CONTESTANTS TAKE TIME OUT TO POSE

TWENTY TO VIE FOR JUNIOR MISS TITLE

The Clarkston Junior Miss Pageant will be held Friday and Saturday nights (November 11 and 12) at 8:00 in the Clarkston High School Little Theatre.

The winner, chosen Saturday night, will be awarded a $500 savings bond. Awards also go to the three runners-up. Savings bonds ranging from $200 to $100 will be their prizes.

The 22 young women are all Clarkston High School seniors. They have been practicing for the contest since the end of September.

During the two-night pageant, they will be judged on three categories.

The first is a physical fitness routine to show coordination and agility.

Poise and appearance are the second category. Each contestant will wear an evening gown and answer a question from the emcee. They will be judged on how they handle themselves in front of a crowd.

The third category is talent. Each three minute routine will be judged on originality and presentation.

Two other categories are included in the final score. High school transcripts are used to judge scholastic achievement. The group of five judges also conduct a ten minute interview with each contestant to see how well she conducts herself with adults.

Sponsored by the Clarkston Jaycees and Jaycettes, the pageant has been held since 1963. Ron Olson and Kim Hamaker are this year's chairmen.

Tickets may be purchased at the door or by calling Kim Hamaker at 625-4041.

NEAR CLINTONWOOD PARK

Independence Township

Gets OK to Purchase

Senior Citizen Center Land

The Community Development Agency of Oakland County has given approval for the purchase of a house and land, to Independence Township. The Property is for use as a Senior Citizen's Center, according to Supervisor Floyd Tower.

Located next to Clintonwood Park at Clarkston and Orion Road, the land for the Center cuts into park property, and is a prime site, according to Tower.

Tower explained that approval has been given, but the moneys are not in hand as yet, so the Township will partially close on the purchase, and it will be official when the County reimburses Independence.

The property will cost the Township $55,000, and there will be $28,000 in funds to work with. After closing costs, etc., there should be about $25,000 left for remodeling and doing necessary work on it, Tower Stated.

The house, which will be used as the center, is about 10 or 12 years old, according to Tower. "There has been a problem in the past, and the house has been in limbo. It, and some out buildings on the property heed some work done, but we expect to have much of it done by the dead of winter," he said.

DETROIT SPORTSWRITER JOE FALLS

New Clarkston Resident a SCAMP Booster

by Carol Balzarini

Joe Falls, sports columnist for the Detroit Free Press, is now a resident of Clarkston and an avid proponent of the Special Olympics and SCAMP.

"I always liked what I saw from I-75. My wife and I looked at the Deerwood area and, I know it sounds corny, but we looked at each other and decided in two minutes this was the place without even seeing the village."

Falls began his career in 1946 as a copy boy for the Associated Press in New York City. The job lasted for five years until someone noticed that he not only came early and left late, but would also "gopher" coffee and sweep the floors. He was given the chance to be a sports writer.

As the youngest member of the A.P. staff, Falls was sent to Detroit to be a one-man sports bureau. He covered every conceivable sport known to the area. He laments that those were the days when everyone was winning. Three years later he was hooked on Detroit and refused to return to New York.

He'll tell you proudly that as of February 23rd he will have spent as much time in Michigan as he had in New York and will call himself a native from then on.

You might believe him, too, if you can overlook the accent.

In 1956, Falls was hired as a baseball writer for the Detroit Times, an afternoon paper, requiring him to adopt what he calls an "afternoon style" of writing. When the Times went out of business in 1960, he went to the Free Press to cover the Tigers and acquired the "morning style."

In 1965, the Free Press gave Falls the choice of becoming executive sports editor or writing a column. He chose the column.

"I never get tired of writing. I write in the shower, in bed, on my way to work...I'd write the whole sports page if I could."

Falls has also found the time to write three books, one on the Detroit Tigers with whom he has been so closely associated, one on the Boston Marathon, and one called "Man in Motion" about U of M coach Bo Schembechler. This is in addition to the fifteen years spent writing for The Sporting News, a national sports weekly.

His incredible enthusiasm for writing is evident in the fact that he once worked for ten and a half months

STUDENTS PLAN THEIR NEXT ACTIVITY IN STUDENT GOVERNMENT CLASS

Students become Involved in New Leadership Class

by Kathy Greenfield

Take a group of 22 Clarkston High School students, add a lot of enthusiasm, some leadership skills, and daily meetings, and you have a winning combination. The students are taking a half-credit class called Student Government. Offered for the first time this semester, the class is designed for students who wish to take an active part in leading school and community projects.

So far this year, they've directed homecoming activities, planned a blood drive with the Red Cross and delivered candy and pumpkins to the Children's Village in Pontiac. A recycling drive is being organized for later this month.

They also held the Powder Puff football game (which earned $500) and held a contest that rewarded $25 to the class with the most participants in the Annual Walk for SCAMP.

"There's a lot of competition between the classes," says Colleen Hammond. They've learned to use this feeling to help build spirit within the school.

Teri Sheldon feels they've succeeded in working as a group. That means better organization and "when we want to get something done, we don't just talk about it," says Kari Peterson.

In January, another fund-raising activity will be a Gong Show. Teachers and students will be up for gongs and the group will charge admission.

They have plans to spend the money they earn.

A scholarship fund for a leadership award is being planned. They will also adopt a UNICEF orphan at a cost of $180 a year. A class competition reward will again be used when they hold a canned goods drive for Thanksgiving and a toy drive for Christmas.

One benefit of being involved is the sense of pride that comes from doing a good job.

"More kids are aware of what student government is and what's going on," says Cindy Langdon, president of the group.

Getting to know the school administration has been another highlight.

"Our principal knows us on a first-name basis," says Leslie Fortin.

"It sort of scares me," adds Brad Griggs.

Working with this group of students is the kind of experience that makes his job worthwhile, says their teacher/advisor Chuck Screws.

"They really care about their school and their community."

School Board to Discuss Ski Team

Reinstatement of a competitive high school ski team is on the agenda of the November 14 meeting of the Clarkston School Board.

Interested students and parents are urged to attend this meeting to make their feelings known.

Clarkston High School had a ski team a number of years ago but it was discontinued for a variety of reasons. Ski clubs since then have provided the only opportunity for many of Clarkston's students to ski.

Ski teams can be found in all high schools in Rochester, Waterford and Pontiac, as well as Our Lady of the Lakes and Pontiac Catholic.

Ski facilities surround the Clarkston area and each one has special passes available for school racing teams.

Rochester Show has 45 Exhibitors

Rochester Community House will present its second annual Handcrafter's Fair on Saturday, November 12. Forty-five exhibitors have been chosen from over eighty state-wide entrants in the juried show to be held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at 816 Ludlow. A wide variety of arts and crafts will be presented to the public.

General chairman of the fair, Jan Heureman, directed the selection of exhibitors, searching for high quality and a good cross-section of crafts.

