Flower Arranger To Display Talent

Dried flower arranging, a popular hobby with many Northville women, will be demonstrated and discussed by Marshall Engle, flower arranger and greenhouse supervisor at Greenfield Village and Henry Ford Museum, at Northville Woman's Club meeting at 1:30 p.m. Friday in the Presbyterian fellowship hall.

MARSHALL ENGLE

In charge of the Greenfield Village flower growing and arranging for 14 years, Engle is a graduate of the Ken Soutles School of Design. He worked for six years as a commercial greenhouse florist, receiving apprentice training for three years. His first on-the-job training in floriculture was a result of the World War II G.I. Bill. In the Henry Ford Museum, Engle arranges dried and fresh flowers in period settings for the three-century decorative arts galleries as well as general plant decoration for the street of Early American shops and mechanical arts hall.

Greenfield Village, world-famous for its rich historical collections and also for its gardens, has several major gardening projects. These include an herb garden, patterned from a thirteenth century design, an English Cotswold garden, a formal colonial garden, a Victorian garden and a floral clock. Historic houses in the village are decorated with dried or fresh flower arrangements of period design.

Special arrangements of holiday greens always are a Christmas season attraction at both the museum and in the village houses. Most recent major decorating project for the speaker was the decorating of the halls and tables for the annual fall Midwest Antiques Forum in October.

He will be introduced Friday by Mrs. Francis Gault, program chairman for the day. Mrs. Blake Couse, club president, has announced this will be a guest day. A tea will follow the program.

An honored guest at the state council meeting of the Women's National Farm and Garden Association for which the Northville branch was hostess last Thursday was Mrs. William McCollum of Birmingham, who organized the Northville branch in 1936.

Speaker at the luncheon at Meadowbrook country club was Mrs. H. M. Hallion, immediate past president of Associated Countrywomen of Australia. A homemaker on a farm of 1,200 acres "down under," she told about her organization's activities and interest in the arts and crafts.

Novi Justice Court

Justice of Peace Emery Jacques heard several cases for which he levied fines last Thursday in Novi Justice Court.

Two youths appeared on Conservation Department complaints. Harry N. Ramay, Jr., of Walled Lake and Gerald G. Woosley of Milford pleaded guilty to having "wounded and pursued" waterfowl. Each was assessed a $15 fine and $3 conservation costs.

Daniel J. Lynn of Detroit pleaded guilty to having an altered operator's license and paid $25.

J.D. Quisenberry of 46077 Grand River pleaded guilty to two offenses, one of no registration on person and the other on no proof of insurance and was fined $10 on each charge.

For having had no operator's license on his person when he was stopped on a traffic complaint on April 2, 1965, Melvin D. Smith of Ferndale paid $20 and $5 costs.

Driving on a revoked license was costly to Richard W. Griffin of Walled Lake. Upon pleading guilty, he was fined $50 and 10 days in jail (suspended) which he paid in lieu of 30 days in jail.

David A. Cook was arrested for fighting at Dave's Hamburger stand at Novi Road and Grand River. Cook, of 44239 12-Mile Road, pleaded guilty to a charge of disorderly person and paid a $25 fine.

Jaycees Seek Junior Miss

Can Northville Pick Another Winner?

Northville Jaycees are hoping "fame and fortune again can come to a lucky Northville girl" as they seek candidates for their annual Junior Miss Pageant to be held at 8 p.m. Saturday, November 23, in the high school auditorium.

Northville's 1967 winner, Pamela Smith, captured the Michigan state crown and went on to Mobile, Alabama, as a national finalist. She appeared on national television in February and won honors and scholarships. Candidates now are being sought by the Northville Jaycees for the Junior Miss Pageant, a national contest sponsored by the Jaycees to select the national ideal high school senior girl. Character, personality, leadership, talent and scholastic ability are stressed.

The pageant is open to all Northville senior high school girls between the ages of 16 and 19 who have not been married. Contestants will be judged by a panel of five prominent local judges on their scholastic achievement, by a conference with the judges, on creative and performing arts, poise and appearance and also youth fitness.

Each contestant will give a three-minute talent performance on any subject of her choice. The Northville Junior Miss will receive a cash donation for continued schooling and will represent Northville in the regional contest to be held in Redford Township. Twelve winners in the regional contest will be in the state finals at Pontiac.

High school senior girls interested in participating in the pageant are to contact Miss Barbara LeBoeuf at the high school or Ross Totten, 349-5124, Jaycee contest chairman, for entry blanks and further information.

David VanHine is Northville Jaycee chairman for the pageant. He stresses that the contest is not based on beauty alone and that the Jaycees do not conduct swimming suit contests or bathing beauty parades.

School Bus Violators Take Notice

With promise of a crackdown on school bus violators in this area at hand, Corporal H. D. Wade of the Redford State Police Post requested the state school bus law be published in full.

Motorists are urged to read and obey this law.

"School bus; overtaking, meeting and passing stopped bus, signs on bus. Sec. 682. (a) The driver of a vehicle shall not overtake or meet or pass any school bus which has stopped for the purpose of receiving or discharging passengers. All school buses shall contain such signs on the back and front thereof, with respect thereto, as shall be approved by the state highway commissioner.

"Same; resumption of motion; controlled traffic at intersection; cities and villages, posting of ordinance.

"(b) The driver of a vehicle overtaking or meeting any school bus which has stopped and is displaying two alternating flashing red lights located at the same level shall bring such vehicle to a full stop at least 10 feet from the school bus and shall not proceed until the school bus resumes motion or the school bus driver signals to proceed or the visual signals are no longer actuated.

"The driver of the school bus, before resuming motion, shall signal stopped traffic to proceed and shall when resuming motion proceed in such a manner as to allow congested traffic to disperse by keeping the bus as near to the right side of the road as can be done with safety.

"Passengers crossing the road upon being discharged from a school bus shall cross in front of the stopped school bus.

"At an intersection where traffic is controlled by an officer or a traffic stop-and-go signal a vehicle need not be brought to a full stop before passing any such school bus, but may proceed past such school bus at a speed not greater than is reasonable and proper and in no event greater than 10 miles an hour and with due caution for the safety of passengers being received or discharged from such school bus.

"This section shall not be applicable to buses inside incorporated cities or villages. Where the stopping for school buses is controlled by local ordinance, such ordinance shall be enforceable when signs giving notice of such local traffic regulation are posted upon or at the entrance to the area or part thereof affected as may be most appropriate or sufficiently legible as to be seen by an ordinarily observant person."

FLAMES DEVOUR LINK TO PAST

Waterford School Burned; 'One-Room' Era Ends Here

The last one-room schoolhouse owned by the Northville School District went up in flames Thursday night.

Hit by repeated acts of vandalism in recent weeks, the old Waterford school was torched by the Northville fire department at the request of school officials.

Board members had authorized supervised burning of the building, located on Franklin Road, after learning of extensive damage by vandals. Their action was prompted by a fear that vandals might themselves burn it, endangering adjacent homes.

Efforts to sell the old building in hopes of preserving it for historical purposes had failed earlier in the year.

Although the exact age of the building is unknown, school records show that it dated back to at least 1881. It may, however, have been considerably older. Some oldtimers had guessed its age at 100 or more.

A Waterford School minutes book housed in the Northville school vault shows the first entry in 1881. The ledger book itself was published in 1864.

Earliest teacher contract entry was signed on March 30, 1885 between the school district (Number 5) of the Township of Plymouth and Frank D. Morgan for a period of 12 weeks at a salary of $90. Subsequent contracts included, in addition to teaching, janitorial services by the teacher. The division of Plymouth Township with Northville occurred in 1898.

It appears that all teachers, even those whose contracts did not call for janitorial services, were required to stoke the pot-bellied stove. A typical teacher contract obligated the school board to "keep the schoolhouse in good repair and to provide the necessary fuel."

Last entry in the book was made in 1921 when it was noted that new school seats were purchased the building was insured for $1,500.

In 1895 the total school budget was approved at $275.17. It included $175 for the teacher, $5 for a flag staff, $15 for fuel, $5 for oiling the school floor, $31.17 for indebtedness, $5 for the library, $30 for incidentals, and $4 for the janitor.

Perhaps the most interesting entry was made on January 2, 1900 by the then school clerk, George Gibson: "It was decided to send a representative from the school district to Lansing to petition the legislature to repeal an act of the last legislature which took part of our school district and gave it to the Northville School District. Decided to send Mrs. G. P. Benton."

(What remained of the Waterford School District, including the building itself, was annexed to Northville in 1952.

In 1886 the second teacher contract noted called for a salary of $350 for 40 weeks for Jesse Morgan. The last contract, noted in 1921, provided for $120 per month for nine or 10 months for Emily Freeman.

Other teachers listed together the year they first signed contracts included:

George Bronson (1890), Etta Hillmer (1895), Laura Ruppert (1899); Mabel Spicer (1899); Emogene Williams (1900); Sarah Hughes (1903); Bertha Shattuck (1904); Anna Brown (1906); Genevieve McClumpha (1907); Lulu Byrd (1909);

Lillian Ambler (1901); Hilda Urch (1911); Olive Matson (1912); Arnh Johnson (1914); Isabelle Comer (1915); Hazel Parmelee (1916); Wendell Miller (1917); and Irene Hinman (1920).

VOTE Nov. 5... for THOMAS H. HEALY DISTRICT JUDGE NONPARTISAN JUDICIAL BALLOT

By Civic Searchlight Here's Top Picks in Wayne

Civic Searchlight, Inc. has announced its candidate ratings for the coming November 5 election as well as recommendations on 9 ballot questions.

More than 500 candidates for public office were evaluated by Searchlight's 1968 Committee on Candidates including 263 aspirants for Wayne County Charter Commissioner.

The 57-year old non-partisan Citizens' organization recommended a "Yes" vote on both the 2-1/2 Mill Community College Proposition and the county home rule question.

Proposition 5 regarding the election of legislators to other State offices was approved as well as Daylight Savings Time.

A "No" vote was recommended on proposition 1, the Graduated Income Tax and the Searchlight said "...private initiative and business incentive have already been frustrated by our national tax policy. We don't need further hindrances at the local level. Nor is the graduated income tax the answer to our State's needs."

The Civic Searchlight recommends a "Yes" vote on the water pollution bonding authority proposition but backs a "no" vote on the recreation bonding authority proposition.

Said Civic Searchlight on the latter: "This proposal would authorize a $100 million bond issue to finance improvements in our public recreation facilities including land acquisition, the further development of parks, forests, wildlife areas and fisheries, as well as making grants, loans, and advances to local communities for such purposes. As desirable an objective as this may be, your committee nevertheless feels that such improvements should be placed on a "pay as you go" basis and that further utilization of "user fees" should be explored.

"Furthermore, there is serious question as to the wisdom of the state financing purely local recreational improvements..."

Here is how Civic Searchlight looks at the Wayne County candidates: Prosecuting Attorney - William L. Cahalan (D), preferred and well qualified; William H. Ferguson (R), qualified.

Sheriff - Roman L. Gibbs (D), preferred and well qualified; James E. McCarthy (R), well qualified.

County Clerk - Edgar M. Branigan (D), preferred and well qualified; Charles A. Brooks (R), qualified.

County Treasurer - Louis H. Funk (D), preferred and well qualified.

Register of Deeds - Bernard J. Youngblood (D), preferred and well qualified; Thomas I. Ahart (R), qualified.

Drain Commissioner - Henry V. Herrick (D) and A. L. Meredith (R), both preferred and well qualified.

Supreme Court Justice - Thomas Giles Kavanagh and Michael D. O'Hara, no evaluation made for this office.

Court of Appeals Judge - Charles Kaufman, preferred and well qualified; Vincent J. Brennan, well qualified.

Circuit Court Judge - Richard M. Maher, preferred and well qualified.

Probate Court Judge - Joseph J. Pernick, preferred and well qualified.

35th District Court - Thomas H. Healy and Dunbar Davis, no evaluations made for district courts.

State Representative 35th District - Louis E. Schmid (R) and Marvin R. Stempien (D), both preferred and well qualified.

Charter Commission 26th District - Democrats, Lee E. Holland, well qualified, and Ron Mardros, qualified; Republicans, Edward Garfield Milligan, well qualified, and James P. McCarthy, qualified.

County Supervisor 26th District - Donald E. Friedrichs (D) and Carl D. Puzell (R), both preferred and well qualified.

Stempien Gets Top Rating Of Livonia Teacher Group

The Livonia Education Association, by official action of its Representative Assembly on Monday, October 21, endorsed the candidacy of Marvin R. Stempien for the Michigan State House of Representatives from the 35th District. The action was taken following a report and recommendations from the Association's Citizenship and Legislation Committee.

Based upon responses to questionnaires and personal interviews, the committee rated incumbent Louis E. Schmid "well qualified" for the office, but rated Marvin R. Stempien "well qualified and preferred."

