Armed credit fraudsters busted

BY PHIL CUSTODIO

Clarkston News Editor

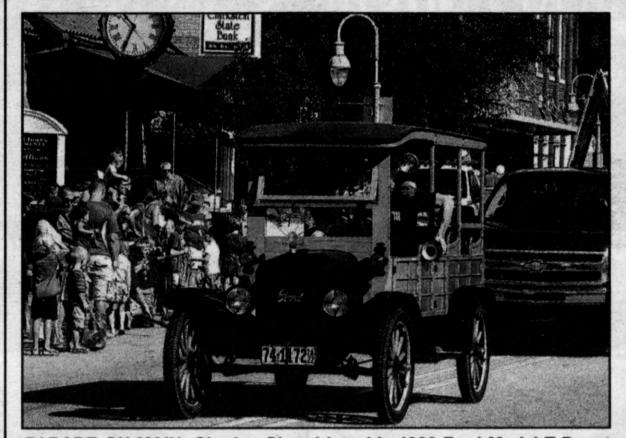

Red flags went up for store employees when they noticed shoppers buying up gift cards with a credit card at a U-scan station.

"Due to the number of separate transactions being made, the loss prevention officer suspected a fraudulent or stolen credit card was being used to make the purchase," according to an Oakland County Sheriff's Office press release.

Deputies arrested three Detroit area men for credit card fraud in two separate incidents, Aug. 31 and Sept. 2 at the Kroger store on Dixie Highway in Independence Township.

The loss-prevention officer was suspicious when two men, a 25-year-old Detroit

More work for Depot bridge

BY PHIL CUSTODIO

Clarkston News Editor

Clarkston City Council voted unanimously at a special meeting, Sept. 1, to approve a storm drain project at the south bridge in Depot Park.

The project was awarded to Tillier Plumbing Company of Holly for $5,545, paid from the city sewer fund.

Work will include closing off the walkway from the edge of M-15 to the bridge; excavate and remove existing manhole cones, lids, and frames; new manhole risers to raise each manhole 4-5 feet from their existing height; and seal and reinstall cones, frames, and lids. Clarkston DPW workers will backfill around the new manhole risers.

Bids were also received from J&M for $7,200 and Beardslee Sand and Gravel of Clarkston for $6,400.

Council members Al Avery, Sharron Catallo, Eric Haven, and David Marsh approved the project. Mayor Joe Luginski and council members Jason Kneisc and Michael Sabol were absent.

Catallo said the special meeting was needed to allow the low bidder to begin work this week.

"There is time now (on their schedule)," she said. "The DPW is pretty comfortable accepting the lowest bid."

Champs remember glory years

BY TREVOR KEISER

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Clarkston High School's Varsity Baseball team had strong showings in the 1970's making it to districts in 1972, 73, 74 and 75, but there was just something special about that 1976 team, according to former Coach Paul Tungate. That was the year Clarkston had a 23-8 record and won the state championship.

"There is no question about it that this bunch of guys was the best ever," Tungate said. "They were just outstanding."

Members of that championship team gathered at Mr. B's Roadhouse in Clarkston on Aug. 27 to celebrate together and remember that special time of their youth.

Tungate, who coached from 1966 to 1978 before transitioning to athletic director from 1978 to 1996, said "there was no question" that 1976 year was the highlight of his educational career.

"It was one of those years you didn't want to stop, you wanted to keep on going," he added. "We didn't hit that well, but our pitching and defense was good. We averaged less than an error a game, which in high school you don't hear about that. They turned double plays. Our catcher could throw guys out. It was amazing."

Bill Matthews agreed. He said it helped they all grew up playing ball together as Little Leaguers.

"All the coaches we had knew what they were doing, so as we were growing up they taught us all we knew and then by the time we got to high school Coach Tungate went the rest of the way. But we already had our habits built in our stuff, so everything was like natural," Matthews said, noting that they should have won in 1975 too. "(1976) was the year that was magical. It was fun."

To be a good coach, Tungate said all he had to do was say "you guys are playing

Former Wolves recall championship season

"And I could sit back and watch the game," he said. "They knew what to do and they were great."

