Schools, employees ratify two-year pact

NOVI — A new two-year contract has been ratified between the Novi Community Schools and three employee bargaining groups.

Superintendent Robert Piwko reported at last week's school board meeting that the tentative agreement had been ratified by all three union groups — the Novi Education Association, Novi Secretarial and Para-professional Association-MESPA and the Novi Food Service Association-MESPA.

According to Zan Alley, executive director and spokesperson for the three groups, teachers ratified the contract by a margin of 89.3 percent (159 to 19), secretaries and para-professionals ratified by 71.4 percent (20 to 8) and food service employees ratified by 70.6 percent (12 to 5).

The board subsequently voted 6-0 to ratify the pact. Trustee Norman Miller, who did not attend the meeting, sent word via Piwko that he also endorsed the three contracts.

Contracts for all three groups call for a five percent wage increase in 1984-85 and a 5.5 percent increase in 1985-86.

Settlement of the new contract means, in essence, that classes will start in time in September in both 1984 and 1985, thus avoiding the work stoppage that delayed classes and created hard feelings throughout the community in 1982.

The settlement is being hailed by representatives from both the district and the unions as a positive step forward.

Prior to ratification by the school board last Thursday, Board President Joan Daley complimented negotiators for both sides "for the hard work they put in during a short period of time."

Teri Moblo, president of the Novi Education Association, told the board that all three negotiating units were pleased to announce a ratification. "Happy holidays," she added.

Ratification of the contracts apparently achieves a mutual goal of settling the contracts prior to the start of the 1984-85 school year. The board unanimously adopted a resolution in October that called for a settlement prior to the end of the current school year in June, and union representatives expressed similar objectives.

The union submitted its proposals on December 1 and negotiators to both sides met face-to-face for a marathon three-day session at the Plymouth Hilton beginning at 9:30 a.m. on Tuesday, December 6, and concluding with a proposed settlement at 11:15 p.m. on Thursday, December 8.

Highlights of the new contract with the teachers' union include:

- Insurance: The annuity in lieu of health insurance is increased from $50 to $60 over two years. Life insurance is increased from $3,500 to $4,000 over two years. In long term disability, maximum payment is increased from $1,500 to $2,000 and the waiting period is reduced from 180 calendar days to 120 calendar days.

- Leaves of Absence: The number of days that can be accumulated is increased from 170 to 185 calendar days.

Highlights of the contract with the secretaries and para-professionals include:

- Leave Plan: The number of accumulated bank days is increased by 15.

- Insurance: The annuity in lieu of health insurance is increased from $25 to $40 over two years. Vision coverage is increased to 80 percent of reasonable and customary.

- Longevity: The longevity rate is raised from two to three percent at the beginning of the 14th and 19th years.

Highlights of the contract with food service employees include:

- Vacancies/Transfers: The number of probation days in a job change is increased from 30 to 45.

- Employment Status: The district agrees to provide the association with a seniority list on or before September 15 and May 30 of each school year.

- Insurance: The pact provides for a $5 annuity in lieu of health insurance. Life insurance is increased from $25 to $30 over two years. Vision coverage is increased to 80 percent of reasonable and customary.

- Longevity: The longevity rate is raised from two to three percent at the beginning of the 14th and 19th years.

Assessments will not go up

By KATHY JENNINGS

NOVI — Except for a little fine tuning in some areas, there will be no increases in most residential property assessments, according to City Assessor John Merrifield.

Based on sales studies made during the past 12 months, residential property in Novi is assessed at nearly 50 percent of true cash value and there is no need to increase assessments, Merrifield reported. There also will be no assessment increase for industrial or agricultural property.

"There are some internal adjustments, but there's not a lot of movement," Merrifield said regarding residential assessments. He said there would be some increases for property where assessments are low and decreases in areas where assessments are high.

Merrifield explained residential property values in some parts of the city, such as those around Walled Lake, are rising. Some residential property on Grand River and in the Clark subdivision also having rising values, Merrifield said.

"Some of the other subdivisions will be going down," Merrifield added. "Those moving up and those going down will be the same dollar amounts. They'll be balanced."

This is the second straight year there has been no need to increase residential assessments, but Merrifield said the phenomenon is not likely to continue a third year. In fact, he's already begun to see increase in property values.

"We are seeing an increase. It's been steadily climbing in the last six months and I expect it to continue," Merrifield said.

Merrifield went on to say that there has been an increase in the number of homes sold. "There have been about 400 sales in the residential class," he said.

That is a significant increase over one year ago when Merrifield called sales figures "erratic" and determined he could not adjust residential property assessments by areas because there were so few sales in 1982.

"The increase is starting again," Merrifield said. "But with the depressed market there was no change in the ratio. We're right in the 50 percent range, except for three or four areas."

When the Oakland County Equalization Department finds property is not assessed at 50 percent of true market value, it imposes a factor. The assessed value of property is multiplied by the factor to bring the assessment to 50 percent of its true cash value — the new figure is called the state equalized value of the property.

This year there will be no need to impose a factor.

Factors frequently are imposed when it has been a number of years since a full reassessment of local property has been conducted. Novi's last complete reassessment of local property was completed in 1980. City officials planned to update assessments in conjunction with putting a new computerized property appraisal system on line. But as a result of technical problems the update will be delayed. "Now we're planning to do some this year and some next year," Merrifield said.

Meanwhile, the city's commercial and industrial tax base has continued to grow, adding to the city's total property value.

"The last couple of years has been clean up, there hasn't been that much construction. But we've put on new commercial and industrial properties. We're not really doing anything spectacular except putting on a lot of new (properties)," Merrifield said.

Citizens seek protection for lake

By KATHY JENNINGS

NOVI — Residents in northern Novi have asked the city to work for preservation of what they consider the city's most important natural resource — Walled Lake — by controlling development around the lake.

Novi planners were asked to consider an ordinance which would stop a developer from buying a small piece of lake frontage property and using it to provide access for large developments behind the lake front property.

Jerry Ross of the Lakeshores Homeowners Association said residents are concerned Walled Lake could be destroyed through overuse and recommended study of an ordinance to prevent that from happening.

"On a body of water a developer buys a 10-foot piece of frontage and 30 acres behind it. Then he sells the 30 acres as frontage. We feel this is abusing the lake," Ross said. "There are many pieces for property around the lake and we'd like you to look at this as a relief for this."

Ross asked the planners to address the problem and recommend an ordinance to control development "for Novi's part" of Walled Lake.

"We have a right to use the water freely and avoid the overuse and destruction of the lake," Ross said. "We feel this is the most important natural resource Novi and Walled Lake have. We don't want developers misusing the lake as they've done in the past."

Planning board members suggested there are a number of problems in the lake area to be addressed, and it may be poor planning to deal with the proposed ordinance without relating it to other problems in the area.

Ross told the board that with the upturn in the economy and the amount of vacant property along Walled Lake the ordinance has an immediacy it might not otherwise have.

"We think this is of primary importance right now. It can't wait," Ross said.

Gary Phillips, also of the Lakeshores Association, told the board: "Our goal is the protection and improvement of Walled Lake. We don't want to try to deal with all the problems in the area. Our main focus is the lake itself. We feel overdevelopment of the lake is a problem we would like you to address."

"We'd like to know what residents feel are the major problems of the area," said Planner Joseph Toth.

"That's why we're here," Ross responded.

Planning Consultant Charles Cairns indicated the problem outlined by Ross could very well develop since a lot of Modified rezoning request renewed

'We're going to make a presentation and request a hearing based on modifications and changes we've made to the plan we submitted a couple of years ago.'

— Joseph Gerak, partner, Orchard Hill Place

NOVI — A plan to rezone 71 acres of property from residential usage to an office orientation has been revived in a slightly different form, 16 months after it was first shot down by city planners.

Orchard Hill Place Associates has requested that property at the southwest corner of Nine Mile and Haggerty Road be rezoned from its existing residential designation to an office classification. The planning board is expected to set a public hearing date for the rezoning request at its meeting Wednesday (tonight).

Currently the property is zoned to be developed with single family and multiple family dwellings. Orchard Hill Place is requesting office-service-commercial (OSC) and office zoning (OS-1), instead.

"We're going to make a presentation and request a hearing based on modifications and changes we've made to the plan we submitted a couple of years ago," said Joseph Gerak, a partner in Orchard Hill Place Associates.

Gerak noted the biggest changes in the plan are the division of the rezoning request into OS-1 and OSC and the inclusion of approximately 4.65 acres of green belt. Formerly, Orchard Hill Place requested that all the property be rezoned to an office-service-commercial district.

In the modified request, the 71 acres have been divided into two parts, with a request that one portion of the property be rezoned to allow construction of offices and the second be reclassified to allow an office-service-commercial district.

The plan calls for the western portion of the property to be rezoned for offices. That property is closest to Whispering Meadows subdivision. It also apparently would be buffered from the residential area with the green belt.

Orchard Hill place has requested the remainder of the property be rezoned OSC. An OSC district is designed to accommodate large office building and related retail and service developments. Buildings are limited to four stories.

Much of the property in question abuts Whispering Meadows subdivision. When the matter was first introduced to the planning board 16 months ago, nearly 180 residents turned out to demand the request be rejected and the rezoning was denied at a joint meeting of the planning board and city council.

Residents opposed the plan on the grounds it would be a deviation from the master plan, it would encroach upon their residential neighborhoods and devalue their property. They argued the development would create more traffic problems in an already congested area, lead to more crime in the area and create noise.

But the developers argued it would continue the type of development that is already underway at Eight Mile and Haggerty Road, which has attracted Fortune 500 companies. They argued office and residential property can coexist harmoniously.

The developers have since met with residents in an attempt to come up with a plan that would be suitable for both parties.

In other action Wednesday, the Novi planners were expected to:

- consider an amendment to the zoning text for the Town Center District dealing with the height of buildings to be allowed in the commercial area surrounding the Grand River and Novi Road intersection.

- discuss incorporating the bike-pedestrian paths into the zoning ordinance, requiring developers to include paths in their plans; and,

- continue a public hearing on the rezoning of property on the west side of Novi Road, just south of the C&O tracks from an industrial classification to an office district.

Holiday deadlines set

Christmas is coming up Sunday and New Year's follows that, and The Novi-Walled Lake News will be observing special holiday deadlines during the next two weeks.

All offices will close at noon on Friday, December 23, and Friday, December 30. Offices also will be closed Monday, December 26, and Monday, January 2.

Deadline for submitting items for the Living Section both weeks is Thursday at noon.

The classified advertising department also will observe early deadlines for both the Christmas and New Year issues. Deadline for classified ads will be 11 a.m. on Friday, December 23, and Friday, December 30.

The classified office will close at noon on Friday both weeks and reopen on Tuesday, December 23, and January 3, at 8:30 a.m.

Appointees named to advisory boards

NOVI — Council members filled positions on three of appointed bodies Monday, naming members to the Parks and Recreation Commission, Board of Review and Board of Appeals.

On the Parks and Recreation Commission, Barbara Mackenzie was appointed to serve a two-year term and Pamela Balagna was named to a one-year term.

Mackenzie will fill out the unexpired term of Edward Leininger who resigned after being elected to the city council, while Balagna will serve the unexpired term of James Rose who also resigned.

Carol Mason was appointed unanimously to the Board of Review. Council members also returned Paul Potter and David Dunning to the Zoning Board of Appeals. LaVerne Reinke was named alternate to the appeals board.

Council supports bidding

NOVI — With resolution of the question of how to fund construction of a Department of Public Works (DPW) maintenance facility, council members have decided to proceed with the project and voted Monday to go out to bid.

After viewing the materials to be used on the exterior of the building, council members voted 5-3 to advertise for bids on the project. Dissenters were Council Members Martha Hoyer and Guy Smith.

The city expects to award bids on the project in late January.
Jeffery Clark of Nordstrom Samson Associates, architects for the project, told the council that energy efficiency has been built into the plans for the maintenance garage. Clark said the city will ask for bids on two types of roofs — a conventional roof and a new type roof, developed in Europe, which is designed without the use of asphalt.

He also showed council members examples of the metal siding, brick masonry and glass which will be used on the building.

The top band of the building will be insulated metal. Next to the metal siding will be the glass. Clark said the glass will look like a bronze band going around the building. The brick masonry will be on the lower portion of the exterior of the building. Clark said he expects a range of bricks to be offered, but they will be in earth tones with a colored mortar.

"This building is designed to meet the city's energy needs of the future. We hope it will help on your utility bills over the years to come," Clark said.

Hoyer told Clark she had no opposition to the design of the building, but she reiterated her objection to using road funds to pay off a loan for construction of the building.

"I don't think we could have gotten anyone who could have better suited out needs to design this building, but I object to the method of funding," Hoyer said.

Council members voted two weeks ago to borrow $85,000 from the State of Michigan to build the DPW maintenance building. The loan, offered through the Michigan bond loan program, will be used to construct the $1.9 million building. For the next five years fund balance from the major street fund will be used to repay the loan. After that, approximately 20 percent of the municipal street fund will be used to retire the debt.

The building will be used to store
DPW and Parks and Recreation equipment and serve as an office for maintenance crew supervisors.

Board okays cable for schools

WALLED LAKE — In return for over $1.5 million in cable hardware and services, the school board last week agreed to provide community cable programming.

The commitment will cost the district about $500 for studio renovations at Western High School this year and about $40,000 for a part-time television communications instructor and cable wiring for all buildings in 1985.

"This is a one-time offer," said Board Member Patricia Jackman. "If we pass it up, cable will be all around us and we will be without it. The cost is minimal when you look at the potential benefits," she said.

The board approved the concept of community programming in a 6-1 vote.
Trustee Robert Cooper voted no. The resolution did not make clear the district's commitment, he said. Trustee Kenneth Tucker was absent.

The contract between the West
Oakland Cable Consortium and Greter Media Cablevision is for a 15-year period. Therefore, if the school board were to decline participation in the agreement now, it would not have another opportunity to consider cable for 15 years, Superintendent Don Sheldon explained.

Community programming consists of locally produced programs, such as school plays, sporting events or special community events.

Greater Media has agreed to provide the district with an "institutional network" which will connect every building in the district which has been wired for cable, as well as the administration building. This "institutional network" will cost Greater Media an estimated $567,000.

Greater Media agrees to provide one full-time staff member for the district for 15 years (including fringe benefits) and a production budget of $25,000 per year for local origination programming.

Greater Media is to provide all equipment for the production studio at Western High School at a minimum cost of $85,000, and also will provide access to a $150,000 mobile van unit. Both of these facilities will be upgraded in the sixth and seventh year of the contract at a cost of $200,000 to Greater Media.

The district's part of the bargain includes offering a course in television production, providing the studio space at Western High School and being responsible, along with Huron Valley Schools, for local origination programming.

The one-time cost of wiring the district for cable will be about $23,750.

The only recurring expense to the district will be the employment of a television instructor at about $24,350 per year (plus benefits).

With cable capabilities, the district can cable educational programs in classrooms, train students in telecommunications, tape science lab experiments, record programs from foreign countries for use in foreign language classes and current affairs courses.

Surplus food available

WALLED LAKE — The Oakland Livingston Human Service Agency (OLHSA) will be distributing surplus commodity food to low income residents today (Wednesday) in Walled Lake and Union Lake.

In Walled Lake, surplus food will be distributed at the Walled Lake Fire Hall from 9-11 a.m. In Union Lake, food will be distributed at the Union Lake Jockey Building at 900 Round Lake Road from 9-11 a.m.

OLHSA officials note that eligible individuals must attend the same site for each distribution as their registration card will be kept on file where they filled out the first form.

Registration does not guarantee receipt of commodity food each time. Due to the limited quantity of food, distribution will be on a first-come/first-served basis. In order to receive surplus food, proof of residence will be required as well as proof of income (pay stub, unemployment card, food stamp card, etc.).

Homebound and handicapped persons who are eligible and unable to acquire surplus food through public distribution sites will need to make prior arrangements by calling OLHSA's toll-free number of 1-800-9250 or the Southwest Oakland County field service office at 624-5520.

Mayor fires city clerk for 'insubordination'

By LEANNE ROGERS

WIXOM — Long-time city Clerk June Buck was fired December 14 by Mayor Lillian Spencer, amid charges of "insubordination and progressive discipline problems."

Mayor-elect Gary Lentz said he plans to reappoint Buck after he takes office on January 1. "I don't know why June was fired, but it was not justified," said Lentz. "I think it was unfortunate that Mrs. Spencer fired June with only 16 days left in her term of office," he added.

for 15 years, serving as clerk since 1974. Deiores Lewandowski, who works in the clerk's office, was appointed acting clerk.

Buck declined comment on her termination but said she would consider returning to city hall under Lentz. Spencer also was reluctant to discuss the firing, saying it was a personnel matter.

"I discussed this with the council and they were in agreement with me," Spencer commented. "It was something that was building. She was fired with cause and it has all been documented. I don't want to make a big deal out of it."

Buck reportedly received several written reprimands and a disciplinary suspension during the past year. She has been excluded from the council's executive sessions, although city officials have refused to explain why. The problems apparently culminated on December 7, when Buck administered the oath of office to Lentz. The swearing-in was held in the police department with Sergeants Vern Darlington and Larry Beamish serving as witnesses.

'It was something that was building. She was fired with cause and it has all been documented. I don't want to make a big deal out of it.'

— Lillian Spencer, Wixom Mayor

"The swearing-in was not the reason for it. People jump to conclusions," commented Spencer. "I told June not to swear him in before his term starts on January 1. Why should I give up part of my term?"

Lentz said he was told Spencer wanted him sworn in after January 1.

Originally, swearing-in ceremonies were planned for the December 27 council meeting. Spencer's last as mayor, or January 10, the next regular meeting.

"Mrs. Spencer wanted council members sworn in at the meeting but not me," Lentz said. "Before the election she wanted it done December 27, but afterward she changed her mind. So I called June (Buck) and asked if I could be sworn in to avoid a problem."

Spencer denied plans to have the council members sworn in without Lentz. She said she had not discussed the matter with Buck.

Mayor Assistant Stephen Bonczek said Buck had been terminated "with cause for progressive discipline" problems. "She was terminated for cause and it is not fair to discuss this as a personal or personnel matter," he said.

