Wixom Council Tuesday heard a letter read indicating that the school will serve the Walled Lake, Novi, Bloomfield Township, South Lyon and Huron Valley (Milford) School Districts and will contain an enrollment of 300 pupils in each session - one morning and one afternoon - daily The school, which would hope to let bids in September, can either hook into Wixom or place a septic tank to the

The letter went on to say that John Albrecht of the Oakland County Department of Public Works did not feel it would be a strain beyond the limits of Wixom's new sewer system.

Council members, however, took a more cautious view of the request and decided to table the matter until next meeting to enable them to receive an opinion from Oakland County DPW chief R. J. Alexander concerning whether such capacity, coupled with that of present and projected housing developments, would indeed overtax the Wixom plant and force city tax payers to enlarge it.

Wixom also opened bids on a new police car, receiving them from West accepting the low bid as Mayor Pro-Tem Howard Coe told council that a new engine had been placed in the car intended for trade-in and that there had been considerable discussion about retaining the car for use by various city employees on official business. Based on an estimated state equalized valuation of $58,000,000. the 3-mills are expected to produce $174,000 of additional income.

Despite the income from additional millage and despite increases in other revenues, however, officials believe the district will be hard pressed to meet the needs of the spiraling student enrollment increase. The income from this millage hike - which will not start coming into the treasury until next winter - will not, according to Superintendent Raymond Spear, be sufficient to maintain the present school program or meet the 1967-68 educational standard here.

While the total number of teachers will be increasing next fall because of the increasing student population, the number of teaching positions will be reduced. Cut from the program will be an elementary art, elementary music, two elementary librarians, an elementary remedial reading teacher

This magnificent home is an executive's dream come true. It has absolutely everything!! Reproduction costs at todays prices in this area would be in excess of $200,000. Only the best of materials were used and the craftsmen were superior in their field. A single story ranch type, with over 3600 sq. feet, of luxury living situated on one of the most beautiful wooded lots in Northville. The master bedroom has a complete bath, and there are three full baths plus another half bath. There are two natural firplaces, a country size kitchen with all the built ins. A three car garage attached with electric eve opener. Two patios with natural slate. The roof is masonry, built for a life time. The Rec. room has a circular wet bar. It would take a full page to describe this home completely, so for the most discriminating buyer, my advice is to call for an appointment and see for yourself.

ANGEL FACE, a truly lavender floribunda, and the first levender rose of any description to win an All-American award, is going to create plenty of excitement in the gardens of 1969. Its ruby red buds, with just a hint of lavender, opens slowly and gracefully until, when about one-third open, they take on the form of a lovely lavender chalice. When fully opened, the large, four-inch blooms entirely double, truly lavender, and perfect in form, with petal edges curved, wavy, ruffled, and touched with suffusion of royal ruby, are worthy of a place in any garden. To complete the charms of this new award winner, Angel Face has a rich, spicy, old-fashioned rose fragrance of the kind that anyone would enjoy over and over again.

The totally unique and different lavender tones of Angel Face are a challenge to any arranger as it provides a color to work with which, until recently, was entirely lacking in roses.

Angel Face has the true floribunda habit of growing low and browd with its deep green foliage well set with showy clusters of double blooms, very large for floribundas. The plant is hardy, which is another plus for a levender rose, has good vigor and will create more than a little interest in the garden, whether it be a single plant set by itself, or a whole bed of this well named variety.

PASCALI, a product of the great Belgium hybridizer Louis Lens, and very probably the whitest of the white hybrid tea roses. Not only is this rose named for "Paschal" or Easter, but its purity perfectly symbolizes this great religious occasion.

Pascali has already won acclaim in Europe where it has been awarded a gold medal at The Hague, a silver medal at Baden Baden, first certificates at Rome and Paris, and certificates of merit at Geneva, Madrid, London and Vienna.

As a candidate for All-American honors, Pascali, when still just an entry under test, aroused the admiration of many of the official judges of the test gardens. The plant of this white hybrid tea is erect, vigorous growing, and well clothed with bright green foliage. It is disease resistant, including a marked freedom from mildew, branches readily, and produces its medium sized blooms, excellent for cutting, in steady succession.

