TWENTY-FIVE CENTS

The Marcellus-Jacobs generator being examined by Jill Mullendore soon will provide power to light their home.

From wind power to electricity

The 70-foot tower rising over the Mullendore home on Nine Mile is more than the realization of a dream; to them it represents an extension of their entire lifestyle.

A Marcellus Jacobs wind generator is to be hooked atop the tower, transforming nature's power into electrical power to light the Mullendore home.

For Jill and Daniel Mullendore that means reducing their dependence on Detroit Edison and doing a little something for themselves.

"This has been a hangup of mine," says Daniel Mullendore. "When I was in fifth grade we were studying coal mines and I remember this terrible concern about what would happen when we used up all the coal."

"Of course I had no concept of how much coal the country had, but then I relearned the rural community of the country survived for years on wind electric power. To me using a constantly renewable resource for power just seemed logical."

His interest in wind generators caused him to wince as he watched others who believed in the use of renewable resources taking the antique systems and "butchering them."

Many people have installed the systems because of their beliefs, but really do not know how to maintain the systems, he explained.

Mullendore decided to install his own system and operate it in the manner for which it was designed.

Under the Mullendore system, power is generated when the wind blows. That power is stored in 60 two-volt batteries in the Mullendore basement. Once the installation of the system is complete, turning on the lights will draw electrical power from the batteries.

Batteries will be recharged the next time the wind blows.

A dual system will be installed in the home to allow a choice between power from the batteries or Detroit Edison. The system is designed to prevent both power sources from being turned on at the same time.

Mullendore hopes the system will generate 500 kilowatts of power a month so he will be able to run the lights in the house.

He explained it takes a wind blowing steadily for one hour to generate three kilowatts of power and the average home uses 1,000 kilowatts of power each month. Power winds blow only a few days a month—usually during storms.

When the Mullendores moved into their home four years ago, they anticipated the possibility of using a wind generator in the future and the light switches were wired with that in mind, Mullendore said.

They then began a search for batteries to be used in the system. A telephone company scrap dealer came through with the batteries.

Mullendore then went to his neighbors to seek support for the venture. They did not oppose a 70-foot tower in their neighborhood and he proceeded to get the necessary approvals from city officials.

Like the old barn raising parties in the past, the Mullendores called on their friends and neighbors for a tower raising earlier this month. They got an overwhelming response. About 120 people turned out to help put the tower in place.

A steady supply of beer and lemonade, with the music of five banjos, one guitar and a piano player sustained the group as they worked from 11 a.m. to dark.

The Mullendores are hoping to repeat the success of the tower raising when they place the generator atop the tower September 15.

"Now that we have the tower up, there's nothing left standing in our way to make this a reality," says Mullendore.

Schools seek mediation for teacher talks

BULLETIN

Novi teachers have voted by a margin of 10 to one that if a contract settlement has not been reached they will not return to work as scheduled September 5. In a membership meeting of the Novi Education Association Tuesday night, current table positions were discussed. Following a motion from the floor, the teachers voted "no contract — no work."

"The teachers understand we are still in the bargaining process," NEA negotiator Cell Carter said. "They also understand the issues and said they have given us a position and instructions from the beginning. Now, with this vote, they have said they will support their bargaining team."

With seven days left before the opening of school, contract talks between the Novi teachers and school board have been declared at an impasse by the board's chief negotiator. The two groups will go into mediation today.

During a meeting a week ago, which the teachers had deemed critical in settling the contract, a round of offers and counter offers were exchanged. The school board team then returned to the table with a request to enter mediation.

"It appeared we were at loggerheads on everything," explained Dr. William Barr, the board's chief negotiator. "We didn't see any movement. They didn't drop some things we thought they should and we weren't adding."

He explained the school board negotiating team suggested a mediator be brought in so the contract can be settled before Labor Day.

"The state makes this service available and we thought we ought to avail ourselves of all possible solutions," Barr said.

Members of the teacher's team indicated they had heard prior to the session that the board might call in a mediator, but were stunned when it actually happened.

"We made an honest counter to their offer and moved in all positions," said NEA negotiator Cell Carter. "There was not a single area in which there wasn't a little giving. Negotiations are a game of compromise and when they returned to the table with the response of 'current contract language in every article, but one subsection of one article' then said 'this is all we can do or will do unless you do more we'll call in a mediator.' We were clearly disappointed."

The teachers viewed the board's request as a demand to make a counter offer to the counter offer the teachers had just proposed, and the talks broke down.

The two teams will sit down with Leon Cornfield from the Michigan Employment Relations Commission of the Department of Labor to discuss the unresolved issues of the contract.

Major unresolved issue at this point include class size, salaries and fringe benefits. Here is a breakdown of the latest table positions in each of the unresolved areas.

Class Size

SCHOOL BOARD: has maintained its position that the current contract language setting class size maximums at 27 should be retained. They point out the district has always tried to maintain low teacher-pupil ratios and has gone to great lengths to do so.

The board maintains that reducing class size maximums may not be a financial burden to the school district at this point, but could create a problem in the future if classroom space becomes limited.

It also offered that teachers in the lower elementary grades, whose enrollment exceeds 27, be paid $75 per student per semester pro-rated on a daily basis.

