SLOW DRIVERS ARE A SERIOUS MENACE

Insurance Agent Considers They Are Worse than Speeders

Slow drivers are more of a menace to the safety of motorists than are speeders, in the opinion of Mr. Lee M. Clark, local agent for the Standard Accident Insurance Company. They are not so easily controlled as are drivers who drive a faster pace, and they are both directly and indirectly responsible for a large number of traffic fatalities, he declares.

"With the arrival of spring weather come the hazards of increased traffic, higher speeds in rural sections, and a spirit of 'open 'er up!'" Mr. Clark said in an interview today. "These conditions are not necessarily matters for police censorship—they are inevitable conditions and must be expected with the increase in highway area and the growing registration of cars.

"To cope with these matters, the State employs police to patrol the highways for reckless drivers; but just what does 'patrolling the highways' involve? Obviously, it includes a close observation of those cars which are traveling in excess of the legal rate of speed. If these motorists were responsible for all accidents the annual traffic toll would be cut in half by the vigilance of our efficient police.

"The fallacy of such reasoning lies in the fact that it is the slow drivers who constitute just as serious a menace to life and safety as the so-called 'speeders'. I refer to the motorists who select a prominent highway for a week-end jaunt at 20 miles per hour. They have a right to travel at this speed, but if it is not the common speed for that highway at that time, it is not safe. If conditions exist on a crowded highway which cause the majority of drivers to dodge in and around these drivers for mile after mile, then they are forcing thousands of drivers to take risks!"

Mr. Clark admitted that occasional circumstances would mitigate slow drivers on a trunk line highway. Such excuses would be motor trouble, a flat tire, carrying an ill passenger, or mechanical difficulties of various sorts, he says. But when such conditions exist, Mr. Clark points out that it would be far more sensible and safer to stop and call the nearest garage or doctor than it would be to tempt Fate.

"The drivers to whom I especially refer," Mr. Clark concluded, "are: the fellow who breaks in a new car at 18 miles an hour, the sightseer who clings to the center of the road, the young lover who does his wooing with but one hand on the wheel, the near-sighted person who has to go carefully lest he ram the car ahead, and the family that takes turns letting the children drive. These types are a menace, and under state law are subject to arrest!"

PICTORIAL GOLF INSTRUCTION

By H. B. Martin

A BASE BALL PLAYERS GRIP RESEMBLES THE OLD FASHIONED GOLF GRIP

Few Baseball Players Make Good Golfers

WHEN a baseball player takes up golf he goes about it much the same way that he plays baseball. Naturally he grips a club as he would a bat. If the hands are close together this is not so bad. The worst feature of this is that he grips with the palms instead of the fingers.

The old fashioned way of holding a golf club was just about the same way that a baseball player grips. In golf we soon learned that a finger grip was better and that by overlapping we could make the hands act more as one which is an additional asset. Golfers with short fingers might find it an advantage to stick to the old fashioned grip but they can still use a finger grip.

JUST AFTER THE IMPACT WITH THE IRON - THE BODY HAS JUST FINISHED HELPING THE CLUB

Co-Operation of Body Makes Successful Iron Shots

THE average golfer is not able to handle an iron club and get the distance that the pro obtains, or the low handicap amateur. Most players force the iron. Sliding is fatal to any iron shot unless, of course, it is the intentional fadeaway which is controlled and useful in long approaches.

In all successful iron shots the body must help the arms, but there must be no suspicion of false timing. The body does its work just at the impact. The head is still down at this instant if the shot is not one of tremendous distance. In this case, the head turns gradually with the club movement in order to permit the right shoulder to do its work.

TOMMY ARMOUR AS HE FINISHES HIS SWING

Good Finish Means a Good Shot

THE finish of the swing means more than the average golfer will admit. Few shots go wrong where the finish has been perfect, or even fairly good. Tommy Armour looked at a photograph of himself recently taken at the completion of his swing and remarked that it must have been a very good shot.

If the club goes the route from the top of the swing to a position around behind the back working its way in a groove as it were, the ball will be hit properly 19 out of 20 times. Harry Vardon has the perfect swing of golf and he misses a smaller percentage of his drives than any other player.

Charm and Incantation Used to Fight Witches

While the first of May was a time for merrymaking in some countries in ancient times, it was not altogether so in Ireland. There were too many dangers, too many omens, too many witches and fairies about—more on May eve than on any other day in the year, except Halloween. The old Irish year began on the first of May, and like the old Biblical people it was the time of spring cleaning. For weeks before, the Irish housewives cleaned their houses, changing every corner, and fumigating the rooms with juniper. This was a strong preventive against the witches.

When the great day arrived—in fact before midnight—each family was well prepared. All the fires had been extinguished, awaiting the great Beltane fires which the kings of Ireland lighted on the mountains, and from which the peasants rekindled their own hearthfires. With the first light of May day the men of the house made a din with the pots and pans, pails and cow bells. The half-starved dogs were let loose and howled about the house. The women lit censers of herbs and waved them here and there, and everyone chanted, "Witch flee, flee from here or it will go ill with thee."—Boston Herald.

Reminiscence of Early Days of "Fair Harvard"

The student who works his way through college is not fairly recent phenomenon.

He can go way back in 1657 in this country and find a precedent at Harvard. Incidentally, the child prodigy can find a precedent in the same case, for the student in question, Zachariah Bridgen, entered Harvard at the age of fourteen and graduated four years later, at the age at which many are just getting through high school.