"The mayor-elect was sworn in secretly without the knowledge or concurrence of the mayor's office."

Lentz denied the swearing-in was secretive. Buck planned to be out of town over the New Year's weekend, which would have delayed the swearing-in, he explained.

Oakland County Deputy Clerk Richard Elliott said officials can be sworn in at any time. "The mayor would have authority until the end of her term and the new mayor would not have authority until his term begins," he added.

"The swearing-in is really just a formality. It makes a record that the person has taken office."

Department heads in the city traditionally have submitted their resignations when a new mayor takes office. The new mayor has the option of accepting or rejecting the resignations.

Trial scheduled; Forbes released

By PATRICIA N. BOWLING

WALLED LAKE — Twice-convicted sex offender Michael Forbes, of White Lake Township, will be tried January 26 on charges of annoying and molesting an 11-year-old Dublin Elementary girl.

At his pre-trial hearing in Judge Michael Batzick's 52nd District Court Tuesday, December 20, Forbes' attorney Terry Hall requested a jury trial.

"I want to try this matter as soon as possible," Batzick responded. The attorneys subsequently agreed on the January 26 trial date. Batzick continued Forbes' $100 bond and he was released.

Batzick's court was crowded with about 25 parents of elementary children in the Dublin area. Incensed by the terms of Forbes' release, the parents protested in front of the courthouse last week and on Monday this week.

Forbes' first alleged victim, his step-sister, saw the news reports of the parents' protest and contacted White Lake police. "I want to see him in jail," she said last week.

"I'd like parents to know about this guy... kids aren't safe," she said. "He just seems to keep getting off with probation.... He's pleading guilty, yet they're not putting him in jail at all. It just seems to me he ought to be in prison."

Forbes' step-sister has not seen the suspect since 1973, she said. She is now married and has two children.

After the brief pre-trial hearing December 20, Dublin area parents left the courthouse bewildered.

"I thought they'd put restrictions on his probation," said the mother of the sixth grade girl who reported being harassed by a man in a dark car several times last fall. On Tuesday, November 22, school officials allegedly obtained the license number of the car and reported it to White Lake Township Police.

Police reported the car belonged to Forbes, who has twice been convicted of criminal sexual conduct involving adolescents. According to officer Randy Lingenfelter, Forbes was arrested in 1980 for statutory rape of a nine-year-old girl — his step-sister. While the original charge held a maximum sentence of life imprisonment, it was reduced to "indecent liberties," to

Boundary decision postponed

WALLED LAKE — The state Board of Education last week postponed a decision on the transfer of Wall Lake district property to Farmington Hills.

"It was tabled off (the December 13-14 agenda) at the last minute," said the board secretary Lad Dombrowski. The board is waiting for advice from the state attorney general's office before making a decision on the transfer request, Dombrowski explained.

The transfer is requested by residents of Section 6 of the City of Farmington Hills. Their petition for the transfer was denied by the Oakland Intermediate School Board in September, 1982, but the residents appealed the decision to the state board.

After a hearing in March, hearing officer Raymond Godmer recommended the board concur with the intermediate board. However, after "preliminary discussion" at its July 13 meeting, the board asked Godmer to develop reasons that could support the transfer, Dombrowski recalled.

An August 16 letter from Godmer to William Ralls, attorney for the Section 6 residents, states the transfer should be granted because the residents have expressed "complete dissatisfaction with the education programs offered (by Wall Lake)."

"The geographic location of the area indicates that the transfer would enhance the socio-economic, educational interests of the petitioners and their children by being placed in the (Farmington Hills) district," Godmer stated.

Dombrowski said the board's request for reasons supporting the transfer did not indicate they planned to grant it. Rather, the board wanted to have "both sides of the argument" before making its decision, he explained.

The transfer request is expected to appear on the state board's January 10-11 agenda.

Developer's interests questioned by council

By PATRICIA N. BOWLING

WOLVERINE — Village council members last week questioned whether Gary Veenstra, developer of Lakeridge subdivision, should consider resigning his post on the planning commission due to conflict of interest.

In addition to Lakeridge subdivision, Veenstra plans to build a four-unit townhouse on his property off South Commerce Road. Last week he requested the village engineers, Johnson and Anderson, not be retained for the engineering study on the $200,000 townhouse building.

Unnerved by Veenstra's request, several council members used the opportunity to air their dissatisfaction with Veenstra's position on the planning commission.

In a phone conversation with Village Administrator John Berchold last week, Veenstra suggested the council appoint David Finney, who designed the plans for Lakeridge, to complete the engineering study for his townhouse project.

Veenstra objected to Johnson and Anderson based on the company's financial condition — it filed for bankruptcy in August, 1982 — and what he considers to be questionable service and billing.

Earlier this year a representative from Johnson and Anderson failed to report approval of Veenstra's subdivision road plan to the village council. Veenstra issued a stop-work order before it discovered Veenstra's construction had, in fact, been approved by the engineer. Veenstra said the engineer's error cost him "time, money and embarrassment."

Veenstra also has asked to meet with representatives of Johnson and Anderson to review his billings. The developer claims the fees he has been charged, including $3,500 to review his final subdivision plans, are exorbitant.

At the council's Wednesday, December 14 meeting, Council Member David Kemp also expressed reservations with Johnson and Anderson and suggested the village begin business with a new engineering firm.

But other council members balked at the idea of a developer suggesting which engineer should review the developer's project.

"I don't feel very comfortable with the developer suggesting an engineer that's going to look out for his interests," said Council Member Thomas Gerhard.

"I don't think it's wise to change (engineers) in mid-stream," Berchold told the council. "J&A is familiar with (Veenstra's) plan," he added.

Berchold also noted the company has changed its representative assigned to the village since the road construction incident. "I think they've rectified the problem," added Council President Tim Kozub. The council voted 6-1 to assign Johnson and Anderson the townhouse engineering work. Kemp voted no.

'I think we're walking a fine line with a developer on the commission.'

"It is absolutely mind-boggling that (the council) would give that contract (for reviewing the townhouse plans) to a company that's filed for bankruptcy," Veenstra said after learning of the council's action.

After the decision on engineering, discussion at the December 14 meeting turned to Veenstra's planning commission post.

"I think we're walking a fine line with a developer on the commission," Council Member Ed Sienkiewicz said.

"I think we ought to take a serious look at Veenstra's position on the planning commission," Gerhard added.

Gerhard was president of the commission when Veenstra was appointed in August, 1978. Although it was decided there was no conflict of interest at the time, they agreed a conflict could arise in the future due to Veenstra's profession as a developer.

Gerhard recalled, "I think we're at that point," he said, adding that the council should consider reviewing Veenstra's position on the commission.

Veenstra, who was not at the December 14 meeting, said he would "absolutely not" resign his post. Veenstra admitted being a "squeaky wheel" in the village, voicing dissatisfaction with the village's plat laws. Requesting his resignation is "the easy way out" for the council, he said. "They just get rid of the squeaky wheel."

"If they feel there's a conflict of interest, then they're going to have to use (the charter) to remove me (from the commission)," Veenstra maintained.

"My concern is whether the village should have a major developer on the planning commission," Gerhard said after talking with Veenstra last week. "There's nothing that he's done that has caused any problems... we wouldn't try to remove him for just cause."

Gerhard said there should be informal meetings set up for the planning commissioners, Berchold, Veenstra and council members to discuss the situation.

Split vote revives city manager issue

By LEANNE ROGERS

WIXOM — An advisory question on revising the city charter to establish a city manager form of government was approved by the city council on a split vote last week.

The proposal and other actions, including the firing of clerk June Buck, are being attributed directly to Gary Lentz taking office as mayor January 1.

"There is no question that the city manager proposal relates to my coming into office," commented Lentz, who has opposed city manager government in the city.

The resolution reverses action taken by the council last fall to remove a charter advisory question from the November ballot. No date has been set for the election so that City Attorney

'There is no question that the city manager proposal relates to my coming into office.'
— Gary Lentz, Wixom mayor-elect

Thomas Connelly can provide additional information at the December 27 council meeting.

Council Member Gunnar Mettala offered a motion to create a city manager's position under a council-approved ordinance. Although the city charter allows creation of the post by ordinance, conflicts exist about powers allocated to the mayor's assistant.

The motion followed a statement read by Mettala concerning campaign proposals made by Lentz. Specifically, Mettala addressed Lentz' proposals for city-funded garbage collection and adding two police officers. Mettala estimated that a 39.127 percent increase in Wixom's operating millage would be needed to implement the programs proposed by Lentz and maintain existing services. "Those figures were not at all accurate. I made a lot of proposals during the campaign and will work for them," Lentz later commented. "I think it was unfair to attack me in this manner. That's the way that I took it. I don't know what else to make of it."

Lentz said further that the statement read by Mettala was an indication that the veteran councilman does not want to cooperate with the new mayor. "I can't speak for (council members) Nancy Dingeldey or John Lee," he said, the other supporters of the action.

Without charter revisions, Lentz said the council would actually be proposing an administrative assistant for themselves. "That would be an

Assistance needed for food drive
WALLED LAKE — The Jaycees have food abundant for their Christmas food baskets — all they need now is help distributing it.
Project Coordinator Perry Baker said this year's local business and service organizations have made "stable" contributions to help boost the Jaycees to their financial goal. A total of $1,000 in cash was donated for the food and clothing drive, and one-half dozen of food for needy families are ready for distribution.
Baker said the drive's effect in the past week is clear. Christmas Eve, a dinner was held at the Walled Lake Jaycees Club.

shoreline property is developed under individual ownership. There also are large pieces of land zoned single-family, Cairns said.

"That's why we feel the planners should look at the situation. We feel it's a potential problem," Ross said.

Ross and Phillips have brought two representatives of the Michigan Lakes and Streams Association to planning board meetings to discuss legislation which has been enacted to prevent overdevelopment of lakes.

One of the representatives, Fred Mathis, said he represents a statewide organization of lake associations with more than 30,000 members. The group is interested in inland lakes and streams, their quality and maintenance.

"If you have good lakes it is an asset to the community, the county and state," Mathis said. "The quality of water has a bearing on the quality of the tax base. As the quality of water and the use of the water is degraded, the quality of homes is degraded and it erodes the tax base. If you improve the conditions, homes are enhanced and the tax base is enhanced."

He said construction of channels and dredging are controlled by the state and water quality is watched by the county, but excessive residential access is controlled by the local municipality. It is regulated through an ordinance designed to prevent what is known as "keyholing."

Such ordinances have been on the books for 10 years in various communities throughout Michigan, Mathis said.

Mathis continued: "When you look at a lake you have to decide if it is reasonable to allow some keyholing. It depends upon the existing circumstances. You have to put reasonable terms on it."

Cairns questioned whether there was anything which could stand as a test to measure when water quality is being degraded.

Mathis said any surface runoff, especially runoff that goes through fertilized agricultural lands or lawns, affects the water quality.

"If you put up 300 homes and the entire lake is encircled a lot of runoff is going directly into the lake," Mathis said. "The more evenly you distribute houses the more protection for the water quality."

Cairns questioned the legal grounds for regulating the use of the lake. He noted that in his research of the matter he has found no formula to measure overuse of a lake.

Mathis indicated a Michigan State study showed a motor boat requires 20 acres and a jet boat requires 150 acres of lake.

But Cairns questioned whether such standards would hold up, considering his studies have shown that even on the busiest day not more than 10 percent of the boats on the lake are in use. Mathis pointed out that situation may occur precisely because the lake is overcrowded with boats.

The board decided to delay consideration of the matter until it has established its priorities for the upcoming year. A joint meeting with planners in the City of Walled Lake will be scheduled in February.

OBITUARIES

THEODORE ERICKSON

Theodore Martin Erickson, a Commerce Township resident since 1975, died December 6 at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac. Pastor Robert Shade of Shepherd of the Lakes Lutheran Church officiated at December 9 services at Lynch & Sons (Richardson-Bird Chapel) in Walled Lake.

The son of John and Hanna (Hendricksen) Erickson, he was born in Minnesota May 1, 1925, and was 58 at the time of his death.

A sales engineer for Park Metal Products and a self-employed salesman for many other companies, Mr. Erickson was a veteran of World War II with both the U.S. Army and Air Force. A 1948 graduate of Michigan Technological University, he was active in the Electrical Engineering Society of Detroit and North Farmington Little League baseball.

He is survived by his wife, Margery, and three children: Mrs. William (Natalie) Sherron of Fort Wayne, Howard Erickson of Commerce and Mrs. Craig (Christine) Meyers of Fenton. Four brothers, three sisters and one grandchild also survive.

Interment was at Commerce Cemetery. The family asks memorials be sent to the American Diabetes Association.

DICK ROACH

A memorial service for Dick Benjamin Roach, a former Walled Lake resident, was held November 20 at the LaMesa Presbyterian Church in California.

Mr. Roach owned and operated construction and insurance businesses in Walled Lake from 1942 to 1959. In addition to several subdivisions in Oakland County, he constructed Maple Plaza in Walled Lake.

Mr. Roach perished while on a boating expedition through the Grand Canyon on the Colorado River on November 10-11. According to a report in The Daily Californian, Mr. Roach, 71, and Richard Shepersky, 50, disappeared shortly after leaving on the boating expedition. The men's 12-foot V-boat was found about nine miles south of Lee's Ferry where they had launched the craft on the evening of November 11.

Both men were experienced with boating on the Colorado River, having made several fishing expeditions over the past 10 years, according to the account in The Daily Californian.

The son of Herbert and Florence Roach, Mr. Roach was born August 21, 1912, and was 71 at the time of his death. He was a Walled Lake resident until 1959 when he moved to California following his retirement.

He was a past member of the First Baptist Church of Walled Lake. He is survived by his wife, Ione Wissinger Roach, and seven children: Mrs. Bill (Nancy) Fish and Mrs. William (Mary) McGee, both of Arizona; and Mrs. Mike (Dixie) Boush, Ann Sanderson, Mike, Tom and Dan—all of California. Also surviving are two brothers, Tim of Union Lake and Josh of Texas, and two sisters, Mrs. Mark (Alene) Sparks and Mrs. Erik (Joyce) Lightfoot, both of Walled Lake. Eleven grandchildren also survive.

The family asks that memorials be sent to the Heart Fund.

IRENE S. RIVARD

Funeral service for area resident Irene S. Rivard will be held at 11 a.m. today (Wednesday) at Casterline Funeral Home in Northville. The Reverend Eric Hammar of the Northville Methodist Church will officiate. Burial will be at Oakland Hills Cemetery.

Mrs. Rivard, a resident of South Lyon, died December 17 at the Oakland County Medical Facility in Pontiac. She was 64.

A homemaker, she was born in Missouri February 9, 1919, to Arthur and her son Anthony and Joseph of South Lyon.

Survivors include her husband Vincent and her sons Anthony and Joseph of South Lyon.

Other survivors include her brothers Duane Revor of Louisiana, Leo Revor of Gladwin, Virgil Revor of Taylor and Leo Revor of Rose City.

She also is survived by four grandchildren.

Norman LePage (left) lined up some pretty impressive help when he hosted a gala Christmas party for area families at his Nifty Norman's restaurant in Walled Lake Saturday. Helping serve up the dinner were LePage, 52nd District Court Judge Harold Bulgarelli, Wolverine Council Member Pat Howarth, Mary Kupovitz of the Walled Lake Fish Closet and Michael Batchick, another 52nd District Court judge. Members of the Walled Lake and Wolverine Lake councils as well as police chiefs and Village Manager John Berchold volunteered their time to help LePage make the holiday season a happier time for the invited guests. LePage and village residents also presented Kupovitz a $200 check to help with the Christmas food program.

Village considers park master plans

WOLVERINE—More than $50,000 in park improvements were recommended to the village council by the recreation board last week.

The master plan for park improvements was completed by the recreation board in October. It was presented at the November village council meeting, but tabled pending completion of a detailed map of the park area including recommended improvements.

At its December 14 meeting, the council unanimously approved the master parklands map showing areas that will be targeted for improvements. However, the council tabled consideration of the specific improvements until the January council meeting.

Approval of the map enables Administrator John Berchold to complete grant applications which must be submitted in January.

The plan includes a $20,000 bicycle path from Glangery to Terry Street and from Brisbane to the Clara Miller Park cul-de-sac; a gravel parking lot off Glangery for an estimated cost of $7,000 and one off Brisbane for an estimated $5,000; a $7,000 fitness course beginning at the Glangery parking area and a $5,000 "tot lot," also off the Glangery parking area.

In addition, the board recommends about $1,200 worth of new tables and grills, $5,000 worth of landscaping and a nine-hole disc (frisbee) course at an estimated cost of $3,000.

The improvements would be funded through community development block grant funds. There presently is no plan for completing the suggested improvements. Berchold said. The council must still decide which improvements, if any, it wants to proceed with and how much block grant money it will allocate for those improvements. Berchold noted he would only recommend projects that could be completed within one year, rather than risking a loss of funding for an incomplete project.

A White Christmas?

It's still uncertain whether the Novi-Walled Lake area will enjoy a good old-fashioned white Christmas. But there was enough of the white stuff on the ground last week for Jeremy Brandon to roll around and build into what appears to be a healthy start toward a snowman. (News photo by John Galloway)

City manager question revived workable situation," he commented. "You have an assistant to the mayor who also serves council. There is no need to alter the present assistant to the mayor's position."

Metala's motion was approved with opposing votes from Council Members William Wylie and Wayne Glessner. After the vote, Glessner said he recognized that there had been past discussions about creating a city manager but that alternatives should be examined in the future.

"There is no one here who is at more opposite poles with Mr. Lentz than I am. The man was elected to office and he should be given a chance to show what he can do," said Glessner, who unsuccessfully ran against Lentz for mayor. "I can't do the things he said, we will have two years of a bad situation."

Then the people can throw him out of office."

Glessner said he would further urge the council to cooperate with Lentz. "He has earned that right by being elected to office," he added.

The council needed to delay action on the city manager question to allow for additional study, Wylie commented. He said he did support the need for city manager form of government in the future.

A resolution placing an advisory question on the ballot concerning the necessary charter revision was approved with Wylie and Glessner opposing.