TEACHERS: Dropped their original demand for a reduction in all class sizes and focused new demands on reduction in class sizes for kindergarten through third grade. They have asked for those grades to be reduced from a maximum of 27 to 24 students in the first year of the contract and 22 student in 1980-81.

They also have asked to count special

Schools may sue Best for libel

Ousted Novi School administrator Dr. Patrick Best may be asked to publicly retract statements he has made against the school superintendent and school board, according to Attorney Cameron Buchanan.

Buchanan will be defending Superintendent Dr. Gerald Kratz and the school district in a suit pending before Federal District Court.

In the case Best is seeking $500,000 in damages as well as reinstatement and all back pay. He has alleged that exercising his right to free speech cost him his job.

Buchanan said he is investigating the possibility that by discussing the suit with the press prior to the official filing of the suit, Best was "speaking out of turn."

If evidence will support this, a libel and slander case may be filed against Best, the attorney said.

Buchanan also said he has notified Best's attorney that in suing the "Novi School Board," he has not filed suit against a legal entity.

He has been asked to amend the complaint and identify whether the suit is against the Novi Board of Education or individual board members, Buchanan said. The attorney said he will file an answer to the complaint once it has been amended.

Patrick Brutche, the attorney for Dr. Best, indicated he has granted the school board's attorney an extension of the 20-day period for answering the suit.

He said he now is looking into the possibility of listing additional charges in the suit. Individual board members may be named in the additional charges, he said.

"At first we thought Kratz was the villain in this, but it appears that some of the school board members were pretty heavily into it," Brutche said.

Specifically, the suit filed by Best alleges that he became aware of "mismanagement and misappropriation of funds" while employed by the school district.

When he brought this to the attention of Kratz, Best was threatened with termination, he alleges.

The suit further states that his memos to the superintendent were a matter of exercising his right and duty as an administrator as guaranteed by the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

The school board has taken a public position in support of Kratz. It has stated it believes the allegations in the suit are without substance.

Novi special census tops 20,000

There are 20,274 residents in the City of Novi.

That figure represents the final count in the city's special census.

Population counts from the final district which had been holding up completion of the census have come in and pushed the city's population over the 20,000 mark.

In the last census conducted in 1975 the city's population was tabulated at 14,485 residents, so the figures show an increase of about 5,800 residents.

That count means the city will be in line for two and possibly three new liquor licenses. Municipalities are allocated one liquor license for every 1,500 residents.

When the count began the city had allocated its quota of 10 licenses. The city picked up its eleventh license when it annexed Novi Township. Census figures show the city's new quota would be 13.52 licenses.

It appears at this point the city is slightly more than half-way toward being allocated a fourteenth license, but city officials are not exactly sure what that will mean for the city. The state sometimes rounds off such figures when determining quotas.

City Manager Ed Kriewall reported the results of the census are "in line with our projections."

He said the city expected to find the population at 20,000 to 21,000 based upon building activity which has occurred over the past four years.

At one point the city had anticipated the census had the potential of netting Novi three new licenses.

"The fact we may be getting only two licenses doesn't bother us because when we went into this we felt if we were able to get two licenses the census would be a success," Kriewall said. "Three will be a bonus."

"I feel comfortable sitting with two additional licenses in terms of attracting a hotel. The city needs at least one and potentially two licenses to be attractive," he said.

Kriewall also said he expected there could be an announcement of a hotel in Novi during this calendar year.

"This may be the extra incentive needed to culminate interest," he said.

Other proposals beside a motel will be considered, Kriewall indicated. But some applicants will be preferred over others according to the liquor license distribution priorities the city has established.

Supper clubs, hotels, and assembly or convention centers will be the preferred applicants in the distribution of the new licenses.

By the time the results of the 1980 federal census are compiled — probably late 1981 — the city will have acquired two additional licenses, Kriewall speculated.

In June the city had contemplated reopening the census in areas where the count had been completed because of rapid population increases in those areas.

But it was determined that action could further delay the completion of the count and ultimately a decision was made to finish the one remaining district, according to Deputy Clerk Pat Loder, who coordinated the census.

That district was especially difficult to complete because it contained two apartment complexes: Westgate XI and Waterview Farms.

With those figures in and double checked by the clerk's office, the census results now will be forwarded to the state elections department for certification.

That department will in turn forward the results to the Liquor Control Commission so the city can obtain an increase in its liquor license quota.

Boundary commission studies Commerce annexation.

to Haggerty with a northern boundary generally south of Pontiac Trail, Crumb and West Maple. However, Commerce Supervisor Robert H. Long said a May 1979 letter from Hyde indicated that the land to the west of Walled Lake was the only property affected by the second annexation request.

Hyde is on vacation and will not be in the area until next Wednesday. Meanwhile, Long said a secretary in the boundary commission office told him that there are four maps on file with the agency on the Walled Lake annexation requests. The supervisor has requested copies of the maps, but they were not available as of yesterday.

Commerce officials, fearing the city's expected land grab, applied for cityhood in November 1971. Wolverine Lake officials also sought incorporation as a city and later amended their petition to include a portion of the township.

In January 1973, though, the boundary commission combined the Commerce and Wolverine Lake cityhood bids into one incorporation order.

