Conservation Department Looks at New Year

What disturbed MacMullan and many other environmentalists most on the eve of 1972 was the resounding fact that Michigan's population crunch was sending sharp tremors into the North Country. The year saw a growing trend in which people walled in the cement canyons of southern Michigan's cities rushed "Up North" to seek their piece of the good earth as retreats from their hustlebustle, workaday world.

The problem was-and is-northern Michigan's environmental values were being lost in this "people shuffle." The land-buying spree, with all its proliferating demands for

'Frozen' Lakes Are Hazards

Any snowmobilers daring to motor onto Michigan's recently frozen lakes and streams without first checking conditions may very well "break the ice" on their 1971-72 season in the worst sort of way, cautions the Department of Natura

Robert Dyke, head of the DNR's Marine Safety Section warns snowmobilers and others that the current period with its newly-forming ice poses some potentially dangerous "openers" for the

"The first ice of the season is generally not as safe as it may look from the surface,' he explains, "because it normally lacks uniform thickness. It simply takes some prolonged freezing temperatures for ice to form solidly and thickly enough to support people, particularly machines such as snowm-

Dyke points out that at least 5 inches of ice is required to provide a minimum margin of safety for snowmobilers and their machines.

That's just a general rule, of course, and there are such things as discolored snow cover and honeycombed ice to steer clear of during the winter season. In any case, snowmobilers are urged not to leave their personal safety to guess; they should carryand use-auger or spuds to test the thickness of ice in areas where they plan to operate their machines. Even then, there is always will run into weak spots and go plunging through the ice. What to do then? "Don't panic," are Dyke's first words of advice. He continues; "Your bulky clothes will support you for a few minutes. Extend your arms along the ice edge and kick your feet hard. Ease yourself onto the unbroken ice. When your hips slide onto the ice, roll away from the hole. But don't stand up, yet! Ease yourself, spread-eagle fashion, away from the hole, and edge out at least 10 feet from that break-in point before standing."

The DNR's Marine Safety chief urges snowmobilers to carry ice awls or spikes with wooden handles in easy-toreach outside pockets. "These tools could help save your life when you're trying to stronghold your way back onto the Dyke also has some safety suggestions for snowmobilers who might find themselves in a position of trying to rescue others from icy waters. First of all: "Park your machine a good safe distance from the principles solidly upheld. In dismissing a suit aimed at blocking antlerless deer hunting in Dickinson County last season, a three-member panel of judges stated that the DNR's testimony in the case "overwhelmingly" contradicted the plaintiff's charges that antierless deer harvests are likely to impair or destroy the herd.

Basically, the plan divides the park into 4 main zones and sets down use limitations in line with each unit's special features. It reflects the fact that the park, with about 300,000 visitors annually, has reached the point for controlling public use to save its unique wilderness setting.

The judges, serving for Dickinson County Circuit Court, pointed out: "The preponderance of the evidence convinces the court that the severity of winters in recent years and the lack of suitable food for deer, particularly in or near deeryards in periods of deep snow, are primarily responsible for the decline of the herd."

"THANKS for the promotion," said City Manager Frank Ollendorff after reading last week's newsstory about the plan for re-alignment of city clerk duties upon the upcoming retirement of Clerk Martha Milne. The story explained that when the new arrangement takes place the duties of treasurer no longer will be shared by the clerk's office. Then it concluded by noting that the city manager holds the title of "mayor" Ollendorff may hold the title of "treasurer", but he is herewith demoted from "mayor" and the title restored to its rightful owner, A. M. Allen, with apologies to both.

THE CITY'S new anti-phosphate ordinance, apparently has been superseded by a new state law, according to City Manager Frank Ollendorff, who reports that enforcement of the local ordinance is being withheld pending clarification of the state law.

City of Northville ordains:

Title VII, Chapter 2, Section 7-211 RIGHT-OF-WAYS; PLANTING, REMOVAL: AUTHORITY — The planting and or removal of trees and shrubs in the public rights of way, parkways, parks and other public areas of the city may be done either upon resolution of the city council or by order of the city manager upon recommendation of the department of public works. If a tree is to be removed from a parkway or other public property, a permit therefor must be obtained by the city forester. If such a permit is approved, and unless the tree is diseased, dead or is in accordance with this chapter an undesirable or prohibited tree, a fee of $75.00 shall be paid. For such permit, or in lieu of the payment of such fee, a new tree of a species and size acceptable to the city forester may be planted without expense to the city, in the vicinity of the tree so removed.

Speaking for Myself

Ted Kennedy For President?

YES...

Had it not been for the tragic, unforgettable auto accident which took the life of one of his female staff members, U.S. Senator Edward M. (Ted) Kennedy would today be the leading, if not only, Democratic candidate for the presidential nomination.

Senator Kennedy seems to have everything it takes to make an attractive political candidate — excellent background and training, valuable government experience, the ability to speak to the issues, a high level of public recognition, considerable personal wealth and abundant personal charm.