Council had removed the question from the November ballot after being advised that the charter review could not be restricted to a particular area. That issue was raised again at last week's meeting.

"You have to comply with the statutes in order to change the charter," Connelly said. "A complete revision of the charter will take place."

If the council were to create a city manager position by ordinance as allowed in the charter, the status quo would be maintained, Council Member Nancy Dingledy commented. "You would maintain the status quo except that you would have a city manager," she added. "The ordinance would not give any specific powers."

Connelly agreed that the position could be created by council. The power structure within the city could not be changed, he said, without revising the charter.

The charter cannot be revised by ordinance. Voters must approve opening the charter for review and elect a nine-member charter review commission.

The commission will offer revisions on the next general election ballot.

Metala said Bonczek was not willing to serve as city manager but might hold the post as an interim measure. Despite statements indicating he would fire current Mayor Assistant Stephen Bonczek, Lentz said he had not yet decided if Bonczek should serve as interim assistant until a replacement is found. "I will probably get resumes and do interviews to find a new assistant," Lentz said.

"It is time for a change in government. Certain things need to be done for the city to function well," Metala said. "In three weeks we will no longer have anyone qualified to create these things for council. I want to make sure we have someone qualified to do this."

Connelly was to draft an ordinance for council and present it on December 27. An election date may be established at that time.

Forbes jury trial scheduled in January which Forbes pleaded guilty. He was released on probation, Lingenefer said.

In 1982, Forbes again was arrested, this time on two counts of first degree criminal sexual conduct (penetration) and two counts of second degree criminal sexual conduct, Lingenefer reported. The alleged incident involved a 12-year-old girl.

Forbes pleaded guilty to one count of each and was placed on probation for three years. The maximum sentence for conviction of first degree criminal sexual conduct was life imprisonment, Lingenefer said.

After the school girl's report that the man she identified as Forbes had been watching and following her, White Lake police sought a warrant for Forbes arrest on charges of being a disorderly person by annoying and annoying. But 52nd District Judge Martin Boyle refused to sign the warrant because of the upcoming Thanksgiving holiday. Instead, Forbes was mailed a "come in" letter asking him to appear in court Wednesday, November 30.

At his arraignment before Batchik Thursday, December 1, Forbes stood mute to the charge. Batchik set bail at $100 personal bond and told Forbes he was free to go until his pre-trial this week.

The mother of the Dublin patrol girl said she wanted to see Forbes restricted from being near school buildings and children.

"I can't even get a babysitter," the mother of the patrol girl said. "The kids are scared to death."

Another mother at the courthouse December 20 said her daughter refuses to take the school bus. Other mothers in the Dublin area have formed a car pool to drive their children one or two blocks to school.

"I used to think it was safe for them to walk two blocks to school," said one parent.

Parents have written "letters of concern" to Oakland County Circuit Judge Robert Tempin, who is responsible for Forbes' probation status in the 1982 case. According to Dublin principal David Crawford, the parents were encouraged to write "sincere letters expressing concern."

Village to replace dilapidated truck

WOLVERINE — Christmas came early to the village department of public works this year.

The village council last week authorized purchase of a new DPW truck, replacing the 11-year old vehicle presently in use.

Village Administrator John Berchold described the recommended purchase as an "emergency need." The older truck was being repaired when it was needed to salt icy roads recently, and additional breakdowns are inevitable, DPW worker Jeff Miller said. "If (the Occupational Safety Health Administration) were out today, they'd red tag it," Miller added, noting that the door on the driver's side is about 12 feet off, the gas tank leaks and the brakes and clutch need repair.

The new truck will be purchased from GMC Truck and Coach of Pontiac for $34,000. The council appropriated $2,800 in the 1983-84 village budget to cover repair and maintenance of the old truck. To meet an $8,600 down payment requirement, the council approved using an additional $5,800 from the village's surplus fund.

Nearly $2,500 worth of camera equipment and jewelry were stolen from a house in the 4000 block of Hunting Cross. The owner reported the front door of the house was kicked in.

Stolen were an $800 35mm camera, a $300 16mm lens, a $200 28mm lens, a $200 camera case, a $100 strobe light, $200 in miscellaneous filters and lenses, a $300 ring, $100 in women's jewelry and a $150 class ring.

A $1,600 axle was stolen from a truck parked at J. Henderson, Incorporated, 21568 Seely Road. The owner reported the truck was inside a fenced parking area when the theft occurred. A hole was cut in the fence to gain access to the truck.

The manager of Radio Shack, 41750 Ten Mile, reported the theft of a portable computer valued at nearly $800 between 4-5 p.m. December 12. The manager reported that approximately 10 customers were in the store during that period.

An undetermined amount of jewelry and camera equipment was stolen from a home in the 4000 block of Ladene. Police said the thief apparently gained entry through a kitchen doorway.

Stolen were two gold medallions and 18 karat gold chains, an opal dinner ring, two pairs of earrings and a 35mm camera.

A $400 tool box, a $250 AM-FM cassette player and a $45 jacket were stolen from an automobile parked in the Test score overview highlights progress

WALLED LAKE — A four-year review of Michigan Educational Assessment Program test results showed instruction in Walled Lake schools may be weakest between seventh and tenth grade.

Dr. Sami Alam, director of research, told the school board last week that the content of the MEAP tests varies greatly between seventh and tenth grade, making grade level comparisons difficult. Nevertheless, 70 percent of the seventh grade students in 1980 scored between 75 and 100 percent on their math test. In 1983, when many of these same students took the tenth grade math test, only 68 percent scored in between 75 and 100 percent.

"We ought to be doing a better job between seventh and tenth grade," Alam said.

The MEAP tests are given each fall to all fourth, seventh and tenth graders. The tests measure minimal performance on objectives in reading and mathematics. Each objective is tested by a set of three questions. The student is said to have attained the objective if two of the three questions are answered correctly. Twenty-five percent of the test items are changed each year, Alam explained.

All third, sixth and eighth graders take the California Achievement Test each fall. The CAT assesses a third grader's performance in phonics analysis, structural analysis, vocabulary, comprehension, spelling, language and mathematics.

The sixth and eighth graders are tested in vocabulary, comprehension, spelling, language, mathematics and reference skills.

Alam noted that 80 percent of the fourth graders achieved 75-100 percent of the reading objectives on the MEAP test. Last year 78 percent of the fourth graders scored 75-100 percent in reading.

Eighty-two percent of the fourth graders attained more than 75 percent of the math objectives on the MEAP test, while only 68 percent of the 1982 fourth graders achieved this level.

In the seventh grade, scores on the reading test increased two percent over last year, from 83 percent of the students attaining 75-100 percent of the objectives to 85 percent.

In math, 80 percent of the seventh graders achieved 75-100 of the MEAP objectives, compared to 77 percent in 1982.

Eighty-five percent of the tenth graders achieved 75-100 percent of the reading objectives, compared to 79 percent last year.

Sixty-nine percent of the tenth graders achieved 75-100 percent of the math objectives, compared to 67 percent in 1982.

"Although the performance of our third, sixth and eighth grade youngsters is generally above the national norms, the need is still apparent for continued improvements in spelling skills at the lower elementary level and in language usage at all grade levels."

— Dr. Sami Alam,
Walled Lake Schools

"In spite of the continued improvement... of our youngsters on the MEAP, there continues to be a need to work toward greater improvements in the following mathematics skill areas: fractions, metric measurement, ratio, proportion and percent and geometry," Alam reported.

"Greater improvement appears to be warranted in the areas of critical reading and related study skills at the lower elementary level," he added.

Results of the CAT indicate Walled Lake's third graders are one month above the national norm in reading comprehension, compared to an achievement of one month below the norm for the 1982 group of third graders, Alam noted.

"Although the performance of our third, sixth and eighth grade youngsters is generally above the national norms, the need is still apparent for continued improvements in spelling skills at the lower elementary level and in language usage at all grade levels," Alam reported.

Sixth graders scored four months above the national norm in reading comprehension, while eighth graders averaged 13 months above the norm.

In math, third graders scored two months above the norm; sixth graders two months above the norm; and eighth graders 10 months above the norm.

In language usage, third graders performed at the national norm while sixth graders performed an average of three months above the national norm on the language test. Eighth graders averaged two months above the national norm in their language skills.

Recreation department offers winter programs

NOVI — Bowling, basketball, cross-country skiing and polo-polo are among the winter programs for children and adults being scheduled by the Novi Parks and Recreation Department.

Here's a short rundown of the new winter programs:

• Basketball Basics is an introduction to the fundamentals of basketball for girls and boys in the second and third grades. All classes will be taught in the Novi Woods gym which has eight-foot baskets.

Session One begins January 11 and is offered every Wednesday for five weeks from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. The fee is $5.

Session Two begins March 1 and is offered every Wednesday for five weeks from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. The fee is $5.

• Bowling skills for youngsters and adults are taught by an expert instructor at the Novi Bowl on Novi Road, beginning January 10 and running for four weeks. Adult bowling is offered on Tuesdays from 9:30 a.m. to noon and youth bowling (age six and up) is offered on Tuesdays from 4:30 to 6 p.m. The fee is $12 for both youth and adults.

• Bill Koch Cross-country Ski League teaches the fundamentals of competitive cross-country skiing for 6-13 year old boys and girls. The program will meet Thursday afternoons at Lakeshore Park. An informational meeting will be held Thursday, January 5, at 6:30 p.m. at Parks and Recreation offices on Sixtgate.

• Polo Polo, a game played with padded sticks and a foam ball, is offered for boys and girls in grades K-2. New teams are formed each week and there's a limit of 15 students at each school.

Session One begins January 9 and runs for five weeks. Polo Polo is offered at Orchard Hills on Mondays, Novi Woods on Tuesdays and Village Oaks on Thursdays. All sessions run from 9:15 to 4:15 p.m. and there is a fee of $5.

For more information on all Parks and Recreation programs call 349-1976 Monday through Friday during regular working hours.

Area churches schedule special holiday services

NOVI — Churches will celebrate the birth of the Christ Child with special Christmas Eve and Christmas Day services this Saturday and Sunday, December 24-25.

Special services have been announced by the following churches:

Good Shepherd Evangelical Lutheran Church in Novi will celebrate Christmas with special services on Christmas Eve at 7 p.m. and Christmas Day at 10 a.m.

The church's newly-formed choir will premier for the first time in the Christmas services.

The highlight of Christmas Eve will be an enactment of the Christmas story by Sunday school children. The service will close with a candle-lighting ceremony, dramatizing the coming of the Light of the World to each participant.

Services will be at the Novi Community Building on Novi Road, just south of I-96. Pastor Gene Jalnke said the entire community is invited to celebrate "the coming of God, our Savior, to earth."

The Spirit of Christ Lutheran Church invites the Novi community to share the Christmas season by worshipping with them.

On Christmas Eve, the congregation will meet for a Candlelight Service at 7:30 p.m. The church is located at 40700 West Ten Mile between Meadowbrook and Haggerty roads. Friends and neighbors will sing carols and light candles.

On Christmas Day the congregation will celebrate the birth of Christ at 10 a.m. worship service.

Holy Communion will be served at both Christmas Eve and Christmas Day services.

Pastor Thomas Scherger said Spirit of Christ Lutheran Church is especially joyful this holiday season as it celebrates its first Christmas as a newly-merged congregation. The former congregations of Freedom Lutheran Church and Living Lord Lutheran Community were united this summer.

"The merger is helping the new congregation better serve the community and share in the good news of Christ's birth," said Scherger.

'Yes, Virginia,
there really is ...'

Children usually start to question the existence of Santa Claus around the age of 10. That's pretty much accepted, but what nobody ever told you before is that they never really stop questioning the existence of Saint Nick until they're considerably older. Take last week, for instance, as the combination Christmas/bowling party for senior citizens at the Novi Bowl in Novi. Thanks to the Novi Parks and Recreation Department, Santa showed up as scheduled. But darned if there weren't at least a few doubting souls who had to tug on his beard and poke at his belly to determine that it was the real Santa Claus... not some hired imposter. (News photo by Steve Fecht)

Telephone lines opened for drunk driving reports

OAKLAND COUNTY — How often in past holiday seasons have you seen, or been endangered by, a drunk driver on the roads? How often did you wish there was something you could do about it?

This season, there is, for drivers in Oakland County. The Traffic Improvement Association of Oakland County (TIAOC) operates the year-round REDDI-line. Simply dial 1-800-MI-REDDI to report a drunk driver.

REDDI stands for Report Every Drunk Driver Immediately. REDDI operators answer the call at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department and will dispatch a deputy, state trooper or local officer to investigate reports.

If the officer locates the car described and observes erratic driving behavior, he will stop, observe, test and arrest the driver if warranted. The caller can remain anonymous.

To make a REDDI report as effective as possible, the caller should provide location (the name of the street or highway with approximate cross streets) with the direction the car was traveling, the time the caller saw the drunk driver, the type of car, its color and license plate number.

Erratic driving behavior described below can be an indication that the driver is drunk. It may also indicate the driver is ill or otherwise needs help, a call to REDDI can provide that help. Law enforcement officials advise to watch for:

• Failure to turn on headlights at night or failure to dim bright headlights for oncoming traffic;
• Driving very slowly with an intent, straight-ahead stare;
• A tendency to stop short of an intersection or to stop in the middle of it;

• Frequent and erratic braking;
• Weaving from lane to lane or straddling the center line;

• Driving with an open window in cold or wet weather.

Any of these may be the behavior of a drunk driver; statistics show such drivers are at least 20 times more likely than sober drivers are to have an accident.

REDDI-organizers advise that those observing a vehicle operated in such a manner do not attempt to stop the vehicle, do not exceed speed limits or disregard traffic signals while attempting to follow the car, and do not attempt to assist law enforcement officers who stop the car.

According to the TIAOC, REDDI programs in other parts of the country show that one of eight reports results in apprehension and charging a drunk driver.

Drivers with CB radios are advised to use Channel 9 to contact a monitor, such as REACT, then ask the monitor to telephone the REDDI number and relay the information. Remain in contact with the monitor handling your call.

Wolverine will pay less for library, fire services

WOLVERINE — Fire protection, library service and participation in a parkland acquisition program will cost the village about $7,000 less in 1984 than it did in 1983.

The village council last week agreed to pay Commerce Township $61,770 for fire and library services in 1984. A portion of this sum also goes toward establishing parkland for the benefit of both communities.

Township Supervisor Robert Long said the payment was based on the same millage rate charged township residents for fire and library services and the parkland program. However, because the township is limited on the amount of millage it can assess the village, payment for these services is made according to a contract.

The $61,770 includes about $12,000 for library services, about $29,800 for fire service and about $19,400 for the parkland program.

Last year the village paid $68,680 for the same services. Long said the reduction is due to a decrease in the amount owed this year on a land contract with the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority (HCMA) for the purchase of parkland within the township.

The two communities agreed to purchase the 267-acre HCMA parkland in 1980. Until the state limited the amount of taxes a township can levy against villages last year, the township levied one mill for the parkland.

Santa reveals list of Christmas gifts

Santa Claus took time from his busy schedule to call us long distance last week. It seems his elves were nearly ready to pack up the sleigh when Santa found a few things missing.

In looking over the stack of goodies Santa discovered his helpers left out all the presents for local officials. Santa decided the only thing to do was place an emergency call to the Novi-Walled Lake News staff to find out what he should bring.

As a regular subscriber to The Novi-Walled Lake News, Santa knew he could count on our staff for fair, objective views on who should get gifts and who deserves lumps of coal.

We told Santa he could count on us, but in return he had to promise we could have exclusive rights to print the list of Christmas presents for area residents.

Here it is:

A classroom full of roses for the Novi School employees, the school board and the administration for setting contracts nine months early, sparing the community the turmoil it went through at the beginning of the 1982 school district.

A bunch of asparagus to the scrooges in Wixom who paid more attention to politics than the spirit of the holiday season and decided not to invite Mayor-Elect Gary Lentz to the city Christmas party.

For Novi Mayor Robert Schmid a lifetime supply of asterisks and Novi Citizens' Name Pronunciation Guide. The adhesive backed asterisks can be stuck on agendas — next to the items that require a rollcall vote. And a pronunciation guide will be useful when it comes to handing out proclamations, welcoming new fire fighters or honoring citizens for their work in the community. First name in the guide: Balagna.

Two undisturbed hours in a sensory deprivation tank for Walled Lake Schools Superintendent Don Sheldon. Santa decided Sheldon deserves a rest to unravel nerves frazzled by sitting through a 12-hour confrontation with the school board in July, dealing with conflicts caused by five months of contract negotiations, and waiting for the December 6 millage election results.

Commerce Township Supervisor Robert Long will find a pair of soccer shorts underneath his Christmas Tree, so he can be appropriately dressed to try out the soccer field in Maple Glen Park. Santa decided that was the least he could do for the township supervisor after learning Long donated his six percent salary increase to help build the park's soccer field.

Santa promised gifts for each of the City of Novi's consultants. For planning consultant Charles Cairns, who seems to get hit upside the head at every meeting, a padded helmet to ease the blows. A special litmus paper that turns purple whenever an opinion that is "too political" is typed on it, for attorney David Fried. And a special paper also goes to engineering consultants JCK and Associates. After changing their name for the fourth time in five years the company gets the latest in paper products. It has erasable ink in the letterhead.

A pair of specially equipped flashlight shoes for navigating dark backyard decks without handrails to Walled Lake City Manager J. Michael Dornan, who broke his foot earlier in the year when he accidentally exited the wrong direction off the aforementioned deck.

For its consistency in following Robert's First Rule of Order (The length of the agenda bears no relationship to the length of the meeting) the Novi Planning Board receives absolutely nothing. But for their diligent work on the Town Center ordinance and the hours they put into meeting with local businessmen to explain the restrictions planners get the next two weeks off.

Walled Lake school board member Merlin Reeds gets coal in his stocking this year for abstaining from the vote approving the three-year contract agreement with the teachers association in October. Furthermore, if Reeds is to be included on the goodies list next Christmas, Santa said he must write out 100 times the board's five page list of 1983-84 goals for better communication between the board and the public.

A handbook on Michigan's flora and fauna to Garlick Brothers, the contractors who overzealously cleared the Mill Race in Commerce Township. And a case of wildflower seeds to appease the members of the Township Historical Society who got more than they bargained for in the clearing of the site.