That's not how Doug Manigold remembers it.

"He wasn't just a 'you guys have fun and go play,' Manigold said. "He was tough."

He also noted they had "fantastic parents" who came to every game and cheered them on.

"We knew what the coach wanted and we just got a run," Manigold added. "Everybody contributed whether you were a starter or not. We could plug people in and it just worked out. It's just one of those things."

Larry Bennett attributed the team's success to both Tungate and Assistant Coach Roy "Pop" Warner.

"They treated us like adults, but they let us have fun," he said. "We had a lot of fun."

Because they never scored a lot of runs and their strength was in their pitching and defense Bennett said they had a lot of "fluke wins."

"So the memory of just pulling these things out of derrière at the time was just priceless," he said. "We always found a way to win."

Bennett is thankful that so many of them have remained great friends for the past 40

why they couldn't make it, but they wanted to be here," he added. "That's just kind of a testament of the friends and camaraderie that we have."

Dick Armstrong agreed.

"We're more than teammates we were more like brothers," Armstrong said. "It's been great just remembering the old times and coming together and talking about them."

With pitchers Steve Howe, Jeff Schatz and Bill Matthews on the mound, Clarkston seemed unstoppable.

"I remember The Oakland Press said we would never win a state championship and we did," Schatz said. "We went on to do it and gave it our best."

Schatz said his greatest memory was pitching in the state championship game.

"Finishing out winning was like nothing better," he said recalling his worst memory of pitching a one-hit homerun where they lost 1-0. "It was a great team, these guys were all fun and everybody played their hearts out. We didn't care who got the glory, we just wanted to win."

Don Blower recalled that Schatz had an "awesome bank curveball."

"The final game was great," Blower said. "But it's nothing like it is now. You'd probably go to University of Michigan to play a final game now. It's just everything is accelerated."

Dave Johnson said he doesn't remember

"It's been 40 years. One of the things I've learned is that even though you meet friends along the way in your 30's, 40's, 50's and they are good friends; the people you grew up with and went to school with, you developed with and had the same teachers and had a lot of the same philosophies are actually closer to you than some of the friends you've made in the last 10-15 years," he said. "You can go back and talk about anything and you pull for one another."

Johnson said he's more interested in talking about what some of these guys have done in the past 10-15 and some cases 40 years since he saw them last, than he is in talking about "back in the day."

"For me it's more exciting to be able find out what they're doing now. How has life been," he added. "Back in 1976 when we all graduated from Pine Knob, everybody was saying, 'have a good life,' and that's really what it was all about, because you wouldn't see them in so long, if ever. So, it's good to be able to find out what has happened with these guys over the years."

Manigold agreed.

"Back in the day was back in the day. I look at all these guys, the ones that are here and I think it's fantastic," he said. "You don't get a lot of that. Most people go their separate ways and most of us stayed around the metroarea. One guy moved down to Florida, so he must be the really old guy, but this is good."

Manigold said Tungate looked like he

"To be honest with you, I think we could still play," he added. "I think we could still play."

'Clark Kent' retires

"Making a big change in life is pretty scary. But know what's even more scarier?...Regret." - Zig Ziglar

In May 2007 I walked through The Clarkston News door as a fresh out of college as a cub reporter. This Friday (Sept. 9) I will walk out the same door as a seasoned reporter setting off on a new adventure as recruiter or to use the old school term head hunter with VP Total Solutions staffing firm in Flint.

When I came to the CNews nine years ago, I was ready to tackle every story with vigor. I was going to take on

I know many of you are probably wondering why I am quiting a career I've become so good at and entering one I know very little about. The truth is I am ready for something new and something different. When I became a single dad two years ago after my divorce my perspective on life changed in many areas, including my Plus, I want to teach my son to never become complacent and sometimes we need to enlarge ourselves and try something new to help us grow.

As I come to a close, I would like to give a heartfelt thanks to Publisher Jim Sherman, Jr. and the Sherman Publications family who allowed me to work at three of their papers. While many local papers have turned to fluff, I've always been proud to have a publisher and Assistant Publisher Don Rush behind us who believed in telling the truth no matter what or who.

