Kitchen Diary Pecan Cookie Treat

This week, Kitchen Diary features two recipes Mrs. Glenn Long tabs "hand-me-downs."

The pert mother of three went on to explain that the recipes she was contributing "have been in the family and my cook book so long I'm not exactly sure where they came from."

In any event, both are favorites of 14-year-old Jim Long and his 15-year-old brother, Tom, who'll soon be coming home from Clemson university in South Carolina for the summer holidays.

The recipes:

FLUFFY FRUIT SALAD
1 package lemon jello
1 cup water
1/2 cup orange juice
2 Tbs. lemon juice
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1/2 cup orange segments
1/2 cup drained pineapple tidbits
1/2 cup grape halves
2 Tbs. quartered marshmallow cherries
2 Tbs. chopped nuts
1 cup whipping cream, pinch of salt

Dissolve jello in hot water. Add fruit juice and pinch of salt. Let cool. Add gradually to mayonnaise, chill until partially set. Whip with a beater until fluffy and light. Fold in fruits, nuts and whipped cream. Pour into one quart mold. Chill until firm. Serve about eight.

PECAN COOKIES
1/4 cup butter
1 cup granulated sugar
2 eggs, beaten
2 cups flour, sifted
1 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
2 cups whole pecan nuts
1 cup chopped dates
2 cups cornflakes
1 tsp. vanilla

Cream butter, sugar, salt in egg and mix well. Stir flour with baking powder and slowly add to first mixture. Stir in pecans, dates, cornflakes and vanilla. Drop by teaspoon on buttered cookie sheet. Bake in 350 degree oven for 15 minutes or until lightly browned. Makes five dozen.

IN REVIEW Nostalgia, USA

Under social security, what's become of the Rip Van Winkle, the Henry David Thoreau?

"What's become" questions like these echo throughout R. L. Dufus' latest journey, Tuesday one to Nostalgia, USA, via the Williamstown, Vermont, region.

Cheerily subtitled "If you don't like the 1960's, why don't you go back where you came from" — the book is filled with questions which drag the reader back to what might be called Dufus' central theme: the deplorable loss of freedom in today's world.

Dufus declares in this new Northville Public Library book that "modern man longs for adventure and of this, social security deprives him."

"This is indeed the end of our adventure, as of his. We have been too cunning for ourselves. We have outsmarted ourselves and we who love liberty must go along with those who chiefly love neatness and orderliness."

"We who cherish a thought of being harmlessly eccentric and peculiar must have a social security number and sign, as directed, on the dotted line," Dufus concludes.

The implication in Dufus' book is that the 1960's, the present world we live in, is not as free as we think it is. It is, in fact, the reader's choice to go to Plymouth, or to accept this latest Dufus journey, not as a value judgement of the times, but instead as a collection of light pleasantries about the past.

But, frankly, I was bored.

MONEY IN THE BANK

Kindergarten students of Miss Grace Pollock, teacher at the Main street school, have been buying savings stamps all year long. But Tuesday they had the chance to learn more about saving as they toured the local office of Manufacturers National Bank. Here, Linda Woboril receives her $25 bond from assistant bank manager William Keith, as Keith Glaesfer compares bonds. All the students were treated, however. They received penny collection boxes as gifts.

Reader Speaks: Cites College Advantages

To the Editor:
Yes, I am prepared to support community education beyond the high-school level. Yet the population boom in the college age group.
I do believe that Northville has everything to gain by joining the Community College district. Considering the location of Schoolcraft College, Northville stands to benefit perhaps more than the other towns in the district. There should be an increase in home-building and a maintenance of high property values. We will have cultural benefits right next to us through the art and music programs. Economically speaking, Schoolcraft College offers our students:
a. Lower tuition.
b. Saving the cost of room and board by living at home.
c. Saving on transportation.
d. Opportunity to work and go to college in the evening.
e. Believes financial need of this family with more than one child in college.
f. Provides inexpensive first two years for the student who qualifies and desires to go on to graduate or professional school.
Academically speaking, Schoolcraft offers:
a. an opportunity to border-line students, "late bloomers" or emotionally immature students not ready for college work, to accept college on a trial basis.
b. complete 2-year career curricula leading directly to employment.
c. adult education for employment advancement or personal satisfaction.
How can we as a community find it morally fair to reap the benefits and not be prepared to pay the price?
Sincerely,
Mrs. H. O. Stevens

Car Hits Bicyclist

She was riding her bicycle on Seven Mile road near Eaton drive when she was struck by a car.

