Novi hires women sewer workers

By KATHY JENNINGS

In this day of the liberated woman we have women doctors, judges, police officers and now sewer workers.

These days a woman in a position raditionally reserved for the male of the species hardly occasions more than a second glance. In that spirit the City of Novi has hired its first women laborers in the Department of Public

But Brenda Burnstrum and Laura Birou insist that taking the summer job was not a stand for women's lib. They applied for the job because it pays better than a clerical position and they can work outside.

be some hesitation on the part of the city to sign the two women.

"We were told we would go home all smelly and exhausted," Laura said. "Well if I smell bad, I go home and take a shower."

Brenda said she told her future employer she believed she could do the job since she had worked last summer through the Northville Public Schools for the City of Northville. She worked as a laborer on the city's beautification

"That was a labor position and it

Assistant City Manager Alex Allie explained that there really was no hesitation on his part in offering the job to the women. "I mentioned the physical facilities in the DPW garage were not geared for both males and females and they were given an objective warning Brenda said for her the job "is a last about the cat calls they might get, but I job or wouldn't be appointed," he said.

> Despite the initial hesitation on the part of the city it appears the two women have fit right in.

In fact Laura says it's the best summer job she has ever had, because she is allowed to work at her own pace.

"You know what job you have to get done and you have a certain amount of time to accomplish it. It's not a high pressure type job. It's more fun than any other summer job I've had," she

Though they expect more difficult work this summer, Brenda presently is responsible for installing meters, while Laura reads meters and installs new meter heads.

Brenda has spent most of the summer crawling through people's attics, stringing wire for the meter connections, which has its high and low points. The job does give her a chance to meet people, but asbestos fibers itch, she explained.

But when problems with sewers arise, it is part of their job, too. In fact they assisted in repairing a sewer back up on the first day of their employment. On that job the women did a lot of watching since they had not yet been trained to work any of the machinery and simply did not know what to do, they admitted. "At the beginning we didn't know what to do and they (fellow workers) not caused any real problems. On the job they have a lot of camaraderie with fellow workers, and the women report they have had only the good-natured teasing found in most any work setting. Another member of the water department returned from lunch as the women were being interviewed and he confirmed their remarks.

"They're doing the same job we're doing," he reported. He said that he and his fellow workers never worried that the women wouldn't be able to do the work, but "we just couldn't picture them climbing down sewers. We figured they would be capable, but we didn't figure they would want to do it," said Bruce White.

They have found the women can work - even on the sewers.

"They've done it and they're good workers. They fit in real well. Having them around has probably cleaned up our language, though. And probably none of us would have thought to put daisies on the filing cabinet," he added proval of any further subdivisions south of Nine Mile until it has been determined whether storm water run off from them can be handled by the existing drainage system.

City officials and members of the Village Oaks Common Areas Association (VOCAA) were scheduled to meet Tuesday evening to discuss the latest problems with water drainage from subdivisions under construction near Village Oaks.

Last week Scott M. Duncan, Chairperson of the VOCAA board of directors, appeared before the Novi City Council to explain that it appears Charrington Green, Turtle Creek and Whispering Meadows are dumping more water into the lakes in Village Oaks than they were designed to han-

"This year for the first time we have experienced high water conditions in both our retention lakes. Yet the rainfall was average. Homeowners on the large retention lake have complained about damage to their property as a result of the higher than normal water level. We must assume that the additional surface water run off from the new subdivisions has caused this problem," Duncan said.

He asked what the subdivision could expect during a very wet spring when residents are experiencing damage to their property during an average rainy

The group sought assurances from the city that their storm water system can handle the water which will drain from the new subdivisions into their

They also asked that no other property be allowed to dump run off water into their drainage system.

Duncan told the council the capacity of the Village Oaks retention system can be reduced by new construction surrounding the subdivision.

He explained that as the natural ground cover is destroyed by excava-

This dirt or silt settles to the bottom of the lake, reducing the amount of water the lake will hold. To combat this, the subdivision will eventually be forced to dredge the lake bottom, he

This siltation problem also calls for the city to maintain the silt traps frequently during the construction of the subdivisions, he told the council.

