

Novi rejects plans, Bob Evans to file suit

By KATHY JENNINGS

"The lawsuit will be nice and friendly," Attorney Norman Hyman said as he put his papers in his briefcase. "And tell 'em what color the building will be, Norman." The comment was Bob Evans Restaurant representative Steve Warehime's parting shot as he and the attorney retained by the restaurant chain left a Saturday morning meeting of the Novi City Council. Council members had just refused to reconsider the site plan for a Bob Evans restaurant. After looking for a second time at a proposed plan for the restaurant which called for a standard Bob Evans roof line with red brick on the lower half of the building, council members chose not to reconsider the site plan which was originally denied on January 11 on the grounds the building would hinder "harmonious land uses" in the area west of Novi Road across from Twelve Oaks Mall.

Before reaching their decision Saturday the council listened as Hyman explained the company's position regarding the architecture of the proposed restaurant. Facing the threat of a lawsuit, the council had agreed to hear appeals from Bob Evans to determine whether the matter could be settled out of court. "This is a special problem; other businesses don't have the problem of maintaining a logo," Hyman said. "Bob Evans is prepared to do some things architecturally that are a departure from the way they normally build their buildings. But it will be consistent with the logo — the public has to know this is a Bob Evans building. The company is prepared to go part way, a second element where we are willing to move in on the landscaping. We are very flexible in that area." "This is an attempt to resolve this in good faith," Hyman continued. "This plan represents substantial movement from what Bob Evans normally does, and what they wanted to do here. The fact is we've moved and you haven't." "If this provides a basis for discussion, we'd like to know where we go from here," Hyman said. Mayor Robert Schmid asked whether the chain had considered other locations in Novi for the restaurant. "As in any community, there are only so many Bob Evans locations in Novi. Denny's is sitting on the other one," Warehime responded. Warehime passed around pictures of the type of brick to be used and said the brick on the bottom half of the building would be "typical colonial type brick." Council members also were shown pictures of a shopping mall in Niles, Ohio — the second largest shopping mall in that state — where Warehime said a Bob Evans restaurant now sits in front of the mall. "That was the first restaurant we built with that mall developer. Our

Trustee reveals plans to resign

In a surprise move, Trustee Ruth Waldenmayer has announced she intends to resign from the Novi School Board, opening a one-year seat on the board to be filled in the June 14 election.

Trustee Robert Schram, whose four-year term also expires in June, has announced plans to seek re-election.

Waldenmayer will have served on the school board for six years in June. Her resignation comes with one year remaining in her term.

"This was not precipitated by any one incident; it's a decision I've been thinking about for a year," Waldenmayer said. "I enjoyed working with the board, they're a dedicated group, so are the staff and the administration. It's been a very rewarding experience that I don't look forward to giving up."

Board President Joel Colliau said announcement of Waldenmayer's resignation was timed to give the public an opportunity to fill the seat with an elected representative.

"This way the voters can decide who they want to serve, rather than filling the seat with a board appointment for a full year," Colliau said.

He said the board was concerned that the announcement be made so interested candidates would be aware of the opening on the board.

Waldenmayer is expected to resign at Thursday's board meeting and be appointed to continue in her position until the candidate elected takes office at the organizational meeting following the June 14 election.

Waldenmayer announced last week that she is resigning for "personal reasons." Waldenmayer said time constraints have brought about the decision to give up her seat on the board.

"I'm the kind of person who can't give just a part of my time to something," Waldenmayer said. "I no longer feel I have time to dedicate to the board that it requires. I think there are people out there who do have time. I encourage them to run, because it's going to be an exciting year with contracts and a millage election. It will be a hard year, but a good one."

Waldenmayer was elected to the school board in 1976 and has been a board officer for four of the six years she has served. She was board president in 1978, vice president in 1977, secretary in 1979 and treasurer in 1980.

Those interested in running for the school board must be registered voters in the school district. The last day of voter registration is May 17.

Signatures of 20 persons are needed to have one's name placed on the ballot. Filing deadline for nominating petitions is April 12. Petitions are available at the school board offices at 25575 Taft Road.

Schram has taken out petitions for re-election to a four-year term. Prospective candidates may file for either the four-year or one-year terms.

Piwko gets praise in board evaluation

Novi School Superintendent Robert Piwko received an exemplary evaluation in his second performance review by members of the school board.

Highlights of the evaluation as outlined by Board President Joel Colliau are that board members agree Piwko:

- follows up on board member inquiries;

- has properly outlined roles and responsibilities of staff members;

- has demonstrated an intent to improve the instructional program of the school district;

- has shown the ability to lead and shoulder responsibility; and,

- has an appropriate personal appearance.

School board members rated the superintendent on their perceptions of his performance in 53 areas relating to his job.

Piwko received either a "good" rating or an "excellent-outstanding" rating in 47 of the areas evaluated by the board.

The superintendent did not receive any ratings below "acceptable."

Board members praised Piwko's performance at a public session last Thursday.

Trustee Robert Schram complimented the superintendent for his "involvement in the schools," commenting on Piwko's habit of visiting the schools and even sitting on the floor with the students in some cases.

"I've been pleased with the goals that have been set," said Trustee Sharon Pelchat. "They're not just reams of paper with flower words. They have been carried through, and I appreciate seeing the results."

However, Pelchat added that in some open board meetings it appears as if Piwko "gets testy when criticized." At times it "seems like you take it personally; and you shouldn't," Pelchat said.

Trustee Joan Daley told Piwko she believes he has "done an excellent job" on the instructional program in the schools.

Piwko's "approach to problem solving and handling the position is very good," said Trustee Ron Milam.

"Going back to last year's evaluation and the concerns we had over a variety of subjects, I felt you answered those questions and opened our eyes to what you were trying to get done in the district," Milam continued. "I think we saw you in a different light. I think you've shown you have the district's interests at heart in the way you've portrayed yourself."

Trustee Ruth Waldenmayer noted in her evaluation that there appears to be less of a "team approach" to management than has been seen in the district previously.

"The team approach doesn't seem to be there and that upset me, but then I attended the meeting at Novi Woods and saw your rapport with the teachers. It was obvious you had worked with them. I really can't fault your different management style — it seems to be working," Waldenmayer said.

Trustee Ron Milam said he approved of Piwko's management style. "As I see

What's good for the goose

From the air it might look like a lake especially suited to a goose or a gander, but it is really something of a mirage — more of a giant puddle than a pristine lake. Thawing snow and wet weather have turned what normally is a corn field on the west side of Beck Road into a gathering spot for the geese, who do not seem to mind that the "lake" is not what it appears to be. (News photo by Steve Fecht)

Legal action slows foster home

By KATHY JENNINGS

The licensing procedure for an adult foster care home for six developmentally disabled and emotionally disturbed adults is between 50 and 75 percent complete, but directors of the proposed home are moving ahead "tentatively" as a result of threatened legal action by the City of Novi.

"The application is moving through the Department of Social Services and the co-directors are completing the documentation needed," said Roderick Krupka, of Clinton Valley community placement department. The "contract package" which details the budget for the home and staffing plans, requiring approval by the Department of Mental Health, is approximately 50 percent complete, Krupka said.

"All this could be completed within a week or two, but we're not going at this as forcefully as we might if we didn't know the city anticipates court action," Krupka said. "We might be pushing this ahead a little more. As it is, we're nibbling away at the things that have to be done."

City Attorney David Fried confirmed the city now plans to seek a court order which, if granted, would prohibit the licensing of the adult foster care home.

The city learned last week that an administrative complaint filed with the Council members authorized the city attorney to seek a restraining order because of concerns that a license would be issued to the home before the city had a chance to appeal the denial of its complaint.

The denied complaint filed with John T. Dempsey, director of the Michigan Department of Social Services, objected to the licensing of an adult foster care group home proposed at 41388 Llewellyn in the Meadowbrook Manor subdivision. Proposed residents of the home currently reside in Clinton Valley.

Objection were made on the grounds that:

- there is an existing foster care facility within 1,500 feet of the proposed home and to license another home would result in an over-concentration of facilities within the city; and,

- mentally ill persons would be placed in the home and the state does not

Gravel company tells reclamation plan

Hoping to obtain mining rights on a 450-acre parcel in western Novi, the Lyon Sand and Gravel Company last week presented reclamation plans which propose development of a 580-lot subdivision on half-acre lots.

The proposed development, to be known as Novi Lake Estates, is located north of Ten Mile between Napier and Wixom roads.

The reclamation proposal was presented to the Novi Planning Board last week because Lyon Sand and Gravel is attempting to obtain permits to mine the property. A section of the 450-acre parcel in what was formerly Novi Township is already being mined, but the company needs to obtain permits from the city before the operation can be extended throughout the majority of the parcel.

The problem lies in the fact that the property is presently zoned for residential usage and city ordinances prohibit mining operations in residential areas.

City Planning Consultant Charles Cairns noted that Lyon Sand and Gravel could apply to have the property rezoned to an industrial designation, where mining operations are permitted, but that he would recommend denial of the rezoning request on the basis that it is contrary to the city's master plan which calls for residential development in the southwest quadrant of the city.

Cairns added, however, that the city is currently rewriting its zoning ordinances and suggested that provisions be made which would permit the mining operation to exist.

"You have to permit these uses to go where the product is located," he said.

Cairns said his proposed solution would be to rewrite the zoning ordinance in such a way that mining operations would be permitted in certain residential areas, provided that proper safeguards are inserted to protect the city.

"We want to make sure that you end up with what you want," Cairns told the planners.

James Thornley of the Lyon Sand and Gravel Company told the planners last week that mining operations are essential to the construction industry.

Although mining companies are not bound by state laws to reclaim the property, Thornley noted that Novi ordinances require that property used in mining operations be reclaimed.

Additionally, Thornley said that Lyon Sand and Gravel "has no intention of walking away from the property after mining operations have been completed."

"We have 450 acres tied up in that site and there's no way we're going to walk away from it," he said. "We have too much money invested in that land."

Thornley also said Lyon Sand and Gravel has retained a Jackson-based firm of planning consultants to develop a reclamation plan for the property.

That plan calls for development of 580 half-acre lots — 133 of them with frontage on the lake that will be created by the mining operation.

The Emerald Lakes Estates subdivision in Troy is an example of one of Lyon Sand and Gravel's reclamation projects, Thornley said.

