SPEAKING for the Record
by Bill Silger

Northville's city council is currently locked in debate over an issue that has simmered locally for several years. And, oddly enough, the matter has finally come up for definite action as the result of a ruling by the attorney for the school board.

The issue is assessments and whether or not they should be charged against property owners when the street in front of their home is paved or otherwise improved by the installation of curbs, gutters and storm sewers.

It appears that the majority membership of the council favors the special assessment principle. But until now the question has not been pushed, so sensitive has been its local history.

A six-year-old city, Northville has always claimed its streets from general fund monies. Many residents paid that as part of the promise of advocates of city incorporation. Becoming a city won for Northville tax rebates from the state for harness racing at the Downs. With this money Northville would be able to provide residents with a low tax rate, more services and assessment-free improvements.

Beyond this, opponents of street assessments point out that it would be unfair to charge residents now after having provided the service from general funds in the past.

Why then do three of the council's five members favor assessments?

Let's go back to Northville School Attorney James Littlell's ruling regarding North Center street.

Pressed by residents to give the street, both council and school board members promised action.

The city was willing to pave Center street beyond the new Eight Mile road cut-off if the school district would participate in the cost. Half of the street fronts on school property. Because school traffic is responsible for much of the heavy use of the street, board members indicated a willingness to cooperate.

But the city council, apparently still unwilling to introduce assessments to residents living in the "old section" of the city, introduced a plan that would have assessed the school district for the entire cost of half of the street while paying for the residents' side from general funds.

"No possible," ruled School Attorney Littlell. His opinion to the school board led to open court arguments, and the city, it is indicated that if "some assessment" was levied against one side of the street the school could rightfully participate even if the school's assessment were higher.

It didn't take Littlell's ruling to forecast the problems the city was creating for itself in the matter of street assessments, however.

Under the city's old plan of no street assessments against residents of the original city limits the council would soon be faced with the unique situation of having to pave a street with "old" residents on one side and "new" on the other.

And City Attorney Philip Ogilvie has pointed out to the council that the basis for special assessments must be benefit derived—certainly not length of residency.

Can you imagine a resident paying for paving in front of his house by assessment plus continuing taxes to the general fund while his neighbor across the street goes unassessed? Obviously, there can be but one set of standards where individual citizens are concerned. In the case of new subdivisions, whether in the past or future, it is provided that the builder must make all improvements.

All other streets are the responsibility of the city. In our neighboring communities—much richer in industry tax base than Northville even with its rising revenues—assessments for street paving are commonplace.

And instead of 25 percent as proposed locally, the assessment is up to 100 percent in Farmington and nearly 70 percent in Plymouth.

In areas where curb and gutter already exist—such as the Walnut street area—the 80-foot lot owner would pay about $95 for paving.

Paving curb and gutter would cost about $210 to the owner of an 80-foot lot. Where concrete is required (instead of asphalt) the cost would be about $300 per 80-foot lot.

These assessments may be paid over a 10-year period. One might argue forever the equities and inequities of assessments in Northville.

What seems most important is that we move ahead with a program that gives residents some promise that their streets will be improved—and approximately when.

Fresh Water to Become Scarce, Expensive

Babson Park, Mass., Most far better to learn to live off a plant. It is both practical and economical. The plan which interests me greatly is to bring fresh water from Canada. Northwest Canada has three large lakes that drain the rainfall northward into the Arctic Ocean—which is very wasteful. Although it would be very expensive, great canals could be built for turning these streams and reversing their flow southward. Then this fresh water would be used to irrigate the dry plains of Montana, the Dakotas, Wyoming, Arizona, and New Mexico.

State Air Board Growth

Like Topsy, Michigan's Department of Aeronautics just grew. And unlike many other agencies of state government, the Aeronautics arm had to attain its maturity in a relatively short time. While many functions of the state were young when the state of Michigan was young, aviation itself was only born a few short decades ago.

The state took a hand in the development and management of Michigan aeronautics in 1929 when the Board of Aeronautics was created by legislative action.

This agency presided over the birth and infancy of flying in Michigan, to speak, and was still in operation through the adolescence of the new and pre-atomic child.

It wasn't until the post-World War II boom in flying, 1945 to be exact, that the present Department of Aeronautics was organized.

In that year the Legislature passed what later became known as the Michigan Aeronautics Code. An Aeronautics Commission, expanded to eight members from the original five appointees plus the Highway and State Police commissioners by the addition of the Director of Conservation, is the governing body of the Department of Aeronautics.