Here's Tips On Painting

Interior paints are of three basic types. Knowing the characteristics of each will help you select the right paint for your rooms.
HIGH-GLOSS finish, available in both wall paint and enamel, is extremely washable and easy to keep clean. It is resistant to grease and stains. However, glossy surfaces tend to produce glare. High-gloss finish is often used in hard-wearing areas such as kitchens and bathrooms. Enamel is recommended for wood trim where washability is important.
SEMI-GLOSS has a more pleasing tone but not quite the degree of washability of high gloss. This finish is good for areas such as children's bedrooms or family room.
FLAT-WALL finish is the most popular finish, used primarily in living rooms, dining rooms and bedrooms where beauty comes before washability.

Al Conquers Plane Stalls by Stubborn Persistence

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth in a series of articles concerning the fun, adventure and difficulty in learning to fly, written by Al Lohowitz of our South Lyon Herald staff. He is talking lessons at the New Hudson airport.
There comes a point in flying, so old flying veterans tell me, when you think you've reached an impasse. That's the point where you have to decide that YOU'RE going to fly the plane, the plane isn't going to fly you.
I think I know what they mean. I reached an impasse. And what did I do? Stalls! "What would happen if someday the airplane stalled on you?"
When I first started flying, some quarter hecklers asked me that question. I was wondering how I'd get out of the side of the road, get out, and see what the matter was, I had jokingly shot back to them these would-be fear-mongers, I considered it a smart aleck answer to a smart aleck question. Little did I think that one day this was going to be a problem.
And I was right. Anyone can stall out and this is precisely one of the reasons it's so important to know how to recover properly. Another reason why this exercise is important is that all airplane landings are — in effect — stalls.
When the pilot is a few feet off the ground, he gently lifts the nose of the plane, creates a stall, and before the plane has a chance to dip too far, he settles gracefully to the ground.
Humph, I snuffed in disdain. For a fellow who's learned to fly straight and level, make back to lift the nose, it's easy turns, climb, and glide, this will be a cinch. To my dismay, I discovered there was much more to it.
First of all, as the plane approaches the point just before it drops its nose and begins to dive, it's extremely important that the wings are kept level. If one wing is tipped up, the plane, in its downward fall, could begin spinning.
Also it takes no imagination to see what would happen if, in landing, one of the wings rudder must be kicked. Then as the plane responds, the other rudder must be kicked. Skillful and immediate rudder action will keep the plane on an even keel.
Over and over I tried this. "Take the plane up to 250 feet and do me a stall," Bill McKinley, my instructor, repeatedly told me. Up I would go. I'd try it. No luck. Instead of a smooth maneuver, I'd come twisting down and lose several hundred feet.
"Take the plane up and do me a stall," his voice wearily repeated. Over and over again until at night I was kicking rudders in my sleep. What was wrong? Was I the idiot of the year?
Then came the glorious day when I don't know why this day was different, but for some reason I awoke with the firm resolve to fly that blankety-blank plane. Maybe I had remembered what the old-timers had told me. I don't know, but one thing I was sure of. No machine was going to get the best of me.
Possibly to prove I wasn't going to stand for any monkey business and that I was in dead earnest, I even put on my work clothes.
And surprise of surprises! It was easy. Just like that! I did it. Of course it was a little shaky but I did it. Then I did it again. Great. Wonderful.
"I knew you'd do it all along," Bill told me afterwards. I yawned. "Watch," I said in a matter-of-fact tone. But despite my outward display of casualness and despite my thinking only a few minutes before that I was the world's dumb bell, I couldn't help feeling a wee bit like Alexander the Great coming back from conquering the world.

Wixom Heritage Farm Includes Flying Field

Wixom's heritage farm has an unusual "crop" in its back yard. It's a flying field.
Unlike any other 100-year-old farm in these parts, it's housing a hangar, filled with the area's small airplanes.
But in spite of what one of today's owners calls "the plane playground" nestled behind the farm, it operates in the tradition begun by George Spencer.
Friday, Wixom's Michigan Week committee will award the second and third-generation Spencers — Vernon and George — a heritage farm plaque.
Vernon Spencer, once an outfitter for the New York Giants, reported his dad, George, "rolled up to Detroit from Ohio along about '54."
"He was a hotel-saloon-keeper's son and just plain first of playing around with dancing bears."
You see, Spencer explained, "My dad, 19 at the time, was expected to entertain his dad's guests by pulling a trained bear through a routine."
Once the first Spencer arrived in Michigan, it wasn't long until he found his way to Wixom and there purchased a three-year-old farm.
The farm in hand, the elder Spencer began exploring the livestock business, eventually buying sheep and cattle, traversing as far as Colorado to sell his beef.
Today, the farm still features cattle, but now it's a dairy herd managed by young George.
The years between the changing of the cattle were growing-up years for Vernon Spencer, now 70. About the time he was getting ready to begin third grade, he says he became obsessed with kill-deers.

