Band Boosters Elect Officers

The annual meeting of the Clarkston Band Boosters was held Monday, November 21 at the Clarkston High School. New officers were elected as follows:

President	Homer Beondi
Vice President	Edward R. Mandilk
Secretary	Florence Frick
Treasurer	Lucille Thompson
Ways and Means Committee Chairman	Donald Kevern
Hospitality Committee Chairman	Sandy Freel

A community involved band day is being planned for this Spring. Next meeting will be at 8:00 p.m. Monday, December 19.

Bordine's Open on Dixie Highway

After being in business in Rochester for 37 years, Bordine's is expanding and the Independence-Springfield area will benefit from it's new location on the Dixie Highway just north of I-75.

At the present time, only one of the many buildings has been renovated, but the facility still offers 6,000 poinsettias, Christmas cacti, and other holiday plants, while another 6,000 house rows and rows of Christmas trees. All of the greenhouses should be open by May 1.

Immediate plans for Bordine's Better Blooms call for greenhouses, nursery and landscaping services comparable to those at the Rochester facility. A florist shop and craft and garden centers are planned for this summer or next.

Plant lovers will find a number of unusual house plants in addition to the many holiday plants. Orange trees, rose-leaved aralias, mistletoe figs, and some varieties of moss can be found among the vast array of red, white, and pink poinsettias, most of them the new longer-lasting kind. If the space is available, try a hanging basket of lush red poinsettias. Or try the new varieties called Jingle Bells, red with pink flecks, or Marble, white with pink splotches.

Seven Tickets Issued in M-15 - Dixie Area Friday Night

ALL YOUNG CITIZENS ON ALCOHOL AND DRUG CHARGES

NOTE:

In attending the meetings held by businesses, and residents in the M-15, Dixie area to solve the problems with litter and vandalism, the belief that part of the problem was caused by the use of alcoholic beverages was stated.

After sitting in an unmarked police car Friday night, and watching the constant activity in this area, and the arrests made, Kathy Greenfield was able to see for herself just what is going on in that area.

by Kathy Greenfield

In a three-hour period Friday night, seven tickets were issued and one young man was arrested on a drug charge in the M-15, Dixie Highway area.

THIRTY PEOPLE CHOSEN To Serve on Clarkston Schools Citizens Advisory Committee

At a special meeting of the Clarkston School Board held Monday, November 28 at Pine Knob School, thirty people were selected to form the Citizens Advisory Committee. Those named to the panel were chosen from a total of sixty-five applicants after setting some guidelines for that selection.

An effort was made to keep representation as equal as possible from each of the elementary school areas, to have an equal number of men and women, and to have a half dozen members with no school-age children.

Included in the list are people with financial and legal backgrounds, educators from the Clarkston school system and others, one parent with a child in special education, a number of self-employed people, homemakers, and other interested citizens.

Named to the committee were: Gordon Andringa, Larry Beamer, Gloria Bellairs, James Brennan, Thomas Bullen, Sue Cattin, Mary Chaustowich, Lowell Chuba, Leonard Cotter, and Connie Daros.

Also included are Richard Degener, Karen Eckert, Julia Johnson, John Klockow, David Larken, Karen Ohrenberger, Douglas Pierson, Duane Richardson, Donna Rudolph, and Janet Salter.

Concluding the list are Mary Scharfenkamp, Joyce Valentine, Robert Vandermark, Robert VanVoorhies, Barbara Vedder, Linda Vinstra, James Vollbach, Stanley White, Ann Wood and Henry Woofenden.

Named as alternates were Carol Balzarini, John Moreau, and James Randall.

The group's first meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. prior to the regular school board meeting on Monday, December 12 at the administrative offices on Clarkston Road.

indicative that there's a lot going on."

Two were charged with furnishing alcoholic beverages to minors, three were minors charged with possession of alcoholic beverages and two were cited for open intoxicants in a motor vehicle.

A 19-year-old Clarkston man was arrested for possession of dangerous drugs. He was released on personal bond pending crime lab analysis of the crystals.

Police observed him and two other young men drinking beer in their truck parked near Quik Pik. An Oakland County Sheriff's patrol car followed them to the parking lot near Wonder Drugs and made the arrests.

Another 19-year-old Clarkston man was charged with furnishing liquor to minors. The arrest was made at 8 p.m. in front of Wonder Drugs.

