has become his major interest and he has become one of the top artists in the travelogue field. His delightful presentation and the technical excellence of his films have entertained audiences from coast to coast.

Norway is famous for its beautiful fjords. Formed millions of years ago by receding glaciers from the ice age, the fjords are deep blue-green arms of the sea which penetrate far into the Norwegian interior. Surrounded by towering rock cliffs, the countryside is a patchwork of snow-capped mountains, flower-carpeted valleys, foaming waterfalls, and brightly painted villages.

The film will travel to Bergen, Norway's second largest city and one which gives the appearance of a quaint 11th Century Viking seaport. Bergen is an important commercial center with an excellent harbor which is a vital link in the export of fish and fish products.

scenery and points of interest will delight the traveler.

The travelogue traveler will take the spiraling drive up to the majestic view from Stalheim. The renowned Vigeland sculptures will be viewed on a visit to Oslo, the capital city and chief seaport which is Norway's educational and cultural center.

Another trip will be made to Hammerfest, the northernmost city in the world. The viewer will be able to experience the magnificent North Cape where the mountains sweep down to the Arctic Ocean. Standing here beneath the Midnight Sun, the viewer will be able to witness a unique phenomenon — the sun goes down and then comes up again without dipping below the horizon.

"Exploring Norway" will provide Lakes Area families with an outing which is entertaining and educational for both adults and children.

Prizes galore await first baby of 1979

In the second "new baby" contest sponsored by the Walled Lake-Novi News and participating merchants, the first baby to be born in 1979 will capture the title and a host of prizes.

The contest, open to any expectant mom with a Walled Lake, Novi or Wixom mailing address, will spotlight the first baby born after midnight on New Year's Day. The babies are not required to be born in these particular communities, however.

This is the second year for the contest sponsored by The News in Walled Lake, Wixom and Novi residents have been vying for the title however, through a similar contest run by the Northville Record-Novi News for 23 years.

Deadline for reporting the first baby is Monday, January 8, at 5 p.m. Time of birth must be verified by the attending physician. If no entries are received by the deadline, the contest will be extended one week.

To date, the overall competition has had 13 girls and nine boys as winners. Eric Allen Sahberg from Novi took the first Walled Lake-Novi news crown last year.

His arrival came on January 3 at 11:09 a.m. The hefty first-born of Sharon and Sten Sahberg, he weighed in at nine pounds, seven ounces, was 21½ inches long, and was said by his dad to be the most beautiful baby in the entire hospital.

Now 23 pounds and 30 inches tall, Eric has a limited beginner's vocabulary of "ma ma" and occasionally "da da" and has just begun to walk. Described by his mom as a happy, sociable baby, Eric just experienced his first visit to Santa "and loved every minute of it."

Stuffed animals and the kitchen cupboards are included among favorite playthings of the young man. Although his parents agree that life had changed a great deal with his arrival, they continue to enjoy watching him grow and look forward to his first birthday party.

To the new "first baby of 1979" will go a list of gifts that will prove useful to mom, dad and baby. The News awaits the first call after January 1 at 624-8190.

Fred Schelter, an electronics instructor at the Southwest Oakland Vocational Education Center (SWOVEC) in Walled Lake, has taken his hobby of ham radio into the classrooms with good results. Use of the ham radio in the classroom not only captures the interest of many students, but also interests the

The electronics teacher at the Southwest Oakland Vocational Education Center (SWOVEC) in Walled Lake can't think of too many things more enjoyable than sitting in front of a ham radio talking with people from all over the world.

"It's a way of traveling and meeting new and exciting people without ever leaving the room," explained Schelter. Schelter has brought his hobby to the SWOVEC students through the purchase of a used ham radio for $150. The radio would have cost more than $1,000 new.

Not only has it captured the interest of many students who are deciding to make ham radio their hobbies also, but it is proving to be an effective way to capture a student's attention and interest in the electronics program at SWOVEC, according to Schelter.

"The students are becoming more interested in electronics when they can see a practical application of it," he said. "We go through the ham set up and learn about its basic electrical parts, circuits, and antenna. Then, among other things, we learn about radio waves and how they work."

According to Schelter, interest in amateur ham radio has been sparked by the current CB radio craze.

"Amateur radio offers electronics students the opportunity to communicate with people all over the world on many different frequencies and power levels using homemade equipment — something a CB can't do."

In order to operate the transmitter, the students must first obtain an amateur license from the FCC. Schelter, who has long been a licensed ham radio operator, reported that several students have already obtained their licenses and several others are planning to do so as well.

Earning the FCC license is not part of the class, however. "The students who want to get this license are doing so in their spare time," explained the SWOVEC instructor.

In addition to the communication's electronics portions of the class, Schelter's students also have the opportunity to gain industrial experience and training using the same kind of electronics equipment found in industry.

"The purpose of the electronics program is to prepare students to work in the field of electronics," stated Schelter. "I'm finding that the ham radio set-up is a tremendous way to achieve that goal."

Registration begins for Novi Community Ed classes

Did you get a microwave oven for Christmas and want to learn how to use it? ... Did you make a resolution to get yourself into better physical condition by jogging this year? ... If so, then you might well be interested in the winter semester of classes offered through the Novi Community Education Department.

register for the classes Monday through Thursday (January 8-11) in the School of Administration Building on Taft Road from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. ... A class in microwave cooking and another class for joggers and swimmers which will meet three days per week at 6:30 a.m. are just two of the new offerings in the Community Education Department's winter program.