Plans for development of the proposed subdivision depend heavily on economic conditions, however. Thornley said the mining operation would be completed within approx-

Novi seeks reduction in Detroit water rates

Novi officials hope to know in three weeks whether the Detroit Water Board will approve reductions in water rates proposed by the city's engineering consultants.

Water rates in Novi currently are expected to jump 82 percent in July. But Novi's engineering consultants have submitted information to the water board that city officials hope will convince Detroit that water rates should be $8.22 per 1,000 cubic feet instead of $10.13 per 1,000 cubic feet — the rate approved earlier this month by the Detroit City Council.

Detroit officials have already acknowledged a minor discrepancy in the calculations which could drop rates from $10.13 per 1,000 cubic feet to $9.50 per 1,000 cubic feet, according to City Engineer Edward Jacobs.

In the most recent correspondence with the Detroit Water and Sewerage Department, Jacobs states: "We feel the manner in which Novi's projected

Police hold suspect after shooting threat

A Walled Lake man who allegedly threatened to kill himself and an employee at the Walled Lake Department of Social Services office March 17 because he was not eligible for welfare was taken into custody by Detroit police March 22 in a shooting incident. The 24-year-old man was taken to Detroit Receiving Hospital and underwent psychiatric testing after holding officers at bay for 45 minutes while barricaded inside his mother's northwest Detroit home, according to a Detroit Police Department spokesman. Neither Detroit nor Walled Lake police released the name of the man, who did not injure anyone while barricaded in his mother's home in the Herman Gardens housing project off Joy Road. The man reportedly lived with his father near the Walled Lake DSS building, Walled Lake police said. The man had allegedly threatened to "kill someone" at the DSS office March 17 in letters to State Representative Richard Fessler and U.S. Representative William Broomfield, according to Walled Lake police. Walled Lake officers said the man first wrote to Fessler asking for help in obtaining economic assistance through the DSS. When he again applied for welfare and was turned down, he wrote a second letter to Broomfield, threatening to "kill someone" at the DSS office and himself. March 17 if he did not receive financial aid, police said. With a warrant for the man's arrest, Walled Lake police stalked out the DSS office March 17 waiting for the man to arrive at the building. A warrant ordering the man to undergo a psychiatric examination had been issued by Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson's office prior to the stake-out, police said. Although the man evidently did not go to the DSS building March 17, he reportedly telephoned the Walled Lake police station Thursday and Friday. He refused to go to the station for questioning, police said, and reportedly went into hiding. Walled Lake police were not able to serve the warrant on the man before it expired March 21, officers said. However, on March 22, Walled Lake police received a call from Millford officers, who had obtained information from the man's mother that her son was barricaded in the home with a gun.

Commerce seeks input on group home project

A quiet crowd of 15 Commerce Township residents voiced cautious support for what Township Supervisor Robert Long called "a job that needs doing" Monday night, encouraging Commerce's foster care study committee to continue its efforts to set up township-run foster care group homes. Seeking input from residents on whether they would like to see Commerce Township establish and run foster care group homes as part of the state's community placement program, members of Commerce's foster care study committee and township officials hosted an informational meeting at Richardson Center Monday. Despite the low turnout, Township Treasurer Patrick Dohany said he was pleased with results of the gathering, the first between residents and the committee. "They didn't come up with much we hadn't already thought of," Dohany said, "but they offered some good comments." Residents, who cautiously questioned Dohany — a member of the committee on legalities and procedures at the homes, voiced tentative support for the pilot program, which has "intrigued" state officials, according to the treasurer. The three-member committee — which also includes Oakland County Commissioner G. William Caddell and resident Ann Dudley — will now put together a proposal for project guidelines to take to state officials. Long urged residents to get behind the program as individuals and as members of organizations in order to "set an example for the entire state." The supervisor pointed to Commerce's history as being the first township to contract with Oakland County Sheriff's Department for police service, for quickly paving its roads,

'If people in Commerce will get behind this, I think there's a real chance to show what can be done. I think every person will be better off for it.' — Robert Long, Commerce supervisor

Wixom welcomes Turkish center

Wixom is beginning to acquire something of a reputation as an international center. For years, the Finnish Association has operated its Finn Camp on the shores of Wixom's Loon Lake. And now Wixom has become the home of the Turkish American Cultural Association of Michigan (TACAM). City officials attended grand opening ceremonies of the association's Cultural Center Building on Beck Road Sunday. And Mayor Lillian Spencer last week proclaimed May 19 as Ataturk Day in Wixom in honor of the 100th anniversary of the birth of Mustafa Kemal Ataturk, the founder of modern Turkey. Specifically, Spencer's proclamation noted that modern history credits Ataturk with transforming the dynamic Ottoman Empire into the Republic of Turkey, and with sponsoring a dynamic program of economic growth and modernization. The proclamation also states that Ataturk was devoted to the service of domestic and international peace, and advocated equal rights for women, social justice, and the recognition of human dignity. And, further, that many United States leaders have paid tribute to the stature of Ataturk as a world statesman and inspiring leader, committed to friendship with the United States. UNESCO has proclaimed 1982 as Ataturk Year. M. Kemal Goknar, president of TACAM, said Sunday that the opening of the Turkish-American Cultural Center in Wixom was an important day in the life of his organization. "Turkish Americans, several dressed in traditional Turkish garb, came from throughout the state to attend the grand opening ceremonies. Refreshments included such traditional Turkish dishes as baklava, revani, corek and kurabiye. Goknar said there are approximately 250 to 300 Turkish families in Michigan and the group tends to be highly educated. Approximately 25 percent of Michigan's Turkish Americans are physicians, another 25 percent are engineers and another 25 percent are in the fields of business or education. TACAM was founded in 1972 to foster, promote, plan and execute programs, aimed at improving social, economic, educational, cultural and religious activities of the Turkish communities. The new cultural center is located on a six-acre parcel on Beck Road formerly occupied by the Christ the Master Lutheran Church. Goknar said one of TACAM's goals is to preserve the Turkish culture, but even more important goal is to establish a harmonious relationship between the Turkish and American peoples. "Turkey is located in a critical position in the Mediterranean," he said, "is critical to the Russians and critical to the United States. "Ataturk developed harmonious relations between Turkey and the United States and we want to do whatever we can to assure that those harmonious relationships continue."

Library staff to unveil plans

Donna Rickabaugh has her notes in order for the big night. Tomorrow, with luck, everything will begin falling in place for the proposed expansion of the Walled Lake Library, according to Rickabaugh, the city librarian. "I'm so excited," Rickabaugh said. "I hope it all happens, all goes through." After Thursday, Rickabaugh should at least have a good idea of where the library expansion is headed. A special city council meeting has been called for 7:30 p.m., and at that time council members will meet with library representatives and the building authority that oversees lease arrangements between the city and the library. Architect Larry Galyon, who has prepared plans for the library addition as well as blueprints for renovation of city hall, is expected to be present to help explain the timetable and drawings. The lease agreement between the city, library and building authority has been informally okayed and will go up for final council approval Thursday — the first step to moving ahead with the library expansion. The expansion would enlarge the library's floor space from 1,890 square feet to about 5,430 square feet and would include a meeting or multi-purpose room. While plans for the renovation of city hall have not yet been approved, work on the building could be done concurrently with the library expansion, tentatively slated to begin later this spring or early this summer. The lease allowing 52nd District Court to use facilities at Walled Lake City Hall expires at the end of April.

Public tells views on waste plan

In a 2½-hour hearing March 23, lawyers, township and city officials, environmental consultants, professionals and just plain old residents gave their opinions on Oakland County's solid waste plan to the county's solid waste planning committee. Some of the speakers supported the waste plan but more often than not, the person at the microphone either wanted something added to the plan or was critical of one portion of the plan. And the members of the Oakland County Solid Waste Planning Committee (OCSWPC) just sat back and listened to them all. Although the public hearing is compulsory, county residents may still submit their written comments on the plan to the OCSWPC for a period of 30 days following the hearing. The deadline for those comments is April 22. The OCSWPC is slated to consider the verbal and written comments, make the appropriate changes and vote on the plan at a May 10 meeting in Pontiac. Once the OCSWPC's okay is secured, the waste plan needs the approval of the county board of commissioners and at least two-thirds of the municipalities in the county before going to the DNR, probably in July. At it currently stands, the county waste plan will dispose of Oakland's non-hazardous solid waste for the next 20 years through a combination of landfills and resource recovery stations. At the public hearing, the Weber landfill site in Orion Township and the SOCLA landfill in Avon Township were both criticized by the respective local residents and township officials. SOCLA is an acronym for the Southeastern Oakland County Incinerator Authority, an organization of several Oakland communities which operates its own waste disposal system. George Schutte, supervisor of the county's solid waste unit, also reported on three changes in the waste plan since it was released for public inspection in December. The new items include the addition of an eight-acre landfill in Avon Township, the addition of a modular combustion unit (MCU) in Farmington Hills and the incorporation of a tire-combusting facility in Pontiac. Schutte said the Farmington Hills MCU was added at the request of that city's officials. The unit would incinerate waste, using it to produce energy. Similarly, the tire-combusting unit would burn the tires and extract carbon black and soil, added Schutte. In addition to the latest revisions, the county waste plan incorporates nine landfills, two transfer stations and three incinerator units, which would burn the waste to produce steam and energy. About 40 percent of the waste would be incinerated while the remaining 60 percent and the incinerator ash would be landfilled. The county waste plan is mandated by the Michigan Solid Waste Management Act (641) of 1978. That act requires all counties in the state to enact a countywide or regional waste disposal program by July 11.