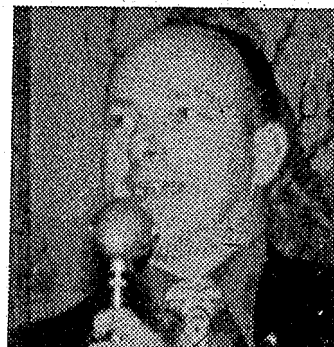

Police observed two girls standing outside the A & P. The man walked out of Wonder Drugs and talked with the girls. They got into his car and talked a few minutes. He went back into the store and came out with another brown bag and handed it to the girls.

The girls were 15. They told police they gave the man $5.00 to buy the liquor because one girl's birthday was in two days and they wanted to celebrate this weekend.

The four police deputies were from the Crime and Accident Prevention unit of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department. The plain-clothes policemen were on a special liquor control assignment to watch for the sale of alcoholic beverages to minors from the stores or outside the stores because of numerous complaints in

Tink Ronk Honored as Fireman of the Year

On Saturday, December 3, at Aerie 3373, a program was held with Fire Chief Frank (Tink) Ronk as guest of honor. He was presented with a plaque honoring him as the Fire Fighter of the Year. This is the highest award bestowed by the Fraternal Order of Eagles. Ronk was selected because of his dedication and devotion to his profession.

Guests included Ronk's wife, children, mother and many firemen. The Eagles have a memorial fund set up to take care of the families of a member policeman or firemen should he be killed in the line of duty. This fund takes care of medical bills and guarantees his children five years of college.

The Grand Aerie of the Fraternal Order of Eagles encourages each local Aerie to select an outstanding policeman or fireman each year and to honor him.

SANTA WANTS LETTERS

Dear Children,
When you write your letters to Santa Claus this year telling him what you would like for Christmas, would you please send them to the Reminder? We want to print your letters. Santa is sure to see them because he has told us that he reads our paper every week. He has also told us that he loves to have boys and girls draw Christmas pictures for him. So why don't you make Santa happy by writing to him?

A T-Shirt From Us to You

Our Way of Saying Thanks for Reading The Reminder.

Wear and Enjoy this T-Shirt at This Happy Season and All Year

Instructions for Your Reminder Iron-On

INSTRUCTIONS:

1. For best results, apply to material made with at least 50% polyester and 50% cotton. Shirts of 100% cotton do not hold the colors after repeated washings.
2. Cut out pattern along dotted lines.
3. Place a protective piece of cloth or bonded typing paper over the ironing board to keep excess ink from staining ironing board cover.

4. Slip the T-shirt over the end of the board so that the front (or back) is directly over the board's protective cover.

5. Place the cartoon face down on the area of the T-shirt you wish to decorate and pin it to the shirt so it will not slide. Place a clean sheet of paper directly over the cartoon to protect the iron's surface. Heavy paper will prevent the proper heat transfer from occurring.

6. Set the iron on "cotton," allow it to heat up and apply with firm, even pressure over entire surface for 30 seconds. Use a dry iron, not steam.

7. Allow to cool for at least one minute before removing paper.

CAUTION:

If you have never used an iron before, have an adult member of your family apply the heat transfer for you to be sure your shirt comes out just right.

LAUNDERING:

No special laundering is required. The colors will mellow with the first washing to a slightly faded look which will not wash out if you have followed the directions carefully. Wash and dry with other permanent press clothes using the proper settings or temperatures. Do not use chlorine bleach on any permanent press materials. If properly applied and laundered, your T-shirt design will last through repeated washings and dryings.

George Washington Slept Here

The Clarkston High School Thespians will present the comedy "George Washington Slept Here" at 8:00 p.m. on Friday, December 9 and Saturday, December 10 at the CHS Little Theater.

Friday night's performance includes a dessert smorgasbord during intermission.

Appearing in starring roles as Mr. and Mrs. Fuller are CHS seniors Larry Dean and Becky Ridley.

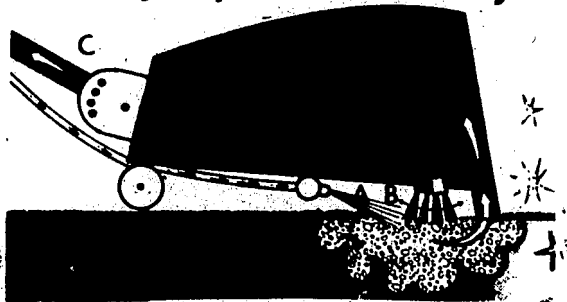

The Fullers buy a very old home in Pennsylvania they believe George Washington slept in, and work to restore it in spite of unexpected surprises.

The 16 characters include an almost rich uncle, an obnoxious nephew, a wicked neighbor and the Fuller's daughter who finds herself emotionally involved with a neighbor.

CHS drama and speech teacher Barbara Gibson is the director. Student co-directors are Tammy Newton and Dayna Swanson.

