An organization uniting all Novi homeowner associations is in the works.

The Federation of Homeowners' Associations was introduced in concept at a meeting last Wednesday with leaders of local associations.

Bill Phillips, who has been active in organizing the federation, said a committee has been formed to draw up bylaws and establish guidelines for the group.

The committee will contact similar groups in surrounding communities as it sets down goals and a "reason for existence," Phillips said.

If it is formed, the federation follows the pattern of those in other communities, all 25 existing homeowners' associations would be represented in the group with the president or vice-president acting as voting members. Other members of homeowners' associations also are welcome to attend federation meetings without voting powers.

Participation in the federation is not optional, although all homeowners' associations would be encouraged to participate, Phillips said.

Phillips, who has been active in a homeowners' federation in Livonia, said the group usually has a wide variety of responsibilities ranging from community relations and informing residents on local issues to serving as "big brothers" to fledgling homeowner groups.

A primary goal of the group would probably be to better inform residents.

"I recently heard a figure that 90 percent of the people don't know what's going on in their community, 10 percent do know and two percent act," Phillips said.

Some issues which the federation could help disseminate information are those which soon will be facing the city council.

Phillips also cited the upcoming review of the master plan as an example.

"We would like to revisit it with the city before it is approved to give them direct and constructive input," he said.

He said it is hoped the federation would serve as a sounding board for "hot heads" who do not understand the issues coming before the council.

"We want to work with the council—not fight them," Phillips said. "If people are better informed, the communication gap can be closed and there will be more harmony in the area."

The establishment of an Economic Development Corporation (EDC) is another issue some parties do not have could have provided input if the city's discussion had not been so far advanced, Phillips said. (The city council was slated to consider the EDC Tuesday.)

"The federation could have played an active part in assuring that the city has received citizen input and studied the pros and cons of the plan," Phillips said.

One of the major concerns is centered about the type of business an EDC would attract and they might have asked the city to take a second look," Phillips said.

Another area which the federation could be useful in informing Novi residents.

"We want to see where our tax dollar is going and how it is divided between the county, city and the schools in Novi," Phillips said.

The federation also might be planned in plain English, it can be related to the homeowners of Novi," Phillips said.

The federation also could serve homeowners who are not part of a subdivision, giving them one place to turn, he said.

"Novi still has a lot of scattered homes that are not in subdivisions. The federation would give them someone they can turn to for help when they need support."

He added that a number of the local residents who have no part do not have homeowners' associations and the federation could provide them with information on how such groups are formed.

"The federation can give them advice on things that have worked in the past," Phillips said. "It can offer them information on how to get started."

One of the group's first responsibilities probably would be the registering of homeowners' groups. Some groups have not yet filed as non-profit organizations and the federation could help with information on registration, he said.

In the area of community relations Phillips said the group could be involved in sponsoring Boy Scouts and other youth programs.

And the federation would have to be involved in only the serious aspects of the community. Phillips said similar groups have sponsored local baseball leagues.

Livonia "we had a baseball league for the homeowners' associations' teams on weekends," he said. "I gave us all a chance to meet people on the other side of town and have some really good conversations."

Phillips summarized saying a federation "can be a big brother to the homeowners' associations, a way to help close the communication gap and a way to help the residents get their viewpoints from a large number of residents."

Development plans for a 100-acre parcel on the northeast corner of Ten Mile and Beck Road have been presented to the Novl City Council.

* Max Sheldon, owner of the property, said he would like to develop the 100-acre parcel at a special council meeting Saturday morning.

The plans set forth by Sheldon calls for an 100-acre family shopping center on a 10-acre parcel immediately on the Ten Mile-Beck Road corner;

* 211 multiple family units on 20 acres surrounding the shopping center; and * 152 single family residential units on the remainder of the property.

The special Saturday morning session was criticized by Mayor Romaine Roethlisberger who said he felt was a waste of money to permit Sheldon to meet with the council on a Saturday morning. She also stated that development plans should properly be presented to the planning board before they are brought to the council.

Sheldon replied that the property posed special development problems that he would like the council to consider before he submitted plans to the planning board for review.

Sheldon told the council that the property contains a substantial stand of trees as well as other natural amenities such as streams and wetlands which should be preserved if possible.

The developer then placed two plans for development of the parcel before the council. He considered and said the council would permit construction of 194 single family residences and 169 multiple units as well as the 10-acre shopping center, but ignored the natural amenities of the site.

Sheldon said he has his "preferred" plan which calls for 152 single family units and 211 multiple units as well as the shopping center on the corner.

The advantage of the second plan, he said, was that it preserves many of the natural amenities and provides for a smooth transition from the commercial to the residential to the single-family section of the overall development.

Sheldon cautioned, council members, however, that the property must be rezoned in order to effectuate the proposed three-acre shopping center. Immediately on the corner is zoned for commercial use, but the commercial district must be extended to permit development of the proposed 10-acre shopping center.

The remainder of the property is zoned R-4 (single family residential with 90-foot lots). A portion of the remainder of the property would have to be rezoned to R-100 (single family designation) in order to carry out the development plan envisioned by Sheldon.

City Planning Consultant Charles Cairns told the council that Sheldon's "preferred" plan was clearly preferable to the initial proposal from a planning viewpoint.

Cairns said the plan provided good access to the various land uses and that the existing stands of trees should be saved.

Council Member Robert Schmick questioned the need for 10 acres of commercial use on the corner of the Ten Mile-Beck Road. Cairns responded that a convenience-type shopping center at that location could serve the needs of residents in several sections of the city. He said that the city's urban planning consultant also indicated that he would support an extension of the commercial zoning from three to 10 acres.

"For a shopping center of 10,000-

A long-standing problem came to light again last week when the Novi Planning Board held a public hearing to consider a rezoning request on a 15-acre parcel near the northeast quadrant of Ten Mile and Novi Road.

The public hearing was slated specifically to hear a request from William Ditzhazy to rezone the 15-acre parcel from its existing I-2 (general industrial) to an I-1 (light industrial) classification.

Purpose of the rezoning request, according to Ditzhazy, was to permit development of a light industrial subdivision on the property.

The planning board also was scheduled to set another public hearing to consider the preliminary plat for the proposed industrial subdivision.

But the rezoning hearing became considerably more involved when abutting property owners arrived to complain about a platting problem which has plagued the city since 1971.

George Goldstone, an attorney representing the Multi-Elmac Company, told the planners that the problem goes back to 1969 when Jarvis Schmidt purchased a large portion of property on the northeast corner of Novi Road and Ten Mile from the Rocco Ferrara Equipment Company.

Since that time, a total of eight small parcels have been split off from the overall parcel and sold to various companies.

The problem lies in the fact that the Subdivision Control Act requires that any division of land which creates five or more parcels of land, each of which is 10 acres or less in area, shall be surveyed and platted.

Furthermore, the property has never been platted. As a result, the owners of the eight parcels that were split from the original parcel have been unable to obtain curb cuts onto Novi Road and building permits.

City Attorney David Fried addressed an update on the situation to the city council on June 14, 1979. In that letter, Fried noted that a proposed plat of the Jarvis Schmidt property had been submitted to the city for approval in 1971.

However, the council rejected the proposed plat at that time because it caused numerous curb cuts on Ten Mile, resulting in what the council believed to be a hazardous condition.

"Clearly, the division of the Jarvis Schmidt property requires a plat of the land," said Fried in the June 14 memo to the council. "The council can require the platting of the Jarvis Schmidt property before any building permits will be issued for construction on the property."

Ditzhazy told the planners last week that the problems with the Plat Act do not affect his 15-acre parcel because parcels in excess of 10 acres are exempt from the stipulations of the Plat Act.

Although abutting property owners acknowledged that their problems did not directly relate to the Ditzhazy rezoning, they asked the planning board to attempt to resolve the situation.

James Edwards, one of the abutting property owners, told the planners that he purchased his parcel eight years ago and has been unable to develop it because he can't obtain either a curb cut or a building permit until the plat is resurveyed.

"I've been paying taxes on my property for eight years and I still can't do anything with it until it's platted," he said. "I can't get access to the property and I can't get a building permit. The whole thing has been an extremely frustrating experience."

The planners subsequently decided that rezoning the Ditzhazy parcel could provide some relief to several of the abutting property owners by giving them access to their land and voted to recommend approval of the rezoning request by an 8-0 margin.

Later in the meeting, the planners voted to set a public hearing to consider the plat for the Ditzhazy industrial subdivision on December 19.

City Planning Consultant Charles Cairns suggested that the owners of at least some of the abutting property owners could be partially resolved upon plat approval.

In the meantime, however, the abutting property owners are still concerned about what will happen to their property.

A-Train Bar

Ownership battle goes to court

A court battle over the ownership of the A-Train Bar in Novi is apparently in process.

Emery Jacques and his wife Joann have filed suit in circuit court seeking to be named in charge of the real estate and affairs of Thunderview, Inc., which is doing business as the A-Train Bar.

In the suit the couple claims that their partners in the corporation — Allen and Nancy Heyn — have not cooperated with attempts to set the business in order since the bar on Grand River burned in July, 1978.

The suit explains the relationship of the partners originally was that Jacques owned the property on Grand River, Heyn leased the building and both shared the liquor license issued by the state.

When the corporation was established both men had half interest. However, in 1976 Heyn agreed to buy his partner's shares, and the liquor license came under his ownership.

The suit states the Heyns were arrears in payments on the stock purchase agreement, insurance on the bar operation, real estate taxes and mortgage interest.

"From the time the premises has been destroyed by fire," Jacques has tried to learn the intentions of the Heyns in regards to payment on the stock agreement and the land sale, according to the suit.

"But every attempt to meet with the Heyns and discuss the many problems inherent as a result of the fire and non-payment of the repurchase agreement has been met with silence and non-action on their part," the suit states.

It goes on to say that the Michigan Liquor Control Commission has threatened to revoke the licenses for the bar unless it is activated before April, 1980. The license has been placed in escrow until that time, the suit states.

Additionally, the court was informed that the City of Novi has issued a violation to the corporation because the premises, as a result of the fire, has become and attractive nuisance.

"The city of Novi is contemplating legal action against Jacques and Heyn in regard to the state and condition of the physical premises and unless a plan for rehabilitation the property is presented to the city, a criminal warrant will be issued against Jacques for the condition of the property," the suit claims.

The Jacques report they have been trying to sell the A-Train for 14 months, but have had only one offer to date.

"Unless this offer is accepted we fear it will be lost and we will suffer irreparable injury as a result," the Jacques claim.

The suit goes on to say the Heyns have "completely and absolutely abandoned the real estate owned jointly with Jacques" and have consistently refused to take the necessary steps to market the land, pay taxes and keep the premises in repair, the suit states.

It also says the sole remaining assets of Thunderview, Inc., is the liquor license and it cannot be considered a functioning active corporation.

On those grounds the Jacques are seeking to be appointed receiver. The suit was filed October 26.

City officials announced last week that the Liquor Control Commission would be looking into the status of the A-Train license as it affects the quota of licenses for the entire city.

The license was issued when the bar was still located in Novi Township. The license became part of the city's quota when the township was annexed.

Hill retains mayor-pro-tem post in Walled Lake

Heather F.M. Hill will continue to serve as Walled Lake's mayor pro tem, based on a legal opinion offered to the city council Monday night by City Attorney Richard J. Poehlman.

Poehlman said he and his associates have interpreted the intent of the city charter to mean that the mayor pro tem's term should coincide with the term of the mayor and should be determined at the council organizational meeting following a mayoral election.

Hill, who was re-elected to a second four-year term on the council in last week's municipal election, was appointed mayor pro tem in September, following the resignation of William C. Staman.

"At the time of the appointment, she was the only council member who met the charter requirements for the post. The charter states that the 'councilman who shall have served a tenure of two years and has received the highest number of votes cast at the time of his election to office shall be mayor pro tem..."

The city attorney said, in his opinion, there was no vacancy in the mayor pro tem's post as a result of the election. If Hill had been unsuccessful in her bid for re-election, the post would have become vacant and would have been filled by Council Member Thomas W. Brookover who was elected two years ago with a total of 402 votes.

Hill finished third in last week's balloting with 283 votes. Former Mayor and Council Member William T. Roberts topped the eight-candidate field with 305 votes, followed by Linda S. Ackley, daughter of the late City Manager Harold N. Ackley and a newcomer to city politics, with 274.

Roberts, Ackley and Hill won four-year terms, while Hannah F.

Honeyman claimed the two years remaining on Staman's council term.

All Hill had to do to retain the mayor pro tem's post was to win re-election, Poehlman said.

Mayor Gaspare LaMarca said the charter language is ambiguous and raised several questions on the attorney's interpretation of the charter. The mayor was elected to a four-year term in 1977.

Roberts also questioned the attorney's opinion, noting that from 1967 until two years ago there has been "a pattern of changing the mayor pro tem with each council election."

Poehlman stood by his opinion, adding that it appeared that the intent of the charter was to have the mayor pro tem's and the mayor's terms coincide, especially in case the mayor becomes disabled.

The council did not challenge the attorney's opinion, although the mayor asked Poehlman to prepare a written opinion on the issue in case the question comes up after a future election.

The only action taken by the council at Monday's organizational meeting was to designate the mayor and/or mayor pro tem and the treasurer and/or deputy treasurer to sign checks and bank documents.

Approval of council policies and procedures and adoption of "Roberts' Rules of Order" were delayed until the November 20 regular session.

The old council was supposed to meet at 7:30 Monday night to complete any old business and adjourn sine die, but the session was cancelled due to lack of a quorum. It was the second meeting in two months to be cancelled due to lack of a quorum.

Absent from the meeting were Brookover; Donald Lee, who did not seek re-election to the post to which he was appointed in January 1978; and Cameron E. Rose, an unsuccessful candidate for the council who was appointed to that body a year ago.

Village panel studies lake program

The Wolverine Lake Village Council last Wednesday elected to form a four-member committee designed to address lake concerns, with that mini-group to report the latest lake developments to council on a monthly basis.

Council Members Pat Howarth, Tim Kozub and Geri Matkowski were chosen for the panel, which also will include Village Administrator Bill O'Brien. The group was formed at a special meeting, which was held as the result of critical remarks the water team had addressed to council concerning the lake program's direction last month.

The four are to meet privately for the purpose of discussing general complaints and operation of the program on a monthly basis. Their first gathering has been tentatively set for November 20, but no time or site has yet been agreed on.

Village President John McEllan opened the special meeting Wednesday on a positive note, saying that the alleged polluting effects of the Greenway Drain in the village could soon be resolved. He said that the City of Walled Lake has agreed to work with the village in order to clean up the drain, adding that he is currently negotiating with Walled Lake and the Drain Commission's office to get the lake cleaned up.

"The outlook is promising," McEllan said. "I think you'll see a motion at the next Walled Lake City Council meeting calling for some action."

The village president also said that he had talked to Consulting Lake Engineer Bob Williams about the great deal of "down-time" in connection with the harvester this year, and that the engineer said down-time is not unusual for such complex machinery as the weed harvester.

Another concern expressed at the meeting was the job on the lake performed by the Department of Public Works (DPW). One DPW member present said that his group was overworked, prompting water team member McEllan said. "There's no question in my mind that the operators we had this year were far from efficient," McEllan said. "It's not that they were goofing off, but the fact was that they had a little experience with the machinery."

State funding sought for road improvements

The City of Walled Lake has applied to the Michigan Department of Transportation for federal funds for two road improvement projects, according to City Manager Peter Parker.

One request is for funds for a pavement marking demonstration project on major city streets, while the second application is for safety improvements to Walled Lake Drive.

The pavement project calls for new thermo-plastic road markings, including railroad crossing and school legends, school crosswalks, stop bars at crosswalks and edge marking. Estimated cost of the proposal is $5,500 under the 100-percent federal funding program, Parker said.

The Walled Lake Drive improvements call for bituminous overlay, shoulder repair and upgrading, relocation of utility poles within the road right-of-way, upgrading and installation of warning signs, and thermo-plastic center, edge and lane lines.

Estimated cost of the improvements is $25,000, the manager said, with the federal government picking up 90-percent of the tab.

"The city is not committed to these two requests," Parker said. "We are merely seeking further information from the state transportation department."

In his report to the council, Parker also said that the magic square project for Sims Park will be re-bid next spring on the recommendation of city engineers Johnson and Anderson. Only one bid, totalling $49,560, was received this fall, he added. The estimated cost could be reduced to $37,360, the manager said, but that figure is still slightly higher than funds allocated by the city's parks and recreation commission and a 50-percent federal grant.

The city received an $18,500 grant from the federal heritage, conservation and recreation service for the magic square project. The federal funds are administered by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

The magic square could be used for tennis, basketball and other activities during the summer and could be flooded in the winter to provide an ice skating rink.

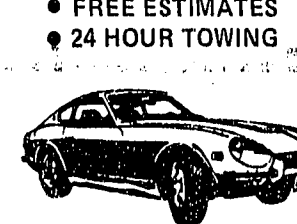

Walled Lake's parks panel also has applied for federal funds for improvements to the Riley Field ball fields. That request is still pending.

Parker also told the council that the city's request for $40,000 in additional federal community development block grant funds through Oakland County for construction of a safety path is still pending before the county board of commissioners. Only three of 12 projects on the final list will be considered for funding, he said, but added the county board approval appears to be a mere formality.

If approved, the funds will be used to build a safety path on Portage Trail from Laid Road to Walled Lake Drive.

Long opposes park annexation bid

Commerce Township Supervisor Robert Long said Tuesday he is "very disturbed" about reports that Walled Lake officials are considering annexation of the North Walled Lake Park.