Duncan also pointed out that the neighboring subdivisions are contributing to problems with the Village Oaks retention system, but are not paying an adequate fee for maintenance of the system.

He pointed out that besides the dredging, which could eventually cost $500,000, the system will also have algae and weed growth from the fertilizer added to the lawns in the new

He explained Village Oaks is accepting run off from 50 homes in Turtle Creek and was paid in advance for maintenance but while the costs of maintaining the system are escalating through inflation, the subdivision will get no extra funds from Turtle Creek.

Duncan explained the contract negotiated with Turtle Creek was for only $1 per lot.

The same agreement was reached with Whispering Meadows developers though they have not yet paid anything to Village Oaks, Duncan protested. Neither agreement included an inflation factor.

Duncan complained the Village Oaks group was not notified that developers of Charrington Green were seeking approval of its final plat until it had already been granted.

"We the residents of Village Oaks are responsible for the water retention system being used by Whispering Meadows, Turtle Creek and now Charrington Green. Once again we have been

Novi police seek leads on Willowbrook thefts

Novi police are seeking any information leading to the arrest of individuals responsible for an estimated 20 breaking and enterings or attempted breakins which have occured in the Willowbrook subdivision during the past three weeks. Police report that in all incidents the culprits have entered either through door walls or sliding windows. They have been attacking homes where residents have left either overnight, on weekend trips or short day-time jaunts.

Detective Robert Starnes said they suspect those responsible for the breakins are residents of the neighborhood because the crimes have been occuring both during the day and night.

Residents of the community could more easily walk through the subdivision without raising the suspicions of other residents, Starnes said.

They have hit homes throughout the neighborhood including Borchart North; South, East and West LeBost, Hollydale, McMahon, Malott, Maude Lea, Meadowbrook, Willowbrook and Quince.

Primarily the thieves have taken small items which can be placed in a pocket. Antique watches, coin collections and similar items are usually found missing after a home has been hit, according to Starnes.

Many times the thieves have taken items which the homeowner does not miss when they first discover their home has been broken into. "They're taking things that have been tucked behind the socks for years that people don't even see anymore because they've been there so long,"Starnes explained. Smaller items are taken because the culprits could not escape unnoticed through the subdivision carrying television sets or stereos, he said. Police suspect the break-ins are being committed by more than two young male adults. Starnes theorized that persons in the neighborhood have become used to seeing youths around and probably do not suspect them.

It appears the thieves watch for homes where there are no lights and no cars, Starnes said. Some residents also have reported that suspicious persons have rung their doorbell.

If the doorbell has been answered promptly, the suspects leave, but if there is no response the thieves have tried to enter the home. Police said there have been cases where the thieves believed the home was empty and were scared off by the homeowner when they attempted to enter. In one incident police were called to the scene while the culprits were entering a window, the suspects were scared off, however, and eventually eluded the

Starnes said that many of the items being taken are worth only a few hundred dollars but may be priceless to the owners. He indicated much of the jewlery and similar stolen items may have great personal worth to their

He indicated in many homes the thieves also have taken drinks from family liquor supplies.

Judge details paraphenalia opinion Judge Patricia J. Boyle of the U.S.

District Court has recently released her detailed written opinion which explains how she reached the conclusion that Novi's paraphernalia ordinance is constitutional.

In the opinion, she describes the stimony from both sides of the issue - Tobacco Road, Inc. and the City of "Charitably viewed, (Tobacco Road's) evidence was unpersuasive. Credibility is strained to the limit when two witnesses with extensive experience in the tobacco industry are unable to see any distinguishing characteristics for smoking purposes between a wooden pipe and glass pipe, or between a small-bowl pipe and a water pipe," she said in the opinion.

The judge went on to say the credibility of the plaintiff's testimony is best illustrated by the statement of one of the witnesses that a green, leafy plant appearing on a page of a catalogue con-"bean sprouts."

Those same witnesses gave the same response when asked whether these pipes were primarily designed or adapted for smoking marijuana.

The city attorney produced two tobacconists who testified "paraphernalia" is the trade name for accessories intended to be sold for use with controlled substances.