I would also like to thank you my editor

Just because I am walking away from journalism, don't think I won't be putting the skill-sets I've gained of asking questions and listening carefully to good use. I look at my past nine years of playing Clark Kent as my preparation to becoming Superman.

The intent of the 11-page ordinance was to regulate the location, size, construction and manner of display of signs and outdoor advertising to minimize harmful effects on the public.

We need loving teachers, common sense

'Tis the season for teachers (commentaries to follow). Boards and administrators should hire teachers who love teaching.

What in tarnation is going on in the classroom?

Since Mr. Don Rush did nothing this past week-rience. "Poppy, I even wiped my butt all by myself toend that resembled labor (aside from keeping camp fires blazing) and since this is the first week of school for many of you, he thought he would harken back to those thrilling days of yesteryear when Number One Son (Shamus) first started attending public schools. This "gem" of a Don't Rush Me was first published in September, 2002. Enjoy.

It's been about a month since Don't nearly five year old Shamus R., entered big time education. Kindergarten has settled well with Shamus, why, just this morning he spent breakfast time showing off by reading the labels on the milk bottle, orange juice jug, margarine tub and the oatmeal box.

He can read and write and count and, he informed me one braggado- A column by cios moment not too long ago, that Don Rush he, Shamus the Great, had won a medal (that was metal, by golly!) in gym for skipping, running, hopping and the like. "I could do it all," he said with bravado.

If I do say so myself, he's getting pretty full of himself. (For the life of me, I cannot understand where he gets it?) At any rate Shamus keeps us informed of what's going on in class on his own terms. I think he's decided that dear old mom and dad are security risks, and have been put on the informational blacklist. Information comes on a strictly need-to-know basis only.

That's kind of disheartening -- he always shared everything that was on his mind and every life expe-

G-r-e-a-t . . .

But not anymore, it's like we have to pry information from him. All the trendy parenting books preach about "getting involved with your child." "Interact with him or her." "Ask him how his day went." "Ask him what was the first thing they did."

Blah, blah blah -- but we were desperate, so we tried.

"Shamus, how was school today?"

"Good."

"And . . ?"

"We played."

"And . . . (time to switch parental strategery) what as the first thing you did at school today?"

"Got off the bus."

"It's a secret."

Criminy, what the hell's going on in that school that's top secret? What sort of diabolical programming is being perpetrated upon these young skulls full of mush? What is going on behind the closed doors of academia? Just where do the hallowed halls of eduction now lead?

Is there some sort of science fictiony Stepford-thing happening? Are they brainwashing all the children, so they will all act and talk the same way? Will they soon all have blond hair and blue eyes? Do they have a secret society handshake?

I can just picture it now . . .

"Children of the corn, we musn't upset the parental units with the true mission of your kindergarten field assignments. Remember, it is okay to love your parents, but never trust them with the knowledge we, your leaders, will share with you.

"Should they ask you questions, tell them all is 'good.' If they continually badger you, tell them about finger-painting or gym class. This information must not get out, it is a secret! They'll find out in due course, but not until it is time!

"Now class, please turn to page 327 of your text, to the chapter entitled, Three Rs and an A: Reading, 'Riting, 'Rithmetic and Anarchy. Shamus, please read the paragraph that starts with, 'No justice, no peace.""

I'm just a lowly scribe with no way to stop this damnable plot, but I think there may be chink in their secret society armor. It's based on the simple battle cry of, "fight fire with fire."

The other day Shamus came home from school and asked his mother, how her day was. He asked what she and his younger brother, Sean did all day while, Shamus the Great, was at school. His Ma simply answered, "It's a secret."

He was flummoxed. The little synapses in his brain had not yet been re-wired to fire correctly when confronted with counter subterfuge.

Parents everywhere, unite! This may be the last chance we have to turn the tide of revolution our way. When your kids ask you something, tell 'em "it's a secret." Shamus was visibly shaken that one of the inferiors could turn the table on him so quickly and thus a quid pro quo was started. We gained valuable intel and you can, too. Remember, while there may be more of "them," we're still taller.

