Voter turnout was just under 16 percent Tuesday in Novi, when local Republicans joined the district-wide trend by backing incumbent State Sen. Willis Bullard, R-Milford in the GOP primary for that seat.

Bullard was challenged by outgoing State Rep. Barbara Dobb, R-Highland Township, but he'll square off with Democrat S. Ruth Fuller in the November election.

For the primary, voters had to select either the Democratic or Republican parties. In Novi, 2,471, or 52 percent voted Republican and 2,198 or 46 percent voted for Democrat candidates.

In Novi, Bullard, who was backed by six of the seven members of the Novi City Council, grabbed 69 percent of the Republican vote, while Dobb won the support of just under 31 percent.

In the 15th District as a whole, it was much closer. Bullard was in the lead by 55 percent - 13,513 votes. Dobb trailed with 45 percent of the GOP votes cast - 11,074.

Dobb and Bullard were not available for comment by press-time.

Fuller, the lone Democrat candidate for the 15th District state senator's job, took home 15,034 votes.

Stanley Cup makes trip to Novi bank

By WENDY PIERMAN MITZEL

If you thought Red Wing fever had subsided, you were wrong.

Fans of the Detroit Hockey team clogged the NBD parking lot on Eight Mile Road in Novi Tuesday morning as the coveted Stanley Cup cruised through the parking lot in a Dodge Viper.

"We're giddy," said Ron Zimmerman, from St. Clair Shores.

Red Wings Assistant Coach

Dave Lewis, toured the lot with the trophy along with his son and the man appointed "Keeper of the Cup."

"It was phenomenal," said Rick Owens, also from St. Clair Shores. "I got to kiss the cup."

The castliders were joined by Kim Waggy of Redford. All three, as well as many other bank employees and fans sported team jerseys.

He's just a really nice guy. We were blessed with a visit," said Kim Simmons, senior assistant manager at NBD.

Her employees were "pretty geeked," she said.

Simmons said Lewis planned to take the Viper and trophy around town.

Before he did that, Lewis took the cup over to Rainbow Rascals Learning Center next door to show the cup to preschoolers there.

"I was touched. I thought that was so sweet," said bank employee and big fan Kim Withers of South Lyon.

"It was a big surprise," said Rainbow Rascals employee Ronda Kane, of Northville. "The kids were screaming 'Stanley Cup championships!'"

Her fellow employee Deanna Smith said the kids loved the visit.

"They were excited to tell their parents they touched the Stanley Cup," she said.

Novi students overcome

Thirty-eight high schoolers from America piled into a bus July 2 to begin their three-week tour of the United Kingdom and Ireland. Then one got sick, then another and another.

Soon, the majority of the young men and women were stricken with the virus that caused sore throats and achy feelings. Many of them made their first-ever visit for a foreign doctor for relief.

Novi teens Jessica Cole, Jennifer Davies and David Bliss were among the group, all of whom decided to stick it out.

"It seemed ridiculous to come home and not do anything, so nobody went home," said Jennifer, who will be a sophomore at Novi High School in the fall.

Instead, the young Americans toured medieval castles and famous monuments, explored old mine shafts, danced Irish jigs and Scottish steps and stayed with native families in their homes.

The students are part of the People to People Ambassador program, which sends students from the United States to foreign countries as a way to unite the world and improve global relations.

The three Novi teens discovered space and hot water are luxuries overseas. Many of the families slept in the same rooms and bath water was sometimes shared. Hot water was used sparingly. Some families hosted several foreign students in their homes at once.

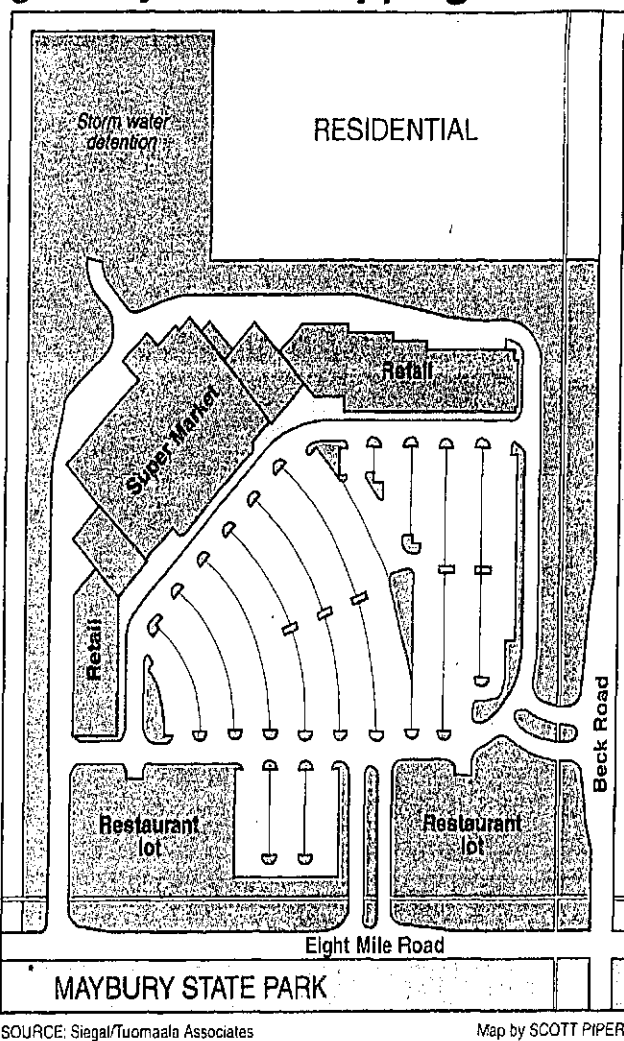

Jennifer's mother, Diane, went to England when she was a teen on her senior trip.

"It's nice because they speak the same language but it's definitely a whole different culture," Diane said.

"They have different customs," Jessica, also a sophomore, agreed. "They do a lot of things differently. Driving on the other side of the road was an experience."

The native cuisine took some getting used to, said the girls. All soups were creamy, the Memory lives on

Parents launch fundraiser in Jacob's nameBy WENDY PIERMAN MITZEL
Staff Writer

It's been a year free of chemotherapy, hospital visits and bad news for Jim and Michelle Dinkins.

It's also been a year without their first born son Jacob.

After a lifetime of tests a treatment for a rare blood disease called Histiocytosis, 19-month-old Jacob passed away in June of last year.

"When we left the hospital we didn't know where to go that day,"

Jim said.

Since then, the Wixom couple have given birth to Alyssa, now 5-months-old, but they haven't and will never forget Jacob. The Jacob Open - Golf For Life Tournament Aug. 28 is co-chaired by the couple in memory of their son. In it's second year, it will help raise money for research of the potentially fatal disease that strikes 1,000 new individuals, primarily children, every year. Last year, the benefit raised $17,000 making it the second largest fundraiser for the disease.

"The nice thing about the Jacob Open is it keeps the family talking about him keep his memory alive every day, not just in our minds but in our discussions," Jim explained. "It allows me to keep telling people about him."

