TWENTY-FIVE CENTS

Student hijacks Walled Lake school bus

A crew of SWOVEC students begin work on their homemade helicopter

SWOVEC students tackle chopper

Right now it's mostly a collection of lines and patterns on metal sheets and long iron bars in the center of the shop.
But if you look closely, you can see it starting to take shape.
The cockpit.
The landing runners underneath the fuselage.
But by the time it's all finished it will be a bright, new Scorpion 133 helicopter.
The helicopter was given in kit form to the welding students at the Southwest Oakland Vocational Education Center (SWOVEC) in Walled Lake by the Cherokee Construction Company to be assembled.
Bill Scrimger, welding instructor at SWOVEC, couldn't be happier.
"All the kids are excited about it because it gives them something really different and unique to work on," stated Scrimger.

"And I'm excited about it because a project like this gives our students something to work on which will have true vocational significance for their education."
The students have just about completed the welding of the frame and will soon begin cutting and welding the smaller, more intricate parts of the whirlybird.
Scrimger hopes to have all the welding completed by the spring break and to complete installation of the foot and throttle controls during April and May.
"They (The Federal Aviation Authority) won't even give you the engine or the rotor until the prospective pilot of the chopper has completed a training course and passed a rigorous examination," reported the welding instructor.
Scrimger's biggest problem, however, may be limiting the number of students permitted to work on the project.

"Everybody wants to help because it really is a very exciting thing," he said. "We've established a qualifying process and so far just seven students have qualified. But we have to watch carefully because students will try to jump in and work on it if we don't."
Scrimger reported that the cost of the kit was approximately $13,500. Assembled and "ready to fly," the cost of the Scorpion 133 has been pegged at $50,000.
When completed, the chopper will weigh 1,200 pounds and have a 120 mile range with a cruise speed of 80 to 90 miles per hour.
Scrimger has set a tentative completion date of June 1 for the project.
"This is when we'll take it up," he said. "I don't know if we'll christen it with champagne or anything like that, but I imagine we'll have some sort of ceremony."

In hit-and-run fatality

New Hudson man faces charges

25-year-old New Hudson man has been arrested and charged with manslaughter in conjunction with the death of John Wade, Jr., of Livonia.
Wade was killed in a hit-and-run automobile accident near the Wixom City Hall on February 28.
Donald Klemmer, 25, stood mute at the arraignment on the manslaughter charge before Judge Gene Schmelz of the 52nd District Court in Walled Lake last Friday.
Klemmer reportedly surrendered voluntarily to Wixom Police at 2:15 p.m. Friday after a manslaughter warrant has been secured from the Oakland County Prosecutor's Office. Klemmer is charged with a second count of leaving the scene of a personal injury accident.

The impact forced his body up the hood of the van causing the victim's head to strike the side column and windshield.
News bulletins were immediately issued to the media seeking the driver and the vehicle. A description of the vehicle and damage thought to have been sustained in the accident was included in the description.
Such a newscast was heard by Thomas Paul, an employee at Goldco Auto Painting and Body Clinics of Detroit. Paul alerted police March 3 after a van matching the description of the wanted vehicle was brought to Goldco for repairs.

Damage to the vehicle at the body shop matched that of the police bulletin and evidence collected at the scene by investigators from the Oakland County Crime Lab. The suspect vehicle suffered substantial damage, including the loss of the left headlight and front grill. Its windshield was also smashed.
A search warrant was secured and the van impounded for further investigation.

Police said the van was traced to Klemmer, the owner of Pressure Systems Innovation of Livonia. Police continued their investigation which led to the arrest Friday.
Described by police as a successful businessman, father of an 18-month-old child, and the holder of a perfect driving record, Klemmer faces a 15-year sentence if convicted on the manslaughter charge.

Huge multiples project eyed in Commerce

By DAVID RAY
The owners of some 465 acres of vacant land in the southeast corner of Commerce Township have asked for the rezoning of 411 acres for multiple-family residential, industrial and commercial uses to begin work on the first phase of a projected 3,000-unit apartment complex.
Six applications for rezoning various parcels of the property have been filed with Commerce Clerk Robert McGee over the last two weeks by Daniel Lublin, president of Standard Industries, Incorporated, of Detroit, who also was named as an agent for the Haggerty Investment Company which owns some 286 acres of the proposed development.
Specifically, the zoning changes requested include:
—five parcels containing 140 acres, owned by Standard Industries and Lublin, both listed at 14737 W. Chicago,

Detroit, from R-1A (single-family residential) to R-3 (multiple);
—one parcel of 40 acres, owned by Standard Industries and Steve Klochko, 2782 Corbin Avenue, Melvindale, from R-1A to R-3;
—one parcel of 40 acres, owned by Standard Industries and General Associates, which is listed at Klochko's address in Melvindale, from R-1A to industrial, although McGee said the application did not specify whether it is to be M-1 light industrial or M-2 (heavy industrial);
—one parcel of 157 acres, owned by Haggerty Investment Company 523 N. Pontiac Trail, Walled Lake, from mobile home district to R-3, although 75.17 acres of the same parcel will remain M-1;
—one parcel of 20 acres, owned by Haggerty Investment, from M-1 to R-3;
—some 14 acres immediately south of West Maple Road and west of Haggerty, owned by Haggerty Investment, from R-1B (single family residential) to C-2 (community business).

All but 40 acres is located in the area bounded by West Maple, Haggerty and 14 Mile roads, east of a line extending from Welch Road.
The rezoning applications will be presented to the township Planning Commission next Monday for processing, and McGee said a public hearing on requests probably will be held in April.
A portion of the property owned by Haggerty Investment includes the black spruce bog which environmentalists cited in their fight against the proposed M-275 freeway that was cancelled last year by the Michigan State Highway Commission.
However, B. H. Carey, of Haggerty Investment, has said that the bog was drained two years ago as part of a peat mining operation.

Lublin said he would like to begin work this fall on the first phase of the multiple-residential development which would include some 1,000 to 1,500 units at a cost of $25- to $35 million.
The multiple-residential complex will take a minimum of four to five years, Lublin said, with a maximum of seven or eight years. He added that 50-percent of the project should be completed in three or four years, depending on "movement and growth in the area."
Development of the commercial and industrial property will not begin immediately, Lublin said.
The Standard Industries president said he has been working on land acquisition for the project for some 25 years, although the M-275 plans delayed his efforts for about 10 years.
Lublin's company has filed suit against the Highway Commission, seeking damages for the delay in developing its property because of the controversial freeway project.

"We were against (M-275) right from the start," he said. "It would have literally cut our property in half."
Lublin said his attorneys will continue the lawsuit against the state agency for damages.
"This should have been completed by 1971," he said, "and you know as well as I do that costs have doubled or tripled since then."
In the early 1960s, Standard Industries proposed the construction of a "large residential-commercial-recreational complex, containing an enclosed shopping mall, low-rise and medium-rise multiple family residential units, a golf course and other related recreational facilities," according to a brief filed in the company's lawsuit against the Highway Commission.
The Commerce Planning Commission approved the development

Police wound suspect, six others unharmed

A 15 year old Walled Lake Central High School student who allegedly attempted to hijack his school bus was shot and critically wounded yesterday morning at the Walled Lake Schools bus yard on Ladd Road.
Six other students and the driver aboard the vehicle at the time of the incident were not injured when an Oakland County Sheriff's deputy fired two shots into the bus at the school facility to end the 20-minute episode, officials said.
According to police, the male student boarded the bus near Farnsworth and Union Lake roads in White Lake Township about 7 a.m., carrying a sawed-off shotgun.
He reportedly told the driver that he wanted to go to Florida. Police said that an anonymous caller had told authorities that the student planned to kidnap his girlfriend and hijack the bus.
The boy apparently eluded a police stakeout near his home to get to the bus stop.
The bus driver and other students, all bound for Walled Lake Central, were held at gun point for about a half hour before the alleged hijacker was wounded by an officer, police said.
The student was reported in critical, but stable, condition yesterday afternoon in a Pontiac hospital.
The bus yard is about eight miles from the site of the initial hijacking.
Walled Lake Central Principal Gerald Wallace said that the parents of the six students on the bus were notified of the incident and those students were sent home.
Otherwise, classes were held as usual, Wallace said.

Walled Lake asks millage renewal

Registered voters in the Walled Lake School District will go to the polls next Tuesday (March 21) to cast their ballots on a proposal to renew 10 operating mills for a five-year period.
Polls will open at 7 a.m. and close at 8 p.m.
Deputy Superintendent Roland Langerman pointed out that the district is not seeking a millage increase since the 10 mills for operations is already being levied by the school district.
The Walled Lake School District currently levies 32.13 mills for operations. If the millage renewal is approved by the voters next Tuesday, the district will continue to levy 32.13 mills for operations. If defeated, the district's operating millage will fall to 22.13 mills.
The district also levies an additional 2.75 mill for debt retirement, bringing the total millage levy to 34.88 mills.
Assistant Superintendent of Business Harry Carlson said approval of the 10-mill renewal proposal was critical to the financial well-being of the school district.
Based on current projections, the 10 mills has a total dollar value of approximately $4.432 million, stated Carlson. "That figure represents 23 percent of the projected budget for the 1979-80 school year."
Carlson said that everyone would be affected if the 10-mill renewal is not approved since the district would lose state aid revenues in addition to property tax revenues.
"Loss of this revenue would create severe reductions in school programs and services to children," stated Carlson.
Although the request for renewal of the 10 mills does not represent an increase in operating millage, some opposition has arisen to the proposal.
Opponents note that the duration of the 10 mills has been extended from five to 10 years and argue that the duration should remain at the five-year level to give voters an opportunity to express their satisfaction or dissatisfaction with the way the schools are being operated at more frequent intervals.

The 10 mills up for renewal Tuesday was last renewed for a five-year period in 1973.
Langerman said that two major reasons were behind the decision to extend the duration of the millage renewal from five to 10 years.
He said that the school district would realize a minor savings by having to hold renewal elections less frequently and also stated that extension of the duration millage would also assist the district in long-range financial planning.
"Right now we don't know if we'll have the 10 mills for next year or not and it affects our ability to move ahead with budget projections," said Langerman.
Langerman also noted that the district has two other millage issues which must be periodically renewed by the voters. Voters approved a 10-mill levy for 10 years in April of 1976 and a four-mill levy for five years in June of 1976.
As a result, the district must come back to the voters for renewal of those two millage packages in 1981 and 1986. Should the millage proposal be approved next Tuesday, that 10-mill package would come back to the voters for renewal in 1988.
Additional opposition to the millage renewal has been expressed by residents who have received increases in property valuations either through a factor or an increase in assessment.
Carlson reported that the district is projecting a 12 percent increase in the total State Equalized Valuation (SEV), although the actual amount of the increase in SEV will not be known until later this spring.

Traffic problems eyed For use in Novi High

A policeman will patrol the Ten Mile-Meadowbrook Road intersection until the Oakland County Road Commission fixes a blinking light at the location.

The Novi City Council March 13 directed the presence of the policeman after councilman Guy Smith said the corner was a traffic hazard early in the morning.

Smith said the light is a blinking red for north-south travel on Meadowbrook and blinking yellow for Ten Mile traffic.

The light turns into a regular green-yellow traffic signal at 8 a.m., Smith said, but noted it should be earlier.

Kriewall said the problem is one for the Oakland County Road Commission to fix.

Mayor Romaine Roethel said that Kriewall should call the Road Commission. Mrs. Pat Karevich added that a call also should be made to the local county commissioner.

Board views basic skills tests

Wrestling with the problem of how to insure that students learn basic math and reading skills, the Novi School Board took for three hours March 9 without a break to discuss the issue.

Members of the Parents Advisory Council and other interested citizens also attended. The board has agreed to meet again on the general subject of how to improve the schools sometime in June.

The discussion at the meeting began on whether to institute a test of basic math skills for eleventh graders. If the student failed the test, he or she would be required to take a refresher course the next year.

Novi tenth graders did relatively poorly on math scores on a standardized state test given early this year.

Superintendent Gerald Kratz noted that such basic competency tests are being used at Farmington High School. He said the tests made even the exceptional students brush up on basic skills.

Kratz emphasized that a basic skills test at the senior grade level would be ineffective, since there would not be time enough to correct whatever deficiencies were discovered.

Board President Joel Colliau questioned whether there was a need for the basic skills test.

"My question is if we are requiring students to take one year of math, and if we say all students graduating from Novi High School should master the following skills, should we not be testing for those skills at the particular time those skills are being taught?" Colliau said.

Colliau said he questioned the validity of testing the students at any later time.

Board member Ray Murphy said the problem was identifying the problem through testing, so that the school can correct it.

"I say that if a student has trouble writing a letter, then perhaps the emphasis should go away from visual aids and back to writing on paper," Murphy said.

Murphy said the testing should try and give students such basic skills as writing legibly and balancing a checkbook.

member Ruth Waldenmayer said she wondered whether the great number of course offerings in English, for example, might take away from the time given to teach simple reading and writing.

Novi High School Principal Helen Ditzhazy responded by saying the school was changing its emphasis in English courses away from literature and toward composition.

Waldenmayer also commented that some of the classes offered at the school cover far too wide a range of topics. "The electricity class, for example, is just about everything about electricity, but not enough about the basics, she said.

George Ann Swope, a member of the Parents Advisory Council, said the basic English skills test should be instituted.

"It's my personal belief that at the end of the ninth grade, kids should be tested in grammar, and if they don't pass whatever the standards required, they should be required to take the test," she said.

"It's very frustrating to me because bad grammar is one of my pet peeves," she added.

Dr. Ditzhazy said the board should realize that a group in New York had studied the concept of the advisability of using basic competency tests in the schools. She said she would be receiving a report summarizing the group's conclusions soon.

Board member Bob Wilkins, who was the one who suggested the meeting in the first place, commented that he was wary of the validity of tests in general.

"Testing in many cases is a trick," Wilkins said. "To see if students read the third paragraph on page 15A."

He said he would favor a more complete summary given at the beginning of courses which would emphasize exactly what the student was expected to do at the end of the course.

Wilkins also questioned whether many of the classes in the high school were not just "educational entertainment" serving no real purpose.

Novi High School Assistant Principal Chuck Nanas also told the board they should be skeptical of the importance of test scores, since many students do not take them seriously.

Nanas noted that when the Michigan Educational Assessment Tests were given, he estimated a full ten percent of the students did not take them seriously.

More academic counseling was raised by Murphy, who noted that some students do not seem to be able to choose the best courses for themselves.

As an example, Murphy cited the student who had sent a letter to the school board asking for early graduation and the letter was so poorly written it was almost impossible to understand. That student should have been steered into some composition classes, Murphy said.

Dr. Tadashi Tokuhiro echoed Murphy's point, saying the school must push for a concerted effort to improve the academic counseling. He said college students out of Novi High School were sometimes unprepared because they were not counseled well.

Tokuhiro said the counselors should receive information from other teachers regarding course offerings.

He said the emphasis in counseling should be on academics, not personal problems.

President Colliau said the board was agreed that minimum competency levels should be achieved, but not yet on how to go about achieving them.

Colliau said the board should continue working on the problem.

Novi council eyes PD District plan

Novi's City Council will attempt to gain greater controls over development surrounding the 12 Oaks Mall regional shopping center at 12 Mile and Novi Roads by the end of this year.

Planned Development (PD) District to the city's zoning ordinance.

City Planning Consultant Charles Cairns of Villian-Leman has submitted a draft of the proposed zoning ordinance for review by both the planning board and city council.

Mayor Romaine Roethel said she hopes the planners and council will move quickly on the proposal so that it can be added to the zoning ordinance as soon as possible.

The proposed PD District grew out of the city's desire to exercise greater controls over the development on the property surrounding the regional shopping center. More specifically, it is hoped that adoption of the PD District will encourage the assemblage of large parcels of property, particularly on the west side of Novi Road.