Ticket proceeds will go to the Community House operating fund. Parking is free. Refreshments, including a light lunch, will be available.

Jeannette Vandermark Appointed Independence Center Gets New Coordinator

On Thursday, November 3, Jeannette Vandermark was named by the board of directors as the new coordinator of Independence Center.

A Clarkston resident for the past ten years, Mrs. Vandermark replaces Nancy Davis.

"I'm really excited about the challenge. I know it will demand a lot of hours, but I believe in the center," she said. "I also think it needs to be publicized more and needs more community involvement and support."

Although new to the activities of the center, Mrs. Vandermark is not new to volunteer work. Scouts and Bailey Lake School activities have taken their share of her time. The Vandermarks have two sons - Tim, who is 10, and Chris, 7.

Jeannette and husband Bill are also very involved in their subdivision, Thendara Park. She used to write a newsletter for the residents and Bill is currently heading a drive to have the area declared a village, even though the Vandermarks are in the process of moving into the Village of Clarkston.

Jeannette is chairperson of the Lutheran Church Women, librarian for the Calvary Lutheran Church and a member of the Clarkston Women's Club. It was her membership in this organization with their support of Independence Center that first prompted her to become a volunteer.

She feels that volunteers are the key to success both for the center and for her personally.

"I see myself as a coordinator of volunteers. I want to find people to share the load. I can't demand," she said. "I have to make them want to help."

Independence Center operates on volunteers and donations alone, although it has an annual budget of $8000. There are no funds from any governmental agencies even though the center serves the townships of Independence, Brandon, and Springfield. Utilities account for a large portion of that amount. Mrs. Vandermark's salary has been set at $200 per month.

She says she expects the pay to be one quarter of a job that is supposed to be half-time, and most likely will end up working full-time. She refuses, however, to let the job run her.

As for future plans, Mrs. Vandermark has a few new ideas that she would like to discuss with the board. She feels that the center can be more of a coordinator of community projects than it is now. She would like to see a greater coordination of overlapping community projects.

Davisburg Rotary Millionaire's Party

In honor of its 10th anniversary, the Davisburg Rotary will sponsor a Millionaire's Party at Springfield-Oaks in Davisburg. All proceeds will be given to Community Services.

The Millionaire's Party is from 8:00 p.m. to 2:00 a.m. Admission includes beer, set-ups, snacks, and 12 million in game money.

In its 10-year history, the Davisburg Rotary Club has provided burial services, given scholarships, sponsored Boy Scouts and Cub Scout troops, co-sponsored the World Championship Rodeo for 5 years, built and maintained Rotary Park, and has delivered Christmas baskets annually. In addition it has superintended youth rock concerts. Now they want to make everyone a millionaire!

Thoughts 'N Things By Joan Allen

A recent television program dealt with a subject that I have been interested in for a number of years. The subject is Parapsychology. Now, the wonder of television is that we can "see for ourselves" what we may not believe if someone else tells us about it. Even so, I doubt that a number of people were convinced by what they saw. We are a scientific people. We do not believe in "magic," though we may, once in awhile, peek at our horoscope in the daily paper.

We will hear a great deal more in the future about research into what was once considered "witchcraft" or "fakery." A good deal of research has been going on for a number of years "behind the scenes." Now, the fear that other countries will "beat us to the punch" on mind research, (and use it against us,) has brought a number of things out into the open.

We are "behind the times" in our acknowledgment that there are "other senses" besides those we readily acknowledge, because our "scientific society" has been obstinate about accepting that which cannot be examined by the physical senses. This has allowed other nations to pass us by in the field of research.

Our scientists and doctors who have done research in secret, for fear they would be ridiculed by their peers, have not had enough opportunity to compare information, absorb the great amount of data, and come up with some positive information for the general public.

Even now, the subject is being approached with great caution because it is a field which has often appealed to charlatans who are only too willing to take advantage of the gullible and the desperate. Promises to "reveal the future," sell for a great deal of money when a "magic power" must be brought into play. On the other hand, most of the "psychics" I've read about claim that they cannot use their "powers" in their own interests. They are only able to control them when they have the urge to "do good."

Scientists are cautious, too, for fear that people will be frightened of the "unknown." To help alleviate some of the fear of the "unknown" that might make people fearful, or uncomfortable, about a subject that should be taken out from under wraps, many other people are directing information to the public that should be related to the general subject of parapsychological research.

One of the most important pieces of information to turn up in my own research on the subject of the mind, was Roger Lewin's article in the April 1975 Saturday Evening Post. It was entitled "Of Two Minds," and dealt with an operation done on the brains of severely epileptic patients.

The right hemisphere and the left hemisphere of the brain are connected by a massive bundle of nerve fibers which carry messages between our "two brains." In order to limit the amount of brain affected in epileptic seizures, neurologist Roger Sperry and his colleagues at the California Institute of Technology, cut the corpus callosum which made the connection. The result was that the patient became "two different people." The two sides of the brain worked separately, but there was no communication between the two hemispheres.

One of the experiments done with these patients illustrates the results. A patient was shown a pencil in such a way that the image went only to the right hemisphere, and then, was asked what could be seen. The patient replied, "nothing." The left hemisphere (which does the talking) had "seen" nothing. The "right brain" which had seen the pencil was mute. It did not relay the message to the "speaker."

When a tray of objects which included the pencil was offered to the patient, and it was suggested that the object which had been seen, be selected, the patient chose the pencil, but could not explain why it had been chosen. The patient would then get confused, and invent an excuse which seemed to be a logical reason for picking up the pencil.

Junior Miss Pageant Isn't All Bad

by Kathy Greenfield

Taking a picture of the Clarkston Junior Miss hopefuls was an experience I'll long remember.

It taught me something about my tendency to get hung up on the issue rather than the reality of an event.

Because I'm the type who cheers the feminist objectors at the Miss America contest, doing a story on the Junior Miss Pageant was one of those assignments that calls for a "grin and bear it" spirit.

Sure enough, when I walked in the C.H.S. Little Theater during rehearsal time, the contestants were discussing questions that could be asked during the ten-minute interview each young woman faces alone with the panel of five judges.

"They could ask you about women's lib," they were told. Their reaction was one of giggles and groans.

After gathering basic information, it was time to start shooting pictures.

When I realized they'd all appear as gray lumps on the

These same patients had no problem writing with their right hands, but when they attempted to draw pictures, though the required angles and shapes were drawn, the construction was very disorganized. Without instruction from the right hemisphere, the right hand was unable to create spatial patterns.

The right hemisphere was found to be in control of spatial, art, and intuitive functioning, while the left hemisphere is in charge of facts, speech, and numbers.

The next step in the study involved the use of an electroencephalograph, which was wired to a student volunteer. The results revealed that when one is using the right hemisphere of the brain, the left is turned off, and vice-versa.