Other actions of the committee were to rate candidates Donald E. Friedrichs and Carl Pursell "well qualified" in their bid for Wayne County Board of Supervisors and Lee E. Holland and Edward G. Milligan "well qualified" as candidates for Wayne County Charter Commissioners. Other Charter Commissioner candidates were not rated due to lack of response.

Marilyn Jean Kelly was endorsed as a "highly qualified" candidate for State Board of Education as was James Ten Brink endorsed as a "qualified" candidate for the same post.

Legislative Candidates Zero In on School Issues

Fewer than two dozen citizens were on hand Thursday night as candidates for the two state representative districts of the area answered questions about educational matters.

The public forum, arranged by Northville Superintendent Raymond Spear, spotlighted GOP Representative Louis Schmidt and his Democratic opponent Marvin Stempien of the 35th District and GOP Representative Clifford Smart and his Democratic opponent, William Todd of the 60th District.

Moderator of the question and answer session was Board Vice-President Robert Froelich. The entire meeting was taped by a reporter of this newspaper. That portion of the tape dealing with the summations of the four candidates follows:

STEMPIEN - With regard to state Civil Service for teachers I agree with Representative Smart. I think we have to work at government. We can't start talking about such a radical proposal without trying to solve our problems with the schools we have at hand. So I think we have a long way to go in that area first.

With regard to unfair labor practices against individual teachers or against individual board members I think the question applies equally to both. Neither side bargains for themselves and in their own behalf. Both sides are bargaining for someone else... To provide for unfair labor practices either way is not proper I don't think.

Bus transportation for technical education. I think we can't just talk about that area alone. We also have to talk about some other crying needs we have, like problems of retarded children and the children workshops - one of the forgotten areas of education. What about those children? What about some of our exceptional children? Some of the children who are in the programs for the blind? What about special education funds for those children? We've got some forgotten children in this educational system and that's why we get back to the idea of fiscal reform again. That's part of the spending reform we have to get to. We have to start looking at the needs of the people, to start returning money to school districts on the basis of need.

With regard to federal aid, I would agree with Representative Smart again... that federal aid should be general aid. I'm in favor of local home rule for local government. As an official of the city government here I am constantly seeking out in favor of local home rule prerogatives. Why elect trustees of school boards and then tell them how the money's got to be spent? Let them use their judgment. If you don't like their judgment turn 'em out of office, but let them exercise their judgment.

Secondly, as a Jeffersonian Democrat... I am in favor of limited government, with limited federal government. I don't want to see the federal government in our local scene any more than we absolutely have to have them there. I believe the state has the primary responsibility for education and the state should delegate some of that responsibility for decisions to the local school boards.

With regard to tax exempt land, let's not stop with school districts. When I was in the legislature I attempted to get special aid for the Northville area for all government. The primary irritating area was township police protection... We have to support the entire area here for all the local services but we sure don't get the taxes for it. And if there's an area that we need some help, it's in local government - not just school boards. It's all local government. The city council's got the same problems you have. They're faced with the same millage problem when they try to pass millage elections. So we've got to talk about some assistance for those areas where there's tax exempt properties in all local government.

With regard to the state-wide school calendar, Mr. Schmidt and I agree on some things, and that's one thing. I think that he's absolutely right. We should let our parents know when we're going to start school.

SCHMIDT - I think we've skirted Public Act 379 on a number of occasions. I have had the unfortunate experience of working on the labor committee all the way through on a bill which would have provided a particular type of procedure step by step, which would have resulted in a panel - a board of arbitrators - a fact finding presentation to the board, a presentation to the staff group. Then a decision could be made whether they would accept it or not. Ultimately, the fact finding could be made public. But you know we just couldn't get the support to get that bill before the legislature where we could do anything with it.

There are several areas I'd like to touch on. Flint? Lovely! I said years ago we could do a beautiful job in Clarenceville if we had Mott (C. A.). When the Mott Foundation runs out Flint will have the community school concept. Now if in Northville you can find a relative of Mott, God bless you and go ahead with the community school concept. So these things are great but how far can you go.

I'm concerned in the school picture - all the things that are dumped upon the school to do. You test their eyes, you look at their teeth, you check their hearing, you transport them - they're all good, don't misunderstand me - you keep records galore, you feed them, you entertain them - and when you get through, under our present setup, if you've got any money left you educate them. Now this is the problem of all these special areas. Everybody wants another special area.

I maintain that until we get to the basic thing - of preparing for general education we've got to stop some of the specials, and they're good, everyone of them is good. But everytime we get one started open-end budget. Let me give you one: The reading program which started out for $2 million. They had no red pencils in the department of education and they approved applications of over $8 million. Now is that the type of home budgeting you can stand? A 300-percent increase in the cost? I can't, and I don't intend to be a party to that sort of thing. Unfortunately, because we do not have the people who are willing to stay within limitations, I'm afraid that as a legislator I would have to continue to vote for ceilings because I've got to protect the people I represent.

TODD - I would like to say this much now: I'm not a superintendent of schools. I have not been. I come from the shop. Now this is the first time of meeting like this I've attending as far as the education thing. It seems to me that there's a complete difference between the people and our education system. I think our biggest trouble now from appearing here tonight is the difference from what the people think and what the education board and school board is trying to do. My concern has been in the bills of the past - welfare. It's one thing for our education system to have forgotten welfare. I think we've forgotten our senior citizens, their property tax. If we took some of these welfare acts - throw some of these people off welfare that don't need welfare we could put more funds into education.

SMART Well, there's two of the four of us who are going back to Lansing. There's going to be three major problems which you're not going to be able to sidestep. You're going to have to press the button one way or another. The three problems are going to be: Public Act 379 - the Hutchinson Act. The second problem is going to be whatever money is made available, and the third problem is going to be the whole question of aid to non-public schools. Those are the three major problems. So if there's anyone sitting on this panel tonight who doesn't want to face up to those three problems now's the time to get off.

On the Hutchinson Act there's happens to pass and becomes a part of our Constitution then you'll approach this tax thing in a different way than we will with a flat income tax. So that's another question. Are you going to Lansing and vote for more taxes?

For Campaign Statements Smart Slaps Stempien

Representative Clifford Smart, chairman of the House Education Committee, this week refuted statements of Marvin Stempien, Democratic candidate seeking the post of Representative Louis Schmidt.

He challenged school aid figures used by Stempien in the following release to this newspaper:

Mr. Stempien has been publishing statements which attempt to show that State Aid Formula during the last two years has short changed the Northville School District. Mr. Stempien is not my opponent in this election. However, I represent a portion of this district: I have served on the education committee during the terms of Mr. Stempien and Representative Schmidt. I have been Chairman of the Education Committee during the past two years and feel a responsibility to put all the facts before the public.

Mr. Stempien seemingly does not understand the State Aid Formula and its basic principles or he is using only some of the facts with which he confuses the electorate for his own political purposes.

Consider and study these facts:

1. A basic purpose in the formula is to provide some measure of educational equality among school districts. This is done primarily through the use of a deductible millage factor. Districts with lower valuations receive more state aid per pupil than those with higher valuations. If the valuation in a district fluctuates it will affect the amount of state aid that is issued. This has been recognized as equity over many years. The Northville valuations on a per pupil basis have increased as follows:

Year	Per Pupil Valuation
1965-66	13,062
1966-67	13,641
1967-68	16,901
1968-69	17,825

Northville has had new local money because of the increases plus new state money. The state increase would have been greater if local valuations had remained constant.

2. You are confusing the public if you use gross state aid receipts for any school district by years. School districts are entitled to receive more or less gross state aid simply by an increase or decrease in enrollment

State Officials Boost Stempien

Michigan's Attorney General, Frank Kelley, and Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals, T. John Lesinski, will be featured guests at a cocktail party and buffet honoring Northville City Attorney Marvin R. Stempien, candidate for state representative. The affair will take place at the Idyle Wyld Golf Club, at 35780 Five Mile Road, Livonia, on Friday at 7 p.m.

Chairman Owen Cummings reports that the $25.00 per person gathering promises to be a success with ticket sales progressing well. For further information and reservations, call Mr. Cummings at 261-2400.

Stings Hornets in Second Half

Novi Dumps Williamston, 20-6

WILLIAMSTON - Removing the sting of the Hornets' offense with bruising tackles and blocks, Novi's Wildcats roared to a beautiful 20-6 victory here Friday night despite a razor thin first half lead.

The triumph, one of the finest this season, was particularly impressive in view of the fact that Williamston, playing before a homecoming crowd, leads the tough Ingham County Conference.

Friday's victory was the sixth straight for the Wildcats who have lost only one game this season - the opener at Harland.

With Novi's star halfback Jon VanWagner limited to defense because of a thigh injury, Fullback Joe Morrison took up the slack and played what was perhaps the greatest game of his career.

The Hornets stuck paydirt first, scoring on a 15-yard pass play to Danny Gulick just after the second quarter got underway. An attempt to sneak the ball over for the extra point was stopped cold. Key to the Hornets' lone touchdown was a ground play at the 50-yard line on fourth down. With six yards to go, they reeled off 12 yards to keep the drive in motion.

On the next series, however, Novi launched its first touchdown drive starting from the Williamston 35. Picking up four first downs on the way, Novi pushed to the half-yard line where Quarterback Gary Boyer sneaked over for the TD. John Davey scored the extra point on a three-yard reverse to give the Wildcats a one-point edge going into the intermission.

Williamston came back with a drive that carried to the Novi 25 before a fourth-down pass went awry and Novi took possession.

Morrison ripped through the Williamston defense to the Novi 47 on the first play from scrimmage, and then Boyer fired a long pass to Davey, surrounded by two Hornet defenders, hauled the ball in on the 30 and then raced the remaining distance for the touchdown. This time the ground play for the extra point was stopped short.

The Hornets, unable to break-down Novi's rugged defense, failed to generate a threat on any of the three following series that they had the ball. On the first series they lost possession on a first-down fumble. They were forced to punt on the second, and finally, their backs to their goal-line on the third, the Hornets lost possession again as Tom VanWagner intercepted on the Williamston 21.

The interception set up Novi's final touchdown. Morrison punched over to the 9 for the first down and then two plays later slashed through right tackle from four yards out for the six-point. Boyer rifled a pass to Davey for the extra point with but 1:45 left on the clock.

Actually, Novi came close to scoring its third touchdown minutes earlier. Camped on the Williamston 6 Novi completed a pass on fourth down only to have the play nullified because the catch took place beyond the endzone.

Williamston managed to push to its 48 before the game ended.

Cats to Tangle At Flint Friday

Someone's victory string is going to come to an end Saturday night. The Wildcats are going to lose on the Flint Atherton football field in a game starting at 7:30.

The interception set up Novi's final touchdown. Morrison punched over to the 9 for the first down and then two plays later slashed through right tackle from four yards out for the six-point. Boyer rifled a pass to Davey for the extra point with but 1:45 left on the clock.

Novi goes into the contest in fairly good physical shape, if the lack of Tom Boyer and Jon Van Wagner can be considered as such. The offensive performance of Quarterback Gary Boyer, Fullback Joe Morrison, Halfback John Davey and the entire offensive line was especially heartwarming in the team's "very satisfying" victory (according to Coach John Osborne) over powerful Williamston last Friday night.

Osborne also had high praise for Defensive End Dave Bingham and Defensive Back Rick Hill for their part in the victory. He said that his kicking game was surprisingly strong, too, in

Spirit Day Tomorrow

November 1 (tomorrow) will be Novi High School Spirit Day. (November 1, abbreviated Nov. 1, was selected because it is written the same as Novi).

Sponsored by the sophomore class with Laurie Seiler as chairman, Spirit Day will be complete with a Spirit King and Queen chosen from the student body and a dance at the school from 8:00 to 11:00 p.m. that night.

An Open Letter To Northville Citizens

My opponent has made certain statements which, at best are inaccurate. Some politicians use the fact that when they do not have the issues on their side, they try to defeat their opponent by untrue personal or reputation attacks in the late stages of the campaign.

I shall not degrade myself or the office that I expect to hold after January to the low ebb of attacks on personality or reputation as my opponent has done. Recognizing that the feeling of the citizenry is with me, I reaffirm my commitment to use fair campaign practices, and I call upon my opponent to do the same.

However, so many good people, dedicated to better government, have given their sincere effort in my behalf, that I cannot allow their unselfish contributions to be degraded by unfair charges directed against the cause in which they believe. Therefore, I take note of the matter, but shall continue my campaign at the same high level, speaking to the issues that affect the needs of the Livonia-Northville community.

Homecoming's Great Tonic

Mustangs Nip Redskins, 7-6

The Mustangs need a Homecoming more often. Homecoming and good, hard-hitting football spelled victory Friday night for the first time in four weeks for Northville's Mustangs.