The proposed PD District is rezoning land in Novi, Michigan because it proposes a new procedure for site plan approval and rezoning.

Cairns has told the council that Novi will be embarked on a "pioneering effort" in land use by adopting the proposed PD District to its zoning ordinance.

He also cautioned city officials that the PD District, if adopted, is likely to be challenged in court.

Traditionally, property must be rezoned before site plans can be submitted for review and approval.

The procedure is somewhat reversed in the proposed PD District, however.

According to the proposal, a developer must submit a preliminary site plan in order to apply for a PD District zoning designation.

Approval of the plan is granted by rezoning the area to the PD District requested. Approval of the PD District rezoning is based on the site plan and the supporting documentation since acceptance of the plan and the proposed use is basic to the rezoning.

Approval of the preliminary site plan shall not constitute final approval, but is deemed as approval of the land use plan submitted and shall serve as a guide in preparation of the final plan.

The procedure is unique in that it requires submission of a preliminary site plan prior to rezoning. City officials have expressed concern that the proposed PD District comes dangerously close to "conditional" or "contract zoning," which is prohibited by law in Michigan.

The council will ask City Attorney David Fried to review the proposed PD District amendment before adding it to the zoning ordinance.

According to the proposal currently before the city, there will be three different PD districts within the PD designation — a PD-1, a PD-2, and a PD-3.

The PD-1 District would provide for

Village Council okays bus funds; OCART starting date is in doubt

Local funding for operation of the Lakes Area Dial-A-Ride system through June 30 has been approved by governing bodies in the five communities served by the 12-passenger van.

The Wolverine Lake Village Council last week approved its $554 share of the system.

available because of the moratorium.

Started last April, the Lakes Area Dial-A-Ride van replaced a full-sized bus that operated between Walled Lake and Oakland University for several years before being discontinued because of poor ridership.

The local Junes, SEMTA officials said, will cover $1,000 of the first-year operation, through March 28, and one-third of the cost of running the van through June 30.

The OCART system originally was expected to begin service July 1, and despite the van moratorium, Topiwalla said he is still optimistic that the new program can start by the target date.

Cost of operating the van from April through June has been estimated at $6,100, officials said, with about $1,000 to be covered by fares; two-thirds by SEMTA; and one-third by the local communities.

Under the OCART system, the county will pay about $200,000, or 13 1/2 percent of the cost, with about two-thirds of the funding coming from SEMTA through state and federal sources. Twenty percent of the cost, about $90,000, will be generated through system revenues, according to Topiwalla.

Officials anticipate phasing in the new service over a one-year period with the help of a transit advisory committee.

Gelinas said the Lakes Area Transportation Commission, which was formed almost two years ago, was established to make sure that area communities would be covered by the county system.

The local Dial-A-Ride is operated and dispatched through the Waterford system, Gelinas said.

The system has been described as experimental, combining door-to-door services in the Union Lake, Commerce and Walled Lake areas with a fixed route to the Pontiac Mall and the Twelve Oaks Mall and Novi Multi-Purpose Center.

Most fares are $1 along the fixed route and 50 cents within the Dial-A-Ride areas and half price for senior citizens, children under 14 and the handicapped.

Reservations for the van may be made by calling 674-2254.

There are some minor differences between county officials and SEMTA over financing the OCART system. Topiwalla said, but added that those differences are "close to being solved."

However, until the Legislature decides the issue of providing vehicles for the handicapped, no vans or buses may be purchased, he said.

The moratorium also has posed problems for the Lakes-Area van, officials said, because the 12-passenger van is now filled to capacity. Gelinas noted that the transportation commission has requested a 22-passenger vehicle, but SEMTA officials said there are no vans

No action on tax break

The Ex-Cello-O Corporation's request for establishment of industrial development district apparently will not be acted upon by the Walled Lake City Council.

Last November, the firm asked city officials to create the development district so that its property taxes on the recently completed aerospace research and development facility could be reduced under terms of a state law.

City Attorney Paul Bibeau said last week, however, that county officials were reluctant to appear before the council to discuss the request.

Bibeau said that approval of the development district could have saved Ex-Cello-O some $7,250 in property taxes a year.

A company spokesman told The News last fall that the state law provides the tax break for 12 years.

The city attorney noted, however, that Ex-Cello-O's request almost defeated the purpose of the state

Board ratifies pact with WLSSA

The Walled Lake Board of Education and the Walled Lake School Secretaries' Association (WLSSA) have come to terms on a two-year pact.

The long-standing contract dispute was resolved Monday (7-4) to ratify a tentative contract hammered out by negotiators at the bargaining table.

The contract had previously been ratified by the 63-members of the WLSSA.

Assistant Superintendent of Business Harry Carlson said that the two-year pact represents a "compromise position" for both sides.

"I feel it's a good contract for both parties," Carlson told the board after an executive session that lasted from approximately 10:35 to 11:15 p.m.

"I think our secretaries are being treated fairly and equitably in relation to the secretaries in other Oakland County School Districts, and I believe the Walled Lake School District has retained its managerial rights in regard to agency shop and grievance procedure."

Settlement of the contract also resolves an unfair labor practice charge lodged against the school board by the WLSSA with the Michigan Employment Relations Commission (MERC). The WLSSA had charged that the board had violated the Public Employment Relations Act (PERA) by refusing to negotiate the question of binding arbitration on grievance procedures.

Under the terms of the new two-year contract, the WLSSA will receive a retroactive wage hike of 6.2 percent for the 1977-78 school year. The contract also calls for a 7.1 percent pay hike in the 1978-79 year.

Carlson told the board that the pay hikes represent a $32,000 increase in the 1977-78 school year and a $38,000

Novi council approves Nielsen clinic plan

Approval has finally been granted to the Nielsen Medical Clinic proposed to be constructed on Meadowbrook Road east of Beverly Manor.

But the approval has some strings yet attached.

The Novi City Council gave the approval to the site plan at its March 13 meeting, after rehashing the long and tangled history of the proposed site.

The plan was taken to court where the judge ruled that a medical clinic could be built on the site, providing that the clinic be built according to R-4 standards.

The R-4 standards were changed by the time the case got out of court, however, leaving Dr. Terry Nielsen, the owner of the site, and city officials in a bit of a quandary as to what to do.

Nielsen, a dentist, has had his plans rejected several times by the planning board and the council.

Schmid said he voted against the plan because he did not think the court ruling was still valid, since the zoning laws had been changed.

Home Decorating with Howard & Lois Green

Windows are sometimes more difficult as a decorating problem than most people imagine. What to do with those problem areas? A window that is too large is easily covered with a valance and drapes. An indoor window box is a great way to shorten windows. Wide drapes and curtains hung above and beyond the window margins and to the floor make small windows look larger. An unsightly view can be screened with floor-length glass curtains of translucent material, they'll let in the light, but keep out the view.

Let us cover your problem windows, here at GREEN'S CREATIVE HOME CENTER, 107 N. Center St., +349-7110. Ruby and Iva Fuerst at high school groundbreaking in 1974

Fuerst auditorium Dedication ceremony to honor sisters

The Novi High School Auditorium has but a few short hours left. Thursday night it will become the Fuerst Auditorium, in honor of the Fuerst family, early settlers in the city.

The dedication of the Fuerst Auditorium will take place during a break of the school board meeting Thursday night.

Superintendent Gerald Kratz, in a report given to council at its March 9 meeting, said the high school complex is entirely built on the site of the family farm.

The daughters of Jacob and Rebecca Fuerst, Iva and Ruby Fuerst, continue to reside in a house near the high school.

The Fuerst sisters sold the land the school now sits on for much less than the going price of land in the area. They have also contributed to the library.

The sisters have also donated some of their old machinery to the Greenfield Village Museum.

Iva and Ruby Fuerst are dedicated citizens who have taken pride in their community and who have given freely of their time and energy to make Novi a better place to live and raise children," Kratz stated.

"Both sisters have given instinctively of themselves for the betterment of others."

"The lives of those who have known any of the Fuerst family are richer for the experience. Giving of yourself gives meaning to life itself and certainly the Fuerst family exemplifies that characteristic."

When contacted by The News, Iva Fuerst said only, "That's nice" when told of the dedication of the auditorium.

She said she and her sister would be sure to attend the ceremony.

Country Cousin dispute resurfaces, council threatens legal action

After receiving reports that another home had been brought into the already illegally overcrowded Country Cousin Mobile Home park, the Novi City Council has directed Attorney Phil Goodman to take over Russ Button to court if necessary to make him comply with council directives.

The action by council came at the March 13 meeting after Mayor Romane Roethel disclosed that Button had brought in another mobile home without seeking site plan approval.

The council had directed Button to work with Goodman to work out problems that have been discovered at the park.

Problems at Country Cousin had first been brought to council attention when City Building Department Head Earl Bailey reported that Button had never sought site plan approval for several home sites in the park.

The council in January directed Goodman to work with Button to try and bring the park in compliance with city ordinances.

In a letter sent to the council recently, Goodman described the negotiations as "cordial," and noted Button "appeared to express a genuine desire to resolve the problems which have recently been brought to light."

Mayor Roethel had a different version of events at the council meeting Monday, however. She said Button had made no attempt to bring a site plan to the planning board as of yet.

"By accepting Phil's (Goodman's) report," Mrs. Roethel said, "we took the attitude we would follow the procedure he called for — the owner would go to the planning board and the board of appeals.

"At the time, recall we said no more mobile homes were to be moved in the park. This past week, another mobile home has been moved into the park without site plan approval.

"I talked to Goodman Friday — he issued a verbal order to the building department that the mobile home moved in not be allowed a permit for hook-up."

Mrs. Roethel added that Goodman would be meeting with Button Tuesday morning to try to resolve some of the differences.

If the hook-up proceeds, Goodman should be given permission to "follow

Three millage issues face voters Saturday

Residents of the Novi school district will go to the polls Saturday to decide the fate of three separate millage issues.

The school district is asking for 13 mills renewal for five years, an additional mill for operating expenses for three years and another half-mill to be levied for three years to be used to make school buildings more energy efficient.

The polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the middle school, Orchard Hills Elementary and Village Oaks Elementary.

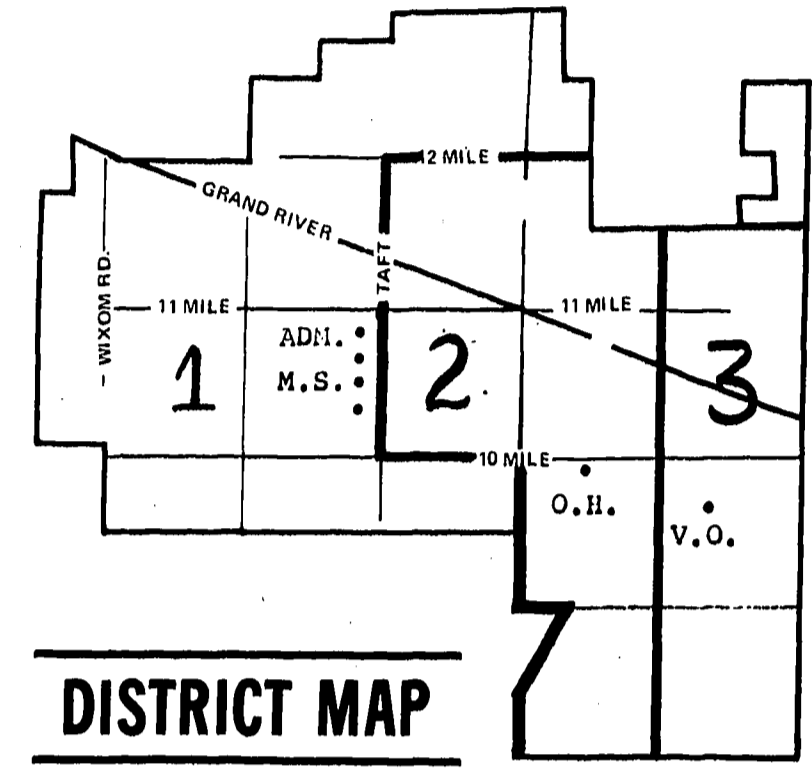

The election marks the first time three precincts have been used. In the past only one district was used.

To avoid confusion, efforts were made to try and make the precincts as closely aligned to city voting precincts as possible.

School officials say approval of the 13 mills renewal, without approving the additional mill, would mean a cutback in operations. The additional mill, they maintain, would continue the present level of operation.

The requested half-mill for energy conservation would raise approximately $265,000 in three years. School officials claim they could save at least that much in energy costs should the half-mill be approved.

The school presently has an operating budget of approximately $6 million.

Council picks Nine Mile for fire station location

Responding to citizen requests to build a fire station away from residential property, the Novi City Council March 13 approved on a 4-3 vote a site on Nine Mile Road just east of the railroad tracks.

The council chose the Nine Mile site over possible locations at Cherry Hill and Meadowbrook Road and Ten Mile.

Voting for the Nine Mile site were councilmembers Ron Watson, Guy Smith, Pat Karevich and Romane Roethel. Opposing the site selection were members Martha Hoyer, Bob Schmidt and Jim Shaw.

The vote may have been a little different a couple of hours later, however, as Mrs. Karavich made a last-minute appeal to reconsider the vote. She said she had been unduly influenced by citizen pressure.

The vote to reconsider was defeated 5-2, with only Schmidt supporting Mrs. Karavich.

The decision on the site selection came after cost estimates were presented for each of the three sites and citizen input was received.

Cost for each of the three sites was estimated as follows by City Manager Ed Kriewall: Cherry Hill site, $25,000; Ten Mile site, $98,000 and Nine Mile, $32,900.

Kriewall noted the Cherry Hill site would require the installation of a septic tank, unless a sewer were constructed. The Ten Mile site would cost less than the $98,000 figure if the city could sell off surplus land on the site, Kriewall said.

City Engineer Harry Mosher noted the Nine Mile site cost included about $10,000 to raise the level of the land about four feet. At present, the site sits about eight feet below the road.

John Aratari, of 23889 Meadowbrook, told the council he did not approve of the Ten Mile site.

"I know the city really needs another fire station," Aratari said, "but, if you could, don't put it in a residential area."

Aratari said he lived near the proposed Ten Mile — Meadowbrook site and he would move if the site were built.

Shirley Brooks, also a resident along Meadowbrook, said she opposed the site because traffic problems already exist in the area and the fire station would make it worse.

Bill Gladden, a Nine Mile resident, said he supported the Nine Mile site because it appeared the most logical of all the sites, both from safety and financial aspects.

Councilmember Hoyer expressed concern that the city would have inadequate fire protection if it were

Decker road expansion wins informal approval

Informal approval has been given to the City of Novi's plan to extend the paving of Decker Road from 14 Mile road to 13 Mile Road.

The road expansion will be funded by federal Housing and Community Development (HCD) funds under the direction of the office of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

"We've got verbal approval," reported Assistant City Manager Alex Allie. "We're expecting a letter any day."

The city council recently approved the road paving project as the top priority among possible uses of the HCD funds. Several proposals were submitted in case HUD officials judged the expenditure would not meet the intent of the funding, which is to improve lower-income sections of cities.

Other proposals submitted by council included improvements along other roads in the Walled Lake area, acquisition of property near the Lakeshore Park facility and the development of an emergency water system in the Walled Lake area.

The Decker Road project is estimated to cost about $400,000, with the federal government picking up the whole share.

The project will use up all available HCD funds for the next three years which will amount to $260,000 to $300,000. In addition, HCD funding that was approved for housing rehabilitation in 1975 but never spent has been reapproved for the Decker Road expansion.

The 1975 HCD application asked that the monies be used to clean up some of the poorer-looking sections of the city. Assistant Manager Allie said the city ran into a number of "logistical problems" and had to return the funds.

People were not applying for the funds available, Allie said. When the council decided to give the money back to HUD, federal officials told the city to come back again with another proposal. That proposal is the Decker Road expansion.

The Decker Road project will include nearby the entire portion of the 1975 funding — $112,000 — for right-of-way expansion. The construction was expected to be completed over a two and a half year period.