Interviews with typical "right hemisphere" and "left hemisphere" people followed. Stereotypes were chosen; lawyers, as typical "left brain," rational, analytical people, and ceramicists, as typical "right brain" people. It was concluded that these people had been, to a great extent, molded, by which brain activity had been stressed in childhood, and as they grew up.

This study should be of special interest to parents and educators, but is important to all of us.

We stress left brain activity in our society. In other words, we stress verbal intelligence. As a result, many people are raised as if they kept one eye closed at all times, or as if one hand were tied behind their backs. Half of the brain goes to waste, because they avoid the use of the "silent hemisphere."

This "silent hemisphere" may be the key to parapsychological ability, and we, as parents, may be limiting our own, as well as our child's development of human potential by stressing the verbal.

A return to the "basics" of reading, writing, and arithmetic, may be the worst thing we can do for the future development of our children, and our society. We should strive, rather, for full development of both sides of the brain, or we may raise a generation which is not able to think, but only to "do."

Robert Ornstein, a psychologist at the Langley-Porter Neuropsychiatric Institute of California, who has done a great deal of the research in this subject, believes that genius depends on the work of the two brains together. He believes that the spark of genius is generated in the right hemisphere, then passed to the left hemisphere where it is analyzed in detail. He feels that neither side is "superior," but that they should work as partners, doing different jobs. "We must remove the overemphasis of logic and rationality from our education systems, remove the suspicion and disdain of intuition, and 'irrational' mental leaps, and encourage right brain activities," according to Ornstein. He feels that it won't make geniuses of all of us, but those capacities associated with genius will be more approachable and trainable. Otherwise, "we are letting half our brain power go to waste," he says. It's something for all of us to consider seriously.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

There has been so much said in recent months about pornography being protected by the 1st amendment of the Constitution concerning "Freedom of the Press."

That as Americans ourselves, I want to use our right of "freedom of speech," and say something in behalf of us who feel obscene material is being advertised, and shown to extremes that are unnecessary.

Now even though we disagree and feel this type of material is disrespectful of women, morally wrong, and downgrades human beings in general, we can not argue the fact that as Americans living in the "land of the free" no one has the right to tell you what to buy, read or watch, but what about our rights?

Do we have to continue to be subjected to pornography because we have the right to look at it? We don't, you say? Then consider these points of view:

1.) X-rated girlie magazines are displayed openly by area merchants in stores, some refuse to cover up the front covers of magazines. Drug stores are particularly guilty of this. There's a place for these magazines called, "Adult Book Stores." Not family drug stores or food marts.

2.) Television stations are now advertising Playboy magazines openly on television. Incidentally, we saw the commercial for the first time during the children's show, "The Brady Bunch."

3.) During the month of September 1976, CKLW advertised that month over the air the new girlie magazine "Chic," a Larry Flynt publication. For those unfamiliar with Mr. Flynt, he also publishes the magazine, "Hustler." A magazine that totally degrades women and his popular "Chester the Molester" cartoons. The dirty old man molesting children, every month in his magazine. The September 1977 issue was a special "back to school" feature showing pages of "Chester" abducting kids going to school, during and after school. Doesn't anyone care that here in Oakland County we have a child killer running free, and this magazine is sold openly?

4.) Some area grocery stores now sell these magazines openly at the checkout counters.

5.) Let's talk about drive-in theatres. How many times have you been driving down the road and got angry yourself, but did not complain? Incidentally, there was a bill introduced in the State Senate to bar X-rated from drive-ins. It has since died in committee.

6.) Look at commercials on television. The body of a woman is being used to sell almost every product on T.V.

7.) Some 7-11 food stores look like small adult book stores, carrying over 30 magazines, being displayed at the register.

Do you honestly feel that your rights would be infringed upon if:

1.) Magazines of this sort, were sold openly uncovered only in adult book stores. Places of business that cater to all the people of the community could still carry these magazines, but, under the counter, out of sight. Some stores already keep them out of sight and just list the names of the magazines they carry that are under the counter.

2.) Completely remove selling Playboy magazines on T.V. and radio. This is infringing on our rights. What you buy and take into your home is your business. But when it comes across the screen on our television, in our home, that makes it our business. Incidentally, when we called the television station to complain, and asked why the magazine Playgirl (the woman's magazine with nude men) was not advertised, we were told it did not adhere to the television ethics code.

3.) If you want to pay money to see X-rated movies, that too is your business, but why not at walk-in theatres only. Drive-ins are not the place for these movies. Also, have you ever sat down with the newspaper and read the movie titles of movies being shown in our area that are considered R rated?

If you feel as we do, and feel X-rated should be banned at drive-ins, and off the air and taken away from being sold at checkouts of grocery stores, drug stores, and food marts, there are things you can do about this as Americans.

First of all, become informed on the Porno laws in Michigan, which basically boils down that area merchants have a responsibility to all their patrons. People can clean up their towns!

Secondly, complain, but complain to the manager, not just a cashier. Write your complaints to the presidents of the stores.

Do not become intimidated by store managers when you go into a store and complain, they will give you a hard time. We know, we've been doing it for over a year, but it takes more people to speak out.

Also, support Anti-porno efforts already under way. Write your state representatives - they will help. Refuse to buy products whose T.V. commercials you find offensive. Contact your newspapers, radio and T.V. stations, but be sure you're speaking with the right party when you call.

Support your child-porno bills by writing Rep. Kildee, Dem. Michigan. Write Sen. David A. Plawecki concerning the bill, banning X-rated from drive-in theatres.

Definitely write: Citizens for Decency Through Law, 450 Leader Building, Cleveland, Ohio. Just write what's on your mind, they will respond back!

As Nicholas Van Hoffman wrote earlier this year in the Oakland Press, "The 1st amendment wasn't designed for publications like Wall Street Journal, which doesn't need it. It's for publication like Playboy and Penthouse which do need it." Speaking about Penthouse, did you read in the newspaper where they may have a 12 year old girl on the cover of their magazine in the near future?

The Constitution was written to protect everyone and if remarks like Nicholas Van Hoffman is to be true, if the way sex, women and children are to continue being exploited, material advertised and shown anywhere, along with other problems in this country, then the time will come when the Constitution will become the down fall of America!

If you would like to know more about what we are doing, write Citizens Against Pornography, P.O. Box 373, Clarkston, MI 48016.

Just a note to say "many thanks" for your help in sending me the McClean brothers to install the marlite in my bathroom. The workmanship is "super" - the boys "very conscientious, hardworking and pleasant" -- the lady of the house "very happy."

Dear Mrs. Allen:

Your October 20th Forum column is one of the finest pieces of writings that I have read in a long time. We can all take charge of our lives with constructive and positive thinking.

I've Got to Cut It Out

by Penny Fortune

THOUGHT FOR FOOD:

If you core your children's apples for their lunch boxes, stuff the opening with marshmallows to prevent discoloration.

If you want your boiled potatoes to turn out white, add a few drops of vinegar to the water.

For easier slicing, let your roast stand for ten minutes before cutting.