Tuition to attend Sewer Building 101, a course on how to plan, fund and construct a sewer system while avoiding a recall election, for all members of the Wixom City Council and the Commerce Township Board.

Honorary admission into the real estate brokers Hall of Fame for Novi City Manager Edward Kriewall, who convinced council members to buy property for a Department of Public Works building and lake frontage for road-right-of-way all in one year.

For Walled Lake City Council Member Jim Clifton, a scrapbook of laudatory editorials from the News. Clifton will have additional clippings for his scrapbook each time he decides to resign, and then return to the city council again.

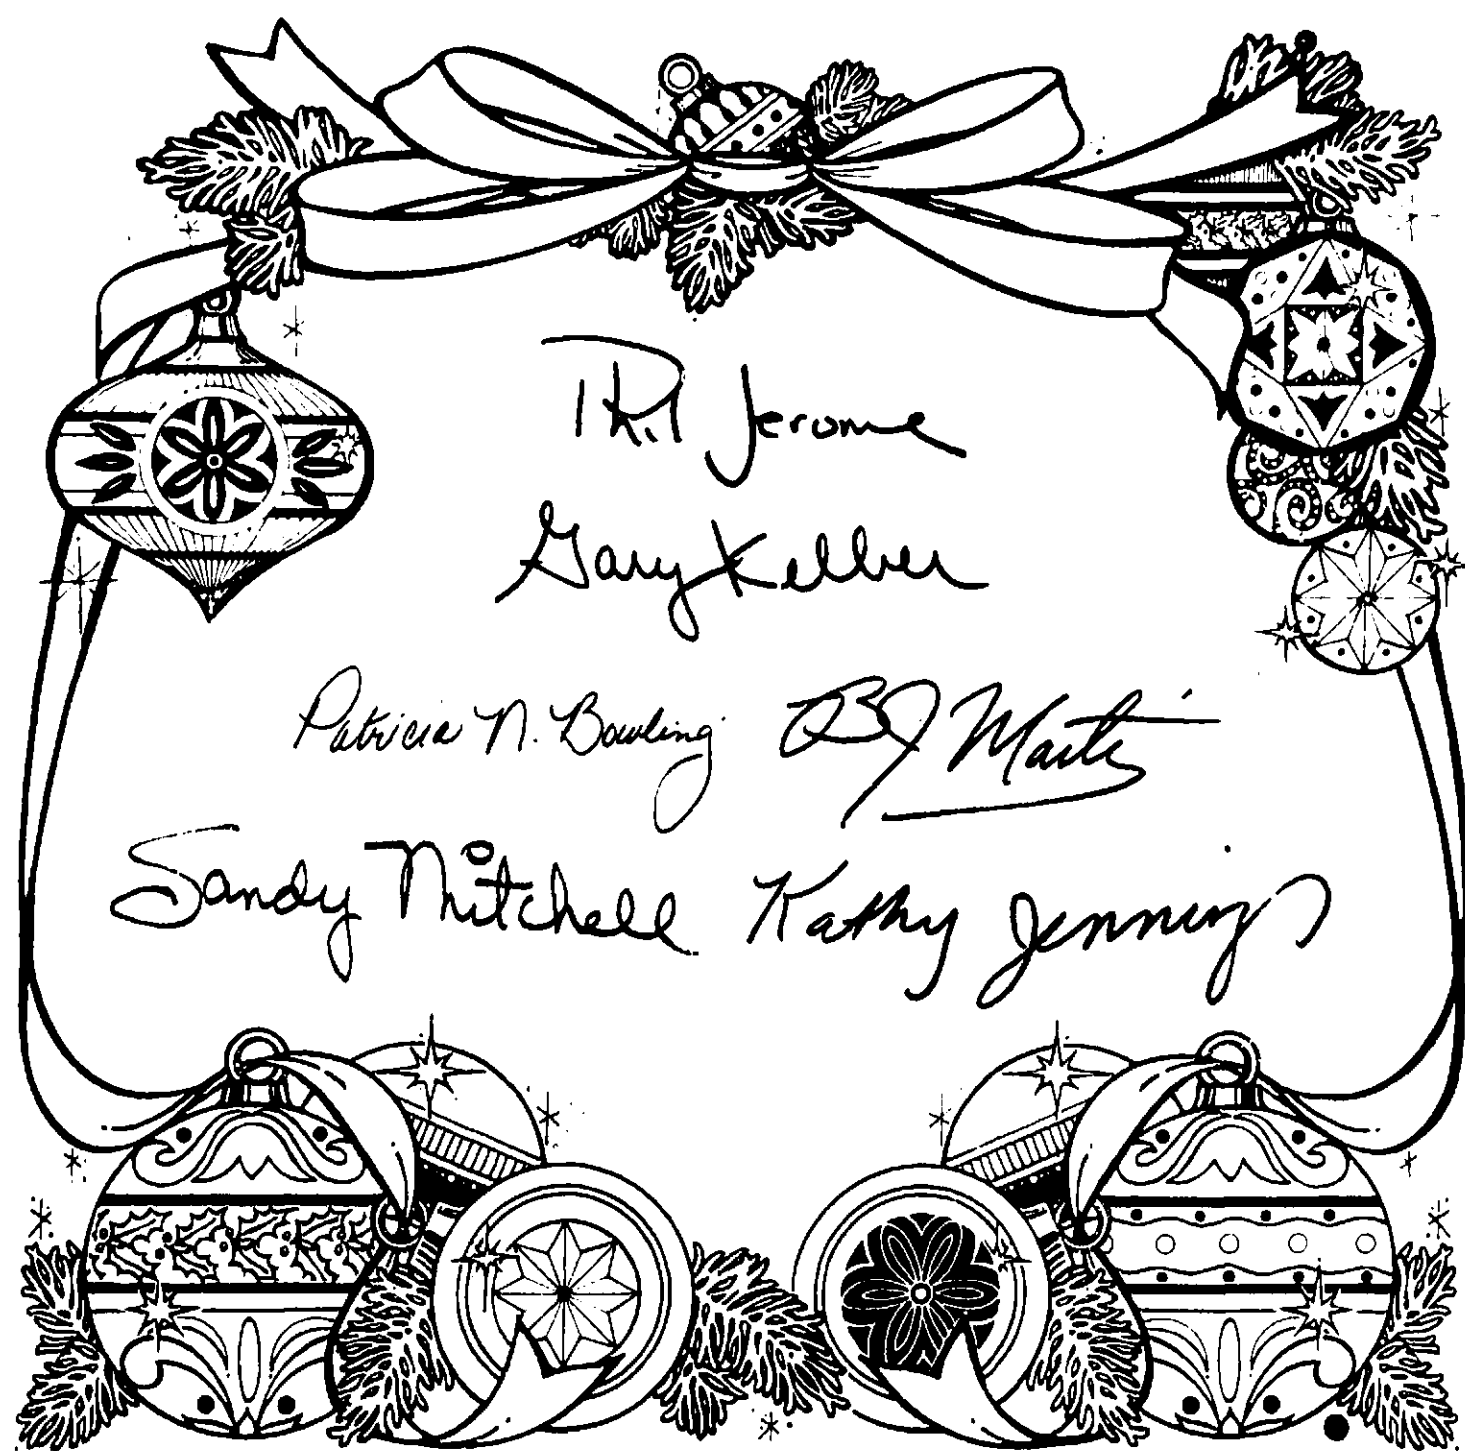

For Village Administrator John Berchold, two blue bonnets, a pair of baseball gloves and two boy's tricycles. Sorry John, even Santa was betting on boys!

A pear tree, perfect for partridges, goes to former Novi council member James Shaw's for his insistence that there be a concerted effort to revegetate the barren spots on the municipal complex at Ten Mile and Taft. The tree will be planted, where else, on the municipal site.

A copy of "A Layman's Guide to Asphalt Pavement" for members of the Wolverine Village Council who spent over two hours at one meeting debating the merits of three-inch asphalt over 2½-inch asphalt without reaching any conclusion.

An oversized backpack and a discount on AAA trip-tiks for outgoing Wixom Mayor Lillian Spencer who intends to do a lot of traveling when she steps down in January.

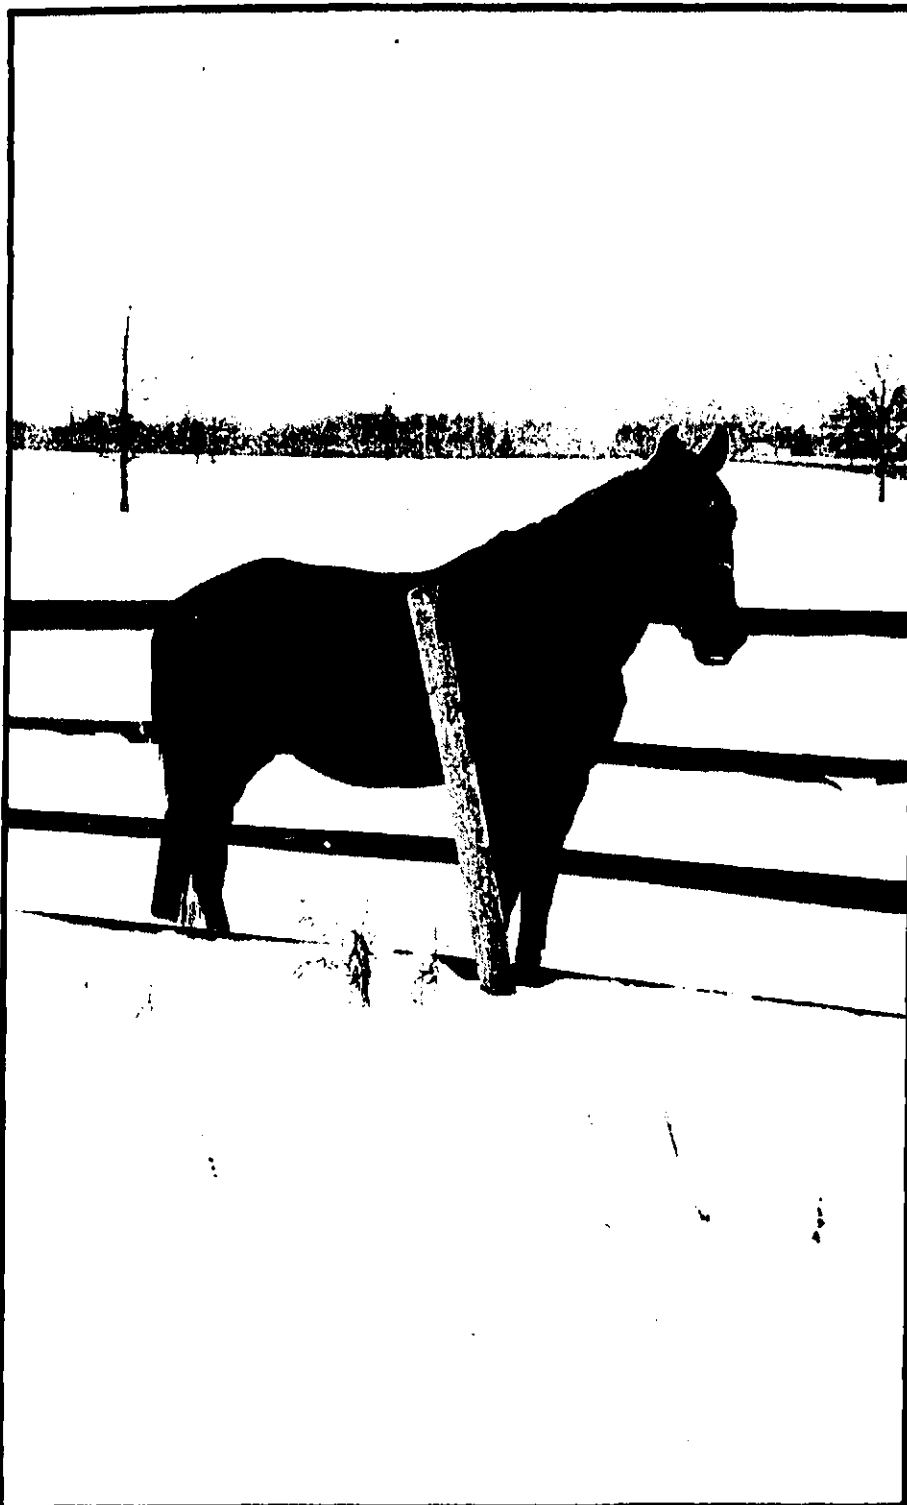

A joint trip to the Hoover Dam for members of the Novi and Walled Lake city councils. On the 10-day bus trip the two governmental bodies can explore "social and environmental implications of shared aquatic resources between two independent municipal units" or how to agree on establishing a lake level.

Dark horse

After the fact

By PHILIP JEROME

Christmas is staring me in the face and I confess to not yet having caught the Christmas spirit.

My Christmas shopping isn't done. I didn't find time to string up the outdoor lights. And we haven't even decorated our tree yet.

But the most immediate problem is to churn out a column about Christmas. I've got something like two hours left to do it; there's still five days to string lights, decorate trees and finish my shopping.

On the front of our second section this week, we feature stories about Christmas traditions. So it may be appropriate to tell you about a Christmas tradition in the Jerome household.

I don't mean our current household: my wife, her cats and myself. I mean the old Jerome homestead in Northville where my parents raised five children.

Always a great one for traditions, my mother decided one year that each of her children should buy an ornament for the tree each year. She dutifully marked each ornament with our names and the year it was purchased, and saved them over the years. We got them all back when we left to establish homes of our own. As a result, each of us had a small collection or ornaments for our own trees when we left home.

I didn't start the tradition until I was 14. And, being a practical sort, it occurred to me that I would have to buy ornaments faster than my younger brothers and sisters if I was going to have a suitable collection when I hit 21.

And so, the first year, I went out and bought a box of 12 shiny green balls to hang on the tree.

I've still got those 12 balls. They're so durable that we always hang them at the bottom of the tree because the cats can't break them.

We have lots of ornaments now. Special imported trinkets from Mexico, Germany, Sweden — the best that Bronner's has to offer.

But every year, after the tree is decorated and we step back to admire our work, my wife and I always agree that the 12 green balls spread around the bottom are the most beautiful items on the tree. Merry Christmas, everyone.

Budding ballerinas

And you thought elementary school dance recitals were cute, not realizing the hours and hours of demanding work required of budding ballerinas before they make public appearances. Jennifer Visos, 7, is shown here getting ready for a recital at Novi's Orchard Hills Elementary School last week. The recital culminated weeks of work by the young dancers in a ballet class sponsored by the Novi Community Education Department. (News photo by Steve Fecht)

Approvals granted for office building

WALLED LAKE — Plans for a 10,120-square-foot medical office building were approved by the plan commission last week.

Dr. A.T. Zadeh, medical director of the West Oakland Ambulatory Care Center, said recently he already has more than 12 specialists interested in office space in his new facility. Construction of the eight-unit building in front of Zadeh's ambulatory care center on Pontiac Trail is to begin in about two months.

The plan commission's approval of the site plans is subject to the review of City Engineer Alex Moleff and City Planner Tod Kilroy. Planning Commission Chairperson Kenneth Tucker said the site plans appeared to include all necessary items with the exception of the cost of the sidewalk. The commission unanimously approved the plans.

The office complex is to contain eight separate office units, each a minimum of 1,100-square feet. Those interested in retaining one of these units include specialists in pediatrics, internal medicine, general surgery, obstetrics and gynecology, urology, plastic surgery, psychiatry and orthopedics, Zadeh said. Each unit will be designed according to the specialists' specifications, he added.

Zadeh, a general surgeon with offices at 1555 Pontiac Trail, said the medical offices should be completed in May. Zadeh owns 30 acres in the vicinity of the ambulatory care center. He has said he would like to develop the entire area into a "medical office community."

NOVI — The temperature is well below freezing and it's been snowing all night. Do you send your children to school?

The Novi Consolidated Schools have announced the procedure for getting your question answered.

Assistant Superintendent William Barry reported that announcements of school closings during severe weather conditions will be announced by 8 a.m. over the following radio stations — WJL, WJR, WXYZ and CKLW.

Parents are asked to tune into one of these stations before calling the schools for more information. If everyone attempts to call the schools, the switchboard becomes flooded, prohibiting district officials from dealing with emergency situations.

If it is necessary to call the schools, the phone number is 348-1200.

Thank you to Father Tim Scott and Lyn Hamilton who literally lifted half of my responsibilities off my shoulders by agreeing to supervise the distribution of millage literature in the northern half of the school district.

Thank you to all the Walled Lake Central students and their parents who gave of their time to help Father Tim and Mrs. Hamilton, most especially Scott Moir, Keith Artega and Sara Donald who served as liaisons between our committee and the Central students.

In organizing the southern half of our district I worked with some very special people and made some new friends along the way. Thank you to Barb Changas, Nancy Davis, Karen Crawford and Bill Cheek. I would choose these people for any committee any time. When they said something would be done, I learned that I could put it out of my mind from then on because it would be done.

Thank you to all the parents and young people who took the time and responsibility for seeing specific areas were covered for distribution. There were many students from Walled Lake Western and Walled Lake Junior High who helped and I can't mention them all here. I would like to single out Michelle Murdoch who served as liaison between our committee and the Western student body.

A very special thank you needs to be handed out to the Walled Lake/Novi News for their absolutely fantastic coverage of the crisis in this school district. The human interest stories as well as the informative articles done by Pat Bowling were interesting and accurate. The editorials were well-written and accurate. Even criticisms were done in a constructive manner.

The News upheld the finest traditions of journalism by keeping the public well-informed.

The last thank you goes to all the supporters who ventured out in terrible weather to cast their votes. We did it!

To the Editor:

Your editorial of November 20 dealt extensively with the need for a "yes" vote by voters in the Walled Lake Consolidated School District in the December 6 millage election. Only brief mention of the financial impact on already heavily taxed property owners was mentioned. This impact can be much more significant to owners of farmland in the district than the $10 to $15 per month cited.

It would behoove the citizens who have any lasting belief in the private ownership of property to seek and promote other means of financing the operation of their school systems. Property taxation has reached the confiscatory point.