Varicose Vein treatment covered by insurance?

"Americans who are suffering from unsightly, swollen, painful varicose veins might want to take closer look at their insurance", says Dr. Charles Mok D.O., at Allure Vein Center.

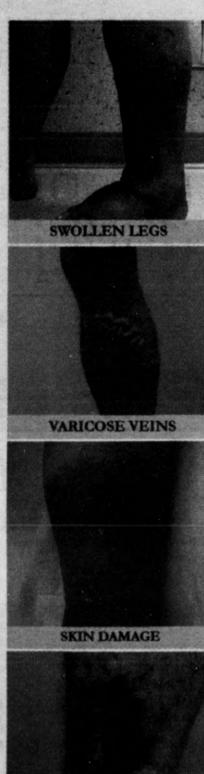

"What most people don't know is that the Affordable Care Act, commonly referred to as Obamacare, covers treatment for varicose veins," he adds.

"We're seeing more and more people for this condition. Why wouldn't you have it treated when its an easy procedure with little to no out-of-pocket costs?"

Forty mllion people suffer from varicose veins, which can result in substantial pain and complications if not treated. Symptoms may include:

•bulging veins
•restless legs
•aching, throbbing, cramping

"Early detection with free vein screening is essential," says Dr. Mok. "Wait too long and you could experience unwanted skin changes including swelling and skin ulcers."

Fine weather for a Ren Fair

Visitors from all over crowded into Hollygrove off Dixie Highway for the first fine-weather weekend of the Michigan Renaissance Festival.

Unlike the rain and mud previously this season, skies were sunny and blue this Labor Day weekend as festival goers enjoyed live shows of swordsmanship and jousting on horseback, juggling, feats of superhuman strength, and comedy of a naughty sort, shopping, and lots of food sans utensils.

This weekend, the festival celebrates the Wonders of the World. For info, check michrenfest.com.

Unique home filled with art history

BY PHIL CUSTODIO

Clarkston News Editor

The late Paul Gonzalez spent decades restoring and making a home of historic barns and outbuildings on Clarkston Road.

The wood sculptor, who passed away in 2012, converted a barn built in 1840 into a unique home for himself and his wife, Marguerite Gonzalez, and they moved in there in 1991.

Marguerite now plans to move to Texas to be closer to family and hopes her home goes to someone who will preserve it.

"We'd like to find someone who would carry the dream on, to find some other use for this piece of art history," said Matt Sanders, Re/Max associate broker along with his wife, Laura Sanders. "I'd hate to see it Paul's restoration work was featured in a at the time, Matt remembers. 1980 edition of the Clarkston News, "He wanted to make the barn into a studio. "Metamorphosis: Sculptor Paul Gonzalez works to transform barn into studios."

"He started with dirt floors and bare rafters, and built staircases, cat walks, bedrooms, dining room, kitchen - no walls, all open spaces," Laura said. "Everything is handcrafted."

"Paul was all about wood, Sycamore wood - he was encased in his own artwork," said Matt.

The real estate agent lived across the street from the property in 1986, and remembers it was surrounded by farm land.

"This was the boonies, cornfields and a pig farm," Matt said. "I grew up in Clarkston. I remember it smelled bad."

Paul's project seemed an impossible dream

It didn't seem possible. I was amazed," he said. "I didn't realize he worked so hard, so long, and accomplished this. I've never seen a home like this before. You're floating up in the rafters. It's amazing."

"He had so much passion for this place, it was unbelievable," Marguerite said. "I thought he would just create an area for his artwork, but he wanted to live here."

The artist was never faished with his work, she said.

"He would always do more and more," she said. "I remember him sitting over there working. He was so dedicated to everything he was doing. For hours, he would never move. He was just working. I'd call him for

Rotarians learn about Power of Persuasion from author

BY TREVOR KEISER

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Rotary District Governor Michael Angelo Caruso was the keynote speaker at the Clarkston Rotary Club's Aug. 29 meeting. Caruso talked about The Power of Persuasion and how to engage someone in 15 seconds.