Milford was the begrudging 7-6 victim of one of the hardest fought, most aggressive games played by either club all year, and the Redskins lost a shot at a Wayne-Oakland title share as a result.

Northville gained 44 yards to Milford's 50 in the scoreless first half, and aerial attacks proved necessary for both teams to make the scoreboard.

Fred Holdsworth got the Northville TD in the third quarter when Quarterback Rich Adams hit him along the left sideline and he outdistanced heavy Redskin pursuit to score on a play covering 32 yards.

Terry Mills' kick proved to be the difference in the contest though no one could have known it at the time.

Trailing 7-0 in the fourth quarter, Milford's all-league quarterback candidate Bob Clinard hit Halfback Matt Partridge on a 14-yarder down the middle to make it 7-6. Clinard decided to send Tom Newcomb up the middle on a dive play to tie the score, but the Mustang defense would have none of it as their forward wall stopped him at the line.

Both teams generated deep penetrations only to be stopped as rock-ribbed defenses came up with key interceptions and forced important fumbles.

The teams exchanged punts throughout the first quarter and neither was able to threaten until the middle of the second stanza when an interference call on a pass intended for Mills gave the Mustangs a first down at the Milford 30. Adams then hit Barry Deal and Mills with passes to the 14. Deal hit the line to the 9, but then fumbled on the next play.

Not to be so easily denied, the Orange and Black defense forced Fullback Larry Vick to fumble just three plays later and Northville took over on the "Skins' 26 yard stripe.

Passes to Holdsworth and Deal and runs by Adams and Deal moved the ball to the one. Once again, however, the Redskins' defense forced Deal to fumble and the clock ran out before either squad could threaten again.

The second half began with the Mustangs breathing fire. Brad Conklin went 30 yards on the first play following the kickoff return to set the tone. Deal failed to gain, and Adams hit Craig Turnbull for three yards. Then Adams spotted Holdsworth in the clear and hit him with the scoring strike.

Clinard found the aerial game to his liking as well (he hit 11 of 30 in the contest) and passed the Milford seven to the Northville 14 on passes to Mark Geiger and Doug Powers. Aiming for Geiger in the endzone on the next one, Clinard was shocked as Deal made a diving circus interception to end the threat.

Northville ran a series of plays and punted and Clinard began to move his squad again. Mustangs' defenders stopped four pass attempts at their

Vinegar Barrel At Stake

Who will "win" the Vinegar Barrel this year?

In the traditional rivalry between the Northville Mustangs and the Clarenceville Trojans, the loser takes home the barrel and "puts up" with it for the year in hopes of returning it next time. The Trojans want very much to give it back in this final Wayne-Oakland contest of the season for both clubs.

The similarities between the eleven extends beyond their records (2-3 in league and 4-3 overall for Northville and 2-4 and 3-4 for Clarenceville) as both have borne the burden of backfield injuries. Barry Deal and Terry Mills are the only remaining starting backs for the Mustangs (and Deal's backup man, Craig MacDermid, is also out for the season), while the Trojans have only fine Quarterback Dave Brandemil left.

Coach Ralph Weddle has another fine boy in End Jim Troutaud, but he has only four of his original eleven left in action.

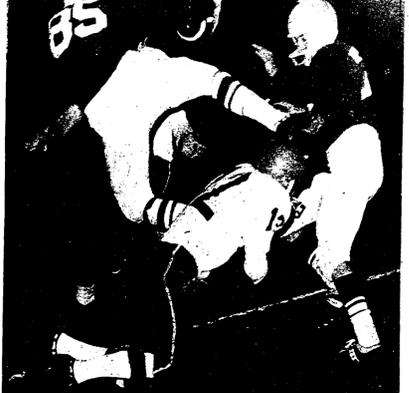

On the plus side for Mustangs' Coach Alex Kluckach was the fine showing he credited to Quarterback Rich Adams and defensive standouts Glenn Heffner, Scott Butler and Mark Geiger in the win over Milford's Redskins.

Kluckach hopes to break even in league standings this year, and it will take a win at Clarenceville tomorrow night to achieve that goal.

own five yard line this time and once again took over.

The "Skins" forced the Mustangs to punt at the end of the third quarter and started to march at the opening of the final period. A big Northville penalty and passes to Newcomb and Geiger moved the Redskins to the 11. Partridge snared his D pass on the next play.

After several interchanges of the pigskin, Northville began to move

Northville Sticks With W-O Loop

Northville's long association with the Wayne-Oakland League will be extended for two more years, Northville Athletic Director Robert Kucher revealed this week.

Delay in construction of high schools designated for the new league that Northville planned to join next season has resulted in postponement of the Mustangs' affiliation in that new and still unnamed conference.

"Only three of the other schools in the new league are expected to be ready to go next season and we felt participating in a four-team league would be less than satisfactory. And to remain in Wayne-Oakland we had to commit ourselves to two more years," he explained.

As things stand now, said Kucher, the new league in 1969-70 will include Walled Lake Western, Livonia Churchhill and Waterford Mori. It will be expanded to include Farmington Harrison in the 1970-71 school year. And then in 1971-72, both Northville and Plymouth Canton will join it, thus making six-team league.

Goof Trips Up Our Grid Contest

It couldn't possibly happen. No newspaper conducting a football contest could run the same schedule two weeks in a row.

How could such a slip get past the editorial department, the advertising department, the composition staff, the copyreaders and the proofreaders? It's impossible. It couldn't happen.

But if the schedule of games published in last week's football contest looked vaguely familiar, just like the same contest had been run two weeks unchanged... contest fans know

Suicide Attempt Thwarted in Novi

Novi Police Chief Lee BeGole and Detective Corporal Gordon Nelson acted to halt a suicide attempt Monday.

Police were alerted when the man called his wife and told her he had a gun and was going to shoot himself. She told police and they rushed to the man's home.

Upon entering the partially darkened home, Chief BeGole heard a strange sound. Glancing into a corner, BeGole saw a man lying on his back and holding an electric circular saw to his throat. The guard on the running saw had been tied back.

BeGole asked the man if he would talk to a clergyman and, upon receiving an affirmative answer, told Nelson to call Father John Fricke. He also secretly told Nelson to alert someone who could shut off the current to the saw.

Building inspector Everett Bailey and sewer and water supervisor Roy May answered the chief's summons and shut off the power in the rear of the residence.

At this stage, BeGole, Father Fricke and Nelson were able to persuade the man not to go through with his plans.

Lonnie Stephens of 135 DeGross complained to Novi Police about a 1964 Pontiac which had been parked for three weeks in the parking lot at Paragon Steel where he works as a part-time guard.

Upon investigation, police learned that the vehicle had been stolen from Lamont Clark in Detroit on October 8.

Philip H. Hilliker of Farmington struck and killed an animal while westbound at the legal speed limit on 10-Mile Road Friday morning, damaging the front end of his car extensively. The animal? A pregnant mare.

Officers Dale Gross and Frank

Barabas of Novi were called out to break up a fight at the Pepper Tree Restaurant on Novi Road at 3:40 Monday morning.

Upon investigation of the fight, the officers ascertained that one alleged combatant, Charles T. Eaton of Walled Lake, was wanted on warrants from both the Wixom Police and from the Jackson post of the Michigan State Police.

Eaton was arrested and held until the Walled Lake Police picked him up for Wixom.

Robert D. Wilson of Farmington claimed whiplash injuries as a result of a two-car accident which also involved Stanley J. Reynolds of Ypsilanti. The accident occurred in front of Michigan Tractor on Novi Road and both drivers were able to drive their slightly damaged vehicles from the scene.

Nab Husky Escapee Here

Police picked Lorell R. Williams, 21, who stands six feet seven inches tall and weighs 270 pounds and held him for the Northville State Hospital from which he had escaped. He was picked up on West Main Street.

Loretta Williams of 113 Walnut Street reported to Northville police last week that Ted E. Smith of Plymouth had driven away her car after she had refused to loan it to him.

Plymouth police recovered the vehicle in front of the Nelson Hotel in Plymouth, which is apparently Smith's place of residence, local police said.

from the Pastor's Study

Rev. Charles F. Boeger
St. Paul's Lutheran, Northville

Speech departments of schools give training on how to express oneself. Speaking is an art, but so also is listening. To be effective, communication has to be a two-way process. Unless there is listening, it is no use to speak.

Both speaking and listening are necessary elements in teaching. Amid the mass enrollments of high schools and colleges, instructors in classrooms do most of the talking as they convey knowledge on what seems one-directional transmission belt. The "student revolt" is in part occasioned by the lack of opportunity to confer personally with instructors.

Good listening is recognized as an important part of counseling. It is equally important in the give and take of everyday conversation. Many people hesitate to take their burdens to a professional counselor. But they will go to a friend who in Christian love will take the time to listen. To listen well takes both patience and skill. The "Please, hear me out!" request of an interrupted speaker reflects less on bad manners than on the fact that the other person has not learned to listen.

Attentive listening marks the Christian home. When the little boy comes to say what he considers worthwhile, Dad will consider it worth hearing. Undoubtedly, we as parents would get better attention from our children if we gave them better attention. In a domestic crisis people are tempted to speak with raised voices. Perhaps a crisis would not have developed if all concerned had cultivated the art of listening to one another.

Listening is closely related to growth in Christian faith and life. Through our hearing the Word of God, the Holy Spirit increases faith in Jesus Christ and directs us on the right way of life. Mary of Bethany did well to sit at Jesus' feet and listen (Luke 10:39). In our prayers we sometimes engage in "much speaking," expecting God to hear us. Are we willing to listen when God speaks to us in His Word?

Young Samuel in the Lord's house revealed a receptive mood when he said: "Speak, Lord, for Thy servant hears." We do much the same when we say in the hymn lines:

Blessed Jesus, at Thy Word We are Gathered all to Hear Thee.

Two Truck Drivers Arrested

Quick action by Detective Corporal Gordon Nelson and Patrolman Gerald Burnham of Novi Police resulted in the arrests of two truck drivers last Friday.

Nelson spotted a truck coming toward his patrol car (which was eastbound on Grand River) jacking a front license plate. While they were turning the car around to give chase, they spotted another truck, also sans front plate.

Overtaking and stopping the first truck, the officers learned that the driver, Frederick J. Hunt of Royal Oak, was operating the vehicle without a driver's license or registration for his single plate.

The policemen arrested Hunt and turned back toward the police station only to find the other truck parked at Ward's Grand River service garage. They stopped and were met by its driver, Paul C. Bonham of Pontiac, who was without either driver's or chauffeur's licenses, but had a valid registration for both plates (one of which was affixed to the back of each truck).

Both drivers were released on personal bonds of $50 for appearance today before Justice of Peace Emory Jacques.

Novi Fights Two Fires

Novi fire department answered two calls Friday.

In the evening they were called to the home that Mr. and Mrs. James Stephens rent at 4168 1/2 Mile Road. It took quick action, efficient use of fog and the assistance of Walled Lake and Wixom departments to put out the fire which began in an upstairs recreation room.

In the other fire, at 7 a.m. smoke damage and a burned out bathroom and loft resulted at Fend's Batch Plant.

Coy, Lahti See Supervisor Job as 'Part-time'

interview CAMPAIGN '68

Coy...

Being able to devote full-time, if necessary, at the outset of the new Oakland County Board of Supervisors is a major advantage that Republican Candidate Lew Coy believes he has over his Democratic opponent.

A retired fireman, Coy said he will be able to devote "all the time" that's needed to get the job done, while he contends that his opponent, a teacher, will be unable to do the same.

Referring to the new supervisor post, Coy viewed it as a "part-time" job. It should be set up on a committee basis, much as it is set up now. Although the present chairman of board, Delos Hamlin, has stated quite unequivocally that he is going to take two or three days a week for the first two or three months to organize.

Continuing, he said he sits in "the unique position of being retired because of my past services to the City of Detroit. I draw a very generous pension. I have some other outside income. And I can devote full time to this if it is necessary.

"I question whether he (Lahti, a teacher) has the time. Now if this is going to take two or three days a week for the first three or four months I don't know how he could handle the job unless he leaves his present employment. And if he leaves his present employment, he's certainly going to have to vote for a salary that is commensurate with his present salary — or he's foolish and not as wise as I think he is.

"This is why Lew sits in a very unique situation because of his private income."

On the basis of his opponent's "poor" attendance record, suggested Coy, Lahti would find it extremely difficult to be present at the lengthy board sessions at the outset. "Over the last six-year period he's been present 66 times for the main board meetings and absent nine times. He sits on the aviation committee where there have been 40 meetings and he's been absent 13 times, close to one-third. He is chairman of the social services committee and his attendance there has been excellent — because he is chairman and he can stipulate the times of these meetings.

"Now is the only place I can truly malign Lahti is the fact of the time. And the people he serves with over there on the board hesitate to be on the committee with Ray because it's practically impossible for him to make daytime committee meetings.