For advance ticket sale information, call CHS, or you may purchase tickets the nights of the performances at the door.

The ultimate in steam cleaning is only a phone call away!

Note this bottom-side view of the Rug Doctor Vibra Brush method carpet cleaner in action.

A. Hot water and cleaning solution jets into the carpet.
B. Vibra Brush (Like electric tooth brush) agitates carpet back and forth 3,400 times each minute. This breaks soil loose and polishes each carpet fiber to a clean, brilliant finish. This type of brush does not distort pile.

C. Powerful suction extracts hot water and loosened soil back up to waste tank.

We are the only cleaner in the area that has the VIBRA-VAC METHOD.

Thoughts 'N Things By Joan Allen

In order for a man to grow to full potential, he has to work full-time to achieve balance of the physical, mental, and emotional states of his nature. Other forms of life, as far as we can ascertain, require only physical health and safety in order to achieve perfection.

Man needs the "light of truth" so that he may adjust to things as they are, and to enable him to problem-solving abilities to best advantage. He also needs the "light of beauty" to lead him in positive directions. Once exposed to it, he will seek it out, and turn away from ugliness. Lack of exposure, however, will have a negative effect, and enough harm can be done to the young human which is denied beauty, that the ability to make use of it may deteriorate completely.

Beauty is defined as that which "delights the senses, or exalts the mind." When man's senses are delighted, and his mind exalted, he "feels" happy. In that happy state, he moves "full speed ahead." In other words, he "grows." Therefore, it may be assumed that man needs the "light of beauty" to develop his full potential.

Beauty exists in our world, just as ugliness exists, but for a variety of reasons, we hear a lot less about "beauty" today, and a lot more about "ugly." It may be a long time before society (in general) gets things turned around, but individuals can improve their own, and their children's growth atmosphere with a little effort.

I do not feel that improving the "atmosphere" means that we should close our eyes to reality. Nor do I think that we must "throw out the television set," nor censor our children's reading matter, or go to extremes in controlling their experience. The "light of truth" is important, too, and we should not put blinders on ourselves, nor our children. On the other hand, I do believe that every attempt should be made to counteract the darkness of negativism with the "light of beauty."

Discipline, order, and balance provide an atmosphere of beauty. A complete lack of those things results in frustration and agitation of the mental, emotional, and physical senses. That does not mean that everything should be "bland" or "even." We need contrasts to set off that which is controlled, but we should seek positive contrasts, not ugliness.

Experiments with young children, in the home, as well as in controlled environments, prove that they react positively to soft voices, even handling, and bland foods. They do not react in a positive manner to loud noises, sudden movement, or strong tastes. As they grow older, they can handle frustration and negative experiences if they are conditioned to them in a loving and secure atmosphere. Lacking that sort of an atmosphere, however, children develop habits of negativism which are hard to reverse.

It is not necessary to teach children a love of beauty through exposure to the master artists, or by continually playing classical music. There is a great deal of beauty to be found in contemporary music and in commercial art. It is not the finished product that will do the teaching. It is learning about the order and balance which produce that which is pleasing to the senses. It is gaining the knowledge and ability to create pleasing sights and sounds that give the child the opportunity to grow towards a state of perfection by way of the physical senses.

The same is true in the mental and emotional facets of growth. We humans need to be exposed to truth and beauty of thought and feeling. We need to know of others who have reached toward perfection and have accomplished much. We need to know of their attempts, their failures, and their successes.

In today's society, that isn't easy. The dollar has become God to too many people, and "let the buyer beware" has led to irresponsibility in communications. Twenty-six people may have died from a diet plan which made a best-selling author out of the person who touted it as the "answer" to weight problems. "They should have known better than to believe everything they read" might satisfy those of us who disregard its promises, but that doesn't help the families of the deceased believers. The author had a book that would sell a lot of copies to readers who wanted the "quick and easy" solution to a problem. That was reason enough to publish it, and reason enough to stock it in bookstores. "After all, a publisher is in the business to sell books, and the bookstore is in the same business, and business is what life is all about!"

Needless to say, we do need to consult reliable sources before we accept just any idea, and we need to seek out worthwhile ideas for our children. We cannot eliminate all the ugliness, but we can see to it that it is balanced with beauty.

The parent who is willing to help the self and the child by doing a little "homework" in art, music, and/or crafts, can improve the environment of the whole family by doing a little informal teaching. By drawing the family's attention to what has been done well with background music, set design, color, lighting, make-up, and costuming, attention can be drawn away from negative plots on television. When children become conscious of how moods are set, they will become much more aware of the crafts which control their thinking and feeling, and the negative can be balanced by the positive.

