Time and events bring about change. And Monday night the Northville city council will change because one councilman decided it was "time", while another was the victim of an "event".

Charles Lapham gave up his seat voluntarily after four years; Wally Nichols was defeated in his bid for re-election by two votes.

Undoubtedly their successors, David Biery and Paul Vernon, will develop certain talents and areas of special interest just as Lapham and Nichols did during their tenure on the council.

PRO...

The question is misleading. There actually is no local TV blackout of professional football games. When the Lions play at home, local TV fans can watch as many as four NFL games every Sunday, plus another one on Monday

When the Lions are on the road, they televise every one of those games to stay-at-home fans. This current season, for example, we will play 20 games. Exactly nine of those games...or 45-percent of our entire schedule...are televised locally.

No other Detroit sports team televises such a high percentage of its entire schedule.

It has been found out, the hard way, that if home games are televised locally, many fans would stay at home for television rather than go to the stadium. To ask the Lions to play to empty seats under such an arrangement is the same as expecting the Fisher Theatre to televise its finest stage plays instead of selling tickets.

I feel certain that you and your readers would agree that such an arrangement is out of the question.

Publicity Director,

CON...

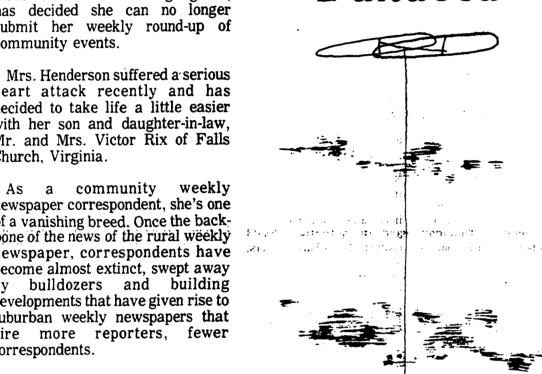

The argument most often heard supporting the blackout question is that by blacking out a certain geographical area, you insure good crowds. A layman's look at the home attendance figures will quickly reveal that attendance is certainly no problem. Denver, a team having little success, has been sold out for every home game including the exhibition season. Season tickets insure good crowds. I personally feel that the prospective season ticket purchaser is influenced more by the quality of the anticipated performance than whether the games will be shown locally or not.

Young fans that are prospective ticket buyers are being deprived of the opportunity to develop team loyality and a small sense of community identification. One does not assure "product loyality" by withholding the product from a prospective consumer. This blackout system may eventually come back to haunt the corperate organizations that promote pro-football.

Many loyal Lion fans that can no longer physically make the journey to Trumble Avenue would benefit greatly by the elimination of this practice.

For all we know men like Artie Shaw might have survived a single mate had it not been for a broken disposal or a defective light switch. Just imagine the agonies of home repairs that man must have been put through to be forced into so many marital contracts.

That some of us with mechanical deficiency are still treading water with the first wife is remarkable.

More remarkable, however, are those men, like Richard Nixon, who have giant houses to maintain and yet exhibit so little of the pain under which they must be laboring. Not only must he cope with the hair of his wife and daughters stopping up the pipes but he's probably still fighting gobs of the stuff left by all those former inhabitants.

On Drugs EDITOR'S NOTE:

Following is the fourth in a series of articles by Oakland County Prosecutor Thomas G Plunkett intended to inform parents about the drug threat and what it means to their Today's Subject: More Bad News for "Speed" Users Methampetamines)

Last week we talked briefly about injected Methampetamines, commonly called in street jargon as "Speed". You will recall that the effects of using this drug, in this manner, were very disturbing to say the least. Recently more disturbing news about "Speed" has come to light. On November 5, 1970, it was reported by a U.S.C. Medical Center team at Los Angeles that as many as 20 percent of the youths who "shoot speed," (take it by injection), may develop a blood vessel disease that has been fatal in about 30 percent of cases detected t

It seems as though the disease kills by blocking blood vessels in vital organs such as kidneys and the heart. This will be the first deadly disease of the body that doctors have found associated with drug abuse of this type.