Rats" and the melodrama "Mind of a Killer." ... All interested individuals are encouraged to come and read for a part between 7-10 p.m. on either day. ... More information about the casting tryouts and Stage One Productions is available from Nancy Keough at 624-2748 or Chris Ruona at 349-2213.

Refreshments and a social period will follow at the church. ... Complimentary tickets for the second in a series of programs offered by the Southwest Oakland Educational Forum are now available through the Walled Lake School District. ... The program, scheduled for Wednesday, February 7, at 7:30 p.m., will feature Marilyn VanDerbur speaking on "Finding Success in Motivating Students."

Library at 7:30 p.m. ... The free program is open to the public and is one of an on-going series offered by the Wixom Library on a variety of subjects. ... Staff of the Oakland Livingston Human Service Agency, which sponsors the program, will be available to take photographs of senior citizens for the identification cards at the church from 10 a.m. until noon and from 1-3 p.m.

The ID cards enable seniors to take advantage of discounts offered by local merchants ranging up to 40 percent. ... The Commerce Department is headed by Chief Clarence Kutikun. ... The department also boasts 32 volunteers.

ald Novi is strong 'commen-his policy and he should know we're criticizing it," Hoyer said. Mrs. Hoyer has not confined her criticism of Carter's non-growth plan to the council table.

In action taken separate from the council, Hoyer has fired off a letter to Carter, blasting the recent EPA hearing and the president's non-growth policy for the suburbs.

In her letter Hoyer called the EPA hearing a "farce and a scam." She suggested the environmental impact statement developed by the EPA is not factual and is "a piece of tripe and a waste of the taxpayer's money."

The council member criticized the president's no growth policy for usurping the rights of American public and local officials. As an example, she said persons can no longer choose to locate in Novi because sewers cannot be installed. As a result residents look to Detroit, Ferndale, or Oak Park where "there is no breathing room, but where you may flush your toilet."

"The average American has always looked to his local officials first, but our job is growing increasingly difficult with the hand tying practices of the upper echelon of bureaucrats," Hoyer concluded. "It's

ents claim polluting

homeowners' reasons for going to the city.

"The EPA study should not be used as a political ploy to force government policies on the minority-urban and suburban issues. At one point during the hearing a member of the EPA said the people are not interested in the environment. We are interested, we live here. We had 40 to 60 people attend that hearing in Romulus on a cold day to show we're interested."

She explained the residents fear that since the study shows the treatment plant is discharging effluent into the lake now, it will empty five times as much pollution when the plant is enlarged five times, as recommended by the EPA.

"The EPA was established to protect the environment. Why don't they protect us by fixing what is already polluting us, Birou said. Residents told EPA officials of the pollution existing in the lake. Her husband also represented the group with a 20 minute testimony on discrepancies, incorrect information, and politics within the report.

Birou said that now the homeowners know where the pollution is coming from they will "persevere and try to get the lake cleaned up."

Novi city council supported the residents who attended the hearing with a resolution of appreciation to the Meadowbrook Homeowners Association and especially Ron Birou for their support of the city's position on super sewer.

The resolution also stated the proposed plans to expand the treatment plant (alternate D) is particularly threatening to Meadowbrook Lake and residents of the subdivision.

his policy and he should know we're criticizing it," Hoyer said. Mrs. Hoyer has not continued her criticism of Carter's non-growth plan to the council table.

In action taken separate from the council, Hoyer has fired off a letter to Carter, blasting the recent EPA hearing and the president's non-growth policy for the suburbs.

In her letter Hoyer called the EPA hearing a "farce and a scam." She suggested the environmental impact statement developed by the EPA is not factual and is "a piece of tripe and a waste of the taxpayer's money."

The council member criticized the president's no growth policy for usurping the rights of American public and local officials. As an example, she said persons can no longer choose to locate in Novi because sewers cannot be installed. As a result residents look to Detroit, Ferndale, or Oak Park where there is no breathing room, but where you may flush your toilet.

"The average American has always looked to his local officials first, but our job is growing increasingly difficult with the hand tying practices of the upper echelon of bureaucrats," Hoyer concluded.

homeowners' reasons for going to the city.

"The EPA study should not be used as a political ploy to force government policies on the minority-urban and suburban issues. At one point during the hearing a member of the EPA said the people are not interested in the environment. We are interested, we live here. We had 40 to 60 people attend that hearing in Romulus on a cold day to show we're interested."

She explained the residents fear that since the study shows the treatment plant is discharging effluent into the lake now, it will empty five times as much pollution when the plant is enlarged five times, as recommended by the EPA.

"The EPA was established to protect the environment. Why don't they protect us by fixing what is already polluting us, Birou said. Residents told EPA officials of the pollution existing in the lake. Her husband also represented the group with a 20 minute testimony on discrepancies, incorrect information, and politics within the report.

Birou said that now the homeowners know where the pollution is coming from they will "persevere and try to get the lake cleaned up."

Novi city council supported the residents who attended the hearing with a resolution of appreciation to the Meadowbrook Homeowners Association and especially Ron Birou for their support of the city's position on super sewer.

The resolution also stated the proposed plans to expand the treatment plant (alternate D) is particularly threatening to Meadowbrook Lake and residents of the subdivision.