Village officials filed suit against the commission, challenging the agency's authority to amend incorporation petitions and raising several other questions on the commission's operations.

Council sets hearing on water

Continued from Walled Lake, 1. to discuss the water report indicated that the Farmers Home Administration could provide a loan over 40 years at five-percent interest to finance the improvements.

In any case, LaMarca said he felt the council should hold a public hearing on the proposed improvements before a decision is made. Mayor Pro Tem William C. Starnam said he hoped the council would not "hurry a decision" on possible water system improvements because the choice could have an effect on city residents for many years.

iron removal equipment during peak-use periods in the summer. The study was aimed at coming up with recommendations to provide adequate water service for an estimated population of 10,000 including city residents and some commercial and businesses in Commerce Township and Wolverine Lake Village that have service agreements with Walled Lake.

The engineers indicated that they could come up with an even larger scale study for expansion of the water system to serve new customers outside the existing area.

Wixom trash collection complaints subsidize

Complaints about the newly-instituted trash collection service in Wixom have dropped significantly.

That's the word from city officials who state they are hopeful that the drop off in complaints means that the bugs have been ironed out of the new system which was implemented in July.

Reports of a significant decrease in the number of complaints about garbage collection were confirmed by John Brown, an officer of the Highgate on the Lake Homeowners Association.

As a result, the men collecting the trash apparently had trouble identifying which homes were entitled to pick-up and which homes were not entitled to pick-up. Consequently, some residents who had paid for the service were skipped over on regular collections runs.

Novi police arrest suspect on 'peeping tom' charge. In Novi, a 28-year old Walled Lake man has been arrested on charges of "disorderly conduct - window peeping" by Novi police in conjunction with an incident on New Court last week.

The man was arrested on charges of "disorderly conduct - window peeping" by Novi police in conjunction with an incident on New Court last week. Name of the suspect is being withheld pending arraignment on the charges.

When police arrived at the scene, the man was arrested after police were summoned to a New Court residence to investigate reports of a prowler on a ladder outside a second story window.

Police pulled over a driver for having a noisy muffler on his vehicle, but eventually the car became an investigation of possession of narcotics.

Police are investigating a late report of a breaking and entering which occurred on Shawwood in March. Taken in the theft was a blender, a mixer, an iron, a silver platter, tequila and vodka.

J. Riggin's is seeking prosecution of a Birmingham man who wrote $1,500 worth of checks on a closed account.

The 25-year old Birmingham man visited the store on June 15 and June 16 and spent more than $1,500 on clothes.

He has been incarcerated in Oakland County Jail on similar charges stemming from an incident in Birmingham.

In Wixom, a Wixom driver was near tears Saturday after being notified by Novi police that they had located his car, stolen days earlier from its parking spot at the Village Apartments.

The tears were not from joy, however, as Paul Papazian viewed what used to be a shiny 1979 Chevrolet Camaro. Wixom Police reports indicated the car was totally stripped of its contents.

Theyves left Papazian two tires and the frame of the car. The interior of the car was missing including stereo, radio and stereo equipment. Nothing was left of the front end of the car either as the thieves methodically disassembled several desk drawers in the office were found open but were apparently undisturbed with the exception of one. It contained money from the company pay machine.

A business spokesman said approximately $100 was thought to be missing from the drawer. He indicated other money and checks were lying on top of an adjoining desk but were untouched in the incident.

Village releases lake study report

Continued from Walled Lake, 1. of April and continue through the middle of June. He recommends that the aeration then be shut down, with the anticipation that there would be enough oxygen at the bottom to carry the lake through the beginning of cold weather that may begin in September.

Williams' letter stated that while nutrient build-up might be significant during shut down, all of the nutrient which became incorporated into the sediment would remain there. He added in the report that when the system is turned on again in the fall, algae blooms that may result would have little effect on lake residents, and would likely be beneficial for the fish population in the lake.

Another departure from the original program involves a proposed pilot bottom improvement program, which, according to the engineer, could occur with or without lake drawdown.

Williams explains in his report that there is no estimated cost for the sand on the bottom of the lake, thereby creating a suitable lake bottom. He added that his technique could be used by individuals or groups as desired, and that his system would enhance the value of the lake.

Williams reportedly has had several disagreements lately with Clean-Flo representatives. Clean-Flo is the company that would install aeration equipment for the lake if the village deems it necessary.

A meeting between Clean-Flo officials, several village council members and Williams took place two weeks ago, and the engineer and the representatives reportedly voiced their disagreements at that time.

In his report, Williams suggests that aeration should begin around the first of September.

pending before the appellate court, according to Assistant Attorney General Richard Rubin. Oral arguments in that case were expected to be heard in October or November, Rubin said, but that was before Valentino's death.

As We See It

Novi industry plan needs justification

The proposed Industrial Areas Plan submitted to the Novi Planning Board last week by Planning Consultant Charles Cairns is a major disappointment.

Outside of a significant reduction in the amount of property slated for industrial development in the northwest quadrant of the city, the plan proposes few changes from what presently exists on the city's master plan for land use development.

