SPEAKING for the Record

The next step in the procedure for calling a constitutional If it is defeated, a con con will not be automatically on the ballot for another 16 years. If the "yes" votes prevail, then Michigan will be on its way toward re-writing a constitution drafted in 1908 and since

Based on last November's results and the growing list of organizations backing the proposal, its chances of passing among its 19 member organizations: Citizens for Michigan, Michigan AFL-CIO, Michigan Education Association, Michigan Municipal League and the UAW. There will be opposition, however, by those who fear that change may somehow weaken their particular interests. There are always those who resist change, but the success of drafting a new constitution rests with the people and the delegates they send to the convention. It is a task above partisan politics and calls for the skills of people who recognize that the needs of the whole state must come first.

which a district is entitled. This totals 144. If the convention is approved, nominating petitions for delegates must be filed by June 6; primaries will be held July 25 and the final election of delegates will be conduct-

Michigan needs a new constitution, perhaps for more rea sons than simply modernizing an ancient, patched-up document. capable administrators and therefore limit the field of candidates interested in serving the state as chief executive.

Milford last Friday to win the Class B District title, ending a drought that goes back to 1953.

What happened? That's the question and with the answer, almost so simple it sounds immodest, is Coach Dutch Van Ingen who could win Northville Coach of the Year award hands down.

In 18 tree throw attempts.

Four nights previous, against Holly, Brown managed just a field goal and four-of-four free throws for six points, His 15 game average was 13.6 with the season high of 29 points set against weak sister, West Bloomfield.

How to explain it? Lock at the four prior to the year and bird watch him closely. He makes one of two attempts at the bucket, but that leaves prior the year award hands down. How to explain it? the state to invest tax money in private industry.

Speaking of industrial development, two young men moved their aluminum storm window manufacturing business into Novi last week with a burst of enthusiasm and determination.

Robert E. Metz and James Smallegan, owners of Inter-Lake Window Industries, Inc., took over nearly 6,000 square feet of the old Young Door plant on Grand River (now partly occupied by Smith Products) and predicted their business would double this year.

They employ about 25 and build custom storm windows for some 140 dealers throughout the state.

When discussing these two factors, it is much like asking which came first, — the hen or the egg? Each is dependent on the other; but in most cases increased purchasing must come before increased employment, and I think President Kennedy believes this in his heart. Hence the soundest one por payments to newspapers and broadcasters for increasing the advertising space or time devoted to promoting the sale of products which require much labor—the percent of subsidy depending upon the amount of unemployment involved.

They employ about 25 and build custom storm windows for some 140 dealers throughout the state.

Both Metz and Smallegan are highly enthusiastic about Novi's location and access to major highways.

Council Accepts Maintenance Of Power Park Volume 6, Number 45, 16 Pages

The village council resolved Monday night to accept maintenance of a park if and when the State releases the $68,000 it holds from the Power estate for the purchase "and development" of a park site.

The resolution states that if an amendment in the State releases the $68,000 it a park site.