The Dinkins first noticed something was wrong with their son only months after his birth. What they hoped was only a rash was diagnosed as a rare disease where cells overproduce and attack the

A BETTER UNDERSTANDING OF ABS
The Highway Loss Data Institute is a nonprofit research group funded by insurance companies. It reports early in 1994 that anti-lock braking systems (ABS) were not preventing crashes. Further research by the insurance institute for Highway Safety helps to explain HLDI's findings. The fact is that researchers have concluded that half of the owners of cars with ABS do not know how to use it. Most importantly, ABS requires steady, firm pressure on the brake pedal; no pumping of the brake pedal by the driver is necessary. In addition, owners of cars with ABS should not see it as a license to drive irresponsibly. ABS is not an anti-lock system. It is an anti-lock system that prevents the wheels from locking and permits drivers to steer their cars during hard braking on slippery surfaces.

ALL IN THE WRIST
There are two simple tests that can be used to help determine whether a person has carpal tunnel syndrome (CTS), the wrist malady that produces numbness and pain in the hand. These tests measure wrist shape and the strength of certain muscles in the palm. According to a study in the American Journal of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation, a wrist that is square, rather than rectangular (as measured by a calliper), may predispose a person to CTS. In addition, having weak thumb muscles, gauged by holding the thumb and pinky finger together while a doctor pushes on the thumb, may also be indicative of CTS. However, neither test is as good at diagnosing the problem as a nerve conduction study. Repetitive stress injuries such as carpal tunnel syndrome are the fastest growing health concerns in the U.S. If you believe you may have this disorder, call NOVACARE at 349-3816 to schedule a diagnostic test. The delicate features of the tan Greyhound peered out from under the table where she hid from the crowds. Shaking, the once chased racing dog looked to owner Lenka Perron for reassurance.

A balloon from a nearby booth just popped, Perron explained, sending Sierra and her other Greyhound, Nevada, quivering.

Lenka brought the dogs to the Michigan 50s Festival, July 24, to attract attention to her booth, retired Greyhounds as pets, and her cause - to do away with Greyhound racing.

"Our express purpose is to educate the public that Greyhounds are destroyed after they are done racing," she explained.

Greyhounds begin racing as early as 18 months and retire by age five. Some are put down as soon as they are found to be less than adept racers, she said. REGAP estimates 50,000 have been killed or sold to research, although racing promoters publicly disagree and say the industry has changed.

"We never admit it was that bad in the past, but certainly there's been many changes where the industry has made the care of the Greyhounds the top priority," said Gary Guevone, with the National Greyhound Association.

Theresa Boulware, of Novi, also

"Emotionally they are very affectionate and bond immediately."

Lenka Perron, REGAP

works with the organization and coordinated the booth at the festival. It was at the Ann Arbor Art Fair two years ago she and her husband Dale heard about the group and adopted a two-year-old Greyhound named Fergus.

She's never been to a dog racing track, but her heart instantly went out to the breed.

"They are real sweet and gentle dogs and they don't bark," she said.

"We had (Fergus) for one day and he was running around the house to all the things he knew were his - his bed, his dish. He finally figured out what was just his," Boulware recalled.

Trainers and breeders call Perron and others in the National REGAP Network when they have Greyhounds to retire. Guevone said whereas 3,500 racing Greyhounds were adopted in 1990, last year 18,000 found homes.

The volunteers at REGAP are regulars at heading south to pick up the dogs and then to try to find them homes.

"Still, you can only take so many Greyhounds," Perron said. "We place about 100 a year in the state of Michigan."

Perron says the dogs make great companions and become a "second shadow." Fostered by REGAP volunteers, the dogs are ready for a family environment when they are adopted. They are not vicious and high-strung, the organization insists.

"Emotionally they are very affectionate and bond immediately," she said.

Physically, some of them come to her in poor health. She said it's due to poor diets, injuries from racing and being kept in a cage up to 22 hours a day.

Still, REGAP finds the dogs that can make the transition to a permanent home through adoption. The minimum donation to adopt is $180 which includes spaying and neutering, vaccinations, tests and transportation. Interested dog lovers need to call 1-800-GO HOUND to receive an information packet and application. After that, a formal interview process and home visit take place.

Interested adopters often visit Boulware to meet Fergus. And the Novi woman helps owners complete paperwork and actually meet their new Greyhound for the first time.

"That's really exciting," she said.

Robbers hit local pizza parlor

Novi police are investigating an early morning robbery at Dolly's Pizza on Pontiac Trail July 31.

According to police, a man and woman came into the pizza store through the rear door during the very early morning hours. They encountered employees and brandished a gun, demanding an undisclosed amount of cash. The robbers then taped the employees' hands behind their backs and their legs together. They ran back out through the rear door.

Police said the employees were unharmed.

PEER PRESSURE

The owner of the Links of Novi and two of his employees, chased away a group of young adults trying to go "raving" at 1 a.m. Aug. 2.

The owner was working on installation of an irrigation system when he spotted shadowy figures near the golf cart corral. The three men ran toward the figures and pursued them, capturing a 23-year-old brexton man.

He told them he met a group of people at a party in Plymouth and while drunk agreed to go partying on the golf course and joy riding in the cars. He didn't know any of the people he was with, he said. Only their first names. The four other people with him escaped in a green Explorer. He said they didn't intend to steal the cars.

Police questioned him but released him at a nearby Meijer's.

The Lakes Area Citizens Police Academy begins Sept. 9 but there's still time to register for the nightly course that gives residents a taste of real police work.

Residents of Novi, Walled Lake and Wixom can explore the world of police reality during the 11-week session that explores police procedure and the judicial system. Students meet each Thursday night at 7 p.m. to learn about police training, communications, investigations, crime prevention, the medical examiner's job, weapons training and many other law enforcement related topics during the three hour sessions.

Classes take place at various locations including each of the departments, a shooting range, the Michigan State Police Northville Post and 52-1 Court in Novi.

The sessions are offered at no charge to the residents.

The academy is a joint venture of the Novi, Walled Lake and Wixom police departments. Residents of the three cities or people who work within the city boundaries can sign up. The intent is to promote a better understanding of the departments personnel and policies. Sessions are held in the spring and fall. The program started in 1994. Applications are now available and can be picked up at the Novi police station. For more information, call 348-7100.

A house on Broadwood Park Lane was struck by 16 pink colored paint balls overnight July 30.

Police said no other homes on the street were targeted.

Two men riding the mountain bike trails in Lakeshore Park July 28 were treated to a car break in when they arrived back at the parking lot.

Police said one of the Novi residents' Chevy Tahoe was vandalized. The windows were smashed and a car door was dented. A wallet was stolen out of the pants left in the vehicle.

Citizens with information about the above incidents are urged to call the Novi Police Department at 348-7100.

Sweet sounds of summer

Leading his family in a dance to the music of Novi Parks and Recreation outdoor concert band "Counter Play" is 5-year-old Sam Palmer. Joining in with Sam's efforts are his parents Martha and Bob, and Sam's sister Alex, 7. Many residents plunked down blankets or chairs out on the lawn at the Novi Civic Center at right, the band Counter Play adds its music to the Sounds of Summer outdoor concert series. The band played popular rock and roll hits from the 50s, 60s and 70s.

Novi teachers spend summer in school

A number of Novi teachers spent a portion of their summer vacation training on programs that allow students to learn and gain experience on technology that is used in everyday business and industry.

Four teachers spent two weeks in front of the computer learning the Geographic Information System, or GIS.