Upside-down is better for storing fruit cake, since it is difficult to remove from the tin box. Place the cake in the lid and use the bottom as a cover.

Add an orange peel or two to a pot of tea a few minutes before serving for a taste treat.

Hot syrup makes pancakes even tastier on cold winter mornings.

PENNY'S THOUGHT FOR TODAY:

Cut a half-gallon milk carton in half crosswise. Keep it handy near the stove for accumulation of excess fat. Sprinkle wild bird seeds generously and when full chill until solid. Weather permitting, put the chunk outside and watch for hungry visitors.

Just One of Those Days

The two couples had finished their dinners at one of the "better" restaurants, and the ladies requested "doggy" bags, in which to carry home the remains of their delicious pepper-steak and rice casseroles.

Then they went to the ladies room, and left the men to carry the bags. One of the husbands refused to carry his wife's, so the other gentleman picked up both bags, and stood (in full view of the guests of two dining rooms) waiting patiently for the wives to return.

Suddenly the distinguished looking gentleman felt all eyes on him - or rather on the contents of the two bags, which were slowly emptying onto the floor on either side of him.

There the embarrassed gentleman stood, holding onto the tops of the two empty bags, while the management attempted to clean up the mess, and make amends for the inferior quality of the bags. His friend, who had refused his own wife's bag, was laughing too hard to be of any help at all, and the ladies, wisely, remained at a safe distance.

Now we know of at least one more lady whose husband refuses to touch a doggy bag. He just doesn't trust the darn things - no matter what they contain.

CONGRESSMAN BROOMFIELD REPORTS FROM WASHINGTON

Millions of Americans will be able to continue using saccharin in their diets for at least the next 18 months due to Congressional intervention postponing the Food and Drug Administration ban on this artificial sweetener, reported Congressman William S. Broomfield (R-19th Dist.).

"I was pleased to support this Congressional action. The moratorium on the FDA ban takes a rational approach to the issue. Congressional hearings have shown that there is a great deal of confusion on the relationship of saccharin to cancer.

"While one Canadian study linked saccharin to cancer, this study has come under considerable criticism from others in the scientific community. Other studies, such as the one performed at John Hopkins University on more than a thousand people, found no correlation between the use of artificial sweeteners and bladder cancer.

"However, because saccharin is the only artificial sweetener available today, millions of Americans use it as an important part of their daily diet. Diabetics, people with heart trouble, people with hypertension, and the obese rely on this artificial sweetener.

"The approach taken by Congress recognizes the important role saccharin plays in the diets of millions of Americans while continuing to seek an answer to the relationship of saccharin to cancer," Broomfield said.

The saccharin controversy resulted from a March 9 Food and Drug Administration announcement that it would ban the use of saccharin on the grounds that Canadian tests found it to be a cancer risk.

The Food and Drug Administration drew its authority from a 1958 amendment to the Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act. This amendment, known as the Delaney Amendment, requires a ban on any food additive found to induce cancer in man or animals, regardless of how large or small a dose was involved to produce the cancer.

In the case of the Canadian tests, a person would have to drink 800 cans of diet soda or chew 6,700 pieces of sugarless gum every day of his life to equal the amount of saccharin that produced cancer in test rats.

"Because of the increasing sophistication of cancer detection, many scientists believe the Delaney Amendment, in its present form, has outlived its usefulness. The legislation approved by the House requires the necessary re-examination and modernization of this provision.

"The saccharin issue has clearly shown that the present Delaney Amendment can be more of an intrusion into our lives than a safeguard. While the intent of the 1958 amendment can be appreciated, Congress needed to re-examine its work and bring it up to date," Broomfield concluded.

???????????????? Question of the Week

What would you do if you were a victim of a hijacking? This question was recently asked by a Reminder reporter of area residents picked at random.

Helen Kennedy of Cedar in Clarkston said, "I suppose I'd sit in the plane, scared to death."

"I'd stay calm and try not to aggravate them (the hijackers)," replied Mrs. Lovelace of Reese Road in Clarkston.

"There wouldn't be too much I could do about it," answered Allan Rosenthal of Placid Ct., Clarkston. He went on to say, "I'd sit there and hope for the best."

Kim Haines, 15, a student at Clarkston High School retorted, "I don't know. I would be scared but I'd obey."

"I'd go along with everybody else. There's not much else I could do," remarked Mr. Joseph Freckleton of Cross, Clarkston.

John Brueck, 8 years old and a Clarkston Elementary student said, "I don't know. I'd just sit there until he came around and I'd do whatever he said. If he had a gun, what else could I do?"

"I just don't know. I guess you're supposed not to fight," was the response of an anonymous lady.

A Davisburg resident who wishes to remain nameless replied, "I would probably just sit there."

Another anonymous lady said, "Wait it out, I guess."

"I'd hit the bad guy on the head with a club and tell the pilot where I want to go," was the response of Andy Bridgeman, age 5.

The Joneses

Her rocking chair was "grandma's"
The couches were his aunts'
The bench that once had held old tools
Now showed off their plants.

Their table, from a garage sale,
Was creaky, worn and old.
The awful chairs around it
Were purple, red and gold.

Their lamps were always tipsy,
They flickered off, then on,
The rugs they owned were old and worn,
And hard to walk upon.

And though I'm awfully nice
And really democratic,
I jeered at all their old stuff,
And called it "early attic."

Until I heard some others say
That what they had was "chic"
And now, my house looks just like theirs -
My dears, I've gone antique!

"Saving Energy" in Cooking

A procedure for comparing the electric energy consumption of a microwave oven with that of conventional electric ranges has been prepared by energy experts.

A menu consisting of foods commonly prepared by a family of four eating three meals a day for a seven-day period was used. Foods were cooked with both a microwave oven and an electric range, carefully measuring with a "watt meter" the amount of electricity used in all cooking.

It was found that varying amounts of electrical energy can be saved - depending on the proportion of the foods that could be cooked by microwave instead of conventional cooking. The chart shows some of the results.

IT'S ESTIMATED THAT BY 1985 ABOUT 40 MILLION MICROWAVE COOKING APPLIANCES WILL BE IN USE IN THE UNITED STATES (ABOUT ONE OUT OF TWO HOMES) WITH MICROWAVE UNITS COOKING FOOD IN AS LITTLE AS 1/4 THE TIME REQUIRED BY CONVENTIONAL METHODS. THIS MEANS SUBSTANTIAL ENERGY SAVINGS AND LOWER COOKING COSTS.