Superintendent Don Sheldon's reported comments following the millage adoption vote that he can't remember anything that's been more satisfying or more exciting reflect sentiments that are not shared by all taxpayers who are faced with footing the bill.

A Christmas gift

To the Editor:

During this festive holiday season it is customary to give gifts to those who have helped to make the current year a better one in which to live. With that thought in mind, I would like to present the biggest, brightest and best gift that we can give to the staff of The Walled Lake-Novi News from all of the students and staff at Walled Lake

Western High School. Our gift is one of gratitude.

During 1983 your newspaper has given consistent coverage to all of the events of our high school. Each week we can expect to see our scholars, athletes, musicians, actors and actresses, and students featured on the pages of your newspaper. Your reporters cover our victories and defeats. You cover major events and those that only attract a limited following.

Your editorial pages this year called attention to our student body and its actions during the recent crisis in the Walled Lake Schools. Your positive coverage helped make our students believers in themselves and inspired a new sense of pride and identity.

It was a pleasure to see the students passing copies of your editorial around the halls and asking other students if they had seen the editorial. Your most recent editorial recognizing the Lady Warrior basketball team continued to emphasize the positive contributions of today's youth.

Your efforts have not gone unnoticed in the Walled Lake community. Parents frequently refer to your paper and the excellent coverage you give to our high school. Your responsible contribution to our community cannot be overestimated. In fact, for many of us, you're becoming the only newspaper in town.

Again, may I wish the very best to you and your fine staff during the holiday season and an even happier and more prosperous 1984.

Approvals granted for office building

WALLED LAKE — Plans for a 10,120-square-foot medical office building were approved by the plan commission last week. Dr. A.F. Zadeh, medical director of the West Oakland Ambulatory Care Center, said recently he already has more than 12 specialists interested in office space in his new facility. Construction of the eight-unit building in front of Zadeh's ambulatory care center on Pontiac Trail is to begin in about two months. The plan commission's approval of the site plans is subject to the review of City Engineer Alex Moisset and City Planner Ted Kilroy. Planning Commission Chairperson Kenneth Tucker said the site plans appeared to include all necessary items with the exception of the cost of the sidewalk. A Christmas gift

To the Editor:

During this festive holiday season it is customary to give gifts to those who have helped to make the current year a better one in which to live. With that thought in mind, I would like to present the biggest, brightest and best gift that we can give to the staff of The Walled Lake-Novi News from all of the students and staff at Walled Lake

Western High School. Our gift is one of gratitude.

During 1983 your newspaper has given consistent coverage to all of the events of our high school. Each week we can expect to see our scholars, athletes, musicians, actors and actresses, and students featured on the pages of your newspaper. Your reporters cover our victories and defeats. You cover major events and those that only attract a limited following.

Your editorial pages this year called attention to our student body and its actions during the recent crisis in the Walled Lake Schools. Your positive coverage helped make our students believers in themselves and inspired a new sense of pride and identity.

It was a pleasure to see the students passing copies of your editorial around the halls and asking other students if they had seen the editorial. Your most recent editorial recognizing the Lady Warrior basketball team continued to emphasize the positive contributions of today's youth.

Your efforts have not gone unnoticed in the Walled Lake community. Parents frequently refer to your paper and the excellent coverage you give to our high school. Your responsible contribution to our community cannot be underestimated; in fact, for many of us, you're becoming the only newspaper in town.

Again, may I wish the very best to you and your fine staff during the holiday season and an even happier and more prosperous 1984.

Richard Smith, principal, Walled Lake Western

Novi grapplers 2nd in Garden City meet

By B.J. MARTIN

Look out, world, the Novi wrestling team is on the move.

The Wildcat grapplers last week slapped a 33-24 defeat on Kensington Valley Conference (KVC) rival Pinckney and then finished second in the 16-team Garden City Invitational — the third time in three weeks that the team has taken second in a major tournament.

But is Wildcat wrestling coach Tom Fritz impressed? Bah, humbug.

"Second's like kissing your sister. I'm a little disappointed," he growled.

"I'm a little disappointed. Our lighter weights were coming through in the early season, saved a couple meets for us, in fact. But lately, they've been behind what our heavier guys are doing."

At the Garden City Invite on Saturday, Novi finished with 17½ points, just 4½ points behind Gibraltar Carlson which finished first with 180. It was the second time this year that the Marauders have denied the Wildcats of a tournament title.

"That's really kind of ironic," Fritz said. "Carlson coach Jim Rossow and I both used to coach at New Boston. We won't be seeing them again for a while."

Here of the week award goes to Ed Marech, a 108-pounder who has gone 9-0 since dropping down from heavyweight. Marech pinned his way to first place at the Garden City Invitational, dropping Bill Kille of Lutheran West at 1:39 of the final.

"Ed's been strictly awesome," Fritz said. "He even pinned Scott Kerr from Garden City, who was a state qualifier in Class A last year."

Taking seconds at the tilt were Brent Canup (11-6) and Steve McBride (15-2).

Canup, wrestling at 185 pounds, now has won seven of his last eight matches. According to Fritz, much of the reason for his success is his renewed confidence. "He's really starting to look good," Fritz declared.

Canup pinned his first three opponents before being pinned by Dave Scott of Livonia Churchill at 3:16 in the final.

McBride lost what Fritz called a "dynamite match" in the 165-pound final to Tom Touni of Lutheran West. "Touni was just an animal — he was named the outstanding wrestler of the tournament," Fritz said. Indeed, Touni pinned his first three rivals in 25 seconds, 12 seconds and 31 seconds. It took him 2:54 to put McBride on his back.

Mike Paquette (14-3) at 98, Charlie Brown (13-5) at 126, Eric Schuster (11-3) at 145 and Tim Ford (17-1) all took thirds. Ford's overtime loss to tourney champion Bill Bourdage of Dearborn Heights Divine Child in the semifinals was his first defeat of the season.

"Second's like kissing your sister. I'm a little disappointed."

— Tom Fritz, Novi mat coach

Ford's seeding at the tourney hurt the Wildcats. Despite a 13-0 record, Ford was seeded third and was unable to face Bourdage in the finals where he would have finished second.

Also placing at the Garden City tourney were Mike Vincent (12-7), who took fourth at 132, and recently-recruited heavyweight Tim Horstman, who took sixth.

Last Thursday, the Wildcats boosted their KVC record to 2-0 (6-2 overall) with a 33-24 victory over Pinckney. The Pirates had outpointed Novi in an earlier tournament, but it was a different story in Thursday's dual.

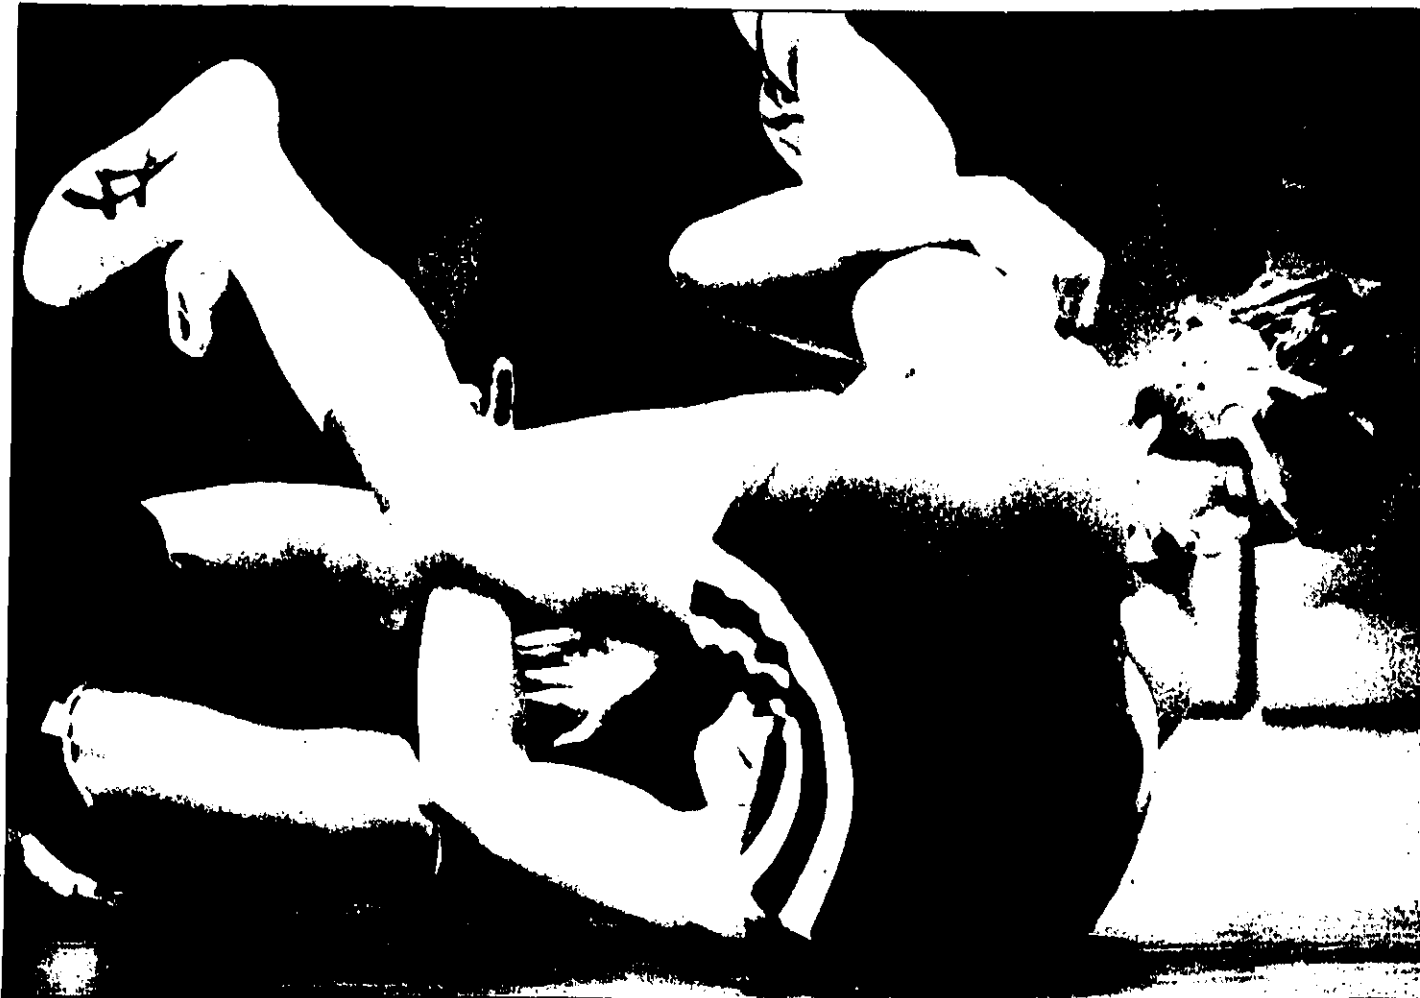

Paquette pinned Barry Lobbestael at 1:17 to start things off, then Nick Weaver (6-5) and 105-pounder Kurt Schuster (9-8) pulled off wins by pin and default, respectively.

The Pirates jumped back by pinning Todd Pietti at 1:12 points, taking a 12-11 decision over weight-cutting Mike Vincent (12-7) at 126 pounds and pinning Scott Borg, who was filling in for Brown at 132.

Ford and Eric Schuster won easy decisions, but McBride dropped a 2-0 contest to the Pirates' Geoff West. Dave Weber (6-4) got it back with a 5-3 win over Jerry Stenhaven at 135 pounds. "Dave did a real nice job there," Fritz noted. "That was a critical win and Dave's just coming back from a rib injury."

Canup (11-6) earned a 9-3 decision over Rick Spaw, giving Novi all the points it would need. For good measure, Marech gained a 5-3 decision at 198 before Novi defaulted at heavyweight.

Wildcat matmen are now on break for the holidays. They return to action Thursday, January 5, when they host Milford.

Team spirit boosts Western five

Walt Boehm must be doing something right with the Walled Lake Western basketball team. And what he's doing right may have something to do with team spirit.

The closeness that appears to be developing may well be responsible for the Warriors' surprising 2-3 record thus far. Western split its two Western Lakes Activities Association games last week, losing to Plymouth Salem and beating Livonia Churchill.

Boehm, in his first year as Western's coach, has consistently used all 14 players in the first five games and thus far the concept has worked.

"Everybody is important on this team. It will take our whole team to keep on winning," said Boehm.

"Most of the reaction among the parents and players has been positive."

"They want to win that's evident," he added. "I'm impressed with the way the kids have come along already. I feel real good being 2-3 at this point. We could very well be 5-5."

Western's 76-51 loss to Salem proved to Boehm his team still isn't capable of playing with the area's top teams. "Salem has a top caliber team," said Boehm. "We're definitely not ready for teams like that just yet."

The Rocks jumped out to an 18-7 first quarter lead and led 44-23 at the intermission.

Western fought back to within 12 points in the third quarter as it scored 17 points and held Salem to 14. But the Rocks turned it on in the final period, outscoring Western 18-11 to clinch the victory.

Mike Bulgarelli led Western in scoring with 14 points, while Kyle Chura had eight. Four other Western players scored four points apiece.

"We've still got to get our whole game together. We were flat on Friday," said Boehm.

In the 57-36 win over Churchill Troy Nichols and Dan Gabriele led Western scorers with 11 points each. Frank Paletta, Mike Cullen and Bulgarelli added six points apiece.

"We didn't play that well against Churchill," said Boehm. "We won in spite of ourselves. We gutted it out pretty well at the end."

Western led 16-15 after the first quarter, but Churchill rallied to lead 33-27 at the half and 44-39 after three quarters.

"We were down by seven early in the fourth quarter but the kids gutted it out. They wanted to win it and they did," Boehm said.

The Warriors outscored Churchill 18-12 in the final period to pull out the victory.

"The transition game is still our main problem right now," said Boehm. "We haven't had enough time to work on our full court game as much as we would like."

"I think we'll roll after Christmas and pick up some more wins," he added.

Western reopens its season on January 3 when it travels to Brighton for a non-league game. The squad then faces WLA for Northville on January 6.

Fisher leads Novi to cage victories

Novi's first home KVC contest last Friday was about as fast-paced as a glacier, but the Wildcats put together a 13-4 fourth quarter scoring advantage to hold off Pinckney 44-38.

Earlier in the week, the Wildcats used the same slow-paced strategy to knock off Clarenceville 44-39 in a non-conference game.

"We slowed it down to a walk," said Coach Ron Flutur of his revised offensive plan. "I felt we'd been out of control in our previous games."

"We've been trying to play deliberate ball because we've run into trouble when people put backcourt pressure on us. Basically, we want the kids to know we can slow it up and still win — but we're going to start taking our foot off the brake and putting it on the accelerator."

Against the Pirates, Novi's 6-5 center Dave Fisher kept things under control, all right. The big senior gunned in 20 points, including eight of 10 free throws, hauled in nine rebounds and blocked nine shots.

"They kept trying to take the ball inside and Dave just kept getting his hand up there and swatting it away," Flutur said. "Dave jumps well and his foul shooting has been a very pleasant addition."

Fisher leads the Wildcats in scoring with 15.4 points per game and is also averaging 6.6 rebounds and 3.6 blocked shots.

Forward Tully Gillick pumped in nine points and Greg Prost, six. But Novi hardly won the game with its offense — the Wildcats hit only 28 percent from the floor.

"I feel very fortunate to come out with a win because of that," Flutur added. "I think it's just because we were a little pumped up, playing on our home court."

"Basically, we want the kids to know we can slow it up and still win...."

— Ron Flutur, Wildcat coach

"We've been getting high-percentage shots — they're just not dropping."

What put the Wildcats over the top was a high-pressure defense that forced 11 turnovers in the final quarter, thanks in large part to the defensive work of Steve Cody, Cody, usually the Wildcats' starting point guard, sat out most of Friday's game with an inflamed coccyx, but as Flutur said, "We needed him."

Against Clarenceville earlier in the week, Novi never surrendered the lead after a 13-4 first-quarter edge despite Cody's absence (he should be fine by the Wildcats' next game). Fisher again had a big night, scoring 17 points, nabbing eight rebounds and blocking five shots.

Gillick snatched 16 rebounds and added 11 points on offense, where he and Fisher dominated inside play. Ken McKay continued his steady play, adding six assists (he is the team leader with 3.8 per game) and six rebounds.

Dave Black, who has taken over at point guard since Cody's injury, scored six points, as did forward Greg Prost.

The Wildcats (3-2 overall and 1-1 in KVC games) return to action at Milford on January 6.

Viking cagers split two 1-point games

Steve Emert would be perfect for razor blade commercials. The coach of the Walled Lake Central basketball team knows all about "too close for comfort."

The Vikings split two games last week. And the outcome of all five of their games so far this season has been three points or less.

In fact, both of last week's games were of the one-point variety. The Vikings turned back Livonia Bentley 55-54 on Tuesday and then dropped a 54-53 decision to Livonia Churchill on Friday.

"They're all going to be close," predicted Emert.

Close ones like the victory over Bentley are easier to live with. Central led the whole game, including a 42-36 lead going into the final quarter.

"The kids never lost their composure. That shows a lot of character," stated Emert.

Tom Cummings was Central's top scorer with 17 points. Rob Gardner added 16 points, while Clark Bock helped out with 10 points and 11 rebounds. Scott Norris contributed eight assists.

Central out-rebounded the much taller Bulldogs 32-25, and committed just 10 turnovers in posting their third win of the season.

The Vikings were not quite up to the task of winning another close one against Churchill. Central led by a point with 32 seconds left, but missed a shot that would have put them up by three.

After getting the ball back with 14 seconds left and still leading by a single point, the Vikings missed the front end of a one-and-one freethrow situation. Five seconds later Churchill hit a long jump shot that turned out to be the game winner.

"The kids played hard but we had some critical breakdowns late in the game," explained Emert.

The Viking mentor also thought the officials made some questionable calls. "I'm a little bitter," stated Emert.

"Several things took place that shouldn't have taken place. We still had our chances to win, but I am bitter."

