

PONTIAC BILL POSTER

Mrs. Maumee, of Drayton Plains, died at the residence of her son last Wednesday, of paralysis, aged about 75 years. Funeral services were held at the Catholic church in this city Friday, and the remains were interred at Mt. Hope cemetery. Aug 30 1882

Last week Tuesday Mrs. J. L. Carhart who had been ill at the home of James Carhart on Pike street east, several months, with a cancer, was taken from this city to St. Mary's hospital, Detroit, for treatment, but all to no purpose for she quietly breathed her last Sunday evening, at seven o'clock. Funeral services were held at the Central M. E. church yesterday morning, and the remains were taken to Philadelphia, her former home, for interment. Mrs. C. was about forty years old, a lady of culture and refinement, and stood high in her chosen profession as an actress, having spent the past twenty years and more up to March last, with the best companies in the country. She leaves a husband, (also an actor) daughter, and many relatives and friends who deeply mourn her loss. Aug 30, 1882
