Mayor, Six Councilmen Also to be Named Then

Wixom's proposed city charter, which would put the year-old illage in business as a city, will go before voters on May 19. At the same time, voters will elect a mayor and city council that will serve only if the charter is approved.

The May 19 date was set by the charter commission Tuesday night as it put the finishing touches on the lengthy document. A copy of the charter will be sent to the governor for his approval.

Unless he unexpectedly vetoes the document, the election will be held as scheduled. Most important provisions of th charter include:

Mustangs Finally Hot, Mel Larson proved recently that he can win races as well as promote them. Driving a new Plymouth, Larson won the 1958 NASCAR maneuverability tests at Daytona Beach and came in second in the passing tests. It took nearly a full season, but the Northville Mustangs finally proved Friday night that they can be a basketball power-bouse. Mel Larson proved recently that he can win races as well as promote them. There isn't much doubt that the Mustangs displayed their real potential last Friday night at Milford. The only regret we have is that this form did not materialize earlier in the season. Team work, ball handling and speed were the main factors in the 67 to 35 victory over the Milford Redskins. We end the regular season of league play this Friday night with Clarkston on the latter's home court. Clarkston's victory over Holly last Friday assured them of at least a tie for the title and at the time of this writing it is doubtful if Clarenceville could do anything about stopping them from clinching the championship last Tuesday night on the Tro-jans' home court. However, that does not mean that the Mustangs will not go all out to take Clarkston, even though there

s nothing at stake but proving that we can beat them. Next week the state-wide tournaments will open three weeks of hectic basketball fever. Newspapers will be picking the favorites (wrong as usual), fans will be scrambling for those precious state finals tickets and coaches will be hoping for that one miracle which will put their team at the doors of the Macklin Field House at East Lansing. Our team will compete with Milan, Flat Rock, Airport

Carleton and Willow Run on the latter's home court. Rumors Howell are floating about that the Mustangs are the favorites in this district but the team and coach have had enough of the "favorite's role" for one season. We are going to play them one at a time. The first opponent is the greatest of them all. Teams that forget weak opponents often don't get to play the strong one for which they pointed.

The game was marked by the return of big Jeff Goodrich to action for the first time since mononucleosis laid him low just after Christmas. Though he saw less than eight minutes of action, the 6' 8" center sank 10 points and gave an indication that he'll be a valuable addition when tournament play begins Center Cap Pethers led the Northville attack with 21 points, to sustain his 18-point season average. Ten of them came in the third quarter, when he hit the bucket protest and expecting him to answer their grievances.

The veteran of 30 years on the bench swiftly and skillfully disposed of the low-bidding construction firm's claim that the Northville school board acted wrongly in awarding the general contract for the new high school to Walter L. Couse & Company.

The hearing ended in five minutes on a clear point of law (see story on page one). Northville Attorney James Littell, although naturally happy to have the case dismissed, must have been somewhat crushed after many hours of preparation. His entire presentation was about four sentences long. It ended with a request for dismissal based on the law governing such matters in fourth class school districts.

Legally, the case is closed. But there are overtones that remain. And before jumping to any conclusions, every taxpayer who is concerned should look at all the facts fairly and soberly.

Let's examine the rather unique and unusual set of circumstances surrounding the proposed Northville high school from the very beginning.

More than a year ago voters of the school district approved a $3 million bond issue to build a badly needed high school. Under the bond issue the board was also given permission to revamp the present high school for junior high school use and purchase property for another elementary school in the

About this same time the state was casting a critical eve our way and decided to boost our land and property values. Result: the state equalized valuation of our school district jumped from $10 million to $18 million in one year.

Village Incorporation: A Look at Its Pros and Cons

All of its ramifications cannot be examined in a few inches of type. But, so that its readers can do more than merely flip a coin when they enter the voting booth on March 17, The Novi News here offers an analysis of some of the major facets of the incorporation issue.

The question of incorporating Novi has usually been ate as a village, or shall it stay a township?

Redford township, it is true, has remained a township even with a population larger than many cities. But it is a

Since Novi very likely could not remain a township, the question at stake on March 17 should read: shall Novi ncorporate as a village, or shall it be absorbed into three, five, or perhaps a dozen communities. * * *

As an incorporated village, Novi would enjoy both independence and political integrity. It would have direct control over its own affairs, and its boundaries would be secure

It would be a large area — some 32 square miles — and

It could do things that smaller communities - an incorporated Willowbrook Village, for example - could do only with expense and difficulty, such as maintaining a fire peculiar case, and is far overshadowed by dozens of other department or recreation program. In a word, it would have the advantages of centralized

> But on the other hand, might not it be an unnatural unit of government? The interests of Willowbrook do not necessarily coincide with those of farmers in western Novi.

Proponents of this position feel that the various sections of Novi should be annexed to existing communities of which they are already almost a part. The Eight Mile area, they feel has more in common with Northville than with the Four Corners. And the lake area is more a part of Walled Lake than of Willowbrook.

Those cities already have well-established governments grow. In the meantime, perhaps the Four Corners and Willowbrook could incorporate together. In other words, a village of Novi would be only a conglomeration of strange bedfellows.

central areas of the township, let them be annexed as they Assuming, however, that Novi should be a single, incorporated area, there is still another question, hinted at earlier: is now the time to do it?

On one hand, much of the township is still rural. Should these areas pay for a village government when they are in the heart of the countryside? Why contribute taxes for a public works department when a septic tank or two will take care of their entire 80-acre farm?

is still something to incorporate. Furthermore, Novi already has problems that township government cannot handle. Would it not be better to have a village government in existence, ready to meet further problems as they occur? Taxes come in for as much discussion as anything else when incorporation is mentioned.

Regardless of how limited it is at first, a village government would cost more money and require additional taxes. That alone is proof enough for many voters that incorpora-

Furthermore, village taxes are limited at 20 mills by the the millage rate would likewise be subject to approval by

The tax question, then, is one of paying what you want for services you want. Taxes would go up, but would be controlled by the taxpayers themselves.

In this same vein, incorporation opponents say Novi's industrial tax base would not support a village government. A disproportionate amount would be borne by the individual. Novi should not become a village until it has a sufficient industrial backbone. It's just not economical now. Answering this, others point again to the Lincoln plant