"Concerning salary, Coy said he favors a flat $25 per working day as a supervisor.

Asked whether or not he would be in favor of the new board of supervisors "sweeping out" all appointees of the present board and making its own appointments, Coy replied, "I would take every advantage of past experiences. The fact that a man has had experience in an office would weigh heavily with me."

Looking specifically at the Oakland County Road commission, Coy noted that Frazer Staman (former Nov. 1967 supervisor and now a resident of Wixom) is up for reappointment to the commission. His continued service on the commission although "he may have left something to be desired" would be a distinct advantage to District 27 and for that reason he probably would vote for his reappointment.

What does he see as major problems that the new board of supervisors must resolve?

"One of the major problems we have in this county — and this don't make this county peculiar — but the record shows that about 28 percent of the county budget is for welfare services and I feel our welfare should be aimed at rehabilitation and getting these people back in the mainstream of the employed. Here we are in a time — Democrats tell us — of relatively good times and 28 percent of our budget is for welfare. What are we going to do when times get tough?

"I think child care centers would be one step (towards solving the welfare problem). I think if we could take care of their children during the daytime hour so they could be employed would be a step in that direction.

"I think roads are a problem, but primarily road money comes from weight and gasoline taxes and I feel that it should come primarily from this area because I feel the property owner is saddled with enough taxes. Although I do feel that in emergencies and unique situations that it would be perfectly alright to use county money for roads. I think state money should be supplemented with county money."

Concerning the actions of the present board, Coy said he would "rather not malign" it but nevertheless he questioned the actions of it in the past few weeks relative to the budget.

"Here we had a public meeting and they postponed the budget which they had in their possession for a minimum of two weeks. They had a public hearing and tabled the budget and yet they spread the taxes and set the millage at 5.64. The question comes to my mind if you don't know the cost of a thing how can you set the payment and this is exactly what they've done."

But, said Coy, "I have to be honest and say it is hard to criticize a board that has kept the county taxes down. Comparable with the rest of the state we're probably one of the lowest counties. This is hard to criticize."

Concerning the controversial airport issue at the county level, Coy said he believes "the time is coming to encourage industry and to promote an industrial base for taxes. An airport will be just as vital in the future as highways are today. It behooves Oakland County to get on the move to produce airport facilities.

"I've been out to the airport site (Lake Orion) and I'm somewhat disappointed in what I saw out there. Right now they have approximately 7,000 feet for landing strips and our present-day planes call for 11,000 running feet. So they're going to have to obtain more land out there or it won't be the facility that I hoped it would be."

"There's one specific group out there that doesn't like the airport. This is understandable. I'd rather not live next door to an airport and I'm sure that you wouldn't. But, I mean, in progress something has to be sacrificed."

Coy suggested that the new board should safeguard the sheriff's department from the "blue flu" problems that have arisen elsewhere. "I feel that municipal employees, public employees should have salaries and remunerations based on an average of the trade. In other words, I don't feel the public employees should have to come at budget time each year and beg for improvement. I don't feel this is fair to public employees. And by the same token I don't feel that the taxpayers should be robbed. There should be a formula, based on the average of the trades, that would determine what these men would get."

"There's one other thing I would like to bring out here," said Coy. "I'd like to talk just plain, hard politics. We're in a brand new ballgame and far as county government is concerned. The present board is non-partisan but the new board is absolutely going to be partisan. There isn't any question about it. And the southeastern section of the county — the Pontiac, Royal Oak, Southfield and that area — the Republicans have just about conceded 10 seats in that area. They have three other areas they feel are swing areas. So this leaves 13 that are very likely to go Republican. If the Republicans were to get fooled in one other area this would give us, undoubtedly, a Democratic chairman of the board of supervisors. This would give us a Democratic head of each committee. And the southeastern section of this county, would run this county and I feel the rural area would get the short end of the stick.

"So when we're talking good, hard politics I think it behooves the rural areas to put up a real solid Republican front."

On the basis of his statement, Coy was asked if he believed he could, as a Republican, be effective in a Democratically controlled board. He replied, "Well, I would be more effective for the rural areas than the Democrat would be. I'm sure of that. But the point is that the southeastern section of the county will undoubtedly go Democratic and I'd rather not see that corner of the county run the entire county."

"I like to use the analogy of the Hoover Commission. What the Hoover Commission did with the national government and what the so-called Little Hoover Commissions did in numerous state governments I think can be done for county government."

Lahti said he believed the supervisor's job on the reorganized board would be a part-time one.

"As I said before there have been no statutory changes so I can't envision or say certainly at the moment that there are more jobs that must be done. I think the job in the foreseeable future is a part-time job. I don't think it is the job of the peoples' legislative representatives to get involved in the details of administration. This is one of those things that hopefully we can correct in the long run when we get county home rule or some sort of county chief executive.

"The board will still be policy making and I don't see why it should be other than part-time. More active than before but still only part time.

"Actually, when you look at the way that the performance of the supervisors could be improved you get into things like committee reports, committee staff work. I've been one of

interview CAMPAIGN '68

Lahti...

If you're looking towards those qualifications important to public service then Wixom Councilman Ray Lahti's your man.

That's how the Democratic candidate for supervisor of Oakland County views himself as he weighs his education and past experience in public service against his Republican opponent.

Holder of both a bachelor and master's degree — the latter in public administration, Lahti said that educationally, "I feel I am the superior of my opponent. But additionally, I've been a constructively active citizen in this area since 1951 and, in fact, have been an elective official of two charter commissions and have been elected three times to the Wixom City Council where I've been for over 10 years. And I've been 10 years on the Oakland County Board of Supervisors."

That kind of active participation leads me to think that I can do a more effective job on the new board than someone who is brand new to the whole program."

Asked if he, as a member of the present board, believes the newly reorganized board of supervisors represents a step forward, Lahti answered "absolutely."

"I'm not one to say that Oakland County's previous board has not done a good job because in many ways we're among the ones envied by the nation's 3,000 counties. It does have a good record. However, there is, in my opinion, good reason to believe that it will indeed be more responsive when it is smaller in size, has less reliance upon the old committee system, and makes the supervisor directly accountable to the people.

"I see great potentialities for improvement not only in the legislative process but in aligning the fantastic collection of boards and commissions and departments that we have at present. It can't be done at one fell swoop, of course, but the direction, I think, can be towards streamlining county government, which is long overdue."

"I like to use the analogy of the Hoover Commission. What the Hoover Commission did with the national government and what the so-called Little Hoover Commissions did in numerous state governments I think can be done for county government."

Lahti said he believed the supervisor's job on the reorganized board would be a part-time one.

"As I said before there have been no statutory changes so I can't envision or say certainly at the moment that there are more jobs that must be done. I think the job in the foreseeable future is a part-time job. I don't think it is the job of the peoples' legislative representatives to get involved in the details of administration. This is one of those things that hopefully we can correct in the long run when we get county home rule or some sort of county chief executive.

"The board will still be policy making and I don't see why it should be other than part-time. More active than before but still only part time.

"Actually, when you look at the way that the performance of the supervisors could be improved you get into things like committee reports, committee staff work. I've been one of those who has been very unhappy with the cold, legislative resolutions that have come out of committees without background and explanatory material. What I intend is there to deliberate about if the end product of the committee's work is a technical, legislative resolution of one or two typewritten pages.

"That I could be corrected. We could have good committee work. We could have background papers by the committees that are circulated to the 27 members long before the meeting at which the matter is taken up.

"And one other thing along those same lines that has annoyed me is the fact that never is anything of a minority reported to the committee's actions. The standard pattern has been for a committee, in its own committee room, to talk things out. There has been probably back and forth discussion. But the end result, with rare exceptions, is that a resolution is signed by all members of the committee. Then it comes to the full 87 man board as though it were unanimous and without a meritorious debate, and that is something that could be corrected."

Asked what he believed would be a fair salary for the "part-time supervisor", Lahti said he hasn't "given it much thought. And that probably is the way it should be. It's not really that much of a job. In so far as pay is concerned there probably should be some sort of combination of per diem of meeting attended and then some sort of low, flat salary to provide some compensation for the hours that the supervisor will inevitably spend in reading material, checking things out locally, talking matters over the telephone, etc.

"I haven't given that a dollar figure or estimate. Very frankly, I've never been in either city or county affairs and had great concern for the dollar compensation. I'm not sure whether that is a fault or virtue. I just like local government and working on such things as the school really doesn't intrigue me at all. But very honestly I cannot imagine it at all as being a $15,000 or $20,000 position the way that I understand some people are talking down in Wayne County."

Streamlining the county government represents the biggest challenge to the new board of supervisors and Lahti said he would like to see that done as rapidly as possible. "I don't mean a mickety mouse advisory committee like so many people develop — one that is pulled together simply for political purposes or for purposes of passing a bond issue or something like that. I mean that advisory committee should hear all the reports that the 26 member board hears and have access to all the materials that are available to us and should call for studies made by the staff to be reported to the advisory committee whether or not the board of supervisors calls for such studies.

"This may be an innovation in government, but I think we would make a big mistake in thinking that 26 people can run a county of this size and know what to do with the resources available."

Friedrichs said he would hope that the new board of supervisors would not attempt, upon taking office, to sweep out presently appointed county officials.

"I would hope that whatever change is made is made sensibly and in due regard to the services and to the continuity of experienced people on boards. Unless there was some kind of identifiable public crisis involved in that particular agency's operation which would call for some sweeping change, I would certainly hope we would go about this in due deliberation and not go in and start upsetting appointments."

Partisan politics ought not, he suggested, disrupt existing services simply for the purposes of getting rid of certain people.

Nevertheless, Friedrichs said he believes that party affiliation will play a major role in the new partisan board of supervisors. "There is absolutely no question in my mind that the historical background of the one party system in the City of Detroit that the Democratic Party is going to be in control of the board of supervisors."

"It's important that the person elected have an influence and a strong voice that will be heard on the board, and I feel that as a Democrat I can do that."

Asked if he sees his role on the board of supervisors as a part-time one or a full-time one, he answered "I don't think I have a full-time job and I'm not really looking for another full-time job. I feel we are going through an evolutionary period in Wayne County politics at the present time and in Wayne County government... I would hope that we would be able to resolve this issue perhaps with the help of a charter commission in the next two to four years.

"Immediately I see it as a part-time job. I don't see the supervisor is responsible for the bad roads or inadequate roads is wrong."

The prime responsibility, he concluded, lies with the commissions which enjoy a certain amount of separate legally constituted power of their own that prevents the board of supervisors from making decisions.

Friedrichs...

The new Wayne County Board of Supervisors and the reorganization of government eventually through county home-rule represents a gigantic challenge to the new supervisor and Donald Friedrichs, a Livonia Democrat, believes he is the man who can best meet the challenge.

Not only is he ready to take up the work of the new county board of supervisors but he is determined to share a role, asserts Friedrichs, with the county charter commission which may not be elected next week. He indicated the county home-rule, the second step in reorganization, "is a must."

He pinpointed the major challenges of the board this way: "The first challenge, of course, is to reorganize themselves, to consolidate their committees, to make some significant decisions on how to work with the executive branch of the government, and how, if the charter commission is actually approved by the voters on November 5, will the board of supervisors relate with that process and cooperate with that process to modernize county government."

"I think any step that centralizes control in a smaller and smaller group of people has its distinct disadvantage. A smaller group of people can arrive at more effective decisions more rapidly. But when you consider the fact that this county has a population of approximately 2.8 million and that if it were a state it would be the 26th ranking state in population in the United States, and if you consider the size of state legislatures that deal with similar governmental problems to which the Wayne County Board of Supervisors must address itself, I recognize that this presents a real problem to the 26 of us."

"This is why I called about a month ago for a citizens advisory committee, strongly organized to represent cities, townships, and citizens at large. And I don't mean a mickety mouse advisory committee like so many people develop — one that is pulled together simply for political purposes or for purposes of passing a bond issue or something like that. I mean that advisory committee should hear all the reports that the 26 member board hears and have access to all the materials that are available to us and should call for studies made by the staff to be reported to the advisory committee whether or not the board of supervisors calls for such studies.

"I would feel, for example, every supervisor has to be in constant touch with his constituency and that that process of communication can be made certain that I get phone calls, I would think that a supervisor, certainly one like myself, would want to have a monthly newsletter at least to go out and let the problems and keep the people informed."

"If it's important that I put another phone in my home in order to make certain that I get phone calls, it seems to me that that is an additional expense."

Why does he believe he is better qualified than his opponent?

Other than his own significant educational background, Friedrichs emphasized that he has worked closely with officials and citizens of a community (Livonia) that has gone through a major period of growth, that he has learned from experience how to meet these problems, has played significant roles in bringing together officials of divergent views, has been the leader of a successful drive to raise money for a new YMCA and has been instrumental in initiating a successful city-school program on a cooperative basis.