Ross backs drunk driving bills

A legislative package aimed at getting drunk drivers off Michigan roads will be introduced to the state Senate soon by Michigan Senator Doug Ross (D-Southfield). The legislative proposal, Ross said, would "contain the stiffest drunk driving penalties in America and would close the numerous loopholes that riddle Michigan's system for getting people who drink and drive off our highways." The package of bills Ross will introduce this week with Senators Stephen Monsma (D-Grand Rapids) and William Sederburg (R-Lansing) focuses on three areas: police enforcement of drunk driving laws, stricter prosecution and stiff penalties for those convicted. "Frankly, our system for apprehending drunk drivers, prosecuting them successfully, and then providing effective penalties simply isn't working," Ross charged. "Unless you deal with all aspects of the system for getting people who drink off our roads at the same time, nothing will reduce the carnage on our highways." According to Ross, six out of 10 fatal accidents in Michigan are alcohol-related. In order to combat drunk driving, Ross wants to establish roadside check points during peak hours of driving and drinking in order to apprehend drunk drivers before they are involved in accidents. The package of bills would encourage police officers to perform roadside breathalyzer tests and would offer a more concise definition of what constitutes drunk driving, Ross said. Additionally, the legislation would prohibit a judge from suspending or deferring sentences in drunk driving cases. "This will ensure that a driver convicted of drunk driving receives some punishment," Ross said. Furthermore, the legislation would require a judge or prosecutor to make lessening a charge or plea bargaining part of the public record, Ross said. The legislation would establish stringent minimum penalties for drunk driving convictions, Ross said, calling the proposed penalties the nation's toughest. In the bills, Ross proposes a minimum penalty of $375 fine, six month loss of license and two days in jail for the first offense of drunk driving. Maximum penalty for a first offender would be $1,000 fine, two years loss of license and 90 days in jail, Ross said. Current statutes call for first offenders convicted of drunk driving to receive up to 90 days in jail and a $100 to $500 fine with no loss of license, Ross said. For first offenders convicted of im-

Novi to continue industrial rezoning discussion

A compromise for dealing with the problems of property owners on Grand River whose land is being considered for rezoning from heavy to light industrial use will soon be addressed by the Novi City Council Saturday.

Council members recently discussed the possibility of rezoning the property to the light industrial classification, but allowed limited expansion of existing developments.

The council also is reviewing a compromise proposed by the planning board as a result of objections raised by current property owners on Grand River who say plans to reorient the corridor to light industrial use will force them out of business.

Many property owners objected to losing the potential for outdoor storage, so language permitting storage in a light industrial area, except within 300 feet of a residential district was drafted, City Planner Charles Cairns said.

There was a strong feeling on the planning board that property owners should be protected but the intent of the master plan to reorient the area still be carried out, according to Cairns.

Providing they are "legally constituted" use now, existing business would be able to continue and expand under the proposal from the planning board.

Cairns pointed out that "some businesses don't now meet and never have met the ordinance for screening

"Don't put these businesses in a totally non-conforming situation...or you're going to have empty factories. That's bad zoning and bad planning."

— James Ginn, attorney and landscaping," and therefore would not be considered "legally constituted uses."

Council members discussed the possibility of sending notices to Grand River property owners warning them that they could lose their right to expand by failing to bring their properties up to standards for screening in the zoning ordinance. Those who do not comply with the screening standards would become non-conforming uses. It is illegal to expand a non-conforming use.

Cairns told the council the ordinance would directly affect approximately 80 percent of the properties owned by Grand River.

Council member James Shaw argued that it would affect the entire area, because continued outdoor storage would determine the types of businesses that would be attracted to the area.

Assistant City Attorney Michael Lewis suggested the compromise may allow too much relief to existing business, and therefore undermine the city's attempts to reorient the area through rezoning.

Cairns said the compromise "reduces the potential for change."

Mayor Robert Schmid suggested the compromise be revised to limit expansion. Property owners would be allowed to expand within the confines of the property they own, but the property would be rezoned to light industrial. They also would be required to bring the property up to the current landscaping and screening regulations or lose the option of expanding the property.

Attorney James Ginn, representing West End Welding on Grand River, told the council: "my client's concern, and that of almost all the industries in the area, is whether they will be able to function or whether they will be put out of business in Novi.

"I suspect that if you don't give existing business protection they will be forced from the city," Ginn added. "They have relied on your zoning in the property when they made substantial investments here. The character of the area is that it contains a lot of heavy industrial zoning and eliminating it would seriously impact their ability to do business."

"Don't put these businesses in a totally non-conforming situation, or even 60 percent of your industry in a non-conforming situation or you're going to have empty factories. That's bad zoning and bad planning," Ginn said.

City Attorney David Fried said the ordinance actually was drafted to discourage outdoor storage. But for those who must have outdoor storage the planners wanted regulations.

"This is a very discouraging ordinance for outdoor storage and that was the (planning board's) intent," Fried said. "For those who needed outdoor storage the concern was that they provide effective screening. They didn't want these two feet shrubs that would be a screen in 20 years. The planning board intended to encourage walls."

Schmid asked why the city could not rezone the property and limit expansion.

"These are all growing businesses," Ginn told the council. "If you don't want them in the city, if it is your philosophy to phase them out, then make them a non-conforming use. You're telling them they've paid their taxes and now we don't want you anymore, goodbye."

If that's your philosophy rezone the property. You'll be thumbing your nose at a great number of people who have expressed concerns.

Shaw objected that Ginn's representation of the council's position was extreme. "The other side of that coin is that the business attitude is that no matter what we did 40 years ago we made those mistakes and we have to live with them. We can't improve the community. That's a harsh representation of what you've said, but your position is too harsh, too."

Council Member Patricia Kerevich said: "I don't want to run these people out of town, but there are eyesores that should be cleaned up. They require screening. With this proposal expansion is allowed and encouraged rather than pushing them out as soon as they are big enough to expand."

Shaw said he supported the mayor's position. The council will resume its discussion of the question of storage for light industrial property Saturday at 9 a.m.

Audio equipment stolen in 'smash and grab'

In Novi

More than $2,000 worth of audio equipment was stolen in a "smash and grab" at the Radio Shack store in the A&P Plaza at Ten Mile and Meadowbrook Road.

Glass in the front door was broken with an undetermined object at approximately 2 a.m. Saturday. The thieves apparently left in a hurry because audio equipment was found piled on the sidewalk in front of the store, police said.

Stolen property included five AM-FM stereo receivers, a turntable, two tape decks and a five-band graphic equalizer, worth a total of $2,340.

Three vehicles were stolen from the Twelve Oaks Mall parking lot during a three-day period recently.

The first incident occurred March 20 when a Brighton man reported the theft of his 1976 Chevrolet Blazer between 7 and 8:30 p.m. The truck had front-mounted snow plow and contained a 23-channel citizen band radio, chains, a nylon rope and a tool box filled with tools.

A Southfield man reported the theft of a 1982 Ford van valued at $10,800 while he and his wife were at the movies on March 21.

In the third incident, a Farmington Hills woman reported the theft of her 1976 Chrysler on March 22 while she was at the mall for an hour. The car is valued at $3,000.

Hills woman reported the theft of her 1976 Chrysler on March 22 while she was at the mall for an hour. The car is valued at $3,000.

An estimated $700 worth of merchandise was stolen March 25 from five construction trailers at the Glen Oaks Luxury Apartments site.

Thieves broke into the construction supervisor's trailer, plumbing trailer, electrical trailer, masonry trailer and the steel contractor's trailer.

Walled Lake police take honors

By KAREN RICE

Don't call Jerry Wilson and Paul Schneider sharpshooters.

"You wouldn't want to insult men who can pump 42 rounds into a bulge in four inches across from 50 feet by calling them sharpshooters, a term that sounds complimentary to most people."

The truth of the matter is that Wilson and Schneider, a crack shooting team of Walled Lake police officers, passed sharp shooting long ago. They now are ranked as high master shooters, falling occasionally to the master classification.

"What does that mean?" "It means we have now 'mastered' shooting," said Wilson, the police department's range officer.

For those in doubt, Wilson can show off his nickel-plated snub-nosed revolver, a prize he won in the second annual shooting competition sponsored by Multi-Lakes Conservation Clubs in Commerce Township.

In a strange quirk of events, Wilson walked off with the top prize in the master series revolver class after scoring seven points lower than his teammate Schneider — who didn't win anything in the high master category he fell in.

By scoring only a few points less than the class cut-off for high master, Wilson said, he was eased out of the bottom of high master and topped the next class down.

"But there's always next year," Wilson said, explaining that he and Schneider are working their way out of the master class and up through the high master ranking.

And why not? In the last year alone they've jumped two classes thanks to hard work, moral support from their wives and thousands of spent rounds of ammunition.

"It's like being in a bowling league," Wilson said. "We just keep working at it."

But Schneider and Wilson practice firing their revolvers more than most bowlers take to the alleys. They head for the firing range four or five days each week for three to four hours at a time, going through 2,000 rounds of ammunition every week. They even practice pulling the triggers of their empty guns at home while watching television, just to get their technique down perfectly. And to save money on their hobby, they prepare the ammo themselves.

"Our wives are very good to put up with us," Schneider said. "That's the key."

Mary Wilson and Tammy Schneider may be rewarded for their tolerance this summer by a little traveling, since the two policemen are hoping to enter several of the shooting competitions offered around the Midwest. Coming up in April, the Walled Lake duo will participate in a memorial competition for slain State Trooper Craig Scott in Detroit.

While this is their first full year of competition as a team, Schneider and Wilson are excited about attending the events and shooting for honors of top gun.

And there's nothing like getting off to a good start.

Group seeks input homes by other agencies.

"It's the most frustrating thing in the world to have a resident call township hall, upset that they're going to put a home next door and tell him you can't do anything about it," Dohany said.

"That's happened several times." "We can either try a pilot program," Dohany added, "or we can continue to let the state do what it has done in the past. We're willing to take on the responsibility."

County commissioner Caddell, a resident of Commerce Township, noted the committee was "not trying to force anything" on township residents.

"We want input," Caddell said. "We are in a sink-or-swim situation. We would like either to get some encouragement from you and other people in the community to go ahead, or if it is decided not to be continued, we will stop what we are doing."

Several residents said they liked "the idea of local control" of the homes but were apparently reluctant to endorse the program without a better idea of how it would be run.

Dohany said under the program, the township would be responsible for hiring administrators of the homes, establishing criteria to select clients, hiring staff members and locating suitable facilities for the group homes.

Currently those services are handled by other agencies who contract with the state and who can establish homes anywhere in the township without local approval if the residences house six or fewer adults.

Two foster care homes are in operation in Commerce and three more have been proposed, Dohany said.

While officials supported the idea of "true community placement," Dohany conceded the homes are presently being considered for placement outside platted subdivisions — probably on large acreage parcels.

"We don't have a specific site in mind," Dohany said.

However, Dohany noted if the township entered a lease agreement with the state to operate the homes, Commerce officials would be able to select which sites in the township would be best for group homes — something they are unable to comment on now.

Hopefully, the treasurer said, part of any agreement with the state would prohibit other corporations from leasing foster care homes within Commerce Township, giving the township corporation exclusive rights in establishing group homes in Commerce.

Long and Dohany sought support from township organizations — including the Union Lake Jaycees, Walled Lake Rotary Club and Goodfellows, all of whom had representatives at the meeting — to back the program and get involved with future residents of the homes.