The Aeronautics Department is perhaps unique among state agencies in that it has had close connection with the federal government since the department was established by the Legislature.

But in little Le County of the Upper Peninsula, a total of 8 percent of the population is on the state payroll. In Ingham county, only 2.3 percent of the total population works for the state.

The catch is that in Le County there are only 650 or so men and women on the state payroll while in Ingham there are more than 2,000 people working for the State of Michigan.

This interesting comparison of where the state's work force is located came to light when the Civil Service Commission released statistics along this line recently.

Each community would have several of these "new pumps" for the convenience of the people.

Several mothers had reported that they had given the school a deadline of today to provide some protection or they would resume their blockade. They had temporarily called off the blockade starting last Monday.

The proposed pool hall, to be known as the "Ship Ahoj", is on the front of Nov Township Park. Township Clerk Leahy explained that the property had been used as a commercial bath house.

He said that the commercial bath house had been allowed to operate in the residential zone because it had been established before zoning laws went into effect in the area.

Bachert explained that the zoning rules were now effective in the matter because the business was being changed. Township Supervisor Prater Slaman told the board that the Oakland county Board of Supervisors had voted to accept the sewer plan for Nov village with a 10-foot sewer main.

The board also learned from Treasurer Diane Bell that the town of Nov had earned $28,694.65, and the park fund now has a balance of $9,676.51.

In Nov, all but about $1,800 of the city's $121,000 tax assessment has been paid. Mayor Paulner said that he had been the first of this month. Taxes, reports that the 14 percent that's late is indication of one of the city's best tax collection records. He said Nov had a three percent delinquency last year.

Nov taxpayers have paid all but a little less than $100,000 of the $121,000 assessed against them. A total of $48,100 has now been collected, nearly 84,000 of which came in during the month of August.

The remaining $76,000 or so now has a four per cent penalty levied against it, which legend has it, was the first of this month. Taxes, reports that the 14 percent that's late is indication of one of the city's best tax collection records. He said Nov had a three percent delinquency last year.

Mothers March in Protest of School Traffic

Kids Had To Walk In Mud... So Their Mothers Blocked The Road In Front of School

"Get outta my way!" the mother snarled angrily. "Go right ahead," the mother replied defiantly. And there they sat, the motorists angry because of the delay, the mother just as angry because of the danger to her children.

The occasion was last Thursday morning when Novi school children returned to classes for the fall and Novi mothers turned out to be sure their children had safe passage along the stretch of uncompleted highway in front of Novi school.

The mothers' protective efforts consisted simply of placing their children in front of the school. This, they explained, kept traffic from the school so that their children could walk safely across and along the pavement. If they were blocked by the road, they said, their children would have been forced to walk in the mud-filled ditches created by the work on the highway.

But the mothers no longer have to worry. A safety patrol program initiated yesterday now provides patrol boys - older students - both at the crossing in front of the school and at the corner of Grand River and Novi road. The boys are under the supervision of Village Patrolman Dick Faulkner, and their equipment is provided by the AAA.

Several mothers had reported that they had given the school a deadline of today to provide some protection or they would resume their blockade. They had temporarily called off the blockade starting last Monday.

THE NOVI NEWS

Republicans Lead Light Con Con Balloting

Light turnout characterized local voting as electors went to the polls Tuesday to choose delegates for the October 3 Constitutional Convention.

Voter apathy was indicated by the fact that only 23 percent of Novi's registered voters appeared at the polls, while only 17 percent of the Wixom area registered voters cast ballots. Although the percentages were small, they were predominantly Republican, for that party appears to have taken at least 80 of the 144 delegations.

In Novi, as in Wixom and the rest of Oakland county, Republican candidates for the 12th Senatorial District George Romney lead his Democratic opponent William A. O'Brien, Jr. Romney polled 232 votes to O'Brien's 66 in Novi, and led 42-25 in Wixom. Romney's total vote was 42,334, a tremendous victory over O'Brien's 15,071.

Republican Richard C. Van Dusen, running in the Fourth Legislative District, led his opponent Thomas Kavanagh 213-83 in Novi, but was behind 31 in Wixom. The Novi vote reflected Van Dusen's win though, as he polled a total of 8,690 to Kavanagh's 4,984.

In Wixom, the election added flavor as residents in precinct two voted for the candidates for delegate from the Third Legislative District. In the Wixom race, Democrat Henry L. Wolfenden lost to his opponent, Asher G. Gielin, 42-21. But Wolfenden took the seat, polling a total of 11,982 to Gielin's 2,422.