In essence, the proposed Industrial Areas Plan follows what has been proposed for a long time: an industrial corridor along the railroad tracks from the northwest corner to the southeast corner of the city and a second industrial corridor along Grand River Avenue from Farmington Hills to Wixom.

What is disappointing about the proposal is that it fails to incorporate the findings of a study prepared recently by Vilcan-Leman for the City of Farmington Hills. That study — a cost-revenue analysis — reveals that professional office and commercial development are considerably more advantageous to the city in terms of the overall economic picture than is industrial development.

Specifically, the study reveals that Farmington Hills office development brings in a surplus of $465 per acre in terms of costs versus revenues; commercial brings in a surplus of $447 per acre; and industrial brings in a surplus of $277 per acre.

Clearly, office and commercial development are preferable to industrial development from a cost-revenue standpoint, not to mention aesthetic considerations.

The Farmington Hills study also reveals that expressway exposure is an important consideration.

Controls necessary

Wixom's City Council has taken the only position responsibly available to them on the question of tax abatement: that each application for abatement will be decided on its individual merits.

Basically, the council followed the recommendation of Mayor Assistant Stephen Bonczek on this one, although Bonczek left little doubt that he is opposed to the concept of tax abatement in most cases.

Bonczek indicated to the council that he generally concurs with Detroit Councilman Kenneth Cockrell who maintains that improper use or abuse of tax abatement can result in a "stick up of local government."

Additionally, the mayoral assistant cited opposition to various forms of tax abatement from Consumer Activist Ralph Nader who maintains that rivalries between states to attract business through tax breaks are pushing up taxes for people in low and middle income brackets.

Nader has called the bidding between states to attract industry "a war of all against all and nobody wins except the companies."

He is quoted in an Associated Press story as stating that: "By involving themselves in ruinous tax wars to attract a few foot-loose corporations, local governments are undercutting their own financial position without receiving significant productive benefits in return."

It would appear that federal controls are needed to prevent states from undercutting themselves to the point that industry will attain the status of "privileged citizens." And the general public — the middle class — will have to pay for it.

Speaking for Myself

Public transit for small towns?

YES

Public transportation, like education, police protection and other public services, is not something that is needed and used only by residents of large urban areas. It is an alternative form of mobility for those who have automobiles, and it is the only form of mobility for those who have no autos or are incapable of driving, such as many senior citizens or the handicapped. Such individuals reside in small towns as well as in large cities.

Lunch programs, rehabilitation programs and other services for senior citizens and handicapped persons would not work without effective transportation. There are people in any area who will never use public transportation, but even those individuals will benefit from the positive aspects of a balanced system, such as reduced energy consumption.

NO

Quoting from a 1974 publication by Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority (SEMATA): "The embargo of oil from the Middle East signalled the need of a change in our present concept of low cost personal transportation. It is imperative that we develop... an alternate means of meeting the transportation needs of the 4.6 million people who live in the cities, villages and townships of Southeastern Michigan."

A more factual statement probably has never been made at a more timely and urgent period in the lives of every American. But the question that needs answering is "Does the present mass transit plan meet the transportation needs of our outlying communities, or will it be an unused, non-cost effective service that will be an additional burden on our increasing tax dollar?"

Combat boots leave marks. Please wear gym shoes.

I've just finished reading a daily journal — covering the 10-year period from 1852 to 1862 — recommended by John Richter as "one of the best early accounts of prices and things hereabouts."

It was loaned to me by Grant D. Howard of Novi. It was written by his grandfather, T.P. Howard, who died two years after it was completed.

The Howards were early pioneers of the Farmington-Nowi region. T.P. Howard's wife was the daughter of Caleb Lamb, one of the earliest Baptist ministers in Oakland County and reportedly a "good doctor, too." They also are related through marriage to the Severances — including H.O. Severance, who wrote the Walled Lake history, "The Story of a Village Community," based on his 19th Century boyhood recollections.

Incidentally, that history originally published in 1931, was republished in 1976 by the Commerce Township Area Historical Society.

To set the stage for the period covered by the journal, here's Howard's succinct entry for November 6, 1860: "Election — Abraham Lincoln President."

Now for some at random examples that bear out John's observations:

September 6, 1860: Bot 30 lbs Sugar at 8 cts by H. Bush, 2.40.

September 27, 1860: Sold in Detroit 41 bu. corn at 51 cts, 20.89; Bot Lamp 1.00, oil 1.00, can .50, 2.50; coffee .34, tea .25, toll .79, bill .12, $1.50.

There are differences between geographical areas, such as population density. And for that reason, the method of transit differs. The curb-to-curb small bus service, such as that provided by OCART and LETS for many residents of Novi, Northville, Walled Lake and Brighton would be unworkable by itself in larger cities.

The regular route service with large SEMTA buses works well in larger areas, but would be impractical in rural areas.

Anyone who questions the practicality and need for transit in small cities, should question those who depend daily on such service.

Bob Zolkowski SEMTA's Small Bus Area Manager

A quick analysis of some of the concerns with various public transit plans raises some interesting thoughts when considering the proposed benefits in convenience, speed and dependability. The supposedly convenient service will not help the housewife do her weekly shopping, the faster commuting does not reflect the travel time to the bus stop nor does it consider the time lost on those days the bus fails to arrive.