The supervisor asked service groups and individuals to schedule events with residents, taking them to church or to baseball games and parties occasionally.

"We want to make these people feel like they're a part of the community," Dohany added.

Two Gods?

Dr. James H. Luther

Godfrey Davis, the biographer of the Duke of Wellington, noted that the Duke's financial records provided far more insight into his thought than his letters or speeches. Indeed your attitude toward money reveals your attitude toward life. Jesus was speaking of money when he said, "No man can serve two masters..." (Luke 16:13).

Two questions will help us to see the place of money in our lives:

1. Do I sacrifice things more important than money in order to acquire money? If I sacrifice my honor, reputation, a clear conscience, my family, or my spiritual life in favor of money, then I am a loser. A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favor rather than silver and gold. (Proverbs 22:1)
2. Am I seeking to buy with money what only God can give? Many of the things that we once prayed for are now paid for. We give to the cancer fund, but do not stop smoking. We try to die young, but do not take our family to church. (Let's send a donation!) If we throw enough money at our problems, they will all be solved. How sad!

A bank book has never given salvation from sin, peace of mind, real friendship, or true honor. But money has often been the source of misplaced priorities, improper values, sorrow, strife and heartache. When I rely on money to do what only God can do for me, then money has become my God! Which master do you serve?

fired and later discovered the outer pane of a double window had been broken. Police said it appeared the shot had been fired from a point directly south of the home.

A flush valve was torn from a urinal and a stall was battered, apparently from being kicked, in an act of malicious destruction of property in a men's restroom at Twelve Oaks Mall.

A small employee told police she heard a loud banging coming and observed a white male in his mid-20s leaving the restroom when she went to investigate. A building engineer and a maintenance repaired the damage.

A search for the man described by the employee was unsuccessful. Damage to the restroom was estimated at more than $100.

The owner of a 1973 Chevrolet told police sugar was placed in her gas tank while it was parked at Twelve Oaks Mall on March 23. Cost of repairing the vehicle was estimated at $214.

A sign with green and white lettering reading Community Cab, was stolen off the side of a taxi owned by the cab company at 41855 Grand River. A copy of a license also was taken from the glove box.

In Wixom

A Wixom man has been found guilty on eight felony counts in connection with a shooting incident at the Wixom Co-Op Apartments two years ago.

Henry Johnson, 53, of Wixom, was found guilty by a jury in Oakland County Circuit Court recently, according to Wixom police.

"I'm very disappointed, very disappointed," said Police Chief Phil Leonard, who noted that Wixom officers had been working on the case for more than two years.

Five counts of felony firearms and five counts of malicious destruction of property valued at more than $100 had been lodged against Johnson, who was charged with shooting out windows of five apartments January 11, 1980. One count of each of the felonies was dropped following the unrelated death of a complainant in the case, police said.

An AM/FM stereo radio and two speakers were allegedly stolen from a 1980 Toyota Corolla parked at the Golden Gate Apartments between 8:30 p.m. March 22 and 7:30 a.m. March 23, according to Wixom police.

The $1,500 radio was allegedly stolen between 4 p.m. March 27 and 11 p.m. March 28, according to officers.

A Motorola radio was reportedly stolen from a caboose at the C&O Railroad yard in Wixom, police said.

The $1,500 radio was allegedly stolen between 4 p.m. March 27 and 11 p.m. March 28, according to officers.

Space shuttle

Members of Mill Race Weavers Guild have created an unusual piece of art now on display in the Novi Public Library. The project, which stands 10 feet long by six feet high and seven feet wide, has been entitled "Fiber Space Shuttle" by the approximately 20 quilt members who created it. "The form itself is our statement. We have tried to integrate color, form, texture and design in our interpretation of the theme, thereby hoping you will be stimulated by its presence." Novi youngsters enjoying the shuttle in the picture above are (left to right) Alana Marron, Julie Harris, Shara Krause, Debbie Jones and Bradford Grimes.

Jaycettes launch child safety plan

Helping Hands, a program designed to assist elementary school children in emergency situations, is being revived by the Novi Jaycee Auxiliary. In essence, the program involves nothing more than placing an 8-by-9 inch "Helping Hands" card in the front window. A child who is hurt, ill, lost or threatened by bullies, strangers or dogs knows he can seek refuge by going to a home which displays the Helping Hands symbol. Susan Riley, who is heading up the program for the Jaycettes, said that over 300 volunteers are needed to cover the Novi area. Helping Hands volunteers should be in their homes when grade school students are going to and from school. Two Helping Hands volunteers will be assigned to each block, Riley said. If one of the two volunteers is unable to be at home when children are going to and from school, they should remove the sign from their window and notify the second volunteer on their block. Helping Hands signs can be removed from the window in the evening or on weekends if desired, Riley said. Volunteers who participate in the program are not asked to let strangers who say they need help enter their homes in the evenings. All Helping Hands volunteers will be screened by civic volunteers and the Novi Police Department, and children will receive instructions on how the signs should be used. Anyone interested in learning more about the Helping Hands program or volunteering to serve as a Helping Hands house is encouraged to contact Riley at 348-0282. Deadline for requesting applications is May 15. Riley reported that Novi police agree that the program has proved beneficial in the past and there is a continuing need for it.

State tax commission head denies county factor reports

By ALICE DAVIES
In spite of media reports warning of property tax hikes to be imposed by the Michigan State Tax Commission (MSTC), the chairperson of that group said last week those reports are "completely erroneous."
"It upsets me to see things like that printed," tax commission chairperson Robert Vandermark said in a telephone interview from his Lansing office Friday, March 19.
"I've seen lists of factors (tax hikes) published that were never developed here. We never saw those numbers until they were printed," Vandermark insisted.
"I haven't the foggiest idea where that information is coming from. I can only guess someone at the county has drawn estimates," he continued.
Oakland County Commissioner Roy Cagney (R-District 2) said he thinks the hikes will come. "MSTC is coming down hard because the state needs the money," according to Cagney.
Vandermark denied the charge and cited 1981 figures as proof. "Less than one percent of the state tax roll was fac-tered last year. That dollar increase could be measured in hundredths of a percent," Vandermark stressed.

William E. Hoover, assistant manager of the Oakland County Equalization Division, agreed with Vandermark. OCED is responsible for submitting tax roll data to MSTC.
Hoover agreed the MSTC has made no "threats" to hike tax rolls. But, according to Hoover, it is a matter of simple deduction, to come up with the estimates.
Both Vandermark and Hoover confirmed the following information on the Oakland County tax roll process:
• An equalization study and a set of conclusions by OCED was due in Lansing December 31. Only a set of conclusions was delivered. The study came six weeks later.
• After analysis, Vandermark told county officers the conclusions did not match the study data. The county then prepared a new study and a new set of conclusions and delivered both to MSTC last week. Vandermark said MSTC staff would need two to three weeks to complete its work.

Dental Dialogue
of A. Allen Tuckklaper, D.D.S.

A TOAST TO FLUORIDE
Q. How important is fluoride in water?
A. Very important! Although fluoride is found in many places in nature, water is the main source. When it is said fluoride is being added to a water supply, it doesn't mean it is being introduced because all water contains some fluoride. However, some water supplies need the proportion raised to obtain a level that will strengthen tooth enamel. In 1956 Chicago was one of the first major cities to fluoridate its water and it was estimated that decay among school children dropped by 50 percent in the first fifteen years. Fluoridation of wa-demands were arrived at may have contained some limited data."

The letter goes on to spell out factors in the technical formula used to calculate water rates which Novi believes should be re-evaluated.
"The City has presented what it believes is a more precise representation of the peak water use figures for Novi."
"We hope they agree this is a better state of more precise means of establishing peaking. Using the city's calculations, we are making fewer assumptions," Jacobs explains.
Novi also is asking the Water Board to change some of its basic policies regarding the formula used to calculate the rates, because it believes the formula is not equitable for Novi.
Changes in the method of determining the distance from Detroit water treatment facilities and the Novi's elevation are being requested.

Jacobs says the city is asking that the distance from treatment facilities no longer be based on the geographic center of the city.
"For most communities within the system, this may be an equitable method of determining such factors. However, Novi is located on the perimeter of the Detroit water system and is not 'surrounded' by service as are most communities. We feel a more equitable way of determining rates based on cost of service is to consider the points at which service is obtained," Jacobs says in his letter.
The elevation figures also should be re-calculated because only the eastern portion of Novi is served by the Detroit water system, Jacobs contends in his letter.
"Therefore, we feel a more appropriate method of determining service elevation for Novi is to use an average ground elevation at each of Novi's connections to the Detroit water system," the letter states.

A meeting with Detroit Water and Sewerage Department officials will be scheduled as soon as they have the time to review the city's proposed water rates, Jacobs indicates.
Jacobs says that in a seminar in Lansing last week the director of the Detroit Water and Sewerage Department Charles Beckham reiterated statements previously made that "if we're (the Detroit Water and Sewerage Department formulas are) in fact in error and you can show us, we'll look at them."

Jacobs says he cannot predict when the rates will be determined, but notes the city hopes to have the numbers within three weeks.
"I don't know how many communities are asking for changes in their rates. I suppose the determination will depend upon (Detroit's) work load," Jacobs says.
A work session to discuss water and sewer rates has been scheduled by the Novi City Council for April 21.

permit placement of mentally ill persons in a residential area.
The complaint was denied on the grounds that the City of Novi did not identify a state licensed residential facility within a 1,500 foot radius of the facility proposed for the six adults.
A home cited by the city as a foster care home, where a mentally retarded man is being cared for, is not licensed. The state points out that such homes to house persons who are mentally ill and ordered mentally ill persons taken out of two homes in Canton Township.
Michigan state law provides that a person who is "mentally ill" may be involuntarily committed to a mental health facility if they are dangerous to themselves or others, or if they cannot sustain themselves in their own home. But assistant City Attorney Michael Lewis points out the Canton Township opinion cited in the denial of Novi's complaint was overturned in Wayne County Circuit Court by Judge Victor Baum on March 18.

Retain road funds for building roads

Questions raised by Novi City Council members over the need for sidewalks in certain parts of the city, especially on Meadowbrook Road between Nine and Ten Mile, should not be easily dismissed.

No one can dispute that children's safety should be a high priority for city officials to consider.

If it is determined that citizens are, in fact, interested in pursuing a program to construct sidewalks along major roads, various methods of financing sidewalk construction should be pursued.

But City Manager Edward Kriewall has a point when he says it is not appropriate to build sidewalks with money set aside for road construction and maintenance.

