DIRECT DISTANCE DIALING TO FILL

GROWING COMMUNITY NEEDS

It's a voice that can be heard almost instantaneously by 40,000,000 other people in hundreds of cities and towns around the corner to the neighbors. Someday it will be heard across the ocean just as quickly

It spans mountains and prairies as quickly as it goes around

Our new voice is strong and vigorous, and no other town in the world can boast one that's better. From one of the oldest, we've come to the very newest.

Direct distance dialing will come as a sudden and welcome change to our industry, commerce and citizenry bringing each of us within seconds of voices from the far corners of our nation.

At precisely 2:01 a.m. Sunday, July 20 telephone users in Northville and Novi will have said goodbye to the familiar "number, please" to join communication's most modern network —linked by a finger, a dial and a number.

Both companies saw the futility, complications, and unnecessary cost of a dual telephone system and agreed to consolidate their resources in the spring of 1913.

In July of that year, the Michigan State Telephone Company moved its equipment to the Lapham Bank Building where Interstate had its offices. The move marked the end of duplicate telephone service in Northville.

The local manager said after the consolidation that "the service is improving every day and subscrib-

JUST TALKING

Talking is a very favorite past time of the human species all over the world. We love to talk, therefore we often talk a lot and sometimes say very little. I read a very interesting bit of figuring the other day. It said that the average person spends at least 13 years of his life talking. On a normal day something like 18,000 words are likely used, which is roughly the equivalent to a book of 54 pages. In a single year, one's words would fill 66 books, each containing 800