"Speed" is, as we have said, a form of amphetamine - the "pep pill" drug. Users inject it to get a quicker, higher response. According to one doctor who worked with the above mentioned study. persons who take amphetamines orally to contro thèir appetite may possibly be lethal blood vessel disease. Eight doctors, specializing in medicine, radiology and pathology, comprised the medical staff which made the discovery at U.S.C. Dr. B. Philip Citron, who headed the staff, wrote a report which appeared in the November 5th issue of the New England Journal of Medicine. In it he tells of extensive studies done on 14 patients, eight males and six females. Four of them died, and one is now near death. Most of those who died succumbed to heart failure or kidney failure, due to the blockage by scar tissue of blood vessels within those organs. Autopsies showed vessels in the pancreas, stomach and small intestines also were severely affected. It is hoped that the discovery will hasten the removal from the market of amphetamines which reportedly have very little therapeutic value. LSD is also suspected as a cause of he same blood vessel disease woman patient involved in the study had been taking 30 pills a day, originally prescribed to control her diet. The dosage for that purpose is two pills a day. It seems this is a star ling example of how diet pills, used under a doctors prescription in the beginning, can quite easily get comoletely out of hand. In my first article I mentioned that the purpose of these "letters" was not to put the blame for the drug problem on anyone

Battle Seen over Abortion Reform

Lansing—If the drive now underway to place abortion reform on the 1972 November ballot is successful, Michigan voters can expect a very emotionally charged cam-

That prediction is based on the experience of the only state which thus far has polled its voters on how they feel about abortion reform-Washington. In the campaign there, the battle grew hotter as election day approached.

The one difference would be that in Washington state the issue was referred to voters by the legislature after both houses had approved a bill liberalizing abortion laws. In Michigan, the Legislature failed to act. Since the matter was bottled up in committee, supporters felt the Legislature was unresponsive to the people who wanted to see a vote.

PRIOR TO THE ELECTION, abortions were legal in Washington only to save the life of the mother. Now, a woman in Washington may receive an abortion if she wants it through the first 16 weeks of pregnancy, providing she has lived in the state 90 days and has the consent of her husband if she is living with him. Unmarried women under 18 need parental consent.

During the campaign. The arguments used in Washington were much the same as the ones used in Michigan and other parts of the country where the issue has boiled over. Opponents of the change, designated referendum 20 on the ballot, called it legalized murder. They blanketed the state with billboards showing a 16-week old fetus with a caption saying "Kill

Referendum 20. Not Me." PROPONENTS ARGUED, on the other hand, that "no law or government should be able to tell you whether or not you must bear a

On election day, Washington voters approved the liberalization of the abortion law by a vote of 599-959 to 462-174 leaving no doubt where a solid majority stood. The total number of votes cast was only 6,000 less than were cast in the race for the U.S. Senate in which Sen. Henry M. (Scoop) Jackson won another

The best comparison in Michigan is the parochiaid ban on the 1970 ballot-also considered a very emotional issue. Yet there were 160,000 fewer votes cast in it than in the race for governor.

TAX COLLECTIONS SET a new record for state and local governments around the country in the fiscal year which ended last June. That probably surprises no one.

A compilation of state and local collections shows they passed the $90 billion mark for the first time. totaling roughly $94.3 billion. This was an increase of 7 per cent, or some $6.2 billion, over the $88.1 billion recorded from state-local tax revenue sources the preceding fiscal

The increase in revenues was in all categories except for corporation income taxes which dropped 7.2 per cent as the result of the economic recession to $3.39 billion.

THE SALES TAX continued to be the biggest single producer of revenue for states as its production rose 8.8 per cent to $17.7 billion. The champion overall, of course, remains the property tax, which produced $38.26 billion, an increase of 7.1 per cent. Most property tax revenues go to local governments.

The second most productive tax for state governments in terms of money raised was the income tax on individuals. A total $11.5 billion was collected. A hodge podge collection of "all other" taxes including such as cigarettes, liquor and public utilities produced an additional $13.5 billion altogether.

THE CIGARETTE TAX, by the way, continues to smoke across the nation. Connecticut just set a new record high for the tax by raising its rate to 21 cents per pack.

William G. Meese President and Chief Executive Officer The Detroit Edison Company

We at Detroit Edison must provide Southeastern Michigan with an adequate supply of reliable electric power. We feel this obligation strongly and our record for reliable service is better than the national average.