The flower of Pascali is a particularly beautiful one with wavy petaled blooms, perfect in shape and substance. Composed of 35 to 40 broad petals, it holds it high bud centers exceedingly well - even until the outer petals drop. This winner, for most people, has just the slightest hybrid tea fragrance.

COMANCHE, of all the winners, probably is the easiest one to see from the farthest distance. It stands boldly four to five feet high and is set with brilliant scarlet, fully double four-inch flowers. This rose displays the grandiflora characteristic of bearing its large blooms in candelabras of three or four blossoms with occasionally a flower borne singly on a long stem, like a tea rose. The buds of the Comanche are very long and pointed, slowly unfolding in urn shaped grace to glowing 50 petal flowers of vivid orange scarlet - backed by a hot brick red. Not only will this rose, with its vivid blooms and vigorous, well shaped plants, attract attention in any part

My heart is full. I'd come to this church, some months ago, burdened with sorrow. Here, I'd found comfort and purpose in the life and teachings of God's Son. Since then, I'd been happier than I ever thought possible. Now, in the stillness, I whisper a long-ago paean,

On the front wall, weighing a little less than a ton, hangs the largest tapestry in the world. It was made in Germany. On it is a picture of Christ in glory surrounded by the four creatures of Revelation 4:7. Man is standing between his pierced feet. Then below, in somber colors of grey and black, is Christ crucified.

There are five pair of lovely colored windows, seventy feet high. The first pair are green and describe beginnings. The second are red and describe God's intervention in history. The third multicolored, speak of conflict and struggle. The fourth, deep blue and purple, describe Christian maturity. The fifth, golden. shining down on the altar, speak of final reality or the Great Beyond.

On another side of the cathedral the windows are clear glass, symbolizing that what goes on in the cathedral is revelant to the outside world. There is a strong emphasis on the influence

All around there is a wealth of color and symbolism. There are angels, patriarchs, prophets, apostles, and martyrs through all of whom we inherited our faith. There are two large crowns of thorns. Bible verses found inscribed on the catacombs in Rome are inscribed on the walls. They are in irregular, rather crude looking letters, symbolizing the early origin of Scripture. On the outside wall of the cathedral Satan is represented as being defeated. All of which tells us that a magnificent cathedral has taken the place of the one which was destroyed. On the floor near the entrance are inscribed the words. "This burnt to the glory of God."

City of Novi WWJ Radio's "Suburban Salute" will honor Novi, Michigan, on Monday, March 31, at 7:05 PM

Novi will be spotlighted as a well-planned, "model" suburb on the popular weekly WWJ program which acquaints listeners with communities in the Metropolitan Detroit area.

Novi's advantages will be explored and interesting facts about the city will be aired throughout the day on various WWJ programs. Among the many WWJ personalities who will salute Novi on March 31, are: Morrie Carlson, 5:30 to 9 AM; Bob Allison, 9:15 to Noon; Marty McNeeley, 12:30 to 5 PM; and Tom Hemingway, 7:05 to 11:30 PM.

WWJ-TV also plans to salute Novi with a special film report on Channel 4's 90-Minute News, 6 to 7:30 PM, on Monday, March 31.

WWJ listeners will learn about Novi's long evolution from a pioneer farm settlement to a growing rural suburb. To highlight modern development, WWJ personality Shelby Newhouse will appear on "Suburban Salute" with Novi officials, Harold Ackley, city manager, will receive a

Here's Proposed Schedule

School Building Plans Told

four Northville schools are scheduled to get underway next month with studies by staff personnel, Superintendent Raymond Spear A Gospel Films presentation, the revealed Monday night. "Fontane Story" tells what happened

In his report to the board of to the singer following an earsplitting education, the superintendent crash that left him unconscious for 30 predicted preliminary plans - so far as educational needs are concerned -The automobile crash brought the should be completed by June. Recommendations of the staff singer and his family to the knowledge committees of each school will be turned over to the board for approval of Christ, and they then dedicated their turned over to the board for approval, God-given talents to the service of their he said, and then the architect will be asked to begin working drawings and specifications.