This technology uses computers to generate information about places on our planet through the use of maps, charts and tables. GIS is used by business to plan school bus routes based on student residences, map out newspaper delivery routes, research changing wildlife habitat in a national park, and analyze patterns of toxic wastes in area soils.

Novi Meadows teachers, Barb Brunetti, Jeanne May, and Gary Hurst continued participation in "Making Connections," another program that incorporates real life experiences into lesson plans.

This summer Gary Hurst prepared a presentation on the Fifth Grade Curriculum Integration Project for the state Board of Education. For this assignment, Novi Meadows fifth grade students designed a plan on how to build a middle school and develop residential land using assignments in science, social studies, math and language arts.

Students researched all steps involved including land purchase, floor plan and landscape design, hiring building contractors, environmental impact, effect on transportation, setting up utilities, and hiring staff.

This experience taught students about teamwork, technology, roles in the community, communication and career awareness.

Teachers this year will participate in the externship program of "Making Connections," where they work for one week in a business facility learning about the work site, career field and culture of business.

They will then use this knowledge to plan, prepare and teach students about career paths or fields.

What are health problems of urban sprawl?

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

Regional leaders are wrestling with the question: What's the difference between a "health problem" requiring governmental capital and "urban sprawl" which is a no-no?

The Southeast Michigan Council of Governments issued that problem into the lap of its Environmental Policy Advisory Council. Specifically, EPAC will recommend whether to amend the seven-county region's water and sewer service map to expand in three outlying areas.

EPAC is chaired by Marysville

Mayor Deem Boldyreff, and vice chairs are Plymouth Township Supervisor Kathleen Keen, McCarthy and Professor Orin Gelderios of the University of Michigan-Dearborn.

"We will not support policies which subsidize growth," said SEMCOG executive director Paul Tait at the July 31 executive committee meeting, restating SEMCOG's "policy against 'urban sprawl'."

"There are legitimate health problems," Tait added, underlining the other side of the problem.

Under consideration are applications for federal and state aid for 11 sewers in the southern Huron Township in Wayne County and a neighboring part of Monroe County; 21 water extension for Oakland County; and 31 water extension in East China Township in St. Clair County.

"There's definitely a need," said Elaine Binkhager, SEMCOG executive committee member from Canton Township. "We probably made a few people rich (in dealing for extensions)."

James Murray, Wayne County's director of the Department of Environment, said the line between two policies was gray.

"South Huron is under (sewerage) capacity. They have to comply with federal and state standards," Murray said. But when they comply, they allow expansion.

"Oakland County has 200,000 septic systems. Wayne County has 30,000 to 40,000," Murray added.

SEMCOG's executive committee voted $25,000 for a staff report on "sustainable development" in the region to resolve the question. "That would give us an inventory of best practices," said Tait. The study would be published and sent to SEMCOG's 140 governmental unit members.

SEMCOG chair Douglas Woolley, supervisor of Pittsfield Township in Washtenaw County, said "sustainable development" will be his "signature project" for the region.

In other business July 31, the SEMCOG executive committee endorsed:

• A Proposed State Policy for the Reuse of Obsolete Buildings. If enacted into law, the policy would allow local governments to eliminate property taxes for 12 years on improvements made to buildings officially declared obsolete, in order to bring them back into use at reduced tax cost.

• A similar policy for "blighting buildings." Local units could condemn property, relocate residents, and adopt redevelopment plans.

Currently, the owner of a blighting building could donate it to the local unit, to a local economic development corporation, or a non-profit organization. The new policy, if enacted into law, would allow local units to give owners incentives to donate a blighted building—such as forgiveness of fines and fees.

Livonia man dies in freeway crash

A 45-year-old Livonia man was killed and two family members were seriously injured when the driver of another car allegedly fell asleep at the wheel Sunday morning on Interstate 96 in Lyon Township.

Christopher Kramer, 22, was traveling west in his 1997 Honda when he apparently dozed off at 8:10 a.m. near South Hill Road, said Michigan State Police Trooper Ken Figgins. His car's air bag deployed, and his car's air bag also activated.

A spokesperson for the hospital said Tuesday that Zeng was in critical condition. Jo Ann Segatt is in fair condition there.

Charges are pending while the case remains under investigation, Figgins said.

A resident of Highland Township, Kramer was tested for drugs and alcohol; results are expected within the next ten days, the trooper added.

Traffic was backed up on the freeway for about an hour because of the accident.

Man bond over for Novi robbery

The Farmington man who was shot and wounded by South Lyon Police officers during an April 23 robbery attempt at Showerman's was hospitalized over to recent court last week for a similar robbery in Novi.

Kevin Alexander waived a preliminary examination July 30 in Oakland County District Court 52.1 before Judge Dennis Powers on four counts of armed robbery. Alexander is suspected in a chain of 10 similar robberies at food and department stores in southeast Michigan beginning in September of last year and allegedly ending with the shooting at the South Lyon Showerman's in April. Alexander was wounded in the shooting with South Lyon Police, and appeared on crutches in court last week.

In all cases, Alexander allegedly hid in the stores after closing and confronted store employees wearing a mask and demanding cash at gunpoint. Alexander currently faces four counts of armed robbery stemming from the April 6 robbery at the West Oaks Kmart in Novi, and he faces arraignment Aug. 13 before Circuit Court Judge David Breck where he will enter a plea on the charges facing him.

SEMCOG fights municipal business 'pirates'

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

Cities in southeastern Michigan are putting the heat on Gov. John Engler to veto a bill they say grants too much power to "pirate" communities to lure away business.

An Engler spokesman said the governor will sign Senate Bill 733 by the end of the week.

There are 60 communities with local enterprise zones, said Paul L. Tait, executive director of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) as he spread word of the veto effort.

The target bill began life as an effort to ease taxes on charitable trusts but was amended in the House.

As Farmington Hills Mayor Aldo Vagnozzi put it in a letter to Engler: "The measure can lead to the pirating of businesses from one community to another without the safeguards that the benefits will go to communities with need."

He likened lawmakers' tactics to a "sneak attack" because they bypassed the normal committee process.

Vagnozzi quoted from the House Republican search staff which said, "This bill does not require an exit visa like other legislation offering tax breaks for locating in distressed areas ... This bill does not allow local government units to exert such influence when businesses leave their area."

"Any of these municipalities (those seeking to lure businesses by exempting 100 percent of newly acquired personal property) can establish a new industrial development district by resolution. In addition, it is not that difficult to declare an area distressed, so more unitedly to another without the safeguards that the benefits will go to communities with need."

Aldo Vagnozzi, Farmington Hills mayor

local government units may follow ... "This bill does not restrict the exemption to new personal property ... So personal property exempt under PA 198 (the industrial facilities tax, for example, could be moved into a new exempt district when its current exemption expires and maintain the property's exempt status."

Rochester Hills Mayor Kenneth Snell had a similar complaint. "Under current laws," he said,

"when a company wishes to relocate jobs in order to receive a tax abatement from another community, the 'host' community must review and approve the relocation. Rochester Hills has been the recipient and giver of such company moves ... In fact, we've never refused such an employment transfer."

"SB 733 would allow communities to lure companies without this approval step. This bill will create unfair results and long-term liabilities for all communities," he said, urging Engler to veto it.

SB 733 passed the Senate Feb. 25 on a 37-0 vote.