The 46-acre park was purchased by the City of Wixom from the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority several years ago, but is situated entirely within Commerce Township.

"We did not stand in Wixom's way when they purchased that park from the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority, and I don't think they would have been able to acquire that land if we had opposed it," said Long.

"But I'm very disturbed about talk that Wixom may attempt to annex that property," he continued.

"The park is contiguous to Wixom on just one side and is surrounded by Commerce Township on the other three sides. The State Boundary Commission likes to see boundaries squared off, and I'm just afraid if we allow Wixom to annex that park we'll have a piece of Wixom sticking up into Commerce Township and will be subjecting ourselves to additional annexation pressures."

Long added that he has not yet been contacted by Wixom officials to discuss the annexation proposal.

Petitions from the City of Walled Lake for annexation of additional township properties already are pending before the State Boundary Commission which is slated to review the petitions at a hearing November 29.

Long's opposition to a Wixom annexation attempt falls on the heels of a recommendation from Wixom's Parks and Recreation Commission for annexation of the 46-acre city park.

Commission Chairman John Momborg reported that the panel voted unanimously last week to recommend annexation of the park.

"The primary concern is that we want to be able to patrol the park and out down on incidents of vandalism," said Momborg. "The recommendation for annexation is a portion of an overall security plan for the park."

However, Mayoral Assistant Stephen Bonczek and Mayor Lillian Spencer cautioned that no steps have yet been implemented to bring about annexation of the park which is located in Commerce Township.

"All we have at the present time is a recommendation from the parks and recreation commission to annex the park property," commented Bonczek. "The final decision as to whether the city will pursue annexation rests with the city council."

"If the city council decides it wants to look into the possibility of annexing the property, our first step would be to contact Commerce officials to get their reaction. Commerce has been a good neighbor and we don't want to do anything that will jeopardize that relationship."

The impetus for annexing the park apparently was prompted with concerns over park security.

Wixom Police presently patrol the park, but are not empowered to make arrests because the property is located in Commerce Township. As a result, Wixom officers can detain individuals, but must turn them over to the Oakland County Sheriff's Department for enforcement action.

In addition, the city would be able to adopt ordinances to govern activities in the park if it were part of the city. Under the present situation, the city cannot adopt special ordinances to govern park activities.

According to Momborg, the city can annex the 46-acre park by resolution of the city council. No vote is necessary, he said.

Momborg referred specifically to a section of the Home Rule Act for cities which states: "Where the territory proposed to be annexed to any city is adjacent to the city and consists of a park or vacant property located in a township and owned by the city annexing the same, and there is no one residing thereon, such territory may be annexed to the city solely by resolution of the city council of the city."

In addition to the proposal to annex the property, Recreation Coordinator Richard McCullough has drawn up a five-point plan for improving security in the park.

The proposed security plan includes the following recommendations:

1. The park should be patrolled by the city police.

2. The park should be patrolled by the city police.

School millage hike rejected by voters

Voters in the Walled Lake School District have rejected the third attempt this year to obtain additional operating millage.

Specifically, voters turned down a request to levy three additional mills for three years by a 2,988 to 2,192 margin in a special election Monday.

The verdict marked the third time this year that the Walled Lake Board of Education has attempted to secure additional millage for operational expenses.

A request for four mills for one year was rejected by a 68-32 margin in a special election April 30. And the identical four mill/one year proposal was rejected by a 58-42 margin in the regular school election June 12.

The results of Monday's balloting were virtually identical to the results of the June 12 election. Voters turned thumbs down on the millage request by 801 votes (2,850 to 2,049) in June and vetoed the request by some 796 votes this time around.

The three mill proposal would have generated some $1.365 million in additional revenues which school officials say are necessary to maintain personnel, programs and supplies at 1979-79 levels. Following the June 12 millage defeat, the school board voted to levy 1.41 mills in county allocated millage.

The 1.41 mills will generate some $630,000 in additional revenues.

Superintendent Don Sheldon said he was "greatly disappointed" with the results of the latest millage election, but did not foresee any additional attempts to secure more millage at least until next spring.

"We're going to turn our attention toward the budget right now and I don't see any attempts to secure more millage in the immediate future," he said. "Some board members may want to introduce discussion of more millage, but there won't be any administrative efforts to initiate discussion of another proposal until sometime after the start of the new year."

What that means is that the school district will continue to live with some $1.7 million in budget cuts that were implemented after the June 12 millage defeat.

A $1.7 million program of cutbacks was approved by the school board after the June election in order to offset the projected deficit between revenues and expenditures.

Although Sheldon had recommended in August against another millage election this year, the board voted 4-3 to schedule another millage election for last Monday.

In addition, the board in October approved a plan to seek a referendum on the park if it were part of the city.

Under the present situation, the city cannot adopt special ordinances to govern park activities.

According to Momborg, the city can annex the 46-acre park by resolution of the city council. No vote is necessary, he said.

Momborg referred specifically to a section of the Home Rule Act for cities which states: "Where the territory proposed to be annexed to any city is adjacent to the city and consists of a park or vacant property located in a township and owned by the city annexing the same, and there is no one residing thereon, such territory may be annexed to the city solely by resolution of the city council of the city."

In addition to the proposal to annex the property, Recreation Coordinator Richard McCullough has drawn up a five-point plan for improving security in the park.

The proposed security plan includes the following recommendations:

1. The park should be patrolled by the city police.

2. The park should be patrolled by the city police.

3. The park should be patrolled by the city police.

4. The park should be patrolled by the city police.

5. The park should be patrolled by the city police.

provided a list of 22 items that would be reinstated if voters had approved the three mill/three year proposal.

As a result of Monday's millage defeat, however, it appears as if previously deleted personnel programs and supplies will not be reinstated during the 1979-80 school year.

The list of cuts includes closing the swimming pool at Walled Lake Western, a major curtailment in the reading support program, and significant reductions in such areas as individual aides, textbooks and supplies, library books, capital outlay and the testing program.

Reacting to the latest millage defeat, Sheldon said at Monday's school board meeting that residents must realize "they won't get very far by sitting on their wallets."

"Every person in every community has an obligation to support the educational system," said the superintendent. "That responsibility does not end when your particular child receives his high school diploma."

"I think a lot of people have to reconsider their priorities," he continued. "It's nice to have motorbikes, mobile homes and snowmobiles as long as we don't forget education. That's the one thing which we have an obligation to give to our children and that point should not be forgotten."

Sheldon went on to say he did not know what would happen to the educational system in Walled Lake in the immediate future.

"We don't get more money when property assessments go up because we lose an equal amount in state aid payments," he said. "If we're going to maintain a sound educational program in the Walled Lake District we must have additional funds. And the only way we can get additional funds is to vote to raise our taxes."

Additional criticism of Callahan's role in the millage defeat was expressed by Carolyn Baker and Cynthia Campion, co-chairmen of the committee working for approval of the millage proposal.

Baker said she considered Callahan's letter "a deliberate attempt to sabotage the millage."

"I deplore the fact that you're on the school board," she told Callahan. "You're a teacher and you should be out there educating children, not sitting on the school board."

Campion said for Callahan to "turn around six days before the election and withdraw your support of the millage for garbage reasons is just about as low a thing as I've ever seen from a parent."

"You've been an unconscionable failure to our children," she added.

Superintendent Don Sheldon also criticized Callahan for her allegations that he had denied her access to information.

"I'll try to keep my temper in check," he said, "but I've listened to this malarkey for the past several minutes. My integrity has been impugned and that's the first time this has happened."

"I know my responsibilities as a professional educator. I do not withhold information from anyone if I consider it a legitimate request. If I don't feel it's a legitimate request, I will seek additional clarification from the person who makes the request or the board of education."

"I have absolutely nothing to gain by withholding information and I try to fill every request as quickly as possible," he continued. "I believe that most requests have been filled satisfactorily and I still don't know what information I have failed to provide."

Although most comments were critical of Callahan, two residents supported her position.

One of the residents said he felt it was wrong to chastise Callahan.

"We need to get our money into education instead of administrative salaries," he said.

Callahan responded that she had nothing to do with the distribution of the flyer. "I was elected because I promise ing with the community.

"It's a sad day when you have to close the doors for good after having been here in Walled Lake for 24 years."

Shuman, 52, said a number of factors were involved in the decision to close the Walled Lake Ford dealership.

The primary reason, he said, was that the Ford Motor Company "asked us to relocate in Novi by taking over the Twelve Oaks Lincoln-Mercury dealership on Novi Road opposite the Twelve Oaks Mall."

"I just didn't want to do that," he continued. "I thought our facilities here in Walled Lake are pretty good and we've enjoyed a positive association with the community."

Shuman added that he had no animosity toward the Ford Motor Company as a result of their decision to close the Walled Lake dealership.

Shuman Ford employees were told of the closing a week ago Monday.

Shuman said it was a sad experience. "I shed a few tears over that one," he admitted.

"We have some really good people here and it was a sad experience to tell them that we have to close after 24 years in this community."

"But most of the people already have lined up other positions, and I feel good about that."

Shuman also reported that his own plans are presently undecided.

"I'm just going to go home and rest for a few months," he said. "After that, I'll sit back and take a look at where things stand."

25th district commissioner

Caddell victory extends GOP grip on county board

By DAVID RAY

"We planned our work and worked our plan," said Dr. G. William Caddell, explaining his run-away victory November 6 in a special election to fill a vacancy on the Oakland County Board of Commissioners.

Caddell, a 44-year-old Republican from Wolverine Lake Village, claimed the county board seat in the 25th District by a 81- to 39-percent margin over George F. Montgomery, a Commerce Township Democrat. Official election results gave Caddell 2,060 votes to Montgomery's 1,354.

The new commissioner was making his first bid for public office, but he's no novice at politics. Caddell was the campaign chairperson for State Representative Richard D. Fessler's (R-West Bloomfield) successful re-election bid last year and also has worked in County Commissioner Dennis Murphy's (R-Now) campaigns.

For Montgomery, a former state representative from a Detroit district, last week's setback was his sixth electoral loss since 1970.

"What can I say," Montgomery said,

"We were clobbered in Farmington Hills and on absentee ballots."

Oakland County Democrats, sources say, saw the special election as a golden opportunity to claim the traditionally Republican 25th District. The party organization went out of its way to back Montgomery, the observers added.

As a candidate in west Oakland for the fifth time since 1972, Montgomery appeared to have name recognition and political expertise working for him in the short special election campaign. He was running against a first-time candidate and had gained the endorsements of local newspapers.

But Caddell thinks his background as a businessman—a chiropractic doctor with an office in Union Lake—was a factor in his victory, which gives the GOP a 16-11 majority on the county board.

"I think our business approach paid off," he said. "I think people want the county run in a business-like manner, and we'll use our influence to keep the county run in the black."

"We'll try to learn as much as possible as soon as possible to become an effective commissioner."

Caddell said he is looking forward to "really getting involved," especially in the budget process, although he concedes that his late arrival on the board will minimize his role in adoption of the 1980 county budget that takes effect January 1.

He said his goals include opening the lines of communication with local public officials and addressing west Oakland's road and traffic problems. "We're going to have to make the existing roads better and get a fair share of county money for improvements and maintenance."

Although he stopped short of formally announcing his bid for election to a full two-year term on the county board next year, the new commissioner said, "I wasn't running for one year."

In last week's balloting, Montgomery edged Caddell in Commerce, 475 to 448, but the GOP candidate won in White Lake (111 to 42), West Bloomfield (427 to 377) and Farmington Hills (1,104 to 460).

Caddell's lopsided margin in Farmington Hills, which has given the 25th District its last two Republican commissioners, was attributed to the regular municipal election in that heavily GOP city.

Montgomery was the Democratic nominee last year against incumbent Commissioner Robert A. McConnell (R-Farmington Hills) in the regular county election. McConnell, who resigned in August, midway through his second term, topped Montgomery by a margin of 59 to 41 percent.

The Commerce Democrat served three terms in the state house of representatives (1965-71) from a Detroit district. He was a member of the House Appropriations Committee for six years and, in his last term, was the majority floor leader.

Montgomery sought the Democratic nomination for governor in 1970, finishing last in a four-candidate field.

After moving to Oakland County in 1971, he was twice the Democratic contender for Congress in the 19th District against long-time incumbent William S. Brownfield (R-Birmingham).

SEMCOC urges transit merger

The Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOC) township bloc unanimously Monday to ask Governor William G. Milliken to work toward the merger of the Detroit Department of Transportation (DDOT) with the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority (SEMTA).

Commerce Township Supervisor Robert H. Long first proposed the resolution at the November 1 SEMCOC General Assembly meeting. The issue was referred to the township bloc.

Long said he is hopeful that the resolution will be presented to the regional agency's executive committee for consideration before the next general assembly session in January.

Noting that a three-year-old state law hiked vehicle transfer fees and increased the gasoline tax to fund mass transit in southeast Michigan, Long said one of the stated intentions of the measure was the merger of the DDOT and SEMTA by April 1980.

The Commerce supervisor said he fears that Detroit officials are interested only in a limited merger that still would enable the city to seek Federal mass transit funds.

Long said he is concerned over the fate of state and federal mass transit funds, if the merger doesn't take place. He added that, without the merger, buses bound for Detroit would not be able to stop for passengers south of Eight Mile Road.

The Detroit transportation department is the only major bus line that has not been acquired by the seven-county SEMCOC region.

Residents express opposition

Wixom commission turns down campground bid

A request from the National Campers and Hikers Association to hold a major campout in the North Wixom City Park next spring apparently has been dropped in response to strong opposition from abutting property owners.

Approximately 35 Wixom residents—many of them residents of the Hickory Hills Homeowners' Association—showed up at the Wixom Parks and Recreation Commission meeting last Wednesday to express their opposition to the request.

Following the public hearing, the commission voted unanimously to recommend denial of the request from the campers' association to hold a campout in the 46-acre park at the north end of the city.

John Momborg, chairman of the parks and recreation commission, reported that the meeting went well. "A lot of residents who live around the park were concerned that they wouldn't have an opportunity to express their opposition to the request," reported Momborg.

"But I think their fears were allayed as a result of last week's meeting. Everybody who showed up at the meeting was given ample opportunity to express their feelings and I think they went away with the feeling that their opinions were considered."

Momborg also reported that several residents near the North Wixom City Park agreed to serve on a special committee which will draw up proposed rules and regulations for use of the city park.

"They're the natural ones to serve on this committee because they live right next door to the park," he said. "We were looking for citizen input and now we'll be able to have it."

Purpose of last week's hearing was to consider a request from the National Campers and Hikers Association to hold an outing in the city park sometime in May.

Betty Nagy, field director for the association, approached the Wixom City Council on September 25 with a request for permission to use the North Wixom City Park for the campout. She told the council that approximately 1,000 trailers containing an average of three people apiece can be expected to attend one of the association's semi-annual campouts.

She also told the council that the association would pay the city $1.50 for every unit at the event and would leave the city park "in better condition than we find it."

The council subsequently voted to send the request to the parks and recreation commission for further consideration and recommendation.

In the meantime, however, residents around the city park expressed strong opposition to the proposal.

Joseph Ilacqua, a former president of the homeowners' association and unofficial spokesman for the group, said the residents had several concerns about the proposal.

"We were concerned about the potential traffic problem associated with such an event," he said. "The roads up there are just not equipped to handle that kind of traffic."

Ilacqua added that other concerns involved a strain on the police department and the potential damage that 1,000 trailers and 3,000 people could have on the park.

"We have nothing against the Campers and Hikers Association," he said. "I'm certain that it's a highly respectable group. But when you bring in that many people, you just know there's going to be some damage that isn't easily repaired."

Ilacqua went on to say that an overriding consideration was setting precedent for use of the park. "That's a city park which is intended for the use of the citizens," he said. "When you let an outside group come in and use it, you're denying the citizens the right to use what they own and what they pay to maintain."

"It's just not right to deny citizens use of their own park, even if it's just for one weekend. We just didn't want to see the city establish this kind of precedent."

Ilacqua added that he was pleased with the results of the meeting and felt the commission had given the residents a chance to speak and listened to their opinions.

The recommendation for denial of the permit to use the city park will now be forwarded to the city council along with a petition signed by approximately 65 Hickory Hills subdivision residents opposed to the proposal.

Substitute teachers get pay hike

A 10 percent pay hike for substitute teachers has been approved by the Walled Lake Board of Education.

Under the terms of the new pay scale, substitute teachers will receive $33 per day and $36 per day after 10 consecutive days of substituting in the same position. The policy also calls for substitutes to receive $20 for half-day assignments.

Assistant Superintendent for Business Harry Carlson reported that the Walled Lake School District spent approximately $150,000 in salaries for substitute teachers during the 1978-79 school year.

As a result, Carlson projected that the 10 percent pay hike would cost the district approximately $15,000 additional this year.

Pay hike for substitute teachers was questioned by Trustee Stephen Lasher who said he was reluctant to approve the increase in light of the third millage defeat and the district's poor financial position.

Superintendent Don Sheldon responded that he shared Lasher's concerns but felt the pay hike was both appropriate and necessary.

"In the past we've been behind some of our neighboring school districts in pay rates for substitute teachers," said Sheldon. "The pay hike will put us in a more competitive position with these districts so that we can attract qualified substitutes."

Nancy van Leeuwen, president of the Walled Lake Education Association, told board members that the district has had trouble in obtaining substitutes in the past.

"Substitute teachers was an issue at the bargaining table during our last contract negotiations," she said.

"Under the terms of the new contract, it will cost the district less to bring in a substitute than it will not to hire a substitute."

Sheldon added that the district attempts to be selective in hiring substitute teachers. "We don't just draw names out of a hat," he said. "All of our substitutes have to go through a rigorous screening process before they're put on our rosters."