The election constituted the next-to-the-last step in a 13-year struggle to provide the state with a new constitution. The final step, if the Convention writes a new constitution or proposes any changes in the present document, will be ratification by the electorate. This will come months from now, when the state money for the present costs for maintaining the streets in the subdivision will be quite high, and would be nearly nothing if the streets were paved. He added that the village would still receive the state money for street maintenance that it now receives.

When the possibility of dropping the entire project until after the projected sewers for Novi had been paid for, Councilman Dean Leshelner pointed out that the village has already written a new constitution or proposes any changes in the present document, will be ratification by the electorate. This will come months from now, when the state money for the present costs for maintaining the streets in the subdivision will be quite high, and would be nearly nothing if the streets were paved. He added that the village would still receive the state money for street maintenance that it now receives.

Another issue brought out at the meeting was the opening of the by-the-lot method when applied to the property owners on the several city-blocks, or courts which are located in the subdivision. The owners of property in these areas claim they paid higher prices when they bought into the subdivision because the subdivisions were already paved, as was required by state law. They say they are now being forced to pay not only for the paving in front of their houses, but also for some of the paving in the rest of the subdivision.

One of the greatest controversies involved in the project is the manner of levying the assessment. The council is presently examining the two proposals, and thinking that she was having difficulty of changing either the lot or by the footage along the street. The hearing was held in front of their houses, but also for some of the paving in the rest of the subdivision.

Compact, Cop Car Crash

When a village resident who does not live in the subdivision objected to the village paying 10 percent of the cost, Council President Joseph Crupi said that the 10 percent would be a struggle to provide the state with a new constitution. The final step, if the Convention writes a new constitution or proposes any changes in the present document, will be ratification by the electorate. This will come months from now, when the state money for the present costs for maintaining the streets in the subdivision will be quite high, and would be nearly nothing if the streets were paved. Novi taxpayers have paid all but a little less than $100,000 of the $121,000 assessed against them. A total of $48,100 has now been collected, nearly 84,000 of which came in during the month of August.

Opening the Biblical selections in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Matter" are these verses from Exodus (20): "And God spake all these words saying... Thou shalt have no other gods before me... Ye shall not make with me gods of silver, neither shall ye make unto you gods of gold."
This citation will be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy (pp. 198, 200). "When Homer sang of the Grecian gods, Olympus was dark, but through his verse the gods became alive in a nation's belief. Pagan worship began with muscularity, but the law of Sinai lifted thought into the song of David. Moses advanced a nation to the worship of God in spirit instead of matter, and illustrated the grand human capabilities of being bestowed by immortal Mind."

from the PASTOR'S STUDY

By the Rev. B. J. Pankow, Pastor St. Paul's Lutheran Church of Northville

BREAD FROM HEAVEN
Manna! Wonderful bread! Bread from heaven! No doubt many of us have wished that we could have been present with the children of Israel in the wilderness when this bread fell from heaven. "Imagine their delight when for the first time on an early morning, they saw bread scattered in abundance upon the ground. 'It is manna!' they exclaimed: for 'manna' means 'what is it?' Consider their great pleasure when for the first time they tasted this food which had the savor of waters made of honey. Of it Moses said: 'This is the bread which the Lord hath given you to eat.' (Exodus 16:15)

But do you know that God today offers us a Bread which is much more precious than the manna which the children of Israel ate in the wilderness? It is the true, heavenly Bread, namely Jesus, the Son of God, our Saviour.

Jesus, the Bread of Life
Bread of life: he that cometh to Me shall never hunger; and he that believeth in Me shall never thirst... I am the living Bread which came down from heaven; if any man eat of this Bread, he shall live forever." (St. John 6:35, 41)

In these statements we see how much superior Jesus is to all earthly nourishment. As God, He can nourish the soul and give the promise of everlasting life. Indeed, He is true God. Of Him St. John writes: "And we know that the Son of God is come, and hath given us life eternal, which He sacrificed for us, that we might live forever. He that believeth in Him shall not come into condemnation, but he that doth not believe in Him shall be condemned because he hath not believed in the only begotten Son of God." (1 John 4:9, 10)

All earthly bread and all of the material things of this life will perish, but the heavenly manna that we have in Christ Jesus endures forever in eternal glory. Jesus promises: "To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life which is in the midst of the paradise of God... To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the hidden manna." (Revelation 2:17)

Lutheran Hour Program To Open 29th Season

The 29th broadcasting season of The Lutheran Hour, world-wide radio ministry of St. Paul's Lutheran Church of Northville and associated congregations, opens Sunday, September 24, reports the Rev. B. J. Pankow. The opening broadcast will be heard on station WKMJ Dearborn at 9:00 a.m. "Tomorrow is Now" will be the topic of Dr. Oswald Hoffmann as he begins his seventh season as Lutheran Hour speaker. He will point out that the prophecies of Christ and others are coming true before the eyes of the world. "Let us now realizeously reap the harvest," Dr. Hoffmann will say, "for there may be no tomorrow."

