If numbers mean anything, the "Beautify Northville" campaign ought to be a whopping success.

Twelve committees of four and five persons each have been organized. They will concentrate on completing all details of the area-wide program in April. The campaign itself will last throughout the month of May. You get some idea of the far-reaching plans of the program when you look at a list of the committees: "Eyesore, Health and Safety, Retail and Commercial, Industrial, School and Student, Rural Beautification, Alley, Street and Highway ,Vacant Lot, Contest and Stunt, Publicity, Residential and Special Projects."

John Canterbury is acting as general chairman for the campaign. His helpers have already demonstrated enthusiastic rest and have accumulated a host of ideas.

They have discovered that such programs have been very successful in other communities and have even resulted in a year-around campaign against litter.

Their object is to get every single person in the community interested in the clean-up drive. They believe that a combined effort to clean yards, alleys, streets, sidewalks, business places and homes will mark a big difference in the appearance of the area. The campaign is not confined to the city, but is community-wide.