Allie does not expect construction to begin this year, however, because of delays in obtaining the necessary funds to begin the project.

The construction of Decker Road should mean the reduction of much of the traffic that now travels along Walled Lake Drive.

"The Walled Lake Drive people should be happy," Allie says. "I'll get the traffic out of their front door."

The funding of the Decker Road project went through Southeastern Michigan Council of Government (SEMCOG) and HUD officials before it won approval.

City Manager Ed Kriewall says the city will probably use some of the HCD funds to pay for some of the anticipated $400,000.

Parkway may be axed

A motion to withdraw the proposed Walled Lake parkway from further consideration as an alternative to the cancelled M-275 freeway and an amendment to endorse the compromise Commerce Township-McConnell boulevard plan were tabled last week by the Walled Lake City Council.

Councilman Don Lee suggested that the city should recommend approval of the Commerce-McConnell plan by the Michigan State Highway Commission.

However, Councilman Walter Lewandowski and Thomas Brookover said they were not familiar with the other alternatives to the now-dead freeway and asked for further information before voting on Lee's motion.

Lee said that, following a meeting in Commerce Township last month, he felt the Commerce-McConnell proposal was the best and would be beneficial to the whole community.

The proposed boulevard, Lee said, "seems to be the plan of least resistance." He added that Commerce and Novi officials had indicated support for the alternative, which calls for a four-lane, divided boulevard along Haggerty Road from I-96 in Novi to about Pontiac Trail, where the roadway would veer northwesterly along the

State reviewing M-275 plans

The Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation's M-275 alternatives study team is up-dating its data on the proposed freeway project that was cancelled last year, according to coordinator Mike Flajole.

A status report on the team's work so far is expected to be made at next Wednesday's State Highway Commission meeting, Flajole said.

The team, which was named in January, is reviewing three alternatives to the original M-275. In addition, the Michigan Environmental Review Board (MERB), which was studying the freeway at the time the commission scrapped the project, has

Novi project to be 'high quality'

Novi's City Council met with the developers of the proposed Meadow Oaks Apartments last week to discuss preliminary plans for the huge 1,200 unit development.

The development is slated for a 108-acre parcel immediately east of the Twelve Oaks Mall and is proposed to include a mix of mid-rise (six to eight stories), low-rise (2 1/2 stories) garden apartments, and townhouses. A 33-acre lake-retention pond is also proposed on the site.

"Our community is growing by leaps and bounds," explained Mayor Romane Roethel. "It's important that we have as much preliminary input as possible so we can study the impact a development of this size will have on our city."

Plans for the major multiple-family residential development were revealed last month, although no specific proposals have yet been put before the Novi Planning Board.

According to Adolph Komer, developer of the Meadow Oaks Apartments, the development will tentatively contain 450 units in four mid-rise buildings, 506 units in low-rise garden apartments, and 244 units in townhouses.

Komer told the council last week that the apartment complex would be a high-level development.

"The property is much too expensive for low-income housing," he assured the council. "You can't put a cheap house on an expensive piece of property."

Komer also told the council that Meadow Oaks Associates is purchasing the property from the Dayton-Hudson Corporation, which has complete control over the site plan.

"We have a neighbor (Twelve Oaks) which has a sizeable investment on the property next to us," he said. "They will insure that whatever we do with that property will be homogeneous with the type of customers they want to attract to that mall."

"The quality of our development will be consistent with such neighbors as J. L. Hudson and Lord & Taylors."

Komer stated that one of the primary problems associated with development of the parcel will be land balancing. He reported that there is as much as a 30-foot differential in the topography and also noted that the property is a former peat bog which contains swampy conditions.

Compounding the problem, he stated, is the fact that Dayton-Hudson excavated as deep as 65 feet on the property where the regional shopping center is presently located. As a result of that excavation, more than 500,000 cubic yards of excess dirt was placed on the Meadow Oaks parcel.

"It's all going to have to be moved before we can completely develop the property," he stated.

Another problem which still must be hurdled is zoning. The parcel is presently zoned both RC (Regional Center) and R-1 (single family residential). Although it is the RC zoning which is appropriate, the developers must have the remainder of the parcel rezoned from a single family residential to a multiple family residential zoning designation.

Mayor Roethel suggested that the property may be rezoned to a Planned Development (PD) District which, in some respects, gives the developer

Walled Lake council considers McConnell plan

Agreeing with Lee were council members James L. Scott and Heather Hill.

Scott noted that the Highway Department's M-275 alternatives study team had told area officials that a replacement parcel has been acquired for Dodge Park Number Five, one of the environmental areas cited by opponents of the original freeway.

Mrs. Hill said McConnell's plan "proved to be the better one" during discussions of the three alternatives at the Commerce session.

Mayor Pro Tem William C. Staman, who also had attended the Commerce meeting with Scott, Lee and Ms. Hill, was absent from last week's council meeting, although he had said at the Commerce session that he thought the Citizens in Opposition to M-275's scenic drive was the better alternative.

Brookover said he was unable to attend the meeting in Commerce and didn't feel he was "ready to express a preference for one of the other two alternatives." He had suggested last month that the Walled Lake parkway should be withdrawn from further consideration.

"We're still talking about our proposal," Brookover said, "and now we're being asked to choose between the other two."

Ms. Hill replied that it was unfortunate that Brookover had not had a chance to study the alternatives between the council meetings, but added that she and the other council members were not trying to force the issue.

"We were asked to attend the meeting in Commerce and report back to the council," she said. "That's just what we're doing."

State reviewing M-275 plans and has said it will schedule further meetings "when we have something to show them," Flajole added.

A series of public hearings also probably will be held before the team makes its recommendation to the commission.

No deadline has been set for completion of the study, the coordinator said.

Meanwhile, the MERB three-man sub-committee that was named to review the alternatives has not met yet, according to chairman Francis Bennett of Detroit.

"We're still awaiting the necessary information from the highway department," Bennett said yesterday. "The department told us that they won't have anything ready in time for our meeting next week," he added, "but they didn't give me any indication on how long it will take."

In response to a question from Councilman Robert Schmid, Komer said that the development would be altered if permission to construct mid-rise apartment buildings were denied.

"We would have to saturate the land with two and three story buildings in order to come up with 11 dwelling units per acre," stated Komer.

"We'd prefer to have the mid-rise configuration for a number of reasons. It would be less expensive for us because we wouldn't have to construct as many footings and roofs, and we'd also be able to put a greater percentage of the land into open space and landscaping."

Mayor Roethel told Komer, however, that she did not want anyone to believe that high-rise or mid-rise buildings have been ruled out for the property surrounding the regional shopping center.

Councilwoman Pat Karevich asked the developer about fire protection for a high or mid-rise building.

"If we have high or mid-rise buildings, I believe they should be in the regional center area," she said. "But I would hate to see high or mid-rise buildings constructed before we have the appropriate equipment in our fire department."

Komer said the high-rise buildings are tentatively slated to be built in the final stages of the overall development — in approximately three to four years.

"We wouldn't want to build high-rises until your fire department is equipped to fight fires in buildings like that," he said. "The insurance costs would be prohibitive."

Dave Ware, a real estate negotiator with Dayton-Hudson, also assured the council that the proposed Meadow Oaks Apartments would be a high-level development.

"In all of our land sales, the contracts give us a very stringent review and approval process before anyone can put a shovel in the ground," he stated.

"The contract we have with Meadow Oaks Associates gives us the right to approve the plans, architectural design, and landscaping plans.

"We want to make sure that whatever goes in on that property is of the highest quality," he added. "We have a considerable investment at stake right next door."

Komer estimated the cost of the overall project at some $50 million.

Firemen ask council for EMS equipment

Walled Lake City Council members indicated that funds for the equipment could be added to the 1978-79 budget, but suggested that available in the current budget could be transferred to cover the cost.

Callahan told the council that the department is "a long way away from providing adequate basic life support (because we) lack in training, experience, public awareness and perhaps public trust."

The firefighter added that "the need for life support is at an all time high in this community," and noted that on-the-scene care has become a number one priority in the medical field.

In addition to Callahan's medical technician training, three other Walled Lake firemen are enrolled in an advanced first-aid class, while two volunteer firefighters have advanced emergency medical training status and two others are in a basic EMT course.

At present, the department has one rescue vehicle — a 1967, four-wheel drive Jeep — in service, but there is no back-up unit, Callahan said.

Council members recently designated the purchase of a new emergency vehicle as the city's second priority for 1978 federal community development act funds. Fire protection services was listed as the top priority.

Meanwhile, Parker reported that he has been contacted by Wolverine

In 1964, but, about a year later, the state highway department announced that I-275 would be built in the area.

Over several years, the highway department decided that a substantial portion of Standard Industries' land would be needed for the freeway and entered into negotiations with the company, according to the complaint.

Standard Industries filed the lawsuit in October, 1976 and amended the complaint after the freeway was completed in January, 1977 seeking damages for the delay in developing its land.

The original plans called for construction of 20- to 25-story apartment buildings, but Lublin said in December that his company will follow current zoning ordinance requirements which set a 35-foot maximum height limit for multiple-family buildings.

The first indication that the company planned to renew its efforts to develop its property came last December when Lublin and his engineer attended a Commerce Township Board meeting for approval of preliminary engineering plans for a wastewater treatment plant to serve the complex.

The board approved the plans, but emphasized that its okay did not mean that the officials were agreeing to rezone the land.

At that time Lublin said his company would be looking for the zoning changes in about a month. The first application for rezoning, involving Standard Industries' 140 acres, was filed with McGees on March 1.

A week later, Lublin applied for the other five zoning changes. He told The News that he had worked out a partnership with Carey, owner of the Carey Company and Hagerly Investment, for the remainder of the property.

Construction plans for the wastewater treatment plant should be completed in 90-95 days, Lublin said.

The Commerce board last night was expected to discuss the plan and, possibly, ask the Michigan Department of Natural Resources whether additional discharge — over the 350,000 gallons of water a day the plant is designed to handle — would be allowed, according to McGees.

Mrs. Karevich noted the Cherry Hill cost seemed excessive, although it would not bother citizens.

Walled Lake adopts high school attendance policy

A Walled Lake high school student who has five unexcused absences during a semester will not receive credit for the course.

This is one of the provisions in a new high school attendance policy adopted by the Walled Lake Board of Education Monday.

The board voted to adopt the policy by a 5-2 vote, and it was the clause which permits a student who unexcused absences during the course of a semester which led to the dissenting ballots of Trustees Betty Campton and Warren Williams.

Mrs. Campton told the board that she could not vote for a policy which, in effect, permits a student to skip school four times a semester without penalty.

"What we're saying is that it's all right for a student to skip school four days per semester," she explained.

The new policy was prepared by a group of administrators, parents, and students headed by Dr. Murray Adams, Director of Secondary Education in the Walled Lake School District.

Adams told the board that the former attendance policy was adopted in 1973 in an effort to encourage attendance in the high schools.

"We had about a 91 percent attendance rate in our high schools until the late 1960's and early 1970's when it dropped to 83 or 84 percent," he reported. "We felt it was necessary at that time to have a set policy to deal with unexcused absences."

The policy adopted by the board Monday recognizes two types of absences: excused and unexcused.

An excused absence is granted when parents notify the school that the student was absent with parental knowledge and permission. Parents must notify the school within three days of the student's return to classes.

Unexcused absences are defined as "all other absences, including suspensions, detentions, and failure to complete prearranged absence form within the specified time limits."

Adams told the board that a former attendance policy which required a doctor's note for sick leave had been eliminated.

"A lot of parents found it a nuisance to obtain a doctor's note everytime their child was sick," he explained. "Under the new policy, we leave it strictly up to the parents' judgement as to whether the student is sick enough to stay home from school."

Another change in the attendance policy is the provision for "prearranged absences." The policy requires that a prearranged absence form be completed for all planned absences of two days or longer.

The policy further recommends that this form be completed at least five school days before the absence so that teachers have time to give and receive make-up work, if required.

Adams told the board that the policy will give parents time to consider the wisdom of allowing the student to miss school after reviewing the responses of the teachers.

"If a teacher indicates that the absence may adversely affect the student's performance in the class, the parent may decide to cancel or postpone the prearranged absence," Adams stated.

Adams also reported that the new policy provides a procedure for a student with five unexcused absences to regain credit for the class. In addition, the policy also permits a student to lose credit for a class without receiving a failing grade as an added penalty.

A student who has five or more days of unexcused absences is expected to audit that class for the balance of the semester. Auditing a class is defined as participating in class without receiving credit. The letter "H" will not count in the grade point average provided the overall average for the class at the end of the semester is a passing grade.

Although the need for an attendance policy was questioned by several board members, Superintendent Dr. Don Sheldon and Assistant Principal Richard Schneider of Walled Lake Central stressed the importance of a written attendance policy.

"If we don't adopt it, we would be back at the same point we were 4 1/2 years ago when the student could skip class as often as he wanted to," stated Sheldon.

Schneider noted that the failure rate was approximately eight percent at Central before the policy was adopted. That figure dropped to about four percent with adoption of the policy, he said.

Although board members questioned the advisability of sanctioning four unexcused absences without penalty, Adams stated that the policy would only affect approximately seven percent of the high school students.

"The other 93 percent won't be effected by this policy at all (because they don't have four unexcused absences during a semester)," he reported.

The new policy will go into effect at the start of the 1978-79 school year.

Board awards industrial arts equipment bids

The Industrial Education Department at Walled Lake Central High School received a shot in the arm Monday as the Walled Lake Board of Education awarded bids in the amount of almost $103,000 for industrial education equipment.

The equipment will be used in the addition to the high school which is currently under construction. The renovation and expansion of the school are the second phase of a two-phase project funded by a $3.8 million grant.

The federal public works grant was awarded to the school district in January of 1977. Projects funded by the grant must be completed by April of 1979.

Deputy Superintendent Rolland Langerman told the board Monday that the financing for the $103,000 worth of industrial education equipment will come from the Building and Site Fund. Langerman reported further that the district will tentatively receive 50-50 matching grant funding on some of the items from added cost vocational education funding.

The equipment purchase approved by the board Monday will be used in machine trades, welding-metal fabrication, and the woodworking lab.

The board awarded approximately $30,000 worth of bids to the Broadhead-Garrett Company of Cleveland (Ohio), $53,700 worth of bids to Robert F. Brown Machinery, Inc. of Warren, $5,300 worth of bids to Howard and Smith, Inc. of Royal Oak, and $14,000 worth of bids to the National Sales Engineering Corporation of Livonia.

Included in those figures was $33,000 for a precision engine lathe, $8,900 for a geared head lathe, $7,200 for a vertical milling machine, $6,700 for a surface grinder, and $5,000 for three 12-inch woodlathes.

Langerman told the board that he was requesting approval of the bids at this time because several of the items required a long lead time.

Tuttle threatens suit over drainage problem

It was incorrectly reported in the March 1 edition of The Walled Lake News that the Walled Lake City Council had requested a report on drainage problems affecting the Tri-A and A-O subdivisions recently.

A motion requesting that report from City Manager Peter Parker, in fact, was tabled by the council.

Council members last week postponed action on the report until March 21 because Councilmen Walter Lewandowski and Thomas Brookover asked for additional information, including letters from its engineers, Johnson and Andersen, and City Attorney Paul Bibeau.

The engineers' last summer suggested that drainage flow from the Tri-A Subdivision to property owned by Rollin J. Tuttle Jr. could be reduced from 20 percent.

Bibeau said in October that the engineers' preliminary plans appeared to provide a "viable and legal solution to the drainage problems in the Tri-A Subdivision."

Last week, the attorney added that creation of a special assessment district for benefitting property owners may be a viable way to pay for the improvements recommended by the engineers.

Tuttle asked for permission to address the council last week, but was refused.

Apparently disturbed by the council's lack of action, former Councilwoman Ruth Tuttle, Rollin's mother, threatened a lawsuit against the city.