As the city continues to pave its gravel roads and more subdivision streets must be resurfaced, the one mill road fund, set aside in accordance with city charter provisions, will come under increasing demands.

To further stretch those dollars by using them to construct sidewalks is asking too much.

As it studies financing proposals, it is likely the city will find that there are no funds readily available for sidewalk construction. In that case it will be up to the council to determine whether the need is great enough to put the question of financing sidewalks before the voters.

Should that day come the city will want comprehensive sidewalk program that can be supported by its residents. The feasibility for such a program would be fragmented by the construction of sidewalks in isolated areas on a piecemeal basis at the present time.

As Kriewall has suggested, the ballot box is the proper forum for learning whether citizens see concerns in the same light as elected city officials.

City makes 'steal'

During these tough economic times, everyone seems to be tightening their belts and looking for ways to cut costs.

But it's rare that a community stumbles across a bargain that is as important to the city as the one Walled Lake came across recently.

With the city about to plunge into preparation of its 1982-83 budget, the news that Walled Lake managed to capture a second-hand generator for its water system for only $2,000 must have been a bright note to city officials, who were expecting to spend anywhere from $85,000 to $120,000 for a new machine.

While Walled Lake expects to spend additional funds on the generator in order to get it in proper working order, officials maintain the purchase was "a steal."

Walled Lake beat several other nearby communities to the punch by acting quickly on the purchase; hopefully the city did indeed get a bargain from the government surplus warehouse that stored the generator.

Still, it's ironic to think that Walled Lake will pay for its government surplus bargain with federal Community Development Block Grant funds and that the government will deliver the generator at a low rate.

Walled Lake taxpayers may feel ambiguous about the purchase knowing that their federal taxes helped underwrite the city's cost of purchasing a generator that will help keep Walled Lake's water system operable in the event of an emergency.

The reality of the purchase, however, is that the city found a way to stretch its dollars further than it had expected or hoped. Whether the deal was at the expense of the federal government or not, Walled Lake appears to have come out of the bargain way ahead of its game plan — good news in the long run for city residents.

Successful record

The decision of Carl McBride to resign his position as coach of the Walled Lake Western wrestling team did not really come as a surprise, but was a disappointment nonetheless.

McBride, the only wrestling coach in the 13-year history of Walled Lake Western, has recommended that his assistant, Dick Watson, be named to replace him. Watson has been a loyal aid and merits the appointment.

Although we are confident of Watson's ability to carry on the fine high school wrestling tradition enjoyed at Western, we nevertheless are disappointed to see McBride leave.

Born and raised in Oklahoma, McBride's Sunday morning calls to report the previous week's results were always bright spots, filled with his still-present Oklahoma drawl and the type of down-home wisdom one would expect from a person who carries proudly the label of "Okie."

His success as a wrestling coach speaks for itself. In 13 years at the helm of the Warrior mat team he compiled a record of 141-55-2 and won six straight Western Six Conference championships between 1971 and 1976.

He also developed a state champion in Randy Hyde, who presently is coach of the wrestling team at Walled Lake Central.

Even though McBride has decided to step down as coach of the Western mat team, we are pleased that he'll still be around. A resident of the Meadowbrook Lake subdivision in Novi, McBride's oldest son Steve appears destined for a bright mat career, and there are two more McBride boys on their way through the Novi system.

McBride has indicated that he is resigning his post to spend more time with his family, and you can bet that he'll be spending plenty of time helping to coach his sons.

Still, we'll miss those Sunday morning telephone calls and the dedication that he has brought to his job as coach of the Warrior wrestling team for the past 13 years.

Journal

By KAREN RICE

Forgive me if I sound like an abused husband, but Bartender, my friends just don't understand me. I've discovered some of them are confused because I have eclectic tastes in virtually every area of my life, from music to food to pastimes.

I don't know much about modern art or Renaissance painting, but I like them both. I'm not well versed in drama and styles of the great playwrights but give me a theater ticket and I make a very appreciative audience. I could be the world's worst athlete but I'll still try anything once. (Don't ask me to try downhill skiing again, though; once there was enough.)

My friends, mostly creative and artistic types, don't have problems with my interests in those areas. Where they get stuck is on my musical preferences.

True to form, I know little about jazz, classical, bluegrass and big band music — but I like them all. Hard rock just isn't my bag, although I can stand an hour of pop music once or twice a month.

But far and away, my current favorite style of music is good old country music.

No one, absolutely no one can appreciate that fact. You wouldn't believe how many snide comments, disgusted groans and astonished looks I've gotten after slipping out the fact that I like country music. People look down on country music.

They really shouldn't. As one song explains, "When you start putting down country, you're putting down home sweet home."

But, I guess most people aren't aware of that. For example, on a recent holiday Monday, a policeman I know changed the radio in the police station from Muzak-style songs to a classical station. He was stunned when I told him I often listen to classical music in the morning or late at night and switch to country the rest of the time.

"You like classical AND country music?" he asked, apparently agast.

Why not? I grew up on a steady diet of classical themes as I struggled with piano lessons for years, but that doesn't mean I can't branch out to the folksy sound of Mickey Gilley or Dottie West. Just because you like Beethoven or Stravinsky doesn't mean you can't enjoy Willie Nelson or Emmylou Harris. I don't know what people have against country music. When I ask them if they've ever listened to it, they write a little before shrugging and saying the music is too twangy for them.

Besides, they say, who wants to listen to songs with lyrics like, "I'm so blue and lonesome 'cause I'm not home on the range no mo'."

Well, excuse me.

Two can play that game. After all, rock music doesn't often have the best lyrics in the world either. And Bach didn't use lyrics at all, so there.

I contend that what makes country music likeable is that it is so easy to relate to. Most of the songs are about how great it is to be in love, how rotten an ex-love was, how an ex-love begs to be forgiven for being so rotten or how great it is to be in love again. Show me a person who hasn't gone through all that and I'll show you someone who's never lived. Show me a person who's gone through it repeatedly and I'll show you someone guaranteed to love country music. It's as simple as that.

Besides, this stuff grows on you. I wasn't always a fan of country music. In fact, I too used to detest it, preferring to listen to the noises under my dashboard rather than Loretta Lynn.

That all changed when a friend of mine developed a fondness for Waylon Jennings and Willie Nelson, forcing me to listen to their songs. Suddenly I started listening for their songs on the radio and I became familiar with other singers until I can now hum along with Merle Haggard. I melt upon hearing Larry Gatlin and speed down Ten Mile to the sound of Hank Williams Jr.

My mother — who has liked country music ever since one of her brothers spent some time in Kansas, adopted a permanent drawl and painted cowboy boots on his feet — thinks it is a positive sign that I've sworn off rock and roll in favor of country music.

But I know that's only because she's hoping I'll branch out into her favorite music: four-part harmony as performed by groups like the Sweet Adelines. Sorry Mom, I guess I'm just not that American yet.

After the fact

By PHILIP JEROME

There was a time during my journalism career when I used to feel extremely guilty about the fact I always turned first to the sports pages.

All kinds of important things were taking place around the world, and I was turning first to find out what happened to the Tigers.

I got off that gullit trip several years ago at the Michigan Press Association convention in Lansing. All the bigwigs from newspapers across the state had just purchased their morning paper as they waited for breakfast. I, too, had my paper and, concerned about looking foolish in the eyes of fellow journalists, turned to the editorial page.

After reading the lead edit, I glanced over the top of the page to see if everyone else was reading the editorial page as well. You guessed it, only one person in the group was reading the editorial page — me. Everyone else had turned to the sports section.

Despite that incident, I no longer need to be concerned about reading the sports section first — because I don't read the sports section, first, and sometimes I don't read it at all.

Presently, the section of the paper which I read first is the financial section. What did Donald Regan have to say last night? What's happening to MI? Anything new with the Federal Reserve?

I not only read things like that, but I think I'm beginning to understand things like that.

And now I have reason to believe that I'm not alone when I turn first to the financial section. My father-in-law visited Sunday. He's retired now after working 30 years in a foundry, but still manages to work 10 hours or so per day on his farm which he also has been doing for the last 30 years.

What I'm trying to say is that my father-in-law is a working man. A man of the soil. Someone who would never read the financial pages under normal circumstances.

So what did he want to talk about? The Tigers? The Pistons? The Lions' draft picks? Not by a long shot.

"What do you think of MI?" he asked. "Did you hear what Regan said last week? You know, I was watching Wall Street Report last night and . . ."

Teachers protest way educator was dismissed

To the Editor:

We, the undersigned teachers of the Novi Middle School South, are writing this letter to the community at large and to the various members of the Novi Community Schools administration. Specifically, we are outraged at the manner in which Mr. Doug Holder, a seventh grade English-Social Studies teacher in our building, was notified of his intended dismissal to be effective at the end of this school year.

Mr. Holder is a second year teacher in our district. As is required by our contract, Mr. Holder was observed by an administrator, Principal Charles Nanas, on February 24, 1982, and March 2, 1982.

On March 2, 1982, Mr. Holder was notified by Mr. Nanas that he was recommending severance effective at the conclusion of the school year for reasons of unsatisfactory work performance.

What is so reprehensible was not that severance was recommended, but that March 4, 1982, marked the first instance during the school year that there was any indication, either formally or informally, that Mr. Holder's performance as a teacher was so unsatisfactory as to warrant dismissal.

It is not our intention to supplant the administration's right to make personnel recommendations. It is our intention, however, to notify the public of a severe injustice being perpetrated by the administration due to a lack of sensitivity and a total disregard to the basic principles of due process.

Having established an ugly precedent with Mr. Holder's situation, the administration has succeeded in creating an atmosphere of low morale and distrust. The disturbing question remains, "Can what was done, be done to me?"

Sadly, the answer is now yes.

Sacrifices balanced?

To the Editor: Last September the Walled Lake Board of Education committed the district to a program of deficit spending.

Wixom board nears arcade agreement

Revisions to Wixom's pinball arcade ordinance have been tabled one more time, but this time it appears it will take just one more Wixom City Council meeting before things are finalized.

Wixom's council has been considering changes to the ordinance as a result of complaints from the Wixom (FWF) Fun Camp and local bar owners who object to the registration and licensing fees.

The ordinance requires everyone who has mechanical amusement devices to pay annually a $200 application fee, a $200 licensing fee and $20 per machine.

FWF Post Commander Harry Patterson has complained that the fee constitute a financial hardship on non-profit organizations and small businesses which rely on the machines to attract customers.