Of the problems that Friedrichs sees needing immediate attention, juvenile court matters are among the most significant. If he is assigned to a committee on this issue, he said he would call for emergency sessions from three to six months duration "to get something significantly done."

He contended that the board of supervisors — whether under the old 135-member organization or under the new organization — is primarily a policy making body, and "this policy making body I do not see as a full-time job. I think the necessity that the county level is to hire a chief administrator and a chief executive to implement the policy of the board and that should certainly be a full-time job."

"You might relate it to a good business operation — at the corporate level of a school board-superintendent kind of relationship. I see him being well paid. I think he is the technician and the administrator who has the necessary training in terms of management abilities and engineering background and financing. To be totally responsible for the whole county operation and report to the board of supervisors who undertakes the policy making concerns.

"As a candidate I am against major salaries for supervisors... I think some of the people, particularly in the big city, who are cognizant of a major salary possibility on a full-time basis, would support a major salary. If I am elected as a Republican and in the minority I would be opposed to major salaries and I would speak against that."

"As far as the full-time, part-time operation, I can only speak on my own background. My civic work in relationship to civic programs, in initiating and assisting programs that are sound on a local level, have been my prime interest for many, many years. My record of activity — in total man hours put into the community — is beyond most people's idea of what we mean by a full-time, part-time kind of job."

"I think my dedication in terms of leadership is a proven record that I think is outstanding, and certainly those people who have supported me consider it outstanding. So I consider my interest at the county level as the same kind of dedication and the same kind of leadership. I would continue to offer it, but I would not want to sit down at the county building as a full-time paid supervisor."

Pursell said he doesn't believe his election, as a Republican would be liability in a Democratically controlled board.

"I think it is fairly well known that my concepts and the leadership ideas on the local level have been non-partisan in nature. They've been basically what the citizens like to look at. I can think in terms of consolidation and initiating the five governmental land refuse and incinerator thing. This is certainly a non-partisan issue, and it's important to look at this first before we look at the partisan side."

The dedication to civic endeavors coupled with a training in the business field makes him well qualified for the supervisor's position, he said.

"Management practices ought to be understood at the county level. We've owned a business and I had to meet payroll and I know what budget costs are. I've been in roles of civic leadership where you have to work with cross-sections of the community, regardless of political or religious beliefs. In bringing about changes at the local level that are necessary to strengthen local government, I have an excellent background which my opponent doesn't have.

Pursell...

His election to the Wayne County Board of Supervisors admittedly may be short-lived, but Republican candidate Carl Pursell nevertheless enthusiastically endorses county home rule that would eventually strip him of his seat.

Pursell, while asking voters to place him on the newly organized board of supervisors, also urges voters to approve the charter commission proposition that will appear on the ballot next week.

Refuting some suggestions that the new board will be a lame duck one, Pursell stated:

"I think the two-year county board of supervisor candidate who is elected certainly will be elected because of his ability and leadership and I am hopeful he will be able to work with the charter commission people and help the charter commission implement the needed changes. So I look for two compatible bodies if the charter matter is adopted."

Pursell said the reorganization of the Wayne County Board of Supervisors from a 135-member body to 26 represents the first step in updating government that was originally set up for 19th-century rural problems. The second important step, he continued, is establishment of the charter commission which will write a county charter.

"County home rule certainly comes into play in our particular race although we are not candidates for the charter commission — and this issue really has been lost in this national campaign. It has been put on the November ballot but people are not aware of the charter commission scope and concepts. So we as candidates for the county board of supervisors — at least I have spoken out quite strongly on behalf of county home rule and have studied it. I have met with Mel Ryzivitz and civic leaders in the Detroit area trying to get different points of view so that I can provide some leadership in the rural areas."

The Republican candidate views the matter of board appointments in two ways: If the charter commission is approved, new supervisors including himself, will exercise restraint in removing appointments. However, if the charter commission fails "we will be in a little different position. So it's sort of dependent upon what happens to the charter commission — where the power and where the relationships exist..."

"This public act — I think 293 — which began this process is still restrictive in light of all the programs that the county has had over the years and has built up these autonomous organizations — the road commission, the park commission, the airport commission."

"To completely reorganize it as a totally new and different operation is not going to happen. It just isn't in the cards. So we're going to have to look at some management practices rather than we get into the area of finance that will be the real hard nut to crack because of the great increase of population in the county — which by the way is the third largest county in the United States."

With all the problems facing the new board of supervisors, does he believe it can be done by a part-time supervisor?

Bill Taylor Gets Peace Corp Rank Bad Check Hike Sparks Warning

William A. Taylor, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Taylor of 5581 1/2 West Eight Mile Road, has recently been named a Peace Corps Volunteer after completing ten weeks of training in Toluca, Mexico and four weeks of further preparation in Peru.

Taylor is one of 41 volunteers who will work with Peruvian Government agencies toward the development of local agricultural production and the improvement of food consumption. Most Volunteers will work with the Peruvian agricultural extension agency personnel as well as local farmers, giving technical assistance in improved agricultural methods through experimentation and demonstration.

The volunteers will also work with 4-H clubs as advisors or will act as agency coordinators to improve local agriculture and nutrition in selected communities.

During training the volunteers studied language, livestock raising, agricultural techniques and the history and culture of Peru. Their October assignment brings the total of Peace Corps Volunteers in Peru to 240.

Taylor was graduated with honors this year from Michigan State University. He received a bachelor of arts degree in social science.

Detective Sergeant Richard Faulkner of Novi Police warns businessmen to either know the man cashing a check or be absolutely sure they can identify him later.

The problem of no account and insufficient fund checks, as well as stolen checks, outright forgeries, and stolen money orders is not peculiar to Novi businessmen and police, but it has reached unreasonable proportions in this area, police report.

One suggestion Sergeant Faulkner offers to help curb check problems is a very simple one. "Have your clerks initial any check they take in and if they have the slightest question concerning it, bring it to you for your initial before cashing it. Perhaps this would help you recover the $43 million you and other Michigan businessmen lose every year to bad checks."

Perhaps a knowledge of the penalties which can be assessed would be of help, too, he suggests. Insufficient funds checks - those in which a check casher has a checking account at the bank but does not have enough money to cover a particular check - can cost the passer up to $300 fine or a year in prison or both. Maximum penalty for passing a no account check is two years in jail.

Police have a list of 11 questions to which they must receive answers if they are to have a chance of convicting a bad check passer. Police say, businessmen should always keep these eleven in mind when cashing checks:

1. Who accepted the check?
2. Was the check made out or endorsed in the presence of the person accepting the check?
3. Was the passer right or left handed?
4. What was said by the passer before and during the time the check was being passed?
5. What was received for the check?
6. Can the passer of the check be identified?
7. What type of identification did the passer use?
8. How was the passer dressed (clothing identifying an occupation)?
9. What type of vehicle did he arrive or leave in?
10. Was the passer alone or in the company of someone?
11. Obtain a complete description of the passer (marks, scars, glasses, speech, etc.).

Municipal Court

Seven offenders received fines or sentencing from Municipal Court Judge Philip Ogilvie last Thursday in a lighter than usual court day.

One offender, Robert Battle of Melvindale was returned to Detroit House of Correction for 30 days upon pleading guilty to having escaped there on October 4.

Harry C. Tanner of 690 Baseline Road pleaded guilty to having been a disorderly person for fighting at his home on October 5. He paid a $20 fine and $7 costs.

It cost Sally A. Taylor of Detroit $25 for committing the two offenses of driving without an operator's license on her person and defective equipment (no trailer lights) when she was stopped on October 14 on northbound North Center Street. Her plea was guilty.

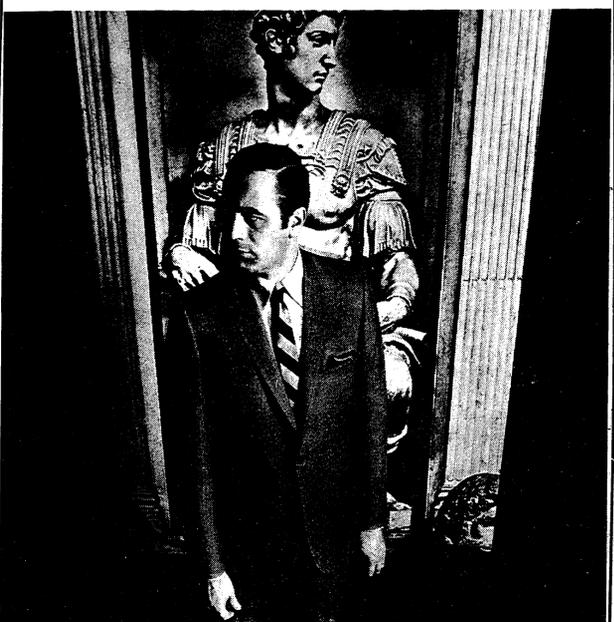

For speeding 70 MPH in a 50 MPH zone on 8-Mile Road on March 27, 1965, David A. Gorham of Belleville paid a $65 fine upon pleading guilty.

Robert A. Bressler of Farmington pleaded guilty to having had improper license plates on his car when he was stopped on October 13 on North Center Street. He paid $10.

Two men received trials Thursday from Judge Ogilvie as they had originally pleaded innocent to charges brought against them.

Hollis R. Noder, 125 South Ely Drive, charged with driving under the influence of liquor on October 7 when he was stopped on southbound South Center Street, pleaded guilty of the added count of driving while his ability was impaired. He paid a fine of $80.

When arraigned on October 10, Ralph H. Gebhardt of Sandusky, Michigan, pleaded innocent to having had improper plates when he was stopped on October 1 on Sheldon Road at Seven Mile Road. At his trial Gebhardt changed his plea to guilty as charged and paid a $10 fine.

AN OPEN LETTER

to the Citizens of Northville, Plymouth and Canton communities.

Ladies and Gentlemen:
Ever since the campaign for District Judge began four months ago, one of the central issues has been the merits of establishing a probation department in the new District Court which will begin serving our communities on January 1st.

The Task Force on Corrections of the President's Commission on Law Enforcement and Administration of Justice reports:

"The best data available indicates that probation offers one of the most significant prospects for effective programs in corrections. It is also clear that at least two components are needed to make it operate well. The first is a system that facilitates effective decision-making as to who should receive probation; the second is the existence of good community programs to which offenders can be assigned."

Since the beginning of the campaign I have publicly and privately urged a Probation Program utilizing volunteers because such programs have been successful in other communities. I do not advocate a soft Court. Jail sentences are important and necessary penalties which I would use in proper cases. But, if we are to have effective law enforcement, we must also have a program designed to convert the potential liabilities in our society into useful law-abiding citizens.

I believe our communities should have the benefits of a Volunteer Probation Counseling program because it has proven effective.

Sincerely,

Homecoming: It's Sweet

Anyway you look at it Northville's homecoming Friday was a sparkling success. Besides the colorful pre-game and half-time festivities that included a pretty homecoming queen and her court, spectacular floats and rousing performances by the band, the evening was capped by a sweet 7-6 upset victory over Milford - a triumph that followed three straight losses. Other homecoming activities included the pancakes-with-sausage dinner sponsored before the game by the Presbyterian Men's Club, the post-game homecoming dance, and the Saturday morning breakfast for alumni. This year's homecoming queen was Stacey Evans, who is escorted across the field (top right) by her father H. O. Evans and Band Director Robert Williams. Above, Stacey is shown with several members of her court and their fathers (1 to r) Freshman Kathy Simpson and Seniors Donna Bissa and Vicki Elkins. Two other members of the court (left) are sisters, Junior Jane and Sophomore Sue Forner, presented by their father Dr. Gordon Forner. Floats included the first prize winner (right) of the Junior Class, and (1 to r) across the bottom, the freshman, senior (second place) and sophomore floats.

Medical Societies Endorse Oakland Ballot Question

The lone Oakland County proposition to appear on Tuesday's ballot has been endorsed by the state and county medical societies.

It asks permission to change from the present coroner system to the medical examiner system.

According to Dr. Bernard D. Berman, director of the Oakland County Department of Health, the coroner system is antiquated and the medical examiner system offers a more up-to-date method of determining causes of death.

Specifically, the medical examiner, who is an appointed physician, performs under more up-to-date procedures "that would better protect the public from communicable disease and undetected murder," explained Dr. Berman.

The medical examiner system is now in use by 27 Michigan counties, including Wayne and Washtenaw. Eighty percent of the state's population is guided by the medical examiner system, he said.

A state act, passed in 1953, allowed boards of supervisors, after approval by the voters, to abolish the coroner system and appoint a physician as county medical examiner.

Under current law, said Dr. Berman, the duties of the coroner are not so well described as those of the medical examiner. One section of the 1953 act, for example, guides the medical examiner in performance of his duty in regard to a dead body. No such directions are given under the coroner law.