The board subsequently voted 6-1 to approve the pay hike. The lone dissenting ballot was cast by Lasher.

Walled Lake planners approve duplex district

The Walled Lake Plan Commission voted last Tuesday to recommend adoption of a new residential duplex zoning classification (RD-1) for the city's zoning ordinance.

Planners discussed the possibility of the new classification at the public hearing prior to their regular meeting. They then voted to approve the proposed move, as no comments or questions were raised in connection with the duplex addition.

The RD-1 districts would permit new construction or new conversion of existing structures between adjacent residential and commercial offices, streets or other uses that would affect the residential designation.

Under the text of the proposed RD-1 district, no building or land will be used and no building will be erected except for the following uses (unless otherwise provided for in the ordinance):

- all uses permitted and as regulated in the R-1-A and R-1-B single-family residential districts. The regulatory standards applicable to the R-1-A or R-1-B single-family residential district will apply as minimum standards when one-family detached dwellings are built.

- two-family dwellings.
- accessory buildings and uses normally permitted within any of the above zoning districts and as regulated in the ordinance's general provisions.

Standards currently proposed under the RD-1 district include a minimum zoning lot size per unit of 6,000 square feet, measuring at least 50 feet wide. In addition, the structure in question could not exceed 25 feet in height or cover more than 30 percent of the lot per unit.

The R-1-A and R-1-B districts also call for a maximum structure height of 25 feet, a limit of 30 percent lot coverage. However, the R-1-A regulatory standards require a higher minimum lot area and width than the R-1-B, calling for at least a 12,000-square-foot area and a 90-foot width minimum. The R-1-B requires only 9,500 and 80 feet, respectively.

The duplex designation was considered at the request of Lakeland Hills Subdivision Developer Robert Carey, who had proposed the change when the plan panel discussed the rezoning of 11 commercial parcels as part of a larger rezoning of the city's zoning ordinance last month.

At that time, Carey objected to the proposed re-designation at the southwest corner of Maple and Decker roads from C-1 general commercial to C-2 community commercial, explaining that the proposed subdivision would be directly behind the parcel and that there consequently would be no buffer zone between the subdivision and a commercial development fronting Maple.

The developer added that he had made plans to build approximately 30 duplex units on his property south of West Maple and west of Decker Road, and asked the planners to consider the new classification.

The rezoning of the 10 other commercial parcels — along with the adoption of commercial zoning changes that would divide the present commercial district into four separate and more restricted zones — were both recommended by the commission for approval by the city council. The planners are slated to meet with Walled Lake's newly-elected council November 26 to review the latter amendment.

Both rezonings will go before the city council, which then will set a public hearing and make a final decision on the proposals.

Novi community ed seeks citizen input

New members are being sought for the Novi Community Education advisory council.

The group is responsible for fact-finding, planning, communication coordination, identification and activation of new resources for community education, as well as evaluation of existing programs.

In May of this year nine persons were appointed to serve on the board. Since then several have resigned, and new members are presently being sought.

"The Novi board of education appointed the community education advisory council, recognizing the needs of a community expanding at an ever increasing rate," according to member Kathleen Roman.

She said the purpose of the group is to assess the needs of the community through interaction with the community education board and other groups in the community.

"Our goal is to find ways, with the support of the community to implement programs for those assessed needs," Roman said.

An example of a project under consideration is a calendar of programs offered by parks and recreation, community education and the library. Another project under consideration is a community resource file.

The community education advisory council is seeking interested persons willing to serve. The group meets the third Monday of each month at 8 p.m. in the school administrative service building on Taft Road near Eleven Mile.

Those interested should contact Dr. Terry Nielsen or Clara Porter, community education director, at 348-1200.

Annexation opposed

- The recreation commission should establish time limits (opening and closing) to be posted on a metal sign at the park entrance. Suggested park hours are daylight to dark or 8 a.m. to 10 p.m.
- The city DPW should maintain fences during spring, summer and fall months only. The police chief contends that the fences will be continually cut by "off-road" vehicle owners in the winter and it would be economically unfeasible to continually make repairs.

• The commission through the DPW should erect a metal sign prohibiting certain activities (use of off-road motor vehicles and creation of ground fires). Also no overnight camping should be allowed without a permit.

Where residents want service

Novi eyes assessments for trash collection fees

Specialty assessing residents for trash collection service through the city is the latest proposal under consideration by Novi officials.

City Manager Ed Kriewall told the council last week he is studying development of a special assessment process for residents who opt for trash collection offered by the city.

Novi has been considering the hiring of a contractor to provide city-wide trash collection service for several months. A survey was sent to local residents earlier this year to determine the level of satisfaction with existing service and the price of that service.

City officials are trying to determine whether there is enough citizen interest for the city to become involved in trash collection and whether city contracted service can be offered at less expense than residents currently pay.

Kriewall told the council last week that he is working out the feasibility of special assessment as a method of collecting the cost of offering trash collection, should the city decide to proceed with it.

Under a special assessment process, public hearing would be held for each section of the city. The council then would determine whether trash collection should be offered.

Such a process probably would be necessary because present service levels range from satisfactory to totally unacceptable — depending upon who is contracted to remove the trash, Kriewall told the council.

"A hearing process would be somewhat cumbersome initially, however, our city attorney has expressed the opinion that we probably would not have to repeat the process once the service is in place," Kriewall said.

He said the special assessment process also would allow the city to determine problem areas.

"If we can serve the problem areas initially we will be addressing the glaring community concerns. An incremental approach allows subdivisions that are satisfied to continue with their present arrangements," he said.

He added that as subdivisions are added to the city the trash collection problems would be compounded.

"I think we want to be in a position to offer an alternative to contracting done by the private homeowner or subdivision," the city manager said.

While the fee collection process is being worked out, the city also is trying to determine whether it will get a break on a contract based on anticipated volume, Kriewall said.

"The test of course will be the actual seeking of bids for city contracted service. We will not recommend pursuing this matter if there is no distinct advantage. We also will not pursue this matter unless there is a means of funding, such as special assessment, that demonstrates minimal administrative involvement."

Kriewall indicated a proposal could be ready for the council to consider if a special meeting is held November 26 or otherwise sometime in early December.

Novi gets road fund bonanza

It's a bonanza.
That is how one city official is describing more than $40,000 that Novi will receive in new Act 51 monies.

Under the provisions of Act 51, local municipalities receive a reimbursement from the state gasoline tax which is based on a community's population and the number of miles designated as major and local streets.

Novi has recently had 5.77 miles reclassified from local streets to major streets, resulting in the new funds.

Department of Public Works Superintendent Edward Smialek recently informed the city council that the roadways were inspected by an engineer from the state Department of Transportation, who approved the reclassification of the roads.

To receive classification from a local street to a major street, the city must demonstrate that the majority of the traffic on the road is either going from the city to another municipality or is coming from another city. Local roads carry traffic generated primarily within the community.

The public works superintendent told the council the streets recently reclassified were two stretches of Nine Mile, a piece of Meadowbrook Road, and some of Heslip Drive.

More specifically the stretches of road for which the city will be reimbursed include:

- 1.39 miles of Nine Mile from Haggerty to Ennoshore;
- 1.01 miles of Nine Mile from Novi Road to Taft;
- one mile of Meadowbrook Road from Eight Mile to Nine Mile;
- and, 37 miles of Heslip Drive from Nine Mile north of the cul-de-sac.

Smialek told the council that the city receives $7,000 more in reimbursement from the state for a major road than a local road. With 5.77 miles of newly classified major roads the city can expect to receive $40,390 annually, he said.

The 1979-80 budget showed an expected increase of about $2,000 in revenues generated through the reimbursement provisions of Act 51.

City officials had indicated earlier in the year that an increase in the gas tax revenues would be necessary to keep the road maintenance crew of the Department of Public Works intact.

Those employees were hired under the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act program. The government ordered all municipalities using CETA funds to make other arrangements for employees whose salaries were paid through that program, as of October 1.

The U.S. Department of Labor subsequently granted Novi's request, exempting the city from requirements which would have forced the

Novi Chamber starts drive for daytime firefighters

Another plea has gone out to local business owners for additional daytime volunteer firefighters in Novi.

The Novi Chamber of Commerce recently launched an active recruiting program by sending letters to employers.

"We need your assistance and support in obtaining the necessary volunteer manpower so we can maintain adequate fire protection for our community," the letter states.

The letter asks employers if they have employees who would be interested in becoming volunteer firefighters. It requests employers who can "spare an employee or two for a couple of hours" to contact the Chamber.

"The expansion of this paid volunteer program is extremely important because the costs of supporting a full time department would be astronomical," the letter goes on to say.

It adds that "the only alternative to a volunteer program is a full time department which would mean more taxes."

The letter urges involvement in the volunteer program as an investment for the community.

City administrators informed the Novi City Council that the recruiting campaign is now underway. They asked council for additional time in working on the daytime auxiliary until follow-up calls on the responses from the Chamber letters can be completed.

Fire Chief Arthur Lenaghan and city officials met with business owners in April to explain their concerns about the need for daytime fire volunteers.

At that time Lenaghan cited an increasing number of fire calls in the city. He also told business representatives that the peak hours for calls are at 10 a.m., 2 p.m. and 10 p.m.

The chief said the problem is that although the department has 44 volunteers, the majority of them work outside the city and are not available for fire runs during the day.

Paul Eno and Jeff Stearns work on 1958 Cadillac in new bump shop class at the Southwest Oakland Vocational Education Center

New SVOVEC class

Bump shop crew works miracles

The rusting, beat-up '58 Cadillac that was sitting in the parking lot at the Southwest Oakland Vocational Education Center has been given a new lease on life, thanks to the boys in the center's new bump shop.

Like skilled plastic surgeons, the students in the auto body shop erased its wrinkles, smoothed out the lumps and bumps, sanded off the rust, sprayed it with some purple paint and made that old junker a sight to behold.

The auto body program at the vocational education center in the Walled Lake School District opened to students in September. The program is designed to teach students interested in gaining a practical, job skill the delicate and intricate art of grinding down cars, bumping out hard hits, repairing frame damage and spray painting.

Instructor Larry Mitch is completely confident that the course will be a success.

"The facilities here are beautiful — better than you'll find in most bump shops," he explained.

"We've got the best of everything, including a crew of students who are really gunning on this. They want to learn everything as fast as I can teach them."

The course involves 900 hours of work on a variety of junked cars for which the students will get vocational certificates. After graduating from the two-year course, they'll be able to go to any bump shop and be competent workers at a good salary, Mitch said.

"There is a real need for competent people in this field," he continued. "The biggest complaints I hear from employers are that the kids can't do what they say they can do or that they have poor working habits."

"I'll try to alleviate both those problems with my students. Not only will they leave this program with skills, but I'll also be teaching them good working habits."

"They'll be good workers who can get to work on time and do the job right," he concluded.

Donigan resigns post on Commerce board

Don H. Donigan has resigned from the Commerce Township Planning Commission.

A member of the planning panel since June 1974, Donigan said he no longer has enough time to serve on the commission. He is a teacher in the Walled Lake Community School District.

Donigan's November 9 resignation is the second one from the commission in two months. Commission Chairperson Lynn Gouge stepped down in October because her family was moving to Iowa.

Township Supervisor Robert H. Long said Donigan's resignation would be submitted to the township board at its meeting last night, after our deadline.

In addition to the resignations of Gouge and Donigan, the three-year terms of Commission Acting Chairperson Edward Oldenkamp and Commissioner Robert D. McGee, the township clerk, also expire this month.

Long said he expected to nominate replacements for Gouge and Donigan and to recommend appointments to Oldenkamp's and McGee's seats at last night's board meeting. He declined Monday afternoon to identify prospective commissioners.

The replacements for Gouge and Donigan will serve until November 1980 when those two terms expire.

Commerce has an eight-member planning commission. Also serving on the panel are Gordon Flatley, George N. Allard, Gerard J. Sweeney and Edward J. Holmes, the township board's liaison to the commission.

Fire dispatch policy proposed in Walled Lake

A policy on dispatching the Walled Lake Fire Department on emergency calls is being prepared for the city council, according to City Manager Peter Parker.

Fire Chief Bill Friar recommended a proposed dispatch policy to the manager in July and, in his October monthly report, reminded Parker that he was still waiting for a decision on the plan.

Parker said Monday that the chief's report is a recommendation to him and he will review the document as part of the preparation of a policy for council approval. The manager said he wasn't sure when he would present a policy to the council for action.

Friar suggested that the fire department should respond to all calls received on the fire telephone, except for police calls, and also should respond to fire calls received at the police department.

The chief also recommended that his department should continue to respond to "all medical emergencies when requested by the public ambulance companies and/or the police department. We're done this in the past and should continue. We have the equipment and the training to give the people of Walled Lake a good first aid service."

"The fire department should respond to all (personal injury) accidents to assist the police department and responding ambulance company," Friar added, and also should be called to "other accidents when requested by the police department for wash downs, wires down, etc."

Mayor Gaspare LaMarca asked in August why the policy had not been implemented or submitted to the council. Parker replied that he was waiting for information on how the proposed policy would affect city liability insurance rates.

The need for a fire department dispatch policy was first proposed last January following a dispute over a January fire dispatcher's handling of an accident in November 1978. One ambulance company, Novi Ambulance, filed a complaint against the fire department and the dispatcher with the Michigan Department of Public Health's Office of Emergency Medical Services.

The state agency later cleared the department and the dispatcher of any wrong doing in the incident and, in fact, commended the dispatcher for his actions.

State funds available for Village bridge

Wolverine Lake Village won't have to pay any of the cost to replace the Oak Island Bridge along Oakview Drive, Village Administrator Bill O'Brien said Friday.

That good news for village residents came on the heels of an announcement at last Wednesday's special council meeting by O'Brien, when he disclosed that a grant had been approved by the state highway department and federal government for the bridge program in which it was ruled that the village could use roughly $20,000 in major road funds to pay for the local share of the bridge work. Under that arrangement, the village would be responsible for 10 percent of the total $200,000 project.

O'Brien then made a trip to Lansing Thursday and found that through the state highway department — it could be arranged to switch funds around from the state so that the village wouldn't have to pay a penny.

"This is great news for the village," O'Brien said. "The bridge has always been a concern of mine. It's a very crucial thing."

Last month, state transportation officials awarded the village $180,000 for replacing the 155-foot bridge, providing for 85 percent of the cost from federal funds and five percent from state funds.

The grant was requested several years ago due to the deterioration of the bridge, according to O'Brien.

The bridge is more than 50 years old, has a 6,000 pound weight limit and doesn't allow fire equipment to have access to the island homes.

O'Brien added that the village hopes to begin work on the bridge program "as soon as possible."

'It could have an effect'

West Oaks developer keeps eye on economy

Developers of the proposed West Oaks (Kmart) shopping center on the west side of Novi Road opposite the Twelve Oaks Mall say they will be watching economic conditions closely over the next several months.

"The way things are going we're going to have to keep a close eye on the economy," commented Michael Ward, an executive vice-president with the Ramco-Gershenson Company which is developing the shopping center.

"Right now we're doing all we can to get it in the ground in preparation for opening next November, but if the recession continues to escalate it could have an effect on our plans. I wouldn't rule it out."

Final site plan approval for the West Oaks shopping center was granted last week by the Novi City Council. The major tenant in the center will be a 90,000 square foot Kmart. Also included in the center will be the following stores:

• A 60,000 square foot Service Merchandise Catalog Store. Service Merchandise is headquartered in Tennessee and offers a new approach to retail sales. One model of each item is displayed. Customers who want to purchase the item present the item number to a clerk who then retrieves it from a store room.

• A 32,000 square foot Kroger's Store.

• An 11,900 square foot Perry's Drug Store.

• Fourteen retail stores with a combined gross floor space of 32,900 square feet.

• A First Federal Savings and Loan branch.

In addition to keeping a close eye on the economy, Ward said he also would be watching the progress of a proposal to create an Economic Development Corporation (EDC) in the city.

An EDC is empowered to issue government-backed bonds to assist with the financing of a project. Since a lending institution does not have to pay income taxes on interest earned on the government-backed bonds, a two to three percent lower interest rate usually is offered on projects financed by an EDC.

Ward said creation of an EDC in Novi could prove to be "the saving grace" for a lot of projects.

"We (Ramco-Gershenson) have gone with EDC financing on our last four projects," he said. "Without EDC financing, those projects would never have been built."

"The problem right now is the interest rate," continued the Ramco-Gershenson executive. "The prime interest rate is now over 15 percent to people like General Motors, so it's up to 17 or 17½ percent for us."

"You can only pass on so much of the cost to the tenants. After a while you reach a point where the tenants just can't absorb any more cost. When you hit that point, then you have to shelve the project."

Ward also said that Ramco-Gershenson economists feel there may be a break in the recessionary trends early next year. "If it doesn't come in February or March, we don't look for there to be any break until late summer — and then it may be only very gradual," he said.

Nevertheless, plans are proceeding for construction of the West Oaks shopping center at the present time.

Site work is scheduled to begin this fall, and above-ground construction of the entire center is slated for March 1. A November 1 opening date is anticipated.

The construction timetable is consistent with Kmart's overall development philosophy which generally calls for new stores to be opened in November in time for holiday shopping.

Kmart is presently the number two retailer in the United States, second only to Sears, and corporate goals call for Kmart to become the number one retailer in the nation.

Some 70 Kmart stores were opened across the country this year.

"We're doing all we can to meet that November target date," said Ward.

"We've already set our engineers loose on final engineering plans at a cost of $35,000 to $40,000 so you know we're serious. "But it's obvious that we're keeping our eye on the economy very closely. It's just a reality of the times."