In a recent letter to the council, Tuttle said his property "leech spring (leech) the prospect of flooding and filling up of all the low lying areas." He said it is the city's responsibility to "at least take measures to discontinue the unnatural discharge of water from the Tri-A Subdivision as well as the drainage problems."

As We See It

Novi mills needed

This Saturday, residents in the Novi School District are being asked to go to the polls to vote on three separate millage questions, totaling 14 and one-half mills. The district requests the renewal of 13 mills for operating expenses, one additional mill for operating expenses, and another half-mill to make school buildings more energy efficient. The 13 mills would be levied for five years, while the additional mill and a half requested would run three years. We enter this discussion of the millage requests with some wariness, since it is always difficult to advise people how to spend their money, especially when different people have different amounts to spend. But with that thought in mind, we will proceed to do just that. The 13 mills renewal is, by all accounts a necessity. The 13 mills represents more than a third of the district's operating budget. Without the 13 mills, the district would be forced to make staff cuts and slash programs. In short, the students would suffer. So we support the renewal of the 13 mills. The requested additional mill for operating expenses is a more difficult question, due to the uncertainty of how much money the district will net from the on-going growth in the area. But even so, the school is projecting a 30 percent increase in real growth in the district in the next three years—certainly not a projection that ignores the growth about us. And, along with the increase in tax dollars, the school is projecting another 900 students. And that is basically what the extra mill is for. Not for any extra programs or extra teachers, but just for enough teachers and room to handle the influx of additional students. The mill would allow the district to open the second middle school, which is now unused. In addition, however, the district will be able to establish a reasonable fund equity, which is basically surplus money to be used in case expenditures are not what they are projected. The district is not asking for a large fund equity. In fact, the figure for the 1979 school year is estimated at about $3,000, and eventually building up to $260,000 in 1981. So, in summary, the additional mill will basically continue the level of operation enjoyed by the school at the present time. Without the additional mill, programs will likely have to be cut as enrollment increases. And in view of the successes recently exhibited by students at the school—notably their strong performance on the Michigan Educational Assessment tests—it would seem desirable to continue the same level of operations at the school. Therefore, we support the request for the additional mill. The third request is for a half-mill to be used for energy conservation measures. When the board first approved the request for the half-mill, we spoke against the hasty way that the decision was made. No study of cost-effectiveness had been presented and, as we put it at the time, it seemed the cart had been placed before the horse. But the administration has been hard at work to show the value of the measure and the cost-payout figures have arrived, somewhat belatedly. Officials presented detailed plans for installing insulation and utilizing power management systems and so on which would save the district the $265,000 in energy costs in three years. The half-mill would raise about the same amount. Some officials claim that the savings would be even greater, since energy costs of today were estimated in computing the amount of savings the measure would generate. The cart, it seems, is now behind the horse where it belongs and so we support the request for the additional mill. Our recommendations on the three millage proposals? Yes, yes and yes. Again, we note it is a difficult thing to do—to tell other people how to spend their money. But we have examined the statistics, projections and performance of the schools and can only conclude the money requested would be money well-spent.

Renew WL millage

Voters in the Walled Lake School District should endorse the proposal to renew 10 operational mills for 10 years at the special election next Tuesday (March 21). The Walled Lake Schools currently levy 32.13 mills for operations and an additional 2.75 mills for debt retirement. The proposal before the voters next Tuesday will not increase the current millage rate. Renewal of the 10 mills will merely enable the district to levy the same amount of operational millage that it did last year. Although millage renewals are generally regarded as fairly routine matters, two issues cloud the proposal which will appear on Tuesday's ballot: duration of the millage renewal and a general district-wide increase in property valuations. Opposition to the millage renewal has been expressed on the grounds that the duration has been extended from five to 10 years. The 10 mills up for renewal Tuesday was last renewed for a period of five years in 1973. Opponents maintain that voters should have the opportunity to approve or disapprove the way the schools are being operated by being permitted to renew the 10-mill package every five years. We do not believe, however, that extension of the duration of

Speaking for Myself

Use calculators in schools?

YES... The use of a hand-held calculator in elementary and secondary schools has many potential benefits. Those who resist calculator usage often raise the concern that students will not master basic computational skills. This may or may not be a legitimate concern. However, basic mathematics is more than computational ability. Using a calculator instead of paper and pencil computation involves changing the instrument of calculation from one that is often tedious, inefficient, and cumbersome to one that is faster and more accurate. However, much can be gained by using calculators. They can motivate experimentation with mathematical concepts and ideas too cumbersome to investigate using paper and pencil computation. Without access to a calculator, the number of realistic everyday applications of mathematics that can be investigated by students is limited. Many realistic problems are avoided because the computation is tedious and "gets in the way" of discussing the mathematics involved. Basic mathematical concepts would still need to be taught. Just as the use of a typewriter to "write" does not lessen the need for understanding the structure of language and composition skills, the use of a calculator does not lessen the need to understand the structure of mathematics and computational skills. So that students will have an opportunity to develop an ability to solve problems and to study more advanced mathematics, students will still need to learn the basic facts and concepts needed for problem solving and applications. Calculators do exist, students do have access to them, students are using them, and they are probably here to stay. I feel that students should be encouraged to use calculators and taught to use them properly. Their use in the classroom will allow more time for the study of concepts that should enable students to use their mathematics more effectively as consumers.

NO... When evaluating educational tools, critics would well be reminded that no teaching device is inherently good or bad. Whether the instrument will prove to be detrimental or beneficial is solely a function of the use to which teachers and students put it. Therefore, this article will not serve to attack the calculator in the classroom; but will, instead, point out some of the negative side effects that can result from poor teaching techniques used in conjunction with the calculator. The negative results of ineffectual calculator instruction can be grouped into four broad categories. The first—and most discussed—is the fact that calculators can breed student dependency on machines. It is alarming to envision a future generation of high school math students who use the calculator because it is the only way they can get the answer rather than because that is the most efficient way they have of working through understood, yet tedious, computations. The second category relates directly to the first and concerns the erosion of students' paper-and-pencil skills. We can not allow students to reach the point where a pencil will no longer be sufficient for performing a basic calculation. The hindrance of conceptual development is a third major area of concern, along with being taught to push the proper buttons in the proper sequence, students must be cognizant of the underlying theory that makes the button and sequence proper. Last of all, there is concern that poor teaching techniques can lead students into blind acceptance of whatever answer the calculator produces. Our 20th Century reliance on technology must be tempered with the realization that worn down batteries can produce incorrect answers as can an erring keypuncher. In conclusion, the question is not, "Are calculators good or bad?" The question is, "How can educators use these calculators to produce the greatest mathematical understanding for their students?"

Jack W. Hoffman's Column. "Change your clothes!" Sound familiar? Well, it isn't a parent shouting at a child headed for the out of doors. Any guy who hasn't been slapped in the back with that order doesn't have a wife who insists her husband must dress the role whenever he heads for the basement workshop, the garage or the garden. She's been tossing her orders at me ever since she caught me spandling the marigold bed in my Sunday best a thousand years ago. "Look at your pants," she screamed. "You've ruined them. And your shoes, look at that mud!" I wanted to reply with one of Jackie Gleason's favorite lines: "One of these days, Pow! Right to the moon!" Instead, the adult male in me cringed like a five-year-old boy and said, "I'm sorry, but it will clean right off." My problem is that I never intend to stain a board when I head for the workshop. It's just that once there, one thing leads to another and pretty soon I'm sloshing and cutting and pounding. Like the time I found a spare piece of panting and decided to paste it on the wall. My leg got stuck in the glue. She came busting into the room just as I was using some thinner to remove the spot. Her arrival so unnerved me I spilled the contents down the leg of my pants. So she went out and bought me a work apron. "There, now you put that on whenever you go outside," she said. I looked like a tulip maiden in it. I'd sooner change the spark plugs in the nude than wear her precious smock in public. Continued on Next Page

It has been over a year since Shirley Gaynor's husband died a few short weeks after he went on a crash liquid protein diet. Mrs. Gaynor, who lives in the Village Oaks subdivision in Novi, remembers going to a Livonia weight-loss clinic with her husband, Pat, last February, where they told the couple they could lose weight fast by using liquid protein supplement. About a month after starting on the diet, Pat Gaynor died of acute pancreatitis. The liquid protein diet has come under fire recently by health authorities who claim the diet is unsafe and may have contributed to a number of deaths, because patients sometimes do not take in enough of the necessary vitamins and minerals a body needs to survive. The diet begins with a limit of 750 calories a day of regular food, before going to a daily regimen of about 300 calories of the liquid protein. For Pat Gaynor, those 300 calories were apparently not enough. It has been over a year since Pat Gaynor died and now his wife feels it is time to do something about it. Mrs. Gaynor has filed suit in Wayne County Circuit Court charging the owners and operators of the Livonia clinic with the wrongful death of her husband. In addition, a charge of medical malpractice will be pressed against a Doctor Jerome Blum who treated Pat Gaynor. Although the suit will likely remain out of court for three or four years because of the overloaded Wayne County Courts, the shouting has already begun between the clinic operators and the attorneys for Mrs. Gaynor. Harold Katz, the president of Weight-Loss Medical Centers, the parent company of the Livonia clinic, denies that Gaynor's death was caused by the diet, and notes he had a condition of pancreatitis and a drinking problem when he came to the clinic. "He was dead coming to us," Katz has been quoted as saying. Doctor Blum has also claimed that Pat Gaynor had a drinking problem. Another doctor at the clinic has been quoted as saying that Gaynor was an "obese alcoholic" when first he stepped inside its doors. Mrs. Gaynor denies her husband drank excessively. She also says that both she and her husband were in fairly good physical condition when they went to the clinic. Ronald Musto, with the law firm handling Mrs. Gaynor's suit, said it was regrettable that the allegations concerning Mr. Gaynor were made. "We feel these claims will hurt them," Musto said, "because if Pat Gaynor was indeed an alcoholic, then why the heck did they let him go on the liquid protein diet?" Musto notes Mrs. Gaynor has been deluged with phone calls recently from friends who are willing to go on the stand to attest to her late husband's character. "I can see the word has gotten around Novi," he said. Musto adds the trial should be an interesting one, with many interesting medical — and non-medical — questions that must be answered. But for some, the answers will come too late.

They wanted the name North Boulevard 'cause it was a very prominent name and all. Now North Boulevard is in Pontiac somewhere — a mammoth, big boulevard. "Yep, they took that privilege away from me. They took away my privilege of keeping some pets, too. I had some Buff-Orpington chickens when I first came in here and I could go out and pick 'em up in my yard and I'll tell you they were nothing but pets — great big chickens. They took away that privilege, but I can lay awake at night now and listen to the neighbor's barking dogs all night long. "Yes, sir, I went to that city council meeting the other day. The city, they want to change my address from Walled Lake to Novi and I got up and told 'em a thing or two about what I thought about that. Of all the fellas that got up and spoke, I was the only one that got any applause. I said, "I'm 88-years-old and without fear of contradiction, the oldest man in Novi." I said, "Why, I was around here when most of you folks were still walking around in knee socks and now you want me to change my address." I said, "The next thing you know, you'll want me to change the date on my birth certificate." "Yep, told 'em the next thing, they'd be asking me to change the date on my birth certificate. Got the most applause of anyone there. "What's the L stand for, L. Roy? Don't stand for nothing. I took that name 60 years ago. Yep, pretty near 60 years ago. There was a man in Jackson by the name of L. Whitney Watkins. You've got L. whatchamacallit Patterson right over here in Oakland County. No, the letter is just L. It's your L and a capital R. "The reason I got it — I was a farmboy then, back in 1912 and 13 — just barely a voter and I was voted in and selected as township treasurer. You don't have township treasurers now any more. It's all into the county now. "But anyway, I was township treasurer and I was voted from our township to go to the county convention in Jackson and from there I was voted to go to the state convention in Lansing. How many guys can brag about that? I'm bragging about it 'cause it was the truth. And one of the guys — the head of some 30 representatives from Jackson — his name was L. Whitney Watkins. I loved that name. I said, "I'm changing my damn name," and I did. "Well, anyway, I been around here for a long time. I was here when Lee BeGole first come into town. When he first come, he was all alone. He didn't have 20 officers helping him like he does now. And he had an awful time with those Detroit fellas that would come down on weekends to the skating rink there in the Walled Lake Amusement Park, there on Walled Lake. He'd come in there and his name was L. Whitney Watkins. I loved that name. I said, "I'm changing my damn name," and I did. "I was quick and fast and I put my weight behind my punches like Jack Dempsey. Well, alright, we went there and stood by the back entrance that had great big doors that swung open. The light from the inside shone out so if you stood to either side you were in the shadows and no one could see you out there. "So we stood out there in the dark and pretty me was watching the floor and we seen some smart guy — around 22 or 23-years-old — about that age that he thought he was a pretty good guy — and he'd come up to a certain girl and he'd give her the arm and damn near knock her off her feet. She'd sway out and around and so on. "Well, he'd done it two times and he come around and he give her the arm again. I said, "You noticed that, Don? Let's yank him off the floor!" And he said, no, he'll be able to lie his way out of it three times but he won't be able to lie his way out of it the fourth time. Well, he done it again and when he come around near the back end of the building, well, I walked right in and reached out on the floor and grabbed him by the name of the neck, and yanked him off his feet and drug him outside. I took him by the shoulder and shook the living hell out of him. I shook him so hard he couldn't talk — like a dog shakes a mitten. "Where the hell do you think you're at?" I said. "Where do you come from?" Detroit," he said. "That's where I thought you lived, Detroit," I said, "because no one out here acts that way. You're just doing the wrong thing in this locality." "But I give him a break anyway. I told him he could go back and skate if he would just behave himself. But I told him he better not go near that girl, though, or I'd come back in there and they'd have to drag him to the hospital to put him back together again. "The next morning, I called Lee up. Lee said, "You don't have to tell me. I heard all about it. You guys done a wonderful job. You know, two uniformed men couldn't have gone in there and did what you did. "Yep, I was a good-looking chap in those days. For Christ's sake, when I had a gas station in Plymouth, I had to have a darned book in my pocket and put them girls on a waiting list. I was strong. And healthy. And ambitious. And I liked the women. "You know I belong to both the Novi and Walled Lake senior citizens groups. These old gals there, they come around every once in awhile and they grab me and hug the hell out of me and give me a peck on the cheek, but I never put my arms around 'em or hug 'em back because then no one in the hall can say, "Gee, look and see how he hugged and kissed her." "You fellas don't have to leave already, do you? No, I can put off that appointment. It wasn't nothing. You'll, well, okay. Yep, in my time, had me some real beauties. Boy, this one gal — I don't know whether her name should go in the paper — boy, when I walked by with her, all the fellas would stop and stare. She was something, let me tell you. Darn looking, she was. Long, blonde hair. Well, thanks for stopping by. It's been nice talking with you. "Stop by again, why don't you?"

Pollution study eyed

The Walled Lake City Council has asked the Oakland County Drain Commissioner's office to investigate the sources of pollution in the Greenway Drain. A letter calling for the investigation was requested by the Robert Fredericks, chief deputy drain commissioner, following a meeting last month with members of the Walled Lake-Greenway Lake Millage Greenway Drain Committee. Village officials already have requested the study, City Manager Peter Parkes and the Walled Lake City Council last week before the officials voted to send the letter. Councilman Walter Lewandowski asked if the drain was the only source of pollution to Wolverine Lake, and Mayor Gaspard LaMarca replied that village officials are looking into other lake problems. The deputy commissioner said he would talk to Village President John McAllister before scheduling the tests.