Drawing children's attention to good advertisements in the paper or magazines can teach them about structure and design, too. Parents, too, should be vocal about those things which insult their intelligence, and their children's. Good music will be better appreciated, as will good poetry, and good art, if children are encouraged to think about the feelings of the artist who created that which they see, read, and hear. All of those things are communications of man's moods and feelings. Awareness of that helps the child choose the things produced by people he "likes."

People (friends) should be chosen for the qualities that are pleasing, too. If the child has been raised in a happy, moderate family, friends like that will generally be chosen. We humans like that which is familiar. Education about people, as education about art, however, does not limit experience, but encourages it. When we increase our knowledge on a subject, we get more curious about that which is just "over the line." One step at a time, we increase that knowledge and awareness if we have the security of structure to fall back on. It is confusion, and chaos which makes us withdraw, afraid to get involved in more of it. Whether in a physical, mental, or emotional state, control must be developed for the sake of security. We grow from the confidence level we have achieved.

It is most difficult for some people to equate the order of the mind and emotions with the physical, but much understanding can be accomplished if that capacity can be developed. Just as a house must have a firm foundation to rest on, so must thought and feeling have a foundation to build on. A child's foundation is laid in the first five years of life. If physical, mental, and emotional perspective is in accord with truth and beauty by that time, the "Building" is apt to go smoothly. If not, a lot of "redoing" may be necessary.

Everybody's into blue jeans today - including this kitten who crowded in to take a snooze!

Don Rolph - Superintendent - Children's Village - Oakland County.

We the People

by Joan Allen

Donald Rolph, new Superintendent of the Oakland County Children's Village, is one of a pair of identical twins, born in July of 1934. (I mention that so people who think the above picture is Ronald Rolph, principal of Birmingham's Groves High School won't be confused).

Actually, the two brothers have been so close that it is hard for Don to answer questions about his early life without saying "we," and so the interviewer bows to the inevitable curiosity, and includes the absent brother in the interview.

It is especially interesting, I think, that the twins were the first members of their family to attend college, and that they have both gone on for advanced degrees, though there was no ambitious urging of parents to "give them a push" in the direction of education.

There was no financial help, either, and so, when they left their home town of Birmingham to attend Central Michigan University in Mt. Pleasant, they were "on their own." They managed in a number of ways. Both were Resident Advisors in the dormitory; they worked in the cafeteria; they were weekend janitors, and they received some money from the ROTC program in which they were involved. In the summer they worked as substitute production workers at Ford's.

Ron Rolph chose the field of Education, and stuck with it, but Don was less certain, and so chose General Education courses until he settled on Sociology and Psychology. The two boys graduated in 1956.

The ROTC was mandatory for the twins their first two years in college, but they both enjoyed it, so stayed with it, and both were commissioned Lieutenants in the United States Army at graduation.

A couple of months after graduation, Don married his high school sweetheart. Her name is Marilyn, and she is from Port Huron. A couple of months after graduation, Ron married his girlfriend from Davisburg. Her name is Marilyn, too. Then Don and Marilyn went to Fort Bragg in North Carolina, and Ron and his Marilyn went to Fort Bliss in El Paso, Texas.

The boys were allowed to state four preferences for they way they would spend their time in service. Ron chose the Artillery. Don, however, chose the Military Police. He and his wife were then sent to Fort Gordon, Georgia.

"I had always been very interested in the field of crime prevention, and was always interested in police work, and so I ended up in the military police," Don said. "I was instructor and company officer in Georgia."

"When we finished our military stint, we returned to Birmingham, and I wanted to pursue those interests further, so I went into civilian police work. I was in civilian police work for 4 years, hoping I'd be able to get into a Juvenile Bureau. After four years, however, I wasn't any closer to the juvenile area than I was when I began. In fact, I couldn't even write a competitive exam for the rank of Detective (which you need) until I had been there for five years, and then it was a seniority kind of thing. So, I left Birmingham, and ended up in the Oakland County Juvenile Court," he added.

"I've been here about 18 years. The first five years, I worked as a caseworker, and then, in about 1966, I came to the Children's Village. At that time, I worked as kind of an Administrative Assistant.

About two years later, for want of space, the foster care unit had to be moved from the Court House, and I was asked if I'd like to supervise that unit, so I went back to the Juvenile Court. Later, it was combined with the adoption department, and I was asked to work with both. I held the position of Supervisor for ten years. Then I was Court Referee for 8 or 9 months."

It was at that time that some changes were made in the administration of Children's Village, and a new Superintendent was to be appointed. Don Rolph, a sincerely religious man, said he prayed very earnestly about the job before submitting an application.

