Teachers help 'youth at risk' avoid trouble

By SUZANNE HOLLYER
Staff Writer

Substance abuse, teen pregnancy and teen violence were the subjects of discussion for a number of educators from around the state at a conference held recently in Novi.

But the problems were not the main focus; solutions were.

The program, titled "Strong Kids — Strong Communities: Overcoming the Problems of Youth at Risk," addressed the problems shared by all of today's youth.

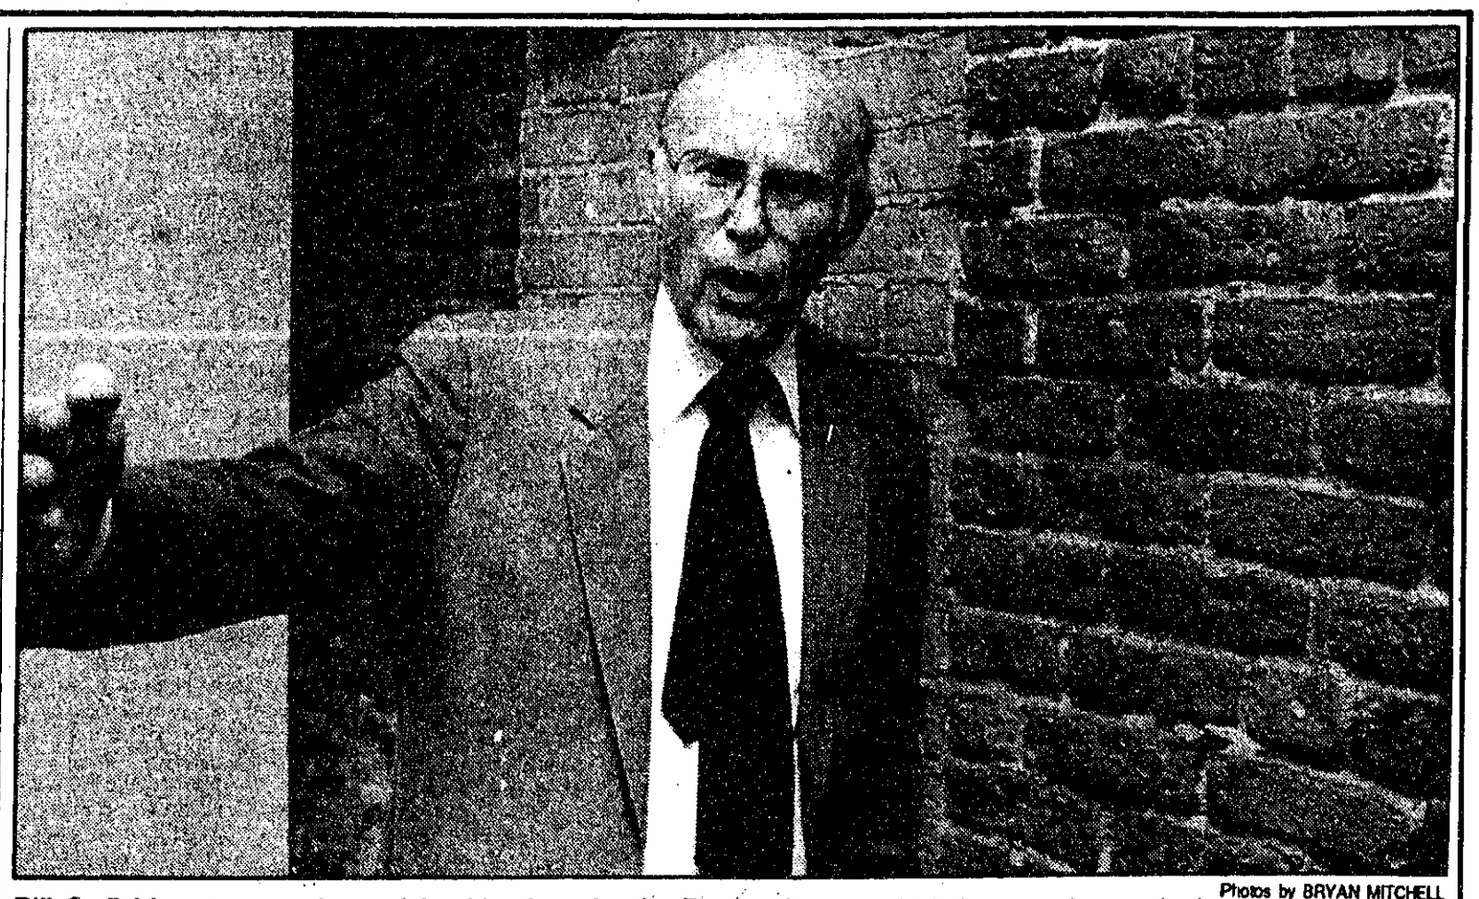

Representatives from Oakland, Wayne, Washtenaw, Ingham, Iosco and Presque Isle counties participated in the program which helped participants develop supportive programs to prevent substance abuse, teen pregnancy, teen violence and cultural alienation among teens in their communities.

"It's for the kid in Novi. It's for the kid in Detroit. It's for any kid because all kids have problems with self-esteem," said Christopher Lufkin, coordinator of science education at the Novi Tollgate Center. "It's, 'What am I going to do with my life?' kinds of things."

Thornton House rescued

Minister to develop new subdivision around historic house

By JAN JEFFRES
Staff Writer

Propped on I-beams, surrounded by waist-high weeds, vacant and neglected, for several years the Thornton House seemed to be the house nobody wanted.

Novi pioneer Sally Thornton's clapboard home faced an ignominious bulldozing in the near future if no one took owner Irwin Arkin up on his offer to give the circa 1838 Greek Revival structure to anyone with a good homesite.

Northville resident Bill Garfield came to the rescue recently, with a scheme to restore the farmhouse once owned by his high school sweetheart's family and turn it into a residence for his son, Bill Garfield Jr.'s family.

The Garfields won't plop the house down on a new lot just anywhere in Novi. The designs call for a village green surrounded by the Thornton house and six new homes, all built in a similar 1830s style. The 19th-century-style community, Old Novi Village, is planned for a six-acre site on Eleven Mile Road east of Taft Road.

"We're trying to keep the integrity of the original design and appearance of the thing. We're going to make it as much as it was in the last century as possible. We want to see this wonderful old house go on living for another 100 years. We want to put it in a suitable setting," said Garfield, a Realtor and a minister.

"We hope to create an on-going community so none of us are outsiders any more. We need to quit moving around. Go west young man? No, stay still young man. This is where your roots are."

Garfield and his wife may also move into Old Novi Village.

He hasn't been the only one eyeing the simple white, Greek Revival home, since June a local cause celebre.

An outside view of the Thorton House

As a pet project, Novi Historical Society President Kathy Mutch founded the "Friends of the Sally Thornton House" to try to save the house from destruction. Thornton family members came back to town and offered moral support. The "Friends" plans, which Mutch is not ready to disclose, were just ready to jell when Garfield took ownership of the house.

"We welcome any effort that will successfully achieve our goal which was to preserve, relocate and restore the Thornton house. The plans we were working on would have placed the house in a position to be used for educational purposes that focused on local history in a public setting," Mutch said.

"I've gotten attached to that house, I really have."

The Novi Chamber of Commerce was also looking over the building, for possible use as an office.

Garfield first became acquainted with the Thornton house when he was hired by his girlfriend Mary Rogers' father to paint it in the summer of 1948. He and Rogers — a direct descendent of Sally Thornton — dated throughout their junior high and high school years in their hometown, Birmingham, but later went their separate ways.