Tony Fontane at present is a religious recording artist for RCA That additions to the high school, Victor while appearing in Christian junior high, Moraine and Amerman elementary schools are contemplated represents a change in the basic Members and non-members of philosophy of the board of education. Orchard Hills are invited to attending Until recently the board generally > handle an enrollment of about 500 students. That figure has now been increased to 700, thus paving the way for additions rather than new buildings. According to board members, basic reason for the change is economy. During earlier discussions of a future building program, the board had • No-shift, Hydrostatic Drive hoped a bonding election could be held . Smooth, Hydraulic Attachearly next fall so that the issue could ment Level Control be spread on the December tax rolls. • Fast-Switch Attachment However, Spear said Monday that it appears now that a September 15 vote • Rugged 12½ hp Engine is out of the question and that the • Variety of attachments for election probably will be held about Thanksgiving. That means tax dollars.

has called for elementary schools to begin coming in until the following "PROOF-OF-PERFORMANCE" year, he said. Major stumbling block, he explained, is the little leeway - in time and preparation - permitted under the board's new policy of bidding before

if the bonding issue is approved, won't placing bond issues up for votes. Bidding before bonding is a new concept in Michigan, and many of the state's school districts are keeping their eves on Northville to see how the procedure works.

Basically, this concept means voters will know exactly how much the new school will cost and they'll know more about the proposed new building before going to the polls. It means, too, that there is less room for errors by the architect and builders. School officials are confident it will save money, while providing more meaningful information

Spear said the tentative schedule calls for the architect to complete his specifications by October 1, with bidding to follow immediately. Construction, he said, probably would begin in January, 1970, with completion of all additions but the high school set for the following

The high school addition is not expected to be completed until January of 1971, Spear said, based upon the architect's estimates.

Although the board has not yet reached a decision, Spear has stated the expansion program might include 16 additional rooms at the high school (12 of which would be located in a two-story wing), four classrooms plans other new facilities at the junior high school, seven classrooms at Moraine and six to eight rooms at Moraine.

The expansion program may also include alterations at Main Street

SPEAKING for The Record

There's a bold challenge facing the citizens of this community (and many others) that calls for a full measure of objectivity.

The latter ingredient is most difficult to achieve, perhaps impossible.

I speak of the future of Northville, the city and township.

In this edition of The Record there's a special insert that presents a wrap-up of the Unification Feasibility Study. Among the facts and figures gathered following public meetings held on the study's findings are the procedures for bringing about community unity, either by means of total "unification" or by "annexation".

Eventually, and the sooner the better, an individual or organization must step forward and take the leadership in facing up to the important problems of the future for our city and township.

These problems boil down to the need for providing full services for a growing population in the best and most economical manner possible.

Among the most important of the services are police and fire protection. We cannot isolate ourselves from these most obvious areas. When population increases, incidents of crime become more frequent. And they don't confine themselves to boundaries. As the township grows, the city must expect more traffic accidents, more vandalism, more fire calls.

We live in a community, we share and support commor schools. Yet we are divided by separate leadership at the local government level.

I know too well the arguments that opponents of single government hold. And I say without reservation that all of them find their basis in personal prejudice and disregard for an objective review of the full community welfare.

Further, I have been a regular observer at both city and township official meetings for more than a dozen years. No single person in this community has attended as many city council and township meetings as this writer.

And it's my firm conviction that the need for strong. professional leadership for the total community has never been more apparent and it is becoming more critical each year.

It is my hope that township leaders, especially, will assert themselves and break away from the pressures continually exerted by those (among their members) who would not consider city-township unification under any terms.

The preservation of their jobs and little spheres of influence holds little importance when measured against the future welfare of the total community.

One might liken our community to a patient suffering from heart disease. Would you expect the doctor to ignore treatment because he has a disdain for heart cases?

It just so happens the mild-mannered Bronson isn't a bad mechanic and a motorcycle is a cheap means of transportation.

So what's it all about?

Bronson is one of the many disillusioned with life, but one of the few young enough and free enough to shake off the role society would have him play in search for some meaning in life. He quits his job as a San Francisco reporter and takes to the road.

The incident that snaps the string of routine and sets Bronson on the road to New Orleans is the death of his young friend. He iumps off the Golden Gate bridge to a rocky death, leaving his wife and kids behind him and everybody wondering why.

"I just want to discover," Bronson says to his police inspector friend, who, in turn, tells Bronson to live as if "tomorrow is the very first day of the rest of your life." It sounds slightly on the corny side, but perhaps not to the man around 50 who had the chance but didn't and will be forever wondering.