Supports Novi millage

To the Editor: Saturday, March 18, 1978, is an important date for Novi School District. We have the opportunity to vote on the millage issues and I urge everyone to cast a positive vote on all three issues. The first proposal, a 13 mill renewal, is needed to maintain our excellent school system. The second proposal for one mill will meet the increased expenses for the expected new students over the next three years. Everyone knows how much more is required to pay his home expenses and school costs have increased also. Let's maintain the outstanding academic, athletic, and transportation programs we have in the Novi schools. I don't want my son walking to school along Ten Mile Road which has no sidewalks. The third proposal for 1/2 mill for energy conservation is a practical investment for all of us. Let's insulate the older buildings and save on costs in the future. We can have no better investment than to educate our children well. Vote "yes" on March 18. William D. Brinker

Vote 'Yes' on millage

To the Editor: As a member of the Novi School Financial Needs Assessment Committee, I would like to express my support in the March 18th millage election. Our committee spent many hours reviewing the present financial needs of our schools. At the conclusion of our study, we recommended to the Board of Education the renewal of 13 mills and the addition of one mill. All three issues in the upcoming millage election on Saturday, March 18, 1978. In summary, I urge a "yes" vote on all three issues in the upcoming millage election on Saturday, March 18, 1978. Novi citizen praised

To the Editor: A very noteworthy humane gesture took place in our community over the holidays that should not be kept a secret. Each year at Village Oaks School a Holiday Songfest has been held with songs and instrumental music, hot chocolate and cookies to consume, and wheels of hay to sit on. For several years Mr. Moe Wroten of Willowbrook stables has furnished the hay free of charge as an act of kindness towards the school and the children. This in itself is worthy of praise, but on December 8 in the midst of a strong wind and a heavy snow storm, Mr. Wroten very faithfully braved the elements and brought us 100 bales of hay in order not to disappoint our students. So often these sort of things happen, and no one knows about them. We thought you might help us spread the word that the Christmas spirit still exists in many people and Moe Wroten happens to be one of them. Continued from Page 8-A. As she probably anticipated, I opted to change into old clothes upon arriving home—even though usually two hours later I'd have to rechange for a night reporting assignment. Three things happened. Whenever the dog spotted me changing clothes, she danced around like a four-legged ballerina hoping I'd take her for a walk; the old clothes meant good ol' dad was fair game for every chore that had accumulated during the day; and suddenly I no longer had the time nor the urge for workshopping. So now I'm back to ruining clothing and enjoying it more. And whenever it rains, "Change your clothes," I toss her a sunny smile and an excuse and run another of her birthday ties through the table saw.

Walled Lake residents spot UFO

It was only a matter of time before those unidentified flying objects left the "Close Encounters" screen and started visiting Oakland County.

Although sightings were reported over a large segment of the suburban Detroit area, perhaps none made an impression like the objects spotted by students and parents of the Keith Ski Club at Alpine Valley Ski Lodge on Monday, March 6.

Sally Russell, mother of one of the young skiers, sighted a UFO about 8 p.m. while sitting in the Alpine Ski Lodge waiting for her son, Matthew. Mrs. Russell said the object was about the size of a large kite and was moving in a 10-15 degree angle from the horizon on a horizontal plane above the treetops.

"It was shaped like a polywog," said Mrs. Russell, "and it looked like the tail was propelling it."

Mrs. Russell also noted that the main body appeared to be a bright light, outlined in a bright green light. The tail was composed of red or orange lights, making a very striking appearance.

"It was pretty," said Mrs. Russell, "and it didn't make a sound. It moved kind of like a glider plane and was only visible for a few seconds."

Mrs. Russell also explained that the object was moving eastward and did not fly off into the distance, but merely vanished.

Upon leaving the lodge and meeting her son, Mrs. Russell was met by several students who also saw the object.

Mike Van Sicken, 11, viewed the object as "a big ball with fire behind it." Van Sicken agreed with Mrs.

Russell on the object's polywog shape, and said it also might look like a pregnant fish. Van Sicken stated that eight or ten of his fellow skiers saw it also.

Another skier, John Boone, 12, said the object was "a bright green light with red at the back and a little yellow light." Boone estimated the object to be flying about 50 feet over the treetops before disappearing over a hill.

The Alpine UFO was reported to the West Bloomfield police by Mrs. Russell. According to officials in that department, the West Bloomfield police received four calls on the UFO's, mostly in the city's northeast section near Middlebelt Road.

The West Bloomfield police then referred callers to the Oakland County Sheriff's department, which received a number of calls on the UFO's.

"We don't know exactly how many calls we got," said Deputy Bob Wark, "because we didn't log them. We didn't log them because we didn't dispatch any cars to the sites."

The Walled Lake Police department also received a call concerning a UFO last Monday, according to dispatcher Dick McNutt.

"A guy called up Tuesday morning and said he saw one of Maple Road the night before," said McNutt. "He described it as a bright light with a shaft of light coming down from it. He said it was there for a few seconds and then it was gone."

Oakland County wasn't the only area spotting the unidentified flying objects on March 6, as WJR's Warren Pierce was receiving on-the-air phone calls of sightings in Detroit, Mt. Clemens, Saline, and other communities.

Two killed in wrong-way crash on I-96 freeway

In Novi

Someone was driving the wrong way eastbound 1.56 about one mile east of Novi Road in the early morning hours of March 13, causing a head-on crash that killed both drivers.

Police are not sure which of the vehicles was heading in the wrong direction.

Dead on arrival at Botsford Hospital was Francis T. Davignon, 20, of Saginaw. Mike Dobbelaere, 29, of Livonia died the next day.

The accident is still under police investigation.

Police were called to the scene of a fight that had broken out at a poker game at 2800 Pleasant Run March 11.

The victim told police an argument had erupted during the card game and he had challenged his antagonist to fight. His antagonist refused, however, preferring instead to reach across the table and punch him in the face.

The victim complained to police about scratches to his face and chest and wanted to file assault charges.

Officers advised him to talk to the detective bureau about it.

Police made an arrest at the Novi-Bowl parking lot, the scene of several larcenies from cars in recent weeks.

Two Northville youths, one 16 and the other 18, were arrested after police reportedly spotted the pair ripping off a magnetic rear deck antenna from a car.

Police reported they found open alcohol in the car. Charges of minor possession were placed against the 16-year-old, while the 18-year-old was charged with simple larceny, littering, and possession of open alcohol.

The littering charge stemmed from the 18-year-old throwing a beer bottle out of his car, police reported.

In Wixom

A CB radio and microphone valued at $210 was removed from a car parked on Teanack Circle sometime during the night of March 7. Point of entry to the locked vehicle was through the drivers window. Thieves apparently used a coat hanger to force the lock.

In a related incident, a second car parked on the same street was entered during the same time span. Taken from the locked vehicle was a CB, stereo unit, and a PA system and speakers. The missing equipment was valued at $315.

Chuckholes are taking their toll of tires and rims on Wixom roads with police fielding two complaints from angered motorists.

Both drivers managed to drive their cars in a reportedly large chuckhole on Pontiac Trail east of Wixom Road.

The impact in both incidents caused dented, unrepairable rims and flat tires. The complaints have been forwarded to the Oakland County Road Commission.

Approximately $90 in cash was removed from the cash register and a lottery ticket drawer. It is unknown if the thieves helped themselves to any lottery tickets.

Bishop Gallagher too much, 70-45

Wildcat cagers collapse in regionals

Size met quickness in the opening round of Class B regional basketball action at Oakland University last Wednesday, and quickness easily prevailed.

Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher, relying on a hard-nosed, aggressive defense and a variety of quick offensive moves, brought Novi's Cinderella state tournament hopes to a jarring halt with a 70-45 victory.

The Wildcats, who entered the tournament two weeks ago with a 10-10 record and then won an district championship, were never in the game. By half time Gallagher had a 27-16 lead, and from there on in the Lancers boasted.

"I can't be too unhappy for the sheer fact that we got beat by a better team that night," coach Ron Flutur remarked later. "They (Gallagher) were quick, they were intelligent, they were tenacious on defense and they had an exceptional passing team."

Not that he felt his own team played all that well.

"I think we could've played better," Flutur acknowledged. "But they were just a very good team."

"I think their quickness made us look worse than we were. They were always playing one step faster than what we used to."

"Their defense kept us away from the basket all night long. They stopped our

Three local cagers earn All-Area honors

Three local basketball standouts have been named to the first team all-area boys' basketball team by the area's sports editors last week.

Novi's Dave Pisha, Walled Lake Central's Tim Higgins, and Walled Lake Western's Jim Seefeld join Jon Mack and Shane Gurkin for first team honors.

The selection process encompassed ten area high school basketball teams and was done by sports editors from the Brighton Argus, South Lyon Herald, Northville Record, and the Novi-Walled Lake News.

Pisha, Novi's sturdy 6-4 center, averaged 15 points and 17 rebounds a game for the Wildcats this season. The rugged junior earned a berth on the first team All-Southeastern Conference team and led the Wildcats to the district championship this winter.

Higgins, Walled Lake Central's sensational swingman, has been lauded

Christians fall in ACEA regionals

While all other area schools had the weekend off, the Novi Christians were busier than ever, finishing their Accelerated Christian Education Association (ACE) schedule and competing in the ACE post-season playoffs.

The Christians dropped their final ACE game to first place Taylor Baptist Academy last Tuesday, 78-59, to finish in third place in the ACEA at 5-3.

"We played with only four high school boys," said Christian Coach Dick Burgess, "our other one was out sick."

Burgess' four high schoolers trailed the entire game, although they managed to cut the Taylor lead to 57-54 early in the fourth quarter.

Sophomore Greg Blaz then fouled out while guarding all-ACE selection Kerry Bergman, and the momentum collapsed.

"Bergman was incredible," said Burgess of the Taylor star. "He scored 17 points in that fourth quarter. We had to put an eighth guard on him and he had about a foot height advantage. He scored 41 points on the night."

Partially offsetting the play of Bergman, was Novi's Chris Cahill, who tallied 38 points in the loss. The Christian's Jim Jidoff scored eight points and pulled down 18 rebounds in doing a spectacular job on Taylor's 6-5 center.

"Jim held their big man to only six points and eight rebounds," said Burgess. "He helped keep us in the game."

In the ACE state tournament, the Christians drew Lansing Baptist and came out with a hard-fought 56-46 victory. The local squad managed an early lead and hung on to win, despite scoring only two points in the third quarter.

Cahill again led the Christian charges with a 35 point performance including 14 of 27 from the field. Cahill also grabbed 12 rebounds.

Jidoff, at 5-10, battled Lansing's 6-2 center the entire evening and came away with six points and 16 rebounds while holding his opponent to a mere four points.

But the unheralded star of the game could have been eighth grader Dave Milburn. The 5'9" youngster scored but five points, but four came late in the fourth quarter when Lansing cut the Novi lead to one.

In the second round of the ACE state tournament, the Christians faced Faith Baptist of Mattawan, and lost 58-48.

"Faith Baptist was another big team," said Burgess. "Their first team averages about 6-1, 25, while our kids average about 5-9. We played against some really big kids."

Still, behind Cahill's 32 points and Jidoff's 16 rebounds, the Christian school was able to stay on the heels of the bigger Mattawan school. Novi trailed by three in the fourth quarter while losing both Cahill and starter George Whyte on fouls.

"We have a small team in more way than one," said Burgess. "We didn't do too badly in our first season, and we should have more boys playing next season."

Leading the way for the Christians all-season was 5-8 junior Chris Cahill. The South Lyon sharpshooter averaged over 33 points a game in addition to hauling down a dozen rebounds.

Freshman diver competes in toughest state regional

Walled Lake Central diver Dan Ladd didn't qualify for the state diving championships last week, but that doesn't mean too much to anyone who has been following the youngster's progress.

Ladd, only a freshman, had never competed in diving until Viking swimming coach Craig Auten pulled him out of one of his academic classes last fall. Only last week Ladd competed against some of the best divers in the state in the regional meet at Livonia Churchill.

"He had to compete against the finest collection of divers I've seen," said Auten. "There were some world class divers competing in that regional, including the son of the Olympic diving coach. This was definitely the toughest regional in the state."

Ladd finished a distant 33rd out of the 36 divers who competed at Churchill, accumulating 58 points after his first three dives.

"He didn't make the cut," explained Auten, "but there was definitely some All-American competition out there. I think he was a little in awe of the competition."

Of the 36 divers who competed in each of the three state regionals, only the top twelve advanced to the Michigan state meet held Saturday in Lansing.

If Ladd lives up to Auten's confidence, the springboard artist could nudge into the elite group in the future.

"I'm working with him every day and he'll be diving in AAU this summer," said the coach, "and he'll improve. This was only his first year of diving."

Young swimmer excels in AAU

A young Walled Lake girl is making big splashes in Amateur Athletic Union swimming circles.

Amy Bouckaert, 12, recently competed in the AAU swimming championships in Southfield and came home with a bundle of honors. The seventh grader at Walled Lake Junior high captured the state title for her age group in the 500 freestyle, with an amazing 5:21.7.

Bouckaert also placed second in the 200 individual medley (2:22.8); third in the 100 individual medley (1:07.3); third in the 100 butterfly (1:05.5); third in the 200 freestyle (1:04.4); fourth in the 100 freestyle (1:08.8); and fifth in the 100 backstroke (1:07.7).

She also swam the backstroke leg of the winning medley relay team, and competed on the second place freestyle relay team.

Bouckaert is a member of the Royal Oak Penguin swim club and had been competing since she was seven years old. Her sister, Anne, competes for the Walled Lake Western girls' swim team.

Canadian team spikes way to tourney title

The Walled Lake Community Education Department received only one entrant from Canada in its Mens Class B open volleyball tournament last weekend, but that was enough. The Kent Balthawks, Canada's lone entry, climbed to the top of the ten-team tourney held at Walled Lake Western last Saturday. On the way, the Balthawks rumbled past both Walled Lake entries, Haggerty Lumber and Heritage, which took second and third places respectively in the tournament. Haggerty Lumber and the Balthawks each posted 7-1 records in the round robin qualifying round, each team beating the other in two head-to-head confrontations. The top six teams competed in the playoffs, with the winner being decided on the best two of three games to 11.

In the playoff finals, the Balthawks and Haggerty Lumber met again. The Canadians captured the first game, 15-10, with Haggerty winning the second Western last Saturday. On the way, the Balthawks rumbled past both Walled Lake entries, Haggerty Lumber and Heritage, which took second and third places respectively in the tournament. Haggerty Lumber and the Balthawks each posted 7-1 records in the round robin qualifying round, each team beating the other in two head-to-head

Western volleyballers close with two losses

Walled Lake Western closed its volleyball season on a sad note as they dropped two games last week and saw their record fall to a disappointing 5-11 level. Bloomfield Hills Andover stopped the Warriors three game winning streak with a 15-8, 15-10 win in the regional qualifying game on Tuesday, and Waterford beat Western by the same score in the season finale last Thursday.

Warrior coach Karen Wolski considered the Andover game a tough loss. "I felt neither player played up to its potential," she said. "We lost it on our selves."

Wolski added that Junior Patti Stock was strong on her serving, but there were no exceptional players.

In the loss to Waterford, Wolski again cited lack of consistent serving as a major cause of the team's downfall. "Again it was bad serves," she said. "We definitely blocked well either."

Wolski noted that senior Barb Grimshaw did well on both serving and blocking, but that the team as a whole didn't play too well. "We've definitely improved," said Wolski, "but we've still got a lot to work for next season."

Western finished with a 3-7 record in the Western Six.

Novi jaycee hockey game to benefit burn center

Novi's Jaycees are gearing up for their big hockey game with the Detroit Red Wing Old-timers on Friday, March 31. The game will be played in the Novi Ice Arena at 7:30 p.m. This is the third annual "Hockey for Burns" benefit game sponsored by the Novi Jaycees. Proceeds will be donated to the National Institute for Burns Medicine in Ann Arbor.

The Jaycees are putting together a team of local talent to take on the Red Wing Old-timers. Although there is no commitment as to which former Red Wings will be playing in the March 31 game, the Old-timers roster includes such well-known names as Alex Delvecchio, Ted Lindsay, Gary Bergman, Marty Pavlich, Jim Peters and Bill Gadsby.

