In W-O Conference Wanted: Win to Clinch 2nd

Out of the gloom of a heart-breaking loss, Clarkston came a good way late Friday night. Clarenceville upset Bloomfield Hills 48-40, to virtually hand sole possession of second place in the Wayne-Oakland Conference to Northville.

Northville now has an 8-3 record, while Bloomfield Hills, the only challenger with a mathematical chance of catching Northville, is 5-6. The magic number is one. A Northville victory or a Bloomfield Hills loss would sew up second place for Northville.

CONFUSION-This is part of the confusion which reigned at Northville high school Friday night after the Clarkston-Dan Fife (33) listens as Referee "Doc" Kosteva (hand raised) explains what happened to Don Mauti, Clarkston athletic director and assistant principal.

Quick Action Halts Explosive Ending

What happened during the hectic closing seconds and the aftermath of Friday's ball game with Clarkston? To be sure, confusion reigned Friday night. But until after the disorder did officials begin to piece together the sequence of events that led to skirmishes on the Northville High school gymnasium floor.

Predictably, tension was high for the game. Clarkston wished to preserve its unbeaten status and win the Wayne-Oakland Conference title. The incentive was equally as great for Northville. The Mustangs still held slim hopes of somehow, miraculously, grabbing a share of the title. At least, Northville hoped to avenge an earlier, 84-49 trouncing by Clarkston and to spoil Clarkston's hopes for an undefeated season.

Tie for W-O Lead Colts Trounce Cubs

"We completely tore them apart," uttered by Coach Bob Kucher, the words tell more than the score (79-56) of the Colts' prowess Friday night. Victory enabled Northville to tie Clarkston in the race for the Wayne-Oakland league junior varsity title. Both teams have 9-2 records.

"We may have played a little too cautiously in the second quarter," Longridge said. There was no sign of timidity when Northville returned to the floor. The Mustangs scored on their first two shots, then added another bucket after a Clarkston turnover to set the margin to 28-26 and set the tenor for the remainder of the ball game.

Northville's game plan worked to perfection. Coach Longridge declared before the game that Northville would play deliberate ball to contain Clarkston's devastating fast break and to slow the tempo. Selmon did the waiting game. Clarkston, an unbeaten season and the league title. By winning the Wolves (11-0) thus ensured themselves of a share of the title with only three games remaining to be played. Northville is 8-3.

"We were as high as the sky," Northville Coach Dave Longridge said. "We dedicated ourselves to this game."

Northville's performance indicated as much. Beaten 84-49 in the first encounter between the two teams at Clarkston, Northville battled back from an eight point deficit Friday night and traded baskets with Clarkston through the third and fourth quarters in a determined effort to win the ball game.

This was, indeed, Northville's finest game of the year. It had to be, for Clarkston is a versatile, experienced club, one of the best to play in the W-O. In fact, if the Wolves win the rest of their games - as they assuredly will - they will be the second team to win 14 conference games without defeat. Northville did it in 1961-62.

Fife, the all-star, is the team leader and driving force. Averaging 32 points going into Friday's game, the '92' cager, is an accurate shooter from outside and a demon when driving.

Guard Joe Andrews drew the assignment to cover the Clarkston senior, Andrews, a 5'7" junior, rose to the task. He hung tenaciously to Fife, holding him to 23 points and continually cut off scoring avenues.

And despite his size, Andrews was a demon on the boards, leaping high to snare rebounds away from taller opponents. Clarkston's Dan Fife and guard Tom Allen once again to give Clarkston a narrow, 16-15 lead at the end of the first quarter.

Drop Charges Against Youths

Charges of disorderly conduct filed against 15 youths, nine from Northville, were dismissed February 4 in Northville Municipal court.

Instead, Judge Charles McDonaud ordered the teenagers to write a 1000-word theme on "What I learned from my experience" on January 24. At that time, as many as 80 youths created unrest that threatened to end in a rumble, it was reported.

Motion for a new trial for David A. Wilder, 17, who admitted "looking for a fight", was granted. Charges were dismissed and a fine of $55, levied during his arraignment, was rescinded. He was one of the 15 instructed to write a paper.

Cases against two boys involved in the January 24 disturbance are still pending.

Fish Hatchery Fate Remains Uncertain

Little optimism existed this week as city officials waited for official word on the disposition of the Seven Mile road fish hatchery property.