In my opinion, public transportation to small towns must be designed to provide conveniences that are equal to and available to the high density metropolitan areas or its necessity to serve small towns is questionable.

'Response contained distortions'

To the Editor: Your article of August 22, 1979, on our $110 million drive to end special assessments for road maintenance contained a response from City Manager Ed Kriewall. Mr. Kriewall's response contained several distortions that should be corrected. Regarding bonding or financing, the inability of the city to special assess would not increase the amount of bonding required. The city now bonds both the community cost and the special assessment cost on separate bond issues.

Increased community traffic from the subdivisions is making paving necessary. The subdivision resident is not being asked to pay the full cost for the paving of the main road. Those who live along the main roads are also residents of Novi and also pay that two mill tax to retire the road program bonds.

State approves loan for Commerce firm

A $665,400 state loan for pollution control equipment has been approved for Precision Coatings, Incorporated, by Michigan Job Development Authority (MJA).

The Commerce-based firm applied to the state agency earlier this year for a loan to purchase and install a thermal exhaust gas incinerator on a proposed coating line as part of a $2-million expansion program, according to Alfred W. Rich, company president.

The Michigan Air Pollution Control Commission has granted a permit for the new equipment, based on a favorable recommendation from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources' (DNR) Air Quality Division.

Residents of the near-by Crystal Echo Beach subdivision in West Bloomfield Township, east of Haggerty, have complained for a number of years about health problems allegedly caused by pollutants discharged into the air by the company as part of its coating process.

As a result of the complaints, Precision erected a 150-foot-tall smokestack in early 1978 to disperse the emissions at a high altitude. Company and DNR officials say the taller stack has solved the problem, although some residents say the chemical odors still are evident on occasion.

Rain clouds disappeared long enough last Wednesday to allow nearly 70 children enrolled in the Walled Lake Library summer reading program to gather on the lawns of city hall for a picnic lunch.

On Mackinac Island

Historic church chosen for vows

MR. AND MRS. KEITH HOWE

It's a girl for Maria

The birth of their first child has been announced by Mr. and Mrs. James Kokas of Dearborn.

The Ivy-covered Little Stone Church on Mackinac Island was the setting for the July 21 wedding ceremony uniting Sherril K. Hume and Keith B. Howe.

A Matter of Taste

By Maria Sarivalas Kokas, R.D.

Summer is grinding to an end, and fruit juices have started to party punches. Cool beverages seem to be limited to the old standbys.

Super bargains

Sale items sought by boosters

Do you have a bowling ball that is collecting dust in the attic, a rocking chair that just doesn't fit with your modern decor, or a sweater knitted by dear old Aunt Maude that never fits?

PEACH-O-BERRY JUMBLE: One-third cup diced peach, one-third cup raspberries and one-third cup orange juice. Puree in blender. Makes eight ounces.

Notes about Folks

TWO FRESHMEN from Novi and Walled Lake are attending a special orientation session at Alma College from September 1-10.

Market Day scheduled as celebration finale

They close off a street to vehicle traffic and open the area to booths of all kinds, shapes and sizes offering just about anything under the sun to shoppers.

Western clinic is held for mentally impaired

Chuck Apap's Walled Lake Western football team took some time from its practice Friday to perform a special service for some very appreciative kids.

The Warriors put on a clinic for some mentally retarded youngsters from the Walled Lake Schools' "Sunny Daze" program. The summer program for the trainable mentally retarded consisted of students from the Twin Suns School and the Farmington Training Institute.

Western players showed the kids how they went through conditioning and warm-up exercises, and let them participate. Warrior Coach Apap was also on hand to give the youngsters some instruction.

Helen Andrzejewski, coordinator of the program and a teacher at Walled Lake Junior High School, said her group really enjoyed the lesson.

"The kids really seemed to have a good time," Andrzejewski offered, "and Chuck Apap and his players were so helpful. We're very thankful for their time and cooperation. It was one of our best times of the summer."

This year, the four-week program included tours, an overnight trip to Frankfort, a visit to Bell Isle, theatre outings, lunches, a festival day and a clown and puppet show.

Everyone wins in benefit ballgame

Rain postponed the Union Lake Jaycees' softball benefit game with radio station WXXI last Wednesday. And, as things turned out, the Jaycees would have been better off if the same thing had happened Thursday.

The station crew proved to be rude visitors to the sponsoring hosts, scoring almost as well in a 20-6 slaughter that netted $200 for Muscular Dystrophy.

Although the WXXI group - which included deejay Michael Kelly - ended up on the right end of the one-sided score, Jaycees Fred Longacre had his post-game comments polished for anxious reporters.

"So what if they beat us with a girl on their side?" he asked. "We loaned 'em three of our best players, and that didn't help matters."

On a more serious note, Longacre said that the contest was "a lot of fun. The people really enjoyed themselves, and we thank everyone who came out."

Wednesday's postponement and Thursday's horrible weather conditions prevented the affair from being more of a success, according to Longacre, but he added that the turnout was pretty good considering the threatening conditions.