Novi News joins in holiday campaign

The holiday season is fast approaching, and with it will come all kinds of office parties and friendly get-togethers.

Unfortunately, holiday festivities can produce deadly results if drinking gets out of hand. At least two out of every five Americans will be involved in an alcohol-related accident during their lifetimes, and some won't walk away from those crashes.

To help spread the word about the dangers of driving and drinking, The Novi News and the five other HomeTown Newspapers, along with Mothers Against Drunk Driving and volunteers of GM-UAW Local 483 Jobs Bank, have combined efforts to urge people to "Tie One On For Safety."

Included in this week's edition is a red ribbon attached to a message about making the holidays happy and safe. Everyone is urged to remove the ribbons and attach them to their vehicles.

The four-year old "Tie One On" campaign consists of distibuting millions of red ribbons to promote responsible behavior, including the use of a designated, non-drinking driver or dialing a cab when inebriated.

Tying a ribbon to the door handle, antenna or sideview mirror of your vehicle is a reminder not to drink and drive during the holidays.

"The holidays are a joyous time of year," said Philip Jerome, executive editor of HomeTown Newspapers. "We are pleased to help Mothers Against Drunk Driving deliver the message about the dangers of driving drunk to the people in the communities we serve."

The HomeTown Newspapers are The Novi News, Northville Record, Brighton Argus, Livingston County Press, South Lyon Herald and Milford Times. Owned by Suburban Communications Corporation, they are published in conjunction with the 13 Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and have a combined circulation of a third of a million readers.

Novi Briefs

Band makes it big: The Novi High School marching band will perform in Detroit at the 64th Annual Michigan Thanksgiving Day Parade. The parade begins at 9 a.m. at the corner of Woodward and Mack avenues. The parade continues down Woodward Avenue to Jefferson Avenue and is free.

The night before the parade the marching band will participate in a musical competition featuring bands scheduled to appear in the parade. The "battle of the bands" will be held Nov. 21 at the University of Detroit in Calihan Hall on McNichols near Livernois. The competition begins at 7 p.m.

A seasonal sparkle: Deck the city hall(s). Residents are invited to the eight annual "Light Up the Holiday Ceremony" at Novi Civic Center on Monday, Nov. 26 at 7 p.m.

The tree-lighting ceremony, held in cooperation with the Novi Jaycees, includes a community sing-along, light refreshments, a holiday address from Mayor Matthew Quinn and other state and local officials, as well as a visit from an even more prominent dignitary — Santa Claus.

Children especially are encouraged to attend. To share in the holiday spirit of giving, everyone is asked to bring a canned or boxed food item for the Jaycees Needy Family Christmas Program.

Bargains for jocks: Novi's 10th Annual Used Sports and Recreation Equipment sale is scheduled for Saturday, Dec. 1 at the Novi Civic Center from 10 a.m. to noon.

Residents with equipment to sell are invited to bring in their used skis, skates, balls, bikes, sporting apparel, etc. In return for the space to hawk your wares, the Novi Parks and Recreation Department keeps 15 percent of the sales price.

Register on Wednesday, Nov. 28, Thursday, Nov. 20 or Friday, Nov. 30 from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. at the Novi Civic Center.

Dial 9-1-1, p-l-e-a-s-e: Novi Fire Chief Arthur Lenaghan says that several emergency phone calls have come in recently to the fire department's business line. In case of emergency, residents are asked to dial 9-1-1.

"Fortunately, it's been during business hours and we've been able to handle it. But after five, the answering machine is on," he said.

For regular business with the fire department, including scheduling tours and fire prevention programs, call 349-2162 between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Meeting rescheduled: The next Novi Board of Education meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 29 at Parkview Elementary School.

The board voted Thursday to eliminate the scheduled Nov. 15 and Dec. 6 meetings due to limited agendas. The agendas will be combined for the session on Nov. 29. The Dec. 6 meeting had been listed incorrectly as Dec. 16 on most district calendars.

Giving thanks: The Salvation Army is looking for food donations to make up Thanksgiving baskets for needy families and individuals in Novi, Farmington, Farmington Hills, Southfield and Livonia.

If you are interested in donating food, please call Cheryl Carter at 477-1153. Businesses which would like to run a canned food drive may also call Carter to arrange for a collection pick-up.

The Salvation Army is located at 27500 Shiawassee, Farmington Hills.

EDUCATION

Forum blasts useless studies

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

A western Wayne County teacher raised her hand to ask her congressman and a U.S. Department of Education administrator: "How does all that research out there apply to us in southeastern Michigan?"

Her question, asked in Livonia's Randolph Elementary School, echoed the words of a reading teacher in Ann Arbor's Abbott Elementary a day earlier: "I think grants are given to researchers on the basis of what they want to research, not what we need to know."

Listening and taking notes were U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, a senior member of the House appropriations subcommittee on education, and Christopher T. Cross, assistant secretary of education in charge of $96 million in research grants.

A week after being elected to his eighth term in Congress, Pursell held forums with teachers in Jackson, Ann Arbor and Lansing to test several ideas on the nation's growing education budget:

- The findings take 10 years to "trickle down" to classroom teachers.
- Much research on education is done in think tanks with a "Washington Beltway/University of Michigan mentality" and is less than useful to classroom teachers. In the words of James (Doc) Doyle, HomeTown Newspapers columnist and Pursell consultant: "A lot of educational research is a bunch of crap."
- The money might better go to state departments of education or regional teachers' colleges like Eastern Michigan.
- Classroom teachers themselves need to be actively involved in research projects. "We need more collaborative research," said a Livonia master teacher.
- Teachers need help dealing with new social problems — kids from broken homes, parents from Asian and other cultures, the continuing "achievement gap" between black and white students.

Pursell said two national problems prompted what will be a two year project: First, the $1.3 trillion federal budget is likely to be $300 billion in the red next year, and cuts are needed. Education gets $27 billion, all research $96 million, education research $50 million.

Second, in a global economy where Japanese and Taiwanese companies are gaining dominance, American kids are falling drastically behind in such critical areas as math by fifth grade.

"Our assistant superintendent is excellent in pulling research," said a Northville teacher — a distinct minority. Most teachers complained they didn't know what was being done and had little time for in-service training.

"Here we are, taking on all the social problems of the world," said a teacher in the Livonia forum. "The divorce rate is sky-high. They (kids) are left at home alone."

"Years ago we used to see only one or two (with emotional problems)," added another.

Other teachers' comments:

"We need more information on what's available to us" — an Ann Arbor teacher.

Pursell's reply: "At U-M, 400 researchers are getting National Institute of Health grants."

Teacher's comment: "They're there, and we're here."

"A lot of research is good because it tells us to keep on with what we're doing or to ditch it . . . Sometimes we don't give the federal government credit" — a reading teacher. She cited a federal finding that says girls have as many problems as boys, confounding the conventional wisdom that boys have the majority of reading problems.

"It takes 10 years for research to get to the practical level" — Ann Arbor teacher.

Pursell's comment: "We can't afford 10 years."

"We don't know what's going on around the country" in improving blacks' performances.

Cross' reply: "We're making progress. Among blacks the high school graduation rate is 81 percent; among whites, 84 percent."

Teacher's response: "We're not closing the gap. Where do we go to find out what other districts are doing?"

"There's no time to plan" — a western Wayne teacher.

"You have three months every year" — a Jackson County superintendent.

Cross, as an administrator, often is at odds with Pursell, a former classroom teacher in Taylor and Livonia in the 1960s.