Ban proposed on political signs

Reconsideration of the Novi sign ordinance as it applies to political signs has been requested by one city council member.

Council Member Martha Hoyer told the council last week she is concerned by the amount of litter and the eyesore created by signs posted in the last election.

The council reviewed an amendment to the existing sign ordinance in June 1978 which in part would have prohibited political signs. That part of the amendment ultimately was rejected by the council.

"When there are 12 to 14 signs on a single pole I question whether we made a mistake," Hoyer said. "I would like to know if anyone else is interested in putting that part of the ordinance back in."

Hoyer also told the council she was "one of the offenders in this election so I felt I could bring it up."

It was pointed out that there was no immediate need for a revision to the sign ordinance since the city would not face another election for two years.

Council Member Robert Schmidt said he would oppose a prohibition on all political signs.

"This is still a relatively small community with no daily newspapers or active radio stations and the signs serve a purpose," Schmidt said.

Hoyer suggested there should be at least a deadline for removing the signs. Following the meeting Hoyer explained she had heard concerns from residents about signs posted from August to October. She indicated she believed the signs should come down after the primary and be reposted for the general election.

"We probably don't have to ban them completely," Hoyer said. "A stricter deadline on when they can go up and when they must come down with fines for the people who don't comply could be what we need. I'd like to see lawn signs encouraged," Hoyer said.

The council took no action on Hoyer's suggestion.

Novi planner proposes building regulations

Novi City Council has indicated it wants buildings developed immediately west of Twelve Oaks Mall on Novi Road to be finished on all four sides, and the city's consulting planner has proposed a method to accomplish that objective.

An amendment to the zoning ordinance which regulates development in the regional center area could be drafted to include a section requiring developers to consider aesthetic impact when preparing their plans.

Consulting Planner Charles Cairns suggested the amendment after council members spent some time last week trying to convince the developer of West Oaks Shopping Center that a proposed Kmart should be finished in the same material on all four sides.

Council members have had similar discussions with other developers in previous meetings.

They have indicated in the past that they want a total development built in an aesthetically pleasing manner. Buildings should be built with consideration to those which will be constructed around them, and the total development should complement the regional shopping center across the street, council has said.

Cairns said after the meeting he was considering an amendment which would deal with the use of finished materials rather than painted block at the rear of the building.

He also is looking into the possibility of requiring more intensive screen plantings for buildings adjacent to vacant property.

A third consideration is a requirement for the concealment of roof-top climate control equipment, Cairns said.

Hoyer suggested that requirements would be applied conditionally, he explained.

Cairns acknowledged that the council had not previously dealt with the question of roof-top concealment for climate control equipment, but it soon may become necessary.

It is expected that development in the area will include a five-story motor hotel or an office building which will have a view of the roofs of other buildings around them.

Should the city adopt requirements such as those suggested it will resolve many questions raised by the council, Cairns said. It would establish guidelines allowing him to determine whether the plans meet the ordinance and facilitate his recommendation to the planning board, he explained.

With the addition of aesthetic impact requirements in the ordinance those questions can be dealt with at the planning board level rather than the council table, Cairns said.

"This will remove a lot of the responsibility from the council and reduce many of the questions when these plans come in," Cairns said.

He explained that it became apparent to him that such an amendment was needed after council members directed questions to him regarding architecture, which as a planner he felt unqualified to answer.

However, the state planning act allows planning boards to make decisions on the aesthetic impact of a development, he said.

The planner indicated the amendment he envisioned would apply only to the property near the mall, but if the council so desired the requirement could probably be expanded to apply in all non-residential areas.

A&amp;P is major tenant

Frankel submits Walled Lake Commons plans

The proposed supermarket anchoring the Walled Lake Commons area will be an A&P, Project Developer Stuart Frankel said while presenting the Walled Lake Commons plan to the city council last Tuesday's regular meeting.

The project was accepted for study by the planners.

In appearing before the panel for the first time in several months since the plan was approved, Frankel said that the plan was "a major step" in the development of the Commons.

Although an A&P already exists on Maple in Walled Lake, Frankel indicated that he would like to see a larger store built at the Commons.

In reviewing the plan, City Planner Todd Kilroy noted that it was basically the same configuration as the earlier Kmart plan except for a larger supermarket and more retail area. An additional 25,000 feet in retail space marks this project, along with some modifications in connection with a ponding basin and parking lot.

Frankel added that he had "worked hard in the last three months to come up with something that would work for everyone," adding that he would appreciate the commission's efforts in helping to get the plan approved as quickly as possible.

The developer noted that increasing building costs have "time running against me," and that he would like to start work as soon as possible in the spring.

Frankel also said that he was still going through Walled Lake's Economic Development Corporation (EDC) on this project in hopes of arranging a buyer for revenue bonds to finance the facility. According to some sources, finding a buyer was a major stumbling block in the developer's July decision not to build a proposed Kmart.

At that time, Frankel announced cancellation of the Kmart plans due to the retailers backing down on a lease for the facility due to a higher proposed rent figure, which was brought about by delays in gaining EDC approval of the project.

The main reason for the delay, according to Frankel, was a call for a referendum election on the city's EDC ordinance filed in February by opponents of the development corporation.

City council members, following the city charter, set a vote on the issue for the November 6 general election, but Frankel filed suit, charging that the EDC was not subject to referendum under state law.

An Oakland County Circuit judge agreed with the developer and, in April, issued a permanent injunction against the city to ban an election on the EDC.

A site plan for the proposed Kmart was submitted to the Walled Lake Planning Commission in February 1978, prompting complaints from residents of the Tri-A subdivision (located behind the Maple Plaza), who said they feared that traffic generated by the department store would pose safety hazards in their neighborhood.

In May, 1978, Frankel approached city officials with a proposal to create an EDC. The city council adopted an ordinance to form the development corporation in June and Walled Lake Commons filed the first application for project plan approval a month later.

The developer explained that the lower rates available by financing the project through the sale of government-issued revenue bonds would more than offset the city's relatively high property tax rate.

Frankel said the bonds probably could be sold at a two to three percent lower interest rate than a conventional mortgage. He added that EDC approval of his project would not affect the city's credit rating or borrowing power, or the estimated $80,000 in taxes that would be generated by the new store. The city would not be liable for retiring the bonds if the borrower defaults or files for bankruptcy, the developer added.

The city council, EDC board and plan commission granted all of the required approvals for the Kmart, except for the EDC's okay for the bond resolution and other closing documents.

In December, though, an ad hoc citizens' committee filed petitions calling for a referendum vote on the EDC ordinance. The petitions were certified in January and the ordinance was suspended, prompting the council to set up the November EDC vote.

Bundo uncertain over legal appeal

Camelot Inn owner Benjamin Bundo said Monday he isn't sure yet what action he may take in his effort to regain a state liquor license for his bottomless

The Michigan Supreme Court denied a motion November 7 for leave to appeal lower court rulings that upheld the legality of the Michigan Liquor Control Commission's (LCC) two-year-old so-called nudity rules that prohibit bottomless performers and other forms of holding liquor licenses.

Bundo said he would meet this week with his attorney, Thomas P. Rabette of Bloomfield Hills, to discuss his options.

Those options, Bundo said, apparently include asking the state supreme court for a rehearing on the motion to appeal or taking the issue to the federal courts.

The controversial bar owner already has filed suit in the U.S. District Court in Detroit, challenging the constitutionality of the nudity rules. He maintains that the LCC's regulations, implemented in November 1977, abridge his constitutional guarantees of free speech and due process of the law.

The Camelot's Class C liquor license and other associated permits were revoked in March by the LCC after the Oakland and Ingham County circuit courts upheld the legality of the rules. Beer, wine and alcoholic beverages in the bar were seized during the revocation.

Bundo has continued to operate Oakland County's only bottomless go-go bar since the revocation, although he now serves coffee and soft drinks in lieu of liquor. Business has not been too bad, he said Monday.

"We're keeping our head above water," Bundo added.

"The girls are dancing every night and the guys (male dancers) are here Wednesday."

City Attorney Richard J. Poehlman informed the city council November 5 of the supreme court's decision not to hear a further appeal. He said at that time that Bundo could challenge the ruling to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Federal Judge James P. Churchill has not taken action on the suit filed by Bundo in March, pending the outcome of proceedings in the state courts. Bundo said Monday he wasn't sure whether he could appeal directly to the U.S. Supreme Court or whether he would have to continue the action in federal district court.

His attorney declined comment until he had an opportunity to talk to Bundo.

An appeal of the Ingham circuit court ruling is still pending before the State Court of Appeals. Oral arguments in the case are expected to be heard this fall.

Poehlman said Monday that he believes no action will be taken until the appellate court rules in the Ingham case. If that appellate panel differs from the opinion handed down in July by the judges who heard the Oakland case, the city attorney said he would expect the state high court to be asked

Attorney contract approved

A first-ever contract between the City of Walled Lake and its attorneys was unanimously approved November 5 by the city council.

Under the agreement, the law firm of Brennan, Bibeau and Poehlman of Farmington Hills will receive $1,000 a month as a retainer to perform certain specified services. Other services to the city will be billed on a fee basis.

City Attorney Richard J. Poehlman said in June, when the contract was first proposed, that the agreement in no way changes current practice or the relationship between the city and his firm. The contract is retroactive to July 1, the start of the current fiscal year, and runs through next June 30.

Among the retainer services covered by the contract are:

- preparation for an attendance at regular city council and zoning board of appeals meetings and attendance as requested at special council, zoning board and plan commission meetings and hearings.

• preparation or review of all ordinances, contracts, bonds and other documents submitted by the council.

• conferring, counseling and acting as legal advisors to council members, city officials or department heads on matters relating to their official duties.

• performing "such other duties as may be specifically requested or from time to time by the city council."

Services not included under the retainer, but available at additional cost, are representation of the city, its officers or employees in connection with litigation; prosecution of ordinance violations; matters involving public improvements; such as the issuance of bonds; appearances before state or county administrative agencies; and conducting labor negotiations or preparation for collective bargaining agreements.

A total of $20,000 was included in the 1979-80 budget for legal services.

The agreement was presented to the council in June, but was tabled at that time because of one member's concern over an "etc." in one section. The "etc." was deleted by the council when the contract was approved last week.

Also at last week's meeting, the council unanimously directed Mayor Gaspare LaMarca to sign a newly adopted contract with City Manager Peter Parker. LaMarca said last week that he had not signed the agreement because the council did not authorize him to do so when the contract was approved Oc-

Novi planners grant approval

New condo project proposed near Country Place

Plans for the construction of a 215-unit condominium project on Eight Mile near the Country Place Condominiums were presented to the Novi Planning Board last week by representatives of the Bert L. Smoker Company.

The condominium project is proposed for construction on a 30-acre parcel on the north side of Eight Mile between Meadowbrook Road and the Chessie System railroad tracks. The parcel is immediately west of Country Place.

Downs indicated that the development will incorporate a total of 215 dwelling units in 43 five-unit buildings. Each building will contain two two-bedroom units and three three-bedroom units.

The planning board voted unanimously to grant preliminary site plan approval and authorize the site plan sub-committee to grant final site plan approval.

In considering the request for site plan approval, the planning board centered its attention on attempts to preserve an existing tree line between Country Place and the new condominium project.

Stanley Drews, a Country Place resident, asked the planners to attempt to save as many trees as possible for environmental reasons as well as a buffer between Country Place and the new project.

Discussion centered specifically on a proposed cul-de-sac that would have required the removal of trees from a 100-by-100-foot parcel of land immediately adjacent to Country Place.

James Hockstead, another Country Place resident, asked the planners to consider the removal of trees from a dead-end stub street. He also suggested that the cul-de-sac would serve as a turn-around area for emergency vehicles as well as motorists who accidentally turned down the dead-end street.

Planners Joseph Toth and James McLennan questioned the value of the proposed cul-de-sac, however.

Toth suggested that the cul-de-sac could become a "lover's lane" and an area where people would throw their trash. He also said maintenance problems could be associated with the cul-de-sac.

McLennan, noting that the dead-end street already exists, said he did not believe construction of a cul-de-sac would serve any valid purpose.

"I can't see going to the expense of constructing the cul-de-sac and chopping down those trees when it won't solve any problem," he said.

Planning Consultant Charles Cairns then advised the planners that it might be better to have a dead-end street than a cul-de-sac, although he advised the planners to check with police and fire officials to get their feelings on the value of a cul-de-sac as opposed to a dead-end street.

Commerce Central eyes start

By DAVID RAY

Ground may be broken as early as next month for the first building in the proposed 110-acre Commerce Central commercial and office development located at Fourteen Mile and Haggerty roads in the southeast corner of Commerce Township.

Plans for a 57,600-square-foot fast food restaurant are being prepared, according to Daniel D. Lublin, president of the Detroit-based Standard Industries, Incorporated, one of the sponsors of the development, and should be submitted to township officials for review by the end of this month so the planning commission may consider site plan approval at its December 18 session.

A representative of A & E Design Engineers of Cincinnati, Ohio, met with Commerce Building Inspector William Mitchell last week to discuss requirements for plan approval, Lublin said.

If the plan is approved and construction begins next month, the building should open by next June, he added. Lublin declined to identify the tenant of the building, but said it is not a major national fast food chain. He added that a bank facility, proposed for the Fourteen Mile-Haggerty corner, also may be ready by June 1980.

"After 25 years, we're finally ready to go," Lublin said.

A conceptual drawing of the entire 110-acre development was submitted to township officials last month, but, according to Township Clerk Robert D. McGee, the plans did not contain all of the information required for site plan or engineering approval.

Lublin said he and his associates plan to submit separate drawings for each proposed building in the development to the township as tenants are signed and engineering work is completed.

The drawing submitted to Commerce officials in October shows a commercial anchor store, a supermarket, a drug store, a delicatessen, theatres, a sit-down restaurant, a savings and loan association, 4.4 acres of "fine quality restaurants and lounges," and a number of unspecified commercial uses, in addition to the fast-food outlet and bank.

The northernly 50 acres is planned to be used for four three-story office buildings, while three "future office" sites also are shown. Twenty acres on Fourteen Mile, west of the commercial area, also is designated as future office. A total of 319,000 square feet of commercial floor space and 900,000 square feet of office space is projected for the Commerce Central development.

Township planners and the developers have agreed to work together to initiate rezoning of the 110 acres from light industrial and single-family residential uses to regional business district.

Another 160 acres west of the commercial development on Fourteen Mile and Haggerty roads is the heart of new development in Oakland County," he said, referring to projections that some 7,500 to 8,000 new dwelling units will be built in the next five years on the east side of Haggerty, from Twelve Mile to West Maple roads in West Bloomfield and Farmington Hills.

In addition to Standard Industries, sponsors of the Commerce Central development include Joseph Fetter, the Haggerty Investment Company and the Kiochko Equipment Company.

development for almost 10 years, Lublin said, before the Michigan State Highway Commission in January 1977 cancelled the controversial freeway.

The Michigan State Transportation Commission is reviewing plans for an alternate north-south state trunkline road in west Oakland County. A decision on an M-275 alternative is expected to be made November 28 by the panel, but Lublin said the development plans can be changed to accommodate a trunkline facility either along Haggerty Road or to the west of it.

The 252 acres that includes the black spruce bog will remain zoned for mobile home district, Lublin added.

"We've been told that the Fourteen Mile and Haggerty area is the heart of new development in Oakland County," he said, referring to projections that some 7,500 to 8,000 new dwelling units will be built in the next five years on the east side of Haggerty, from Twelve Mile to West Maple roads in West Bloomfield and Farmington Hills.

Novi eyes $1 1/2 million in sewer, water fees

The City of Novi and Guardian Photo are trying to work out a $500,000 disagreement.

The disagreement involves the number of water and sewer taps the company is reportedly using and the number of taps the city says it is paying for, according to City Attorney David Fried.

Apparently Guardian made an agreement with village officials before the city was incorporated which they believe exempts them from future water and sewer tap charges, according to Fried.

Officials at Guardian Photo said that since the matter still is under investigation, they preferred not to comment on it. Their attorney could not be reached for comment.

To accommodate the company's needs for water and sewer service, a line was run from the city trunk line to the Guardian facilities.

The city anticipated recouping the cost of the line by selling water and sewer taps to the company.

The city claims Guardian is using 553 water taps and 346 sewer taps, and is paying for six sewer taps and no water taps. They further claim metering of the amount of water and sewage shows the company is indebted to the city to the tune of $175,500 for the water taps and $420,217 for the sewer taps.

Fried said Guardian Photo maintains it came into the city with the understanding it would be charged for a certain amount of taps.

The city has argued that "irrespective of what the village metered," the company is using a set amount of taps and should be required to pay for them.

"The issue is whether the city is stopped from charging a user for additional tap charges after they have been allowed to construct their building," Fried said. "We think they are using more taps than originally agreed to so they should pay the established user fee."

Fried said it is not a question of the company's honesty.

"We don't question their agreement with the village, but we are concerned that they pay for the amount of water they are using," he added.

The city attorney said the disagreement is being negotiated but a suit would be considered against the company if the disagreement cannot be "resolved amicably."

Police chief asks gas allowance for REACT

Members of the Walled Lake REACT Team who help the police department by patrolling the city at night should receive a gas allowance for their service, according to Police Chief Wilford G. Hook.

Hook made that request to the city council in his October monthly report. City Manager Peter Parker told the council last week that he would have a report on the possible costs of the program at the November 20 meeting.

"The present energy crisis and unemployment have resulted in an economic issue for some REACT volunteer workers," the chief said. He suggested that the volunteers should receive a maximum of two gallons of gas from the city for each night of service.