On May 27 it was reported out of the House Tax Policy Committee, headed by Rep. Kirk Proffitt, D-Ann Arbor.

Special ed bus hit by driver allegedly drunk in early morning

Minutes after a group of special education students had arrived and entered Old Village School, their school bus was rear-ended by a drunk driver.

According to Northville police, it was 8:30 a.m. when a Ford Ranger pickup drove left of center on Main Street in Northville and collided with the bus on July 20.

The 42-year-old driver from Sterling Heights told police he had been run off the road. He also said the bus had cut him off, although it had been parked in front of Old Village the entire time.

"We were lucky that the bus had already been boarded and there weren't kids in the area. During the school year there could have been a lot more serious consequences," said Sergeant Jim Marks of the Northville City Police Department.

Nominations sought for beauty awards

By WENDY PIERMAN MITZEL

It's time to thank the businesses, subdivisions and other developments in Novi which take the time to make the city more beautiful.

The Novi Beautification Commission is taking nominations for the city's annual Beautification Awards. Awards will be given out October 1.

The committee is changing this year, taking overall nominations, not for specific categories.

And while committee members used to also go out and nominate businesses or subdivisions, this year they will only review the nominations sent to them, said Lou Martin, public information director.

Part of the reason is the dwindling number of members on the committee.

"It will be hard for them to judge what they get but at the same time they still want to do this for people," Martin explained.

Everyone nominated will be recognized.

Some special awards will be given from that group.

"We want to acknowledge the growth and improvement of the area as a whole," said commission member Julie Johnson.

Eligible are schools, multi-family developments, single-family subdivisions, industrial buildings, offices, places of worship, shopping centers and individual businesses.

Anyone can nominate themselves or others.

Said Martin, "It's always a neat event some places really go nuts."

Last year, Glenda's Market, Saddle Creek Apartments and Novi Town Center were among the winners.

Among the winners in the 1996 were Sonny's Catering, Novi Woods Elementary School and Chase Farms subdivision.

Students of all types seek help from OCC counselors

By TIM RICHARD
Staff Writer

Counselors have new tools at Oakland Community College. They also have new responsibilities. And they've always had the fun/challenge of "meeting people at the crossroads of their lives," in the words of Ruth Grass.

"The job is unique at a community college," said 20-year veteran Grass, who works at the Highland Lakes Campus, "because the counselor handles such a wide variety of people."

"People from 18 to 80. The kid from high school. The divorced mom. The senior citizen. The laid-off worker seeking retraining. People who want to re-career."

"How do you help people get unstuck? I love that work! When a light bulb comes on," she said, using the comic strip analogy, "that's pretty powerful stuff."

"People bring in their lives: work schedules, families, lack of support at home, test anxiety. Some I refer to the financial aid office. Ours is right across the hall," she said, nodding across a corridor in the campus Highland Hall.

UNLIKE UNIVERSITIES

That makes counseling at a two-year, open-admissions college far different from counseling at a university.

"Such support is not commonly available in higher education," said OCC Chancellor Richard T. Thompson, himself a former counselor. Community colleges are "opportunity institutions" so "transitions are a large part of our students' lives," he said.

Grass elaborated: "At a university, a counselor is a faculty advisor, and it's organized around an academic curriculum. Here it's on a more personal level -- social development, academic advising, career planning."

"We have so many partnerships with business and industry (retraining and upgrading existing workforce). It's not an easy job."

She uses another analogy: A counselor is like a naval navigator who is supposed to know the waters, the reefs, the shoals, the currents. "Everything is goal-oriented and student-centered. We [counselors] are not here to fill classes. Students' goals vary -- and change."

NEW TOOLS

"Counselors see themselves as high-touch, but in the last five years we've become high-tech," she said, patting the keyboard of her computer with its VCR program. VCR stands for verified counseling record.

Grass records every interview with a student, the advice she gives and gives the student a printout.

"They [students] leave with a printed plan of work. They love it. They have something tangible. And I'm accountable," Grass added, that a later counselor also can look up the advice she gave that student.

"It's the most exciting thing in counseling in a long time," she said -- "once you learn the system."

Most counselors are generalists.

but a few are specialists, such as Dr. Roger Zapalski, who knows the computer information system curriculum, and Dr. Larry Gage, who helps the impaired. Foreign student advisors, who know the immigration rules, are in a separate office.

Computers also help counselors look up the programs and requirements of universities to which students might transfer.

"More students are university-bound," said Grass. "That percentage has increased. Some of our students are university students who come here for the summer."

"A student may come in and say, 'I want to transfer to Michigan State, and I want to know exactly what courses will transfer.'"

"We also have a lot of undecided students. My question to them usually is, 'What do you want OCC to do for you?'"

"We have career planning classes. We have career centers on every campus that give assessment tests, do a personality and interests inventory, look for patterns."

NEW EMPHASIS

OCC has put greater emphasis on counseling, in part because it guides students away from failure, in part because it helps student retention.

Take the literacy program. Previously, a student who finished at Level 1 on the ASSET test in English and needs developmental English course must see a counselor. Now, anyone finishing at Levels 1 and 2 must see a counselor.

OCC counselor Ruth Grass advises student Heidi Gadoua on options at the community college.

"That's a whole 'nother group we've been asked to see," Grass said.

Also, students registering in the same course for the fourth time must see a counselor. "The student may have dropped out. There may have been a job change, or he may have been ill. He needs to articulate his recommitment," Grass said.

She said 95 percent of students are receptive, open and motivated. "They said, 'I need you.' Some are frustrated because they're on a hold."

When my husband got his first church, I decided to get an MBA in guidance and counseling (from Ohio State). At OCC she won an "outstanding faculty" award in 1991.

Grass also has been tapped for other work in the college. She was an interim academic dean, and recently she retired as president of the Academic Senate, which develops on new courses, new programs and the grading system.

Said George Carlsson, OCC's director of college communications and himself a former counselor: "You can't have administrators doing that."

Each of OCC's five campuses has a counseling office.

body.

During his short lifetime, Jacob suffered bone and vertebrae fractures, cardiac arrests and a distended abdomen. The disease attacked his liver, lungs and spleen. He spent most of his life in under hospital care. Treatment included chemotherapy, blood transfusions and morphine for the pain. In the end, Jacob underwent every known treatment for the disease.

"It doesn't affect their mind," Jim explained. Choking back tears, he imagined what it must have been like for his son. "He was still a kid who wanted to play but his body wasn't able to keep up with him."

But Jacob surprised doctors who thought the worst, recovering from each episode against the odds. He continued to do so each and every time with a smile, until June 19 when he passed away while at the hospital. It was a shock even to the doctors.

"If I could have made a deal with the devil and sacrificed my life, I would have," Jim said.

Not long after Jacob's death, the couple found out they were pregnant. The baby is doing just fine.

"It's actually kind of scary," he said. "Although the disease is not hereditary you know one of your kids have had it and living in a hospital for six months you see a lot of diseases ... it opens your eyes to the possibilities."

Throughout the months and during the last year, the couple became involved in the Histiocytosis Association of America and met others like them.

"You feel so isolated because you kept hearing it's 'rare, rare, rare,'" explained Jim. Now their work enables them to help others possibly avoid the trauma they and their son went through.