Caruso, who is a motivational speaker and author, says 15 seconds is all that is needed for a person to make a judgment, good or bad. And while many people say "I don't judge" or "I'm not judging you," he says he hopes people are using judgment in daily life. Such as walking down a dark alley and making a judgment on the person at the end of it or making a judgment on the person you're looking to hire at work as to whether or not they would be a good fit for the company.

"The American judicial system is predicated on judgment," Caruso said. "Judgment by itself is not a bad thing. It's pre-judgment that we want to avoid."

One way to engage people in 15 seconds is to have a good "elevator speech."

"A good elevator speech not only has people smiling and psychologically moving towards you, but it has them physically moving towards you as well," Caruso said, noting that his father "had the best elevator speech ever."

"He retired from Ford early. He worked there for 30 years and retired at age 62. And he would take it to wedding receptions, chambers of commerce and things like that. People would say to my young looking dad 'what do you do for a living?' My dad would smile with a big Italian grin and he would say 'my job is to help other people feel good about themselves."

Caruso, who was raised in Trenton, has had three careers. He spent his 20's touring in a rock band with his brother doing openings for acts like Rick Springfield, Cory Hart, and Joan Jett.

"That's where I got used to being in front of audiences," he said.

In his 30's he was in the telecommunications business and made 50 outbound calls a day. That's where he learned sales, because he was selling on the telephone with no visual cues. Then in his 40's he became a published author and speaker, which has led him to where he is today.

"I knew I liked being in front of people and I knew I had good content. I knew I had a message for people, I knew I had a delivery system. The only question was would the free market economy support my efforts? And it sure did," Caruso said. "It didn't take me long to figure that out, but I had to quit my job to do it. Like most people, I had to find my way."

He believes "the best life is a vocation married to an avocation."

"I can't imagine a job without some sort of service," he added. "And I can't imagine service work without some sort of complimentary job or occupation."

This is where Rotary comes in, Caruso loves that he's able to tie his job of motivating and encouraging others in with his service with Rotary.

"I guess some people struggle with this. 'If I work at such and such a job, I can't do service.' I have found a way to make it work," he said. "I encourage everybody to give it a go. It just makes life so much more interesting and so much more fun."

Caruso is celebrating 20 years this year as a Rotarian, which he says is interesting since this is his year that he's also the district governor.

"I never thought this kind of leadership position would come to me, but it just goes to show that if you do something long enough, people start to notice and I am just grateful for all of Rotary has given me," he said. "It's funny we extensively join a service organization to give, but I make no secret of the fact that I have gotten a lot from Rotary as well. I am champion giver, but I get a lot in return. It's an interesting equation."

For those who are dedicated to the club, Caruso said "Rotary is like church."

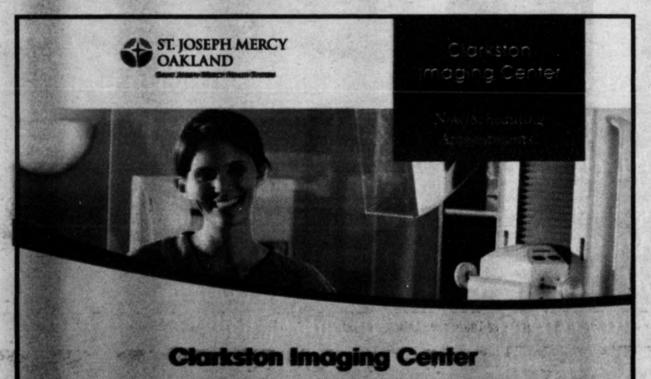

"I get together with a bunch of people who are liked minded people for an hour," he said. "We give to the offertory basket and we worship something bigger than us."

And finally, Caruso also loves that Rotary afford him the opportunity to make friendships even outside of his own club.

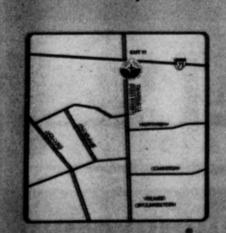

"Some of my best relationships are with people who are not in my club," he added. "But the best part of all is the people we haven't even met yet, new visitors, new members that kind of thing."