"I have tried to live, the best I can, a Christian life. I depend on prayer, I depend on leadership of God to give me direction, and I believe God can direct us if we seek it, and I knew that this was a tremendous job. There had been a lot of upheaval over here, and I'd have been shaking in my boots to think of coming over here on my own strength, and doing what needed to be done - so I really prayed very earnestly about the position."

His prayers were answered. He won the nationally advertised post over 44 other applicants.

He does feel that his return to school on a part-time basis a few years ago for a Master's Degree in Corrections added to his ability on the job. The courses he took at the University of Detroit included classes in Social Work, Public Administration, and Criminology.

"I'm not a real gifted individual," he said. "I work hard at whatever I do. I really apply myself. I maximize my efforts to do the kind of job that I know needs to be done. Sometimes I feel like a 6-foot man walking in 10 feet of water," he added with a laugh.

Don and Marilyn Rolph are a hard working couple (she is an outstanding salesperson for Chamberlain Realty) but they always find time for their three sons. Jeff, the eldest is a sophomore at Taylor University in Indiana, and Steve and Tim attend high school in Birmingham. Steve is a senior, and Tim is a sophomore.

QUICK TRICKS:

For a taste treat, drop a few pieces of lemon rind into the cooking water for frozen peas, carrots or stringbeans.

To prolong the life of photo film, keep it in the refrigerator.

Use a drop or two of lemon juice to brighten up your shoeshine.

Don't forget to line the oven with a sheet of foil on the bottom to catch over-spill.

Save those tiny potpie foil pans, too. Store leftovers in them and save time and clean-up by even reheating in them, too.

Pour cooking oil into an empty squeeze bottle (left over from pancake syrup or such) and grease cake pans or casseroles the easy way by spraying them.

Chop raisins for cookies or puddings instead of using them whole to heighten flavor.

Bother Me!

by Mandy Mitts

Dear Mandy,

My sister was married for two years and then got a divorce. The rest of the family liked her husband but she claimed they were incompatible. That's all we ever knew about it because they moved out of the state right after they got married. We didn't know they were having troubles even. She just came home for a vacation, and didn't go back. He wrote to her and called her but she refused to read the letters or answer his calls. A few months ago, he came to town, and called me at work, and wanted to talk to me. I agreed to have lunch with him. We started talking about my sister, and he said he didn't know what was wrong - that she wouldn't tell him. She said she just didn't love him anymore, and left.

Well, he called me again. We started dating, and we've fallen in love. He wants to marry me, and I want to say "yes," but my family doesn't even know that I've been seeing him. I have my own apartment (I'm 28) and I pretty much live my own life, but I don't want to have hard feelings in the family, and my mom and dad feel the divorce must be his fault. How do I break the news at this late date?

Sister

Dear Sister,

You are already independent of your family, and you are old enough to make up your mind about this marriage. The problem is the lack of knowledge and understanding about the causes of this man's incompatibility with your sister. Try to talk to your sister in private about the events that have occurred and get her reaction to your relationship with her ex-husband without discussing possible marriage. If her marriage to him was a mistake because she simply didn't love him, or didn't find marriage fulfilling, she'll be happy for you both. If she knows something about him that you don't know, she'll probably warn you. And if they still care about one another, and you just got in the way, that will probably come out now, rather than later. I think you should take the chance of finding out before you get in any deeper. Good luck!

Experiences with TV Toy Advertising

by Kathy Greenfield

In a world of constant advertising bombardment, we need to enter stores with a clear set of values.

At our house we have a long standing policy. It started when our children were pre-schoolers and watching Saturday morning cartoons.

After they decided everything advertised entered the must-have category, "Don't Ask For It If You Saw It On TV" became a rule.

The main reason for the decision was explained. "Don't let yourselves be influenced by the hard sell, 'happily ever after' sales pitch," we told them. Amazingly, it worked.

The TV toys they did ask for had been enjoyed at a friend's home and they could back up the request with personal experience. Hard cover books, magazine subscriptions and games like cribbage, chess and Chinese checkers became family favorites.

Last Christmas, however, this seven-year-long rule collapsed.

I was working, going to school and out of time.

"Make lists," I said. At the toy store, I read off the names of toys I couldn't identify on my own. They knew what they were.

"As seen on TV," the signs shouted.

There is no happy ending here. We spent an agonizing couple of months complete with tears, frustration and instant breakage.

The space satellite faltered early. It never quite worked without people power to help the batteries along.

The plastic doll - a take-off on a TV character - soon lost credibility along with a leg, arm and masks that fell off.