Gardner led the Vikings with 19 points. Bock had 15 points and 12 rebounds, while Cummings added 12 points. It was the team's second loss of the season and leaves them with a 1-2 record in Western Lakes Activities Association play.

The Vikings will take a break over the holidays. They return to action against Waterford Kettering on January 2.

Warriors take 5th in county meet

Walled Lake Western wrestlers put together their best team finish ever at the Oakland County Tournament last weekend, finishing fifth overall among 10 teams.

The Warriors earned 100-2 points. Hazel Park won the title with 225 points, while Lake Orion was second with 127. Birmingham Brother Rice and Milford Lakeland finished third and fourth, respectively. Rochester also had 100-2 points for a tie with Western at fifth.

"Last year we were 13th overall. Team-wise this is the best finish we've had at the county event," said Western coach Dick Watson. "I'm still not sure they added up the points right, however. I've got us with 73 points for 13th or 14th."

Bob Rich was Western's lone tournament champion as he defeated Ed Strzelicki of Lake Orion in the 132-pound final. The top six wrestlers in each weight scored points.

Western's Matt Turner finished fifth at 155 pounds as he defeated Darryl Owens of Madison, while heavyweights Chris Thompson lost to Karey Midkiff of Lake Orion to finish sixth.

Chris Craft was the only other Warrior to make the second day of competition. The top eight wrestlers qualified for the second day of competition. Craft was injured in his first match on Saturday and forced out of the competition.

Western also upped its dual meet record to 4-0 with a pair of wins last week against Walled Lake Central and Grosse Pointe South. Western defeated Central 38-19 and then handed Grosse Pointe a 48-28 setback.

Against Central, Western won eight of the weight classes, winning four by pins.

Craft pinned Central's Pat Harvey in 3:56 at 112 pounds, while Rob Schuh pinned Scott Burke at 3:19. Bill Blair pinned Central's Chris Merics in 3:49 at 185 pounds and John Hayfield pinned Jeff Bellari in 56 seconds at 198.

Western's other wins included Thompson's 6-0 decision of Zane Forbes at heavyweight, Rich's 15-2 decision of Pat Brunst at 132, Matt Turner's 6-3 decision over Kurt Calhoun at 155 pounds and Matt King's 4-3 decision over Rick Aiber at 167 pounds.

Kevin Fust lost a 5-3 decision to Dave Zenhander at 98, Ted Bogdanskis was decided 8-6 by Central's Lynn Tyson at 105. Joe Iacocca was pinned by Andy Chinarian in 3:06 at 119, while Joe Gaud was decided 14-6 by Gary Pipkin at 126 pounds. Steve Arens dropped a 7-0 decision to Mike Leist at 135.

The Warriors won nine events against Grosse Pointe. Western winners included Fust, Bogdanskis, Craft, Iacocca, Rich, Mike Christensen, Turner, King and Thompson.

Western's next match is slated for January 5 at home against Western Lakes Activities Association foe Plymouth, Salem. On January 7, the Warriors will compete in the Schoolcraft Invitational.

Chinarian captures county mat crown

Walled Lake Central has an Oakland County wrestling champion.

Andy Chinarian, a senior, claimed top honors in the 112-pound division in competition with wrestlers from 44 schools at the Oakland County Tournament last week.

Despite Chinarian's noteworthy accomplishment, the Central grapplers suffered their first loss of the season last week, dropping a 39-19 decision to Walled Lake Western.

The Vikings managed to win just five matches against the powerful Warrior contingent. Chinarian accounted for the Vikings' only fall, pinning his 119-pound opponent at the 2:56 mark. Dave Zender won a 5-3 decision at 98 pounds, Lynn Tyson triumphed 6-6 at 105, Gary Pipkin took a 14-6 victory at 126 and Mike Leist posted a 7-0 verdict at 145 pounds.

The Vikings managed to come back from the loss to Western by registering a 62-27 victory over Grosse Pointe South.

Registering pins for the Vikings were Scott Hermann (98 pounds), Keith Kirk (105), Pat Pruitt (132) and Rick Baber (167). Leist won a 1-2 decision, while Curt Calhoun took a 7-6 win. Central also won two matches via forfeits.

Coach Randy Hyde's grapplers are off to one of their best starts in recent years. They are 4-1 for the season and 2-1 in the Western Lakes Activities Association. Central's next match is January 5 against Farmington.

Novi spikers lose

It's a good thing the Novi volleyball team doesn't play in the Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA).

The Wildcats fell to a pair of WLAA teams, Farmington and North Farmington, last week, looking inconsistent and somewhat uncomfortable with Coach Gina Gervasi's redesigned offense.

"It calls for a lot more movement than we've been getting," Gervasi said. "But we're getting a lot of holes right now. We're practicing both systems, but I'm not sure — the new one takes a lot of accuracy and there's lots of new things to learn."

On Wednesday's contest against Farmington, Novi dropped the first game 15-4, then bounced back with a 15-5 win. The Wildcats rode a grueling third game up to 6-6, but then the Falcons slammed home nine unanswered points to seal the victory.

"We looked inconsistent," Gervasi said. "We had the potential to beat them, but we weren't working together well."

Missy Holton had a brilliant game, nailing home some well-placed spikes, but the Falcon defense was tough. Mindy Park scored on all 10 of her serves and Ann McKinnon was nine for nine in the serving department. Lisa Couch hit eight of her nine serves.

Gervasi said Mia Stephenson also played very well.

Relay team leads Warrior swimmers

Walled Lake Western's 200 medley relay team qualified for the finals of the Plymouth Salem Invitational, but was forced to scratch because of other commitments by the swimmers on Saturday.

The foursome of Stacy Burdick, Dave Tester, Jeff Artlip and Chad Doughty finished sixth during the qualifying heat with a time of 3:10. The top six teams in each relay swim finals.

Western also had a strong showing in the 200 freestyle relay as the foursome of John Cotter, Blake Stepp, Bill Atkins and Paul Deroche finished eighth in their qualifying heat with a time of 2:13.

Ten teams competed at the meet, including Northville, Farmington, Harrison, Livonia Churchill, Berkley, Farmington, Walled Lake Central, Salem, Canton, Stevenson and Western.

Western's next meet is January 5 against non-league foe Southfield. The home meet begins at 4 p.m. The Warriors will then face Livonia Bentley on January 10.

Viking tankers fall in season-opener

Walled Lake Central's inexperience showed in its first boys' dual meet in swimming in five years.

The Vikings lost a close one to Redford Union, 93-76.

"Because of our inexperience — this is the first meet ever for some of the kids, we lost some points to disqualifications that may have made the difference," reported Coach Bill McCort.

The Vikings captured two firsts. Bob Cain won the 100-yard butterfly (1:09.7) while Reade Smith was victorious in the 500 freestyle (6:28.2). Freshman Lance Son finished second in the 500 freestyle (6:42.4).

Cain and Smith also claimed second-place finishes. Cain was second in the 100 backstroke (1:13.4), while Smith took second in the 200 freestyle (2:15.0).

Carl Worden finished second in diving with 139.7 points.

"They swam with tremendous heart and had some very good times," claimed McCort.

Over the weekend Central swam in the 10-team Plymouth Invitational Relays, qualifying three teams for the finals.

In the 400 medley relay, Doug Strange, John Hice, John Ross and John Hart finished sixth in 5:07.3. In fact, all three Viking relay teams finished sixth.

In the 400 individual medley relay, John Newmeyer, Marek Wilmanowicz, Ross and Hart were clocked in 2:10.3 in the 200 medley relay.

Central's next dual meet is January 5 against Livonia Bentley.

Everyone benefits

By KEVIN WILSON

First of a two-part article

Once you have a completed downtown development project, what do you do with it?

That's a question the Northville business community is beginning to find answers to — answers that may soon be of interest to those in Walled Lake, Milford, Howell and dozens of other small towns throughout the state.

All of these communities have formed, or have begun planning, downtown development districts as authorized by state law. Using tax-free municipal bonds to finance the project, communities plan, design and implement improvements.

The popularity of the districts can be attributed to one major innovative stroke — tax increment financing. The development bonds are repaid from the property tax revenue generated in succeeding years from increased valuations on downtown properties.

Thereof, the enhanced environment will attract new investment and inspire improvements to older properties so that the project not only pays for itself, but adds a bit more to the tax coffers besides.

Since Northville's Mainstreet 78 project was dedicated in May, 1982, it has become evident the theory will ultimately prove true. But it wasn't only the revised street design, brick crosswalks, ornamental street lighting, plantings, town square park and town clock that made the project into an example other nearby cities yearn to emulate.

A key element in Northville's success was an active business community that goes out and uses the facilities built by the city.

"We do feel the downtown business climate has improved dramatically," said John Beuter, vice president of the Northville Retail Merchants Association, echoing the opinion of most retailers throughout the affected area.

"It's a more comfortable place to shop and we've drawn a lot of favorable publicity."

PM Magazine has three times used Northville street scenes for backdrops, the metropolitan daily papers have published feature stories and photos of the new downtown, advertising agencies have employed various portions of the city in print and television ads and a student filmmaker shot a short feature there.

"We used to be somewhat off-the-beaten-path," Beuter said. "But now, people know where we are and what we have to offer. We all can attribute a lot of the influx of people to the restaurants we have here. I'd include in that Gentile, MacKinnon's and Elizabeth's. They all have their own regional recognition."

Ray Keegan of the chamber of commerce noted that Thursdays (when the chamber operates a farmer's market downtown) are particularly active to-day, with many women's groups scheduling lunches at the restaurants followed by shopping.

Without the downtown improvements, at least one of those restaurants might have located in another community, while visitors to the others probably would not have been enticed to shop in Northville had it not looked so attractive, most merchants agree.

In addition to a community-wide chamber of commerce, there is the Retail Merchants Association, which has taken charge of coordinating a series of events in the renovated city center to bring people into Northville.

Three long-standing annual downtown events, all conducted with streets closed to traffic, set the tone — a summer sidewalk sale, a chamber-sponsored garage sale each spring (at which residents are invited to rent space on the street) and the Christmas Walk the Sunday preceding Thanksgiving.

Using the organizational talents and experience from those traditional activities, the merchants applied them to create new special events.

In and of themselves, the special events don't generate a lot of added business in the shops, excepting the restaurants and other such as drug stores, that serve immediate needs, Beuter said. The events act, instead, as a way of publicizing the town and attracting visitors who will return to shop another day.

This past year saw "Summersong" in August and Autumnfest in October, both judged successful promotions as first-year efforts.

Summersong, as its name implies, put the season to music with performing artists who will return to shop another day.

Autumnfest was an aggressively expanded version of a fall event," Beuter said. "We really utilized the new facilities in that one. Without the new surfaces and spaces, we couldn't have done Autumnfest."

Autumnfest took its cues from the numerous Octoberfest events, offering hayrides, a beer tent (in a recreation department building), free cider and donuts, hot air balloon rides, even an old car show and sale on Main Street.

NOVI-WALLED LAKE NEWS
Wednesday, December 21, 1983

The KOTWICKS "The idea," said Sister Alice Kotwick, "is that Christmas is a very important season of the year, one when you can share love." The principal of St. William's School in Walled Lake and a Servant of Mary, Sister Alice traditionally spends Christmas with two groups of people: her religious family and her own family.

"One thing I really appreciate is having family to share Christmas with — whether it's your religious family or your other family," she said. "Whatever else falls into Christmas Day, the important thing is being together."

Before Sister Alice came to Walled Lake two years ago, she usually spent holidays with other sisters in her order in Omaha, Nebraska. "We had lots of traditions then (in the order) that we don't really follow now."

Now that she's back in Michigan, where most of her family lives, she's able to divide her time between them.

Christmas for a member of a religious order starts long before December 25. It is one of the busiest times of the year, and Sister Alice is heavily involved in Advent ceremonies, Christmas pageants at the school and the children's Mass at St. William's. She has been working on the children's liturgy for Christmas Eve Mass for several weeks, and rarely has much time to devote to the traditional holiday activities of many families, such as cookie-baking, tree-trimming and shopping.

She usually attends Mass twice on Christmas Eve — once with the parish children and their families during the early evening Mass, and once at midnight. "Really, Christmas starts all over again at midnight," she said.

Following midnight Mass, the sisters gather at the convent behind St. William's for a Christmas dawn brunch. They sit around the Christmas tree, sing carols and "relax and enjoy what Christmas means to you in a spiritual sense," she said. "Sometimes, it will be four in the morning before you get to bed."

On Christmas morning, most of the sisters living at the convent go to their families' homes to spend the rest of the holiday. "I'll drive to Detroit and go to Mass with my mom," she said. "It's a sentimental thing."

Then the Kotwick clan gathers to exchange gifts and eat dinner.

"We don't often get together for holidays anymore," says Kotwick, explaining her two brothers live in northern Michigan and on the east coast. "We were all together this year at Thanksgiving, all together. That was special."

Christmas this year, she said, won't bring another family reunion, but it will be a special one. Because she'll be with her family. /Karen Rice

AN AMERICAN CHRISTMAS

Well, there's Santa and Rudolph and religious observances and family and food and (pew!) presents (who could forget presents?) and... well, no matter how you add it up most agree: Christmas means sharing with loved ones

The ROSEYS Members of the Rosey family say they don't have any Christmas traditions. Not really.

"It's nothing really unusual," says Gayle Rosey of Novi. "It's just habit. It's my favorite time of year, but they're things that just kind of developed, they weren't really handed down. My parents started them."

But get them talking about it, and it's obvious the Roseys have established a pattern of cherished Christmas traditions they'd rather die than miss.

Novi residents Ray and Betty Rosey, their children Gayle, Kirk and Carol, start Christmas on Thanksgiving weekend, usually. "We start out with weeks of anticipation," says Gayle. "We all write down what we want for Christmas and give broad hints. But that's kind of a mistake because nobody ever picks what's on anyone's list. Everyone's very creative."

Last year, Gayle said, she and her sister, Carol, "stayed up 'til all hours making dough ornaments for Kirk. They were little vignettes from his life."

"Then the mysterious phone calls start coming," she said, as family members call in to each other about their wishes, styles, likes and dislikes.

But celebrating doesn't really begin in earnest until mid-December when the Roseys get together to bake cookies, trim their tree and play Christmas music.

"We'll try to decorate the tree together," said Kirk. "Now that everybody's grown up, it's difficult to get together because of the different schedules. But it's a tradition."

But by Christmas Eve, the Roseys gather for 24 hours of togetherness. "We all get together on Christmas Eve, have some egg nog and eat some of the Christmas cookies we've been baking all along," Kirk said. "We build a fire and nog out on egg nog. We keep the candles lit that we got from church."

"Then we all disperse to take care of last-minute wrappings. Every year it seems we're up until three, four or five in the morning."

The SANGHVIS Mav and Kumudini Sanghvi live in Novi.

It's their home now. But it wasn't always their home. The Sanghvis were born, raised and educated in India. In fact, Mav, who runs the Novi Medical Center, obtained his medical degree from the University of Bombay before moving to England where he studied at Oxford and the University of Edinburgh.

It was only 10 years ago that the Sanghvis moved to the United States, settling down finally in Novi.

As a result of their international experience in India and then England, it would be only natural to expect that Christmas takes on an entirely different flavor at the Sanghvi household.

Add the fact that they're followers of the Hindu religion to the many years they spent abroad and you'd be virtually certain that Christmas in the Sanghvi household is somewhat different than the more typical Christmas celebrations.

But that's not the case.

"How does the Sanghvi family celebrate Christmas?" asked Mav, repeating the reporter's question. "We celebrate it just like you do."

"We have a traditional Western Christmas. We have a Christmas tree just like everyone else. We exchange gifts just like everyone else. And we have a traditional Christmas dinner with turkey and all the trimmings... just like everyone else."

The Sanghvi's traditional celebration of Christmas is not necessarily a matter of the "Americanization" process, either.

"We used to celebrate Christmas in India, too," he reports. "I can never recall not celebrating Christmas, even when I was a boy."

"The thing you have to remember about India is that it is a land with many religions," he continues. "There are many Christians in India; and there are many Jews, Muslims and Hindus as well."

"Instead of everyone going they're own separate ways on the holidays, everyone celebrates every holiday. There are 12 to 14 holidays in India."

The Sanghvis admit that they have attempted to celebrate holidays in a traditional manner as they move from country to country. All four of their children were born in England, and the Sanghvis believe it is important to allow their children to be part of the traditional culture.

"We didn't want our kids to feel any different from anyone else," said Mav. "It creates problems if children are raised to be different from their friends. It's sort of like, 'when in Rome, do as the Romans.' We've always wanted our children to fit in with everyone else."

While the Sanghvis celebrate a traditional American Christmas in every aspect, perhaps the single most important part of their traditional celebration is the opportunity to get together again as a family for the holidays.

Getting the family together is not necessarily easy, either. Their oldest son, Suketu, is a student at Harvard Medical School; Rahul attends the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor; Sangvi is a student at the Wharton School of Finance in Philadelphia; and Seeta, the youngest child and only daughter, also attends Harvard in Boston, Massachusetts.

But the fact that the Sanghvi children are scattered throughout the country never, never prohibits the family from getting together to celebrate Christmas.

"That's one thing that's very important — the family," said Mav.

We celebrate Christmas as a family. Our children come home from wherever they may be, and we are joined by my brother and his family who live in Livonia and my sister who lives in New York. It's very important that families be together at Christmas time."

Their Indian heritage does have one advantage, however. Mav notes that the family usually starts unwrapping gifts at midnight.

"After midnight on Christmas Eve, it's Christmas Day," he says. "Besides there's an eight hour difference between our time and Bombay time. When it's Christmas in Novi, it's already been Christmas in Bombay for eight hours." /Philip Jerome

NOVI-WALLED LAKE NEWS

Michigan downhill skiers left in hibernation during last year's mild winter should start during the month of January. In addition, Shanty Creek has added two new slopes served by a double chair.

After last year's dismal ski season — with a 35 percent downturn in lift ticket sales — the state's ski operators are looking to recoup their losses by expanding facilities and making improvements.

Improvements to Michigan's ski resorts run the gamut from increasing snowmaking capacity to adding new slopes.