"I kept watching them," he recalled with a grin, "and thinking I oughta be able to fly as well as a bird."
Finally, I decided I'd try it myself. I said, "I got my dad's new black umbrella, climbed up on top of a 40-foot haystack, opened 'er up and sailed off there."
Sheepishly still, Spencer confessed, "I busted my dad's good umbrella, but hopped away from the war in a surplus store."
Calling the episode his "first parachute jump," Spencer said it only made him "more curious" about flying.
World War I rolled around and Spencer went off to enlist, hoping to learn more about planes.
"The U.S. Air Force wouldn't take me," he said, "because I wasn't a high school graduate." Rejected here, he went to London, Ontario, to sit out his war with the air force there.
His consolation prize: a five-engine Kamak, bought after the war in a surplus store.
Spencer brought it home, asparachute jump." Spencer said it only made him "more today's air strip, he says.

SPEAKING for The Record

By BILL SLIGER

This week our state of Michigan is paying tribute to itself.

Novi and Wixom are celebrating the annual event with special observances throughout the week. Highlight was Monday's mayor exchange program in recognition of Government Day.

Feted in Novi was Mayor Robert E. Teifer of Trenton; in Wixom the village president of Sparta, David J. Johnson, was the guest of honor.

Northville skipped official participation in the week. It was the first time in its 10 year history, chiefly because of the new city hall project. Next year city leaders hope to resume the celebration and show off the new municipal facilities.

Newspapers have been besieged with material containing interesting facts about our nation's 26th state. In the belief that we should know more about our own home state, I'm including just a few.

We'll 'Think' Visit 50 Years Hence

Babson Park, Mass. — I am thinking today of the minute wires serving as mile posts in merely one area of activity since I was a boy — namely, transportation.

My grandfather cut cordwood and hauled it into Gloucester on an ox sled. I felt free as from ailments such as arthritis, weak heart, and blood troubles. Many of our physical illnesses may be due to lack of road ways.

Another field in which I believe great developments will take place is the use of magnifying glasses. I am having one made now three feet in diameter. Our eyes are a wonderful possession, and something really revolutionary could be developed in the way of magnification help — something that would help ease the strain which all of us place on our overworked eyes.

As I have said in previous columns, however, the greatest changes will come about through some form of television. Before long, TV will give out sunshine and also transmit sunshine. By pressing a button we will be able to get heat, or light, or air conditioning via television.

Many reading this column will live to see our educational system entirely reorganized. Young people will be trained to think and reason. We will not need to pay thousands of dollars for a data-processing machine when each of us carries in his head a machine that is more efficient and powerful than any computer.

Latching onto this idea, MPA members joined in an effort with John W. Crawford, of the Michigan State University division of mass communications to make one attempt to improve Salinger's observation.

The result was a recent visit to Michigan by three United Nations correspondents: Dr. Sabina Letourneau of Frankfurt, Germany; George E. Ennifin of the Ghana News Service.

Chemists tell me that great changes will take place in the food we eat. It will become more tasteful, more digestible, more healthful, and free from any poisons. It will be lighter on the stomach, and place fifty years from now. Our imagination will become stronger, aided by TV and cinematography, and we will travel less but use the telephone much more.

We know the billions of radio waves which are in the air and in the rooms where we live are being read. Yes, our clothing party includes

Our Top 10 Killers

Continued emphasis on good prenatal care brought about another drop in the number of infant and maternal deaths during the past year, but infant immaturity and congenital malformations remained among the "top 10" killers in Michigan during the period.

Then the three split up for a single day's visit. Leitmann went to Sebewing as guest of the Sebewing Blood-Cent. Ennifin went to Vickburg to be entertained by Meredith Clark, publisher of the Vickburg Commercial, and Bogachev traveled to Whitehall with Louis J. Berman, an MSU staff member and publisher of the Whitehall Forum.

This unique project designed to increase international understanding through professional ties could be profitably expanded.

Leadership, consistency, patience, understanding and perception are attributes needed in this special variety of people. It may well be that you fall into this category.

According to Dr. Troy Stearns of the Michigan State University College of Education, every parent needs to have great quantities of these attributes, as well as other characteristics.

"Parents must set a good example for children to follow, and then be patient as the child attempts, in his own way, to follow this example," he said.