Other communities provide a similar "token of appreciation" to citizens' watch organizations, Hook said. There are no funds in the current budget, though, for the gas allowances, he added.

The REACT Team helps the police department patrol city streets at night, especially on holidays such as Halloween and New Year's Eve, the chief said. The volunteers contact the police if they notice any suspicious persons or activities, but they don't have police powers.

Hook said the REACT team, auxiliary officers and the police department worked together over Halloween to hold down vandalism to "an acceptable level."

One serious problem that occurred around Halloween, he added, was the opening of fire hydrants.

"This not only lowers the water pressure needed in the event of fire, but also washes away the earth and road near the hydrant, resulting in more problems for the (department of public works)," the chief reported. He added that, with cold weather setting in, open hydrants could cause freezing of water lines.

Also at last week's meeting, the chief requested — and received — permission from the council to apply to the Oakland County Road Commission for a permit to install banner poles on E.

West Maple Road and Pontiac Trail.

The poles will be used to display banners promoting school, church and civic groups' activities. They would be installed in front of the A.C.E. Hardware on West Maple and St. William's Catholic Church on Pontiac Trail.

The Detroit Edison Company and the Michigan Bell Telephone Company have expressed interest in donating the poles to the city, officials said.

Each banner to be displayed would have to have a permit approved by the council and the road commission, Hook said. City Attorney Richard J. Poehlman suggested that the council might consider a policy to regulate the type and size of banners that may be displayed.

WINTER IS... BIG TREE SEASON!

Why wait? Now is a great time to select a large shade tree for planting in your yard this winter.

Here's Why: Trees enter a state of dormancy in the winter season; their vascular systems are frozen and inactive. Careful digging and moving at this time of year is much easier on the tree than when it has foliage and an active vascular system. In general, trees dug in the winter will produce more foliage the following summer.

Police move to halt youth drinking complaints

Wixom

Wixom Police are currently seeking a warrant against a Detroit man for contributing to the delinquency of minors. The man was detained by police after he allegedly was seen handing the youths a bag containing a bottle of Southern Comfort.

The incident reportedly was viewed by a plain clothes officer who said he noticed two youths standing near a store at 10:30 p.m. Friday. The officer stated he saw a patron enter the store, and exit a short time later carrying a paper bag.

The officer stated he saw the man remove several items from the bag before handing the bag to the boys who then turned to leave. Noting the license number of the car, the officer then approached the two boys who revealed the bottle of liquor in the bag.

A second officer followed the man to a local business and detained him. The man explained one of the youths approached him as he entered the store, handed him $10 and asked him to make the liquor purchase.

The older of the two youths, a 15-year-old, told police he was going to have a birthday and wanted to celebrate.

Mounting complaints from the Richardson Dairy on Pontiac Trail regarding the larceny of beer and wine from the premises caused Wixom Police to pay special attention to the area.

In the latest incidents, the dairy reported two such larcenies in as many days. In each case, employees at the store reported people entering the store, helping themselves to beer and wine and running from the store without paying.

An officer, watching the building Saturday night, observed a man walk into the store and run from the building minutes later with two 12-packs of beer. He stated he also observed an employee running after the man. Jumping into a waiting car, the man and the beer sped from the area.

The officer apprehended the suspects minutes later. The occupants of the car, police reported, were mostly juveniles. The man who removed the beer was detained for larceny from a building. He was 18.

Four smashed windshields on cars parked outside a Wixom bar were thought to have been the end result of a disputed pool game. Wixom Police, called to the bar, found the shattered glass and one very angry patron.

The patron, police reported, had been inside the bar playing pool with another man. An argument was said to have begun over the game and the two men left the bar to carry on their fight outside. Just when, how and who smashed the windshields has not yet been determined.

One of the patrons involved in the fight was arrested and lodged in Oakland County Jail on charges of being a disorderly person.

The caretaker of the Detroit Finnish Summer Camp on Loon Lake Road called police to the area after he discovered 23 cabins on the property had been subjected to breaking and entering.

The string of B & Es was discovered Saturday. Each cabin was entered by prying open the cabin door. In each case, the latch and screws had been pulled from the door.

The caretaker advised police that he did not know if any of the contents of the cabins were missing.

In Novi

Novi police reported a thief made off with approximately $370 worth of merchandise from the Lord and Taylor store in Twelve Oaks Mall on November 7.

Taken in the theft were four sweaters worth a total of $165, a parka worth about $150, a pair of Calvin Klein jeans valued at $37 and a belt worth about $12.

Novi police in the Twelve Oaks Mall were notified of the theft by Lord and Taylor security, but were unable to apprehend the responsible party.

Police reported three incidents of theft from construction sites on November 7.

In a theft from the construction site of the Michigan National Bank Building at Pontiac Trail and West Road a backhoe loader and bucket were taken. The equipment was valued at $7,000.

In a separate incident two wheelbarrows worth $85 each and eight 10 pipe fittings worth an estimated $30 each were stolen from a construction site on Grand River.

Complainants told the police the total theft cost about $410. The pipe fittings are for sewer line pipes.

The third incident occurred in a new construction of a store inside Twelve Oaks Mall.

Thieves took 110 plug-in fixtures worth about $538 from the construction site.

Police reported an unidentified person apparently rented a truck from Suburban-Rent-It and then failed to return it.

The truck was taken on November 3, supposedly for one day. But three days later the vehicle had not been returned and the police were called in. The thief could not be traced since he put the telephone number of the Secretary of State's office in Milford on the application for renting the truck.

Milford police reported they believed they had seen the truck in the vicinity.

A car north bound on Fenkwood Drive in the Old Dutch Farms Mobile Home Park was struck by a shot from a gun, police reported.

Victims said they saw a young man run up the steps of a nearby home after the shot had been fired. No one was injured in the incident.

The left front window on the driver's side was broken out and a four-inch scratch was made in the windshield molding on the passenger side.

Upon investigating, the police questioned a young man in connection with the incident. He told police the shot was made by a BB gun.

The youth said he had been firing at the ground and the shot bounced off the ground and hit the automobile.

Police patrolling the Novi High School football game on November 2 issued a violation for minor in possession of alcohol to a 17-year old allegedly carrying a 12-ounce bottle of beer.

As We See It

Major issues face new city council

Three new council members — Linda S. Ackley, Hannah F. Honeyman and William T. Roberts, a former mayor and council member — took office Monday in Walled Lake.

Council Members Donald Lee and Cameron E. Rose, both appointees, stepped down at that time with the seating of their replacements. Lee did not seek election to a full term on the council, while Rose was an unsuccessful candidate to retain one of the posts.

Both Lee and Rose served Walled Lake well following their appointments to the council in January and November 1978, respectively. Rose will continue to serve the city as a member of the economic development corporation and, hopefully, Lee will find time in the future to serve the community again.

We would like to congratulate the three new council members and Mayor Pro Tem Heather F. M. Hill, who won election to a second four-year term in last week's balloting.

The new council will have to address a number of important issues early in its 1979-81 term. Among the issues the new council will face are:

- improvement of the city water system to the tune of $1.6 million or connection to the City of Detroit's water system. The city is awaiting word from the federal Farmers Home Administration on the fate of a long-term, low-interest loan to expand the water system. City officials also have applied for a federal economic development authority grant for water system improvements.

- revitalization of the downtown business district and the West Maple commercial area. The Lakes Area Chamber of Commerce's Walled Lake Area Action Committee and city officials are working with the business community and officials of Oakland County and neighboring communities to obtain funding for remodeling the commercial districts, improving the lakefront and rehabilitation of homes.

- annexation of some 2.4 square miles of Commerce Township to the city. While the fate of the annexation is now in the hands of the Michigan State Boundary Commission, city officials may face the task of providing services to the area, if the annexation is approved. Of course, the city will benefit with new property taxes on the almost $15-million state equalized valuation of the township land.

- whether Walled Lake should continue to participate in planning for the so-called super sewer regional wastewater treatment control system or whether the existing Novi-Walled Lake wastewater treatment plant should be expanded to its designed capacity.

- expansion of city hall to provide more room for the library and the police department. The council also may have to decide what to do about facilities for the 52nd District Court's First Division which now has offices in the west wing of city hall, especially if Oakland County — which administers the court — decides to build a new court house.

- working with Wolverine Lake Village officials to clean the county-owned Greenaway Drain. The city may or may not be legally responsible for the drain, but Mayor Gaspare LaMarca has taken the initiative to work with village officials as good neighbors to resolve a mutual problem. The mayor should be commended for his efforts to address the Greenaway pollution problem.

Nobody asked us for use of name

Voters in the Walled Lake School District have rejected a proposal to increase operating millage for the third time this year.

The most recent millage defeat came Monday when voters rejected a proposal of three mills for three years by a 58-42 margin. The vote was virtually identical to a June 12 millage defeat. Monday's millage proposal was turned down by a 76 vote margin, while the June millage proposal went down by 801 votes.

At least a portion of the credit (or blame) for the most recent millage defeat is being attributed to a flyer which was distributed to many residents throughout the district over the weekend.

Unfortunately, the flyer contained the name of The Walled Lake News. Our masthead was reproduced on one side of the flyer along with a letter to the editor submitted by Janet Callahan withdrawing her previous support of the three mill/three year proposal. The other side of the flyer contained 10 reasons for opposing the millage and urged voters to "Vote No Again."

The flyer was distributed by "Citizens for Fair Taxation."

Purpose of this commentary is to make it abundantly clear that this newspaper was in no way involved in the distribution of the flyer. Nobody from "Citizens for Fair Taxation" asked us for permission to use our name. We were totally unaware that our name would be used in such a fashion until the calls started to roll in, asking us if we were involved in the distribution of the flyer.

The answer to that question is an unqualified "no."

We find it ironic that our name was attached to a flyer which is being credited in part with the latest millage defeat. We have long felt the schools' requests for additional millage are justified and have supported editorially each of the three millage proposals.

We do not object to dissemination of opinion and we encourage open discussion of the issues.

However, in this case we are displeased that our name was associated with anti-millage literature. We assure our readers that our name was used without our knowledge and without our permission.

Speaking for Myself

WOODIE HAZE

YES

Wayne Woodrow Hayes, head coach of the Ohio State University Buckeyes for 28 years was, in a word, an original.

Here was a man who recognized our great gridiron game for what it is, an allegory to true battlefield victories. Yes, Woody was a military historian, a strategist and, above all, a winner. He prepared his players for life, which explains why so few ex-Buckeyes made it big in professional football.

Woody was a patriot and a true American. When President Nixon was looking for a director of the selective service system in the years when the Vietnam War was winding down, he almost drafted Woody.

Woody was a realist. He knew that on a pass play three things could happen and two of them were bad. Ultimately, it was an errant pass that brought the great man down. Woody was an original all right, and that's why he was so thoroughly loathed in the State of Michigan.

The University of Michigan, as most of you know, has a head football coach by the name of Glenn "Bo" Schembechler. An animated Meechingham broadcaster likes to call him Bo "General George S. Patton" Schembechler. The Wolverines coach, too, is a strategist and a winner, except, of course, for the last game each season.

Schembechler may be a "Little Woody" or a chip off the old blockhead to some, but he is not an original.

Wayne Woodrow Hayes was an original. He will be missed.

Woody Haze

NO

Speaking for sideline markers and, if I may be so presumptuous, camerapersons, reporters and an occasional student, no, we don't miss Woody.

For too many years, the Buckeye buffoon terrorized people and helpless inanimate objects. In the last few years, Ol' Woody was even known to punch himself in the face when he became frustrated at his not-too-frequently inept footballers.

How ironic it is that the ogre of the Olentangy escaped punishment for his escapades against defenseless sideline markers and other sideline fixtures only to be canned for slugging a fully-equipped, well-protected football player twice his size.

And talk about your poor losers, remember it was Hayes who blew the whistles so to speak, on our sacred Spartans for alleged recruiting violations after State topped his top-ranked Bucks in 1974. That loss was almost enough to give poor Woody another heart attack, although he found enough strength to give an MSU fan the back of his hand after that game.

Who can forget the 1977 game against Michigan when Hayes literally punched the lights out of an ABC cameraperson moments before OSU went down to ignominious defeat. They also couldn't go to the Rose Bowl that season.

Some people thought Woody was a good sportsman; unfortunately, he picked the wrong sport. Boxing is more his style.

Your letters welcome

This newspaper welcomes Letters to the Editor. We ask, however, that they be limited to 500 words and that they contain the signature, address and telephone number of the writer. JACK W. HOFFMAN'S COLUMN

Ever since the mother was in the hospital giving birth to the last of the upstart siblings, the father has been the target of abuse whenever he dons an apron.

Even the stove treats him unkindly. "You big lommox, the knob on the right is for the front right burner," someone fumes upon discovering the still cold kettle sitting next to the cherry red burner.

His excuse, "The stupid knobs ought to be labeled like hot and cold faucet handles," does little to evoke their sympathy.

Instead, they belittle his culinary talents. "Oh, oh," one of them squeals, "dad's in the kitchen again pretending he can make toast."

The tattle-tale brings her mother on the run. "I wish you would leave the kitchen. It took me a week to clean up your last mess."

"Nobody was complaining when they were gobbling down the mess," he counters.

"The only thing that did any gobbling was the disposal. Now get!"

The disrespect began that afternoon, moons ago when five kids, like hungry baby birds, waited with their mouths open as their father concocted his first kitchen experiment.

"See, I told you your grandma wouldn't have to come and cook for us. Your daddy can do the cooking," he reassured them while ladling out their lunch.

In truth, he was nervous. His only cooking experience was holding wieners over a campfire with a stick. So he had followed his parental instincts: Make it simple; pick something all of them will like, mix it with something less tasty but healthful, and serve it hot.

He had whipped it up in a jiffy soon after dropping off his pregnant wife at the hospital door.

"What is it?" they chorused.

"Ah, my little bumpkins, I call it 'Banana Cheese Delight,'" he replied. "Eat it all up. There's more, so you can have seconds."

They still giggle (or is it gaggle) over that meal 11 years later.

Even the 11-year-old, who hadn't even joined us yet, speaks of the occasion as if she were the star witness.

"There he is," she says, pointing out the father to her young friends. "He's the one who fried bananas and cottage cheese."

Readers Speak

Novi leaders face tough issues

Mr. Russell Button's letters to the editor are interesting and informative. His letter October 31 stating that The Novi News has the power "to appoint the Novi City Council by endorsing certain candidates who are elected by the new residents because they have no other source of information" is not quite true.

The Novi News does not have any outstanding record of endorsing candidates as Tuesday's election returns did prove. Both Mayor Roethel and Councilman Chambers were elected in spite of no endorsement from The Novi News. Councilwoman Karevich won election two years ago without the Novi News endorsement. Apparently all the residents do have other sources of information and use them effectively.

Mr. Button also indicates that "Novi lacks leadership." During the last six years that I have lived in and observed events in Novi, I did not perceive a lack of leadership. Our city government provides for a city council duly elected and selected from its residents. The city council is a group of amateurs directing the city and attempting to deal with professionals that far outnumber the council in time and resources. When I use the word "amateurs," I do not use the word with any derogatory or disrespectful connotations. I use the word words of pride and sense of accomplishment that is associated with Gold Medal Olympic winners, who are amateurs. But amateurs are seldom a match for specialized professionals in a match for service facilities and residents in Novi. Are there valid reasons that developers have been flocking into Novi in such great numbers because of genuine advantages such as location, available land, etc., or is the reason for the attraction the various subsidies the city offers developers in the form of open space ordinances, reduced lot-size options and sewer and utilities installations that the taxpayers initially underwrite.

There are many types of subsidies. Developers build the subdivision roads and the homeowners pay for them when they purchase their homes, but the useful life of the roads have been drastically decreased by the builders' construction vehicles during construction.

The excessive surface runoff and siltation that results from construction and that requires premature dredging of retention basins is another example of hidden subsidies. Does the city really recover the cost of inspection plus overhead cost from the fees they charge for permits, etc., or are they "giving away the store" because they want to keep the fees competitive with other communities?

Is the city in a position to provide adequate inspection in view of the high volume of inspection requirements or are some inspections neglected to the builders' advantage? Flatwork problems have existed for the past 10 years and property owners will ultimately pay for repair or replacement. And now the city is considering the EDC after once rejecting it. Will subsidies insure economic feasibility in the long run for sound growth and development, or does it just represent another big balloon payment in the near future for the property taxpayer? To quote a seldom-used phrase: "There are no easy solutions, only intelligent choices."

The City of Novi is going to need the wisdom of Solomon and untold manhours of effort to deal with the problems in the next few years. Mr. Button has over the years provided his input to the city, sitting on the other side of the council table. His example is worth emulating. Why is it that past city council members have a tendency to evaporate from the scene after they leave council? Why can't defeated candidates who were willing to commit their time and energy at the council table serve on the other side of the table to provide valuable input and assistance?

We know that the city council does listen and respects input during their decision making process. What better way for an aspiring council candidate to become qualified to run and not be wholly dependent on the endorsement of the newspapers.

Board member rapped for anti-millage stand

To the Editor:

In regard to the letter by Janet Callahan, Walled Lake School board member, withdrawing her support for the school millage and which has been widely circulated by "Citizens for Fair Taxation."

I consider Mrs. Callahan's reactions to the problem she was having with the superintendent inappropriate to the situation. I consider this last hour retraction to be deliberately planned to avoid rebuttal and I charge that it represents a breach of faith with the portion of the community that Janet Callahan was elected to serve and support.

If this millage goes down in defeat, I wonder what leadership she will exert and how effective she will be in responding to the needs of the schools.