THE UNIT OF MEASUREMENT FOR ELECTRICITY USE IS THE KILOWATT AND ELECTRIC UTILITY BILLS ARE BASED ON THE KILOWATT HOUR (KWH). A KWH REPRESENTS 1,000 WATTS OF ELECTRICITY USED FOR ONE HOUR. FOR EXAMPLE:

TEN 100-WATT LIGHT BULBS X ONE HOUR = 1 KILOWATT HOUR OF ELECTRICITY

LIKEWISE, A 1500-WATT MICROWAVE OVEN X FORTY MINUTES = 1 KILOWATT HOUR OF ELECTRICITY

We the People: Donald Stoll

Donald Stoll, Clarkston's Postmaster, is still living in the same neighborhood that he did as a boy. His family are natives of Oakland County. His grandparents' farms were at 10 Mile Road at Southfield, and at Greenfield and Catalpa. His own parents lived in Royal Oak, and Don was born and raised there. He attended St. Mary's Elementary and High School there.

There were six children in the Stoll family; three girls, and three boys, including Don. His father was a cement contractor, "and we boys began going out on the job with him at the ripe old age of eight or nine," he said.

Upon graduation from St. Mary's in 1940, he entered the Army Air Corps and was stationed in Italy. He went back in for the Korean War, and was stationed in Japan, but got out in 1954. He was a member of the Reserves until about three years ago.

When he returned from Italy, Stoll married a Royal Oak girl by the name of Mary Boyd. They had a son, Brian Timothy, who is now 20 years old, and is majoring in biology and minoring in music at Olivet College.

Before going to work for the Post Office, Stoll went into the cement contracting business with his brother, but left that work to go with the Post Office, and has been with the Post Office in different capacities ever since.

He started as a clerk, and then was promoted to Foreman of Mails, and also worked as a training officer, and Superintendent of Employment and Services, before he was made the Branch Manager of the Madison Heights Post Office. While he served in that position, he was promoted to Clarkston Postmaster.

When he was a boy, he said, "Everyone in Royal Oak knew everyone else, but now you can go into town and not know a soul." Some of the members of the families that lived there when he was a boy, however, still live in the same neighborhood.

Stoll gives his parents credit for his own positive attitude towards life. "They set a good example," he said. "They were hard working people. My mother had six kids to raise, but she baked her own bread, and did things like that. We learned that you don't get anything for nothing. You have to work, and earn what you get."

Stoll believes that children should have background in basic knowledge of Christianity, even if they aren't raised in a religious home. He doesn't feel that Parochial school is absolutely necessary, but feels that religious tenets should be practiced in the home, and that parents should set good moral examples for their children.

The Stolls have tried to raise their own son to have respect for other people, and the rights of others. Their families have been hard-working, honest people, and they expect the same of him.

Stoll said that their son always planned on going to college. "I feel that a college education is important today, for a lot of jobs," he said. "I don't think everyone is college material though, and there is nothing wrong with cement contracting, or plumbing, etc. Our son has never shown any mechanical ability, anymore that I have though, so we started telling him when he was very young, that he was going to college. When he got through high school, it was never "if" he was going to college, but "where" he would go to college.

Stoll believes that today's mobility interferes with the type of family and friend relationships which have enriched his life. He thinks that it is due to the fact that people move too far away to keep in close contact with each other, as they once did in small towns.

Asked about hobbies, and interests outside of his job, he said that "Trying to keep my house up is a full-time job, but I really enjoy it."

NOVEC Has Lots to Offer Part VI

by Carol Balzarini

Reporters occasionally find themselves writing about subjects which they may find interesting but do not wholly understand. Such was the case with covering three related programs at the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center (NOVEC). These programs are radio and television repair, appliance repair, and heating and air conditioning.

Instructor George Moulder would like it understood that radio and television repair is somewhat of a misnomer. Radios and televisions do provide the basis for instruction but that is mainly due to the availability of those items. The program actually covers electronics occupations of many types.

Ideally, students enrolled in this two-year program should have an extensive math background, shop courses using power tools, some drafting, and chemistry and physics. Actually, Mr. Moulder finds himself "starting from scratch" more often than not.

The course is briefly described as a "study of basic principles of electricity, electronics, radio and television, and elementary logic with an emphasis on shop experiences using test gear to locate and clear trouble."

A class committee system closely parallels actual shop organization. Each student knows who is responsible for what equipment or area and when. They are also graded on how well these jobs are done. First-year students are encouraged to do the less time-consuming jobs.

There is also a chart for tool and test gear competence including general safety, tube testers of different sorts, types of soldering tools, etc.

A certain amount of attention is given to business and clerical skills. Students must know how to make out bills, order parts, and write letters.

Advanced skill areas are there for those who are ready for them: applied theoretical, logic and digital, test equipment, and advanced or special manual skills.

Each student has a folder with his individual record, test scores, skills completed satisfactorily, and lab experiments. Also kept is a profile record indicating the level of experience in different areas.

Completion of this program leaves a student basically prepared to enter about 125 related careers in electronics - from medical electronics to FCC-licensed broadcast engineers.

Next door is repair of another sort, this time involving appliances like washers and dryers. Taught by Jay Farrell, this class "operates" on donated appliances which may be repaired and sold, if possible, or just scrapped. The charge is for parts only, not labor.

When questioned about the number of large appliances, everything from refrigerators to ranges, and the absence of small appliances, Mr. Farrell gave two reasons for this. He feels a person who learns to repair the large ones will be able to repair the small ones. Also, it is now cheaper to throw the broken one away and buy a new one than to have it repaired.

This course is divided into four sections: basic electricity, theory and application, tools and use (hand and special), and minor plumbing as it relates to disposals and hot water tanks.

Performance objectives as related to a washing machine include its installation, a switch replacement, circuit tracing, identifying water systems and components, and trouble shooting. All of these should be accomplished within a given length of time.

The Problem Solver

Are there any stores in this area that give Holden Red Stamps or Top Value Stamps? I have some stamps but I don't have the books to put them in.

Top Value stamps can be redeemed, although they are no longer circulated, at their main office in Dayton, Ohio. For redemption procedure, call 513-299-4223. Holden Red stamps are no longer in business and cannot be redeemed.

I have a new puppy that will go outside and do his job, but when he comes in, if I leave him for a few minutes, he will perform his duty again. It seems he's doing it just to spite me. What should I do?

There's really no clear cut answer since dogs have different personalities just like people. Most likely the dog is marking out his territory out of habit. Watch him outside to be sure he is through. If he still continues to go inside, vigorously spank him and put him back outside. He'll soon get the message. Possible the problem is health related. If the dog persists, consult your veterinarian.

I have two small problems that I hope you can help me with: [1] I need an address where I can send for pectin to make diabetic jam. [2] I need to know where I can buy ingredients by the pound to make potpourri.

Calls to druggists, florists, health food stores, and a large department store met with no success in our search for your information. Craft shops could only suggest other places we might ask, but we met with some success at Vim & Vigor on E. Street in Rochester.

They informed us that the pectin you wish is very hard to come by, but that you can use agar flakes as a substitute.

As for the potpourri - that was more difficult. First, we had to get a "recipe" for one. It was found in a book called "Crafts for the Elderly." The ingredients include Verbena, Benzoin of Siam, Orris Root, Lavendar, Sandalwood, Frankencense and Myrrh, Patchouli, and a commercial potpourri mixture. Then we had no luck on any of our calls to located an outlet for the ingredients.