So Bronson jumps on his motorcycle, the one which he and his friend who committed suicide built, and begins his quest. As he travels along the California shore, there's something whimsical and gossemere about it, like a free ride on a shifting breeze.

The tranquility (despite the drone of the motorcycle) is bound to be broken and it is as Bronson wheels freely over the sandy Pacific shore. A girl in the distance rushes to water's edge, takes off her wedding veil and dress and her ring and throws them into the Later they meet, quite by chance. No explaination is given as to why she ran away "frightened" from the wedding. And basically, there's no explanation when she leaves Bronson as he pursues his

After the regular season was over they played in a semi-finals and finals with the champions being awarded trophies following a Faculty-All Star game on March 20.

The letter is written not only to thank the boys for their participation and plaque they presented to me, but to also thank their parents for their efforts. Northville Awarded Top State Grant

The Northville School District Thursday was awarded a $19,565 state grant to conduct a feasibility study of the year-round school concept. Michigan, the Northville stipend, according to Superintendent Raymond Spear, is one of six awarded in the state from a $100,000 special appropriation made by the State Legislature. Next largest grant - $19,500 - went to the Utica school system. A comprehensive study - research program, supplementing a study conducted over the past several months by a school board-appointed citizens of the state-financed study, said Spear. will be public informational program, a house-to-house survey, and an analysis of the survey to determine whether or not an extended school year or school day is feasible.

Year-Round Committee, will get underway yet this month. Major thrust

To qualify for the grant, Northville had to agree to make its finding available to other school districts in the state that might wish to consider adoption of a year-round program. Northville's earlier study of the year-round concept had much to do with the state's decision to award a grant to the local school system.

Meanwhile, police throughout the metropolitan area have been alerted to watch for the illegal dumping of waste

The latest episode in the war on oil occurred early last week when, with the melting of ice, thousands of gallons of waste oil seeped into the Bassett Drain from near I-96 and Novi Road and immediately touched off a full-scale pollution battle by representatives of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and about 1,000 near Pontiac. "This is not a small rig," he said. The county immediately pressed several men into a daily clean-up operation in Novi. As was done last year, straw baffles were constructed to keep the oil from flowing downstream along the Rouge River and into Phoenix Lake, newly stocked with fish. Oil is being skimmed from the

Councilman Del Black Talks About the Issues

I firmly believe that the improvement and further development of our commercial tax base is not strictly a city government function. The business community will have to be persuaded to pay its fair share.

Ouite frankly, as a businessman am disturbed by the growing public sentiment that our downtown merchants do not want new business to come here. Let me say most emphatically that I for one whole-heartedly welcome new business business, with its wider variety of merchandise, attracts a larger shopping cliental. Many of us realize that competition is healthy.

The CBD, I believe, is the instrument that promotes orderly growth of our downtown business section. And it is this growth that can make for a healthier tax base.

As a member of that council, attuned to these specific projects, I believe I can better work towards their completion than can an unseasoned candidate. Implementation of the CBD, for example, has already been initiated by the council and much of what has gone into it reflects my thinking and direction. At this point I want very much to see it through to completion. As chairman of the community-wide Recreation Committee, I am keenly aware of the recreational needs of our community and I am anxious to continue pushing for fulfillment of these needs at the council level. Purchase of the fish hatchery site, in which I played a contributions, expansion of our recreational program into a truly vear-round activity, and establishment of small neighborhood parks are equally important and require someone willing and anxious, like myself, to promote them at the Council table.

For the past four years the Council has been vitally concerned with a flooding situation in this section of the Rouge watershed and it has taken steps at the state, county and city levels to control and correct it. Presently, we are working with the City of Novi and Oakland County to create a flood control district. Furthermore, we have placed a building ban on flood problem land within our community, designated flood control areas along the Rouge River, and only recently installed a new sewer line in the northern part of the city to cope with heavy water runoff. These are but a few of the programs that will require a man who already involved in bringing them to completion. Now is a time for action. The study stage is over and those elected at this juncture must, in my opinion, meet two major criteria: first, knowledge and understanding of the master plan and related guidelines; and second, possession of strong commitments to action programs to leading role, is but a start. Development As the only incumbent running for councilman, Black KNOWS the issues and isn't afraid to 'tell it as it is'.