Haass Elected

Paterboro, N.H. — Robert A. Haass of Farm Crest Farms in Northville has been elected to membership in The American Guernsey Cattle Club, non-profit agricultural organization serving over 40,000 purebred Guernsey breeders.

Blowing his own horn for taking hold of a good idea is the position where the Michigan Press Association finds itself.

Early this year Pierre Salinger, Presidential news secretary, noted at the association's annual meeting that usully foreign newsmen see only New York and Washington, D.C., because there is no effort made to show them other parts of the country.

Professor George R. Harrison, Dean of the School of Science at MIT in Cambridge, Mass., has written a book, which every educator should read.

If I, during my lifetime, have advanced from driving an ox team to riding a jet plane, is it not reasonable that those who are young today will see similar progress?

Chemists tell me that great changes will take place in the food we eat. It will become more tasteful, more digestible, more healthful, and free from any poisons. It will be lighter on the stomach, and place fifty years from now.

Wixom Council OK's $224,132 Budget

The 1963-64 record high budget of $224,132 for the city of Wixom was approved 5-1 by $200 across-the-board increases in the council Thursday night after a threatened strike by the city employees.

Two other proposed alterations in the budget were given up by the council. —Lahli's request for a $300 increase in the attorney's budget salary of $270. Voting "aye", Lahli and Councilman Oscar Simmons.

—Coe's recommendation that a 15 cent per hour increase be given to wage employees of the Department of Public Works.

THE NOVI NEWS

State Vetoes High School In Novi

Meeting in special session last week, Novi's board of education learned that the state department of instruction will not let the Novi district proceed with the construction of a junior high school.

But, the letter from the state's bond qualification committee continued, "It is also our opinion that Novi district should not operate a senior high school and that the senior high school problem should be solved by some other means."

Mayor Wesley McAtee agreed that a pay schedule would have to be adopted as soon as possible, adding, however, that the proposed increase was in keeping with increases and wages paid in surrounding communities.

Wixom's first mayor, Joseph Sladnik, also recommended that all city employees merit an increase in pay.

In other action, the council adopted a discussion of six days for hourly employees.

—Postponed action on a report from the accountant on budgetary procedures.

—Postponed action on the purchase of library cards for interested Wixom residents until the next meeting.

—Gave authorization to enter into a contract to acquire the parcel of the Wixom road for $240. Use of the easements will permit the city to improve the road by eliminating two dangerous curves.

—Approved the selling of 800 feet on Charns road and 300 feet on Oakland county road at eight cents per foot.

—Passed a resolution transferring $50,000 from the general fund to the city of Wixom. The money, which will be deposited in the National Bank of Detroit, is part of a $750,000 needed to match general funds.

—Set a tentative special meeting of the council for August 12 to finalise a plan for borrowing an additional $40,000 to complete matching of federal funds for road improvement. The meeting will not be called if an extension of the July 17 deadline is granted.

Parades Mark Area's Tribute To War Dead

Novi and Wixom will pause briefly Thursday to pay tribute to those who gave their lives in our nation's wars.

Honored here, as throughout the nation, will be servicemen who died in the Civil War, First and Second World Wars and the Korean conflict.

The parade will proceed to Oakwood cemetery where an American Legion-VFW firing squad will salute the dead.

En route to Rural Hill cemetery and primary services of the day, a stop will be made at the bridge overlooking the Rouge River to drop a wreath in memory of the Navy's war dead. There, a salute will be fired and Legion Chaplain Mrs. Mable Cooley will pray briefly.

At Rural Hill, Reverend Robert Spradling, pastor of the First Baptist church will lead the services; Harry Smith, Main street school principal and a colonel in the Army reserves will deliver the address and Terry LaRue, a high school student, will give an oration.

Similar services are planned in Northville. There, the day's activities will get underway at 8:45 a.m. sharp when parades assemble at VFW post quarters on Dunlap.

Traditional Memorial Day services will be held in Novi, including a parade and services at Oakland Hills Memorial Gardens under the auspices of the Board of Commerce for the fourth year.

With Herb Dryer serving as chairman, Thursday's parade will form at 8:45 a.m. across the road from the old Novi cemetery on Novi road.

From there, the paraders — including young folks on streamer-decorated bikes, the Blue Star mothers and Boy and Girl Scouts in full dress — will proceed to Oakland Hills Memorial Gardens near 12 Mile road.

Piping the marchers along to the cemetery will be the 40-member Walled Lake Junior high school band with Chairman Dryer and Emory Jacques serving as drum majors.