According to City Manager Frank Ollendorf, who was in contact with both government and Wayne State university officials late last week, the government's General Services Administration (GSA) has agreed to delay its decision on the property for 10 days.

Furthermore, he said GSA has suggested that the city and Wayne State university consider the possibility of cooperatively sharing the property.

In discussing the matter with university officials, Ollendorf learned that the university would give "the matter some thought" since it may have some difficulty in raising sufficient funds to operate the 15-acre fish hatchery property as a research center to include a laboratory on water pollution.

Ollendorf said GSA may take one of three steps at the end of the 10-day period:

- Further delay its decision pending consideration of the city's application.
- Award the property to Wayne State university as recommended by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).
- Further delay its decision in order to give the city and Wayne State time to come up with a cooperative-use proposal.

Stepped up attempts by the city to secure at least a portion of the facility followed HEW's action on February 3 in denying the Northville school system's application in favor of use by Wayne State university.

The city is basing its right to be considered as a possible recipient of the property on an April, 1966 letter to GSA in which it stated that in the event the school system's application was denied that its application (the city's) be given consideration. GSA subsequently acknowledged the city's letter.

BARN BLAZE - Firemen from Novi, Wilson, Northville, Walled Lake, Bloomfield, Commerce, Highland and Milford fought flames and zero temperatures Sunday morning at the Ralph Buffmyer farm, 620 South Pontiac trail, in Novi. They prevented the fire from spreading from a smaller barn used for storing hay to the larger barn, which housed 18 head of cattle, four horses and hundreds of bales of hay. The animals were led from the barn. The top picture shows the Buffmyer residence from Pontiac trail, while the picture below was taken from the barnyard at the rear. Firemen received the call at 8:20 a.m. Cause of the fire was undetermined. Damage was estimated at more than $10,000.

Consumers Plans Giant Investment

Consumers Power Company will invest $3,200,000 in the western Wayne County area as part of its 1967 program to expand and improve natural gas service, James P. Thomas, West Wayne division manager said.

The division, headquartered in Livonia, expects to add 3,700 new gas customers in 1967. Plans include the construction of an addition to the Livonia service center, Thomas said.

The division serves 67,000 customers in an area encompassing 260 square miles of western Wayne county, including the communities of Farmington, Livonia, Wayne, Northville, Novi and Plymouth.

The projects in the division are part of the company's 1967 expansion and improvement program of $136,000,000.

Natural gas customers receive gas supplies by way of an interconnected network of pipelines from southwestern United States and from underground storage fields in various locations in Michigan.

To keep abreast of the growth of its gas operations, Consumers Power is continuing a development program in St. Clair and Macomb counties. Included are additions to the Ray gas compressor station and expansion of underground storage facilities.

OFFICE REMODELED - The offices of C. Harold Bloom insurance agency, 108 West Main street, have been entirely remodeled and the 30-year-old agency is inviting the public to Circus last week. Hackett also took a group of Novi school children to the circus. It's his way of carrying on the tradition of the Shriners, who, besides treating youngsters, help raise money through the circus to support 19 crippled children's hospitals throughout the United States. Hackett lives at 40141 Eight Mile.

In 1967, the challenge is even greater... because Cadillac has never before asserted its leadership so convincingly. Start with beauty. Cast about for a luxury car contender that can list such styling advancements as Cadillac's dramatic new roof line, its forward sweeping front design and its graceful and flowing side contours. # SPEAKING for The Record

By BILL SLIGER

If legislation now under consideration in Lansing wins approval, Northville will lose its municipal court.

There may be long range advantages, but for the foreseeable future the action would serve only to penalize the community.

About five years ago the city council acted to establish a municipal court under an ordinance that provides the judge must be an attorney. The council knew at that time that the days of the old justice of the peace courts were numbered. Therefore, the creation of a municipal court, by vote of the people, was accomplished for the two-fold purpose of providing (1) improved court facilities; and (2) hopefully preventing loss of a local court when the state acted to replace all justice courts.

But the present legislation replaces municipal courts, too. It creates district courts. And under the plan now advocated Northville and Plymouth would compose a district served by one court.

Presently, Northville is blessed with an excellent municipal court. And full credit for its operation must go to Judge Charles McDonald, who has demonstrated that he possesses remarkable abilities to handle this most responsible position.

The court operates effectively, efficiently and profitably.