As a teacher, I am burdened with the necessity for teaching both fifth and sixth grade students. I am doing my job and I charge that I have been accustomed to receive and buying from my own pocket some that I consider essential. Under these circumstances, I do not think it inappropriate that Mrs. Callahan be charged for the printing of back-dated board minutes. If she doesn't want to contribute to the school district funds, I can supply her with copies which she can take to Quick Copy.

Supporters thanked

To the Editor:

This letter is to thank from the bottom of my heart the 117 people who voted for me in the City of Walled Lake council election.

I am ashamed of the registered voters who made no attempt to vote.

Wrong judge named

Due to a reporter's error, it was incorrectly reported in the November 7 Walled Lake edition of The Novi News that the Walled Lake Eagles lawsuit against the City of Walled Lake was being heard by Oakland County Circuit Judge John N. O'Brien.

In fact, the jury trial, which started Thursday, is being heard by Oakland County Circuit Judge Francis X. O'Brien.

The Eagles are suing the city and Police Chief Wilford G. Hook for a total of $20,000 as a result of a police raid on the organization's clubhouse in March 1976 and the confiscation of beer, wine and alcoholic beverages at the then-licensed club.

The trial was scheduled to resume yesterday morning following the Veteran's Day recess.

Novi election winners state goals, objectives

The new council member added that the plan should be disseminated and discussed with the citizens.

Areas he feels should be included in this review include the city master plan, police and fire protection, budgetary process, capital improvements and land acquisitions, and financial systems and reporting.

In the future parks, building acquisitions and the levels of services needed should be considered, Chambers said.

He added that historically the city has used citizens' committees to evaluate the needs of the city and he hopes that tradition can be continued as the city evaluates other areas of concern.

Council member Martha Hoyer was re-elected to a four year council term with strong voter support citywide.

Hoyer also viewed planning as an important responsibility the council will face in her next term of office.

"The council will need to sit down and set priorities. One of my goals will be seeing that we put in order what we perceive to be the needs of the community for the next two to ten years," Hoyer said.

"We're not doing the pre-planning that has to be done. I'd like to see the city do a master plan which we can show to the people and let them know what we see for the future."

Such a plan should include priorities regarding sewers, water, and city buildings, Hoyer said.

"We need to be looking at issues such as whether the city will take over retention basins. It's time we started being progressive, rather than waiting until a mistake has been made and trying to correct it. We've never had time to do planning before, so it will be a big job."

Council Member Robert Schmid was the top voter getter in last week's council election. He was returned to office for a second four-year term.

During his next tenure in office Schmid said he will continue his commitment to retain the city's rural atmosphere while developing quality commercial development.

He said he hopes the city also will be able to develop a unique commercial community.

Based upon concerns expressed by residents, Schmid said he would like the council to look more closely into the activities of the parks and recreation department. He said he would recommend that long and short range goals be established for the department.

In conjunction with that Schmid indicated he would like to see Lakeshore Park on Walled Lake further developed.

"I would like to see Lakeshore Park become one of the finest parks in the tri-county area," Schmid said. "I would hope it can be developed and maintained exquisitely. It could become the center of attraction for Novi — a showpiece we are really proud of."

Encouraging greater citizen involvement in the community is another goal Schmid has set. He also said he hopes to work closely with the Chamber of Commerce in cleaning up the community.

"Novi has the distinction of not being well kept. Lawns and landscaping are just let go. I think with the help of the Chamber we can clean up the city and show it for the fine city it will be. We need to show a little more community pride," Schmid said.

pointed. This building would have provided a permanent and worthwhile home for those community services," he added.

Father Harding said in light of the present economic conditions it is understandable that the community center was defeated.

"I recognized the economy has question marks, especially for the auto industry and its subsidiaries. Increasing expenses and housing costs have raised insecurities and questions. In that way the defeat is understandable. But a building like that is not going to get any cheaper."

Emphasizing he could not speak for the entire community, Harding said despite the margin of defeat he would not like to see the building scaled down if it is returned to the voters.

"If we come back with a reduced project we will have something that is inadequate and will have to come back to the voters for more later," Harding said.

"The city needs to put up something that is good, and this is the minimum requirements for this city right now," Harding said. "It wouldn't be honest and I couldn't support it enthusiastically if we came back with something less. We would end up with something that looks pathetic."

Harding answered questions raised during the campaign regarding the racquetball courts proposed for the community center.

He said it was determined by the committee that the current parks and recreation usage could not sustain the building. After visiting other municipal complexes with successful racquetball courts, it was determined they would be a good method to offset the cost of operating the building, according to Harding.

The committee is scheduled to review the proposal this week.

Voters rejected the $2.85 million request which would have funded construction of a 340,000 square foot building on the municipal center site at Ten Mile and Taft.

The building was to have included two large multi-purpose rooms, two meeting rooms, a kitchen, four racquetball courts and various special activity rooms.

square feet you almost need 10 acres in order to get proper off-street parking and setbacks," he said. "If this particular commercial center can be accommodated, it will serve many of your commercial needs in that section of the city."

Sheldon said that he would present the proposed development plan to the planning board within the next couple of weeks. After city approvals have been received, it will take approximately five years to complete construction of the overall 100-acre site, Sheldon added.

He said a preliminary construction timetable calls for development of the single-family element in 1982-83, development of the multiple-family element in 1983-84 and development of the commercial element in 1984-85.

Novi students present 'Our Town'

"Our Town," the Pulitzer Prize winning classic of the American theater, will be revived on stage at Novi's Fuest Auditorium tomorrow night (Thursday).

The first performance is especially designed for junior high school students and their parents. The students have been studying the play and viewed a film version of the famous production earlier this month.

An allegory on life, "Our Town" has its setting at the turn of the century in a small town. Its greatest asset, according to director Joan Arrick, is that the play is capable of reaching beyond its location and time. It is viewed as the "grand dame" of the theater.

"It is the grand classic of the high school theater," commented the director. "It has a stature and grace that has made it the most popular of all productions."

Curtain time Thursday night is 7:15 p.m., one hour earlier than Friday and Saturday night performances. Tickets for the Thursday night performance also are offered at a reduced rate. Regular tickets, available at the door for the remaining performances, are tagged at $2 for adults, $1 for students and senior citizens.

The play has taken on an additional scope for many of the students. Investigating the dress and style of the time, students are also collecting the furniture of the time. "We are seeking realism for our stage settings," remarked Mrs. Arrick, thumbing through an early 1900 edition of the Sears, Roebuck catalog.

To coincide with the production, the director and her students have embarked on a project entitled "Our Town, Novi." Linking the two together, Mrs. Arrick hopes to correlate a display of memorabilia, furniture and pictures of bygone Novi in the foyer of the auditorium. "Hopefully it will be the beginning of the history of Novi," she added.

Peggy Daley has been cast as the stage manager. Unusual since the play usually goes to a male, the young lady takes the part of the narrator of the story, leading the audience through the plot as it unfolds.

Dan Kavanaugh takes the part of Dr. Gibbs with Debbie Morandy portraying Mrs. Webb. Her stage husband, Editor Webb, is played by Price Fritz. Karen Mooney takes the part of Mrs. Gibbs.

The play revolves around two young people, the center characters. George is portrayed by Tim Pope while Amy Reddewig plays Emily.

During the performance, Mrs. Arrick plans to introduce Novi people who qualify for the 20-plus Club, a group she organized through her local research. It is open to any Novi resident who has lived in the area for over 20 years.

Through her efforts, she hopes to spark an interest in the establishment of an historical group to preserve the beginnings of Novi in much the same way that "Our Town" has preserved the image of America's past.

Pegen Pritchard (left) as Helen and Sue Center as Annie in Western's production of 'Miracle Worker'

'Miracle Worker' coming at Western

"It's a play filled with realism in all respects," claimed Jacquelyn Plas, as she readied the Performing Arts Department at Walled Lake Western High School for their first presentation of the year.

That realism takes the form of fights, struggles and combat between its stars, Pegen Pritchard and Sue Center. The two girls are cast as Helen Keller and her mentor, Annie Sullivan, in the poignant story, "The Miracle Worker."

Both girls viewed a recent TV presentation of the play as they readied themselves for their roles. Both studied sign language, striving for a proficient degree to make their performances even more realistic.

Adding to that realism, Mrs. Plas added new staging techniques, going so far as to build a massive structure representing the Keller home. That structure will allow the audience to sit in the auditorium while having the action of the play brought within a few feet of the front row.

In addition, Mrs. Plas and her stage crew have investigated every possible detail to provide the authenticity needed to make the setting near to being the Keller home of 1886.

"Miracle Worker" will open tomorrow night, Thursday, with additional performances on Friday and Saturday.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. each night with requests for reserved seats available.

The fight to teach the deaf, blind, mute Helen includes her parents, portrayed by Lana Shew and Toby Stone. Helen's brother is played by Bill Sedlar, and Aunt Ev by Anna Giddings.

The cast is completed with appearances by Lise Avenmarg, Liz Bennett, Pam Dilcher and Jamie Leeny. Suzanne Pritchard, Becky Schuele, Scott Shaper, Shelly Sparks, Julie Stanley and Dave Taylor are also featured.

All tickets are priced at $3 and may be purchased from cast members or at the door before each performance.

Comedy inaugurates Central stage

Thursday will be an electric-charged night for drama students at Walled Lake Central High School.

Not only is it opening night for their first production of the season, but it is the first time they will face the audience from their own stage in the recently completed auditorium in the new wing of the high school.

Seating 400 in scarlet red seats, the auditorium has an ultra-modern stage. Technicians will work with the most up-to-date equipment.

Cherishing the stage and its surroundings, the students will present a Peg Kehret comedy, "Let Him Sleep 'Til It's Time For His Funeral."

Directing the light-hearted play is Cindy Galbraith, who has double cast the play for the two-night running. Ms. Galbraith, delighted with the new facility, said she viewed the medium-sized seating capacity as big enough to accommodate the crowd yet small enough for the "intimate" theater mood. "It certainly is a change from our cafeteria set-ups," she said some months ago.

"Let Him Sleep" is set in the modern day and revolves around a middle-aged couple who slide into the depths of depression as they consider growing old. Depression strikes Harold Dolefson, played by Jay Durrwachter, most deeply.

In an attempt to cheer him, his wife Edna, played by Kim Ross and Tamara Miller, designs a funeral for her husband so that he can see how much his family will miss him.

The story line is further complicated by a lack of funds, creating the comedy aspect of the play. Daughter Elizabeth, played by Margot Robb and Sue Ruggles, enters the picture as she and her mother unwittingly become contestants in the same money-making scheme.

Completing the cast is Dana Diachenko and Tracy Allen appearing as Millie Westmore. Roger Kurth and Rich Williams take the role of Russ Westmore.

The play will be staged again Friday night, November 16. Both productions begin at 8 p.m.

Advance tickets, available from members of the Drama Club or by calling the school at 624-1523, are priced at $1.50 for adults, $1 for students. Tickets at the door are $1.50 for all seats.

Lower turkey prices for holiday shoppers

Turkey prices this year should give holiday shoppers something to be thankful for.

"Wholesale turkey prices are lower than they were a year ago," says Allan Rahn of the Michigan State University Cooperation Extension Service. "Depending on how retailers handle these lower prices, consumers should pay less also."

The primary reason for the lower prices is the record number of turkeys produced this year. Production is up 11 percent over last year to 158 million birds. This increased production has resulted in a 13 percent increase in frozen turkey stocks over last year.

Another factor which might be helping to keep turkey prices lower is record pork production this year, Rahn said. Pork and turkey are generally considered interchangeable substitutes for higher priced beef. Therefore attractive pork prices help to keep turkey prices down.

One factor that may tend to boost turkey prices is increased turkey consumption. Per capita consumption is up about 11 percent this year.

The increase in consumption can be attributed to two factors. It reflects the attractive protein value of turkey and the availability of many new turkey products such as turkey hot dogs and lunch meats.

"It is difficult to predict all the ramifications of these factors, but holiday shoppers should be on the lookout for lower turkey prices than last year," Rahn said.

Artist to unveil new sculpture

The impact of Polish-born sculptor Marian Oczwarski on the students at Walled Lake Central High School will be felt Sunday as the artist unveils an abstract sculpture commissioned by the graduating class of 1979.

The highly polished stainless steel form is a far cry from the usual class gifts to the school, said humanities teacher Marilyn Kirk. She indicated the gift shows an interest level beyond the norm of usual student thinking.

Mrs. Kirk first introduced the artist to the student body last year through a unique one-man exhibition staged in the school library. A field trip, planned to the artist's studio at St. Mary's College in Orchard Lake, was cancelled due to a lack of funds.

Learning of the cancellation, Oczwarski offered to stage a special showing of a select cross-section of his works at the school.

Termed remarkable by staff members, that showing drew constant interest by the students and such favorable comments that the personable artist offered to conduct a one-day workshop to introduce the students to the art of working with stainless steel.

Following the workshop, class officers, although concerned with their possible lack of funds, made an initial inquiry to Oczwarski about a commissioned piece.

The artist allayed their fears and agreed to the project, saying he was delighted that he would be asked by the young people to do such a piece. Further showing their faith, the students left the choice of the creation in the hands of the artist.

That creation will be unveiled Sunday. In the abstract dimension, it will be placed on the rough, white stone walls of the new school auditorium.

Members of the graduating class as well as the artist and school officials will be on hand for the dedication ceremony scheduled for 2:30 p.m. A reception tea will follow the ceremony. The public also is invited to attend.

Local residents cited for pheresis donations

Several local residents were among more than 500 special donors honored by the Southeastern Michigan Chapter of the American Red Cross at the third annual Pheresis Recognition Reception recently.

Service awards were presented to Sverre Jorgensen and Harry Densmore of Novi, James Kenel and Nicholas Anthony of Walled Lake, James Lemay of Union Lake and Steven Koester of Wixom.

"Pheresis is an unusual kind of blood restriction," explained Dr. A. William Shafer, blood services director. "Instead of giving whole blood, as in regular donations, a pheresis donor gives a specific component of blood such as plasma, platelets or white cells."

A pheresis donation takes two or more hours. Blood is drawn from one arm and passed through a blood-separating instrument that separates and collects a single blood component.

Pheresis procedures are used to collect plasma (plasmapheresis), platelets (plateletpheresis) or white cells (leukapheresis). The remaining blood components, including the red cells, are returned to the donor. The body quickly replaces the component drawn in pheresis, normally within 24 hours.

Pheresis donations are used to benefit patients undergoing cancer therapy and those who have leukemia, aplastic anemia or other diseases which respond to this form of medical treatment.

Holiday Boutique set by Wixom historians

The eighth annual Wixom Holiday Boutique will open its doors Saturday offering patrons the opportunity to browse through booths offered by some of Michigan's finest craftsmen.

The annual event is the major fund raising project of the Wixom Historical Society and yearly draws a host of fine artists. The setting for the boutique is Wixom City Hall on Pontiac Trail, with hours set from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Original pottery, creative weaving and clever basketry are among the booths that will line the hallways and meeting room at the city center. Others will offer holiday decor, dried and silk flower arrangements, plants, jewelry and interesting wall creations.

The society will once again offer a perennial favorite, The Christmas Shoppe. Stuffed pillows, sweet grass hangings, Christmas ornaments and hand puppets, all handmade by society members, will grace the booth.

Name the bread and it will probably be available at the always popular Bread Shoppe. Big loaves, small loaves, specialty loaves may all be found in the booth supplied by the ladies of Highgate. In addition, homemade candy and small candy treats will be offered by the Friends of the Library, while Northridge ladies will host a pastry shoppe. Still in the food line, the Wixom PTO will offer light lunches.

Fine porcelain items, from jewelry to decorative pieces, will be available. Created by Wixom artist Eleanor Shisko, her work, especially in flowers, is some of the finest to be found.

Dolls, ceramics, knitting, crocheting, stuffed toys, ribbon wreaths and decorated gingerbread houses are additional booths offering the variety that makes a Christmas bazaar an enjoyable place to purchase holiday gifts.

In addition, the society will conduct a hourly raffle of items donated by participating artists. All funds earned through the day are used by the society to further programming and the Tiffin House restoration project.

In conjunction with the boutique, the Wixom Friends of the Library are offering an adorable cuddly baby doll. Drawing for the doll, complete with hand-quilted crib blanket and several outfits, will be conducted at the Boutique. The doll is currently on display in the society showplace at city hall.

Tickets at 50 cents each are available from the Friends of the Library and the Wixom Public Library.

A door donation of 25 cents is asked for admission to the delightful array of Christmas booths.

Syndicated columnist speaks at town hall

By JEAN DAY

Ever since, early in 1977, an executive editor of the Detroit Free Press thought there was "an audience out there" for Nickie McWhirter's voice, her observations and opinions have been challenging column readers four times a week.

Now syndicated in 85 newspapers in United States and Canada, her column won the top award for column writing from the Michigan Associated Press last year. This was only one of several citations.

Last Thursday Glenna McWhirter told a packed Northville Town Hall audience at the Plymouth Hilton Inn why she thinks the column has been so successful.

"One of the reasons, I think, is that we threw away the idea that the newspaper audience is comprised of those with a 10-year-old mentality."

Her aim has been to "challenge people to think." Her goal is not just to entertain.

"I have emotional responses and the feeling that I want to share them," she told her audience, saying she was susceptible to outrage against the absurd, unjust, irrational and the lazy.

As an example of the absurd, she cited a Clairol Company Christmas promotion of electric tweezers a couple of years ago.

"I feel sorrow and was saddened by the death of Chad Green in Mexico of leukemia. I'm sure his parents thought they were doing the right thing taking him there for treatment, but I'm saddened that they will carry to their graves the hint that they didn't do what was right."