Jaycee Project Chairman Hugh Crawford said that the appearance of the former Red Wing stars should be a real treat for area residents and notes that the local team will have its hands full.

"Ticket prices are $8 per person with children five and under being admitted free of charge. Tickets will be available at the door as well as various business locations around town.

For more information or to order advance tickets, contact Crawford at 349-5079.

Yuhn and Mayes head '78 Warrior trackmen

Led by conference champions John Yuhn and Mike Mayes, the Walled Lake Western track team sports its largest group of competitors ever this season. "We've got about 75 kids out for track," said Warrior coach John Fundukian. "That's an incredible amount and it's really nice to have that many kids interested. I can't remember when we've had that many."

Heading the group are Yuhn and Mayes, a pair of outstanding runners who were crowned Western Six champions last year. Yuhn captured the league title in the 800 run, while Mayes claimed the conference crown in the two mile run.

"I can't say enough about those guys," said Fundukian. "They're among the best in the country."

Mayes owns the honor of being the regional and county one mile champion, with an outstanding time of 4:18.3. Fundukian hopes the senior could break 4:10 this year. Mayes' top times in the half mile and two mile are 1:58.9 and 8:42.

Yuhn's best time in the mile run is 4:28, but the Warrior coach hopes the junior distance man can bring that down. His conference winning time in the half mile last year was 2:00.4.

In addition to Yuhn and Mayes, the Warriors boast other strong hopefuls in the middle distance events. Seniors Randy Lis, Jeff Shell, Kevin Greening, and Les Garrigee all compete in the half mile, with Greening and Garrigee at 2:05 and 2:07 respectively.

Adding to the Warrior's mile punch will be junior Willy Libby, who ran a 4:57 last year.

In the hurdles, the Warriors have a crop of youngsters, with sophomore Dale Keener competing in the highs. Keener finished second in the freshman county meet last spring. Running the low hurdles for Western will be sophomore Tom Fedorka and junior Dale Filer.

Sophomore Wayne Yates is regarded as promising in the 100 yard dash where he will compete with football star John Meyer and junior Jim Rosenlund. All three are highly touted by Fundukian.

According to Fundukian, the Warriors won't be as strong as they'd like to be in the field events, but the team boasts some real competitors.

Throwing the discus this season will be returnees Greg Skonecny and Jeff Shall. Skonecny, a junior, recorded a 120-8 toss last season.

Putting the shot for the Warriors will be Shell and ex-wrestler Randy Brown, Brown hopes to improve on his 43-foot put last spring.

West's hopes for the high jump rest on junior Dale Filer, who cleared the bar at 5-8 last year, while Wayne Yates will improve on his 18-11 showing in the long jump.

Jack Conley and Mike McCormick will do the Warrior pole vaulting this spring, with each clearing 11-6 previously.

So how will the Warriors finish? "The Western Six is unbelievably competitive," said Fundukian. "Churchill is definitely the team to beat and Northville has improved. We need to come up a little in the field events if we've got a chance, but it should be a good season."

Fundukian wanted to remind area track and field enthusiasts that Western is hosting the 7th annual Langerman Relays on Saturday April 8th. Action begins at noon with teams from West Bloomfield, Milford, Lakeland, Waterford, Howell, Brighton, and Walled Lake Central competing.

Central track coach high on '78 prospects

Central Lake Central Coach Dick Woodworth says his Viking track team is as strong as it has been in years, and hopes to make an improved showing in the Inter-Lakes Conference this season.

Woodworth has enlisted the aid of the Viking cross-country team. Headed by Chris Harrington, other competitors in the mile and two mile runs include Kevin Atkinson, Bob Slais, and Randy Piotrowski.

In the 400 yard run, Woodworth will use skiing sensation Geoff Turner, who could also go in the 220 and 100 yard dashes. Senior Jim Kuhn could also run the 100 and 200 yard dashes.

Central's Dave Ostyn will run the 180 and 330 low hurdles. Ostyn ran a fine 40.0 clocking in the 330 lows and competed in the Class A meet last season. In the high hurdles Woodworth is counting on Doug Sheldon, a remnant from the Viking basketball team.

The Vikings should be fairly strong in the field events this season, with a good crop of returning returnees.

Junior Dave Ostyn and senior Jeff Knop will compete in the discus and shotput events, with both rated about even. Each recorded consistent puts in the lower 40's last season, and Woodworth is looking for improvement.

Ex-gridder John Urbanik will team with Chris Harrington in the high jump this spring. Each cleared six feet for last season's Vikings.

Woodworth will have to replace Terry Bowling, a recent graduate who went to the state meet in each of the past two years. So far it looks like Geoff Turner will do the Viking long jumping.

And the pole vault favorite has to be ex-wrestler Paul Rentschler. Rentschler cleared 12 feet consistently last year, with a personal best of about 12-6.

"I'm optimistic," said Woodworth. "We've got a good nucleus to work with."

And the Viking changes in the Inter-Lakes League?

"Stevenson is always tough," said the coach. "Farmington has the distance men and Northern has the sprinters. It's hard to say, but we figure to give them some good competition."

Former WLC cheerleader beats 10-1 odds Local girl makes Choo Choo's

Union Lake's Vicki Conway is officially a Choo Choo.

The 19 year-old ex-Walled Lake Central cheerleader was selected to the 20-woman Detroit Express cheering team from over 200 candidates. Miss Conway had registered for the upstart Dallas Cowgirl-type team last Monday, received a call back on Wednesday, and completed in dancing and cheering with about 40 other hopefuls on Thursday. She was notified of her final selection by telephone Friday night.

"I didn't think I had made it," said Conway. "The call came about 8:15 Friday night and I had almost given up. I was getting calls all day from my friends, but they were only asking me if I had made it."

Conway is now a member of the all-girl squad that will cheer the Detroit Express soccer team in the Silverdome this summer. Express owner John Maxwell however, hopes to tie the Choo Choo girls in with the Lions and the Pistons and become a silverdome establishment.

"I like the idea of having a larger group of girls and calling them the Silver Belles," said Maxwell. "They could do football and basketball game and a lot of other functions here at the Silverdome."

Maxwell had hoped to have the use of a small number of male cheerleaders on the Choo Choo, but after 15 males officially signed up, only one attended the tryouts.

"We'll go with the girls," said Maxwell. "We selected the ones with cheering experience and dancing talent. They'll be much more than just a bunch of pretty faces that you see waving to a camera."

The Choo Choo team got its first idea of what Maxwell meant during a five hour practice last Sunday.

"We went over cheers, mounting and dancing," said Conway. "We also tried to work out some routines. It was a workout."

Conway beat almost 12-1 odds at making the team and amazed herself in the process.

"I don't even know why I did it," she said. "I've been out of cheering for three years and I didn't know if I even had a chance, but I thought 'why not?' My brothers and my dad kept kidding me about being a cheerleader."

The group is under the direction of choreographer Dawn Nykanen and will work on dance, routines, and cheers to display at the Express home opener in the Silverdome April 16th.

Dr. Kutinsky

A man who drove a horse and wagon didn't have to see perfectly, as long as the horse could see well enough to keep from running into things. The automobile has changed all that. Any driver of today's high-powered, high-speed automobile had better see very well or he's headed for big trouble.

When we travel at legal speeds of over 50 feet per second, good depth perception is important. So is an adequate field of vision, the ability to see "out of the corner of the eye." Good night vision and the ability of the eye to recover normal vision after being blinded by glaring headlights may prevent tragedy on the highway.

Do you see well enough to drive your car? An eye examination, providing the facts about your vision, could save your life!

A Volleyball Addict

She told me I had been spelling her name wrong. It was Cathy with a C, not Kathy with a K.

"That's okay, everybody makes that mistake," Cathy said, but that's nowhere near how it ended.

Cathy, Walled Lake Central's volleyball coach, is an addict. A volleyball addict. She gets high on the game.

A member of the Schoolcraft College nationally ranked team, Johnson is the first to admit she's addicted to the sport.

"I play in a tournament just about every weekend, and when I don't play, I go to the beach," she says.

She also practices every night of the week and competes on two or three different teams, many with her teammates from Schoolcraft.

She also competes with teams she doesn't even play on.

Let me explain that. Cathy signed up with the Walled Lake Community Education program in the Silverdome area. She doesn't know why one that'll be, but she does know that the team that wins the women's league will compete in the state tournament. That's why she signed up.

"They also signed a setter," said Johnson. "She'll set up and I'll spike."

The tournaments Cathy travels to are generally in Michigan and Canada, and she rarely misses one. But the real fun begins when the weather warms up, and the beach tournaments begin.

"It's more fun than indoor volleyball," she says, "a lot more fun, and you get a real good tan in the process."

She says there are tournaments all over the coast of Michigan, and that she gets mail from these places and others too.

"Once you start going to the tournaments they send you stuff every year."

Johnson was miffed, however, when she received material for a volleyball tournament from a nudist camp in Indiana.

"I said we could compete with our clothes on or off depending if we wanted to," she said. But so far she has not accepted the invitation.

"Tournaments are a lot of fun," she says, "and you get to meet a lot of people. You keep running into them at all these different places."

She explained to me about how California is the best state in the Union for volleyball.

"Have you heard about all those great teams they have out there? They don't even compete in the regionals and nationals with the rest of the country because they'd beat everybody. The state of California has its own tournament."

But Cathy Johnson wasn't always a volleyball addict. She used to be just a normal person like everybody else, until she went out for Walled Lake Western's team as a junior. Then the bug bit and there was no stopping her.

After graduation, Johnson received an academic scholarship to Schoolcraft, which fields a girls' powerhouse every year. She says she would have gone there anyway, regardless of the scholarship.

She played for two years as a schoolcraft, year in and year out, wherever there was a court and interested people. Now she'll face the transfer problem. Where to enroll from here?

She said a couple of schools are interested, a small school in Florida and Drake University in Iowa.

"I don't know if I really want to go to Iowa," she says. "I may end up going to Eastern."

Eastern?

"Well, we might keep the team together and all transfer to one school. But Eastern doesn't have much of a volleyball program."

They why Eastern?

"I could still coach back at Central."

Ah.

I learned a lot about the life of a volleyball addict, and I was curious to learn more, but our conversation was cut short.

"I've got to go to practice," she said.

Wildcat of the Week
GEYLE DAVIDSON
No matter where Geyle Davidson plays she performs well. That's the conclusion of Novi coach Rose Ripelle, anyway. In assessing her veteran volleyball player, "She's a consistent server and an excellent setter," Ripelle says, "and we could always rely on her to play her best." The dark-haired junior had another impressive showing in last week's pre-regionals when she served six of her team's 15 points and played an equally strong setting game as the Wildcats closed their season against Clawson.

Novi's Fred Ciampa goes up for a block

Tourney trail ends
Novi's volleyball season came to an end last week when the Wildcats competing in the first round of the Class B pre-regionals at Clawson, lost a 15-15-8 decision to the host school on Thursday.
"It was not a very good game. I think everyone was too nervous," coach Rose Ripelle said of her team's efforts, although she credited Geyle Davidson with a strong serving game. Six of Novi's 15 points in the two-set defeat came off Davidson's service. Laura Bitrou served for six other points and led Novi's spiking attack.
Earlier in the week the Wildcats had closed their regular season with a 15-4-15-7 victory over Ann Arbor Greenhills. Thanks to exceptional serving by Ann Mackay and another good spiking performance from Bitrou the local team was never challenged.
During one span of the second set Mackay served for eight straight points. Overall she wound up serving for 10 points in the victory.
Ripelle also noted a strong serving game by Sheri Alexander.
With the split of last week's season finale Novi ended up 4-7 for the year. Ripelle's crew was 2-5 in Southeast Conference action and finished fourth in the eight-school league tournament two weekends ago.

Novi Hardware bumped in rec cage tournament
Novi Hardware's basketball express ran out of gas last week. Team Five struggled out to a five-point halftime lead and then exploded in the second half for an 80-49 rout over the Novi recreation cage champs in playoff action Wednesday, handing Hardware its first loss in 10 outings this season and advancing the winners to next week's playoff finals.
Hardware, which won the regular season league crown with a perfect 8-0 record, was still within range after two quarters, trailing 38-31.
Led by Larry Hart and Reggie Barrenger, though, Team Five caught fire in the second half and went on a 41-18 scoring rampage. Hart's 20 points and Barrenger's 18 topped a balanced scoring attack that saw four players on the winning club hit double figures.
Hardware will now play Michael's Restaurant tonight in an attempt to get one more shot at Team Five in the losers' bracket finals of the double elimination tourney.
Michael's earned its spot opposite Hardware with a 76-60 victory over Goat Farm.
Paced by Jerry Wood's 30 points and steady rebounding the winners led all the way. Kevin Schultz led the losers, now eliminated from the tournament, with 15 points.
Grapplers vie
Although the high school wrestling season is well behind them now, several Novi grapplers are keeping in shape by competing in AAU meets during the off season.
Two of them, Jim Longhurst and R. J. Bayne, have collected individual championships at AAU-sponsored tournaments in the past two weeks alone.
Longhurst, wrestling at a tourney in Goodrich two weeks ago, placed first at 96 pounds out of some two dozen area wrestlers who were competing.
Longhurst, a senior, was a league champion for the Wildcats in that weight division this season.
Bayne, competing at a tournament in Flint, then swept past five opponents to win at 191 pounds last weekend. Bayne, a junior, also wrestled at 191 with the Wildcats this season.

Central spikers split, finish .500 in league
Walled Lake Central closed out its 1977-78 volleyball season with a split of the season's final two games, and finished an even .500 in the Inter-Lakes Conference.
Central, 5-5 in the league and 9-10 overall, downed Waterford 15-13, 15-7, before losing its finale to Mott 15-8, 15-6.
"We played tough against Waterford," said Viking coach Kathy Johnson. "They had beaten us the time before, but not this time."
Johnson lauded the good all around play of sophomore Robin Schatz and senior Karen Ausmus and the excellent spiking of senior ex-tennis stars Cindy Long and Kim Kasner. Johnson also praised senior Debbie Rembisz on her good back row play.
Against Mott, it was a completely different story.
"Everything was off," said Johnson. "It was just a bad night all around."
Johnson felt the Vikings' 9-10 record could have been better had the team not suffered injuries and sickness in mid-February, resulting in a five game losing streak.

Northville Superintendent Ray Spear resigns post

Northville Public Schools Superintendent Raymond Spear resigned Monday night moments after the school board approved a salary for next year. Spear said his resignation was "unsatisfactory."

In a letter to Board President John Hobart, Spear said it was his intent "to terminate my services...on or before July 1, 1979" when his present three-year contract expires.

Monday night, after two executive sessions last week, the board announced Spear's contract to provide partial financial compensation if he resigns prior to June 1 of this year.

Spear, who has spent 16 years as a Northville school administrator and the last 11 as superintendent, had no comment Monday night about his future plans.

Monday night's resignation came after the board's announcement that it had given Spear an overall rating of "satisfactory" during his annual evaluation which was completed last week.

The board also unanimously set Spear's 1978-79 salary at $38,235, a four percent increase over last year's wages. Spear did not receive a raise last year although his fringe benefit package was improved.

The details of Spear's resignation and the amended contract were apparently worked out during two closed door evaluation sessions with Spear last week on Monday and Thursday nights.

Under the terms of the new contract, if Spear resigns by June 1 of this year the board would pay him up to $5000 to cover the difference between the salary of a new job and the $38,235 he would have received from the district next year.

Under those circumstances, the board would also pay him $300 for each of his accumulated sick days. Attorneys for both Spear and the school district were on hand Monday night to approve final papers when the board adjourned for a brief executive session before announcing the terms of Spear's contract.

In his resignation letter, Spear said in part: "In recognition of my duties as a person responsible for a total budget of $12.5 million and a payroll including some 850 employees, I find the board's salary adjustment consideration for my services and responsibilities not in my best interest."

I wish to seek employment commensurate with my abilities, knowledge and past performance."