Cross said laws and the bidding process require many educational research grants to go to universities.

"I've put emphasis on the dissemination. We have that on the boards — get the information into the hands of teachers," Cross said, citing the addition of a journalist from U.S. News & World Report to his staff.

Teachers flunk lab test

U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell said he won lunch in a bet with Chris Cross, assistant secretary of education. Cross said he won a second bet.

The two are at odds over the usefulness of federal educational research grants.

"We have a federal (education) lab that serves Michigan. How many of you know where it is?" Pursell asked educators from Plymouth-Canton, Northville and Livonia.

No hands went up — except for Livonia Superintendent Joe Martinelli.

Answer: the Midwest Educational Research Lab in Elmhurst, Ill. — a $200 million-a-year lab serving seven states. It's one of nine regional labs in the country.

Cross claimed his victory when he asked teachers whether they knew about certain research and innovations. Many said yes.

"You're using the product coming from it, but you don't know where it's coming from," said Cross.

Walled Lake finally has a winner

Walled Lake Schools Superintendent James R. Geisler, reaching a landmark in his 22-year career in education, has been named Michigan Superintendent of the Year.

Geisler, 46, learned Nov. 12 that he had earned the top honor bestowed by the Michigan Association of School Administrators.

His reaction?

"Disbelief, really," he said Tuesday. "It's real nice."

News of Geisler's award spread quickly through the Walled Lake Consolidated School District.

"That's just great," said Al Kaczkowski, a parent who worked on a committee that developed a long-term strategic plan for the district. Geisler initiated that project.

"He wants to see a strong future unfold for the district," Kaczkowski said. "He believes that by working together we can have the best district in America, literally."

Geisler, nominated by school board president Esther McInnis, beat out four other highly respected superintendents to win the prestigious award. They were Francis Higgins of the Lanse Creuse District in Macomb County, Robert Hagerty of Ionia Public Schools, Randall Neelis of the Menominee School District and Donald Shubuzski of Ingham Intermediate Schools.

Serving as judges were representatives from such diverse groups as the Michigan Education Association, the Michigan Parent-Teacher Association and the State Board of Education, among others.

Geisler will receive a plaque during MASA's midwinter conference in January in Dearborn. He also will become a finalist for a national award given by the American Association of School Administrators.

During his two years in Walled Lake, Geisler has led successful campaigns for a $47.8 million bond issue for new construction and a Headlee Amendment override that let the district's school taxes outpace inflation.

Geisler also has improved community relations and united a school board that had split into opposing factions under former Superintendent Don Sheldon.

"Dr. Geisler is a very strong leader, and he's very person-oriented," said Margaret Guzzio, an Oakland Technical Center teacher who has taught in the Walled Lake district for 19 years. "He takes a lot of input from a lot of people, and I think he really listens to people. He respects their opinions.

"He's a very positive person," Guzzio added, "and I have a great deal of respect for the man."

School board secretary Joel Silberblatt said that Geisler "works very well with the board and the community, and I think everybody around has seen that. I personally am totally pleased for him, and I'm pleased that the district will get the recognition. It's another shot to bring the district into where we should be."

Geisler said the Walled Lake district "has the kind of environment that allows you to do your best."

School board members hired Geisler in July 1988. Prior to that, he served as assistant superintendent of Royal Oak Schools, principal in North Muskegon and assistant principal in Chicago, where he launched his career as a teacher.

The Walled Lake district serves 9,583 students in the townships of West Bloomfield, Commerce, White Lake and Wolverine Lake, and the cities of Farmington Hills, Novi, Orchard Lake, Walled Lake and Wixom.

It's never to early to start reading to baby

We just had our first baby. We know it is important to read to your child. However, we don't know how soon we should start reading to the baby. What do you suggest?

As soon as possible! At birth the baby howls — its first communication. Therefore, prior to reading, you should continually communicate in a gentle voice with your baby at its earliest age.

You see, recent research found that by the 10th week babies can not only recognize their own mother's voice but can literally sense or smell their own mother's presence in the room.

Jim Trelease stated in his "Read-Aloud (To Your Child) Handbook" that children are programmed from birth with an immediate need to communicate.

Studies constantly find that if early language interchanges are not fostered between six months and two years, intellectual curiosity will most likely not be present at age five.

What do I mean? Babies first use one word, i.e. "Bottle" for "I want my bottle," or "Up" for "Mom or dad, please pick me up." The parental response should be something like, "Oh, you want your bottle" or "Let me pick you up" . . . a full sentence to nurture language development.

When should you start reading to your child? As soon as the child can sit in your lap. Why?

The emotional bonding that is nurtured between the parent and the child is as critical to the process as teaching the child a love of reading. This belief, although a bit Freudian, is one I personally believe.

As a specific example, have the child bring their favorite teddy bear to you and just happen to have a book on "bears" available. An immediate interest will be generated. Have the child point to the bear in the story. Say, "bear."

Be aware of the child's body language. When the child pushes the book away from you or bangs on it, go to something else. Please don't force the child to be a Shakespearean scholar by age four. The whole concept is to make reading enjoyable, a natural phase of life.

As the child grows, solicit thoughts. Have the child articulate parts of a story they have become familiar with. And remember, some very active children initially can't sit still for long periods of time. They are into motor skill development and it may take this type of child longer to "settle in" to reading.

But all children will settle into reading if the "reading aloud to your child" experience is perceived as a warm, safe and natural part of life. It won't be long before the child will bring the books to you.

Reading aloud to your child is one of the most important gifts you can give the child. Please let it be natural . . . don't be the drill sergeant parent who wants Johnny reading by the second grade level in kindergarten.

I can assure you those children who learned to love reading, who can pick out the main character, sequences, activities and draw conclusions will catch up and past robot reader children trained to regurgitate information.

Students learn court is supremely important

By SCOTT DANIEL
Staff Writer

For one day last week, the Novi High School auditorium became the scene for real courtroom drama.

Judge Brian MacKenzie of the 52nd District Court, Division 1, brought a courtroom setting to students last Wednesday (Nov. 14) as part of a continuing educational program with school districts in the court's jurisdiction.

"The program is set up to educate the students about the courts and to show them what a district court judge does," said MacKenzie. "They will be in a better position to understand what we do when it's time for them to get out and vote for a district judge."

Novi was the last stop on the program's tour this year, which included South Lyon, Milford and Walled Lake Western high schools. This is the second year of the "Court Day" program with the high schools.

According to Diane King, a business law teacher at the high school, students had the chance to watch the proceedings of a real day in the life of the court. She said every student had the option of attending the sessions, which covered the majority of the school day.

"It's a great opportunity for the students," King said. "It's probably the only exposure that many of them have had to the court."

At Novi High's court day, students and Judge Brian MacKenzie re-enact a drunken driving case

The docket for the day included cases from simple assault and driving on a suspended license to operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor.

"It's was a realistic cross-section of the court's docket," said MacKenzie.

The docket was arranged to show a mixture of cases that are heard in the court each day, he said. MacKenzie added that he got authorization from all the parties involved in the cases before putting them on the court day schedule.

Perhaps the most interesting case that students heard was that of Edward Ray Rock Jr. of Highland. He was scheduled for pre-trial at the court, but, after his lawyer arranged a plea-bargain agreement, was sentenced by MacKenzie.

Rock was to be charged with a second offense of operating a moving vehicle while under the influence of liquor, driving on a suspended license and driving with expired plates and registration. The plea-bargain agreement, however, allowed him to make a plea of guilty on the first charge in exchange for the other two being dismissed.