Both of the city's witnesses reviewed a paraphernalia catalogue and identified many pipes unsuitable for tobacco use and which are designed for use with controlled substances.

The size of the bowl, the material of the pipe, and the absence of a stem were some factors that indicated a pipe taining "roach clips" looked to him like is not designed for tobacco, the witnesses explained.

July Fourth receives big turnout in Wixom

Wixom residents have a knack for doing up the holidays in high style. And their Fourth of July celebration last week was no exception. There was absolutely everything you would expect to find in a grand old small town celebration. The Wixom Fourth got underway bright and early with flagraising ceremonies at city hall. And then the hale and hearty got together for a community "run" out to the North Wixom City Park where the rest of th day's activities were scheduled. There were volleyball games and horseshoe tournaments. Youngsters competed in a variety of different competitions. And the volunteer fire department put on displays of skill and then entered into various competitions with volunteer firemen from neighboring communities. Through it all there were plenty of good things to eat — not the least of which were big slices of rich, cold watermelon. Appropriately. Wixom's old-time Fourth of July activities were capped with a huge fireworks display at dusk.

Novi city council considers trash collection ordinance

Requirements for regulating weekly trash collections by contractors in Novi have been rejected by the city council because the new ordinance "appears unenforceable."

Council members sent a draft ordinance back to the city attorney for further revision after it was presented to them last week. They requersted some muscle be put into the law in the form of licensing and performance bonds to guarantee the contractors' work. Under the proposed ordinance, the contractor and customer would have been required to enter into an agreement for at least six months. The agreement would have specified the day of the week the trash would be collected and required collection within 24 hours of the specified date. The ordinance did not require a written agreement between the contractor and the customer, according to City Attorney David Fried. Council members expressed concern that the draft ordinance in its original form would put the city in the middle when it came to enforcing the or-

The council proposed revisions to the ordinance which included a nominal fee for licensing, bonding, and stricter regulations for the appearances of commercial trash containers or dumpsters. Council Member Patricia Karevich said she did not want severe restrictions or high licensing fees want the garbage picked up." Despite previous fears voiced by council that stringent measures might drive contractors from the city, it was noted at the meeting that most communities require licensing and bonding of trash col-

Jim Hockstead, representing the Country Place Association, asked the council to reconsider sections of the ordinance dealing with trash collection service for multiple units in the city.

"I question whether multiple units were considered thoroughly," Hockstead suggested. He asserted there are problems within multiple housing that a single-family home owner will never In addition, the council told the attorney it was not interested in strict regulations as to when a person can place garbage out for trash collection. Fried said he would redraft the ordinance, implementing some sections of a previously rejected trash ordinance. Council members indicated they approved of some parts of the latest draft and sections of the former draft, but neither one in itself Fried said the new ordinance will be prepared for

Residents to be surveyed

While council members debate regulations for trash collection contractors operating in Novi, a survey is being prepared to determine the community's sentiment toward future trash collection service being contracted by the city. Questionnaires have been drafted by the city administration which will go out to homeowners associations, individuals and condominium associations, according to City Manager Ed Council members will likely be asked to aprove

Citizens are asked to identify their current con-

Residents also will be asked if they would favor the city entering into an agreement with a trash collection contractor who would provide citywide service providing the service can be offered for less than residents currently are paying.

Council members are expected to review the questionnaire at their next regular meeting. July 16, and add questions or revisions they seem necessary, Kriewall said.

More moon trips
for U.S.?

Speaking for myself

Our first astronauts landed on the moon 10 years ago this month; the next flight is long overdue. Most look on such voyages as being financially prohibitive and of no practical benefit, but such is not the case. We must realize that Americans spent more on cosmetics than on moon flights each year of the Apollo program! By reinvesting funds into lunar flights, we can expect invaluable technological returns in fields such as medical technology, communications, computers and health care. In this manner, funds channeled into the Apollo flights actually showed profit Moon trips could carry instruments for monitoring "moonquakes" which would immeasurably increase knowledge of earthquake prediction and control. Trips to the lunar surface could serve to bring back samples of rocks and soil from locations not accessible to previous teams of astronauts. In studying these samples, we gain insight into the origin and future of the earth itself. Such ventures could be utilized to set up permanent earth observation stations in order to study our atmosphere in addition to scouting out rare ore deposits.