Fourth of July, many of the families the students stayed with cooked them a special Independence Day dinner -- roasted turkey.

They thought that's what Americans ate for the holidays, Jennifer explained.

The students said perspectives on alcohol are different as compared to the U.S. where it's taboo for kids.

"There's alcohol everywhere," said Jennifer. "You knew you couldn't have it but you couldn't not go where it was."

"On the trip you learn a lot about other cultures as well as yourself," said David. "You're away from your parents which is kind of good because it gives you a sense of independence. Gives you a sense of the real world."

Jessica's mom, Jan, said she's seen her daughter mature since the trip.

"The independence," she explained. "I've seen a big change in Jessica. She grew."

"What's really neat for them is the U.S. is only 200 years old and they went to countries that are hundreds and hundreds of years old. We don't have that history here," Jan added.

David said the trip does help foster better foreign relations, even at a young age.

"I was in Ireland when they had the fire bombing that killed a couple kids," he explained. "I'd heard about it in the U.S. it wouldn't have had such an impact! But it was everywhere. It was like the Oklahoma City bombing. You were right there. You could experience what everyone thought and felt. I wouldn't have gotten that here."

The students agreed that the countries they visited weren't anything like they expected. Many of them are looking forward to going on other trips with People to People, although the thousands of dollars it cost may be tough to raise again. The girls both babysat throughout the last year to offset the cost.

The students said although they enjoyed themselves, it was time to come home.

What was the first thing the students did when they returned to the states?

"I got Taco Bell," Jessica laughed. "Artificial food. They didn't have anything like that over there."

Jennifer, on the other hand, sat in once place for a while.

"I can sit here and know I don't have to be anywhere in an hour," she explained.

In 1996, People to People celebrated its 40th year of service and cultural exchange begun by President Dwight D. Eisenhower in July 1955. Inten to reducing East-West tensions of the Cold War he convened a conference to discuss programs to increase American visitations to other countries. For more information call (509) 534-0430.

Little known about rase disease

Histiocytosis is a mysterious and sometimes fatal disease that affects about 1,000 new children and adults each year in the United States.

Although the cause and best treatment of this disease are unknown, scientists do know that patients with Histiocytosis have too many histiocytes, a form of white blood cell, in their systems.

These cells multiply wildly and can attack any part of the body, including bones, spleen, liver, lungs, skin and lymph nodes.

This disease is similar to cancer in some ways and historically has been treated by oncologists with radiation and chemotherapy.

Unlike cancer, it sometimes goes into remission without treatment.

Histiocytosis is so rare that there is little research into its cause and treatment. Unfortunately, the pain and suffering associated with this disease are just as severe as that with diseases which are well known and receive major research funding.

New OCC program teaches general contracting skills

A partnership between Oakland Community College and Eastern Michigan University now enables OCC students to acquire the technical and management skills to qualify for employment in the field of general contracting.

The new Construction Management Option of OCC's Management Development program leads to an associate degree in applied science. It was developed by the two schools in cooperation with industry experts, and follows guidelines established by major construction associations. Graduates will qualify to work in such entry- and middle-level management jobs as scheduling, planning, surveying, construction safety and assisting project managers.

Students will be able to take the OCC supportive courses at any of the college's five campuses. Twenty credit hours of major requirements in construction are taken through EMU, but the EMU classes are all offered at OCC's Orchard Ridge campus in Farmington Hills. Two EMU classes will be presented at Orchard Ridge this fall -- CNST 125 (Introduction to Construction) and CNST 201 (Construction systems). The two courses may be taken concurrently.

The associate degree in Construction Management is conferred by OCC, but students who wish to continue their education may be able to apply up to 100 OCC credits toward a bachelor's of science degree in construction from EMU.

All necessary classes to complete the EMU bachelor's degree will also be taken at OCC's Orchard Ridge campus.

Students who declare a major in construction management are also eligible to apply for the recently announced Governor's Scholarship program which covers one half the cost of books, fees and tuition for two years of full time study, or four years of part-time study.

For further information contact the counseling department at any OCC campus, or Construction Management Program Coordinator

Pam Jackson at (248) 471-7646.

Self Defense Workshop

The Womencenter at Oakland Community College's Orchard Ridge campus presents a Women's Self Defense Workshop on Saturday, Aug. 22, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Room 303 of J Building. Admission is $40, and preregistration is encouraged.

The workshop is conducted by self defense expert Jaye Spino who holds a fourth degree black belt in karate and a second degree black belt in modern arnis. Effective light and escape techniques from assault will also be covered.

Women of all ages, sizes and fitness abilities are encouraged to attend. Mothers and daughters (15 years of age and older) are welcome, as are young women preparing to leave for college. Attendees should wear comfortable clothing and bring a bag lunch.

To register or for further information on this and other Womencenter programs, call (248) 471-7602.

Career Scholarships

Approximately $1.6 million to approximately 1,800 full and part-time scholarships is available through Oakland Community College this fall for students seeking "gold collar jobs" -- well paid employment in careers that require a high level of training and skills, but not a four-year degree. The scholarships cover one-half the cost of books, fees and tuition for two years of full-time study, or four years of part-time study.

Known as the "Governor's Scholarship Program," the project was recently unveiled by Gov. John Engler. More than $20 million has been allocated statewide for the program. Governor's Career Scholarships at OCC are made available through the Michigan Jobs Commission and the Oakland County Workforce Development Board.

Designed to attract students into occupations where critical labor shortages threaten the state's economic growth, the scholarships are concentrated in the manufacturing, health care and information technology fields. Examples of the 22 eligible courses of study offered through OCC are two-year associate degrees programs in aviation management, nursing, dental hygiene, medical assistant, pre-engineering, computer aided design, construction management and computer information systems.

Scholarships leading to one-year certificates in such fields as practical nursing and business information systems are also available, as are non-credit programs in machine tool technology, productivity software, skilled trades/pre-apprenticeship, Microsoft certification and more.

To become eligible recipients must be Michigan residents and must enroll at Oakland Community College.

Selections will be made on the basis of academic merit, with consideration given to female and minority students, as well as financial need.

Current community college students are also eligible, but may not have declared majors in the field for which they apply.

Applicants should apply immediately for both admission to OCC and their scholarships.

Awards begin with the Fall semester which starts Sept. 3. There is no charge to apply at OCC, or to apply for a scholarship.

Forms are available at each of OCC's five campus admissions offices, and at the college's district office.

Candidates who have completed applications must make an appointment with a academic advisor at any of OCC's five locations as quickly as possible.

For more information, call Jansin Erickson at the OCC Governor's Scholarship Hotline, (248) 510-1543.

It's been a crazy spring, in many ways that one, but we're really doing well with our plant selections and can now accommodate walk-in trade. We are pleased to be able to offer one of the largest selections of wildflowers in the U.S. Tulips, Lilies, Slippers, Bloodroot and ranunculus like Shasta and Anemone selections. There are thousands of named perennials to choose from, sun or shade, dry or moist, soil moisture to water found nowhere else, we have it all with over 6000 species and varieties to choose from. We are a production nursery not a garden center so our inventory is a maximum in late summer. Why not buy direct from the source for the best selection and price. It's a huge place and we are always happy to tell you where to find something or give suggestions, but we are a working nursery and it's up to the customer to go and look it, so don't expect to be told the hard possibilities, customers to tell the fun and you can find rare plants without having to sit in the hot sun.