As a result, Rock received a year in the Oakland County Jail, two years of probation, a $570 fine and suspended license, among others, for the offense. MacKenzie warned Rock of ever having such charges brought against him again.

"Alcohol is a drug," he told Rock. "You're an American and I suppose you have a right to kill yourself any way you want. But, you can't take anybody with you.

"If I see you again in my courtroom," MacKenzie continued, "you better be prepared to spend the maximum amount of time in jail."

Students were surprised by the severity of some of the punishments against the law breakers.

"It's very real," said Amy Burrows, a student in King's law class. "It's different to see that (drunk driving) is being punished and how harshly."

Brian Molloy, 17, agreed with Burrows that the penalties for some of the crimes were stiff. He added that the court was much different than what he has seen on television. Molloy, who had a chance to observe last year's court day session, said other students seemed to follow what was going on better.

"The kids are asking better questions," he said.

At the end of each session, MacKenzie took questions from students. One student asked the judge why some people that are convicted of crimes receive work releases and others don't.

MacKenzie replied that it was "a balance of factors." He said when considering work release he must take into account such things as: not punishing an entire family for the actions of one, the family's financial dependence on that person, or the offender's potential to learn a skill or be rehabilitated.

"With some individuals there is no point of assigning work release," MacKenzie told the students. "I have to remove them (from society) as long as I can. It's depressing to give that sentence."

Salvation Army preps for holidays

By SCOTT DANIEL
Staff Writer

The Salvation Army, with the help of Novi residents and businesses, is working to make this Thanksgiving a bountiful one for all city residents.

For the past several years the group has been assembling Thanksgiving baskets for the needy. The Salvation Army plans to provide the baskets to residents in Novi, Farmington, Farmington Hills, Southfield and Livonia.

"We plan on distributing between 120 to 150 baskets for families this year," said Salvation Army Lt. Jonathan Rich. "Each basket will contain turkey, dressing, rolls and bread, vegtables and pumpkin pie."

About 10 families from the city will receive the baskets, he said. Rich added that Novi generally has the least amount of families that receive the baskets in the area.

"The program has gotten good support from Novi residents," he said. "The West Oaks K mart is our biggest contibutor. Nobody surpasses them."

The Salvation Army is accepting food donations until Wednesday morning for the Thursday feast. If possible, Rich said, the group would like to have most of the donations in by tonight so that volunteers can put the baskets together Tuesday. He added that donations of canned goods to whole dinners will be accepted until Wednesday.

Most of the area residents receiving the baskets pick them up at the Salvation Army's headquarters at 27500 Shiawassee in Farmington Hills. The group will be delivering baskets to those who can't leave their homes because of illness.

To receive a Thanksgiving meal, residents must be able to show that they or their families are needy, Rich said. To do that, proof of income and family size must be shown, he said.

"We have to protect donors and the people that are really in need," Rich said. "If folks can prove that they are in need, we will help them."

Despite requiring the proof, the Salvation Army is careful to respect the dignity of the needy, he said.

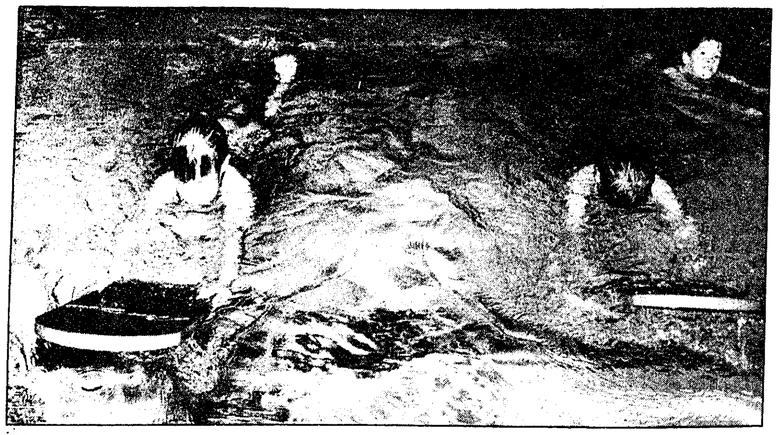

"The army is as careful as can be (about who receives the baskets)," Rich said, "but we protect the individual's dignity."

About 60 Thanksgiving baskets were presented to area residents last year, he said. Rich added that the program has been doubling in recent years because "the word has gotten out.

"It's a meaningful program and we have found that residents want to help out."

Besides the baskets, the Salvation Army will be hosting a sit-down Thanksgiving meal tonight. The meal will be served at 6:30 p.m., at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Farmington Hills. The hall is located at 21900 Middlebelt Road, near Nine Mile.

Anyone wishing to attend the dinner is welcome. The Salvation Army asks that those who plan on attending call ahead at 477-1153.

Wet fun

Through a special program, fourth graders from the Novi Woods Elementary School get a chance to learn how to swim. The students are transported to Novi High School for use of the pool there. Above, three elementary students practice their kicking technique. Below, it is sometimes as much fun to get out as it is to get in.

Minister rescues Thorton House

"I haven't seen her in years and years. I do want to get her out here," he said.

The Garfields have the qualifications necessary to tackle the ambitious job. The owners of Garfield Building Company in Northville, the family specializes in custom construction and residential and commerical historic restration.

Garfield projects include renovating Victorian homes in Northville, WMUZ radio station in Detroit and the historic buildings from 109 to 121 North Center in downtown Northville, including the Veranda Shops.

The Thornton house will need to be transported several miles from its present site by a professional moving company. As a worst-case scenario, one wing of the house might be temporarily removed so the building can clear local streets. A foundation and basement will be waiting for it.

Police News

A 1989 red Pontiac Bonneville was reported stolen from a residence on Haggerty Road in Novi. At the same time, a stolen 1988 blue Pontiac Boneville was recovered from the same location.

The owner of the red Bonneville reported his vehicle stolen Nov. 10 between 5:45 and 6 p.m. from the parking lot next to his home.

The blue Bonneville recovered at the location was, according to police, reported stolen from a Farmington Hills residence.

There was reportedly steering column damage to the recovered auto and the driver's door lock was pried and pulled.

According to the police report, the blue car was impounded and held for fingerprints, per instructions by Farmington Hills police.

DISPLAY CABINET THEFT — A decorative display cabinet used for holding sugar and tea was reported stolen from the Novi Hilton Friday.

The display, which was reported to be on a table at the front of the hotel's ballroom, was in the north end of the building on the first floor.

A housekeeper witnessed the theft. She said she saw two white males leaving the building. One was holding the display under his arm.

She told police that, when she saw them leaving with the display, she asked them what they were doing with the item. One of the suspects told her he was with the party that the item came from.

The housekeeper said she knew that the ballroom was closed and the table was set up for the next day's event. She said the suspects left in a red two door vehicle with a license plate that included the number 357.

STOLEN TARP — A Novi resident reported Nov. 11 that his brown tarpaulin and 12 bungee cords were stolen from a stake truck at Copeland Asphalt Yard.

The tarpaulin, which was attached to the truck with the bungee cords, was reportedly at the Copeland Asphalt Yard on Meadowbrook Road at the time of the theft.

LARCENY — A 40-year-old Wixom man was charged with larceny after he allegedly stole a shopping cart from Meijer Nov. 9. According to Northville Township police reports, the man loaded items into the cart and proceeded through the store checkout line. Employees told the man the cart was for employee use only, but he left the store with it and loaded the cart into a pickup truck.