Religious broadcasting regularly returns from Europe and the Holy Land. In Berlin he discussed with German church leaders the possibilities of a special religious radio program directed to the children of East Germany where communist domination greatly curtails religious training.

A special Lutheran Hour summer series, "Living Under God," which is based on the Holy Scriptures, concludes on Sunday, Sept. 17. The same spiritual blessings offered on these programs are offered each Sunday at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Pastor Pankow said.

A MATTER OF VIEWPOINT

To some funeral directors, the knighthood shield symbol of the Order is simply the emblem of one of the older and more highly regarded of the several professional organizations in the field.

To members of the Order of the Golden Rule, the symbol is at once a challenge, a responsibility, and a source of justifiable pride. It is a challenge because the right to use the symbol demands the best that a man can offer. It is a responsibility because each member must so conduct himself that he reflects credit not only upon himself, but upon all other members as well. It is a source of pride because each member knows how carefully he was screened before his application for membership was accepted.

Most important of all, however, is the viewpoint of the general public—your viewpoint!

No matter where you may be, no matter what the time or circumstance, no matter how limited your means may be, the symbol is to you an assurance of service true... measured not by gold but by the Golden Rule.

It is with humble pride, and a spirit of dedication to the lofty principles of the Order that we announce now that we have again qualified, for another year, as a member of the Order in this community.

Years ago there were many who disputed the novel idea of free and compulsory public education. The first truancy laws were opposed as infringements on liberty.

But as our children return this fall to schools that will mold their growing minds—does a single parent complain?

I believe in sound religious education, as well. The molding of the character should keep pace with the molding of the mind.

Naturally I never want my government to exercise compulsion in this sacred area. And my Church, while it offers a complete curriculum of religious training, does so on a free and voluntary basis.

But I'm a parent! And, though I find that example and encouragement usually suffice, I'm not above telling Johnny, "YES, SON, YOU HAVE TO GO TO SUNDAY SCHOOL!"

As a child begins to see the importance Faith has in our lives and in the strength of our nation... you'll be surprised how quickly this becomes an unquestioned compulsion.

THE HARDER THEY FALL — The huge elm tree pictured above, once located in the front yard of the Glean Long home at 411 Baseline, is being removed by Wayne county work crews. Workmen guessed, after consultation of the stump shown below, that the tree was about 175 years old. It was removed because it had been attacked by Dutch elm disease.

Lutherans Launch 'Preaching in Press'

The Lutheran Laymen's League, which has seen The Lutheran Hour grow under its sponsorship into the most widespread non-government supported broadcast in the world, on Sunday, September 24, launches a major new project, Preaching Through the Press.

Provocatively designed advertisements will appear in more than 225 Sunday newspaper supplements in the United States and Canada, reaching an estimated 70,000,000 readers.

"Preaching Through the Press" is the first of a series of God's redeeming action in Christ," Harry G. Barr, president of the 125,000-member L.L.L. said. "As God has blessed the message of The Lutheran Hour, we pray that He will supply His power to this project."

He pointed out that the $100,000 project complements the Gospel-proclaiming activities of The Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod through the two other major media of mass communications — radio and television.

UF Names Peters Again

Appointment of 1961 Terrell Drive community business chairman for each of his five divisions was announced this week by A. Russell Clarke, Northwestern Wayne county chairman for community business.

Allan Peters, who has had a key role in the last Northville business campaigns, will head solicitation of local businesses in Northville this year.

Ebert Selected by Order

The Ebert Funeral Home has again been appointed as the member of the Order of the Golden Rule in this community. We feel that Northville is to be congratulated upon having an international fraternal organization of funeral directors having earned high ideals of service, and rigid ethical standards.

The Symbol of the Order, which one may identify the funeral home, presents a knight in full armor, supporting with his right hand a shield upon which is emblazoned the motto of the order: "Service Measuring the year is then taken into consideration before he is accepted into this fellowship."

Completes Course

Robert J. Anderson, 41071 McManis, Northville, Michigan, has completed a course in Radio and Television Servicing and has been awarded a Diploma by the National Radio Institute of Washington, D. C. He finished the practical course of technical studies with credit grades and is to be congratulated upon his achievement.