At Caberfae near Cadillac, for instance, more than $2 million has been spent on improving the old Salom Bowl/Slaghead area. Used for many years, the Bowl/Slaghead area has been resurrected with the addition of a triple-chairlift routed through the forest for skier comfort and the addition of seven new runs — the longest of which is 3/4 mile long.

In the Upper Peninsula, Indianhead Mountain near Wakefield currently is completing a $1.5 million improvement project which includes renovation of the main lodge and expansion of its snowmaking capacity — despite its location in the middle of the Great Lakes Snow Belt.

With the improved snowmaking capacity, Indianhead will have slopes ready for skiing 36-48 hours under the right conditions instead of the previous one or two weeks.

Boyne Mountain near Boyne Falls has added a new 15-acre area called "Superbowl" encompassing three new slopes, snowmaking equipment and a double chairlift. Six new multi-unit condominiums also have been built to increase Boyne's overnight lodging capacity by 120 beds.

The Hilton Shanty Creek and Schloss

Mountain near Marcella have increased snowmaking capacity by 35 percent and added new lodging and indoor pool facilities. In addition, Shanty Creek has added two new slopes served by a double chair.

Other improvements around the state include a new intermediate slope — measuring almost a mile — at Sugarloaf near Traverse City, a new restaurant at Traverse City Holiday, and increased snowmaking capacity at Alpine Valley near Milford, Riverview Highlands, Nubs Nob near Harbor Springs, Thunder Mountain near Boyne Falls, Cannonsburg and Briar Mountain near Vulcan.

Despite the vast improvements made to many of Michigan's 54 public ski areas this year, only a small portion of the improvement costs will be passed along to skiers.

Daytime weekend lift tickets will average $10.50 — a 10 percent increase over last year.

In Southeast Michigan, resorts will charge $4 to $13.50 for weekend daytime lift tickets.

With the help of an early December snowfall, ski resorts already are open and awaiting the onslaught of Michigan skiers.

The following is a list of Southeast Michigan ski resorts and lift fees per day:

• ALPINE VALLEY, 6775 E. Highland Road, Milford (887-2180), $13 weekend day rate, $9 night fee;

• MT. BRIGHTON, 4141 Bauer Road, Brighton (225-9561), $13.50 weekend day rate, $11 night fee;

• MT. GRAMPAN, 3745 Lakeview, Oxford (688-6160), $9.50 weekend day and night rate;

• MT. HOLLY, 13536 South Dixie Highway, Holly (634-8269), $12.50 weekend day rate;

• PINE KNOB, 7777 Pine Knob, Clarkston (625-0800), $10 weekend day rate;

• RIVerview, 4775-2266, $8 weekend day and night rate;

• TEEPLE HILL, 5200 East Highland, Milford (887-5135), $4 weekend day rate.

Skiers can obtain information about Michigan's ski resorts, including lodging, instruction and facilities by writing the Michigan Travel Bureau, P.O. Box, 30225, Lansing, 48909.

cap, rings a dinner bell promptly at 7:30 p.m. and tells you what he and Toni are cooking up for dinner that evening.

John also engages the evening's guests in conversation. Sort of a pleasant Don Rickles, he gently chastised one guest for coming in late — pointing out that her late arrival had delayed dinner for the rest of us.

John's likely to return after dinner to pass out cigars for the gentlemen and exchange jokes with the customers.

The family-style theme at Genitti's is maintained throughout the evening. There are no separate tables and you're likely to find yourself sitting with as many as eight to 10 other people. John and Toni's conviviality is contagious, however, and you're apt to wonder why you weren't fortunate enough to have met your dinner companions previously.

The food also is served family-style. The soup, for example, arrives in a big kettle and someone at the table is elected to ladle it out for everyone. Same thing with the salad, which is served up in a frying pan. Simply help yourself and pass it on to your neighbor.

And don't worry about running out. If you need more food, just tell your waitress who will run back to the kitchen and return with more.

Genitti's serves up seven-course meals at $11.95 a head, and everyone eats the same thing. A basket filled with garlic bread and bread sticks starts things off and is followed quickly with a steaming kettle of soup — escarole soup on the night that my companion and I dined at Genitti's recently. Following the soup comes a delicious pasta course of manicotti mixed with broccoli. The pasta was followed with an antipasto salad, featuring meats, cheeses and olives.

The main course consisted of three types of meats — spicy Italian sausage with onions, chicken and a breaded Italian beef dish. For dessert we were served a scoop of spumoni ice cream in a paper cup, and that was followed by a tray of fruit — fresh sliced pineapple, oranges and grapes.

Genitti's has a liquor license but currently is offering only beer and wine with dinners. We ordered a pint ($2.50) of the house rose, which was served in an old Mason jar.

A kettle of soup? A trying pan of antipasto? Spumoni ice cream served in a paper cup? You heard right; it's all part of the "family-style" charm that has made this little restaurant such a popular dining spot throughout the metropolitan Detroit area.

Yes, reservations are necessary. And don't be surprised if you have to wait as long as a month or two before being able to enjoy a dinner at John and Toni's house... er, restaurant.

Genitti's Hole-in-the-Wall, 108 East Main Street, Northville, 349-0322. Lunches: Monday through Saturday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Dinners: Thursday and Friday at 7 p.m., Saturday at 6:30 p.m., and Sunday at 5 p.m. Reservations required. Currently serving only beer and wine with dinner. No credit cards.

Super chef

Keith Famie takes aim at four-star rating for Raphael's

By TOM HENDERSON

Keith Famie, the head chef at Raphael's, the highly regarded French restaurant at the Sheraton Oaks in Novi, had them oohing and aahing at Schoolcraft College recently.

The standing-room-only crowd of approximately 100 culinary arts students oohed when he told them his age, 23, which made him younger than some of them.

It ached when he showed slides of his delectable creations during a fast-paced, two-hour guest lecture on French cuisine.

Who wouldn't ooh and aah? Famie, a graduate of the Southeastern Oakland Vocational Education Center (SOWVEC), presented slide after slide of such delicacies as rabbit and pheasant pate, periwinkle and poached salmon, poached pears in red wine, black truffles, duck liver mousse, scallop mousse, lobster mousse and foie gras.

The foie gras (pronounced fwa-gra) made from the swollen liver of force-fed fowl, is imported at $45 a pound wholesale. The truffles, mushrooms rooted out of the ground by pigs or trained dogs, is a steal at $120 a pound wholesale, thanks to Famie's connections in France.

The periwinkle might look like escargot to the uninitiated, but the former is a sea snail and the latter is a land snail, a crucial distinction.

Why is Famie explaining all these things? How, at the tender age of 23, without a minute of college education or cooking school experience, has Famie come to lecture a wild-eyed, awed gathering of culinary students?

How did a kid out of Farmington High School, whose idea of a good kitchen job not so long ago was washing dishes in a Chinese restaurant, get to the point where he is cockily saying: "I want to be the first five-star restaurant ever in the State of Michigan and I want to be the youngest five-star chef ever?"

"A little b.s. and a little luck," he explains. Actually, Famie's meteoric rise in the world of cuisine was a matter of a lot of guts and a lot of talent.

He started in the business at 15 as a dishwasher at the Great Wall in Farmington. From there he moved on to a dishwashing job at a Holiday Inn and an egg-slinging tour at a burger house.

The first break came when he was 16 and wrote a letter to Duglass Grech, the flamboyant chef known as Duglass Duglass, the one-time television star and then chef at the Great Dane. Duglass took the eager kid under his wing and began his tutelage.

"At 19," says Famie, "I flew into Brussels (Belgium). I didn't know anyone, nor did I know the language. But I wanted to learn European cooking."

A sympathetic American got him work in her husband's kitchen at the Hyatt Regency in Brussels, where "I was at the extreme bottom," chopping vegetables and washing lettuce.

When it was discovered he was working in Brussels illegally, the chef at the Regency found him a job at the Hotel Loews in Monte Carlo, where he cut more vegetables, washed more lettuce and kept his eyes and ears open.

From there came the trip up the ladder, through a variety of elegant restaurants in Europe and New York City, from vegetables to sauces to main courses to, a little more than a year ago, the head job at Raphael's.

Famie's lecture is witty and interesting, the perfect mix of instruction and anecdote. His love of cooking and his energy are obvious. The students, wearing white jackets and with their paper chef hats on the tables in front of them, sit enchanted.

Famie describes for his audience his days of abuse at the hands of the masters, where a slightly inadequate pastry might be hurled to the floor, where he was expected to be in the restaurant at 7 a.m. and wouldn't get out until midnight, where credit was rare and criticism frequent.

It was obvious that Famie wouldn't have missed it for the world, though he advises these kids to get their schooling in school.

Though already a successful chef, Famie is still learning.

"I just returned from Switzerland and a 12-day tour of Europe," he reported. "I ate at five of the 16 three-star restaurants in Europe." (In Europe, the rating system goes as high as three stars, the equivalent of five stars in the United States.)

"The chefs at those restaurants are so very, very well known. And yet the red-carpet was rolled out for me. They were impressed to see someone young and eager, who doesn't know the language, knocking on their door and asking about their cooking."

The best meal there cost him $156, and that was for dinner. The cheapest? A couple of bucks at McDonald's.

McDonald's? For a fan of haute cuisine?

"Usually, after work, I'll go out to a Denny's or a Burger King," laughs Famie. "Or I'll go home and make a peanut butter and jelly sandwich."

A rose by any other name is still a rose, and, after all, an American kid, even after he's been to Paris, is still an American.

Keith Famie regards food as art form

Botsford's classes to promote fitness

With January 1 coming up, it's time to get those New Year's resolutions in order. And what better resolution could you possibly make than to improve your physical fitness?

Botsford Hospital's Department of Health Promotion and Development is offering a series of classes designed to do just that beginning in January. Classes range from stop smoking and blood pressure management to weight reduction and Alcoholics Anonymous.

Here's a short description of the courses being offered by Botsford Hospital to help citizens live healthier, happier and more productive lives.

• Introductory meetings for a stop smoking class will be held Monday and Tuesday, January 9-10, from 8-9 p.m. The charge for the program is $25, payable at the first session.

• A series of five diabetes management classes will be held at Botsford on Tuesday evenings, beginning January 11 from 7-9 p.m. Registration fee is $20.

• A series of four high blood pressure management classes will be held at Botsford on Tuesday evenings, beginning January 10 from 6:30 to 9 p.m. Those attending at least three of the four programs will be eligible for a free follow-up program.

• Weight reduction classes will be offered every Thursday beginning January 5. Two sessions are available — from 1-3 p.m. or from 7-9 p.m.

• Regular weekly Alcoholics Anonymous meetings are now being offered at Botsford every Tuesday at 8:30 p.m. Alcoholics Anonymous is a fellowship of men and women who share their experience, strength and hope with each other in an effort to help solve their common problem.

The only requirement for membership is a desire to stop drinking. There are no dues or fees, and anonymity is maintained.

• A six-week program entitled "A Personal Perspective on Grief" will be offered every Thursday beginning January 5. Two sessions are available — from 1-3 p.m. or from 7-9 p.m.

The program is designed to focus on the needs of the survivors of a loved one in order to make a healthy transition for positive living in an organized and supportive environment. The program is not a substitute for therapy or counseling. Its goal is to teach skills and techniques to aid the survivor in a transitional period of his or her life.

• Prenatal and postnatal exercise classes will be offered twice a week for six weeks beginning the week of January 2. Classes are offered during the day and at night. Registration fee is $4.

• Eight weeks of aerobic exercise classes will begin January 9. Classes are offered during the evenings Monday through Friday as well as on Saturday mornings. Prices are $36 for two classes per week, $46 for three classes per week and $56 for four classes per week.

More information on all health and fitness classes are available by calling Botsford's Department of Health Promotion and Development at 471-0090 anytime from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Genitti's: Enough to fill a hole in the tummy

You've probably never dined at a restaurant quite like Genitti's Hole-in-the-Wall.

As you might surmise by the name, this pleasant little eatery on Main Street in downtown Northville features Italian fare.

But it's far different from the Italian restaurants to which you may be accustomed. No, you can't get pizza. In fact, you don't even get a choice. You eat what's set in front of you... and, fortunately, what's set in front of you is lots and lots of good Italian food.

Genitti's Hole-in-the-Wall is owned and operated by John and Toni Genitti, an enterprising young couple who almost a decade ago opened a little meat market in downtown Northville.

After selling meat for several years, they decided to try their hand at the restaurant business and this was born Genitti's Hole-in-the-Wall.

The meat market is still there, along with a little curiosity shop which makes for pleasant browsing to and from the seven-course dinners the Genittis serve up Thursday through Sunday nights.

You have to pass through the curiosity shop and meat market before entering the small restaurant with its red-checked tablecloths, and, frankly, that's part of the charm.

What really sets Genitti's apart is its unique "family-style" approach to dining. Not only is the food served family-style, but the owners go all out to make you feel like you're right at home... like you were going over to John and Toni's house for dinner.

You're likely to run into an apron-clad Toni on your way back to the dining room, and you're encouraged to look at the pictures from the Genitti family album which decorate the walls. If you miss Toni, you won't miss John who, clad in his own apron and a Boston Red Sox baseball

Novi's Michelle Cote rehearses up to 10 hours per day

Novi dancer earns role in Nutcracker

By PHIL JEROME

When the footlights dim for the first performance of The Nutcracker Ballet at Ford Auditorium tonight (Wednesday), the Detroit Symphony Orchestra will be in the orchestra pit and the stage will be filled with illustrious dancers from the New York City Ballet, Dance Theater of Harlem and the Joffrey Ballet.

Not to mention Elaine's Academy of the Performing Arts in Novi.

Novi's contribution to this year's production of Tchaikovsky's immortal Christmas ballet is Michelle Cote, a 17-year-old Novi High School student.

Michelle doesn't have one of the leads... those belong to the professionals from New York City. But she will be a member of the large cast of dancers who make The Nutcracker a spectacle of music and movement.

"It's kind of exciting," she admits. "I've performed in dance recitals before, but I've never been in a professional production."

Michelle has been preparing for the role for the past 14 years. She started dance lessons at Marsha's School of Dance in Southgate when she was three. And has been dancing ever since.

When her parents, Bruce and Susan Cote, moved to Novi nine years ago, Michelle continued her dance lessons at Elaine's School of the Performing Arts.

Ironically, the young woman who will be performing with some of the finest dancers in the world at the Ford Auditorium December 21-31 says ballet is not her first love.

She prefers jazz. But it was her interest in jazz that led to her involvement with ballet.

"I had advanced to the point where I had to take ballet to improve my other dancing," she explained. "If you don't know ballet, you can't do advanced jazz dancing."

What's more, her instructor at Elaine's — Diane Baumgartner-Rixie — demanded that she take ballet.

"I hated it at first," admitted Michelle. "It was so different and so slow. Plus, it's very exact. There's only one way to do things right in ballet and you have to keep practicing until you do it right."

It was only one year ago that she furthered her ballet instruction by starting lessons with Jacob Lascau at his studio in Birmingham.

Lascau is director of Dance Detroit at Marygrove College, and he's also director and choreographer of The Nutcracker at the Ford Auditorium.

'There's only one way to do things right in ballet and you have to keep practicing until you do it right.'

"It was just sort of understood that all his students would audition for The Nutcracker," said Michelle. "We started rehearsals in September and have been working anywhere from four to six hours per day seven days per week since then."

Michelle said she was not really surprised to be selected to dance in The Nutcracker. "I was sure I'd get 'mice,'" she said, referring to one group of dancers in the fanciful ballet.

But she did not know she would be dancing as much as she is in the production. When the list of dancers was posted roughly three weeks ago, Michelle was scheduled to dance six different roles. In addition to "mice," she's one of Clara's friends, a Spanish dancer, a flower and a parent.

And she's also cast as one of the Chinese dancers, and will solo as a member of that group.

"The costume changes are pretty hectic," she reports. Michelle said dancing in The Nutcracker is an educational experience, but it's also a lot of work.

In addition to the six hours per day she's currently putting in at rehearsals, she also is continuing her studies at Elaine's in Novi and Lascau's in Birmingham. Recently, she attended Nutcracker rehearsals from 1-7 p.m. and then came home in time to take her regular lesson at Elaine's from 8-10 p.m.

That's a lot of time to spend on one's toes.

As you might expect, Michelle hopes to make a career of dance. She's been accepted into the Bachelor of Fine Arts program at Marygrove College. And after graduation from college, she plans to head for New York City and the lights of Broadway.

That's my goal," said Novi's contribution to the 1983 production of The Nutcracker. "I want to be a dancer in a Broadway musical."

Local churches to hold Christmas Eve services

Novi Highlights

By Jeanne Clarke
624-0173

Faith Community United Presbyterian Church will hold Christmas Eve services at 7 and 9 p.m. Child care will be provided at the 7 o'clock service. The Christmas morning worship service will be held at 10 a.m.

Christmas activities at the church have included a special family Advent workshop last Sunday, followed by the decorating of the Christmas tree and caroling at the nursing homes. The women's association held its annual Christmas cookie exchange at Lil Perry's home. The next meeting of the women's association will be January 9 at 7:30 p.m. when Linda Burton will provide instruction on tape painting.

Church families have ordered poinsettias again this year for Christmas services. The poinsettias then will be taken to Beverly Manor Convalescent Center. The children of the church have brought in "white gifts" of mittens, socks, books and toys which will be given to needy children in the community in time for Christmas morning.

BUSINESSL CONGREGATIONAL: Bushnell Congregational will hold a special family candlelighting pageant at Mill Race Village in Northville on Christmas Eve at 5 p.m. The Children's Choir will sing.

Brief services will be held Christmas Day at 9:30 and 11:15 a.m. The children of the church have been collecting toys and clothing which will be given to Church Women United to distribute throughout the community.

Other activities at the church include a potluck dinner for the Women's Club at Kay Crowell's home and a progressive dinner by the Co-Weds. The young adults sponsored a come and eat your own Christmas tree party that was followed by a potluck dinner at the Broderick home in Northville.

The Family Education Committee has scheduled an organizational meeting for January 8 to set up a task force to light drive abuse. The task force is being established as a follow-up to the "Chemical People" program about alcohol and drug abuse among young people. Anyone interested in working on the task force is urged to call 348-8388 and talk to Co-wedder George Miller.