Most importantly, Senator Kennedy has demonstrated, time and again, that he can command the attention of Americans from all walks of life when he addresses himself to the great, overriding problems that face our country. And, whether they agree with him or not, most people are willing to consider and reflect upon what Sen. Kennedy has to say.

His proposals for the relief of conditions of poverty, improper health care, old age, the decaying congestion of our cities, the brutal impact of racial discrimination, as well as his cogent criticism of current U.S. foreign and military policy, have gained for him the respect of even his most avid political antagonists.

It is apparent, it seems to me, that Senator Kennedy has much to offer the American people with regard to political ideas and alternatives, and the question thus becomes whether those ideas and alternatives should be denied to us because of one personal tragedy in the private life of one man. I think not.

No one can predict the success or failure of a Ted Kennedy presidential candidacy in 1972, but what is predictable is the level of excitement and public interest that such a campaign would bring. Regardless of the outcome, a typical, vigorous Kennedy campaign would revive an obviously sagging American interest in political affairs, and that is precisely what is needed, if we are to solve the many critical problems of our troubled times.

Ex-Gubernatorial

In this day of images and charisma you might ask why I feel that the Democratic Party should not nominate Ted Kennedy for the Presidency.

As a graduate of Harvard undergraduate school and University of Virginia Law School, a U.S. Senator, and one-time Senate majority Whip, he has the necessary surface training and experience for the job.

His background is marred by two outstanding incidents. As an undergraduate at Harvard he was expelled for hiring another person to take an exam for him. We are also familiar with the unfortunate occurrence at Chappaquiddick where Mary Jo Kopechne died under mysterious circumstances in his car. While the first incident occurred during his youth, the latter took place in 1969 when he already had presidential aspirations. It leads one to the conclusion that his character and morality leave much to be desired.

In my opinion, he does not have the keen intellect and depth of character necessary to properly handle the complex problems and delicate crisis the man holding the hot line will face. He has the name, face, voice, wealth, and charm, but he should be judged not by form but by sub-sometimes as many as 10 cartoons during the week, depending upon the assignment. A lifetime resident of Howell and the divorced mother of four children, ranging in age from four to seven, 31-year-old Judy began drawing political cartoons for Sliger Publications about 18 months ago. "Somehow it always happens that people find out I know how to draw," she chirped i her usual friendly manner over a cup of coffee. And the initial contact with Sliger Publications was no different. A cartoon was needed to hammer home a point expressed in an editorial. Mary Ann Belyea, then Argus news editor, knew Judy and that she drew. She suggested contacting Judy, who responded with a snappy cartoon. The decision was quickly made to capitalize on her talents by running her cartoons in all Sliger publications.

"What throws me," she said, "is when, for instance, you want a table or a cloud. Nothing comes across. I have to know the 'why' behind the cartoon idea so I can get the feel of it." Once she has the idea firmly in mind, Judy said, she sits down at her small drawing table and begins creating the cartoon.

When she first began, a cartoon would take 30 minutes, after she'd thoroughly digested the idea behind it, of course. Now, actual drawing of a political cartoon might take as few as five minutes, or as long

For instance, the cartoon of Ted Kennedy which appears in this week's issue took Judy 15 minutes. The cartoon on Jimmy Hoffa which appeared last week took about 30 "Then I didn't have it right," she said, "because it wasn't a caricature." The dif-

"An artist is never satisfied," the working mother said. "To me, there's always something wrong with it. But I never do them over again. When you're done, you're done." Drawing, to Judy, has always been a chief means of expressing herself. The former Judy Niles, whose parents also reside in Howell, would retreat to her room to draw while her two older brothers would find other, more gregarious ways to express themselves Other than the art courses she took in high school, Judy hasn't had any schooling in how to draw. But she's always "scratched own art as "work. Art actually occupies little of Judy's time in comparison with the pressing demands of working to support her four children, Gail 7 Pat 5, Jo Ann 6, and Skeet 4. During eigh hours of the day, Judy works in the Patient Relations Department of McPherson Community Health Center as a switchboard

"At timers, she says, the thought of raising four children alone is frightening. She realizes there are some things that only a man can do for her children. But since her divorce some two and one-half years ago, she says she has shaken off feelings of inadequacy which first rushed over her. Faced with necessity, she has learned to forage for herself. Of immense help, she explains, has been her two younger brothers, Jeff and Jim, both of who are teenagers. They contributed babysitting services when Judy was in the throes of shaking off the divorce and trying to adjust to a work situation.

Now, Judy, situated in a full-time job which she likes and drawing political cartons for Sliger publications, is on her feet and taking things as they come.

LANSING—The news resulting from the 1972 legislative session will look somewhat familiar to those who followed the 1971 session.

The major perennial issue is how big the state budget is going to be. This year's tab finally totaled roughly $2.08 billion for state operations, and the latest figure for the coming fiscal year should exceed the $2.2 billion mark.

Crime Boosts Protective Industry

SERIOUS CRIME in America has continued to rise year after year, particularly in the suburbs and rural areas. It is little wonder then that the protection industry—those firms that supply armed guards, armored cars, burglar alarms, protective weapons, photographic security systems, etc.—is a large and growing business. Annual full range of protections but the spending on such equipment and bulk of the revenues comes from services is in excess of a billion uniformed guard services. Lunar Eclipse Coming up Soon

The astronomical events of January will culminate in a total lunar eclipse, notes University of Michigan astronomer Hazel M.