Another call to Vim & Vigor revealed that they had Lemon Verbena and Lavendar, but could not help us with the other ingredients. However, they suggested that you write to "The Golden Temple," in Santa Fe, New Mexico. They may be able to send you what you need. Another suggestion was that you look in the Ann Arbor area (at health stores.)

If there are any readers that could give us further information on this subject, please write, or call, The Reminder with your information, and ask for the Problem Solver.

All Problem Solver correspondence will be answered.

The program includes a certain amount of book and paper work as well as the practical, called "hands on" work. Lectures stick to the basics of the course.

The bulletin board also has three charts of projects, skills, and quizzes to be completed.

First year students start with basic wiring such as a doorbell and graduate to more complex systems such as automatic door openers in apartment buildings. The low voltage system is designed for safety and the parts used are specifically designed to operate on 12 volts.

Students also learn sources of employment opportunities, the requirements of occupations, opportunities for advancement, techniques of job interviews and applications, and verbal resumes.

New to NOVEC this year is the heating and air conditioning program under the direction of John DiPietro.

Students will learn to install, repair, and trouble-shoot various types of air conditioning units and furnaces, brands which are used locally. Three heat pumps are also available for training purposes. Units to be worked on are powered by electricity, gas, and fuel.

Students will learn to install, repair, and trouble-shoot various types of air conditioning units and furnaces, brands which are used locally. Three heat pumps are also available for training purposes. Units to be worked on are powered by electricity, gas, and fuel. The training units have a unique feature - a switch on the back can be flipped to cause a problem. It's up to the students to find the source of trouble.

Students in this program will learn, among other things, the principles and practices of operating a climate-control business, how to install, service, and repair various types of heating and cooling units, and to calculate the heating and cooling needs of both residential and commercial facilities.

Successful completion of the program will help to qualify the students for a number of related careers including selling parts, sheet metal work, and climate-control technicians.

Boy Scouts Have New Executive

E.E. "Sonny" Hays has become Scout Executive of Clinton Valley Council, according to James R. Wagner, Council President. Hays is presently Acting Scout Executive and Director of Field Service of the Santa Clara County Council of San Jose, California.

Well-versed in Program, Finance and Manpower and Membership Management, Hays has served in professional Scouting since 1962. He began his career in Los Angeles as an Associate District Executive, a District Executive and Director of Finance and Public Relations where he successfully directed an inner-city district. He also expanded the Sustaining Membership Enrollment. In 1971 he became Assistant Director of the Exploring Division for the National Council, Boy Scouts of America where he worked with the National Exploring Activities Committee and provided leadership for the National Safe-Driving Road Rally and the National Explorer Olympics. From September 1973 to July 1975 he served as Director of Finance Service of the Golden Campfire Council of Sacramento, California at which time he developed a fund-raising program which caused the Council to operate with a balanced budget for the first time in 10 years.

Educated in California, he holds a Bachelor of Arts Degree in Sociology from Whittier College of Whittier, California. He is a graduate of the National Training School of the Boy Scouts of America and has received supplemental training at numerous Scout National Training Conferences and sessions. He has served as a faculty member of National Explorer Administration Courses and National Finance Seminars.

He and his wife Betty will move to the area in the near future.

Lakeland Players to Present Woody Allen Comedy

Woody Allen's "Don't Drink the Water" is to be presented by the Lakeland Players on November 11, 12, 18 and 19. Performances begin at 8:00 p.m. at Mason Junior High, 3835 W. Walton Blvd., Drayton Plains. Tickets are sold at the door. Further information can be obtained by writing P.O. Box 379, Waterford, MI 48095 or by calling 666-3094.

"Don't Drink the Water" opens with an American family, which has been touring an Eastern European country, rushing into the American Embassy just two steps ahead of the police who suspect the family of spying. The embassy is not much of a refuge, however, as the person in charge has been expelled from a dozen countries and all of Africa because of his ineptitude. The frantic planning of the family's escape is typical of Allen's improbable plots.

Lead roles are being played by Lakeland Player veterans. Jack McCaffrey of "Fiddler" fame is using his talents in the role of the American father. His wife and daughter are being played by Joan Vana and Sandy Grider. Dave Hunt, who was the Woody Allen character of Sam in last season's production of "Play it Again, Sam" has been given the role of the bungling ambassador's son.

Millers Announce Birth of Son

Grandparents are Mrs. Bernice Miller of Clarkston and Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Keech of Waterford. William was welcomed by sister Margaret Lisa, 9.

Meadowbrook Hall to Come to Life with Christmas Music

Christmas music will come to life in sight as well as sound when floral artists create interpretations of the theme, The Music of Christmas, for "Christmas at Meadow Brook Hall," Wednesday, November 30 through Sunday, December 4.

Each of the 19 Detroit-area florists has selected a room to decorate in Meadow Brook Hall, the 100-room mansion on the campus of Oakland University, Rochester. The floral designers will create individual holiday displays to reflect carols playing in the rooms as visitors tour the Hall.

Christmas at Meadow Brook Hall, an annual event, is open from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. all days but Wednesday, November 30, when group tours are scheduled and the Hall will remain open for tours until 9 p.m.

In addition to floral displays, two ethnic organizations will create original displays: the Ukrainian Comfy Knitters of Dearborn Heights will interpret the Ukrainian song, "Carol of the Bells," and the Wavel Folk Ensemble of Detroit (Polish) will design their display around "Good King Wenceslas."

Santa Claus will be waiting in Knole Cottage for children (or adults) who want to talk with him and tour the "cottage," a six-room playhouse built in 1926 for the daughter of auto-pioneer John Dodge.

Knole Cottage is a short walk from Meadow Brook Hall, the former home of Matilda Dodge Wilson, widow of John Dodge. The home was built in the late 1920's, requiring several years and several million dollars to complete. Original furnishings and works of art remain in the historic home, which is now operated by Oakland University as a cultural and conference center.

Three special evening parties are being planned, and reservations are now being taken for the Patrons' Parties December 1, 2 and 3. Guests will enjoy a reception at 7:30, dinner at 8:30, then a leisurely tour of the elaborately decorated rooms following dinner. Reservations are limited to 200 for each evening.

Visitors to the Meadow Brook Hall Christmas event may also visit the Carriage House adjacent to the Hall.

Food will be available in the downstairs room and unusual candles will be displayed and sold in the loft.

All proceeds from the Christmas walk at Meadow Brook Hall are used for the preservation of the Hall and Knole Cottage. No tax money is used for their operation, and all costs of maintaining and preserving them must be generated by programs in the Hall.

For reservations or further information, call Meadow Brook Hall, 377-3140.

Bother Me!

by Mandy Mitts

Dear Mandy,

Two weeks ago my son got off the school bus. Waiting in his blue car was a man who asked my son if he could give him a ride home. When my son said "no," the man replied "You don't know what you are missing!" Later, as I have related this experience, people have said, "Well, Chester the Molester has struck again." Who is Chester the Molester?