Take 186 to the Fowlerville exit go south 100 yds. to Van Buren Rd turn west on Van Buren and go 1 Mi to Gregory Rd. and go south 1.75 mi to #1310. (long driveway)

We are rapidly becoming a Mecca for plant lovers from around the world, supplying everyone from the Southeastern and New York Botanical Garden to some of the finest private gardens in the U.S. but surprisingly many local gardeners don't yet know about us. Come out and see for yourself the incredible selection we offer. The driveway can be a bit overwhelming, so you may want to bring someone to help. Volunteers pitch in to give home for the developmentally disabled a well-deserved new look
— but the work's not finished yet

Sr. Linda Willette can get Adriana Williams, 24, in and out of the administration building at Our Lady of Providence Center much easier now that the Michigan Regional Council of Carpenters built the accessibility ramp.

Turning an institutional-looking setting into a more home-like environment takes a lot of manpower.

With the help of masonry volunteers and carpenters, garden clubs and retired special education teachers, Our Lady of Providence Center in Northville is beginning to sport a new look and completing some of the projects on its "wish list."

"After 41 years of being here people are finally beginning to figure out we are here," said Sr. Linda Willette, OLP administrator.

OLP provides both residential and day programs for the developmentally disabled in a home-like atmosphere. It currently cares for 87 females ages 10 to 45 in six different settings.

"We're a well kept secret," said Cynthia Grzelak who is a Development Council board member who volunteers her expertise in public relations and fund raising.

"We are always looking for new members for that voluntary board which helps with a variety of projects and public awareness," said Sr. Willette. The board meets once a month.

One of the projects on the "wish list" was restoring the Blessed Virgin Shrine in front of the building on Beck Road.

The shrine was built on Oct. 7, 1962 with funds from friends of OLP and had been deteriorating for some time.

The concrete walk around the shrine was cracked. The retaining walls of the bed were in disrepair. There was also a leak in the water system.

A Working Wish List

- Repair the Blessed Virgin statue which is missing fingers.
- ✓ (done) Repair the stone/brick retaining walls of the raised flower bed, which are loose and cracked.
- Investigate adding a fountain to some portion of the Shrine area.
- ✓ (done) Replace the cracked concrete sidewalk in front of the Shrine.
- ✓ (done) Transplant overgrown shrubs to other sites on OLP property.
- (in progress) Install new plantings: low maintenance shrubs, perennials and annuals that would provide four seasons of spectacular color and bloom.
- ✓ (done) Install a sprinkler system around the Shrine.
- ✓ (done) Install a new roof on one of the residences.
- ✓ (done) Install new gutters on the main office building.
- Purchase new furniture for three of the residences.
- ✓ (done) Establish a Horticultural Therapy Program.

How OLP came to be

Our Lady of Providence Center in Northville is run by the Daughters of St. Mary of Providence, a Catholic order founded in Northern Italy by Blessed Aloysius Guanella.

OLP was established in 1957 at the request of Cardinal Edward Mooney and does not receive any financial support from the Archdiocese. Its funding sources include Supplementary Security Income, Social Security Benefits, Department of Social Services, and the Department of Mental Health. Only one third of the residents receive even close to the $105 per day actual costs for their care. One third receive about $89 per day while two-thirds receive supplementary security and/or social security benefits which is $600 per month.

The main contributors to OLP are the Knights of Columbus Councils, the annual parents' fund raiser called Susie's Dance, grants and other donations.

OLP provides both residential and day programs for the developmentally disabled in a home-like atmosphere. It currently cares for 87 females ages 10 to 45 in six different settings. A children's building houses 16 girls, an adult foster care building has room for 64 women. A small group home in Northville and an apartment at OLP as facilities for six women each. A supportive independent program houses three women and an apartment in Plymouth where two women live.

OLP also enrolls boys and men from Chelsea's St. Louis Center in its workshop program.

Scout's project enhances playscape

By CAROL DIPPLE
Feature Editor

At first Karl Stockhausen was just following in the footsteps set by generations of family members before him.

"Over time it became something I really liked and more a part of me than a part of what my parents were," said Karl. "They gave me the opportunity and I took up on it. It was always up to me."

The 17-year-old son of William and Carole Jean Stockhausen of Northville was presented with the Eagle Scout Award at a Court of Honor held on June 13 at Maybury State Park.

For his Eagle project, Karl, a member of Troop 755, chose an erosion control project at the Fort Griswold Playscape.

Karl supervised fellow scouts and family members over a 10-day period in the fall.

Karl's crew, which ranged from five volunteers on a cold, rainy day to as many as 30 on a bright sunny day, removed railroad ties from the steep embankment on the south side of the playscape so that they could install chain-link fencing and plant myrtle groundcover to prevent surface erosion. The railroad ties were secured with rebar at the base of the embankment to not only help with erosion but to serve as a seat for parents.

"That way they can stay out of their children's way and still be there to watch them," Karl said.

Flower beds were created with the remaining railroad ties in three separate areas around the playscape.

"It all still looks really, really good," said Karl of the project which was completed in November.

"You can never really have enough help and enough work to do," Karl said of the lesson he learned most from the project along with general leadership skills. "I would think I'd have a lot of work then I would run out and I'd have to call it a day."

Karl joined the Cub Scouts in 1992 and has enjoyed the high adventure programs the most.

One recent trip was a two-week backpacking adventure in north eastern New Mexico where he went on an 80 mile trek through the mountains. Last Christmas Karl camped on an island off the Florida Keys.

"Both of those were wonderful," he said. "It is beyond words how wonderful they were."

A senior at University of Detroit Jesuit High School and a member of Our Lady of Victory Parish, Karl's maternal grandfather Harry James Walker became the second Eagle Scout in Whiting, Ind. in 1925.

Karl's sister, Juliet, designed and sketched her brother's Court of Honor program cover based on the sash Walker wore which contained the 65 merit badges and ribbons he had earned. Only 69 badges were possible in the mid 1920s. There are about 100 today, of which Karl earned 44. A scout is required to earn 21 merit badges to achieve his Eagle rank today.

Karl's older brother Luke, and his father both earned their Eagle Scout Awards.

Julie and her sister, Rachel, have both earned the Girl Scout equivalent of the Eagle, the Gold Award.

William received Distinguished Eagle in 1994 and his father Frank, held several positions in Scouting and received the St. George Award for being the Ad Altare Dei Catholic religious counselor.

Karl's mother, Carole Jean, was a den leader for both Karl and Luke.

Blues weekend planned at Hennessey's

By CAROL DIPPLE
Feature Editor

Blues bands are booked to belt out a few tunes at Bluestock '98 on Aug. 15 and 16 at Hennessey's Pub in Wilson.

It's the first big bash for Nick Yaksick, and his brother Zachary, who purchased the pub at Grand River and Wilcox Road about a year ago.

Yaksick is expecting between 1,500 and 2,000 people at Bluestock '98.

Entertainers performing in the large tent which will be set up include Johnny Bassett and the Blues Insurgents, Blind Tiger Band, Boogie Woogie, Bugs Beddoe Band, James Cloyd Group, John Cook Blues Band, The Dogs w/Harmonica Shah, Motor City Josh, Robert Noll, Steve Somers Band with Valerie Barrymore with M.C. Dan McNall on Saturday.