The game "recommended for ages six and up" refused to fit together properly. The soft plastic parts wouldn't stay put. It made my eight-year-old son and his parents feel like total failures.

"Where are all the happy faces and laughter promised in the ads?" I asked myself.

And, yes, most of the toys ended up in the local dump. Never again.

public library in Independence Township, just six months after the establishment of the Clarkston Women's Club. The organization's objective was to promote worthwhile projects in the community and the library was number one on their list.

At that time, the book collection numbered 500 volumes, circulation of same was 1,000, and the township population was around 7,000.

The CWC began a story hour for children which became a continuing club project until this year when it was cancelled for apparent lack of interest.

Another club project, started to provide library funds on a more regular basis, was the birthday calendar, discontinued only recently. This income was in addition to that from bake sales, card parties, and other projects.

There was no tax support at this time from the Township, although it did assist with new aluminum siding on the old building.

In 1965, the Independence Township Library officially became a public library and was placed under the jurisdiction of the Township. Funds were budgeted and the Library Advisory Board established. At this time the books numbered in the thousands, circulation was over 19,000 annually, and the Township population was an estimated 14,000.

In the fall of 1966, the CWC, with Mrs. Richard Johnston as president, made a preliminary appeal for funds to begin a new library. Space in the old building was at the point where the lavatory could, indeed, be called a reading room. There were 8,500 books in a facility designed for 5,000.

The Library Fund Drive, coordinated by Mrs. Kenneth Valentine, chairman of the Library Advisory Board, was officially underway in February of 1967.

Advanced gifts and pledges totaled nearly $9,000. This total had risen to nearly $17,000 a week later.

Despite the effort, the drive failed to net the $100,000 sought to build the recommended 7,000 square foot facility on the 2 1/2 acres on Clarkston Road acquired from the Clarkston Schools. Funds raised totaled just over $57,000 and the building size was reduced to 4,000 square feet.

Additional grants of $10,000 from the Kresge Foundation and about $32,000 in federal funds were subsequently received.

Groundbreaking ceremonies were December 1, 1968. One year later the new library opened with Mrs. Phillip Smith as librarian and Mrs. Bruce Embrey as assistant. The formal dedication was Sunday, April 12, 1970.

At the end of that year, 1040 new library cards were issued, adding to the existing 7,978 registrants, circulation was 28,634 volumes, and the census put the Township population at 17,361.

Faced with an ever-increasing population and a library that was undersized when it was built nearly ten years ago, a move is currently underway to establish a Friends of the Library whose main objectives are to stimulate interest in the library itself and to raise funds for its improvement.

As in all fledgling organizations, members are needed who recognize the library as a necessary and valuable part of the life of this community.

Marilyn Tries Her Hand as Hairdresser

by Marilyn Bridgeman

The Reminder received a call from David Urbats from the Clarkston-Waterford area who requested that we profile his job as a hairdresser.

The original agreement was that I would learn how to cut hair. My customer (named Mike) unfortunately didn't trust my on-the-job training. He had his hair cut before our appointment and insisted that it couldn't be any shorter.

We settled on a wash and blow-dry. After great persuasion, Mike agreed to allow me to manicure his nails.

When I arrived, I was greeted by David and Sandy Farris, the owner of the shop. They seemed very eager to instruct me. They even gave me a T-shirt with their logo (The Hair Design Salon) on it.

Mike was draped in plastic in preparation for the washing of his hair. Sandy showed me how to use the handsprayer attached to the faucet. There definitely is a technique. If not used right, customer and hairdresser can get very wet.

I applied the apricot-scented shampoo, massaged it into the hair with my fingertips as instructed and rinsed thoroughly. After repeating this process, I wrapped Mike's head in a chocolate brown towel. He looked like Valentino in "The Shiek."

We moved to the barber chair to begin the blow-dry. David explained that you ruffle the hair with your fingers as you're drying it to remove the excess moisture. When the hair is just barely damp, you first smooth it forward, then feather small sections back away from the face using a hard bristle brush. By bushing up the top of the head, you can find the natural part. The blow dry is completed by smoothing down and shaping the hair in the style the client desires.

I followed these steps very diligently. Mike seemed pleased with the results. His hair was easy to work with, especially since he'd just had it cut.

On the phase two of the beautification: the manicure. In this area I knew I was in trouble. My customer's fingernails were chewed down to nothing. How can your manicure half a nail? I suggested we pull them out or paste on fake ones, but my humor wasn't appreciated.

Step one - gently file nails with an emery board. David told me to be very careful because the exposed skin, which is normally protected by the nail, is very tender. My client was very stoic during the filing.