NVA has completed its compilation of all pre-school and nursery schools in the Novi area. Copies are free to parents looking for this type of service and can be picked up at the Novi Public Library.

Novi Chamber: Charles Wood of Manufacturers Bank of Novi has been elected president of the Novi Chamber of Commerce. Other new officers include Vice president Robert Leland of Multi-Elimac, Secretary Dianne Bish of the Novi Public Library and Treasurer Nancy Bonfield of Budget Systems of Novi.

Novi Chamber members include J.W. Erwin, Ron Crain, Carl Evans, Elton Heathcock, Thomas Marcus, Robert Pitko and Barbara Skanko. Past president William Clogg received a plaque of appreciation for his leadership during the past year.

Novi Chamber has been retained as executive secretary of the chamber. She can be reached Monday through Friday at chamber offices at 349-3743. Adoption of a new set of by-laws is designed to make the chamber more efficient in its efforts on behalf of the business community.

Wixom library holds family event

A live and lively production of "Hansel and Gretel" for the entire family will be offered at the Wixom Library next Wednesday, December 28, at 2 p.m. The program will be presented by Crossroad Productions. No registration is required and all are invited to attend.

As a Christmas gift to its patrons, the library is offering a "fine time" period from December 27 through January 7. No overdue charges will be filed during this two-week slot regardless of how long materials have been out in circulation.

The library will be closed Friday and Saturday, December 23-24 and on Monday, December 26. The library also will be closed Friday and Saturday, December 30-31, and Monday, January 2.

BUSHNELL CHURCH: Bushnell Congregational Church will hold the traditional family Christmas Eve candlelighting and pageant on December 24 at 5 p.m. at Mill Race Village in Northville. The children's choir also will perform at the special service.

On Christmas Day, Bushnell will hold a service of lessons and carols at 9:30 a.m. in the Mill Race Village church.

Community Notes

IMMUNIZATION CLINIC: The Oakland County Health Division will offer an immunization clinic for Walled Lake and surrounding areas at the Wixom Elementary School on Tuesday, January 3, from 9:30 a.m. to noon.

Immunizations for measles, German measles, mumps, polio, diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough are available.

A parent or legal guardian must accompany children under 18-years-old and should bring any previous immunization records, including notices from schools regarding immunizations.

WESTACRES LIBRARY: "Through Thick and Thin: The Right Diet for You" is the title of a special program at the Westacres Branch Library on Thursday, January 12, at 7:30 p.m.

Kathleen Kinney, a registered dietitian at the Henry Ford Hospital West Bloomfield Center, will point out the good and bad points of the many popular and bad diets. Her comments will help you pick the right diet for you.

Phone the Westacres branch at 363-4022 before January 9 to register for this program.

OCC REGISTRATION: Regular registration for 1984 winter semester classes at Oakland Community College will be held January 3 and 4 from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m., according to an alphabetical schedule.

Classes for the winter semester begin January 5 at 8 a.m.

Applications for the 1984 winter semester currently are being accepted. New students should contact an admissions counselor for a schedule of classes and information on admission procedures. The phone number of the Highland Lakes campus in Union Lake is 360-3000, while the number of the Orchard Ridge campus in Farmington Hills is 471-7500.

DIA TOURS: The Detroit Institute of Arts (DIA) offers free, docent-guided tours for the public every day from 12:15 p.m. to 4 p.m. The tour is an introduction to the museum and highlights the most important and interesting works from the DIA's 10 galleries.

Two free tours also are offered on Sundays at 1 and 2:30 p.m.

In addition, docents give tours to adult groups on a variety of specialized subjects. Call 833-7884 if your group is interested. Dates and times are flexible.

VOLUNTEERS: A volunteer clerk-typist is needed at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital. The job entails typing, filing and phone answering skills and is an excellent opportunity for future entry into the job market. It's a Monday through Friday position with flexible hours. Call at 844-7272 for more information.

The Volunteer Bureau also is looking for hospice volunteers to offer support to terminally ill patients and their families. Extensive training will be provided by Cranbrook Hospice Care. A commitment of three hours, one day a week, is required. Call the volunteer bureau for details.

ARMY PRIVATE JOHN TALBOTT has completed basic training at Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri. A 1983 Walled Lake Central graduate, he is the son of John and Martha Talbott of Walled Lake.

Airman DANIEL WOHLTZ has been assigned to Sheppard Air Force Base in Texas after completing Air Force basic training. A 1982 Walled Lake Western graduate, he is the son of Gail and Mary Wohltz of Wixom.

The airman now will receive specialized instruction in the civil engineering field.

Navy Fireman Recruit GERALD MAGGI has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center at Great Lakes, Illinois. He is the son of Stanley and Gail Maggi of Union Lake.

Marine Corporal TIMOTHY SPROULL recently participated in "Combined Arms Exercise" in the California desert. A member of the 2nd Marine Division at Camp Lejeune in North Carolina, he is the son of Clarence Sproull of Union Lake.

Army Private ANGELA MITCHELL has completed a correctional specialist course at the U.S. Army Military Police School at Fort McClean, Alabama. She is the daughter of Myrtle Mitchell of Novi and a 1983 South Lyon High School graduate.

Private GREGORY KREZA has completed a teletypewriter equipment repair course at the U.S. Army Signal School of Fort Gordon, Georgia. A 1980 Walled Lake Western graduate, he is the son of Michael and Nancy Kreza of Walled Lake.

Ensign Maier will be assigned to Deep Sea Salvage in Panama City, Florida, after completing three months of surface warfare school in San Diego, California.

DENNIS MAIER has earned the rank of Seaman 3rd Class with the United States Navy and currently is serving on the USS Anchorage.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. George Maier of Novi, he graduated from Novi High School in 1978 and enlisted in the Navy in June of 1982.

Stationed in San Diego, California, the seaman is now with his ship in the Far East as an electronic technician. He is expected to return to the States sometime in March.

Why pre-arrange a funeral?

Because there's time to talk things out frankly.

There are many reasons why making funeral arrangements is best for you and your family when planned out in advance. Pre-planning gives your family an opportunity to express their feelings in a relaxed atmosphere.

Advanced planning also spares your family from having to make many important decisions at a difficult time.

We are experienced in helping people arrange the kind of service that best satisfies their personal preferences. If we can answer your questions or help in any way, please don't hesitate to call on us.

Kirsten to contend for Jr. Miss honors

Kirsten Carlson, a 17-year-old Central High School senior, will compete in the state Junior Miss Scholarship pageant in January.

Carlson was one of four teenagers selected from 15 contestants in an "at large" pageant held recently at Battle Creek. These four, along with 24 other contestants from throughout Michigan, will compete for the state title January 20-21, in Marshall. In addition to scholarship prizes, the state winner earns the right to compete in the National Junior Miss Pageant.

"It's not a beauty pageant," Carlson explained, noting that 35 percent of the judging is based on an interview, 15 percent on scholarship, 20 percent on talent, 15 percent on physical fitness and 15 percent on poise and appearance.

Her 10-minute interview included questions about her career, Carlson noted. "They asked me if I would give up family for my career," she said.

Some contestants were asked about nuclear arms or problems in Central America, she added.

The scholarship judging included a review of her high school transcript and her scores on the SAT, ACT and PSAT tests.

Poise and appearance were judged in evening gown competition and physical fitness was determined by the contestants' performance on a fitness routine, Carlson explained.

For her talent competition, Carlson performed a gymnastics routine. A member of the Central gymnastics team, Carlson was voted the most valuable gymnast her sophomore year.

Carlson also is treasurer of the National Honor Society and active in student government and mathematics league competition.

If she wins a scholarship on the state level, Carlson said it will be tucked away for her college education. She seeks a bachelor's degree in electrical engineering to be followed by a master's in biomedical engineering. "I guess I like school," she summed up.

Carlson noted she enjoys the Junior Miss scholarship competition because "the judges are concerned about the type of person you are...not just how you look."

Logic found missing in television commercials

By SANDY ZGODA

Everyone complains about the idiosyncrasy of today's television programs, but there are worse things in this world than "The Dukes of Hazzard."

I hope you realize what an alarming statement I just made. Worse than "The Dukes of Hazzard?"

Consider television commercials. If you have to be really bad to write a popular show, the qualifications for producing a commercial must be horrendous.

Unfortunately, scum floats to the top, and that may explain why many of the top advertisers give us the most obnoxious commercials.

I do not take issue with the product itself, which may or may not be perfectly good. What really bugs me is the way it is presented.

For example, there is a popular health club which employs Victoria Principle as its spokeswoman. We are supposed to assume she looks the way she does because she works out at this particular establishment, using their equipment.

Of course, regular exercise and progressive resistance machines may help improve your physique. But come on now, they are never going to make mountains out of molehills!

I heard Victoria say in an interview to promote her new book, "The Body Principle," that she prefers exercises which do not mess her hair and makeup.

But there she is on the screen, prettily perspiring and pumping away, all the while asking us to "imagine 12 months of whirlpools, swimming and saunas."

(I've yet to see anybody emerge from a sauna with her

hairdo intact, but I suppose that says more about one woman's hypocrisy than it does about advertising.

There's really nothing terribly difficult about imagining 12 months of a health club's services. That has always been available for a price.

What is hard to imagine is why promoters believe we are gullible enough to credit Principle's attributes to her sponsor.

There isn't one good reason why we should, but the advertisers believe there are two — and we all know what they are.

It is interesting to note that these same selling points are utilized by companies which have absolutely no connection to the body. One such place deals in automatic transmissions — hardly erotica.

A bleached blonde in hot pants wears a T-shirt which can barely contain what is bouncing around inside. Outside, the company name is presumably emblazoned across her chest. (I say presumably because the letters have been stretched beyond all recognition.)

She looks into the camera and intelligently says, "Double A. Beep-Beep, M. C. O." There is absolutely nothing double A about that woman.

But commercials don't always focus on the body. Sometimes they go straight for the viewer's mind and the result can be an incredible mutation of logic.

Consider one chain of pizzerias which has recently come up with a new gimmick — pizza for lunch in five minutes. A good idea, right?

Now listen to their promise: We'll have your pizza ready in five minutes or you get the next one free. It sounds reasonable at first, but is it?

If they screw up and take too long, you're probably not going to have time to eat the first pizza you ordered, much less wait for another one.

Maybe they let you return for your freebie later, when you don't even feel like pizza anymore because your desires have gone Chinese.

In any case, what kind of logic stands behind their promise?

The same kind which has prompted one company to come out with an amazing diet pill offer. For around $60, they'll send you a two-week supply of their pills which are guaranteed to help you lose all of the weight you'd like in only 14 days.

That's no small claim. However, the guarantee does not mean that if the pills are unsuccessful you can have your money back.

Listen closely: If after two weeks you have not accomplished your weight loss goal, they will send you another 14-day supply for which you will only be required to pay postage and handling.

Why would you want more of something that didn't work in the first place? We may be a little overweight, but we're not stupid!

Commercials too often talk to us and portray us as though we were.

Think about Rosie, the homeliest woman in the world, whose claim to fame is that she can captivate a dinner full of truck drivers with her paper towel. Rosie is so attached to her roll of wipes that she has given it a pet name — the "quicker picker-upper."

Do normal people really name their towels? When was the last time you referred to your laxative as a "family friend?" While strolling through the grocery store, do you suddenly experience an uncontrollable urge to sneak off and squeeze the toilet tissue?

Neither do I.

Where television advertisers ever got the idea that they understand the average consumer is a mystery to me.

Imagine what the next batch of creatures who evolve after we blow ourselves up will think about us. They'll dig up one of those time capsules, find a commercial and try to piece it all together.

After much deliberation, they'll probably come up with something like this — Humans were strange, fiercely loyal creatures. Their destruction appears to have been brought about late in the 20th century when they divided into two warring factions.

One side proclaimed the superiority of a meal which consisted of chicken nuggets, while the other valiantly held its ground beef patties, special sauce, cheese, lettuce, pickles and onions on a sesame-seed bun.

'O'er the fields we go ...'

When Walled Lake holds a Christmas sing-along, they do it right. When it came time to sing carols at the annual tree-lighting ceremonies recently, you'll never guess who was called upon to direct the musical portion of the program. Old Santa displayed a definite flair as director; in fact, it could be said that 'nobody does it better.' (News photo by John Galloway)

Novi Concert Band to perform at mall

The Novi Concert Band will help ring in the New Year by performing at a series of concerts.

The band, which performed December 15 at Twelve Oaks Mall, will return to Twelve Oaks January 28 for a performance at 1 p.m. The group also plans a joint performance with the Novi Chorale at Holy Family Church on Sunday, February 12, at 3 p.m.

The Novi Concert Band is a symphonic wind ensemble which was formed in 1982 under the auspices of the Novi Parks and Recreation Department in cooperation with Holy Family Church.

The goals of the band are to provide adults with a musical background an opportunity to participate in a musical ensemble. The band also offers a supplemental musical experience to mature students. Additionally, it represents the City of Novi in performances throughout southeastern Michigan and supports the revival of the community band movement in America.

Its 46 members represent a cross-section of the community. Musicians of all ages and from a wide variety of professions are included. Some members pursue careers in music.

The ensemble's repertoire is varied, ranging from Bach to Bacharach. Its musicians are capable of satisfying the musical theme of any event, according to the group's organizers.

Now in its second year, the concert band performed 14 concerts during its first season. Founder and director of the band is Raymond Gais. Associate director is Robert Zimmerman.

A native of Pompton Lake, New Jersey, Gais has long been associated with community music ensembles both as a performer and conductor. He was formerly a member of the New Haven Symphony, the Riverside (New York) Symphony and the Allison Barton Band of New York City. He also has served as bandmaster of the Fort Carlo "Yankee Doodle Band" in Rensselaer, New York. In Michigan he has conducted community bands in Franklin Village and Northville. Gais lives in Novi and is employed as a sales representative by George A. Hornell and Company.

Zimmerman holds a Masters Degree in Music from Michigan State University and is an accomplished performer on both flute and clarinet. He teaches in the Farmington School District and serves as associate director of the Redford Symphony and the Franklin Village Band.

Members of the concert band are not required to be Novi residents. Adults looking for an opportunity to give vent to their musical abilities are invited to join; new members are always welcomed.

Morrells report birth

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Morrell of Clarendon Hills, Illinois, announce the birth of their first child, a daughter. Lauren Sena was born November 15 in Hinsdale, Illinois. She weighed seven pounds, one ounce, and measured 20 inches long.

Mrs. Morrell is the former Lucine Tafraian of Novi. Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Daron Tafraian of Novi; paternal grandparents are Mrs. Barbara Morrell. Maternal great grandmother is Mrs. Osvanna Kasbarian.

Florida awaits arrival of Michiganians

Winter travelers planning to escape the Michigan winter and seek refuge in Florida will find a wealth of new water parks, elegant hotels and exquisite restaurants, according to the Automobile Club of Michigan.

More than 550,000 Michiganians are expected to travel to Florida this winter, approximately four percent more than last year, according to Auto Club Travel Operations Manager James Drury.

Seventy-five percent of them will go by motor vehicle.

For those who prefer to fly, the trip will be easier because of a $242 million expansion at the Lauderdale-Hollywood International Airport, a $100 million expansion at Tampa International Airport and a new $96 million Southwest Florida Regional Airport at Fort Myers.

Among the largest new projects in Florida is the $500 million Grand Cypress Resort adjacent to the Walt Disney World Village in Central Florida. The first phase of the resort, an 18-story, 750-room Hyatt Regency, is expected to open in early February.

Visitors to nearby Epcot Center, Walt Disney's spectacular $900 million visionary community that opened in 1983, can enjoy the world showcase pavilions, ride through history aboard the Communicore in Spaceship Earth or board the center's newest addition, a ride-through adventure called Horizons.

In Central Florida, the recent opening of the 870 room Buena Vista Place, the 445-room Ron Tiki Village Resort Hotel and the 220-room Caravel Inn brings the total room count in the Orlando-Kissimmee area up to 75,000.

For entertainment, visitors can climb aboard boat cruises now offered along the Dora Canal in Mount Dora or enjoy Kissimmee's Gatlinburg Zoo's recently opened Jumperoo Show, featuring snapping alligators leaping for food.

In northeast Florida, visitors will find that preservation efforts have served as a springboard for many new bed and breakfast inns, including Jacksonville Beach's 1924 Casa Marina Hotel and St. Augustine's Casa de Solana, a restored 1763 colonial home.

Travelers can tour Jacksonville

Beach's restored turn-of-the-century railroad depot, now housing the historical society's museum of local history. They also can walk along the northward-flowing St. Johns River, which has two new riverfront restaurants, the Chart House and Crawdaddy's.

In southeast Florida, Miami Beach's restoration program includes a $944,000 landscaped riverwalk along the Miami River, while visitors can thrill at the 80 rides which make up the new $18 million water theme park, Six Flags Atlantis, nestled around an 11-acre lake in Hollywood.

The "World of Little Horses" opened recently in Pompano Beach with 48 Palmbella miniature thoroughbred horses.

West Coast visitors can tour Adventure Island, a satellite of Busch Gardens in Tampa, which has opened a new water slide called the Gulf Stream. Entertainment of a different kind is offered at the new Ruth Eckerd Hall, a $13 million, 72,000 square foot performing arts center in Clearwater.

New restaurants guaranteed to tempt the palate are Tampa's London Victory Club, Ybor City's Old Spaghetti Warehouse, Palm Harbor's Indian Royal restaurant and Sarasota's Sticks & Restaurant in the Palmetto Wharf Company complex on the Manatee River.

Northwest Florida travelers can explore Shipwreck Island, a $6.5 million water sports park with wave pools and water slides at Panama City Beach. Travelers also can visit uninhabited beaches of Shell Island across from St. Andrews Bay by taking advantage of the area's two new houseboat rental operations, Create-a-Cruise in Carabelle and Home Cruiser Boat Rentals in Fort Walton Beach.

Southeast Michigan drivers should allow at least 2 1/2 days to reach the Florida state line and an extra day if traveling to Miami, said Drury.

The fastest and most direct route listed on the Auto Club's map for southeast Michigan motorists is along I-75, which covers 1,401 miles — all four-lane highway — with only about 50 miles of semi-mountainous driving in Kentucky and Tennessee.