On Sunday, the M.C. will be Mike Shannon. Taking to the stage will be Alligators, Catfish Hodge, City Limits Blues Band, Curtis Sumter Project with Ms. Cathy Davis, Glen Eddy Band, Tim Flaherty Trio with Nancy, Bobby Murray Band, Mystery Train with Jim McCarty, Mojo Rattle and Val Vento Band.

Apparel and food vendors including Beale Street Barbecue from Pontiac, Buddy's Barbecue as well as Hennessey's Pub will be in smaller tents.

A major sponsor is Coca-Cola. Individuals under 21 are welcome, said Yaksick, but they will be given a wristband designating they are under age. Yaksick decided to put together the event as a way to get Hennessey's Pub on the map as a "nice place to hang out."

The City Limits Blues Band is scheduled to play at Bluestock '98 on Sunday, Aug. 16.

The Yaksicks, who live in West Bloomfield, have owned Zax Car Wash next door at the corner of Wilcox Road and Grand River for eight years.

"On sunny and rainy days I figured we could make money," Yaksick said. "I always wanted a bar restaurant. Basically my brother said if you want to do it let's do it." Yaksick kept after the previous owners Frank Cleary and Bill O'Shea for eight years.

"They wanted to pass it on to two people who would take care of it," Yaksick said.

O'Shea was a rock and roll type bar, according to Yaksick. The brothers like a variety of music but settled on blues for the pub.

"My brother and I decided to change the image and get a different crowd," he said.

"A lot of people asked for it when we bought the bar. It's not heavy blues but a little oldies and blues. That's the way it's sort of leaning right now."

Bluestock '98 hours on Saturday will be noon until 2 a.m. and on Sunday from noon until 1 a.m. Tickets are $10 if purchased at Hennessey's, $12.50 through Ticketmaster, and $15 at the gate.

For information on Bluestock '98, call (248) 348-4404.

Style to burn

Steed and Emma return in 'The Avengers'

London, the 1960s—the center of a cultural revolution shakes the world with mod clothes, the Beatles, pop art and "The Avengers."

Thirty-some years later, London is once again a hotbed of activity, signaling the coming millennium. Fin-de-siecle nihilism runs alongside revisionist spiritualism, old-guard capitalism clashes with global concern idealism, a nostalgia for the past returns to serve the present.

It's time once again for heroes with style to burn. Enter John Steed and Emma Peel.

In "The Avengers," legendary producer Jerry Weintraub and director Jeremiah Chechik reinvent the imitably British Steed and his deadly smart partner, Mrs. Peel, pitting them against the devilishly clever and completely evil Sir August de Wynter. The Avengers teams Academy Award nominee Ralph Fiennes and Uma Thurman as Steed and Peel opposite Oscar-winner Sean Connery as De Wynter.

The Ministry, Britain's top-secret agency, has summoned John Steed (Fiennes) to investigate some strange goings-on in Her Majesty's Kingdom. The weather seems out of control. Freak snowstorms, hail of epic proportions, and temperatures that fluctuate wildly from arctic to blast furnace plague normally temperate England. Someone is out to control the weather and bring the country and the world to its knees. Who could master such a brilliant and demonic attempt to extort the riches of nations in return for a temperate day? All bets are on Sir August De Wynter (Connery), former Ministry man, who is very rich, very odd, and entirely too intelligent.

Preparing to fight fire for snow and hail with fire, Steed teams up with the unflappable Mrs. Emma Peel (Thurman), a master of jujitsu and doctor in meteorological science in a body made for haute couture.

Steed and Peel, with martini-dry wit and icy sizzle, have returned from sixties Britain for a new age of cool.

In the late 1960s, American television aired a show that had been running in its native Great Britain since 1961. The show featured a very English gentleman named John Steed, played by Patrick Macnee, who possessed a sense of humor as dry as his champagne. Steed effortlessly battled villains that appeared ordinary at first glance—nannies, members of Parliament, apothecaries, country vicars. Somewhere in the first half of the program, however, these foes revealed macabre plans to take over Westminster Abbey using an army of hypnotized soldiers or to kidnap a visiting dignitary by pumping nerve gas into his train compartment.

Aiding Steed in his battle against the bizarre in normal clothes, was a female sidekick of a different sort. Mrs. Emma Peel, as played by Diana Rigg, was an icy combination of smarts, beauty, and girl power. While Steed used his trademark bowler hat and bumpershot to combat his adversaries, Mrs. Peel utilized her well-placed jujitsu kick or karate flip to fell her foe. With the bad guys neatly dispatched, Steed and Peel would trade smirks and quips over a cocktail and part ways. That is, until evil reared its ugly head in London the following week and Steed would announce, "Mrs. Peel, we're needed."

The Avengers suitably enamored American viewers. Thirty-seven years after its initial run on British television, the show remains that country's most popular exported serial, sold to 120 countries to date.

Producer Jerry Weintraub (Karate Kid, Nashville) was one of the show's original aficionados who eagerly awaited "The Avengers" each week. He remembers, "I was working in the music business in London in the '60s. I was one of these millions of guys around the world who was in love with Emma Peel."

Weintraub's infatuation with the show and with Emma Peel never faded. He eventually purchased the rights to the series in 1985 and made a commitment to bring Steed and Peel to the big screen.

From the beginning, he intended to retain the British flavor of the series in his film. "I wanted to do it right," he said. "When you're making a big action-adventure movie, your natural tendency is to Americanize it. I didn't want to. I knew John Steed and Emma Peel had a worldwide audience."

The producer added, "This script is character led. It's an adventure and a romance, very British, very funny, and a little surreal. I think it's a new formula, a great blend of character and action." Weintraub worked closely with British screen writer Don Macpherson to retain the crisp style of the original series.

Uma Thurman is cast as Emma Peel in Warner Bros.' stylish action-adventure, "The Avengers."

Costume designer combined looks of pinstripes and leather

Almost as memorable as the stark design of the original "The Avengers" show was the look of the averaging duo—Steed in his traditional to-the-extreme tailored suit and Emma (some of the time anyway) in a leather catsuit.

Costume designer Anthony Powell, a three-time Academy Award winner, admits, "Since it's a classic, you have to start from what everybody knows. Steed was dressed in a way that was already anachronistic in the '60s. It's interesting that today, apart from the bowler hat, a beautifully-cut Saville Row suit is the height of fashion again. Given that Steed is a veritable poster image of tradition, it seemed to me to have everything connected with him made in Saville Row."

Powell used tailors from the shops along the world-famous district in London, many of the historic establishments dating back to Queen Victoria's early days on the throne, to create Steed's pinstripe suits, shirts, shoes, umbrellas and signature bowler hats.

Powell's job was a bit less cut and dried when it came to creating Emma Peel's wardrobe.

Powell turned to the decades that surrounded the original television icons, studying back issues of Vogue from the period. "I was astounded by the quality of innocence and freshness of the clothes then," he said. "But the look was sort of a dolly bird, Lolita look—Twiggy and Jean Shrimpton—and that simply isn't Uma."

"In film you can't impose an image on any actor, you have to work with what is there. Uma is tall with her own personal sense of style. So we started over with the clothes that were right for Uma, right for the '90s and with a flavor of the '60s."