Spear headed the Northville system through some of its most dynamic years when the district's student population and revenue grew at record rates.

The district has gained state and national recognition for its attempts at year-round school (which ended this year) and for administering the education of 850 mentally retarded patients of two area institutions. Of late, however, he has fallen into disfavor as financial problems have plagued the district. A large deficit was discovered four years ago and the bottom fell out of the enrollment growth just as three new schools were built to accommodate a student population that has not materialized.

District enrollment has fallen from a high of 4475 in 1975 to a projected 4133 next year. Meanwhile, millages have become harder to pass. It took three tries to pass the last successful tax increase and a request for 2.8 mills last year was soundly defeated. The board is asking for 5.5 mills in April.

Last year, the school district traveled from one crisis to another including public disgust at the condition of the high school, the demise of a controversial alternative education program, a decision to drop year-round school and the reassignment of high school Principal Michael Tarpinian to a teaching position.

Spear started this school year under the gun when James Lewis and Charles Peitz were elected to the school board after saying in their campaigns that the district needed a new superintendent.

Even so, this has been one of the smoothest years in recent school history and most observers say the high school operation and morale has improved considerably.

Five of the seven board members have been elected for the first time in the past two years and one of them, Lewis, was instrumental in forming the citizens group, SPIDER, that dealt with educational issues.

Nieuwkoop said some board members were "committed" to scoring low on the evaluation because of campaign promises. "On the surface, it will appear to some that a great victory has been won," he added. "In reality, we have all lost because the negative feelings and attitudes which you (board members) have developed will not go away."

Other ex-board members in attendance Monday were former President Dr. Orlo Robinson, Martin Rinehart, Stanley Johnston, Richard Amble and Andrew Orphan.

Of these only Nieuwkoop and Orphan, who said he expected the board to apply as stringent salary controls on union contracts as it did with Spear, made public comments.

Spear came to Northville as Amertman Elementary School Principal in 1962. He later became assistant superintendent and was named as interim superintendent when the school board purchased the last year of Alex Nelson's contract in the spring of 1967.

Later that year, Spear was named superintendent.

Boys was it tough. Selecting the top competitors in any sport from the Sliger newspaper area is no easy task, and when the sports editors from the Northville Record, Brighton Argus, South Lyon Herald, and Novi-Walled Lake News met last week to pick the All-Area basketball team, it proved no exception.

Unlike their female counterparts who produced four league and two district champions, the Sliger area's boys' teams did their best to keep their heads above water. Only Howell and Novi could manage winning records from among the area's ten schools this winter, and neither was much to brag about.

But that wasn't to say that the area didn't produce any basketball talent. No less than ten players were nominated for only five positions on the All-Area first team. And with second team nominations that hadn't even begun, it was indeed to be a difficult task.

Big men dominated the nominations, with a general consensus selecting Novi's Dave Pisha as first team center. Walled Lake Central's Tim Higgins was the area's only 20-point scorer, and the senior swingman was also voted into a top spot. Howell's Jon Mack, although only a junior, was agreed upon for a third position at forward. Then the haggling began.

Seven players worthy of first team selection competed for the two remaining spots. Negotiations almost came to a standstill before Howell's Shane Gerkin and Walled Lake Western's Jim Seefeld filled the final spots as guards.

The second team selections were no easy either, as an additional competitor was found worthy of the unit. And since six doesn't go into five, a considerable argument ensued. Nevertheless, an agreement was finally reached.

Too bad you can't have six players on a team. Leading the All-Area selections in point production is Walled Lake Central's TIM HIGGINS. The versatile 6'9" senior played both guard and forward for the Vikings and accumulated an incredible 23.9-point scoring average. The swingman canned 47 percent of his shots from the field and 85 percent of his from the free throw line.

Higgins really poured it on after the Christmas break when he averaged over 26 points per contest. He topped the 30 point barrier four times this past season, reaching a high of 36 twice. Known as a torrid shooter, Higgins often brought the crowd to its feet with his long swish shots.

"He has no range limitations," said Central coach Ken Smith. "He's got the perfect form and is as good from 35 feet as he is from five feet. A lot of the league (Interlakes) coaches feel he's the most unstoppable kid in the area." Higgins also averaged six rebounds a game from his swingman position, as well as three assists and a pair of steals. Simply put, DAVE PISHA is one very talented team basketball player.

According to veteran Novi mentor Ron Flutur, in fact, he's "without a doubt the best all-around player I've ever coached," and one glance at his statistical figures tells why. A unanimous first-team All-SEC selection, Pisha led the Wildcats in points scored (338, or 15.1 per game), rebounds (358, or 16.3 per game), blocked shots (44) and recoveries, and had the team's second highest assist total with 92.

Pisha was also a unanimous first-team All-SEC selection and paced Novi to its first boys' district basketball championship in history this season. "He has that inborn instinct that you can't coach," Flutur says of his muscular 6'4" 200-pound center. "He has very good floor sense, he usually knows where everybody is on the court. He also has an excellent shooting touch for such a big guy."

And opponents can only wonder how much better he'll get next year — Pisha, you see, is only a junior.

Also mulling down a spot on the All-Area team is Walled Lake Western's JIM SEEFELD. The 5'10" senior guard

Planners set to reject high rise

The Walled Lake Plan Commission was expected to officially reject the site plan for a proposed high-rise apartment complex near the corner of Ladd Road and Pontiac Trail at their regular March meeting last night (Tuesday).

Specifically, the planners were expected to turn down the request for site plan approval of the Walled Lake Lakeside Apartments.

According to the site plan, the apartment complex would include a five-story building 50-feet high with 70 units of elderly housing and a four-story building 40-feet high with 40 units of non-elderly housing.

The proposed development prompted a strong protest from citizens opposed to construction of high-rise buildings in Walled Lake and apparently led the city to adopt an amendment to its zoning ordinance which reduces the maximum height of buildings in the RM-2 (multiple family high rise residential) district from 60 to 35 feet.

The amendment, which in effect limits buildings in the city's high-rise zoning district to 3½ stories, officially took effect Monday, January 9 — the day before the Plan Commission was slated to act on the request for site plan approval of the Lakeside Apartments.

As a result of the ordinance amendment, the planners voted to table action on the site plan at their January 10 meeting.

The site plan was carried on the Plan Commission's agenda in both February and March, but no revised site plan was submitted in conformance with the new height restrictions of the RM-2 district. City Planning Consultant Tod Kilroy told The News Monday that he met with the city attorney last week to discuss deficiencies in the site plan and that the attorney was to prepare a report for review by the Plan Commission.

"There is an agreement that the site plan does not conform with the zoning ordinance," said Kilroy. "They've had two months to submit a revised site plan and haven't done so. Our conclusion would be that the existing site plan should be denied rather than carrying it on the agenda waiting for a revised site plan."

Gary Stern, an administrator with Home Health Care Services — the proposed developer of the Walled Lake Lakeside Apartments, told The News that he has not yet dismissed the possibility of seeking legal action against the city.

"I can't sue for damages on site plan or I'd be in court tomorrow," he said. Stern went on to say, however, that he felt he had a strong case against the city for its amendment of the RD-2 (multiple family high rise) district.

"I'll be able to decide just what my next step will be once I figure out how many units I can get on the parcel with a low-rise development."

Big men dominate All-Area basketball selections scored in double figures in each of the Warriors' 20 games to end the season with a remarkable 18.8 average. Seefeld, who topped the 30-point mark four times this season, scored a career high 38 against rival Walled Lake Central.

A first team All-Western Six choice, the senior guard shot 45 percent from the field and 77 percent from the free throw line. Seefeld transferred to Western from Walled Lake Central where he was a second team All-Interlakes choice last year.

"He's played about as well as anybody in the league," said Warrior coach Ted Peley. "He's got an excellent shot but he can play all the aspects of the game."

JON MACK, 6-3 junior forward, was expected to be a key performer for the Howell Highlanders this year but few anticipated quite this much.

"I knew he was going to be a starter and a good one," said coach Jerry Johnson. "He has the potential to be the best player to come out of this area."

Offensively and defensively Mack developed to become the team's scoring leader and most dependable defender.

Mack scored 349 points in 22 games for an average of nearly 16 points per game. At times playing center and forward Mack sunk over 70 percent of his free throws and hit over 50 percent from the field.

His best effort was a 30-point spree against DeWitt.

Under the boards, Mack fought past bigger men to snare an average of 11 rebounds a game. In one tournament game against Milford Lakeland Mack snared 20 rebounds, and scored 22.

Unusually adept for a big man Mack can also handle the ball. Against the man-to-man press the Highlanders would often go to Mack to bring the ball upcourt.

On defense Mack was usually responsible for the opponents high scorer. On seven different occasions Mack held opposing sharpshooters to their lowest season effort. DeWitt's Dave Chalice, for example, after scoring 20 in a previous game, was hounded by Mack to just two points in the team's first encounter.

With already an established standout coach Johnson can look ahead to improve next year on the Highlander's so-so 12-10 season.

SHANE GERKIN, 6-0 senior guard was the only veteran Highlander circuit and district championship team.

And even as a junior Gerkin was just the sixth man.

But as a senior and captain in 1976 Gerkin assumed the role as leader for a relatively inexperienced team and became what coach Jerry Johnson called the "zone buster" for Howell.

Whenever an opponent used a zone defense against the Highlanders, it was Gerkin's outside shot that brought them out of it.

Mostly from the outside Gerkin shot 49 percent, totalling 300 points in 20 games for a 15-point-per-game average.

In one two-game stretch against Eaton Rapids and Brighton Gerkin hit 13 straight from the field.

His best single game effort was 27 points.

From the free throw line Gerkin shot a dependable 73 percent and as also a strong rebounder snared nine rebounds per game and played set forward.

Gerkin also averaged five assists and four steals per game.

A mid-season snowmobile injury sidelined Gerkin for two games and may have hampered his performance later in the season.

Still the senior sparked a fourth quarter comeback in the district finals against Ann Arbor Pioneer, scoring 10 points late in the 39-38 losing effort.

SECONd TEAM

Height was at a premium for the All-Area second team.

Among those selected to the elite group were Northville's Doug Harding and John Horwath, Brighton's Henry Morley, Whitmore Lake's Rick Weidman and Hartland's Bob Collins.

All five stand 6'1" or taller, and together they average well over 6'2". Not bad for a high school squad.

DOUG HARDING was a big man for Northville in more than one way this season.

A 6'3" 200-pound senior center, Harding was a first-team All-League selection in the Western Six and a strong all-around player.

Possessing the ability to often get free inside the key, Harding shot an admirable 54 percent from the floor and averaged 13.6 points per game.

But his strongest area was on the boards, where he averaged 13.4 rebounds per game, easily tops on the team.

"Even though we weren't a big team we outrebounced most of our opponents," coach Walt Koepke notes, "and Doug was a major factor. I think he was the best rebounder in the league."

Harding also led the Mustangs in steals with 41.

JOHN HORWATH, as is customary of him, came on strong at the end for Northville this season.

After getting off to a slow start the 6'11" senior guard wound up as the team's leading scorer, averaging 14.6 points per game, and earned second-team All-Western Six honors for the second consecutive year.

During the last two weeks of regular season play he averaged close to 20 points per game and, in an impressive victory over Walled Lake Western, he bilistered the nets with 12 of 17 floor shots and 27 points.

On defense he was equally outstanding. Although he was often responsible for going man-to-man against the top guards in the league he usually held them to sub-par performances.

Lake's Rick Weidman, a 6-2 senior forward.

"Rick isn't spectacular, just very steady," Whitmore Lake coach Bob Henry said. "For his size, he's a very strong player inside, taking the ball to the hoop and rebounding."

"We always depended on Rick to get his 15 points and 10 rebounds a game."

In Whitmore Lake's 10-10 season, Weidman averaged 15 points a game, hitting 40 percent from the field. He has been the Trojans' leading rebounder for the past two seasons, this year pulling down 12 per game.

BOB COLLINS, 6-2 senior center, was a big reason for Hartland's basketball resurgence this season. He was everything a "big man" should be. Not bad for a young man playing varsity basketball for the first time.

"Collins has a great attitude and he improved tremendously because he worked very hard," said Eagle coach Eric Greyerbiel. "He's not a flashy player, but he really gets the job done."

He was a leading rebounder in the Genesee 8 Conference, and was also that league's fifth-leading scorer. In 16 of his team's 21 games, he was the top rebounder on the floor for either team. In 15 games, he also tallied in double figures.

Use his intelligence he did, as Morley led the Bulldogs in both scoring and rebounding. He played a key role in Brighton's late-season surge to SEC respectability. For his efforts, he was named to the All-SEC second team.

He scored an average of 14 points per game in the 21 contests Brighton had this season. He shot 47 percent from the floor and 72 percent from the charity stripe.

At the same time, Morley snatched an average of 14 rebounds per game. These are impressive statistics for a youngster whose coach says has a lot

Frog to sing praises of spring for Kensington Park program March 25

"Salamanders and Frogs" will be the subjects of discussion during a program to be held at the Nature Center of Kensington Metropark near New Hudson on Saturday, March 25 at 9 a.m.

Salamanders and frogs can be observed during the spring season. For it is at this time that they congregate in ponds and lakes to begin their mating rituals. Different species of frogs and salamanders can be identified by their markings, but frogs can also be recognized by their unique calls.

This 1 1/2-hour "free" program is for families and individuals only. Admission is free.

Nutrition site is instant hit in Commerce

By NANCY DINGELDEY

The faces gathered in groups around the long white covered tables were animated, cheerful, relaxed. The conversation light and friendly.

A pleasant blond-haired woman greeted her guests, urging them to take more of the piping hot food neatly arranged before her. The savory aroma of that food filled the room and drifted out into the hallways.

The scene is repeated every day at Commerce Township Hall, the newest site for the senior citizen nutrition program administered by the Oakland Livingston Human Service Agency.

Menus are changed daily presenting the seniors and their guests with roast chicken or meatballs, chili, boiled dinners, fresh fruit, a myriad of taste-tempting foods.

Providing at least one-third of the minimum daily nutritional requirements of adults, the food is high in eye appeal and is a far cry from what might be thought by some to be "institutional food."

Portions are surprisingly large. Chili brims with meat with nary a hint of fat, there are crisp tossed salads and other greens, a roll or bread, fresh or canned fruit, dessert, juice and milk.

Not designed to touch only those seniors on limited low-incomes, the nutrition program funded through Title VII of the Older Americans Act is intended to be a major service to all the elders of the community.

At the site last week was Mary Chranowski of Wolverine Lake Village. A relative newcomer to the area, she said she thoroughly enjoyed being with people adding, "Everything tastes so much better away from home. The food is delicious, it tastes homemade."

Laughing happily, Helen Wojcik, also of the Village said of the lunches, "They're hot, they taste good — you know, they could easily become habit forming."

The daily lunches afford the opportunity for companionship and such supportive programs as recreation, health counseling, transportation and educational programs. "Not only can people come here for lunch they can find a social situation," said Marg Selby, a member of St. Williams Seniors group.

"Maybe there's someone that has no friends or close relatives, they could be alone and starved for attention," she added. "This is a convenient place to come and perhaps find something they are missing."

OLHSA's main concern is with these people and the impact of their support programs surrounding the noon meal. It is an alternative to institutionalization. OLHSA reports that seniors, isolated due to the death of a spouse or other reasons, have found new energy and a zest for living once involved in the program.

The ladies, all seated together at a table, looked around at the vacant places at other tables. Discussing the program they agreed there were many in the area who were not aware of the OLHSA offering. Mrs. Wojcik commented it would take a little time for the activity to become known in the area. "I know so many people right in this area who could come," she said enthusiastically.

Mary Beaumont, another Wolverine Lake Village resident said she was beginning to think she was living in a frying pan. Complimenting the food she rated it "nourishing and tasty."

Township employees and visitors are welcome to participate in the lunch program but only after all the seniors have been served. Cost to those under 60 is $1.25. For those over 60 all that is required is a donation.