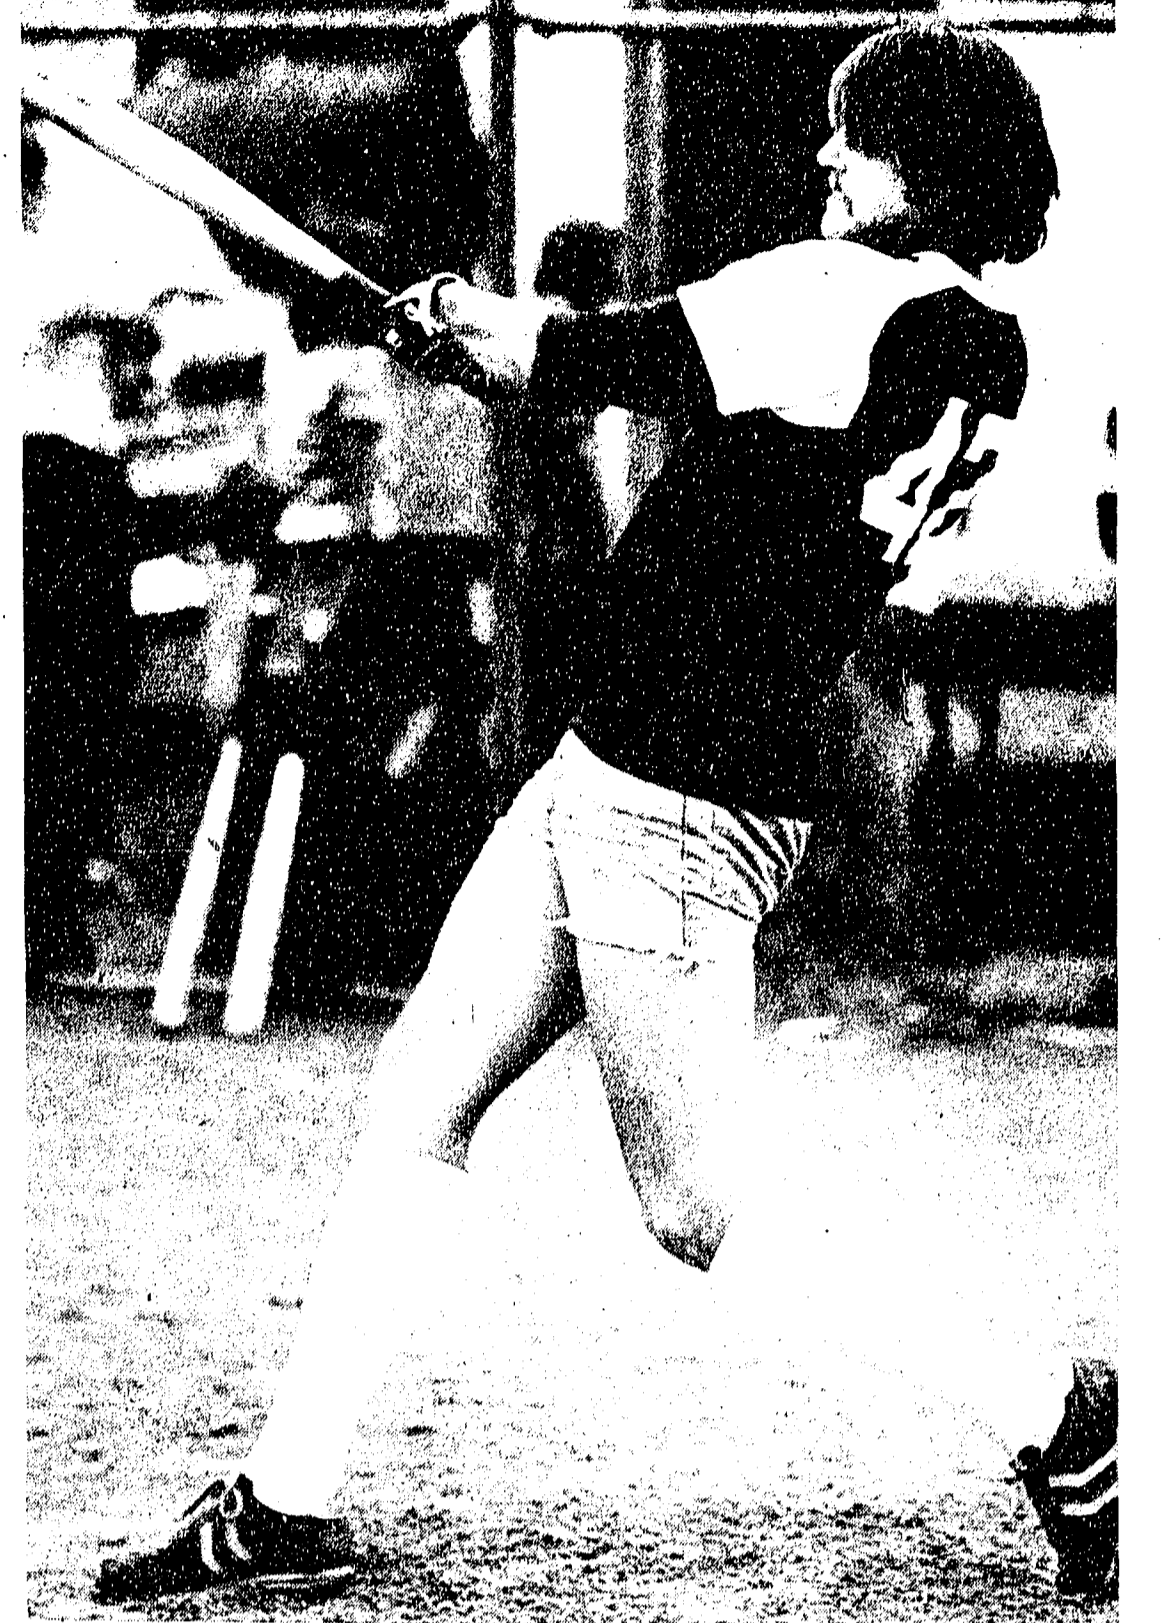

"The weather really hurt us," he noted. "It was really rotten. The game was a moderate success, but it was a big success if you allow for the weather factor."

Because of the poor playing conditions, representatives from the Detroit Caesars and Pistons didn't arrive as scheduled. But help arrived anyway.

Two authority figures - Mike Izzo, an assistant prosecutor for Oakland County, and Jerry Yon, of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department - were natural as umpires. Or at least they should have been.

Longacre had such a good time at the game, in fact, that he said he'd like to see it become an annual event.

Either that, or he simply wants revenge next year.

Novi practices League will meet

The Novi girls' baseball team is currently holding practices for anyone interested. Freshmen through senior girls are invited to participate.

Connie Ahrens will coach the varsity squad this year, and will lead the practices. For further information call 349-5155.

The Walled Lake Little League has announced that its annual board meeting will be held September 13 at the Richardson Community Center.

The 7:30 p.m. gathering will deal with membership and by-laws changes. All interested parties are invited.

PP and K registration set

Attention, all you future Roger Staubachs and Franco Harris'es out there!

Registration has begun for the annual Punt, Pass & Kick competition in the Walled Lake area. Kids from ages eight through 13 are invited to try their hands, and there is no cost involved.

Youngsters need only have a parent or guardian with them for registration, which is being held at the showroom of Shuman Ford Sales, Inc. through September 21. Competition locally, which begins September 22, will have first, second and third place trophies for contestants in each of the six age groups, totalling 18 trophies in all.

Kids compete only against others in their own age group in the PP&K program, and no body contact is involved. The competition involves punting, passing and place-kicking for distance and points, as the name implies.

First-place winners in each age group go on to zone competition, and, from there, top winners go on up the ladder through districts, area, division and national finals.

This year, the national finals will be held at Super Bowl XIV on January 20, 1980, in Pasadena, California.

In the PP&K program, each entrant receives a free tips book upon registering. In the 1979 edition, there are competition tips by NFL stars Pat McInally, Roger Staubach and Frank Corral. The book includes complete PP&K rules and helpful conditioning exercises for contestants.