Step two really proved his courage. David brought over a little pink electric warmer in which hand cream was placed. The cream is used to soak the fingers in and soften the cuticles. Mike placed his fingers in the cream, screamed, and promptly pulled them out. He burnt the tips of two of his fingers. I asked him if he could get workman's compensation for an "on-the-job" injury.

Step three was less arduous. I pushed back his burned yet softened cuticles with a cotton-wrapped orange stick. Then I notice this pliers-like instrument with sharp pincers, I assumed this was used to trim hangnails, of which Mike had plenty. I got ready to use this new implement.

Sandy caught me just in time. She warned me how sharp and dangerous this tool was. If you snip too much skin, an infection can set in. With a sigh of relief from Mike, Sandy clipped his cuticles for me.

By this time, his nails were beginning to look presentable. One last step remained - putting on polish. My valiant customer finally balked. Sandy explained it was clear polish to give the nails a shiny, buffed look. He relented to just one coat.

David and Sandy inspected the final results and pronounced them adequate.

I really enjoyed working in the salon. Its atmosphere is quite plush and it was extremely quiet except for occasional cries of protest from my client.

If you are interested in having your job profiled in the Reminder, call 627-2843.

JACQUI MILZOW

Friends and Neighbors

It's comforting to know there's a doctor on the premises when engaging in swimming, racquetball, or tennis. However, in this case, the doctor can't do a thing for strained muscles or tennis elbow. This doctor, Jacqui Milzow of the Deer Lake Racquet Club, is a Doctor of Philosophy.

Mrs. Milzow is currently on a leave of absence from the Pontiac school system, and she has until March to determine the course of her future.

Jacqui grew up in Detroit. Her father died when she was eleven years old. She has worked since she was fifteen. She skipped grades and graduated from Detroit Western at the age of sixteen.

With the aid of a scholarship, Jacqui went to Michigan State, majoring in social studies. Because she was still only twenty years old when she graduated, she went on to Wayne University, and earned a master's degree in history.

She began teaching in Pontiac at Central High School and at Madison Junior High School. It was at Madison that Jacqui met Forrest Milzow, then a math teacher.

Three years ago she took a sabbatical to work on her doctorate at Wayne State University. At that time her advisors discouraged her from seeking a degree in administration, saying it would be a waste of time and money for all concerned, since administrative opportunities for women in secondary education were almost nonexistent. She compromised, and majored in curriculum planning with a minor in administration.

As it turned out, Jacqui found herself in the right place at the right time. She returned to Northern High School in the Alternative Education program, with bright prospects for the future.

The next year, however, operations at the Deer Lake Racquet Club became more complex, so Jacqui took a year's leave of absence to "coordinate" the various facets of the club.

Since Jacqui and Forrest have been married, they have moved 14 times in 10 years. Forrest has usually built their houses, then they have decorated them together, sold them and started all over again. These days, however, Forrest is doing most of the decorating himself.

When asked about the future, Jacqui just smiled and acknowledged that it was a good question. Sometime between now and March, she will have to decide whether to work from 9-6 during the week; all day Saturday, and all summer, at the club; or work the hours of a typical school day, plus all of the extra-curricular activities that go with it.

PERFECT FAMILY PROJECT

Making Christmas Decorations

If you're looking for a fun way to spend time together on a family project for Christmas, how about making Christmas decorations together?

Here are three ideas to give your tree that special touch.

Free-form tree ornaments molded from clay and painted with bright colors are bound to appeal to everyone, from the little tots to Grandma and Grandpa. Hang them on the tree, put them in stockings, or tie one on a present!

To make the clay, combine the following ingredients in this order:

1/4 cup flour, 1/4 cup white glue, 1/4 cup liquid shampoo. Blend well in a bowl, and knead as you would dough.

You'll have a pliable mix about the size of a baseball. Roll, cut, or shape as you would modeling clay. Work on a sheet of aluminum foil and peel foil off when dough dries.

Paint the ornaments with tempera or acrylic paint (even before the dough dries completely, if you prefer).

Another "white glue" decoration is even easier to make. Simply make a form from construction paper cut into a strip. Clue it so it holds its shape. Then spread a sheet of aluminum foil onto a flat surface for temporary backing while the ornament is being made. Lay the shape on the foil and then pour a thin layer of white glue into it. Add a couple of drops of food coloring to the glue and swirl it gently with a toothpick. Let it dry. Then gently peel "ornament" (leaving the paper attached to the glue) off the foil (or peel foil off from ornament.) If a staple is attached to the construction paper shape at an appropriate spot, a thread with which the shape can be hung, can be attached.