Store security recorded the man's license plate number and reported the theft to township police. Police then traced the man to a Wixom address and questioned him by telephone. The man returned the cart Nov. 11 and told police he was intoxicated when he committed the theft.

Police are seeking a warrant for larceny against the man.

STOLEN TRUCK — A 1979 Ford van was reported stolen from the Novi Industrial Center on Heslip Drive Nov. 14. The owner of the van told police that he had been renting space at the Industrial Center in late summer, and that the truck had disappeared from the rented site.

The landlord at the center told police the truck had not been towed away.

STOLEN SPEAKERS — Two JBL speakers were reported stolen Nov. 14 from a 1987 Nissan parked in the south parking lot at Mr. B's Farm in Novi.

According to the police report, the rear driver window of the vehicle was smashed. There are currently no suspects or witnesses.

MERCEDES DAMAGED — Someone slashed a tire on a 1988 Mercedes Benz that was parked outside Wing Hing, 43171 Seven Mile Road, Northville Township police said. The incident occurred Nov. 10 between 7-9:15 p.m., police said.

MALICIOUS DESTRUCTION — The left outside mirror of a car parked in the red lot of Twelve Oaks Mall in Novi was reported pried off and pulled loose Nov. 14. There are currently no witnesses or suspects.

OUIL — A 41-year-old Plymouth man was arrested and charged with operating a vehicle under the influence of alcohol Nov. 15 at 1:02 a.m., according to Northville City police reports. Police arrested the man after he made an illegal U-turn behind their patrol car on Eight Mile at Novi Road. He was charged and released on $500 bond.

STOLEN VAN — A 1986 burgundy Chevrolet Astro van was reported stolen Nov. 12 from a Petros Street residence in Novi.

The vehicle, which contained miscellaneous tools and cassette tapes, was reportedly parked in the owner's driveway. The owner told police that she did not observe or hear anyone take the vehicle, which she said was locked. She had the keys in her possession.

Police reported there was no evidence of forced entry into the van at the scene. The seats of the van were left behind, leaning against a second vehicle in the driveway, police reported.

The sliding door of the van was reportedly broken and does not close correctly.

MALICIOUS DESTRUCTION — A disabled vehicle parked near the intersection of Thirteen Mile and Decker roads was reported vandalized Nov. 14.

The vehicle, a 1990 Eagle Talon, reportedly was spray painted on the right door and fender. In addition, the rear and left rear windows were reportedly smashed.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call Northville City Police at 349-1234, Northville Township Police at 349-9400, or, the Novi Police Tip Line at 349-6887.

Time set for debate of health model

By SUZANNE HOLLYER
Staff Writer

The Northville School District and parents opposing the Michigan Model for Comprehensive School Health Education have come to an agreement.

The parents will not discuss their concerns with the model at the Nov. 26 Board of Education meeting as reported earlier, but will wait until Dec. 10, said Superintendent George Bell.

The parents agreed to wait until the December meeting at Bell's request. The request was made, Bell said, because the Nov. 26 meeting will be held at Winchester Elementary School.

Winchester staff members will give a presentation at the meeting. To save time, the parents were asked to wait until the Dec. 10 meeting to present the board with their concerns, Bell said.

The board will set aside time in the meeting for the parents to present their concerns to the board, Bell said.

The parents are not an organized group, but individual parents with concerns about individual parts of the health model. They will present their concerns, and a petition, to the board.

Educators seek to aid 'at risk kids'

Wyndham Garden Hotel in the Novi Town Center Nov. 9-11 and was sponsored by the 4-H Youth Programs, including the Tollgate 4-H Education Center, the Lifelong Education Program at Michigan State University, the Michigan Optimists International Clubs and the Tollgate 4-H Education Center.

Representatives of Novi schools, like Lufkin, were present along with other Oakland County representatives from Bloomfield Hills, West Bloomfield, Pontiac, Clawson, Troy and Southfield.

"It's the kind of thing Tollgate wants to be involved with," Lufkin said. "People were charged up."

Though teen pregnancy, drug abuse and teen violence were discussed, the main issue was self-esteem. Ideas for communities to raise self-esteem were offered, Lufkin said.

"This conference was about positive action and being pro-active," Lufkin said.

"It wasn't about 'Oh my God look at all these problems.' It wasn't just a conference on how bad things are, but how we can make it better."

The participants were divided into 10 teams. Speakers from Michigan State University and other organizations involved in youth related issues spoke to the groups and provided resources to the participants.

Printed material with suggestions for fighting teen problems was distributed. Titled material, like "50 Tips for Fighting Drug Abuse in Your Community" and the "Challenge of Parenting" offered practical advice to the participants, Lufkin said.

"We were basically learning about issues that face our youth," said Lufkin, who thinks what he learned will be useful at Tollgate.

"One of the things at Tollgate is to set up situations where youth will be successful."

The program may be repeated in the future, but probably in other parts of the state, Lufkin said.

"It's kind of an ongoing thing at Tollgate," Lufkin said.

The program was well received from those who attended, Lufkin said.

"This was something that was beneficial to them and something they're going to be able to use in their communities," he said.

Juke box is sound investment for nostalgia buffs

When the neon lights are shining and the mirrored ball is turning in Ed Blain's showroom, you may think you've stepped into jukebox heaven. A nickel or a dime is all you need to fire up Glenn Miller or The Supremes.

But walking away with a jukebox for your own home requires a bit more capital.

Blain, Detroit's king of jukeboxes, has been tracking down, restoring and selling vintage jukeboxes for 20 years. He began his career in a Pontiac flea market and now works exclusively out of several storefronts on Gratiot Avenue near Six Mile in Detroit.

Over the years, he has restored close to 2,000 jukeboxes, servicing restaurants, homes and even customers as far away as Berlin, Germany. According to Blain, more than half of his sales are to people in Oakland County suburbs like Rochester, Birmingham and the Bloomfields.

"My wife and I went to this place looking for an inexpensive newer model machine," said Gus Doerfler, a paper sales manager from Rochester. "But then we saw this and knew we had to have it."

A metallic clank echoes at the bottom of the coin box of his circa 1950 Rockola Rocket, setting into motion one of 25 record selections, visibly spinning through a window in the front.

The centerpiece of Doerfler's basement rec room, it is surrounded by a black-and-white tile floor, a soda counter and pictures of Elvis and James Dean.

For him, the jukebox recalls his childhood.

"We used to go to a pizza place about as big as this room and, of course, it had a jukebox," he said.

A similar sense of nostalgia got Blain into the business.

"When I was a teenager, my mother had this restaurant with a big wooden jukebox in it," he recalled. "I wanted to find one just like it. By the time I had found it about eight years ago, and just a mile away from here, I already had hundreds of machines."

With his slick black hair and gravely, tough-guy voice, Blain, 65, is a perfect compliment to the machines he sells. He estimates that he has 800 machines in his 18,000 square feet of storefront and warehouse space.

Pointing to one of 50 machines that line his panelled showroom, Blain conducts a brief history of jukebox styling.

"The value of a machine doesn't depend on how old it is," he said, explaining why the '30s models, similar in design to an old radio cabinet, can be obtained for considerably less than the neon and chrome gems from the 1940s and early '50s.

Perhaps the best known of these is the Wurlitzer 1015 of 1946. The crowning achievement of famed designer Paul Fuller, this bullet-shaped steeple of wood houses glass colored by green, blue and red flashing neon. An electrically operated bubble device runs up tubes along the sides.

