

PONTIAC BILL POSTER

OBITUARY. 1884

Died, at the residence of James S. Bradford, in the township of Pontiac, Oct. 13th, Mrs. Jane E. Bulman, of nervous prostration, aged 76 years. Deceased was born in New Baltimore, Greene county, N. Y., Oct. 13, 1808; was married to Christopher Bulman in 1828 and with him moved to the township of Pontiac, in this State, in 1831. In 1872 her husband died. After his death she made it her home on the old homestead with her daughter, where she died. She leaves a family of five children, two sons and three daughters, to mourn her loss.

She has gone, life's pains and sorrows
For that loved one now are o'er.
She has joined those gone before her,
Over on the other shore.

We will meet, and we shall miss her,
Standing by her vacant chair,
We shall miss the loving welcome
We were wont to meet with there.

But we know that she was ready,
And waiting to be called away
To her home among the angels,
In that land of perfect day.

At the dawning of her birthday
Angels smiled, and loved ones wept,
As she whispered, "I am going,"
Closed her eyes and sweetly slept.

For "she is not dead but sleepeth,"—
The blessed sleep which God has given—
And when His loving voice shall call her,
She'll wake, to rise in heaven.

She will watch and wait our coming
With the loved ones over there.
Oh! Let us bear the cross so bravely,
That we, too, the crown may wear.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Wisner, of Detroit, had the misfortune to lose their only son, yesterday, with malignant diphtheria. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Smith passed through a similar affliction, last week, and the remains of their little one were brought to Pontiac Saturday for burial. O. O. 29, 1884

Mrs. Eliza C. Nelson died at the residence of her brother, Hon. Charles Draper, on Wednesday night of last week. The funeral was held from the house on Friday. O. O. 29, 1884