And for the famous leather catsuit? "At my first meeting with Uma, she asked where the catsuit would hang in Emma's wardrobe," said Powell. "That's a very good question. For costumes to be successful, they have to look inevitable, as though they are part of an actor's body. So, to resolve it, I made sure that everything else leads up to the famous catsuit, that everything has an echo of it—either it's something form-fitting or made of suede or leather. That way, the suit at the end becomes almost inevitable."

Time to... Play ball!

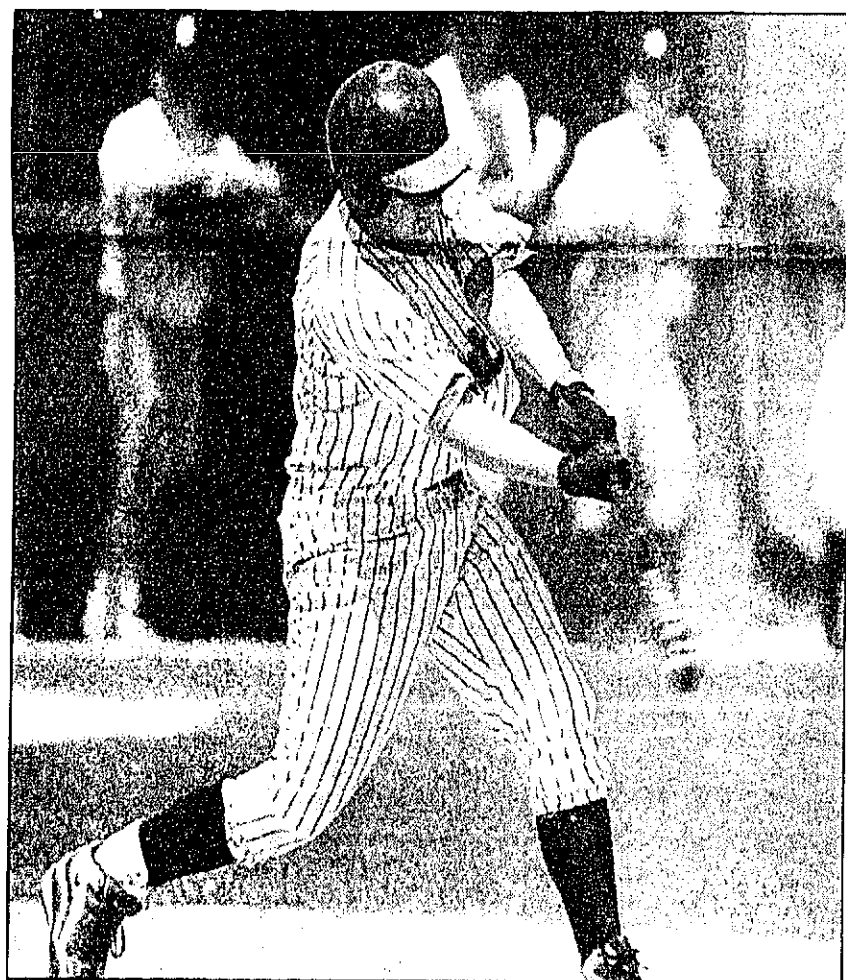

The Northville Broncos take on the Indiana Bulls Friday afternoon at Northville High School baseball field in the second round of the NABF World Series. Beautiful weather and top-quality competition helped draw crowds of up to 300 people per game. The Bayside Yankees won their sixth NABF title in a row with a 6-0 win over the Gambrell A's in the championship game Sunday afternoon. Northville finished a very respectable 2-2 and finished in the top five.

ADHD affects many American children

The essential feature of Attention Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD) is a pattern of inattention, hyperactivity and/or impulsivity that is more frequent and severe than typically observed in individuals at a comparable level of development. The criteria for the disorder are that some symptoms must have been present before age 7, some impairment must be present in at least two settings, and there must be evidence of interference with social, academic or occupational functioning. Also, the disturbances must not occur exclusively with a psychiatric disorder, and the symptoms must be persistent for six months.

The disorder of inattention, impulsivity, and hyperactivity was first described in 1902 and has been given many names. Since the 1980s, it has been called Attention Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder or ADHD.

ADHD affects between 3 and 5 percent of all American children. Without early identification and proper treatment it can have serious consequences, including school failure, depression, failed relationships, and even substance abuse. And there is certainly a lack of self-esteem.

It was formerly believed that these symptoms disappear in adolescence, but it is now known that many symptoms continue into adulthood for 30-70 percent of individuals with this disorder. Adults with ADHD may experience difficulties at work and in relationships, as well as other emotional difficulties.

Children with ADHD generally fall into two categories — those who are mainly hyperactive or impulsive and those who are predominantly inattentive. Some have a mixture of both types.

Perhaps 50 percent of children with ADHD are never properly diagnosed. ADHD is not a specific learning disability. These children are not unable to learn, but they do have difficulty performing due to poor organization, impulsivity and inattention. However, some children with ADHD also have a learning disability.

This disorder also involves an impairment in the individual's ability to use rules and instructions to guide his or her behavior. As a result, they seem to always be at the mercy of what is happening at any given moment and are less able to work persistently toward long term goals.

Although such problems can make life quite difficult for these children, there are many effective means of managing the behavioral deficits associated with ADHD.

Between 70-80 percent of children with ADHD respond positively to psychostimulant medications. These medications decrease impulsivity and hyperactivity, increase attention and, in some children, decrease aggression.

However, drug therapy should not be used as the only intervention. Classroom success may require a range of interventions and children may respond to different teachers in a variety of fashions. Usually a structured classroom is best.

Parents, who frequently benefit from a support group such as CHADD, can be trained to provide consistent structure and clearly defined expectations and limits for children with ADHD. They should use charting of behavior, positive reinforcement, and time-out. Parents also should be instructed to help their child with peer relationships.

Above all, parents need to be their child's best advocate. Keep in mind that a child may have certain legal rights. The Individuals with Disabilities Education Act requires that special education and related services be made available to any child with a disability that impairs the child's educational performance. Children who have informed, effective parents are better prepared to meet life's challenges.

Children with ADHD do not routinely show signs of serious emotional disturbance. However, if not properly diagnosed and treated, these children can develop significant emotional difficulties.

Adults with ADHD, meanwhile, often experience career difficulties. On the other hand, adults who learn to adjust and to harness their energy and creativity can thrive professionally.

The cause of ADHD is believed to be a slower metabolism of glucose. This is the most evident in the portion of the brain that is important for attention, handwriting, motor control and inhibition of responses. Brain metabolism studies combined with family history studies and drug response studies suggest ADHD is a neurobiological disorder, not a result of a chaotic home environment.

A comprehensive evaluation is necessary to establish a diagnosis, rule out other causes and determine whether conditions are present. Such an evaluation will often include intelligence testing plus the assessment of academic, social and emotional functioning, and developmental abilities. Measures of attention span and impulsivity will also be used, as well as parent and teacher rating scales. A medical exam by a physician is also important.

Ultimately, treating children with ADHD requires a combination of psychological and educational intervention and behavior management techniques.

Dr. Allan Weiner is a medical director at the University of Michigan Middlebelt Pediatrics Center. For more information or to make an appointment, call (810) 477-1122.