The medical examiner is allowed to perform an autopsy to show the cause and manner of death, whereas the coroner law requires the coroner to hold an inquest or secure written permission to perform an autopsy, which according to Dr. Berman, necessitates delays, unnecessary bereavement to the family and added expense to the taxpayers.

The medical examiner act provides penalty for failure to deliver any property of deceased within three days after proper demand, a provision not included under the coroner's law.

The medical examiner must also keep a record of all views of bodies found dead, together with their view and autopsy report, while no such records are required of coroners.

Democrat Backs Smart

A Walled Lake Democrat who serves on the council of that community this week endorsed the candidacy of a Republican - Representative Clifford Smart.

"One's candidacy cannot be based upon bigotry or discrimination, as is the candidacy of William Todd, but rather upon experience, qualifications and integrity," declared Walled Lake Councilman William T. Roberts.

Roberts said Smart is "handsomely endowed" with the qualifications for office. An outstanding educator, Smart has "served with distinction on the House Education Committee in both the 73rd and the 74th Legislatures of the State," he added.

"He has and is continuing to work not only for the 60th District but for the whole state.

"As a Democrat, as a public servant, and as a person interested in the well-being of our state I vigorously support the re-election of Republican State Representative Clifford H. Smart."

Gary Frink Calls McDonald 'Vague'

Democratic congressional candidate Gary R. Frink last week scored his opponent, Representative Jack H. McDonald of Redford, for "failure in fulfilling both the mechanical and representative duties of a Congressman."

Frink, speaking before a Livonia shopping center rally, took McDonald to task for what he called a "vague" record on major issues, as well as for "canned mailings" and lack of committee work.

"Consider the problem of poverty and race relations," the 35-year-old Pontiac lawyer told his audience. "He (McDonald) voted in favor of open housing and food stamps. But he voted against rent supplements, the model cities program and the rat bill.

"Where does he stand?"

"Apparently he has nothing against filling the cupboards of the poor - as long as you leave the rats in them."

Frink also criticized his opponent for voting against the elementary and secondary education amendments and against tough federal meat inspection laws, while voting in favor of cutbacks in the Peace Corps.

The Democratic candidate then charged McDonald with failing to "do his homework."

"My opponent is a member of the Public Works Committee," Frink said. "The hearings before that committee have occupied about 6,000 pages of testimony.

"Jack McDonald spoke up on 10."

Here's Pros 'n Cons On County Home Rule

The overall pro and con positions for the forthcoming November 5th voting issue Home Rule for Wayne County Under Act 293 are:

YES - Act 293 would enable voters of Wayne County, through adoption of a home rule charter, to reorganize county government structure and gain political autonomy independent of Lansing. The charter would be drawn up by a 35 member commission, and would be subject to voter approval.

NO - Changes in organization and structure of Wayne County can be effected by amending state law.

A detailed discussion of the issue must consider six interrelated areas: legislative body, chief executive, administrative organization, county services, intergovernmental relations, and finance.

Here are the pro and con side of each area.

LEGISLATIVE BODY

YES - Act 293 would remove the present appointed Board of Supervisors for a smaller, closely-knit group of County Commissioners (from five to 30).

County Commissioners would be directly elected on a partisan basis from apportioned single member districts. Thus, for the first time in Wayne County history, voters would have a direct voice in county government.

Democratic election of County Commissioners will prevent city and township domination of county affairs and strengthen the two-party system.

NO - Under Act 293 cities and townships would not have direct representation on the Board of Supervisors. County Commissioners would be elected without respect of municipal and township boundaries. Partisan politics may create problems in areas where objective solutions are needed.

CHIEF EXECUTIVE

YES - A "strong" chief executive or professional county manager is needed for the effective administration of Wayne County. He should have appointment, removal, and veto powers.

The Home Rule Charter Commission has freedom to explore and define responsibilities and authority in this area.

NO - Centralization of executive

Era of Federalism Nears End-Esch

Second District Congressman Marvin Esch told the Washtenaw County Council of Veterans last week that a significant feature of the new politics in America will be a strengthening of the capacity of local government to solve community problems.

"The era of total Federal domination is coming to an end," Esch declared. "There are areas where the Federal catalyst must remain, but the actual implementation and management of public problem-solving will increasingly take place at the local level. We have for too long been paying an unreasonable price for Federal domination - high costs of Washington administrative bureaucracy and the high cost of a loss of community involvement."

Congressman Esch explained that he has attempted to alleviate the problem for the Second District by assigning a full time staff position devoted only to the servicing of community problems and acting as a liaison with Federal agencies. "We have been successful in helping many communities out of the red-tape and bureaucracy in Washington," the Congressman said, "but it should not be necessary for local officials depend entirely on their Congressman for a clarification of government programs."

"I support the creation of an Office of Community Development in the White House to provide one-stop service for local officials who are understandably frustrated and bewildered by the myriad of programs, forms and requirements."

"One of the most important things we can do is streamline the federal programs already in existence," he said. "It is not enough to create still another department or agency every time we want to solve a problem."

Esch also noted his support for the Program Information Act which calls for a comprehensive inventory of all Federal programs so arranged that it provides not only state and local officials the needed information in seeking to qualify for assistance, but also provides those with executive and legislative responsibility a central source from which to study existing programs in light of current needs.

"There are programs that have outlived their usefulness, and there is overlap and confusion that must be ended," he added.

The Congressman went on to note that any program of community development must specifically provide for the participation of individuals who are now "virtually outside the governmental process."

Congressman Esch went on to note that any program of community development must specifically provide for the participation of individuals who are now "virtually outside the governmental process."

"Until we involve all citizens in the decision-making process, that affect their lives, we will continue to operate ineffectively and often irrelevantly, and continue to breed tension and unrest in our communities - large and small," he stated.

"This task demands a completely new approach - an approach that emphasizes local initiative and local control, with Federal assistance, but not a spider-web of manipulation," Esch concluded.

NCEC Backs Marvin Esch

The National Committee for an Effective Congress has announced its formal support for the reelection of Representative Marvin Esch from Michigan's Second Congressional District.

Citing Mr. Esch's "contributions to moderate Republicanism, his objective voting record, and his problem-solving approach," NCEC Chairman Sidney H. Scheuer stated that re-election of Congressman Esch is "important to the strengthening of the Legislative Branch and in the best interests of his constituents, his party and the nation."

McDonald Sees Threat By Russia

The free world's attention has focused so completely on the Czech crisis that the continuing Soviet buildup in the Mediterranean has gone largely unnoticed, Congressman Jack McDonald charged this week.

"Early this month, eight more Russian warships sailed through the Bosphorus to join the growing Red fleet in the Mediterranean. Red spy ships are cruising the Adriatic, causing mounting concern in Yugoslavia, Albania, and beefing up her coastal defenses."

Algeria is the key to Russia's Mediterranean and Southern Europe, moves, he said. Not so long ago, Algeria was part of France. Today, under a pro-Communist government, this country has become a veritable Soviet encampment. Algeria's huge naval base at Mers-el-Kebir offers the Soviet Mediterranean fleet the port facilities so vital to its maneuverability.

"Late in July, important talks between Algeria's Colonel Boumediene and Soviet Defense Minister Grechko laid the groundwork for the use of Mers-el-Kebir and the buildup of Algeria's military forces," he continued.

"Even before these important talks, Russia had been pouring massive military aid into the former French territory.

"Some 400 tanks have been sent to Algeria, hundreds of fighter planes, bombers and helicopters, artillery and other weapons. Russia has also helped to build up a strong fleet of small naval vessels.

"Algeria's 80,000-man professional army has been supplied with modern equipment. More than 1,000 Soviet officers and specialists, in addition to non-commissioned officers are training these troops.

"Indeed, most of the top officers of the Algerian army and air force had their training at Soviet military academies and that training continues for the younger officers.

"Thus Russia is building a formidable force in Algeria, transferring from Nasser's Egypt the role of key bastion in the Mediterranean."

Thomas Healy Emphasizes Probation

Thomas H. Healy, candidate for judge of the new district court, complimented the Methodist Church's Board of Christian Social Concerns for its work in promoting volunteer probation programs throughout the nation.

Speaking in Canton Township last Tuesday evening at the Jaycee sponsored "Meet the Candidate" forum, Healy recalled his call for a volunteer probation program in the new district court.

"Effective law enforcement requires that we have meaningful rehabilitation efforts in our communities," Healy said, citing statistics from the National Institute of Mental Health interim study on the effectiveness of a similar program in Royal Oak.

Continuing with the probation theme which has become a hallmark of his campaign since before the Primary, Healy said, "The voters in this district have a right to know where the candidates stand on this issue. They also have a right to expect that their new district judge will adopt programs which have proven to be beneficial."

The meeting was held at the Canton Township fire hall. Besides the candidates for District Judge, those in attendance also heard from Canton Township Trustee candidates, Richard Palmer, William Graham and V. Nordbaber.

SPEAKING for The Record

By BILL SLIGER

Over the past several weeks and including this edition The Record-News has attempted to provide its readers with an insight into the thinking of many of the candidates who seek election to office next Tuesday.

Specifically, we have singled out the men who hope to represent this area in the congress of the United States and in the house of representatives in Lansing. Also the men who would make county-level decisions in the newly-formulated board of supervisors. And the men who will sit as judges on our new district courts.

These offices are extremely important to the individual voter. They are the next level above the local office-holder and they are directly responsible to the voters for nearly all governmental matters, including many local issues.

What's more, these officeholders can be reached. In most instances they cannot hide behind the security of long terms of office, and in each case, they spend enough time in their home districts so that they can be reached for face-to-face confrontations.

They're truly your representatives. They make it their business to know how you feel about issues. And, normally, it's their objective to perform in office as they believe the majority would have them perform.

Likewise, voters should know what to expect of the men they elect. That's why we conducted the interviews. In some instances we were surprised by the revelations our questions brought. They helped make up our mind in cases where personal contact had not already established a choice.

I offer the following opinion as a consensus of our editorial staff after completing its personal interviews. These are our favorites... the men we'll vote for November 5:

U.S. Congress, Second District (Northville township, Salem) - Incumbent Marvin Esch, a Republican, who has just completed a successful first term that deserves re-election.

U.S. Congress, 19th District (City of Northville, Novi, Wixom, South Lyon) - Incumbent Jack McDonald, also a Republican completing his first term, highly qualified by background in local government and keenly aware of home attitudes and needs.

State Representative, 60th District (Oakland county portion of Northville, Novi, Wixom, Walled Lake and South Lyon) - Incumbent Clifford Smart, a Republican, serving second term, knows his job and performs it well. Challenged by a Democrat who supports Wallace for president.

State Representative, 35th District (township of Northville, Wayne county portion of city of Northville) - A most difficult choice. Both candidates well qualified, both well known and liked by this writer. Republican Louis Schmidt is the incumbent; he's facing Democrat Marvin Stempien in a rematch. I have been disappointed at the level of their campaign, which seems to have reached the name-calling stage. While I admire the abilities of Attorney Stempien and have watched him perform capably as Northville's city attorney, I do not believe he would improve upon the job turned in by Representative Schmidt during the past term. I supported (and voted for) Stempien when he ran as an incumbent against Schmidt, chiefly because Stempien had a good record in Lansing. That's why I'll vote for Schmidt this time.

County Supervisor, 26th District (township of Northville, Wayne county portion of city) - Republican Carl D. Pursell is our strong choice here. He's well qualified through work in local-level government and chamber of commerce work. He's also better acquainted with people and problems in the Northville area than his Livonia opponent.

County Supervisor, 27th District (Oakland county portion of city, Novi, Wixom, South Lyon) - Two Wixom residents compete for this post - Democrat Ray Lahti and Republican Lev Coy. We've known Lahti as a city councilman in Wixom for many years and we believe he offers more experience in government than his opponent. Further, Lahti has demonstrated real talent as a councilman and should represent his district well at the county level. Lahti gets the nod here.

District Judge, 52nd District 1st division (Novi, Wixom, South Lyon) - Martin Boyle, a young attorney with excellent qualifications, wins our endorsement here.

District Judge, 35th District (city and township of Northville) - We like both candidates (Dunbar Davis and Thomas Hick) but think that Davis, municipal judge in Plymouth, carries the superior credentials. Their principle campaign issue has been over the probation department in Northville, which we believe should be continued. Both have indicated they agree. Based on experience for this important post, our vote goes to Judge Davis.

"You may be sorry," I warned Superintendent Raymond Spear. "If I test 'em I'm not gonna pull any punches. Some of those mothers might flog you to death with soggy paper after I get through."

Ray, who obviously hasn't been jogging with some of his school administrators, was unmoved. "Write whatever you find out," he laughed. "I'm not worried. I used 'em all summer and I know they work."

We were talking about the controversial paper towels our kids are using after showering and swimming. Parents, upon hearing the initial complaints of their kids, bombarded the superintendent's office.