This is the 18th anniversary of the program, in which millions of youngsters have taken part. It is one of America's largest youth activities.

Local boater ties for first

Union Lake's Billy Vance and Jack Ostrandor of Pontiac - both long-time rivals - engaged in a classic drag boating confrontation Sunday.

The pair drove their hydroplanes at 190 miles per hour in a neck-and-neck final heat at the Dayton Hydrobowl. And, after much deliberation over video tape machines, judges declared the race a tie.

Vance's "Ambush", the current national and Central/Eastern champion, is sponsored by King Marine in Walled Lake. Ostrandor's boat, the "Acutus Special", is sponsored by Acutus Industries of Pontiac and held the 1978 Central/Eastern Division championship.

Both boats, which are capable of speeds of over 200 miles per hour, will be vying for the Central/Eastern title honors at the Blue Water Classic race September 1 and 2 at the Holloway Reservoir in Columbusville. A $5,000 guaranteed purse will be offered.

Close to 5,000 spectators are expected for the two-day event. Time trials will begin Saturday at 11 a.m., and elimination heats start Sunday at noon. Admission is $4 Saturday and $6 Sunday, and children under 12 years of age will be admitted free. Refreshments will be available.

Other boats expected to compete in the weekend races include the "Iron Mike Express" from Chicago. The current points leader in the blown gas class will race against Pontiac's Mike Lochery in "Night Stalker."

Also expected to compete is the points leader in the blown alcohol class, Jimmy Wright in "Forky", from Richmond, Virginia. He'll be racing against the McMullen Pontiac Racing Team's "Sling" and "Odyssey", owned and driven by Chuck Eib of Clawson.

The top boats on the east coast are expected for the event, which is sponsored by Pepsi-Cola and the Michigan Chapter of the National Drag Boat Association in cooperation with Genesee County Parks. Boats will be raced in pairs in straight, quarter-mile acceleration heats.

For more information on the competition, call 363-4351.

Census counters needed in Wixom

Plans to conduct a special census in Wixom are moving ahead. Mayor Assistant Stephen Bonczek reported that the search for a "chief enumerator" will begin this week...

currently are held by the Continental Bar, the Wixom Bar and the Red Oaks Bar. Hubbell and Petty have agreed to fund the cost of a special census...