I foresee lunar flights dedicated to establish mining operations. These mines could produce ores not available on earth which are crucial in the construction of space stations and eventually space colonies. Costbenefit studies have already been conducted and designs of such lunar operations have been submitted. Clearly, flights to the moon are a prerequisite to an era of man's expansion into space.

> L. Wayne Brasure Astro-physics major, U-M

I could not rationalize a trip to the moon considering the desolate and barren condition that prevails there. I do not believe that within my lifetime the moon will be sufficiently developed to be a tourist attraction.

The main lure will be scientific examination and the main point of interest will be from an engineering viewpoint in a space-motion direction.

I cannot justify the expense and time spent in lunar trip when I recall the beauty of the big island in Hawaii with the heady perfume of jasmine flowers; or the appetizing aroma of the street food vendors in Hong Kong; or the cute hobbles of kimono-clad Japanese girls along a cherry blossom avenue; or the experience and delight of seeing a wandering leprechaun over the Irish

I cannot think of comfort in a congested space suit, eating liquid foods or vitamins for a period of days when I could be lolling in a houseboat in Kashmir and eating beautifully spiced lamb and chicken with frangi-pangi flowers on the table. I remember with relish throwing darts in a pub in London when I had to run back between every shot to get another mouthful of roast beef.

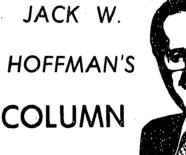

My heart beats faster when I recall all these lovely places and enticements on this earth — a trip to the

When Northville, the "Switzerland of Vayne County," bit off big chunks of Oakland County's "Town One North," it came away with more than just some valuable Novi lands. It also acquired what, in 1979, has pecome a perplexing jurisdictional question.

Unlike annexations in most other places in Michigan, those here produced a twocounty city — the older part in Wayne and the new Novi part in Oakland.

Over the years, belonging to two counties has proved to be both advantageous and disadvantageous. For example, Northville's location in two counties means it has two sets of lawmakers, thus giving it more political clout in Lansing and Washington. But it also creates aggravation for the city dweller who can't vote for the same set of officials as his neighbors across the street.

Lately, the taxing differences between Oakland and Wayne counties have proved to be a real pain in the pocketbook. All of which has given fresh impetus for shucking one of the two counties.

But state law doesn't make it easy for a city to rid itself of one county. To do so, under present law, Northville must obtain permission of voters in both counties — from Holly on the north to Flat Rock on the south, from South Lyon on the west to Grosse Pointe Woods on the east. Thus, Northville is asking its two sets of Lansing lawmakers to make the law easier ... to allow Northville voters to decide for themselves what county they want Initially, Northville figured the new law should simply give local voters a choice of either Oakland or Wayne. But after closer examination, city council decided this choice wasn't fair to those desiring status quo.

Furthermore, council concluded that the three question ballot - Wayne, Oakland or status quo - is too cumbersome and poten-

That's when Walled Lake's Jack Grubb and South Farmington's Rennie Goyette decided to do something about it. The two were instrumental in forming the Inter-Lakes Girls' Slow-Pitch Travel League, an endeavor which can already be labeled successful after just one full year in operation.

The girls' loop started out last year with six teams. However, that number will be more than doubled by next season, according to Grubb. "We'll definitely have three more teams next year," Grubb said recently, "and maybe four. Berkley will enter, and South Lyon (which was a member in 1978) will be back. We expect two others."

Assuming that little league is supposed to be of some help in teaching a child attributes like humility, fair play and sportsmanship. Walled Lake's Jess Mid dleton is learning fast. The 12-year-old, who plays for the Yankees in the league, was a recent recipient of the circuit's Joseph E. Rapp sportsmanship award. The honor - the highest that can be achieved on that level - goes to the individual who "best emplifies what little league baseball stands for," according to the plaque Middleton received.

The shy youngster wouldn't comment on his honor, but his mother, Mrs. Ellen Middleton, said, "He's a perfect gentleman at the games. He plays hard but fair, and doesn't argue with anyone." Young Middleton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Middleton of Walled Lake.