"How dare you make them dry themselves with a paper towel," they screamed. "They're still wet when they dress."

Now that most of the complaints have disappeared, Ray admits parents had just cause at the outset. "We didn't have enough of them at first, so we had to limit a student to a single towel." "That's bad enough but a lot of the mothers thought the towels were the little ones you find in a restroom."

"We've got enough of them now," he continued, "so each student gets two towels - or at least he's supposed to get two."

School officials, faced with a paper-thin budget, figure they can save up to $5,000 a year by using paper towels instead of the conventional ones. How accurate their estimates are remains to be seen.

Complaints are still trickling in, and even my oldest daughter continues to bellyache. "They're awful," she tells her mother who until this past weekend still imagined something about the size of a kleenex.

Readers Speak

To the Editor:

I would like to call attention of the voters living in the Oakland County, part of the city of Northville to Ray Lahti who has served on the board of Oakland County Supervisors for 10 years, and as always maintained a non-partisan position on all issues coming before the Board.

Having served with him on the board for 10 years, I recommend a vote for Ray Lahti. Having the experience and is a qualified supervisor with a good record.

To the Editor:

The members of the Holly Area Human Relations Council are deeply concerned about the voter considering George Wallace for president and William Todd, of Holly, for state representative.

America has many serious problems, problems which can only be solved by understanding, patience, and respect for all people. There is no simple or ready solution as Wallace would seem to suggest. These are times that the minds and hearts and souls of the American people are being strained as perhaps never before in our lifetimes. Our country needs a man who can reconcile the differences in America - a man who can bring the dissidents, the dissatisfied, and the disorderly back into the mainstream of American life. George Wallace is not that man. Force and repression are not the answers.

We earnestly feel that a man who publicly associates with the Wallace philosophy, as William E. Todd has done, should not be given serious consideration. Therefore, we urge the voters of this legislative district to defeat William E. Todd.

The Holly Area Human Relations Council

To the Editor:

In our recent lengthy tour of the south, through the states of Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi and west into Texas, then north, we found no evidence of riot damage, no fear of gang attacks on elderly people, no muggings and resulting injuries. People went about their business, day or night, without fear.

There is no street crime problem in the south or middle west. Aged members of the Veterans of World War I, who attended the convention, had no fear of walking the streets of New Orleans.

With Wallace as President, and the help of the law abiding Americans of both races, this could be brought about in northern cities and streets of terror and fear could be changed to safe streets.

A LOOSE LEAF

By ROLLY PETERSON

It's not history itself that is dry, it's the men who author history books who are at fault. They either lack intimate knowledge, imagination or personal involvement which would make history a living story of men and deeds. No such accusation could be laid at the late Robert F. Kennedy's door, not since the posthumous publication this month of his account of the Cuban missile crisis in "Memories."

Kennedy dictated the manuscript before he was assassinated. The details were accurate, but the prose needed some polishing. So to Ted Sorenson, friend and confidant of the Kennedy's who was privy to White House deliberations during those 13 pulsating days, fell the task of editing the late Senator's manuscript.

The result is must reading for the American electorate. Why? Because until Kennedy's account of those 13 days in 1962 is read, the responsibilities of the Presidency cannot be imagined, let alone grasped. Which is essential in choosing the right man on November 5 to guide this country for the next four years.

"Thirteen Days", without any embellishment, comes on like a suspenseful drama, only it's not make believe. The whole world is at stake, threatened with a nuclear war between the two powers, Russia and the United States. The situation which created the critical 13 days was the installation of missile sites in Cuba, missile sites which could launch nuclear warheads capable of wiping out 80 million Americans.

Stopping the installation was a foregone conclusion. But the real difficulty and Robert Kennedy made this palpable, was to stop the Russians without forcing them into a corner from which there would be no escape, no way out except nuclear war.

The ultimate decision as to what course of action would be taken rested squarely with John Kennedy. But the burden of coming up with the right alternatives, rested with a select group of high government officials, including Robert Kennedy, who was then Attorney General.

This aspect alone was unique. The President, according to his brother, knew the affect his office had on men, knew that his office would influence thinking and compromise positions. What was wanted was the truth, the right decision. And that could only be reached if men aired their opinions without having to cope with the weight of the Presidency.

It was hardly a homogeneous group. As Robert Kennedy made clear, there were pacifists and militants and those in between. Opinions sharply differed and with the pressure of mounting crisis, the President's select advisors acted in strange ways. This was the desired situation, for the right decision had to be reached.

Robert Kennedy's account was unique for other reasons, too, besides the President's hands-off policy and the late Senator's reflections upon it. There was the President's justifiable concern that something, almost beyond the control of men, would go wrong, that the wheels of war would be set in motion and the two powers, who both wanted peace, would be spun irrevocably into a nuclear war.

There was the militarists stand, their singleminded devotion to war, to bombing and invading Cuba as a first step and capitalizing on the element of surprise. Not even after the crisis was over did they relent in their position. As Robert Kennedy put it, "They seemed always to assume that if the Russians and the Cubans would not respond or, if they did, that a war was in our national interest."

There was the position of Robert McNamara, Secretary of Defense. Normally pictured as an intellectual robot, McNamara assumed the proportions of a man truly wise and human. It was his suggestion - that a blockade be imposed - that was eventually adopted by the President.

There are other details, other explanatory passages that make "Thirteen Days" a living testament to a President and our times. But only in the reading can the true impact of the situation be realized.

Michigan Mirror Dip in Grad School Minimal Despite Draft Law Changes

LANSING - It didn't hold up: the forecast that draft law changes would cause a big drop in graduate school enrollments in Michigan this fall.

Officials at Michigan State University, the University of Michigan and Wayne State University report graduate student numbers are down only slightly from last year.

U-M enrollment is 8,337, a decrease of three per cent from 1967's fall term. MSU has 7,700 students on hand this autumn, about the same as last year. Wayne State reports little change.

Col. Arthur A. Holmes, state selective service director, said the predictions of a mammoth decline didn't come true because:

Deferments were issued to students married before August 26, 1965; married students with children; and students over 26-years-old.

Voluntary enlistments, mostly among last June's high school graduates, filled up draft quotas.

Smaller than anticipated draft calls for Michigan during September and October.

"A GREAT hue and cry went up from graduate schools when the new policy on draft deferments was announced," Col. Holmes said. "Some educators predicted enrollment drops of 40 per cent, but it just didn't happen."

Last February military draft deferments were eliminated for all but medical and military graduate students. Previously a college graduate could be deferred for advance study without qualification.

College officials say they are still concerned about the future impact of the law change on graduate enrollments.

"Right now our situation looks good on paper," said an MSU spokesman. "However, I suspect it will change by January or February if the calls go up and the draft boards begin dipping down into the graduate schools."

CHOOSING leaders by periodic election may be a good political system, but is also a costly one, says Michigan's chief elections official.

Sec. of State James M. Hare says the expense of printing the ballots alone runs to more than $500,000.

1958. Hare says, when the number of machine precincts climbed from 1,700 state owns, and the money which must be paid to persons working at the 5,383 precincts.

"If you take a conservative estimate of just five persons working at each polling place and an equally conservative estimate of pay based on $15 a day, this item alone amounts to over $400,000," Hare said.

NEARLY 90 per cent of Michigan's voters will cast their ballots on voting machines in the Nov. 5 election, the secretary of state estimates.

The most recent registration figures show 3,336,803 eligible voters in the state, of whom 2,838,120 live in precincts with machines.

The state has 4,067 machine precincts and 1,316 which use the paper ballots, Hare added.

Only four of the state's 83 counties - Bay, Ottawa, Muskegon and Kalamazoo - have completely converted to machines. But Hare says that 31 counties are more than 50 per cent converted and 66 counties have at least one machine.

The changeover to machines was most pronounced between 1955 and 1958. Hare says, when the number of machine precincts climbed from 1,700 to nearly 3,300.

ATTORNEY GENERAL Frank J. Kelley says the constitutional amendment for a graduated income tax in Michigan is not self-executing. He says a sliding-scale tax could be levied with the authorization of the legislature.

Presently the Michigan Constitution restricts the state to a flat-rate income tax. State law limits all cities, except Detroit, to a one per cent levy on residents, and one-half of one per cent on nonresidents.

THE AMENDMENT would remove the constitutional prohibition against villages, charter townships and school districts levying an income tax, according to Kelley.

He added, however, that before any of these political units could impose an income tax, graduated or fixed rate, they would need permission from the legislature.

Gov. George Romney is opposed to a graduated income tax in Michigan. He says the federal government has pre-empted this field.

The state tax rate now is 2.6 per cent on personal earnings, and 5.6 per cent for corporations.

Roger Babson It Could be January Before The New President is Known

WELLESLEY HILLS, Massachusetts - Five days from now, the popular balloting for President of the United States will take place in every corner of the nation. But conceivably, we may not know until some time in January who the next Chief Executive will be. It could be that close!

Following the party conventions this summer, disaffection and dissatisfaction with the nominees was widespread among Republicans, Democrats, and others not normally hard-and-fast adherents of either party. Differences of opinion within the ranks of Democrats were more noticeable than among Republicans, though many staunch Republicans were dismayed at the choice of Governor Agnew for second spot on that ticket. And literally millions of Americans, of differing political persuasions, have been unhappy because they could detect little distinction in what they regarded as the "hawkish" views of Messrs. Humphrey, Nixon, and Wallace on the Vietnam issue.

Many citizens are reportedly so wrought up that they may not vote at all. But as each day passes, more and more undecided voters are reaching a decision. The spread between the two leading candidates has apparently narrowed and there is some reason to believe the third candidate reached a popularity peak some time ago. Right now, additional millions of voters are swinging toward a choice.

AT THIS WRITING, no man knows how close this election will actually turn out to be. But we do know that the cleavages over law and order, Vietnam, foreign aid, civil rights, and the war on poverty will cause more cross-switching by voters than normally occurs. We also know that ex-Gov. Wallace has attracted more voter interest and support than any third-party candidate within memory.

The Wallace strength and these cross-trends within the major parties could make for a deadlock in the electoral college, even if one of the three candidates should attain a majority of the popular vote. For it is in the electoral college that the final decision will be made.

When we make our ballot choice for President and Vice President, we are actually selecting a slate of electors who will presumably favor our chosen candidates. The electors from each state equal in number the Senators and Representatives from that state. Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, the Canal Zone, and Guam have no electoral vote; but the District of Columbia does have 3 votes. Hence, the full complement of the electoral college is 538, with 270 votes needed to elect.

THE ELECTORS cast their votes in their respective states on the Monday following the second Wednesday in December (Dec. 16 this year). If no presidential candidate receives 270 votes when the ballots are opened by the President of the Senate on January 6, 1969 and tallied... in the presence of the Senate and the House of Representatives... the House then chooses a President from among the three candidates having the greatest number of electoral votes, which each state having but one vote and with 26 needed to elect. The Senate picks the Vice President from among the two candidates having the greatest number of electoral votes, with each Senator having one vote and with 51 needed to elect.

Voter disagreement with this year's presidential candidates on particular issues is loud and sharp. Hence, it is feared that many voters may stay away from the polls to avoid having to make a decision.

Seek Individualized Instruction

Teachers Explore New Concept

A method of individualizing instruction was explored by members of the Ida B. Cooke Junior High School last week in a meeting with Dr. Harold Wells of the assist center of the Wayne County Intermediate School District.

Held in the high school library, the meeting was arranged by Principal Ronald Horwath and Curriculum Coordinator Miss Florence Panattoni when teachers expressed an interest in this subject.

Dr. Wells, who labeled it a "madness" to ask all students to learn the same thing at the same time, noted that under this educational process "many students would experience failure and others would be wasting time on materials they already knew."

He suggested the "Unipac" as a form of individualized instruction that the local teachers might choose.

A Unipac is a self-contained set of teaching-learning materials designed to teach single concept and structured for independent usage by each individual.

According to Dr. Wells, under the Unipac program teachers would need to determine what kind of persons they want a student to be and what that student would need to learn in each particular course to be that kind of person.

At this point then teachers would determine the behavioral objectives and build Unipacs around those objectives. A student would take a pre-test he would not be required to pursue that Unipac but rather he would move to a second behavioral objective.

If the pre-test indicates the student doesn't know the material, he pursues the objectives that will help him to learn the concept through diversified media and methodology, continued Dr. Wells.

When the student believes he is ready for the post test, he requests it. When he completes this, he moves on to the next Unipac. Each Unipac, Dr. Wells said, also contains "guest" opportunities for those students who wish to move into in-depth study through research in order to resolve a problem.

Continuing, he said that during the learning sequence the teacher provides as many opportunities as possible for student-teacher and student-student interaction. Wherever possible, small learning teams of students at the same point in learning may be formed.