Jazz guitarist Earl Klugh bought one for his home in Bloomfield Township and stocked it with 78 rpm recordings of Count Basie, Duke Ellington and other jazz greats.

"There's something intangible about the sound," he said. "It's certainly more fun than playing your stereo. As a musician, I appreciate that unique, bassy sound."

Perhaps the last great jukebox design was 1961's AMI Continental, a futuristic bubble-topped model with aquamarine accents. Hotel manager Bill Kirkhuff has one in his Art Deco-style basement in Birmingham. He's got it filled with everything from Patsy Kline's "Crazy" to the Pet Shop Boys' "Opportunities."

"I originally bought it as an investment, but it's grown into something more," he said.

Unlike earlier models, the '60s and '70s machines no longer allowed the player to see the record selections spinning.

"The companies thought the public was too sophisticated to be enthralled by a piece of mechanism," Blain said. "Actually, it was just a cockamamie excuse for building cheaper machines."

Now, with the price of a vintage jukebox rivaling that of a new car (a clean Wurlitzer 1015 sells for about $13,000), customers are looking to the newer, less expensive alternatives. A model from the '60s or '70s can be obtained (including delivery) for around $500.

Christmas is an especially busy season for Blain. Last year he was making deliveries at 11 o'clock on Christmas Eve. He remembers one clever customer who hid a jukebox behind a paneled wall in his basement. When it came time to open gifts, he simply removed a bit of paneling and revealed his surprise.

The dimly lit back rooms of Blain's operation are overflowing with machines, some completely stripped for parts. Others wait for a finishing touch to make them operational again.

Gus and Ellen Doerfler with their jukebox

Jukebox history started in 1930s

With a swift smack, The Fonz could make the Seeburg Model C jukebox in Arnold's start to play in the television show Happy Days. Tunes like "Blueberry Hill" and "Rock Around the Clock" would fill the hamburger joint.

The crackling sounds of 45s playing on the jukebox have become a thing of past. Today, jukeboxes filled with compact discs give the customer a choice up to 1,200 tunes rather than the 100 The Fonz had to select from.

But at one time, vinyls were the mainstay of smoke-filled roadhouses, sock hops and mall shops.

The first modern era jukebox was built in 1934, but the music machine's popularity didn't take off until 1950-60. In its heyday, 50,000 jukeboxes were manufactured annually and there were 500,000 in distribution.

The "granddaddy" of jukebox manufacturers is Wurlitzer, which dominated the jukebox industry through the 1940s. Wurlitzer manufactured classic jukeboxes, including its highly prized 1015.

But even though the 1015 was a classic, it had a few drawbacks. It played clumsy 78 rpm records and its selection was limited to 24.

In 1951, Seeburg introduced 45 rpm records. They were smaller than their cousins, the 78s, and cheaper to manufacture. They also spawned Seeburg's Model A jukebox, designed to play 100 selections.

The Seeburg Model A soon rendered the Wurlitzer jukebox obsolete and within a short time gave rise to the B and C models.

Jukeboxes were the mainstay of coin-operated businesses until video games came along. Between 1972 and 1982, the demand was for video games as opposed to jukeboxes.

Today, jukeboxes are becoming collector's items. It's estimated that there are 20,000 private collectors in the United States.

And for collectors, the cost depends on the jukebox being bought. When it was first made, the classic Wurlitzer 1015 cost between $700-800. A few years ago, one in mint condition had a value of $15,000 to $20,000.

Wixom's Beck Development created the Villas, the first fully detached condominiums in the Livonia area

Villas are step up for Livonia

By RICK BYRNE
Copy Editor

Even with the economic climate slipping into the doldrums, there are still some people willing to take aggressive financial risks.

The partners in the Villas, a Livonia condominium community unveiled last Tuesday, are just such people. Angelo D'Orazio and Tony Carnacchi, along with Northville natives Earl and Steve LaFave of Beck Development in Wixom presented the luxury development in a ribbon-cutting attended by many Livonia and area dignitaries.

That The Villas contains so many firsts for Livonia represents a substantial gamble for the principal partners.

"It's an uncertain time, but we feel strongly that it's going to be a successful community," said Earl LaFave. "We feel there's a large void in the Livonia market for a large, upscale, detached condominium development."

The Villas is located south of Eight Mile Road just east of I-275. Homes in the Villas feature three different models, ranging in price from $199,500 to $235,900. Every home is completely detached, which is a a first in Livonia. This building method which has proven extremely popular in the Bloomfield-Birmingham area, and was most recently tried in Novi at the Briarwood condominiums.

"We found that there are a lot of empty-nesters here in Livonia," said LaFave. "But they have strong ties in the community and don't necessarily want to relocate to another area."

People looking to move up to the Villas will be first impressed with the visual appeal of the community.

"Two considerations were of the utmost importance in developing these homes," said LaFave. "One, the style should be European with a Mediterranean blend of brick and cedar. Two, there should be at least one amenity that is not only accessible to all residents, but also allows them the opportunity to interact wit one another. This was accomplished through the central waterscape — complete with lighted fountains, cascading waterfalls and an adjacent walking course."

The 42-unit community is built on a gently sloping piece of property, and it is that slope which makes the waterscape — the first built in Michigan — possible. Water rises out of a fountain at the far western end of the property, then trickles and cascades 500 feet downhill to the eastern end, meeting another fountain at the entrance to the community.

LaFave also proudly points out, "Many luxury options, usually termed as 'extras' by other developers, will be standard at The Villas."

Some of the amenities include a natural log-burning fireplace with marble or ceramic tile hearth, central air conditioning, solid oak cabinetry, insulated double-pane wood-frame windows, first-floor laundry, full basement, two-car attached garage with openers, electronic cooktop grill and range, dishwasher, built-in self-cleaning double oven with microwave, covered custom cedar deck and many other features too numerous to list.

Most importantly, there is an emphasis on large, open interior spaces. There is extensive use of windows and glass, and the plans allow for long diagonal views throughout.

The elegance of The Villas was underscored at Tuesday's grand opening. Livonia Mayor Robert Bennett, planning commissioners, council members and more than 300 invited guests will previewed each Villa model. They were entertained by strolling violinists, and champagne, wine and a selection of hot and cold hors d'oeuvres was served throughout the evening.

Is it a risky time to develop such an elegant and innovative community in Livonia? LaFave would rather think of it as a carefully calculated risk.

"We're proud to be a part of the Livonia community," said LaFave.

The Villas feature lots of windows and large interior spaces

"And we know that our buyers will appreciate the time and research that went into developing these exciting condominiums."

With investment observers saying now is the time to buy a home, Beck Development's risk could be a Livonia homebuyers gain.

Robert Meisner/Condo Queries

Consider liabilities of security choice

Our association is considering getting a master key instead of a key lock box. What do you think?

With the increase in the amount of liability the association is incurring with respect to security, it is my recommendation that the association not have a master key for all the units but have a visual key lock box whereby there are individual keys for individual units.

If the master key is lost, you have placed all the units in jeopardy, whereas an individual loss of a key results only in changing the locks on that particular unit.

Of course, you will want to investigate the question of whether the association wants to retain access to any units under any circumstances, particularly if they have the right to gain access to the unit in case of an emergency in the condominium documents.

I also recommend that the coowners have deadbolts to enhance security.

I am planning to develop a condominium near a golf course. Are there any suggestions that you would have with respect to this undertaking, particular to this setting that I am describing?

The item that was recently discussed at the community associations institute seminar was a failure on the part of the developer to disclose the statement, which, in your case, would include the fact that there is a possibility of errant golf balls on the condominium premises.