We will make every effort to continue this dependable service. percent, and medical care 125 percent. But the demand for electric power is at record levels-and climbing. For the average of 12 percent increase example, we now have 250,000 more customers than we had in 1960 and the average family uses 90 percent more 28 percent in 1970. electricity than it did at that time.

To meet this growing demand we are going ahead with a massive construction program—one of the largest in the country. Construction expenditures are at the rate of almost $2 million for each working day. This will add up to $2.5 billion over five years and will include tens of millions of dollars for electrostatic precipitators, cooling towers, and other equipment that will improve the quality of our air and water. Detroit Edison has been, and will continue to be, dedicated to improving the environment. Our problem is: How do we pay for this new construction?

Inflation has made this problem worse. Fuel, wages, equipment, taxes, construction, and investment capital costs have all gone up to record levels. That's why we've asked the Michigan Public Service Commission for an urgently needed increase in rates for electric service. We have supported the request with complete and accurate data. Without the increase we cannot complete our indispensable construction program.

Nor can we guarantee much longer tained from individuals and instituour ability to meet the area's increastions willing to invest in Detroit ing energy requirements—essential to economic growth and employment • We have to compete for inopportunity in the area-and convestment capital with every large tinued protection from brownouts and company in the United States and

All of us struggle with inflation. Some have the option of cutting corners or doing without. In that area, we have gone as far as possible without threatening the quality of service. But we cannot cut the cost of the new generators that are needed, or further reduce our dedicated man-

Gone Fishin For Meaning

Reverend Father John Wittstock Our Lady of Victory Church

I have sat in a row boat several hours each week during two summers at a Boys' Camp trying to catch fish smarter than I am. I was bored, tired, frustrated - for naturally I caught very few fish, most of which were legally undersized and had to be thrown back into the lake I was a counsellor at a Boy's Camp: the campers, about four boys to a boat, caught one or two each day, but the boys were happy, fascinated, and hopeful. They had the patience if not the skill of true fishermen Sometimes the weather was inclement, yet we went fishing. Most of my time was spent putting ugly worms as bait on the fishing hooks of my charges. Each time I baited an ugly worm I wondered how I ever chose to be a counsellor

Peter the Apostle, we learn from Sacred Scripture, was an impulsive man and yet he was a skillful and patient fisherman. Although he must have been tired from fishing all night and exasperated at no catch ("we worked hard all night long"), he immediately set out again to fish at Christ's command. There is no irritable back talk or cynical response from Peter to Christ's invitation. He simply goes out to try once more for a catch of fish. He does what is seemingly unreasonable just because Christ asked him ("but at Your word I will lower the nets,"), and finds that the reward is beyond his expectations. Christ drove His point home; so many fish were caught that the boats nearly sank We weak Christians, if we would only learn from Peter to take Christ at His Word. To learn from Peter and from many strong and faithful Christians in the world we must press close to Christ to hear the Word of God. As we prepare for every Sunday's Liturgy we must be eager for the Word of God, seek it out no matter what the cost. This means fighting for time to read Scripture, just a few minutes each day, and meditating on the passage that we have read.

We must see Christ's Word here and now. What is Christ telling us about Himself, about the Father? What is He saying about the divine plan for our own salvation and the people in our community? Surely He asks us to respond to His

In knowing Scripture better, we know Christ better. In knowing Christ better we get to know ourselves more clearly, as Peter did in the gospel which is a true fish story. In knowing Christ more intimately we see ourselves in our sinful condition more clearly. Christ's Word comes through the needs of campers, the widow, the orphan, the sick and poor and disadvantaged. Reflecting on His Word gives us a better insight on what our attitude should be even when we perform such a little chore as baiting the fish hook with an ugly worm; even cleaning the fish will seem a lot more fun.

DREAMS ARE THE DAWN OF TOMORROW

And like the first light of a new day they seem distant, unreal. Yet out of our dreams we often fashion tomorrow.

The dreams of the daylight hours are not in the subconscious. Rather they project our hopes on a screen of reality. They grow into goals and aims and ambitions.

Whether tomorrow will fulfill those dreams depends on certain values which must be acquired today. Ideals, standards, moral principles, religious faith — these inspire dreams worth dreaming, and help us to