Developing the Unipacs, of course, is the real task, said Dr. Wells. He pointed out that teachers could receive assistance from the Assist Center and should a teacher develop a Unipac accepted by the IDEA Materials center of the Kettering Foundation, the teacher would receive all Unipacs developed throughout the country in his subject area.

Individual teachers would determine the amount of time to be spent in individualized, independent study and how much time would be spent in large or small group instruction. In short, the structure would necessitate diagnosis, prescription and evaluation by the teacher, he explained.

Dr. Wells further pointed out that teachers should research all methods of individualizing instruction and then commit themselves to the way they believe they could best guide a student to be the kind of person who could perform most comfortably and effectively in a democratic culture.

Exclusive with Dodge is the optional turnpike Super-Lite. It lights the road far beyond the normal low beams without offending oncoming drivers.

For years, Polara's given you much more room inside than other cars. This year's Polara's even better. With more shoulder room, hiproom and rear legroom. You get big-car room without a big-car price.

Heaviest Voting Marks 'Cliff-Hanger' Election

Any way you look at it — from the presidential race down to local county supervisor battles — election 1968 has already laid claim to a page in history as a major political puzzle.

"See page 8-A for a precinct-by-precinct tally of how Northville-Novixom residents voted Tuesday.

As The Record-Novixom News went to press Wednesday, more than 15 hours after the polls closed, Richard Nixon had been elected president by a razor thin margin, but other national, state and county parties races were as scrambled as pre-election polls.

If there's one sure lesson to be learned from the results it is that voters are becoming less party oriented, splitting their tickets at all levels.

Generally, Republicans grabbed the edge locally with but few exceptions as voters turned out in record numbers.

Typical of the strange election results was the way two local incumbent congressmen, Republican Marvin Esch and Jack McDonald, swept to victory while Republican Representative Louis Schmidt lost out to Democrat Marvin Stempfen, Northville-city-attorney at the state level. Carl Pursell, Republican, candidate for the local Wayne County Supervisor post, defeated his Democratic opponent, Donald Friedrichs of Livonia — a community that tipped the scales for Democrat Stempfen.

Despite Nixon's slim national victory, Michigan was giving Vice-President Hubert Humphrey a 48-percent to 42-percent edge, with Wallace picking up 10-percent of the state vote as opposed to the 14-percent he was holding nationally late Wednesday morning.

In what is generally considered a Republican territory, Wixom Councilman Raymond Lahti, a Democrat, scored heavily but narrowly lost to Republican Law Coy, also of Wixom. For the local Oakland County Supervisor post.

District vote totals for local area candidates were: For the 19th Congressional seat, McDonald 103,094 and Gary Frink 74,624; 2nd Congressional seat (incomplete), Esch 20,120 and Wes Vivian 15,438; 35th Representative seat, Stempfen 18,605 and Schmidt 15,872; 60th Representative, Smart 13,678 and Todd 8,269; 35th Wayne district court, Davis 6,837 and Healy 5,538; 52nd Oakland district court, Boyle 6,569 and Weick 5,615; 26th district Wayne County supervisor, Pursell 24,670 and Friedrichs 23,521; and 27th district Oakland County supervisor, Coy 5,601 and Lahti 5,451.

And with Michigan voters picking district judges for the first time in history, Dunbar Davis won over Thomas Healy in the Wayne County race, and Martin Boyle defeated John Weick handily in Oakland County.

Northville supported the Wayne County home rule charter proposition, but it lost county-wide thus nullifying all results of the charter commission races. And Oakland County voters approved that county's lone proposition, abolishing the coroner system in favor of a medical examiner.

In Oakland County only one Democrat won a county office, Democrat Thomas Plunkett edged his Republican opponent, Richard Kuhn, for the prosecutor's post. All Wayne County offices were won by Democrats.

In neighboring Salem Township, the liquor-by-the-glass proposition went down to defeat, 484-287. With returns incomplete, Floyd Taylor, Republican, was leading John Starvas, Democrat, by 515 votes in the race for supervisor of Washtenaw County's third district.

Three of the five state propositions appeared to have been approved, although one — Daylight Savings Time — was hanging on by a thread. Water pollution and recreation proposals appeared sure to win, while the graduated income tax and the dual office propositions were soundly defeated.

Northville Township and Novi Township Republican incumbents, of course, were returned to office, by virtue of the fact that none were opposed.

Incumbent Representative Clifford Smart, a Walled Lake Republican, easily defeated his opponent, William Todd, who broke ranks with the Democratic Party to support Alabama's George Wallace. Somewhat surprisingly, however, Todd scored heavily in Novi, nearly winning the second precinct vote. He had 42-percent of the vote in total vote of both precincts.

Actually, Wallace picked up a lesser percentage in most local communities than he did on the national level. He had 13-percent in Novi, 18-percent in Wixom, 6-percent in the City of Northville, and 9-percent in Northville Township.

Nixon had 58-percent of the vote in Northville Township, 52-percent in the City of Northville, 44-percent in Novi, and 36-percent in Wixom.

Clerks and election workers in all area communities worked to the midnight hour Tuesday counting the heaviest balloting in history. Lines were reported throughout the day at most polls, but they were especially long in Novi's first precinct and Northville's third. In the latter, voters who were standing in line at the 8 p.m. close were casting ballots up to 9 p.m.

Because of the congestion in the community building — board of education office parking lots in Northville, police blocked off Cady Street so school buses could be loaded from that point at the close of classes Tuesday.

Here's the percentage of turnout locally in comparison with the 1964 presidential election:

City of Northville — Precinct 1, with 885 registered voters, 84.8-percent compared to 77-percent; Precinct 2, with 787 registered, 72.8-percent compared to 72-percent; Precinct 3, with 1,153 registered, 86.5-percent compared to 89-percent.

Township of Northville — Absentee ballots were not divided by precinct so only the combined percentage can be compared. With 114 registered, 87-percent cast ballots Tuesday compared to 88-percent in 1964.

Novi Township — Precinct 1, with 1,848 registered, 80-percent; Precinct 2, with 1,492 registered, 81-percent; four years ago 81-percent of the combined precinct registration turned out at the polls.

Wixom — With 829 registered voters, a 90-percent voter turnout was recorded as compared to 84-percent in 1964.

School Eyes Big Week

Education Week, November 11-16, Novi schools are planning several events. These events will be spread out during the week so parents can participate as much as possible, officials said.

At the Novi Junior-Senior High School an open house is planned Wednesday, November 13 starting at 7 p.m. Parents are urged to attend and go through their child's class schedule, thus enabling them to meet the teachers of their children and learn what each class attempts to accomplish. Parents will then be asked to sit in on a regularly scheduled board of education meeting which will meet in the high school commons.

Orchard Hills Elementary school will have a parents' visitation day on Tuesday, November 12, between 9:15 and 11:15 a.m. Parents may visit each classroom and watch a typical school day class in action.

Novi Elementary School plans to emphasize American Education Week in a newspaper which will be sent home to the parents. Because of the remodeling being done at the school nothing along the lines of an open house is planned.

Both elementary schools are planning a bookfair for American Education Week. At Novi Elementary School the fair will be held on Tuesday and Thursday between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. At Orchard Hills the bookfair will be held on Tuesday between 9:15 and 11:15 a.m. During these hours parents may order books for their children.

Ghoul Loose

Fiends and ghouls are not limited to other places, Police Chief Lee BeGole has revealed.

A Walled Lake area person placed himself or herself on the police department's most wanted list by passing out apples loaded with razor blades and pins.

One Novi trick-or-treater was given an apple with two straight pins and a double-edged razor blade in it and turned it over to Novi police who are holding it pending investigation.

Anyone with clues to the person's identity is urged to contact the Novi Police, 349-2444.

City Manager System Challenged 'Ward' Plan Sparks Verbal Bomb

A verbal bomb was prematurely detonated Friday night at the Novi Charter Commission resumed its final reading and approval of the proposed city charter.

Touching off the explosive session was a proposal by Commissioner Russell Button to provide for "some kind" of ward or districting system in the charter.

Ironically, Button's oft-repeated suggestion picked up some unexpected support but it also sparked additional support for the more controversial strong mayor concept — a system of government not supported by Button.

The mayor versus city manager debate was not scheduled to take place Friday night but when Button urged support of the districting proposal he gained the support of Commissioner William Brinker, who, despite earlier support of the city manager concept, suddenly switched positions and came out strongly in favor of a mayor form of government.

Brinker, who earlier in the meeting told fellow members he would reserve comments about the two forms of government until their scheduled airing tonight (Thursday), decided to unleash his comments early when a member of the audience, William O'Brien, stole some of his thunder in support of the strong mayor concept. And when the oratory had ended two things were certain: Button's proposal had been lost in the smoke and the controversial mayor versus manager issue, far from being dead, will provide a humdinger of a debate tonight.

Here is what appears to be the lineup for tonight's debate: For a city manager, Commissioners William Duey, who originally supported the strong mayor concept, Raymond Evans, Button, Edwin Pressnell, and Fred Buck. For a strong mayor: William Brinker and Dennis Berry. It is uncertain where the remaining two commissioners, Joseph Crupi and David Harrison who were absent Friday, will stand tonight.

The straw that broke the camel's back so far as Brinker is concerned was, explained the commissioner, the "weakened" position of the city manager in the proposed charter. Both he and Berry contend that so much of the power of the manager has been vested in the council that his usefulness has been impaired.

By compromising the manager's position in altering the charter, argued Brinker, the commission offers a confusing, frustrating proposal to the public that fails to guarantee an orderly, workable governmental process for Novi's future.

Brinker said he had been willing to compromise in helping to write the charter but he did so hoping that fellow members would see the light and strengthen the position of the city manager.

Brinker admitted that he had been willing to compromise his position during the writing of the charter but that he did so expecting that the commission would strengthen the city manager's role.

In view of the fact that his expectations had not been realized, Brinker proposed that the commission rewrite the governmental section of the charter to provide for a strong mayor — which he said would be more responsive to the wishes of the public.

In some what the same vein, Berry pointed out that he, too, had supported the manager concept but that the commission had so weakened the role of the manager he could no longer support that form of government. He noted that the proposed charter gives the manager charge over only the department of public works. All others, he added, are responsible directly to the council since the manager can remove department heads only after consulting with the council.

Berry also stated that it had been his impression that Commissioners Crupi and Harrison, upon rewriting the city manager section, had done so to strengthen the manager's position. Their efforts, he indicated, had been either thwarted or had fallen short of the mark.

O'Brien, in presenting a written statement of his position and supporting arguments, urged support of the strong mayor concept as well as a districting proposal. He also called for election of the clerk.

Calling the city manager system an out-dated concept, O'Brien concludes in part:

"Finally, it can be argued that contrary to the popular middle class belief of the past 50 years, the electorate is capable of directly electing its chief executive officer. It must also be further noted that modern political scientists at our larger universities (and contrary to the 1920 recommendations of political scientists of the Municipal League are currently returning to a philosophy of direct election of the mayor. Evans, a staunch supporter of the manager concept, pointed out that the people of Novi will, in the final analysis, decide the issue. If they vote against the charter because of the city manager provision then it is incumbent upon the commissioners to either change the section or resign to let others rewrite it.

Duey, who noted that he originally supported the strong mayor concept, argued that the city manager position has not been weakened, that the "floating" director of public safety position can actually be so positioned to give the manager commanding authority.

Incumbent Representative Clifford Smart, a Walled Lake Republican, easily defeated his opponent, William Todd, who broke ranks with the Democratic Party to support Alabama's George Wallace. Somewhat surprisingly, however, Todd scored heavily in Novi, nearly winning the second precinct vote. He had 42-percent of the vote in total vote of both precincts.

Jaycees, Students Cheer Servicemen

An expanded number of Christmas packages will be sent to overseas servicemen from the Novi area, Jaycee project chairman, James Cheroft, announced this week.

Joining with the Jaycees in the project this year will be Novi high school students who have volunteered to assist in collecting items to be packaged for shipment overseas.

"We're particularly pleased with the students' offer," said Cheroft, "because it's another prime example of the fine things that our young people do in their community. Too often we hear of bad things that really are not typical of the majority of the students."

The students, he continued, will be looking for the following items: Canned fruits or juices, cheeses in tins or jars, pre-sweetened Kool-aid, instant soups, cocoa mix, bullion cubes, hard candy individually wrapped, ready-to-pop popcorn, razor blades, playing cards, soap, stationery, etc.

Names and addresses of some 40 servicemen overseas have already been collected. But persons knowing of a serviceman from the area whose name may not yet be on the Jaycee list is asked to telephone Cheroft at 476-6191.

Persons who may wish to donate items for shipment overseas may drop them off at the Cheroft home in Willowbrook subdivision at 24066 Glen Ridge Court.

Gifts will be packaged and sent overseas on November 23 in time for delivery by Christmas.