Beaudette indicated that the city is looking for someone with background in organizational management — perhaps a college student in the field of municipal government...

Enumerators will be paid for their work, although rates have not yet been established. City officials are particularly interested in getting enumerators from the Village Apartments...

Walled Lake zoning ordinance to be reviewed

Walled Lake's commercial zoning ordinance is scheduled to undergo significant revision in a couple of months, when 11 commercial parcels are to be the subject of a public hearing...

The C-2 district will include office and retail sales type uses, such as shopping center stores, bowling alleys and utility buildings...

Each city will switch from commercial to C-4, to single family, to multiple family and to office. Walled Lake plan commissioners will notify owners of those parcels...

After the public hearing, the plan commission will make recommendations regarding the zoning ordinance change and the 11 parcels proposed for rezoning.

Schools borrow $4 million
The Walled Lake School District must borrow some $3.35 million in order to meet its September payroll. A resolution to borrow the money from the Community National Bank of Pontiac at an interest rate of 7.33 percent was adopted by the Walled Lake Board of Education at a special session Monday.

The need to borrow funds is created by the fact that state aid revenues do not begin to arrive until late fall and property tax revenues do not start to roll in until December and January. The Walled Lake district has had to borrow money every year since 1974 when a total of $2.95 million was borrowed at an interest rate of 6.81 percent.

Gal attendant makes spirited effort to stop thief

Gas snatching may be the area's fastest growing crime. As gasoline prices rise and more gas stations turn to self-service, area police are reporting an increase in the number of calls to head off gasoline thieves. Frustrated by the audacity of one gas grabber, a female service station manager attempted to capture him herself. Andrea Dalrymple, 23, is in charge of the self-serve Total station at Maple and Haggerty roads in Commerce Township. Last Friday, she ran into a problem.

A pickup truck pulled into the station and the driver started to fill up, when Ms. Dalrymple noticed he had no rear license plate. She told the driver, who had already rung up $13 worth of gas, it was station policy that he would have to pay first. Although he assured her he was good for the money, she stood next to him while he completed his $18 fill-up. Then he hopped into the truck cab, pretending to look for his money, slammed the cab door shut and prepared to leave, according to Ms. Dalrymple.

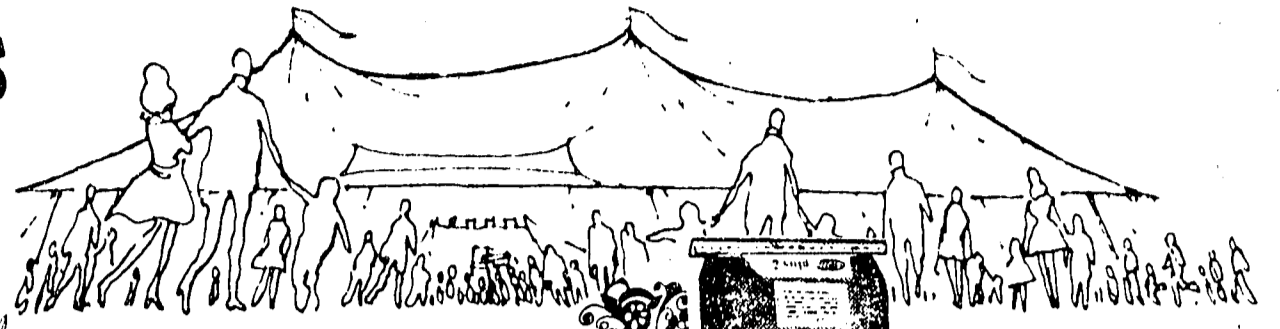

A woman was in the passenger seat. Ms. Dalrymple leaped into the open back of the truck as he attempted his get away. But that didn't stop him. He sped away at an estimated 50 miles per hour, weaving from side to side, reports Ms. Dalrymple, in an attempt to throw her out. "I was scared and I was mad," she said, recounting that she yelled for help to some road workers who merely stared as she passed. Finding a tire iron in the back, she warned she was going to knock out the rear window if he didn't stop. When he continued, she did as promised. "The glass went all over them," she said. It was then she discovered the woman was holding a baby, whom she hopes wasn't hurt by the splintered glass. Near Fourteen Mile and Halstead, the driver stopped the truck, and Ms. Dalrymple jumped out and started to run. "He knocked me down and hit me before he drove off," she said. Covered with mud, Ms. Dalrymple was picked up by one of her regular customers as she sought a ride back to the station.

Police are still looking for the driver, described as a white male, about 25, driving a white pick-up truck. Ms. Dalrymple says it is not the first time he has been in the station. She suspects he lives in the vicinity. A co-worker, Nancy Athas, reports 25 drive-offs over the past two months. "Half of them take their license plates off before they come in," she said. "We call the police. If we catch them, we take them to court — you know how long that takes," she added. The company deducts the drive-offs from the station's commissions. "I'm not the person to let them rake me off," said the spirited Ms. Dalrymple. She is hopeful the special computers which automatically turn off gas pumps in Detroit-area station will eventually come to the suburbs. Meantime, she is admittedly nervous although she says 99 percent of her customers are "super nice." However, police don't see a decline in gas thievery coming very soon. Not when it costs $20 to $25 to fill up your tank.