The council last week appeared set to adopt a proposal made by Council Member Dennis Andrews at the March 14 meeting that would exempt non-profits that were operational at the time the ordinance was adopted from the licensing fee.

But Council Member John Lee last week suggested another approach — that the annual application and licensing fees for non-profit organizations be lowered from $200 to $50. The $20 annual fee for each machine would remain unchanged.

our community as follows:
1. Raise taxes to pay the salary increases.
2. Sell land and one building to pay salary increases.
3. Cut the educational program $1 million to pay salary increases.

4. Ask the associations (1) to give back a token amount of the salary increases.

The board publicly states there are "no guarantees" in this plan and that all four sacrifices must occur if it is to work.

The children of our district are guaranteed losers in that at least $1 million in program cuts are intended even if the other three elements of the plan fall into place.

"The board admits this plan is a 'patchwork' solution supposedly hurting everyone equally. Even if this were true, what do we do next year? Sell another building? Raise taxes again? Go to half days?"

Help appreciated

To the Editor: On behalf of the county executive, I would like to express our appreciation for your assistance in promoting Tornado Safety Week.

We are of the opinion that your efforts helped to promote a sense of awareness on the part of the general public as to what steps to take should a tornado watch or warning be issued.

We look forward to working with you in the future. Thanks again.

restaurant sits right in front of his mall. We were conducive enough for him that we're now putting up our third restaurant in one of his developments.

Council members apparently were unswayed by the representatives' appeal.

At that time the council decided to postpone discussions of a compromise with Bob Evans' Restaurant until minutes of past council meetings had been researched and a legal opinion on the matter issued from the city attorney's office.

The council decided it wanted to clarify its position and review the intention behind adopting what is known as Planned Development (PD) options.

The options apply to the development of property in the regional center area surrounding the city's two major shopping centers.

"Many hours went into the PD option, and if we develop a stronger position it could be less expensive than fighting this in court," said Council Member Guy Smith in an earlier session.

accord with its police officers association.

Officers are presently working under a three-year pact which is slated to expire June 30. The previous three-year pact expired June 30, 1979, but the city and police union were not able to come to terms until almost a year later. Officers continued to work under the terms of the former contract, and the terms of the present contract were made retroactive to June 30, 1979, after the new agreement was hammered out.

Under the terms of the present contract, patrolmen with more than four years' experience receive a base pay of $22,500.

Bonczek said last week that he currently is conducting an analysis of salaries and fringe benefits of other Oakland County police departments to develop a data base which "will allow us to assess whether our present wage levels are equitable."

If the negotiations process moves smoothly, it will mark the first time in six years that the city has been able to reach a timely accord with its police officers association.

The council voted 5-3 to adopt Lee's suggestion and Mayor Lillian Spencer broke the deadlock by also voting against the proposal should it be put in final form before being brought to a final vote.

Spencer indicated that her "no" vote would remain in effect until "next week" when the wording presumably will have been finalized.

Commendation awarded for arson investigation

Two members of Wixom's police/fire investigation team have been cited for honors by Captain William R. Rucinski, Chief of the Michigan State Police Fire Marshall Division.

Singled out for honors in conjunction with an arson investigation at the Village Apartments were Captain Stuart Colyer of the Wixom Fire Department and Officer Bruce Kirby of the Wixom Police Department.

The series of fires at the Village began November 20, 1981, and ran through January 3, 1982. The investigation culminated in the arrest of Brian Keith Travis, 22, of Wixom who was arraigned February 22 in 52nd District Court on two counts of arson of a dwelling house, reporting a false alarm and filing a false police report.

In his letter of commendation to Wixom Mayor Lillian Spencer, Rucinski noted that there was no apparent motive or suspect and all investigative leads seemed to be exhausted.

"However, through the diligent and persistent efforts of these officers, which included many voluntary unpaid hours of work, a suspect developed," Rucinski continued. "Further investigation into the suspect's activities resulted in his confession and subsequent apprehension by the officers involved."

Rucinski also commended Mayor Spencer for "providing the city of Wixom with the type of leadership that encourages such dedication and cooperation."

Buses pass inspection

Novi School District buses have received a 100 percent rating in the annual inspection by Michigan State Police.

During the rigorous three-day inspection, everything from brakes and the condition of the frames to whether or not buses are equipped with a first aid kit are reviewed, according to Superintendent Robert Piwko.

Piwko said the inspection certifies that buses are safe to be driven on the road. The inspection is designed to assure that proper bus maintenance occurs throughout the year.

All 18 Novi school buses were approved by state police, although only 15 buses are used regularly. Piwko praised mechanics Alfred Piggot and Robert Gregory for their work on the buses.

He also noted that the reclamation plan is consistent with the city's master plan which calls for development of large lot subdivisions in western Novi.

The reclamation plan also received skeptical approval from members of the planning board.

Said Planner Peter Romanow: "It looks like a terrific thing if it ever comes to pass."

Gwendolyn Niemisto has new tailoring shop

'A stitch in time' is Gwen's credo

By PHILIP JEROME

How do you build a recession-proof business? It's a question many would like to be able to answer, but Gwendolyn Niemisto appears to have come up with a solution that has a good chance of success.

After selling Mary Kay Cosmetics for seven years, she counted her savings, summoned up her courage and last November opened a store that specializes in clothing alterations and repairs, as well as custom-made clothing for men and women.

"I looked at the economic conditions and decided that people would have to make do with what they have," said Niemisto, owner of Gwendolyn's, Ltd., at the corner of Ten Mile and Haggerty Road in Novi.

"It appeared to me that there was a real need for someone who could repair things.

"There aren't that many tailors any more and a lot of stores have stopped doing alterations. When you put all those factors together, I felt there was a demand for the kind of tailoring shop which could help people get a lot of mileage from the clothes they already own."

Niemisto said she is doing well under the present conditions and expects things to get better as the economy recovers.

She presently employs three full-time seamstresses — Mary Peterson, Luanne Williams and Mary Loeffler, as well as a part-time seamstress — Debra Fisher.

"There were a lot of people who told me this kind of business would never make it," said Niemisto, who admits that she, herself, is not a seamstress.

"But I think they're surprised that we've stayed in business as long as we have and are doing as well as we are."

The only thing that surprises Niemisto, however, is that the others are surprised at the success of a business which was started in the midst of the state's current recession.

"Clothes cost a lot of money these days, and when times get tight, people start taking better care of what they have," she said.

"It's that way for automobiles, and the same holds true for clothing.

"Although we do a lot of alterations on new clothing, we also do a lot of clothing repairs," she continued. "We can put leather patches on the elbows of a sportcoat and the man can get two or three more years out of a garment which is otherwise in good condition."

"It makes a lot of sense. It's good value."

Gwendolyn, a tall, handsome woman whose husband is an inspector with the Farmington Hills Police Department, said her seamstresses specialize in repairing leather coats and putting zippers in nylon parkas and sleeping bags.

"Leather coats are usually pretty expensive and we can help prolong their life. That makes our service valuable to people who are trying to get their money's worth out of everything they buy," she said.

In addition to alterations and clothing repair, Gwendolyn's, Ltd., also will make custom-made clothing for men and women.

"They can come in, select the materials and fabrics they want and Gwendolyn's will make them virtually anything they want from top coats and suits to shirts, slacks, blouses and casual clothes.

The custom-made clothing is one aspect of the business which Niemisto expects to blossom and bloom when the economy regains strength.

She said she anticipates changes in the way people buy clothing in the future, and to take advantage of those changes, she presently is attending classes in marketing and design at the Fashion Institute of America in Southfield.

"A lot of people would be skeptical about starting a business at the time we did, but I'm pretty confident," she said. "People still have money and they still need clothing; they just want to make sure that they get good quality and good value."

"Gwendolyn's, Ltd., is designed to meet both those needs."

Do It Yourself

Northville resident offers real estate hints in new book

"Real Estate by Yourself" is the newest do-it-yourself offering from J. James Hasenau's Northville-based Holland House Press.

"Many of the emotional things are hang-ups when you try to sell real estate yourself," explains Hasenau as he points out the first edition, 124-page paperback includes a chapter on such realities as "dirty deals."

Through his Holland House Press at 6215 Six Mile in Northville, Hasenau has published "Build Your Own Home, a guide for subcontracting the easy way," and "Building Consultant," which he calls "an encyclopedia of building language that every prospective home owner must know."

Hasenau's building and real estate books are based on personal experiences in the construction and selling of hundreds of homes. He joined his father in building homes and apartments, starting, he recalls, "from the sewer up," as his two sons now are doing.

"I believe that when real estate is put on the market it should be priced too high. Then there should be a knock down, drag out, last straw battle to sell it. If not, you as a seller aren't getting top dollar."

— J. James Hasenau

In answer to an offer, "Would you accept $65,000?" he suggests replying, "If you would like to put the offer in writing, we would be glad to consider it."

Hasenau points out that "It is the written offer that counts and will let you look at any conditions the buyer may want to attach to his price. Perhaps what sounded like an attractive, full-price deal turns out on paper to include part of your furniture and your garden tractor, your dog, and would require you to pay VA or FHA points."

The book is available by mail for $8.95 plus $1 postage from Holland House Press, Box 42, Northville, Michigan, 48167.

ASK THE LAWYER

Questions? Write to Attorney Larry Korn, care of Sliger-Livingston Publications, Post Office Box 160, Northville, Michigan 48167. Questions will be answered on a space-available basis. Answers in this column are directed at specific facts and may not apply in all situations.

Q. I purchased a home several months ago for $50,000 with $20,000 down. I own the seller $30,000. The seller was to have made certain repairs within 10 days after the closing. To date the seller has not done so. The seller has moved to California. How can I make the seller do the repairs that the seller promised in writing at the closing to perform?

A. Send the seller a telegram which reads as follows: "Dear Sir: I here and now make demand of you to complete the repairs which you promised in writing to do when I purchased your house on December 1, 1981. If you fail to complete the repairs as agreed, within 10 days from the receipt of this telegram, I shall hire a contractor to perform the work you promised to do and shall deduct the cost of the repairs from my land contract payments." If the seller fails to do the work as agreed, then you should hire a contractor, finish the repairs and deduct the cost of the repairs from the land contract payments and from the amount due under the land contract.

Q. I am a widower in my 70s. I have stocks and bonds that are worth approximately $25,000. Would my estate have to pay any federal or Michigan inheritance taxes upon my death?