"Don't dump more on them," she urged, mentioning that there had been talk of prosecution for taking the child out of the country.

She described her feeling of joy as she rose at 7 a.m. one morning last June to drive to Grand Rapids to attend her son's commencement at Grand Valley State College.

"I suddenly realized that these traditional rites of passage exert pressure on family members to think of this child. It's a celebration of blood and family."

Ms. McWhirter had written a column about that graduation day that struck a responsive chord with many readers. Last Thursday she also identified with many in her audience as she talked of her daughter's upcoming wedding December 1.

Her daughter and twin sons, as well as her divorce about eight years ago, have been a basis for column observations.

Questioned at the luncheon, she said that she and her husband, Ed McWhirter, had had a "Doris Day and Rock Hudson marriage for 20 years with never a single fight or argument."

Their concern during the divorce, she said, was to give minimal damage to the children. Her sons were high school seniors then and her daughter Suzanne was in college.

"What is my value system: what do I stand for? I don't know," she told her audience with the candor readers have come to expect.

"I have one constant: honesty. I believe honesty in relationships is the most important single thing we can try to teach our children."

"I see such a lot of dishonesty in marriage. There's the housewife who abides what she dislikes because she feels it's her duty."

"There's dishonesty in extramarital affairs. They cheat all parties involved. It's terribly unsatisfactory for the woman who can't dial him at 3 a.m. and say 'I can't sleep. Talk to me a while.' He lives with guilt and there's a part of himself that is not his to give."

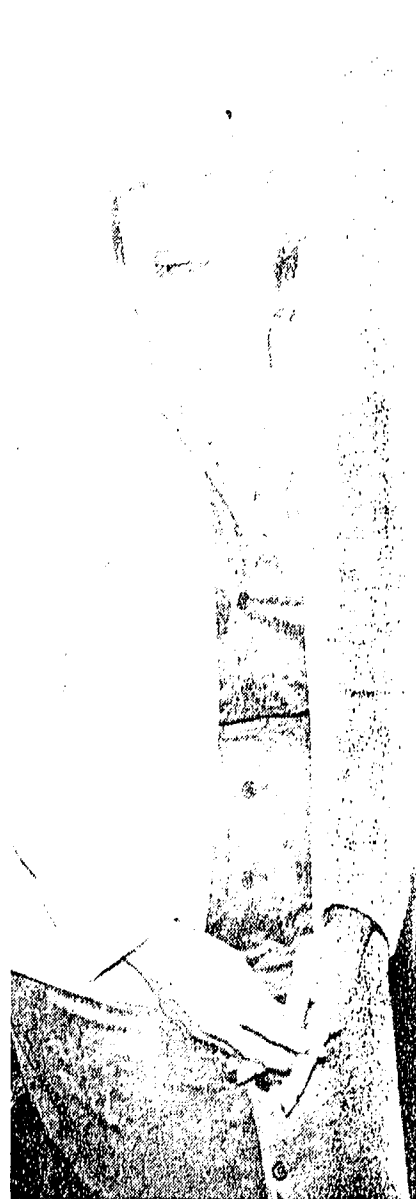

"With children we gloss over human sexuality. As a society we need to face up to what it is to be a sexual human and make sure our children understand and value it."

"We also don't share insecurities and fears with children. If the dog is ill, we can't seem to say, 'I really don't know what is going to happen.' We have to say it will be all right. And often it isn't. Then what do we say when the dog dies?"

The speaker continued that she feels honesty also is important in the world of work, noting that employers get a great deal of cheating today.

She added that she feels more honesty is needed in the Equal Rights Amendment discussions. "I advocate ratification. It's important not only to women but to men and society and the country."

She emphasized that in some states it still is illegal for a woman to own property. Such laws, she said, may have been passed in the past to protect women, but today they work against them.

However, she pointed out, if women want to be recognized as total human beings, they will have to give up some rights for others.

She observed that she felt women "have done a terrible job of raising sons. We tell them, 'don't cry' and then when they're grown we complain that they aren't demonstrative husbands."

In the new feeling of feminism, she believes it is important for a woman to feel "I will be strong," but it also is necessary for a man to be permitted to be weaker.

She suggested that everyone should have short and long-term goals.

"First and last, we have to be most accountable for ourselves," she declared. "We waste an awful lot of time dreaming, and, after all, time is life."

On self-love, she continued, "You can't love your neighbor, or your kids or the oak trees in your yard unless you love yourself first."

She defined this as having a good feeling about oneself and refusing to be exploited—as well as never exploiting others.

"To be a happy person you have to be honest about not living in boxes of others' creation; you need to shape your own."

Ms. McWhirter's training as an English major, with minors in philosophy, zoology and music from University of Michigan, comes through as she makes vivid allusions, such as that of "being boxed into roles of others' choosing," when she speaks and writes.

She's not an Ann Landers giving advice. She prefaces answers to questions with comments like, "I think" or "It seems to me."

Asked about adult children living with their parents, she observed that she feels about six months is long enough while the youngster saves up a rent deposit, adding that the child has much more respect for himself when he is independent.

Should a youngster living at home pay room and board? Usually only if it's needed to buy groceries, says Ms. McWhirter.

What would she do if a child were coming home intoxicated?

"If I thought he would be, I'd go to bed early and go right to sleep. It would be too embarrassing for him."

Nickie McWhirter mentioned that her own goals were to have a wider syndication of her column and to outline a novel.

Lottery's more popular than ever

By REID CRAGER

Certainly, we've all heard those time-worn sayings for as long as we care to remember. Familiar adages like "Money can't buy happiness" and "The best things in life are free" urge all of humanity to abandon money concerns and materialistic inclinations — even in these days of epidemic inflation.

But try telling that to anyone who has ever bought a Michigan State Lottery ticket.

Of course, not everyone who takes a shot at the lottery game is preoccupied with their financial situation. Some like the excitement and anticipation that accompanies the venture into the world of chance, while some, admittedly, are turned on by the idea of a potential "get-rich-quick" situation. Others say they haven't anything better to do with their money.

Regardless of the motivational factors involved, the lottery is more popular today than ever. Since its inception seven years ago, it has been responsible for some $725 million in monies deposited into the state's general fund budget. In addition, lottery officials estimate that ticket sales are up some 26 percent over last year, when receipts totaled approximately $410 million.

Michigan's lottery sweepstakes became a reality in August of 1972 when Governor William Milliken passed the lottery act, thus making the chance event an official entity. Milliken's action came three months after a state referendum in which voters chose by a two-to-one margin to allow the lottery. The first ticket was sold on November 13 of that year.

The 1972 decision made Michigan the seventh state in the country to adopt the lottery format. New Hampshire started the ball rolling in 1964 when it became the first lottery state, now the lottery is legal in 14 states. Vermont most recently joined the bandwagon a year ago.

Lottery officials say that these days, over $4 million in cash prizes are awarded each week. What's not given away goes, by law, into the general fund budget, where the state's elected representatives decide what to do with the money based on the popular choice of their respective constituencies.

Naturally, just where those funds should be allocated has been a source of continual debate throughout the years. According to Roger Clough, a State Lottery public relations official, the loudest cries for money have come from the field of education, although public sentiment has not yet been strong enough to dictate that all the funds go there.

"There have been attempts to fund- designate for education," Clough said, "but they've been unsuccessful in the past. Still, we're state employees and we'll go by the mandate of the people, whatever they decide."

As things stand now, education gets the largest chunk of the state's lottery funds, receiving 40 percent of the monies or over $1 billion per year. Social services programs are next on the state's money list, receiving 34 percent of the lottery total, and health and medical programs receive 10 percent of the funds to rank third.

The largest portion of the entire lottery pot (45 percent) goes to the winners, according to official tabulations. And, while a great majority of winners collect "small" prizes ranging anywhere from $5 to $50 some are fortunate enough to cash in on the dream of a lifetime.

One such individual is David Shepherd. A simple carpenter from rural Onsted, Shepherd enjoys the distinction of winning the largest cash prize in the history of the lottery. Playing the Instant Game, he was awarded $1.89 million in January, 1978 at the ripe old age of 22.

However, contrary to the popular notion that sudden wealth automatically changes people, Shepherd's lifestyle has stayed the same in the three-years plus since his good fortune. He still calls Onsted home, has the same job and even "goes to coffee" with the same people. Oh, he may have built a new two-story home with the winnings, but reports indicate that he's still the same old David Shepherd.

Surprisingly, the Shepherd case seems to represent the rule rather than the exception. According to Clough, "most big winners, we've found, have no drastic changes in their life or lifestyles. They do things like put money aside for their kids' educations, add a few home improvements, or maybe buy a new car. But we find that very few of the big winners wind up quitting their jobs and taking off on some expensive cruise or something like that."

Clough also enjoyed recounting the tale of Hermus Millsaps, a 53-year-old Taylor resident employed as a Chrysler woodworker when he won the state's first million-dollar drawing in 1973.

The colorful, guitar-playing Tennessee native — who by Clough's account had purchased a 29-cent lucky rabbit's foot shortly before his new found millionaire status — apparently traveled by bus with his wife to Lansing for the purpose of collecting his money, since his car was broken and he'd had no money for repairs.

Poor Hermus. He got his check all right, but then discovered that he had no cash with which to hail a taxi to get back to the bus station. Somehow he made it back to his modest home, though, and won a $1,000 lottery check four years later.

Most recent reports indicate that Millsaps still resides in that simple Taylor frame home. He did, however, spurge for a new television set with his winnings — bought on installment payments, of course.

Then, on the last day of October this year, 74-year-old Joseph James Frolich continued what Hermus Millsaps started by becoming the state's most recent million-dollar winner. And like

Lottery officials say more than $4 million in cash prizes are awarded each week

Millsaps, Frolich also hails from Taylor.

With the incredible number of lottery participants, such coincidences aren't that hard to find. Still, every once in a while there comes along a lottery happenstance that simply defies logical explanation, as Clough explained.

"We had our bicentennial game in 1976, selling tickets at five dollars apiece with the top prize being $1 million," he said. "There was a drawing in October of 1976 where the winning number was picked. We then publicized that number all over the place — in the papers, the radio, everywhere."

"But three months went by, and the big prize still hadn't been claimed," he continued. "Finally, in February of 1976, a two-man lottery club claimed their prize after all that time."

"The strangest part of it all, though, was when we found out that these bicentennial winners lived in Concord Green Village on Paul Revere Street. They'd bought 13 tickets — one for each of the original 13 colonies — and won on the 13th ticket."

Oddly enough, Clough said that lottery "clubs" such as the above had enjoyed notable lottery success, particularly in becoming repeat winners.

He cited the example of a Kalamazoo club called Mursch's Breakfast that has won three times, most recently collecting $200,000. Another club, the AC Six from Flint, won the sum of $205,000 twice in the same year.

Lottery clubs have reportedly become more popular in the state recently, especially since chances of winning increase in direct proportion to the number of members. However, such clubs must be registered as such with the State in order to collect, Clough said.

The advantages of being a club member are especially evident in light of a December, 1977 Detroit News survey, which found that the average individual ticket purchaser only spends five dollars per week or less on the lottery. So there just may be safety in numbers if you've got nothing against dividing up the winnings.

Other times one has no choice but to divide the jackpot. Because while no state or local taxes must be paid on any lottery winnings, 20 percent in federal taxes have to be paid on any amount over $5,000.

Still, that should leave the happy winner(s) with enough left over to buy a number of things — even if happiness isn't one of them.

2-C—SOUTH LYON HERALD—BRIGHTON ARGUS—NORTHVILLE RECORD—WALLED LAKE-NOVI NEWS—Wednesday, November 14, 1979

GILBERT V. KINSLER

GILBERT V. KINSLER of Walled Lake has been named district manager for the Welcor, Inc. Oak Park office in the northeast section of Oakland and Macomb counties.

He will be responsible for selling and distributing Minolta copiers. He is an 11-year resident of Oakland County and a graduate of Denby High School with two years at Wayne State University.

Before joining Welcor, Kinsler was a senior sales counselor with Real Estate One in Farmington Hills and also was employed for 25 years as a detective sergeant in the Detroit Police Department.

He is an avid classic car collector, bowler and jogger. He and his wife Peggy have three children: Cindy, Linda and Mark.

DAVID P. PORTA, Brighton, has qualified as a member of the 1979 Star Club of New York Life Insurance Company. The Star Club is composed of New York Life agents who achieved significant sales records in 1978-79, according to General Manager Fred E. Rogers, CLU of the company's Northland-Detroit general offices.

REPRESENTATIVES FROM Michigan National Bank—West Oakland made a special visit to the Happy Hour Day Care Center in Walled Lake recently to present the children with cookies and balloons and give the youngsters a chance to meet some "real, live clowns."

The visit was held in conjunction with Michigan National Bank's grand opening celebration of its new branch offices in Wolverine Lake Village and Highland Township. The visit also marked the introduction of personal service banking at all branch offices.

MNB-West Oakland spokesperson Jane Bevin explained that "personal service banking" is designed to increase convenience for the customer.

"All our tellers have been trained to be personal service bankers," she said. "As a result of the special training they have received, they will be able to handle all transactions except loans. Since our customers can transact just about all their business without having to go from office to office, desk to desk, there should be a significant savings in time and improvement in services."

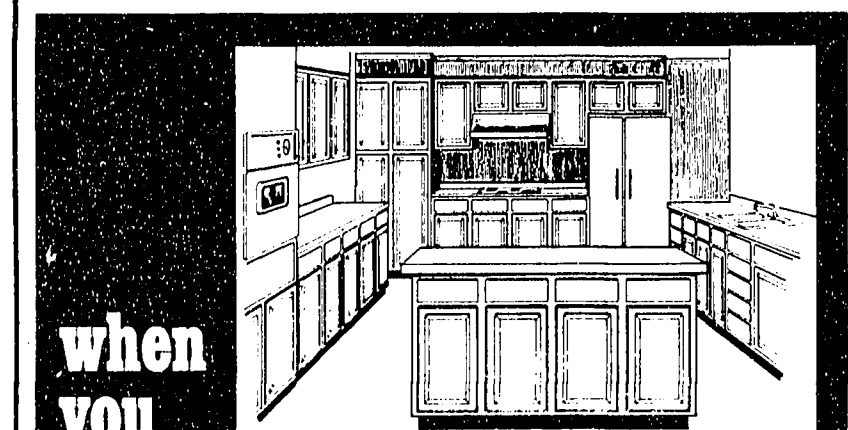

PAT ROBINSON, a Brighton resident who is president of Global Mobile Homes, has been re-elected to the 1979-80 board of directors of the Michigan Manufactured Housing Institute (MMHI).

The MMHI is the state-wide association of mobile home park owners, dealers, manufacturers and suppliers.

Robinson, whose company is headquartered in Livonia, has offices throughout Michigan. In the industry for 12 years, he has been active in MMHI affairs including the chairmanship of the dealers' advisory committee.

Robinson resides at 1249 Long Lake Court, Brighton.

JOHN BOSCH (L), PRESIDENT OF THE MICHIGAN ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS, PRESENTS PLAQUE TO SALLY NOEKER OF BRIGHTON.

THE LIVINGSTON COUNTY BOARD OF REALTORS has chosen Realtor Sally Noeker as the recipient of its "Realtor of the Year" award. She represented the board at the Michigan Association of Realtors' quarterly meeting in October at the Renaissance Center in Detroit.

Mrs. Noeker, the 1979 president of the Livingston County board, was selected for her many contributions to the board, as well as to her family and community. She has served on many committees, was the first woman president of the board in 1969 and will serve her third term as president in 1980.

Her years in real estate, the past three as associate broker and manager of the Brighton branch of Crandall Realty, Inc., and the fact that she has lived for the past 40 years in the Brighton area, have given her the knowledge and experience to serve on the Brighton City Planning Commission and the Brighton Tomorrow Committee.

Noeker and her husband, Jim, have five children and three grandchildren.

ON THURSDAY, November 15, National Bank of Detroit will celebrate the official grand opening of its new Novi office located at 43100 Grand River Avenue.

During the celebration, a cash donation will be presented to the City of Novi that will go toward the purchase of a new intercom system to be used in the Novi City Hall.

The new full-service office features four drive-in banking lanes expandable to six, eight inside teller stations, safe deposit boxes, a night depository and an Instant Loan Center incorporated in the facility.

The new branch has fifty percent more interior space, with an additional 575 square feet in the bank lobby and a larger customer waiting area in the management section. The parking area of the branch can accommodate 123 vehicles.

Lobby hours for the Novi office are 9:30 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 9:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. on Friday. Drive-in hours are extended, 8:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. daily and 9:00 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday. Hours for the new Instant Loan Center are 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 9:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. on Friday.

PAWL INVENTIONERING CORPORATION of Walled Lake has announced the "Windstar," a recently patented windmill design that has achieved a rated power coefficient of .54 in a 12 mile-per-hour wind.

The "Windstar" is 1 1/2 to two times more efficient than present commercially available windmills and constitutes a major breakthrough in windmill technology.

The "Windstar" is a horizontal axis type windmill, as are the traditional American farm windmills. However, the blade arrangement is of a new type known as a helical multi-blade. The windmill blades are set in helical fashion about the shaft and derive maximum power from the wind much like a flapped airfoil achieves superior lift at low speeds on airplanes. The various diameters of blade pairs along the shaft provide further velocity augmentation.

The "Windstar" boasts patents not only on the unique blade arrangement but also on the uniquely functional triangular airfoil section of the blades. The design work has been entirely privately funded.

Hidden Happiness

A touch of Autumn—
A warm donut bite
Absorbed while the sun
Throws its invisible sweater
Across my shoulders
As I emerge, and glance
To right and left, I must Share the exuberance
Of this maternal caring,
Remaining kindnesses
That won't repeat
Earlier awakening doubts.