Zachariah, according to information received by federal educational officials, served as a waiter and rang the school bell. The steward's books show him charged with "commons and sizings" (board, together with drink ordered from the buttry) tuition, "study-rente and beed" (room and bed), "tyer and candell" (fire and candles), "wood, etc." and a charge for "bringing corn from Charlestown."

He was credited on his account with "silver, sugar, wheat, malt, Indian (corn) hoooge and a bush of parsnapes." He was also given, on December 31, 1654, credit for "ringing the bell and waytinge" 1 pound 2 shillings and 6 pence.

The total cost of an education at college in those days ran from $100 to $200 in silver and groceries.

NEWS ITEMS FROM H. V. COUNTRY CLUB

Big Event Is Scheduled by K. of C. for Sunday, August 10

A business meeting of the members of the Holly Valley Country Club has been called by the president, C. W. Seery, to be held at the club house on Friday evening, August 8. The call states that important matters are to be considered.

Pontiac Knights of Columbus, combining with Flint chapters, will hold a field day Sunday, August 10, at the Holly Valley Country Club. A program which includes a golf tournament, a tennis tournament and a baseball game has been planned.

Councils from Owosso, Flint, Howell, Royal Oak, Mt. Clemens and Pontiac have been invited. Prizes will be offered to winners. Running races and novelty contests will be under the direction of John T. Heitsch, director of athletics, Department of Recreation. A tug of war between the Flint and the Pontiac councils will be held. The baseball game will be between the Flint and Pontiac teams of the Knights of Columbus league.

Committees under Thomas J. Nicholson, general chairman, are making arrangements. Dinner will be served at the club, or in basket lunches.

William Kahler, pro at the Holly Valley Golf Club, was entered in the Michigan open tournament at Bald Mountain Monday and Tuesday. He did not win, but turned in better scores than about 85 other Michigan pros who were entered. On his first 18 he made 77, getting a 6, 5, 6 and 5 on the first four holes and then finishing in par. Mr. Kahler is entered in the Western Open, which will be played on the Indianwood course near Oxford, August 20-23.

More than fifty attended the Ladies' day at Holly Valley Country club last Thursday. Following the luncheon served in the dining room of the clubhouse, an afternoon of cards was enjoyed in the lounge. Those to acquire honors were Mrs. Mark Stern, Mrs. A. W. Larson, Miss Therese Myers, house guest of Mrs. Dallas Winslow, and Mrs. C. L. McLeod. Many of the guests came from Holly, Pontiac and surrounding towns in the valley.

Hostesses for Thursday of this week were Mrs. Elmer Russell, of Flint, and Mrs. A. J. Raab, of Pontiac.

Whereas, one of the problems which has confronted those in charge of highways in the State of Michigan, in common with other states, has been the regulation or abolition of signs and advertisements within the limits of the highways; and
Whereas, this problem has been met in the State of Michigan, in common with almost all other states, with legislation upon the subject, which in this state is found in Act 108 of the Public Acts of 1925, which provides that "no person, firm or corporation shall erect, or cause to be erected, on or along any highway, any sign, guide post, marker or advertising device without the approval of the commissioner or commissioners, having jurisdiction over such highways", in pursuance of which act the Board of County Road Commissioners for Oakland County have been removing all objectionable matters coming fairly under the enumerated heads from the limits of the highways; and
Whereas, the question of stringing a banner over a highway which will be probably supported by devices outside the limits of the highways and which will contain some form of advertisement has been presented to us; and
Whereas, we have given the matter considerable attention and after such consideration, be it

Resolved, that the Board of County Road Commissioners refuse their approval for any advertising device of any character upon banners spread over any of the highways under their jurisdiction regardless of whether the support of this banner is within or outside the limits of the highway.

Great Eastern Surely World's Unluckiest Ship
At Millwallana there still exists the massive concrete bed and slipway laid down over seventy years ago for the building and launching of the Great Eastern, probably the unluckiest ship ever constructed. The first time she put to sea an explosion below the decks killed ten of her firemen. On her maiden voyage her captain fell overboard and was drowned. Next she ran on a rock and ripped open her hull. Following this, her crew seized her for their unpaid wages, she having sailed for New York prepared for 2,000 passengers and returned with 191. When the vessel was broken up the skeleton of a workman, who had disappeared mysteriously during her construction, was found wedged between the outer and inner plating of her hull.

Sardines on Toast an Appreciated Delicacy
Sardines become the delicacies they are only after preliminary scientific preparation. Caught "on the run," as it were, the sardines are taken in netfuls from the salt waters off the coast of Maine to the canneries of that state, where they are given the "sun cure" and steam boiled. Then they are tucked into little tins brimming over with oil or, less frequently, filled with tomato sauce or with mustard.
One of the largest chains of restaurants in America makes an occasional feature of sardines on toast.
Put two tablespoonfuls of butter in a pan to melt. Add two tablespoonfuls of flour. Stir until smooth and browned a little. Add a half cup of soup stock. Stir until thick. Then add a cup of sardines from which the bones and skin have been removed. Serve very hot on rounds of toast.

What Is Money?

THE DICTIONARY says that money is anything that serves as a common medium of exchange in trade, or the authorized medium of exchange. We know that money is mighty handy but we take its convenience for granted.

As a matter of fact, we have not always had money. Primitive peoples traded their surplus of furs, skins, animals, etc., for other articles they needed. Gradually shells, metals and other articles were adopted as money because of their convenience and because as a surplus they were more easily handled than surpluses of bulky articles and animals.

However, the value and convenience of money depend largely upon our having banks in which to deposit the surplus and which carry on business relations for us with mutual profit.