If the municipal court is abandoned in favor of a district court, this community, at least, will lose valuable court accessibility and familiarity with local problems. It will also lose time and service of its police department, which must send officers to court to testify. The bigger and more distant the court, the longer the time lost by members of the small-staffed force.

There's always the danger, too, that officers, reluctant to "waste" a day sitting around waiting in court, will be less inclined to take action against offenses considered "minor".

The Michigan Municipal League opposes abolishment of municipal courts and seeks only replacement of justice courts. And although we can see advantages to district courts that can attract more judge candidates and, perhaps provide a salary adequate to maintain full-time status, under present circumstances Northville would stand to lose.

he (personally) is opposed to secret sessions ... If only other members would agree, the press would be free to remain.

Monday night two board members were absent. Who knows?

What school boards seem to fail to recognize is that the press is not campaigning to get its own foot in the door at secret sessions.

It wants the public inside. It believes that the public is just as capable of understanding knotty school problems as board members. And it believes that if there are fewer secret meetings there will be fewer rumors and better community understanding, sympathy and support for our schools.

If the public knows EXACTLY the reasoning behind decisions made at the table, rather than having to depend upon rumor, then it can at least appreciate that thoughtful consideration has been given all sides of the subject. (How many versions can you hear on the administrative pay hikes awarded Monday night without discussion, for example?)

There are times when closed-door sessions are necessary and justified. But they are far, far fewer than has become the custom locally.

Wayne county has put a damper on a local proposal to continue Wing street through to Hines drive.

County road commission and park officials said "no" flatly to the city's request for about 90 feet of park land so that the road might be cut through to connect with Hines drive a short block west of the Sheldon road (Center street) intersection.

The county's main objection was the creation of what it termed a "traffic hazard".

The project, which the city promised to explore, was proposed by the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce and John Carlo, executive manager of Northville Downs.

It's possible that the Downs could provide enough area for the extension through its own property. Carlo would like the road to provide an alternate route around the Center street entrance to the track's proposed, new clubhouse.

A newspaper trade journal carried a story recently about a newspaper in another state plagued by a rash of school board "executive sessions".

The editor of that paper decided that in the future these after-adjudgment meetings would be designated as "secret" and not "executive", so that readers might not be confused as to the nature of the closed sessions.

We think that's a good idea - both in Northville and Novi (the latter board is getting the habit lately, too).

Ironically, as we adopt this clarification of terminology, the Northville board (Monday night) invited Editor Bill Hoffman to remain for the secret session. That made the proceedings sort of half-secret. Hoffman knows what happened, but just like the board members and administrators, he won't tell. That's what makes these secret sessions so effective and constructive - no one ever says a word about what happens, therefore there's never any possibility of conflicting interpretations or confusing rumors.

... "So when the bankroll got down to where we started pooling coats, we'd go out and catch butterflies and moths and sell 'em to this nutty professor. He'd pay us a couple of bucks for the lot."

When finally after a lengthy discourse he had unraveled the last tale I felt compelled to go him one better by admitting to a trick I might be by. A friend was outlining the various schemes he used in raising money during his college days.

Bufford Campus was his name, sliced down to Buff by those who preferred not to touch off an explosion. He was an honor student, later graduated at the top of his class, and now holder of a job in the nation's Capitol - probably as an assistant to someone like Bobby Baker or Adam Clayton Powell.

I should have guessed that this guy would come up with something undesirable, but nevertheless followed him in to the lobby of one of that city's hospitals.

"We're here to sell blood," he announced to the receptionist. Pulling him aside immediately, I reminded him of an earlier ultimatum that I'd never again submit to a blood-letting.

"Twenty-five bucks, that's why," he shouted. "Those tightwads in Ann Arbor give only fifteen. I promise this will be the last time."

The 'last time' had come and gone.

A LOOSE LEAF

By ROLLY PETERSON

Everybody loves a hero. And if that hero also happens to be a super star in the mold of Humphrey Bogart, James Cagney, et al Hollywood heroes, then the public is sure to go where our hero is. This is the most compelling, but insubstantial reason why viewers will walk through theatre doors to watch "The Sand Pebbles."

Steve McQueen is "the name" emblazoned on the marquee outside the Music Hall theatre in Detroit where "Pebbles" is presently showing. The role of Jake Holman, which McQueen assumes, is a natural for him.