F. A. Hasenau

Moments

Moments we shared Moments we cared Moments I loved,
That were always there
And now, moments are few
Of me and you.
But I will always remember
The moments of us two.

Sharon McDonnell

Trees

Trees are of oldest time.
They live long through the eternal seasons... living through all the sun rain and snow
one might wonder if they contain a soul...
for we will always be the younger of trees.
Only if somehow...
somehow we can retain the stability of they...
throughout the seasons of the heart.

Patricia Kotlarczyk

Inner Sphere

Over paradise row, where the dream precinct subsists, just under sleep, after dark...
your duplicate drifts.

Margaret O'Brien

The Forest

Early in the morning
When dew is still fresh
And moss still wet
Sun plays its game
Of peek-a-boo with trees
That hide-and-seek the clouds.
Ferns seem to weep
Because they think They're too small...
Then birds call—
Deer and chipmunk
Run when twigs snap
As wind rustles the leaves.

John Hasenau, Age 10

Wind Wand

I wonder why the leaves don't fall?
They shake the whole day through.
Mother Nature must have used
Some especially sticky glue.

F. A. Hasenau

Daybreak

I sat by the lake to say a prayer,
It is so calm and peaceful there
At the break of dawn, as nature wakes
To the call of a loon ere sunlight breaks.

This, in essence is life in truth—
To meditate midst nature's way,
And find therein a calm to soothe
The waters of another day.

Charles E. Hutton

Death Kiss

Softly flowing
Ever changing color
Bowing and bending
With each passing breeze.

Autumn comes
Bringing brisk crispness,
Tingling refreshment,
A greeting before death.

Reaching people is the goal of all forms of advertising... some are successful and some are not. But of all forms of advertising available, only one has the distinction of being able to consistently reach those people who are ripe for responding to the advertiser's message. This, of course, is the Classified Advertising section of your newspaper. Why? Because, the Classified section is aimed at a pre-sold audience... people read the Classified Ads because they are already in the market to buy! It isn't necessary to convince them that they should buy a home or an automobile or rent an apartment, or look for a job or engage the services of an electrician... they are already convinced of their need... what they want is someone who can ANSWER that need.

It is also the only people-to-people medium that is available to every member of the community! Individuals turn to the Classified Ads every day to buy or sell items ranging from pets to power mowers and bicycles to motor boats. And the Classified section is the only place they can reach so many people at such a low cost.

So if you're a businessman or an individual who wants to reach out and pick people who are ripe for your messages, put that message in the Classified Advertising section of this newspaper.

Fall to Stevenson

Central girl cagers knocked from race

By REID CREAGER

Walled Lake Central Girls' Basketball Coach Ken Butler isn't the type of man who'll let a couple of losses get him down.

Oh, sure, the veteran Viking mentor digests his defeats with difficulty. Especially when his team gets knocked out of title contention, as it did in Thursday's 40-36 loss at the hands of Livonia Stevenson.

But it's Butler's feeling — and perhaps, rightly so — that the best is yet to come for his young group. After all, losing games by margins of one point and four points to the Inter-Lakes Conference champs is certainly no disgrace.

"The girls certainly gave it everything they had," Butler said following the hard-fought Thursday afternoon game. "I told 'em they had nothing to be ashamed of, that next year the other teams will be chasing us."

"When the season started, no one gave us a chance," Central's boss continued. "Everyone thought we were going to get blown out, especially against the non-conference opponents we had to face. But we haven't been embarrassed once, except for the Farmington game (a 57-34 loss, suffered October 25)."

Ironically, a pivotal point in Central's second 1979 loss to Stevenson occurred with just two seconds remaining in the second half. The Vikings led by a point at that juncture — only to break for intermission down by four points.

The big point swing began when a Stevenson player sank a basket, was fouled in the process and then sank the two charity tosses she was awarded. To top it off, Butler was assessed a technical foul on the play, and the winning Spartans had netted a quick five.

Undaunted by the sudden turn of events, the Vikings battled Stevenson on even terms right down to the 1:30 mark in the fourth quarter, when the Livonians went into a four-corner delay offense. Central then had to foul 'in order to get the ball back, and that was all she wrote.

Although Butler obviously wasn't enthralled by the caliber of officiating he witnessed, the calm Viking leader would offer no excuses for his team's loss.

"You just can't say that the officials stole the game from you," he said. "If we'd had just converted a couple more shots along the way, it would've been our hallday. But Stevenson's got a good team. They played well."

It should be noted that the Vikings played well also. Central committed only 13 turnovers throughout the evening, and came up with nine steals and five blocked shots. Caryn Lamb had two of those blocked shots, adding nine rebounds and nine points as well. Wendy Keely tossed in 10 for Central.

Still, the locals continued to misfire from the floor, as their 11-for-63 field goal total would indicate. Central had suffered the same malady two nights earlier in a 55-47 loss to Plymouth Canton, hitting on just 20 of 62 tries. And it didn't help that the home team converted only six of 13 free throw tries.

"Free throw shooting definitely made the difference," Butler said of that contest. "I don't know what they shot, but it was much better than what we did from there."

Besides, Canton's got a lot of depth, and they're exceptionally fast," the Central coach continued. "And they've got decent size, along with playing a tight man-to-man (defense). But most importantly, they're physically tough. You'll find that West Bloomfield, Canton, Salem, Milford, Mercy — all the really good teams — are very physical. We just haven't reached that point yet."

As has been customary for Central this season, it was right in the thick of things throughout most of the contest. The two teams had battled to a 25-all tie at the half before the Vikings grabbed a two-point margin entering the final quarter.

But the shots just wouldn't fall for Central, and the enemy nudged ahead by three points late in the hallday. Butler's squad then got a look at yet another four-corner set-up and, consequently, another tough defeat.

Offensive stars in that encounter were Keely, who tallied 19 points, and Amy Rembisz. Butler called his 6'0" center "dominating" on that occasion, as she had nine points and 12 rebounds. The victory was the 14th straight for Canton.

With the season nearing its curtain call, Central will now hope to finish the slate on a winning note as it takes on Milford Lakeland tomorrow (Thursday) at Plymouth Salem Tuesday. The Vikes will host both games.

Wildcats fall in two cage tilts

Detroit Lion coach Monte Clark could take lessons in motivation from Novi girls' basketball mentor Connie Ahrens. With her team mired amidst a less than successful 2-13 season, Ahrens hasn't given up the struggle for victory. In fact, to listen to her, you would think her team was 13-2.

"As long as the kids are having fun and enjoying the game then they are not really losers," Ahrens said. "They haven't quit and they haven't given up. Overall, I think the competition in this league is much more intense than I ever anticipated. The level of skill and talent is much greater than I had expected."

"That's not to say that losing doesn't bother her. She just believes that there is more to the game of basketball than winning or losing. Her players are learning with each game and show signs of improved skills after every contest. These factors, and the presence of team unity are the most important considerations for Ahrens. Winning will happen eventually, but win or lose, the important aspect is how you play the game."

Last week the Wildcats played their fourth game, a 58-38 contest to Pinckney and then played what Ahrens called her team's best game of the season in losing to Milan 60-50.

Against Pinckney, Novi ran into the double buzz saw combination of Janeen Wiltsie and Shelly Darrow. They scored 20 and 20 points, respectively. Novi managed 15 points from guard Lori Giorgio and 13 from forward Tracy Sobkow.

But the two were shackled by fouls for most of the game and couldn't play with full abandon. In fact, Sobkow eventually fouled out of the game, and Giorgio had to play most of the fourth quarter with the spectre of four fouls hanging over her.

What Ahrens needs most on her team is a more balanced attack. With Giorgio and Sobkow shouldering most of the load, the Wildcats' team is vulnerable to a double foul of one of the two, or both, get in foul trouble, as they did against Pinckney. The balance that Novi needs was displayed against Milan later in the week. The loss wasn't as much a result of poor play as it was a result of poor officiating, according to Ahrens.

"We were up by 10 points and the refs took the game away from us," Ahrens said. "We only took seven players. We were ahead and then, all of a sudden, our starters all had three or four fouls on them. They couldn't play their game then, because we didn't have a bench to go to."

Sobkow sat out half the third and fourth quarter and Giorgio fouled out in the fourth period. "Milan had 14 fouls called on them in the first half and we went into the locker room with a lead. Then in the second half the refs shifted and didn't call a thing on Milan but hit us with 11 fouls. After the game the Milan coach even said he thought the refs blew it," Ahrens said.

Novi led 19-18 after the first quarter and then 32-20 at the half. But the third quarter proved to be disastrous for the Wildcats as Milan outscored them 20-6. The fourth quarter was a bit more even, as Novi scored 12 points to Milan's 14.

The balance that Novi needs was displayed as Kathy Lowry scored 10 points and hauled down 10 rebounds. The senior hurt her ankle and will miss the remainder of the season for the Wildcats.

Giorgio scored 10 points for Novi. Junior point guard Maryann O'Brien gave the best performance of her varsity career as she pumped in 17 points and ran the Novi offense.

Novi has two regular season contests left on its schedule. The Wildcats were to have played Howell last night, but results weren't available at press time. Next week, on Tuesday, the Novi squad will travel to Hartland for a 6:15 contest.

"One thing is for sure," Ahrens said, "and that's that if anything could go wrong, it has this season."

Here, there and everywhere... Another autumn has come and gone, and it won't be long before local teams will be preparing for winter in their respective sports. But it wouldn't be right to delve into the activities of the coming months without looking back on the highlight of an exciting fall season.

Unfortunately, the most dramatic autumn confrontation for a Novi or Walled Lake school resulted in a loss. On a wet, cold, foggy and all-around miserable first Saturday in October, it was Walled Lake Western succumbing to Farmington Harrison's football squad in three overtimes. The final was 13-7.

As it turned out, the Warriors couldn't have come closer to beating Harrison that day. During the second overtime, Western was in the proverbial driver's seat with a second down on Harrison's half-yard line.

Somehow, though, it just didn't seem in the cards for the men of Chuck App to win this particular game. The Warriors ran into some Farmington brick in their attempt to push the ball over the goal line, then watched their season literally slip away when a field goal attempt slid off the tee.

Given new life, Harrison then broke through for a score in the third OT and Western saw its dream for a Western Six championship shattered.

Instead of playing out the string, however, the Warriors displayed plenty of pride and even more class by finishing the season with a vengeance. They seemed to peak at season's end, in fact, methodically ripping apart opposing defenses for 145 points while winning their last four games.

WALLED LAKE CENTRAL'S golf team enjoyed a similar dominance, although the Vikings managed to put it together for an entire season. Gerry Chapple's linksters started strong and never let up, finishing with an 11-1 dual match record. But the coup de grace came October 12, with Central out-shooting 18 other teams for the 1979 regional championship.

NOVI'S FALL HIGHLIGHTS included an abrupt about-face by the Wildcat football team, late as it was. John Osborne's crew duplicated the feat pulled off by Walled Lake Western, capturing its final four games. Also like the Warriors, Novi had edged out earlier in a key conference battle when South Lyon won a 7 decision September 21.

In addition, girls' swimming became a part of Novi High School sports, with the tankers securing their first-ever victory September 27. Ironically, as swimming came to Novi, it left Walled Lake. Both Western and Central had to drop their tank squads as a result of a millage defeat, leaving swimmers there much like a fish out of water in the fall and also this winter.

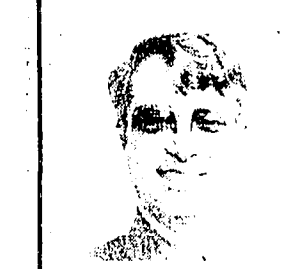

Still looking ahead, you've got boys' basketball, wrestling, gymnastics, volleyball and more in just a few weeks.

And more highlights.

Proper warm-up good for skiers

Dave Prokop, in Training For Nordic Skiing, lists some of the strength exercises that can be done with weights. For upper body strength (chest, triceps and deltoids), the bench press; for back and arm strength, the bent rowing exercise (toes near bar, feet shoulder-width apart, knees straight, back straight, hips flexed, hands gripping bar shoulder length apart, palms facing backward, lift bar to lower chest area by bending elbows and pulling bar upward, lower); for abdominal strength, sit-ups; for leg strength, front leaning wall squats (position feet two feet from wall, shoulder-width apart, lean forward, placing hands on wall at shoulder height. Bend elbows and lean forward until head is three inches from wall. Keeping hands stationary on wall and head three inches from wall, flex knee and squat until the angle of knee bend is 90 degrees, then straighten leg and return to starting position. Always keep head three inches from wall. Do four sets of 20 repetitions alternating legs. Use knapsack with weights or rocks for increased resistance.)

"Most cross-country skiers are in good shape year round just because they are the sort of people who like to keep active," Claudia Rast, a cross-country instructor said. "To strengthen your legs, bicycling is super. A lot of people don't realize that a good deal of propulsion comes from the arms as well as the legs. Jumping jacks, use of door pulleys and push-ups are a good way to strengthen the arms. Balance is also a big thing to consider. You can try standing on a chair and while lifting one leg up and dipping down with all of your weight on the other, as well as making other motions with your free leg. This is a good way to develop balance."

For some, Nordic skiing is just a fad, another way of being a part of a group. To others, it is an escape from the claustrophobic confines of the city. But to those like Rast, people who enjoy the sport because of the inner feelings produced while participating in it, Nordic skiing is something more than a fad or an escape. It is art. "Cross-country skiing is very fluid," Rast said. "When done by one who has good technique and balance, who knows how to flow, it is very much like ballet."

Wildcat of the Week

Although her team dropped two games last week, Novi basketball player Maryann O'Brien was picked as this week's Wildcat of the Week. The senior point guard popped in 17 points in a 60-50 loss to Milan last week.

Can-Am battle set

National pride will be at stake on Monday night, November 19, 1979, as the 3rd Annual International Border Driving Championship opens at Jackson's Action at Northville Downs.

A unique event, the championship consists of head to head competition between the top four drivers at the Jackson-Northville meet and the winners of Windsor Raceway, just across the border in Canada.

The action will consist of eight races, four at each track. First battle will take place at Jackson-Northville, with the final taking place at Windsor Raceway the following Sunday, November 25.

Representing Windsor Raceway will be William Gale, Ken Hardy, Kelly Sheppard and Ross Roselle. Wally McMurray, Keith Crawford, Tom Harmer and Carl Putnam, Jr. will represent the American drivers.

Harmer, always amongst the leading drivers at any meet in which he participates, was the leading dash winner at the currently completed Hazel Park meet. The defending dash champion at Jackson-Northville, Harmer picked up right where he left off as he is once again atop the drivers standings.

McMurray is also a familiar face to local harness fans. He participated in last year's event, being designated "captain" because of his enthusiasm and experience. His efforts paid off as the locals beat their foreign counterparts to win the championship. The victory was especially rewarding since it made up for the loss of the year before.

Crawford also was chosen for his aggressiveness on the track. Always one to be "out and going," Crawford is once again rated in the top five in the drivers stats.

The only newcomer to the field, Carl Putnam, Jr., fits right in with his-

Warriors cited again

Post-season honors keep on coming for Wallied Lake Western Running Back sensation Angelo Buttazzoni — and you can bet that there's more to come.

The record-setting Warrior junior was cited in Sunday's Detroit Free Press as a second team offensive choice on that publication's All-Suburban Team. That followed news last week that Buttazzoni had been named to the All-Western Six Conference squad, along with teammates Rob King, Paul Terrill, Carlo Castiglione, Randy Shell and Scott Parrish.

Buttazzoni broke the following Western records in 1979: most yards in one game (286); most yards in one season

(1,101); most yards in a career (1,380); and most touchdowns in a game (four, which tied a club mark). He had two 200-yard rushing games and four 100-yard outings.

Parrish, a defensive tackle who also excelled for the Warriors, was named to an honorable mention spot on the Free Press squad.

Cross-country skiing has become one of Michigan's most popular winter activities century by repairing tombstones — some as much as 50 years old — and possibly erecting a plaque repairing stones damaged by vandals. The City Manager, William C. Sherry, and Police Chief William G. Hook were referred to vandalism problems at the cemetery. In the past, and suggested that a fence or gate should be erected. City Manager Peter Finnerud did not want the cemetery to be a "tourist attraction" and the cemetery would not be enough to complete the project. The council decided at that time not to take action.

Lakshari said that while some children may be "vandalizing" the cemetery, she said that in the century, he doesn't believe vandalism is a major problem in the city-owned facility, located on Pomac Trail near Ladd Road.

City approves new ordinances

The Wakefield City Council last week adopted three multi-tier related ordinances and approved changes in the format of the proposed codification of city ordinances.

New ordinances approved November 5 adopted the 179 Building Officials and Code Administrators International (BOCA) Building Code, building, plumbing and fire prevention. The measures will take effect 30 days after adoption. In addition, the council approved changes to the code upon publication under provisions of the charter.

City Attorney Richard J. Peasham and Clerk Mary Ann O'Connell are currently reviewing the paper for the codification book in order to simplify language and keep the document up to date.

Originally, the code book was supposed to be printed on six- by nine-inch paper, but the cost of publication and the use of eight one-half by ten inch paper was deemed more economical.

The council approved the $360 project two years ago in order to compile and cross-index all city's more than 20 ordinances. Parker said he expects the new code book to be available in the larger paper and new ordinances for the code would be added as they are passed.

Twenty copies of the code will be made available for sale to the public at a price of $10 each. Twenty copies of the code will also be made available for sale to use by the public.

Peasham said the code is at the printer's and ready for publication.