Some courts have held that associations are responsible for dangerous conditions being established because of the proximity of the condominium to the golf course.

I would also be concerned about the drainage of the condominium as a physical matter in connection with the golf course waters, although I presume that your site engineer has looked into this matter thoroughly.

Drainage is one of the largest causes of construction defect legislation in a condominium project both in Michigan and around the country.

Our condominium is large enough to consider hiring an in-house security guard. Do you have any recommendations?

In comparing in-house security guards to the alternatives, including outside guard services, it is my recommendation that you hire outside security and that you pay a sufficient wage to get top quality personnel.

Believe it or not, some security guards are paid as little as $6 or $7 an hour. I am told by people in the industry this makes it extremely difficult for them to hire a trained person.

The reason that you want to get an outside guard service is that it would be independently insured and have direct supervisory control over its personnel.

Therefore in the event of a lapse in security or an "inside" job, you will have recourse against the outside security company.

Veggies get taste of Southwest

Ventured into any trendy restaurants lately? One glance at the menu is all it takes to notice the influence the Southwest is having on our cuisine.

A few weeks back, dinner at Chimayo, Chef Brian Polcyn's new quasi-Tex-Mex spot in downtown Pontiac, turned up Chamo peppers stuffed with three cheeses. Last week, lunch at Chef Ed Janos' upscale Too Chez found another South-of-the-Border stuffed pepper sitting atop a bed of angel hair pasta.

Many of our local eateries are packing up the old steamed and sauteed vegetable routine and replacing what used to be fodder for folks without teeth, with a mixture of roasted vegetables. Grilled green onion strips, shards of carrots, slices of eggplant intermingled with an assortment of green, yellow, red, sweet, tangy, spicy and downright incendiary peppers are the latest food trend to hit the metropolitan area.

Sure, the chefs in these kitchens have $4,000 char-grills. You can easily duplicate char-grilled conditions at home with a $1,500 Jenn Air or $3,500 Caggenau grill, but what about the folks like you and me with a $299 Harvest Gold Tappan?

There are some tricks left over from my Halloween bag of goodies. For starters, anyone can use a backyard grill to duplicate trendy grilled vegetables. Gas grills are more convenient, and at a recent visit to a discount store, I found a small propane grill discounted from $30 all the way down to $13.99. Resisting the urge to upgrade the Janes Gang's debt-ridden Visa card, I remembered the old Barbeware grill borrowed many moons ago from Momma's fruit cellar. This electric version of the in-home grill produced stunning results.

But not to be outdone with electrics, propane and barbecues, I remembered a visit with international cooking guru Julia Child a few years back and her use of a portable propane torch to singe meringue on a baked Alaska dessert. This interesting device, long relegated to a basement or garage workshop, can do wonders for blistering the skins on many of the trendy peppers and vegetables available at any good upscale produce market.

With the simple flick of a Bic lighter, any basic baked or sauteed vegetable can be brushed with a simple Italian dressing and then torched to a glaze with remarkable results. Better yet, propane torches can be picked up for under $10 at any hardware or building supply shop.

Imagine what flavors can be intermingled into a basic chili by gouging a jalapeno pepper on the tip of a fork and then blistering the skin with the torch. Drop the pepper into a small bag, wrap and allow the skin to steam off, then perform a fine chop and, Voilal, instant flavor. Ditto for green peppers and their flavorful sweet counterparts, the red pepper.

Yours truly likes to slice eggplant about ¼-inch thick, place on a greased cookie sheet, brush lightly with a bottled Italian dressing, bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes and finish with a subtle glaze of the torch to a delicious golden patina. This will have your vegetable lovers shouting for more. The same procedure can be followed with parboiled carrot slices, plain green onions and fresh mushrooms.

Last week, the torch was used on basic sliced tomatoes topped with chopped basil and a sprinkling of Parmesan. The possibilities for using a torch in the kitchen are endless.

If you are sick and tired of basic old humdrum veggies, find a grill or torch and get roastin'.

Turkey daze

Indulge without feeling the bulge

Thanksgiving marks the beginning of the holiday season. It's a time for family, social gatherings, good cheer and a lot of food! Yet if you don't pay attention to what you eat these next few weeks, you can easily find yourself carrying a few extra pounds by the New Year.

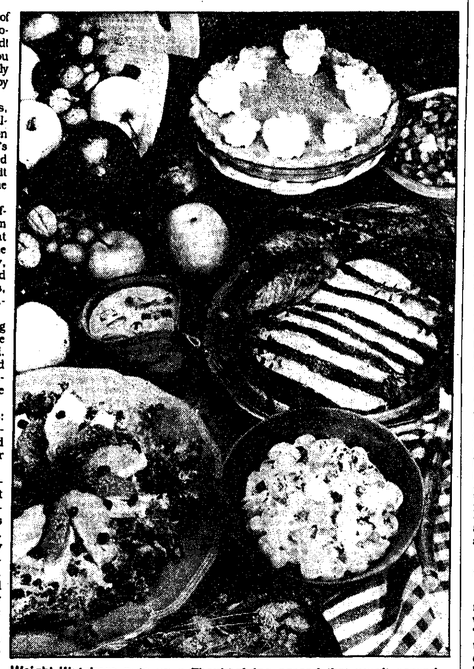

"For weight-conscious individuals, Thanksgiving presents a particular challenge," said Florine Mark of Farmington Hills, area director of Weight Watchers. "It's the first test of will power in a season filled with temptation. How well you handle it can affect your mind-set for the rest of the year."

With this in mind, Weight Watchers offers a traditional Thanksgiving menu from The Fast & Flexible Food Program that weight-conscious individuals can gobble up guilt-free! Enjoy Roast Turkey, Mushroom-Sage Gravy, Old-Fashioned Stuffing, Creamed Onions With Peas, Fennel-Grapefruit Salad With Pomegranate Dressing and Maple-Pumpkin Pie.

"Being careful about what you eat during the holiday season doesn't mean you have to feel different at the table," Florine added. "By planning ahead and making smart food choices, you can breeze through this holiday season and emerge even thinner for the New Year!"

Weight Watchers adds the following tips:

- Enlist your family's help for the cooking and/or cleaning up to help you avoid too much "taste-testing" and left over nibbling.
- Don't sit down to a holiday meal famished." Eat a light breakfast or lunch that day to allow for a little more at dinner. Remember not to skip meals, you'll be less likely to overeat if you're not overly hungry.
- Exercise portion control. Selectively choose what you'd like to eat. Sample a variety of what is served in small portions.
- Eat slowly and enjoy your meal. You'll feel more satisfied by putting down your utensils between bites and joining in on the conversation.
- If you're spending the holiday at a friend's or family member's house, offer to bring a dish. Prepare something non-fattening you enjoy so you can munch freely.

Weight Watchers puts on a Thanksgiving spread that won't spread your waist

MUSHROOM SAGE GRAVY

1 tablespoon plus 1 teaspoon diet margarine
1 cup sliced mushroom caps
½ cup finely chopped onions
1 teaspoon fresh minced sage or ¼ teaspoon dried sage leaves
1 small garlic clove, minced
1 tablespoon all-purpose flour
1 packet instant chicken broth and seasoning mix
2 cups skim or non-fat milk
1 tablespoon browning and seasoning sauce

Melt margarine in a four-cup saucepan. Add mushrooms, onions, sage and garlic and cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until onions are soft. Sprinkle flour and broth mix over vegetables and stir quickly to combine; cook, stirring constantly, for one minute. Reduce heat to low; add milk and browning sauce to mushroom mixture and, stirring constantly, cook until mixture thickens.

