Another Elm Destroyed

This towering elm was the second of two giant trees at the corner of S. Center and Cady streets to fall victim of the Dutch elm during the past two or three years. It was cut down and destroyed last week by a Green Ridge Nursery crew. Several other trees in Northville are affected by the dread disease for which there is no known remedy, but which is said to be preventable by periodic spraying. They are to be cut down as soon as possible.