Naive Newcomer

Dear Naive Newcomer,

Neither the Police Services nor the school system spokesperson could give me any information about "Chester the Molester." However, an Oakland County Sheriff's deputy informed me that there is a cartoon character in "Hustler" magazine by that name.

Whether the people you have talked to are reacting humorously to your son's experience, or have nicknamed someone that they suspect of this type of activity, they sound as if they are taking the matter lightly. Please remind them that there is nothing funny about the deaths of several children who did not say "no" to a stranger, or a friend or neighbor who was "strange."

This is not a laughing matter, and any such incidents as that which happened to your son should be reported to authorities immediately.

Mandy

Todd Hattig's hand showing size of skull. On the left is a piece of tusk and on right is the first bone discovered, part of the rear section.

Prehistoric Bones Found in Seymour Lake Pond

by Marilyn Bridgeman

Todd Hattig and Randy Carson, sophomores at Brandon High, discovered bones believed to be the remains of a Mastodon; a prehistoric animal which roamed this area about 11,000 years ago! This discovery was substantiated, according to Todd, by Dave Radcliffe, a professor of Anthropology at Cranbrook Academy.

On Thursday, October 20, Todd and Randy went over to a neighbors pond site on Seymour Lake Road. The pond had just been dug and contained only a small amount of water. Todd explained that he saw the first bone partially submerged in the water, but disregarded it, thinking it was part of a cow.

A few minutes later, the boys discovered, in a mound of dirt, half of a skull. The jaw was missing, but the upper teeth were intact. Todd said each tooth appears to be 3 1/2" long.

After digging in the clay and peat soil, the boys continued to find about 50 pieces of bones and tusks.

The Mastodon is an extinct mammal resembling an elephant. It is believed to have lived in this area during the Ice Age.

On Sunday, October 25, Professor Radcliffe inspected the bones and according to Todd, said he believed them to be the remains of an approximately 3 year old Mastodon. The small size of the skull proved that it was a young animal.

This fact led Radcliffe to assume "that the beast had been killed instead of dying a natural death," said Todd.

The next step is to excavate the site with special tools to try and locate further remains. Todd told this reporter that Professor Radcliffe theorized that if they could locate ancient tools or weapons, it would prove that man lived in the area at the same time the Mastodon did.

Todd explained, "The skull can't be carbonated because I touched it. They need to excavate with special tools so they can determine the age of the bones. Professor Radcliffe guesses that this Mastodon lived about 11,000 years ago.

In June, when the dirt is dry, Professor Radcliffe and his associates may return to the pond site and dig for more clues. In the meantime, Todd expressed concern that curiosity seekers would destroy what might be valuable evidence, by not being aware of how to properly excavate.

Clarkston chalked up their ninth straight victory last Saturday at Port Huron Northern with a 30-19 victory, clinching a birth in the Michigan High School Class A football playoffs next Saturday.

Coach Rob White's Wolves trailed 19-12 at the end of the third quarter. It was a do or die situation in the fourth quarter when Clarkston scored three quick touchdowns to put the game away and insure Port Huron their third defeat.

Clarkston closed the game with John Baker and Tim Fog scoring on short plunges and Chris Campe scooting in from the ten.

Clarkston will meet Birmingham Brother Rice next Saturday in the playoff competition. Clarkston earned the birth by virtue of its undefeated season and league championship.

The Clarkston girls basketball team is now in second place in the league after their win against Milford, November 1. One of the leading scorers for Clarkston, Kay Pearson, didn't see action Tuesday night due to illness.

Coach Jan Moddissitt commented, "it was a very physical game as it always is with Milford." Clarkston was up seven points at the half, but Milford inched ahead by the end of the third quarter with 32 to Clarkston's 31.

"With the added incentive of clinching second place in the league, the girls then decided to play ball again," said Coach Moddissitt. The final quarter netted Clarkston 15 points and only 8 for Milford. At the gun it was Clarkston 46, Milford 40.

Jane Tatu was high with 17, Anne Vaara bucketed 11, Pat Killian contributed 6, Jeannie Odell had 4, Marcia Mason and Shelley Vaillencourt each netted 3 and Jayne Lafnear scored 2.

The picture was grim Thursday November 3, against Waterford Kettering when Clarkston took the floor minus Kay Pearson and Anne Vaara, two netters who contribute on the average of 25 points together. Jan Moddissitt declared, "We could have won with them! The team played a good defense, but couldn't hit the broad side of a barn."

Clarkston was in foul trouble in the first quarter and consequently played cautiously throughout the remainder of the game.

Of Clarkston's 29 points, Marcia Mason contributed 10, Pat Killian shot for 8 points, Jane Tatu netted 4, Jayne Lafnear had 3 and Shelley Vaillencourt and Patti Clark each scored 2 points. Waterford Kettering won with 33.

Clarkston is 5-4 in the league, good for second place. Overall the Wolves are 9-6.

Child Murderer Looks Something Like This

THESE DRAWINGS ARE COMPOSITES BASED UPON THE BEST POLICE INFORMATION AVAILABLE. THE SUSPECT IS BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN INVOLVED IN AT LEAST FOUR ABDUCTION-MURDERS IN OAKLAND COUNTY IN THE PAST TWO YEARS. THERE IS A $50,000 REWARD OFFERED FOR HIS ARREST AND CONVICTION. IT IS ALSO BELIEVED THIS PERSON MAY BE POSING AS A POLICE OFFICER, A DOCTOR, A CLERGYMAN, OR A FRIEND OF THE FAMILY, SOMEONE A CHILD WOULD TRUST.

"Friendly Stranger" Book Available at Police Services

With Daylight Savings Time no longer in effect and daylight hours growing shorter, precautions should be taken by parents to insure the safety of their children.

The winter months in recent years have posed a greater threat than usual to the children of Oakland County. At least four deaths have been attributed to an individual who has so far remained unidentified and at large.

In an effort to make children more aware of potential problems, local police departments, including Independence Township, have instituted a program complete with a coloring and game book. The book is available at the Police Services office next to the township hall.

Although geared to the pre-school and early elementary child, the message is the same for all children - beware of the "Friendly Stranger."

Here are some do's and don'ts for children to follow:
Do not play near public rest rooms.
Do not go for a ride in an automobile with a stranger.
Get into the habit of having a friend with you; don't walk alone.

Never go into a stranger's home or invite a stranger into your home when you are alone.

Do not go with a stranger even though he may know your name or claim to know your family.

If a stranger ever bothers you, do three things: remember what he looks like and what he is wearing, write down the license number and color of his car if he has one, and call a policeman right away.

Lawn and Garden Guide for Month of November

Ready or not, here comes winter! Your lawn and garden will be ready if you take these tips from Michigan State University horticulturists:

-Add organic matter to vegetable garden soil. Plow or spade it into the garden and leave the soil rough. Winter's thawing and freezing will smooth it out.