Each serving provides ½ vegetable exchange, ¼ fat exchange, ¼ milk exchange, 5 optional calories. Makes eight servings.

OLD-FASHIONED STUFFING

4 tablespoons diet margarine, divided
2 cups chopped onions
½ pound apples, cored, pared and chopped
½ cup each chopped celery and green bell pepper
1 small garlic clove, minced
¼ cup golden raisins, plumped
1 teaspoon poultry seasoning
4 ounces seasoned croutons
¼ pound cooked turkey sausage, crumbled
12 small chestnuts, roasted, peeled and chopped
½ cup thawed frozen egg substitute

In a nine-inch non-stick skillet, melt one tablespoon margarine. Add onions, apples, celery, pepper and garlic and cook over medium heat, stirring frequently, until celery is tender. Stir in raisins and poultry seasoning and set aside.

In medium mixing bowl combine remaining ingredients. Add vegetable-fruit mixture and stir to combine. Stir in remaining margarine.

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Spray an eight-cup casserole dish with non-stick cooking spray; add stuffing mixture and bake until browned, about 30 minutes. Makes eight servings.

Each serving provides ¾ protein exchange, 1 ¼ bread exchanges, ¾ vegetable exchange, ½ fat exchange, and ½ fruit exchange.

CREAMED ONIONS WITH PEAS

4 cups frozen pearl onions
1 cup skim OR nonfat milk, divided
2 teaspoons diet margarine
½ cup frozen tiny peas
2 teaspoons cornstarch
Dash each of white pepper and ground nutmeg
Garnish: fresh chopped parsley

In an eight-cup saucepan combine onions, ½ cup skim milk, and the margarine. Cook over low heat, stirring occasionally, until onions are heated through, about 10 minutes. Add peas and stir to combine.

Combine cornstarch with remaining milk. Pour into onion mixture, add pepper and nutmeg, and stir to combine; cook until mixture thickens, about five minutes.

To serve, transfer to serving bowl and garnish with parsley. Makes four servings.

Each serving provides ½ bread exchange, 2 vegetable exchanges, ¼ fat exchange, ½ milk exchange, 5 optional calories.

FENNEL-GRAPEFRUIT SALAD WITH POMEGRANATE DRESSING

For an attractive presentation, combine pink and red grapefruit sections in this holiday salad.

1 large pomegranate (about ½ pound), cut in half
2 tablespoons freshly squeezed lemon juice
1 tablespoon plus 1 teaspoon finely chopped shallot OR onion
1 tablespoon olive oil
Dash EACH of salt and pepper
4 cups lettuce, torn into pieces
1 cup sliced fennel (¼ inch thick slices)
1 medium pink OR red grapefruit (about 1 pound), peeled and sectioned

Over a small bowl remove peel and membrane from one half of pomegranate. Separate seeds from membrane and set aside.

In a small bowl using a hand juicer, squeeze juice (scant ¼ cup) from remaining half of pomegranate. Add lemon juice, shallot, oil, salt, and pepper and whisk to combine.

To serve, line serving platter with lettuce and decoratively arrange fennel slices and grapefruit sections. Top with dressing and sprinkle with pomegranate seeds. Makes four servings.

Each serving provides 2 ½ vegetable exchanges, ¾ fat exchanges, 1 fruit exchange.

MAPLE-PUMPKIN PIE

1 refrigerated ready-to-bake nine-inch pie crust
2 cups canned pumpkin
1 cup plain low-fat yogourt
½ cup thawed frozen egg substitute
¼ cup low-calorie pancake syrup (6 calories per 1 teaspoon)
2 tablespoons granulated sugar
1 teaspoon pumpkin pie spice
½ cup thawed frozen dairy whipped topping

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Fit pie crust dough in nine-inch pie plate and press edges of dough up sides of plate; flute edges, removing excess dough. Set pie plate aside.

Form excess dough into a ball. Between two sheets of wax paper roll dough, forming a 10-inch circle, about ⅛ inch thick. Using a sharp knife or cookie cutter, cut out eight cookies. Place cookies on non-stick cookie sheet and bake, in the middle of center oven rack, for four to five minutes. Remove to wire rack and cool.

While cookies are baking, prepare filling. In medium mixing bowl combine pumpkin, yogourt, egg substitute, syrup, sugar and pumpkin pie sauce and stir until thoroughly blended. Spread pumpkin mixture evenly in pie crust and bake, in middle of center oven rack, for 35 to 40 minutes (until a knife, inserted in the center, comes out dry). Remove to wire rack to cool. Serve at room temperature or cover and refrigerate until ready to serve.

To serve, top each portion with an equal amount of whipped topping and one cookie. Makes eight servings.

Each serving provides ½ protein exchange, ½ bread exchange, ½ vegetable exchange, ¼ milk exchange, 90 optional calories.

Nouveau is in stores for holiday

Beaujolais Nouveau is released for sale in France the third Thursday in November. It is always the first wine to be consumed following the fall harvest.

Some say it is barely wine, but in France there is always great celebration upon its release and the excitement has spread to the United States.

This year, the Beaujolais Nouveau release date was Nov. 15. At midnight in Paris, bistros, brasseries and restaurants along the Champs Elysees are crowded with patrons anxious to be among the first to taste the "nouveau" Beaujolais. Yellow and orange stickers in the windows announce, "Le Beaujolais Nouveau est arrive."

Several local distributors will be at Detroit Metropolitan Airport to receive their air-freighted shipments. These same people will then work long hours to ensure that the local wine shops have their share of nouveau wine.

The price of Beaujolais Nouveau will be more expensive this year, according to Ed Jonna, owner of the Merchant of Vino in Birmingham. "French Nouveau will cost from $7.50 to $9. However California nouveau wines will be about $5-$6 per bottle," he said. "Even the French realize the problem and are producing a less expensive Vin Nouveau, but it won't say Beaujolais on the bottle." Discussions with local distributors lead us to believe that air-freighted Beaujolais Nouveau may cost as much as $11 per bottle.

Wines shipped by sea, available a week to 10 days later, will cost less than $10.

The Merchant of Vino stayed open until midnight Wednesday to welcome the nouveau wines from France and California. "All stores in Birmingham will be open until 9 p.m.," Jonna said. "Customers can enter a drawing to win a trip for two to France. We will also feature a 30-percent-off wine sale where we encourage customers to come in to make their best deal."

Beaujolais Nouveau is a light, purply-red, fruity wine, only a few weeks past the fermentation period. Often it still has slight spritz indicating the fresh petulance of youth. The wine is meant to be consumed young and slightly chilled so that all its grapey character can be enjoyed. Its quality is an indication of the greatness of the Beaujolais harvest that year. It previews the more elegant Beaujolais from that vintage to be released in the spring.

The Beaujolais wine region is the most southern portion of Burgundy. Today, 6,000 estates and 200 shippers sell 100,000,000 bottles of this wine. Twenty years ago, Beaujolais was not considered a serious wine in America and the hype of Beaujolais Nouveau was considered a Parisian fad until the late 1970s.

Unlike Burgundy, which produces its red wines from the pinot noir variety, Beaujolais wines are principally the product of the gamay grape. A modification of the carbonic maceration technique is used for fermentation. With this method, the grapes are not crushed. Whole bunches are fermented. The result is a wine of extraordinary fruitiness.

If you have not yet sampled a light red wine with poultry, then we suggest a Beaujolais Nouveau to accompany Thanksgiving turkey.