Site hostess Rose Marie Lenzion said over 80 people were served on opening day at the nutrition site with numbers now averaging about 35. As soon as the Commerce Community Center is completed, the seniors will be relocated and offered all supportive programs.

"The best thing about this program," said Ed Oldenkamp, a member of the Commerce Township Planning Commission, "is that it is so relaxing. And just think, I don't have to do the dishes."

Lillian Byrd, Ruth Wodolan, Lottie Chambers, and Alma Wagner find plenty of good eating at nutrition site

Active, involved young men

Novi Jaycees seek new members

Are you a young man between the ages of 18 and 35 interested in becoming a member of a dynamic community-oriented organization?

If the answer to that question is "yes," the Novi Jaycees have just the answer — the Novi Jaycees.

The Novi Jaycees are currently in the midst of a big drive for new members and have slated a special M-Night (membership night) presentation for Thursday, March 16, at 8 p.m.

The M-Night will be held in the Novi 26 Apartments clubhouse on Ten Mile, just east of the C & O railroad tracks. The meeting will last no more than two hours and will feature a film which explains what the Jaycees are all about. Refreshments will also be provided.

The Jaycees are an international organization which emphasizes personal development through community service. Part of the concept is to permit young men (18-35) to fill the leadership rolls usually held by more experienced men in organizations which have no age limit.

Community service is the second part of the formula. The Novi Jaycees are actively involved in community service of all types. In addition to such projects as sponsorship of Gala Days and the Haunted House, they also raise money through such projects as Jelly Week and Hockey for Burns as well as many other worthwhile projects.

All the money raised by the Jaycees is channeled back into the community in one form or another whether it be purchase of equipment for the schools or police department or helping out the little league baseball program.

In addition to personal development and community service, the Jaycees offer other valuable contributions, not the least of which is the social aspect.

A newcomer to the community can quickly make friends with other active young members of the community. Emphasis is also placed on family interaction.

The Jaycees are directly affiliated with a sister organization — the Jaycee Auxiliary — which provides the same benefits to young women between the ages of 18 and 35.

Individuals interested in learning more about this organization should contact either Leon Narozny at 349-8639 or Randy Meyer, president of the Jaycees, at 349-5269.

Anyone interested in attending the M-Night presentation may contact Narozny, Meyer, or any other member of the organization.

By the Way

with Nancy Dingledy

Would you believe spring is really on its way. The first sunny, "warm" days are proof enough of that, coupled with the daylight hours that come earlier and stay longer. That is pleasure enough.

The melting snows puddling in some of the enormous chuckholes that developed over the long hard winter, the sight of Canada Geese honking their way northward and the emerging of the first skunk cabbage at the Outdoor Center are even further evidence of the stirrings of nature.

From Novi to Commerce activities are gearing up, almost like spring, with events suited to everyone.

The Walled Lake school kids art festival at the Twelve Oaks Mall over the weekend was certainly a pleasure to view.

And while looking and listening to the school activities, one could hardly miss seeing all the hats that are now being shown in the shops. It's as if the Easter parade was coming back in full force.

Hats have been so passe for so long they will, no doubt, make a smashing return.

While on the subject of clothing, the Fourth Wednesday fashion shows at Twelve Oaks have very catchy titles attached. The March edition is called "Clothes Encounters of the Third Kind."

Let's see some hats! Now, if they'd just do something clever with the shoes.

What can we say, other than super, to describe Walled Lake Western's musical production of "The Boyfriend" which ended its three day staging Saturday night.

The enthusiasm shown by the high school students was a sight to behold, the staging was great and the music terrific, even though the tunes were not too familiar.

To the entire crew, the director Donna Schaefer, the musical director Helmut Holland-Moritz and all those other hands who pulled off another great production, one last round of applause.

It will be election day and spaghetti supper Saturday in Novi as the Novi Lions host another all-you-can-eat dinner. Although the two events were not tied together, selling point of the dinner is "go to the polls and have dinner with us."

It is a good idea and, as a matter of fact, I rather like the notion of holding Saturday elections. Northville is another community which holds elections on Saturday. Turn-out at the polls is usually up considerably over the normal weekday count.

Twenty-two German students arrived in Walled Lake today and will be the guests of host families during their three-week stay in the area. While here, the students will attend Central High School and follow the schedule of their host student.

All from Garbsen Gymnasium (high school) located near Hanover, Germany, the students' stay will include field trips to many Detroit points of interest as well as Toronto and Niagara Falls.

Accompanying the students from Germany are Mr. and Mrs. Hans Meier and their son. The students and the Meier's will have a reunion with Eric Limes who is spending the school year at Central. He and his wife will be returning to Garbsen later this summer.

An equal number of Central students head west today to the campus of MSU and a five-day model United Nations conference in Lansing.

Since the beginning of the school year, the students, all members of the United Nations Club, have raised over $1,100 for expenses for their stay.

Certainly well informed and up-to-date on matters of world interest, Central students will mingle with some 250 others in debating the issues now before the world body.

The resolutions that are passed by the young people are actually compiled and forwarded to the United States mission at the UN for their information.

If the opportunity presents itself, do try to spend a Friday or Saturday night at Venice-of-the-Woods and take in the Theatre of the Arts Cocktail Playhouse presentation of "Guys and Dolls."

The actors and actresses greet customers, visit individual tables and then put on a superb musical production. That coupled with fine service and equally fine food make the evening a delight.

Wixom Girl Scouts Chantel Page and Melissa Schenck help Troop 7 cookie cupboard customer Louis Schlosser

Here's some recipe ideas

Got loads of Girl Scout cookies?

It's the once-a-year delivery time of such delicacies as the Peanut Butter Rollie and the Chocolate Thin Mint. The Shortbread cookie and the Snowdrop. It's Girl Scout cookie time.

Through a little ingenuity, those yummy cookies can be made into family desserts that are extra-special, eye-catching and certainly calorie-busting. Eager mothers may want to try the following recipes before the cookie morsels suddenly disappear from their colorful boxes.

Minted Brownie Pie
 1/2 Girl Scout Chocolate Mint cookies
 3 egg whites
 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
 dash of salt
 1/2 cup chopped nuts
 1/2 cup sugar
 1/2 to 1 cup sweetened whipped cream
 1/2 cup unsweetened chocolate

Chill cookies slightly. Break, cut or roll between foils of waxed paper to even crumbs. Beat egg whites and salt together until soft peaks form. Beat in vanilla. Fold in crumbs and chopped nuts. Spread evenly in buttered 9 inch pie pan. Bake in 350 degree oven for 35 minutes. Cut in wedges after chilling 3 to 4 hours and serve with whipped cream. If preferred, the whipped cream can be evenly spread over the top of the pie. Garnish with shaved unsweetened chocolate.

The difference between Mocha Roll and Chocolate Cream Ice Box Cake lies in the addition of instant coffee to the recipe. Either is a sure winner at the dinner table or the bridge luncheon.

Chocolate Cream Ice Box Cake
 1 cup heavy cream
 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
 dash of salt
 1/2 cup instant sweet cocoa or 1/4 cup

Whip cream. Mix with cocoa mix, sugar, salt and vanilla until thick. Spread on each cookie and stack. Place on platter. Frost outside with remaining chocolate cream. Refrigerate eight hours or overnight. Cut in diagonal slices one inch thick to serve.

For Mocha Roll, add 1/2 teaspoon instant coffee to recipe. Serve with chocolate sauce.

Strawberry Ice Box Pie
 1 cup sweetened condensed milk
 1/4 cup drained sweetened strawberries
 30 Girl Scout Shortbread cookies
 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
 1/4 cup lemon juice
 1 cup whipped cream

Reserve enough whole cookies to put around edge of pie pan. Crush the rest and sprinkle evenly over bottom of pie pan. Add lemon juice gradually to condensed milk until thickened. Add strawberries. Pour mixture into pie pan. Whip cream, add sugar and vanilla. Spread over pie filling and refrigerate until thoroughly chilled. Any fruit may be used in this recipe.

If the cookie monsters have already "done in" your supply of cookies, many Girl Scout troops will be selling additional boxes at cookie cupboards throughout the area for the next several weeks.

The annual sale of Girl Scout cookies not only teaches girls responsibility but enables them to raise funds for their individual troops. The major portion of cookie profits gained by county Girl Scout councils enables them to give direct services to all troops as well as allowing the purchase of equipment and property.

Central students honored for prowess in mathematics

Two outstanding Walled Lake Central students were honored for academic achievements in ceremonies at Eastern Michigan University recently.

Jim Owens and Tom Ogar received awards for their performance in the 21st Annual Michigan Mathematics Prize Competition. Owens, a sophomore, received a $150 scholarship to the Michigan college of his choice. Owens and Ogar were among the 110 winners in the Michigan Mathematics Prize Competition. More than 23,000 students throughout the state participated in the competition.

The Central teacher who serves as sponsor of the local students who participate in the state-wide test, said that he was extremely pleased with the showing of Owens and Ogar, in particular, and Central students in general.

"It's a tremendous accomplishment to do as well as those two did," commented Aechlimann. "It's an extremely demanding test and I think it reflects well on the quality of education at Central that we had two of the top 110 math students in the state."

The competition involves a two-part test. The vast majority of students are eliminated from further competition after the first half of the test which has 40 multiple choice questions.

Aechlimann noted that it's an honor just to be eligible to take the second part of the test.

In addition to Owens and Ogar, six other Central students qualified for the second part of the competition.

They were Mark Lissolo, Dan LeMaster, Bob Greenberg, Brian Norris, Peter Cooper, and Brad Clancy.

Owens is only a sophomore. He said that he still has two more years in which to make career plans, but that he will select a math-related field.

Ogar is a senior who plans to attend the University of Michigan in the fall, majoring in pre-medicine.

Glenn Ruggles to address Wixom Historical Society

Members of the Wixom Historical Society will view the award-winning film entitled "The River's the Same" at their next meeting on Monday, March 20.

The film depicts the hardy spirit of the early settlers in Northern Michigan, looks at the remaining natural beauty of the area, and recalls the bygone logging era.

Focusing on the historic region surrounding Elk Rapids, the film deals with the recollections of an old man who returns to the area after living in the big city. Flashbacks of the logging era and the growth of the iron ore industry lead the old man to conclude that only the river is the same.

Produced by two local history buffs—Glenn Ruggles and Bob Hurnitz—the color film is a folk history of a bygone era. A haunting folk melody sung by Bob Posch provides background music.

The film, partially funded through a grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts, received the 1976 Award of Merit from the Historical Society of Michigan.

Ruggles, a social studies teacher at Walled Lake Central and a Union Lake resident, spent 12 years in the Grand Traverse area gathering information.

His research has also led to the publication of a book entitled "Something from Nothing." Both the film and the book suggest the possibilities for similar development of local history.

Currently, Ruggles is working on a second film, "From These Stones," which spotlights the folk history of a small corner of Southwest Oakland County. Using the old St. Patrick's Church in Union Lake as a starting point, the film will include some recollections of Wixom's past.

Diabetic children can enjoy Easter candy, too

At least as far as most youngsters are concerned, Easter is the time the Easter bunny arrives. Wide-eyed youngsters jump out of bed bright and early Easter morning and set off in search of brightly-colored Easter baskets laden with chocolate rabbits, jelly beans, and brightly-colored eggs.

commented Mrs. Kelly. "For people who want to buy better baskets with better candy, we think we've got just about the best available. We've recently gone into a whole new line of candy with over 70 varieties."

MERB committee favored original freeway proposal

By DAVID RAY

The Michigan Environmental Review Board (MERB) committee that has been asked to study the two major alternatives to the cancelled M-275 freeway was prepared in September, 1976 to recommend that the full 17-member board should find the draft environmental impact statement (EIS) on the controversial freeway project to be adequate and support the preferred freeway alignment, subject to mitigation of several items.

That report, however, was never made because the Michigan State Highway Commission voted to scrap M-275 on January 25, 1977, five days before the MERB was scheduled to receive the committee's recommendations.

Two members of the Highway Commission — Chairman Peter B. Fletcher and Weston E. Vivian — told The News Monday that they were unaware of the committee's report when they and Commissioner Hannes Meyers Jr. voted for cancellation of the 24-mile, six-lane freeway that would have connected I-96 in Novi to I-75 near Holly through western Oakland County.

Commission members in late 1976 said they would wait for the MERB's recommendation before taking action on the freeway plans, but Vivian said Monday that the commission "decided for its own reasons to cancel M-275 and that made the MERB report irrelevant."

G. Robert Adams, administrator of the Highway Department's Environmental and Community Factors Division and the department's alternate representative to the MERB, said he and Highway Department Director

John P. Woodford knew the contents of the committee's report, but added that he doubted any Highway Commission members were aware of the document.

THE WALLED LAKE NEWS

COMBINED WITH THE NOVI NEWS TO SERVE THE COMMUNITIES OF NOVI, WALLED LAKE, WIXOM, WOLVERINE VILLAGE AND COMMERCE TOWNSHIP

Vol. 1, No. 37, Four Sections, 36 Pages Wednesday, March 22, 1978 - Walled Lake, Michigan TWENTY-FIVE CENTS

Walled Lake voters okay school millage

An alarmingly small turnout of voters approved the request of the Walled Lake School District for renewal of 10 mills for operations in yesterday's special election.

Only 2,141 of the district's 23,000 registered voters showed up at the polls to cast their ballots on the millage proposal — a sparse turnout of just a little more than nine percent.

But those voters who did cast ballots overwhelmingly supported the district's request for renewal of the 10 mills for 10 years. The final unofficial tally showed the millage being approved by a 1,353 to 788 margin.

Camelot, disco appeals adjourned until April

Show cause and appeal hearings on Michigan Liquor Control Commission (LCC) orders to revoke the Class C license for the Camelot Inn and not grant three additional bar permits for Shadow Fox disco have been adjourned at the request of bar owner Ben Bundo's attorney, Paul Valentino.

The hearings had been set for tomorrow (March 23) in the LCC's Lincoln Park office, according to Walker B. Keck, supervisor of the state agency's Hearings and Appeals Section, but probably will be rescheduled for sometime next month.

Liquor Control Commissioner Thomas A. Van Tiem recently found Bundo to be in violation of new agency rules that prohibit bottomless dancing in establishments with Class C licenses and has ordered the revocation of the permit for the Camelot Inn, in addition to fitting the owners a total of $300 for three separate violations reported by Walled Lake Police Chief Wilford Hook last November.

Bundo is appealing Van Tiem's order, which was supposed to take effect March 20, although the appeal process automatically delays implementation of the order, an LCC spokesman said.

If the LCC upholds Van Tiem's order, Bundo may appeal in Oakland County Circuit Court.

The LCC in January denied Bundo's request for the additional bar permits because the controversial saloon owner failed to comply with Walled Lake building, zoning and fire requirements when he converted the former Maple Lanes into the Shadow Fox last December.

Commission members also ordered cancellation of existing permits for after-hours sale of food and bowling and another for the sale, service and consumption of alcoholic beverages on the former bowling establishment concourse "inasmuch as the licensees have discontinued the sale of food and bowling and concourse service and are no longer qualified for same."

Bundo was asked to return the concourse permits, but, instead, requested one bowling lane March 6 and said the facility would enable him to continue operation under previous approvals.

Also on March 6, the LCC amended its order to provide the show cause and appeal hearings.

In the meantime, however, Hook had issued a violation to Bundo for disobeying the commission's order to return the concourse and after-hours permits.

Hook informed the bar owner on February 15 that he was in violation of the LCC rules by failing to return the permits. When Bundo had not removed the licenses by February 25, the police chief said he sent the new violation report to the state agency.

City officials also have charged Bundo with opening and operating the Shadow Fox without obtaining a certificate of occupancy.

Bundo has asked for a jury trial on the charges in 52nd District Court and the city is now awaiting a trial date, according to City Attorney Paul Bibeau.