Delivering the cemetery address by a veteran's grave will be Reverend R. LaVere West, pastor of the Novi Methodist church.

The $100,000 complex, including a restaurant and service station, will be located between US-16 and Old Grand River on the west side of Wixom road.

Virgel Mooney, Pure Oil engineer, reported that the company is now negotiating with construction companies.

He noted that, if possible, the company hopes to have the complex completed early next fall so that a good tourist trade can be established for the following year.

Plans for the complex show construction of a large restaurant seating 150, and service station now with eventual establishment of a large motel. The building development is a financial success.

The station and the restaurant will be situated near the station favoring the Wixom road frontage and the restaurant, east bound expressway traffic.

Through Northville Novi Sewer Route Set

While an exact starting date is "not yet pinned down," Oakland county DPW officials reported this week that sewer lines are near completion for construction of the Novi sanitary trunk sewer through Northville.

The line will give Novi zone 2,900 lines in the Wayne county Middle Rouge system and represents the first sanitary sewer system available in Novi.

Specifically, the line will extend from 10 Mile road in Novi to a point in the southeast corner of Northville where it will connect with the existing interceptor.

Route diagrams through the city of Northville were studied by the Northville council last week. The line enters the city approximately at the intersection of the C & O railroad and Novi road. It extends south of the railroad, under the new Eight Mile road cutoff, down back land then along the Mill pond, down Griswold to Main, cutting south across Main at Park Place and westward to River street which it follows south to the interceptor connection.

Oakland county officials assured Northville that construction would not be carried out in the area of the track. The contract also stipulates that disrupted roads will be backfilled immediately to avoid traffic disturbances.

The city of Northville will also make use of the new trunk line. Through an agreement with Oakland county, the city gained permission to tap into the line thus relieving some of the capacity from the city's north-central and northeastern section. The city's capacity in the Novi line is limited to 20,000 GPD, or service for about 1,500 residents.

One of the final details for Oakland county officials to complete before construction is the matter of easement agreements. They reported "only a couple" remaining to be settled and did not consider that condemnation proceedings would be necessary.

A Northville resident was one of 55 Michigan inventors honored Tuesday night at a Cobo Hall banquet celebrating the 50th anniversary of the Michigan Patent Law Association.

It is William C. Wiley, 4185 Eight Mile road, who is manager of the applied physics laboratory for the research laboratories division of Bendix corporation in Southfield.

Wiley has 32 patents to his credit with the mass spectrometer pending. A number of his patents all created to solve technical problems or broaden the company's product base, include new types of electron multipliers.

In Wiley's words, an electron multiplier does just what it implies — it multiplies electrons. As an electron strikes one end of the device a million to a billion electrons will come out the other end.

There are a number of applications in science for electron multipliers, Wiley explained. Many are used to detect light. One of the first electron multipliers invented by Wiley is now orbiting in a satellite called the "Orbiting Solar Observatory" launched by the National Aeronautics and Space Agency a year ago. It is being used to detect the ultraviolet light from the sun, which will not penetrate the earth's atmosphere and so must be measured from a high-altitude rocket or satellite.

Novi's board of education and the Oakland county Democratic party's executive committee went on record last week in support of the Oakland county community college plan.

Both groups urged a "yes" vote June 10 for the establishment of a community college district and a one-half mill to support it.

In support of its stand, the Democratic committee pointed out that the facilities for higher education in Michigan are already strained by an expanding college-age population. Moreover, the committee stated population projections indicate a dramatic increase in this expansion in the immediate future.

The committee also stated that Oakland county will lead the state in the rate of increase of college-age and college-eligible youth during the next decade. An increasingly higher degree of vocational and technical training is being required of youth entering the labor market, the committee added.

"Continually colleges in the county would provide a partial solution that is both educationally sound and economically realistic," concluded the resolution adopted by the committee.

A Chevy II wagon looks this big when you load it up and this big when you gas it up

That, in the eyes of most Chevy II wagon owners, is just about the size of it. A king-size appetite for cargo. But a dainty one for gas. And this, we hardly need add, is just the kind of wagon we planned it to be. Taut and trim as it is on the outside, we went to great lengths to keep it BIG where a wagon should be BIG. The load platform extends a full nine feet from the back of the front seat to the tip of the lowered tailgate.

And for all the pepper we packed into that 6-cylinder engine (there's also a choice of an even thrifter 4 in most models), we were careful to keep it simple, easy to service — and a real stealer on economy. Feel in a traveling mood? Well — happy coincidences — this is the time of year your Chevy dealer feels in his most generous trading mood. Looks like it's high time you two got together.