Holman, in fact, fills the image of McQueen. He's an independent tough guy, a man with a mind of his own. In the beginning, his mind is on one thing only - engines. This particular engine is in the hold of an old gunboat, the USS San Pablo, that patrols the inland waters of the Yangtze river during the revolution of 1925 in China.

It's a soft life aboard the gunboat, which, ostensibly, is protecting the lives of Americans abroad from ruthless Chinese land barons. Or, at least, life has been peaceful. Enter Holman and all hell breaks loose. He's the rugged catalyst whose mere presence stirs up the crew. Does Holman budge? Not him. He defies his mates aboard the San Pablo and cottons only to his engine, his first love.

For Holman, you see, he has had a rough boyhood. Circumstance trapped him while yet a youth and he was kicked out of school. Having sworn off human beings, engines are now his only friends. But what happens aboard the San Pablo humanizes Holman. He takes the part of the underdog, assists the odds, and although he may not defeat them, nevertheless, he is a man for having tried.

What happens within - aboard the San Pablo - reflects the turmoil seething without. The Chinese are rebelling against foreign intervention and against cruel war lords. Communism, the panacea, has found its first fertile soil among the discontent masses of the far east.

McQueen is no less battling the exterior forces of Communism. Not because of ideological reasons, for McQueen, with his dogged individualism, could not accept ideology - democratic or communist - any more than he could accept the rigors of militarism, such as saluting, spit and polish. McQueen fights the forces, the masses of Communism because they brutally

We Lose More Customers That Way

Following is a transcript of a February 6 telephone conversation between Bill Sliger, Record publisher, and Sam Sherer, president of Detroit Federal Savings & Loan:

Sliger: "Hello, Sam. How have you been? Just called to see if you'd like to have lunch one of these days?"
 Sherer: "I'd be a pleasure. Matter of fact, I'll be in Northville Saturday. Are you buying?"
 Sliger: "Sure, Sam. You know me. Saturday will be great."
 Sherer: "You sure there isn't anything else on your mind?"
 Sliger: "As a matter of fact, Sam, I was wondering why you dropped that advertising campaign you've been running weekly on our editorial page. It was a great ad... remember - 5 1/4% current annual rate, $1,000 minimum, six-months certificate, withdraw anytime, automatic renewal, and all that stuff."
 Sherer: "We took in too much money. It came in so fast we can't find places to put it to work. You know we're very careful in selecting investments for our customers' money."
 Sliger: "You mean the advertising was so effective that you have more money than you know what to do with?"
 Sherer: "That's about it... at least for now. So, you see, there's no reason for us to advertise."
 Sliger: "Hmmm."
 Sherer: "See you Saturday for lunch."
 Sliger: "Yeah, Sam. Hope you like hamburgers."

Both Northville, Plymouth
Served by 3 Generations

It was Schrader's Bros. in Northville and Plymouth in 1909. Below is a picture taken in the Northville store about the same time.

Schrader's has been a family name in home furnishings in both Northville and Plymouth for well over a half-century. And while 1967 marks the 60th anniversary of Schrader's Home Furnishings in Northville, it was 63 years ago—1904—that Nelson C. and Fred Schrader opened Schrader Bros.—Furniture and Undertakers—on Main Street in Plymouth.

In 1907 the brothers opened a second furniture store and undertaker's parlor in Northville. In the same location as the present Schrader's Home Furnishings, 111 North Center Street, Nelson C. Schrader moved to Northville to operate the local store and the brothers as partners until 1925, when the partnership was dissolved. In 1931 Schrader's Manager Harry Sedor, who has been with the Northville store since 1926, Schrader's employees who were there only three months when they were operating an undertaking business, Fred's son, Edwin Schrader, took over the business. Schrader's 60th anniversary is now owned and operated by Fred's son, Edwin Schrader, Jr., and his wife, Edith.

Schrader's of Northville continued to grow and become a leading name in the field of home furnishings in the state. Schrader's maintains a tradition of quality, consistent with the needs of the community it served, and it kept the same quality of merchandise and pricing that meets competitor's standards. One thing that has changed Schrader's is the name of the store. In 1938 the name was changed from Schrader's to Schrader's Home Furnishings. The store was then owned and operated by Nelson C. Schrader, Jr., and his wife, Edith. In 1941 the store was sold to Nelson C. Schrader, Jr., and his wife, Edith. In 1941 the store was sold to Nelson C. Schrader, Jr., and his wife, Edith.