-Rake fallen leaves, chop them up and add them to your compost pile.

-Clean gardens, flower beds, windowboxes and outdoor planters. Be sure to get rid of fallen leaves and fruits that might harbor diseases and insects.

-Pull up annuals and cut back perennials after they are killed by frost.

-Dig and store tender summer-flowering bulbs like dahlias, cannas and tuberous begonias. Store the bulbs where they will stay cool and dry without freezing. Check stored bulbs occasionally through the winter and discard those showing signs of mold.

-Pot spring-flowering bulbs for forcing in late winter.

-Finish planting spring bulbs outdoors.
-Surround the trunks of fruit trees, crabapples and young dogwoods with foil or hardware cloth so that rabbits and other rodents can't gnaw the bark off. Be sure the barrier reaches well above the usual snow level.

-Remove dead, broken or diseased branches from trees and shrubs. Avoid pruning spring-flowering shrubs now. The flower buds for next spring's flowers have already formed. Prune now and you'll remove them.

-Transplant dormant deciduous trees and shrubs.

-Pick the spot to plant a living Christmas tree and dig the hole for it before the ground freezes. Mulch the hole and store the soil from it where it will not freeze so you can plant the tree soon after the holiday.

-Protect plants near roads that will be treated with deicing salt. Tarbacked burlap tacked to stakes placed between the plants and the street will protect the plants from salt spray injury.

-Wrap the trunks of young, thin-barked trees with tree wrap to prevent winter sunscald injury.

-Stake and tie newly planted trees as necessary to keep the wind from whipping and breaking or uprooting them.

-Handpick bagworms from evergreens. Destroy them to eliminate the eggs inside that would hatch into next year's pests.

-After the ground has frozen, mulch roses, perennials, bulb beds and strawberries.

-Propagate evergreens like holly, yew, juniper and boxwood. After they have been exposed to several hard freezes, take cuttings six to eight inches long. Strip the needles from the bottom two inches. Dip the lower end in a root hormone and stick it into damp sand or a sand-peat mixture. Keep the rooting medium damp until the cuttings are well-rooted. Place in a well-lighted area where temperatures are around 68-72 degrees F, and water as needed. Plant outdoors in the spring.

-Give your bluegrass lawn a late fall application of nitrogen at a rate of one pound of actual nitrogen in slow-release form per 1,000 square feet. Do not fertilize fescue lawns now.

-Keep the lawn free of fallen leaves. They can mat down and smother the grass.

-Take your lawn mower to the shop for a winter overhaul as soon as it's no longer needed.

-Check houseplants that spent the summer outdoors for insect infestations and treat them as necessary.

-Do not be surprised if some houseplants, especially those that were outdoors all summer, experience some leaf drop as the days get shorter. This is their way to adapt to lower night levels.

RANCH HOME HAS SPACE

© By W. D. Farmer

A cased opening from the foyer of the home leads directly to the formal living and dining areas. These areas have been isolated from the normal traffic flow of the home to allow privacy when entertaining.

The step-saving U-shaped kitchen has lots of cabinet and counter space to aid in meal preparation. It includes such conveniences as a dishwasher, double sink, and a separate surface unit and oven. Location between the dining room and the breakfast area provides easy access to either.

Downstairs is the big family room. The family room features a unique fireplace open on two sides. Sliding glass doors lead to a rear terrace. For convenience, a half bath is close by.

The laundry area with washer-dryer connections is here also. A real feature of this home is the laundry chute located here to save lots of steps carrying clothes up and down the stairs.

Upstairs houses the bedroom area. Having all four bedrooms together helps to group the house into "active" and "quiet" zones. The large master bedroom has two big closets, one a walk-in, separate dressing room with a vanity and a private bath.

Each of the three other bedrooms have ample space and easy access to a full bath with vanity.

The Ranch design of the home is accentuated by the combination of frame and brick, columned porch, and multi-lite windows.

The plan is Number 860-SL A. It includes a total of 2,348 square feet. For further information write W. D. Farmer, Residence Designer, Inc., P.O. Box 49463, Atlanta, Ga. 30359.

FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS

Later this month Richard D. Conley will hang out his shingle at the Clarkston Medical Center as a family practitioner.

Dr. Conley has a varied background as a practitioner in Detroit, an assistant professor at Michigan State University's school of medicine, and a staff pathologist at Providence Hospital.

He graduated from the Loyola of Chicago School of Medicine, interned at Detroit General, and spent his residency at Providence Hospital.

While in general practice in Detroit, Dr. Conley served as medical director of the Cancer Detection Center of the Michigan Cancer Foundation.

For two years he taught at MSU and last year taught at Wayne State's School of Medicine.

Dr. Conley says his return to general practice is due, in part, to his teaching background. So many of the students, interns, and residents with whom he has come in contact have been specializing. He believes that trend will begin to reverse itself as more doctors see the need for general practice.

Dr. Conley is currently living in Bloomfield Township with his wife Elaine and two children. The Conleys plan a move to the Clarkston area as soon as his practice is established.

SCAMP Proponent Joe Falls

straight without a day off and enjoyed every minute of it. He says he wouldn't have any other job.

Last June, Falls was asked by Bryan Watson, then with the Detroit Red Wings, to cover the Special Olympics at Central Michigan University. Watson, the most penalized player in hockey, and described by Falls as "the gentlest guy you'd ever want to know," was honorary chairman of the event.

Falls has never made a secret of the fact that he cried at the opening ceremonies, patterned after the world-wide Olympic games, when he saw the contestants limping in, some pushing wheel chairs. He stopped when he realized that everyone else was happy...happy to have the chance to compete in a way similar to those athletes they'd seen on television.

As a result of his articles on the subject, he was contacted by the Oakland County Association for Retarded Citizens for help. This April at Oakland University, which has been generous in donating its facilities and its people, a celebrity fund-raiser will be held to raise money to fund a county office for OCARC.

This event will include the very people the money will benefit. Two retarded people, one celebrity, and one sponsor or his representative will compete in four events the retarded participants are capable of. Falls hopes it will become a continuing affair with even a Hall of Fame established. Twenty-six celebrities have been lined up as participants; J.P. McCarthy, Dick Purtan, Brooks Patterson, Ted Lindsay, and Charlie Sanders, to name a few.

Falls' involvement with SCAMP began on a curious note last spring when he was advertised as playing tennis with Bruno Kearns in John Laffery's First Annual SCAMP Benefit at the Deer Lake Racquet Club. It seems no one had remembered to invite Falls. He was acutely embarrassed when he learned of the oversight and was committed to something else at the time.

Recently, he gave the walk for SCAMP some publicity and walked in the parade through Clarkston. He's genuinely interested in programs of this type and willing to do what he can for them.

Of his current involvement with the handicapped, Falls says, "I think it's important to show the public retarded people in happy situations."