A. Since your estate is less than $25,000, your estate would not have to pay any federal or state taxes. You would have to pay a Michigan Inheritance Tax. To avoid this tax, you should keep your stocks and bonds in savings as joint tenants with full rights of survivorship to one of your children or another member of your family, providing you can trust them.

Q. I am purchasing a condominium on land contract. I am two payments behind. I moved out a few weeks ago because I did not have money to keep up with the gas bills. Some of my pipes froze and broke. My land contract lender came into my apartment, fixed the pipes and changed the locks on my condominium door. As a result, I cannot get into my own apartment. Do they have the right to do this?

A. No. If your apartment had been broken into, the lender has the right to take steps to protect the condominium property which he has an interest in as well as you. However, if he changed the locks he should give you a set of keys and you should be able to move right back in.

He has no right to keep you from possession of your own apartment. He can, however, start suit in district court for forfeiture of your land contract or he can start suit in circuit court to foreclose on your land contract in the event that your land contract payments are in default.

Q. My husband filed suit for divorce. Prior to the divorce settlement, he gave a DeLorean Oldsmobile to my son. My son was driving and he was taking the DeLora Royal away from me. Can he do this?

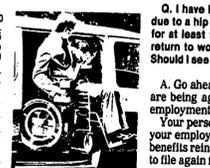

A. If there was no injunction restraining your husband from taking or removing the Oldsmobile from your possession, and if the title of the car was in his name or both names, it is quite likely that he would have as much right to the car as you have until a judge made a determination as to who had the equitable right to the car. I would suggest that your attorney file a motion for your husband to deliver the car back to you and further, that he pay the finance company enough money to return the re-possessed automobile to him or to you, whichever the case may be.

When the case finally comes up for trial, a judge will determine who gets which car.

Q. My son is a high school senior in the public schools. He was injured by one of the athletic coaches to visit with him at his apartment. While my son was served alcohol and the coach made homosexual advances toward my son. What should I do?

A. I would recommend that you see a child psychiatrist to make certain he receives therapy for whatever guilt feelings or trauma he may have experienced as a result of this encounter. I would suggest that the psychiatrist communicate with the school principal and the local police department to have them investigate this most irregular behavior on the part of the teacher. I suggest this not only for the benefit of your son, but also for the protection of all other students who might be subjected to the improper behavior of this instructor.

Through the help of the Veterans Administration and his own courage, a paralyzed veteran has been able to pursue a career in banking.

Donald Metz had been in the Air Force little more than a year in September 1954 when the F-86 Sabrejet he was piloting broke out in flames, forcing an aborted takeoff. Metz was climbing out of the burning plane when the ejection seat threw him into the air without a parachute.

Except for limited use of his hands and arms, the fall left him paralyzed from the neck down. For the next year and a half he was a patient in the spinal cord injury center of the Veterans Administration Medical Center in Richmond, Va. The Richmond Center is one of 20 VA spinal cord injury centers across the nation.

When Metz returned to his home in North Augusta, S.C., he refused to stay home as an invalid. Instead, he helped to organize a bank and drove himself to and from work as the assistant cashier when it opened in 1959. Metz, 50, today is assistant vice president and branch manager of the First Atlantic Bank in Augusta.

With his skills he could work anywhere.

Idi Amin declares republic in village

By TWINKIE DeLIGHT

Idi Amin, former President-of-Life of Uganda, has taken possession of an island in Wolverine Lake and declared himself leader of a new republic there.

Leaving federal, state and local officials stunned, Amin was nevertheless welcomed warmly by village residents, who escorted him with a boat parade to the new Republic of the Isle of Amin last weekend on the small four-lot island at the edge of Wolverine Lake east of Bensten Road.

A spokesman for Governor William Milliken's office said the governor's office is not concerned with the former dictator's declaration of a new country since "there is no one living there anyway."

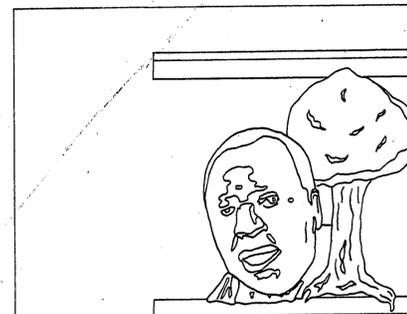

Milliken's office has set up a conference with the governor and Amin to discuss his intentions to reside in the village.

"But," the spokesman said, "as long as he abides by state statutes, I don't foresee any problems with having Mr. Amin living on the island. He may want to clear some things with the DNR, though."

The island edges land designated as wetlands by the DNR.

Village Council President John McLeellan said Amin was welcome in Wolverine Lake "as long as he remembers who's resident around here."

Commerce Township officials also echoed villagers' welcome of Amin, noting that the island is in a convenient location for the alleged despot should he decide to take in the signs of the area.

eschew violence in the future.

"I, Idi Amin Dada, would like to announce that I am looking forward to the peace and quiet of the Isle of Amin," the excited leader told radio listeners.

In the broadcast, Amin said he was considering building a causeway to connect his new home to Bensten Road and hoped to make Bensten a toll road.

Fees from travelers would be collected to help replenish the "Idi Amin Dada Retirement Fund," the former ruler said. Travelers who do not comply with Amin's edict reportedly will not be heard from again.

DEAR JEANNE: Longtime Novi High School columnist Jeanne Clarke is planning to leave her spot at The News and take over duties of Ann Landers, the syndicated advice columnist. For the details, see Page 27-C.

ALMS FOR THE POOR: The Walled Lake Schools have announced a second plan to bail out the district from its financial woes, which includes a $2.5 million deficit. The district plans to hold car washes, used book sales and cake walks to raise money needed to balance the budget by next year. An offer by students to forego math classes in order to save money on mathematics teachers' salaries was rejected. The story is on Page 21-A.

Sighting of shark stuns area

Plans by the City of Novi to open a city beach on Shawood Lake this summer have been scrapped after the sighting of a shark in the shallow waters of shore.

"We didn't believe it either when we got the call from a hysterical homeowner saying there was a shark in the lake," said City Manager Edward Kriewald.

But city officials have since learned that the shark was once the pet of a homeowner on the lake and apparently entered the lake through the home's plumbing system.

"Mack was getting this mean look on his snout so I decided to flush him down the toilet," explained homeowner Doyle Templeton. "I thought that was the end of him, but now he's out swimming around in Shawood Lake."

City officials said they are pleased the fish is contained in the small lake — also known as Mud Lake — but have expressed concerns that it could swim up into Walled Lake or float down the Patnales Drain and end up in Meadowbrook Lake or any of the 51 retention ponds dotted across the city.

Meanwhile, Walled Lake officials are considering appropriate action if the shark swims upstream, according to Walled Lake City Manager J. Michael Dorman.

"Certainly if that happens it may be time to consider reconstructing the old Indian wall across the lake," Dorman said. "Strong fences make good neighbors."

Schools buy Red Wings

By PETER PUCK

The Novi School District may finally be getting its own hockey team, but the team will not be eligible for interschool competition.

The News has learned that school officials have entered the race to purchase the Detroit Red Wings — though for a sum considerably less than the $13 million asking price of present owner Bruce Norris.

"We're still talking double figures," acknowledged one school official who asked not to be identified. "But not the $13 mil" other bidders are tossing around. It's more like $9 or 10 million, give or take a million."

Certainly no small sum, but school officials are fairly confident their unusual action has community support.

"A professional hockey team is practically the only thing Novi doesn't have," said the unnamed official. "It's odd, because the sport has always been popular in the area."

Novi is the only school in the eight-team Kensington Valley Conference without a hockey team. In getting the Red Wings at least, the community will have a team to support.

"When we do something in Novi," commented the official, "we don't settle for anything small. We do it up big."

Students approve Red Wings purchase idea

And what could be bigger than a pro team in the area?"

If the district is successful in its bid to obtain the Detroit franchise, officials say the team will be relocated from the Joe Louis Arena to the Novi Ice Arena on 42300 E. River Mile, "a perfect site" according to one official.

"People can come to the area in the afternoon, shop at Twelve Oaks and go to the game in the evening. A professional team in the area will greatly stimulate our local economy."

School officials said they have few concerns about being able to obtain Members.

Wixom site of '88 Olympics

Wixom, Walled Lake and Novi have formed a tri-city consortium to bid for the 1988 Winter Olympics. The News has learned.

"The idea came up almost jokingly," said John Momberg, director of Wixom's Parks and Recreation Department, "but then somebody said 'why not?' — why can't we do it?"

"More we thought about it, the more we realized it was something we could all pull off by pooling our various resources," O'Branovic, director of Novi Parks and Recreation, echoed Momberg's comments. "Michigan is already known as the 'Winter Wonderland,'" he said. "It's entirely fitting and appropriate for us to host the Winter Olympics."

In addition, the two recreation directors noted that most of the required facilities already exist.

Mt. Holly, Mr. Brighton, Alpine and Pine Knob provide an abundance of slopes for the downhill skiing competition and the Nordic ski events can be staged either in the Proud Lake Recreation Area or Kensington total support for the proposal.

Spencer Memorial Airport in Wixom and completion of the new Sheraton Oaks Hotel in Novi are critical to the tri-city bid to secure the '88 Olympic games, Momberg and O'Branovic noted.

Both Momberg and O'Branovic said their proposal to bid for the '88 Winter Olympics has been endorsed by Governor William G. Milliken as well as the State Department of Commerce and the Michigan Tourist's Bureau. "They see it as a part of their 'Say yes to Michigan' campaign," observed Momberg.

Meyer Moonies? Unification church announces plans for farm takeover Followers of Reverend Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church have announced plans to purchase Meyer Farm on Twelve Mile in Novi.

"This is exactly the type of economically-thriving area we like to get involved in," said a spokesperson for the Unification Church.

The South Korean evangelist's church, as well known for its financial investments as its theology, has decided to add the farm to its holdings which include a recent purchase of the Washington Times, fishing operations on the east coast and a ginseng tea importing business.

In addition to the financial viability of the community, church officials said they were sold on the area when they learned of plans for expanding Spencer Airport in Wixom.

"An airport that size will be perfect for our greenest recruits," a church official said. "At times new converts are shy about handing out flowers to hurried airport passengers, but this offers them a chance to start off small and work up to the demands of larger, international airports."

For now the 160-acre farm will be kept in its natural state and used as a "tranquil, training center" for recent converts. Church officials say the land will be farmed and produce will be used at the training center.