The lunar eclipse, which occurs when the moon passes through the cone of the earth's shadow, will take place the morning of Professor Losh says the eclipse will begin in the west, with the full moon at an altitude of about 30 degrees. At 4:12 a.m. that Sunday. she explains, the moon will first touch the earth's shadow. Soon after, its eastern edge will become dim, she continues, and the darkened area will gradually enlarge until total eclipse at 5:36.

The total phase will end at 6:12 a.m. Professor Losh observes, but it will require an additional hour and 24 minutes for the moon to leave the shadow completely. The eclipse will be plainly visible throughout its three and one-half hour duration, Professor Losh says. During the total phase, she points out, the moon will be illuminated by sunlight which filters through the earth's atmosphere.

Americans who have experimented with Marihuana smoking at least once may number as many as 20 million persons. It is estimated by the Pentagon in Washington that perhaps as many as 30 percent of our troops in Vietnam have tried Marihuana, but most people making the estimates seem to agree that this is a conservative guess. Where surveys have been taken in larger universities, the number of students who Ave tried marihuana at least once may reach as high as 50

In one survey taken among 200 Marihuana smokers, it was found that 49 percent had already experimented with LSD, 43 percent had tried Amphetamines and 24 percent some form of Barbiturates. Other surveys showed that as many as two-thirds of the marihuana smokers surveyed had used some other illegal drugs. Does Jesus Live Today?

Weldon Kirk, Minister Church of Christ, Brighton

All reliable historians will admit Jesus was born, lived and was hanged on the cross. From there many times prejudice takes over.

There are two main theories which man uses to try to explain away the disappearance of Jesus' body. One is the swoon theory and the other is the theory which the Bible gives us in Matthew 28:13.

The swoon theory is that Jesus didn't really die on the cross but that he only swooned and later in the grave he came to and got out of the tomb. This would indeed have been a miracle! See a man who had been up all night praying and at trials, then scorged unmercifully, so exhausted he fell under the weight of the cross and then hung on it for six hours. On top of this he had a spear thrust into his side. He was then taken to an airless tomb where he remained from Friday evening until Sunday morning. After all this he gets his bearings in a totally dark tomb and rolls back a stone it takes three ordinary men to move. This would indeed take a Son of God!

The Bible tells us the soldiers were to say the disciples stole Him away while they slept. What would happen even today to a soldier who went to sleep while on duty? In that day of little regard for human life, except among the Jews, would they not have been put to death? Yet we read nothing of such a thing happening. And never was the body of Jesus produced. Instead we have the Bible account of many persons seeing Him

We can but conclude that no matter what man might try to prove, Jesus died on the cross, was buried in Joseph's tomb, and on the third day the grave was empty. Jesus Christ proved His deity by taking up His life again.

exemption rises to $750 in A deduction is an expense that falls into one of several categories which the law permits to be subtracted in whole or in part before arriving at taxable income. The major categories of deductible expenses are taxes, interest, medical and dental costs, charitable contributions, and casualty losses (fire, theft, etc.) The CPA official says that instead of itemizing deductions many taxpayers, especially those in the middle to lower brackts, may find it advantageous to take the standard deduction of 12 percent of adjusted gross income or $1500, whichever is less, a sharp rise from the 10 percent - $1,000 standard deduction of last year. Teetzel expects the change to cause millions of additional allowance was intended primarily to benefit families at or below the poverty level, it applies also to dependent members of more affluent families," Teetzel says. Thus a taxpayer's child can have an income of up to $1725 and owe no taxes, while still being claimed as an exemption by the parents. This has been modified for years after 1971. One major new deduction is available in 1972 to families in which both husband and wife work or there is only one employable adult. Such taxpayers may deduct up to $400 a month of the costs of the care of children or invalids. according to the CPA official. Teetzel warns that some taxpayers will be mistaken if they assume that the bigger personal exemption and standard deduction will result in large tax refunds. One reason why Congress passed the increases, he says, was to correct a defect in the withholding tables that caused too little to be withheld from the pay envelopes of millions of workers. These taxpayers—especially in Novi. The injured man, Fred Oeschger, 43, of 50137 Helfer in Wixom, was working atop the tower when a conveyor belt started, trapping him between the belt machine and a vent shaft. Because of the nature of the injury Oeschger could not be moved down the ladder. Finally, a special snorkel truck was summoned from the Plymouth Township Fire Department. Nearly an hour after the accident took place, the injured man was brought down from the top of the tower and taken by ambulance to University of Michigan Hospital. According to Doctor Lyle Fettig, who rode the snorkel to the top of the tower, the injured man suffered a fractured vertebrae. "I don't know what we could have done to get him down if the snorkel hadn't come through," said Novi Police Chief Lee BeGole. "We had a helicopter standing by in case the truck couldn't do the job, but the high winds would have made it a tricky operation."