Officials expect the center will become a frequent retreat for the Rev. Moon as he tries to escape tax authorities, the pressures of indictments from federal grand juries and parents who have lodged kidnapping charges against the church based on a claim that their teen-age children have been lured away from home into Moon's Unification church.

Long-range plans for the farm, which is located in the heart of Novi's most intense commercial development, have not been disclosed. Unification Church officials deny a hideaway in the form of an underground bunker for the Rev. Moon, who in the past has been threatened with deportation, is being constructed.

Novi city officials say there also is no truth to the rumor that the church group has already applied for financing

REBEKAH LODGE: The Novi Rebekeh Independent Club will have a luncheon meeting at noon April 5 at Hildred Hunt's house. Co-hostess will be Irene Staman.

Ladies are asked to bring a sandwich and table service. The hostesses will provide dessert.

BAND BOOSTERS: Novi High School's symphony band under the direction of Craig Strain scored top honors in all categories at the District Band Festival in Howell. The top rating permits the band to advance to the State Band Festival on May 1.

The Boosters would like to thank everyone who helped with the A&P Donation Day which was so successful that another has been slated for May 12. Proceeds will be used for the upcoming trip to perform at the World's Fair in Knoxville in May. Novi's band was selected from bands throughout the country to perform at the World's Fair. More than 100 students and adult chaperones will travel to Knoxville May 26 and return in time to march in Novi's Memorial Day parade.

The joke's on you

If you've gotten this far without realizing it, we'll break the news right now: April Fools!

Of course it's hard to believe Idi Amin isn't really living in Wolvenne Lake, that no one flushed a shark down a toilet in Shaw Lake, that the Moonies aren't buying Myers Farm and that Wixom isn't pulling out yet another plum: the Olympics. But the real truth of the matter is we just made all that up.

After last year's successful April Fools edition, we decided to give it another go-round — largely because of readers' positive comments. Apparently our subscribers like a good laugh too. We appreciate the assistance of local officials who gave us permission to quote them.

Now that you know the truth, if a friend tells you he just heard the Red Wings have been purchased by the Novi Schools, offer him an April Fools for us.

NOVI-WALLED LAKE NEWS

Spring fever

Pitching and defense to key successful Wildcat softball season

With only three of nine starters returning this spring to Novi's starting lineup and only five players returning overall, Wildcat softball coach Jim Tinsley will be counting heavily on the arm of pitching ace Cheryl Shankel in hopes of capturing a Kensington Valley Conference championship.

Shankel, a senior, could be the best pitcher in the league based on last year's All-KVC first team selection as a junior.

"Pitching will be particularly important for us this year," asserted the fifth year Novi coach early this week. "We're young and untested, so it's vital we get good performances out of Cheryl."

Tinsley said he plans on hurling Shankel nearly every time out. "She'll start most games, though maybe not the second game of a doubleheader," Tinsley said.

When Shankel needs a rest, the Wayne State grad said he has a pair of juniors who can throw strikes: Suzanne Beckman and Leslie Crowell.

Aside from Shankel, Novi's two other returning starters from last year's 12-8 squad (8-5 in the KVC) are sophomore shortstop Peggy Wilson and junior second baseman Beckman.

"We might be young and untested at the other positions," noted Tinsley, "but we'll be strong up the middle."

A senior, a junior and a sophomore are vying for the catching assignment:

Lisa Palka might have something to say about that.

"They'll all get a good deal of playing time," asserted Tinsley. "Most of the players will."

"In previous years I've made the mistake of really relying on only nine players which hurt us in the long run because then I had no one to step in of the bench when needed. That's one of my goals this year: to see to it that the kids receive more meaningful playing time."

Tinsley said he's planning on carrying all 15 girls who tried out for the team, five of whom are battling for outfield positions. Junior Jill Brayton has the centerfield spot nailed down, while the other two are being fought for between four more juniors: Wendy Kaercher, Beth Planta, Holly Bismack and Vicky Tipping, a foreign exchange student from Australia.

In looking at the KVC as a whole, Tinsley foresees a trio of teams battling for the top: Brighton, Howell and Novi.

Novi nine look toward improved diamond play

Novi baseball coach Bob Weinburger has good news and bad news for Wildcat fans.

The good news is that with eight returning players, Novi should have no problem improving on last year's 14-11 record. "We're going to be pretty competitive this spring," asserts the fourth year coach.

"But," warns Weinburger, "the league as a whole is very much improved as well."

Last spring the Wildcats finished in a third-place Kensington Valley Conference tie with Howell (at 9-7), behind Brighton which won the league title for the third year in a row. Novi has not won a league title, in fact, since 1976.

"We aren't the only team which has improved," said Weinburger late last week as Novi began preparations for its April 5 opener at home against Riverview. "Brighton will again be tough; as will Howell, South Lyon and everyone else down the list. And we're returning KVC teams) certainly didn't help our chances in picking up Lakeland and Milford (from other leagues) this year."

The only name player Novi lost from last year's team is pitcher Joe Meo (5-4 record and 1.70 ERA). This year's ace, according to Weinburger, will probably come from a pair of tall senior righthanders in Pete Gavalis (2-1 last year) and Bryan Armstrong (1-1). Gavalis reaches 6-3 while Armstrong stands 6-2.

Junior Eric Deline figures to be Novi's third pitcher with junior Eric Laverty, senior Todd Faulkner and junior Tim Bunker possibly seeing some action as well.

Returning for another season behind the plate will be senior Jim Weber. A natural team leader, the 6-2 Weber led the Wildcats in hits (20) and RBI (11) last year as a junior, and finished the season with an impressive .357 batting average.

Three of the four infield positions also appear to be locked up, according to Weinburger with only a second sacker to be determined. Senior Mark Stoner (.388) will hold down first base; Deline, when not pitching will play short; and Gavalis (.321) is slated for third.

Leonard Vetere, a junior, and senior Steve Kramer are currently battling it out for second base.

Although the infield is pretty well in tact with three returning starters, the outfield boasts senior centerfielder Joe Fitzgerald (.267) as its only returning starter.

Bunker and Dave Majors appear to be the leading candidates in left field with Mark Moran (.263, 11 RBI) pacing the pastures in right.

Others rounding out the 18-man roster are Novi's lone left-hand batting infielders Jim Wineka and Pat Coutts and senior outfielders Mark Grimm and Jeff Demorest.

KATHI HARRIS

Young but talented Viking thinclads aim to Xerox cross-country effort

It's a brand new season and a different sport, but third year Walled Lake Central girls' track coach Brian McKenna remains the same - cautious about being overly optimistic of his young but talented Viking team.

"The potential is there," reports McKenna. "We're as strong this year as we've ever been in my three years as coach."

"But it still comes down to doing it on the field." Or on the track.

Sounds pretty much like the same Brian McKenna who modestly predicted a "fairly promising season" of his young Viking harriers just last fall - a promising season indeed which included a regional championship and a 12th place state finish. Of course, cross country isn't track, but as McKenna concedes, seven of his girls off that regional championship team also run track, thus making his thinclads "tournament wise" if nothing else.

"Inexperienced? Maybe so; especially with only three seniors and seven juniors from a group of 41 members composing the team. But 21 members are returners from last year's group, including senior KATHI HARRIS who in McKenna's mind, may just be one of the top athletes in the state.

Last spring Harris, despite a bout with tonsillitis, placed seventh overall at the state meet in the half-mile in 2:21.4, a few seconds behind her Central school record of 2:16.1 captured at the regional.

Overall, the lightning quick Harris holds five individual school records - high jump (5-8); 200 meters (26.4); 200 meter low hurdles (31.5); 400 meters (58.8); 800 meters (2:16.1) - as well as being a member of two relay teams (800 meter and two mile) which also hold school records.

Central's two other seniors are Margot Robb (100 and 200 meters) and Sandy Kaufman (shot put and discus).

Juniors returning are Helen Ditrlich and Karen Frey (both shot put and discus), Caryn Lamb and Andrea Meenahan (middle distance runners), sprinter Kelly Stone and cross country participants Diane Montgomery and Becky Poole (one-half mile to two miles).

Sophomores who will probably contribute immediately according to McKenna are Lori Albright (sprinter), Kim Curry (distance), Patty Fitzgerald (shot put, high jump), Amy Frye (sprinter, long jump), Sandra Krueger (middle distance, long jump), Wendy Mackey (hurdler) and Patti Makonnen (distance, high jump).

Central also has several outstanding freshmen sprinters in Cheryl Baker, Laura Braden, Dana Bolla, Sue Proulx and Kim Crawford. Other outstanding freshmen are distance runners Leigh Messel, Lisa Laansma and Jeni Dulka, all of whom were standout members of Central's cross country team last fall.

Novi thinclads deep in numbers only

With 50 athletes out for this spring's Novi boys' track team — 27 more than last year — Wildcat coach Bob Smith claims his team will certainly be one of quantity, if not quality.

"We might have twice as many kids," acknowledged the second year Novi coach, "but we're still pretty thin (in terms of talent)."

This year's team is composed of eight seniors, eight juniors, nine freshmen and 25 sophomores. Because of its youth and relative inexperience, Smith foresees a "middle of the pack (Kensington Valley Conference) finish" for his young thinclads.

Although Novi has gotten outside only a handful of times due to the snow and cold, the Wildcats are slated to start the season tomorrow (Thursday) at Walled Lake Central. And though Smith claims he is not absolutely certain as to who will run where, he does half a rough outline.

Junior Dave Williams lines up as Novi's top sprinter (100 and 200 meter events) while sophomore Craig Cleary, though untested, appears as the number two man, according to Smith.

Paul Boyd, another junior, returns as a second-place KVC 440-yd finisher (51.5 seconds) and could be Novi's brightest spot this spring.

Sophomore Jim Kohli, a transfer student from Toledo who ran on this past fall's cross country team, will run the half-mile while fellow sophomore Bob Peery, also of cross country fame, looks to be the top Wildcat miler.

The two-mile run is still up in the air, though Paul Motee appears to have the inside track over Greg Mowbray.

With last year's top shot put and discus throwers Terry Smith and Jay Dinan graduated, both field events will boast new faces. "I'll put a bunch of guys in there and see who comes out on top," offered Smith.

Other field events will be anchored by sophomore Bill Chace (pole vault); sophomores Mike Serra and Steve James (long jump); and junior Chris Lonergan (high jump).

The one-mile relay team remains intact from a year ago with Williams, Kohli, Lonergan and Boyd.