Attractive, lasting ornaments can be made easily from scraps of material. Here's how to do it:

Fold a big piece of muslin in half. Trace around a cookie cutter for a pattern, leaving at least 1/2 inch between each pattern for the seam allowance.

Stitch along the tracing marks (before you do any cutting of the ornaments), except for a 1 1/2 inch opening (for stuffing later) on each one of the ornaments. Cut out the shapes, leaving about a 1/4 inch margin outside your stitching. Clip the curves so the ornaments don't pucker when stitching is completed.

Paint on a design. When the paint dries (use any paint recommended to use on fabric), sew a bright thread or length of flat braid at the top for hanging over a tree branch.

Oven-baked "people" are also fun to make, and please all members of the family. To make, you combine 4 cups of water, unsifted flour and 1 cup of salt.

Add 1 1/2 cups of water gradually.

Shape dough into a ball, then knead for 5 to 10 minutes until it reaches a smooth consistency. Bake at 325 degrees in a preheated oven. (Store leftover dough in a plastic bag in the refrigerator.)

This recipe should neither be doubled or halved. If more dough is needed, the recipe should be mixed again.)

Make figures about 6 inches tall, using a spoon or the side of a knife to sculpt them. Use an orange stick or knitting needles to make holes or indentations. To adhere separate pieces, like eyes, mustaches, hair, etc., shape and push in place gently with fingers. (When joining two pieces of dough, moisten the dough with water on your fingers.)

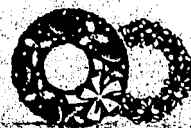

Before placing figures in the oven to bake, insert a wire loop on the top of each figure for hanging. Bake in 325 degree oven for 1 hour and 15 minutes, or until hard. Remove figures from oven, and set them aside to cool before brushing paint onto baked pieces. (Use opaque acrylic paints from art supply stores). When paint dries, spray all figures with glossy acrylic fixative and allow sealer to dry completely. Then tie on small pieces of fabric for scarves and other accessories.

Poet's Corner

"Christmas is for kids," he said,
"And greedy merchants bent on Fleeing poor folk
Of hard-earned cash."
And walking through the snow,
He seemed not to hear
The bells ring
Or the carols sung.
"It's too much work,"
She said.
And snapped at Shoppers
With their Christmas lists,
And vowed to plan
A trip next year
To escape the holiday.
And then they saw the child
Amongst the bustling crowd -
Just standing there,
Torn between the Christmas glitter
And the scrawny Santa
Collecting for the poor.
And they watched her empty her shabby little purse
Into his kettle, and smile.
They met at her side,
Embarrassed, and Fumbling.
And each put a week's pay
Into the kettle,
And more into the child's purse.
And he said, "Coffee?"
And she said, "Yes!"
And together, they walked away,
Through the snow,
Humming carols
As they walked, arm in arm.
And their tears
Reflected all the sparkling lights of Christmas.

Student Receives Ten Day Suspension

A fourteen-year-old juvenile received a 10-day suspension from Clarkston Junior High School for starting a fire in a locker on Wednesday, November 30.

Damage was confined to a single locker, but its contents, including coat, books, and gym clothes, were destroyed.

More extensive damage was avoided due to its quick discovery by a teacher who used a fire extinguisher to put out the flames.

The Perfect Gift

Mr. Thomas Bateman, President of Bateman Realty is a man who has everything - so his employees have been giving him the perfect Christmas gift for years. It's always the same - a donation, in his name, to the Oakland County Children's Village.

This year is no exception - on November 29, Harry Caldwell and Jack Ralph, representing all Bateman employees, arrived at the Children's Village, and presented a check to Superintendent Don Rolph.

$25 Bond for Every Baby Born January 16

Proud parents sometimes pass out cigars and candy to announce their new babies. But, what's appropriate when an auto maker's new "babies" arrive in the scene?

On January 16, Chrysler Corporation will celebrate the arrival of its new efficiency-sized Dodge Omni and Plymouth Horizon automobiles by passing out a car, rather than cigars - along with $25 government savings bonds to boot.

Every baby born on January 16, 1978, in the United States will automatically be eligible for a $25 government savings bond. And one set of proud parents will win their choice of either a new Dodge Omni or Plymouth Horizon.

To be awarded the $25 savings bond and have a chance at winning either an Omni or Horizon, requires just two things. First, (and this is the hard part) parents must have their babies born between 12:01 a.m. and 12:00 p.m. (local time) on January 16. Then, (and this is the easy part) parents must fill out an Official U.S. Savings Bond Claim Certificate that will be available at Chrysler-Plymouth and Dodge dealerships. The completed form, along with a certified copy of the baby's birth certificate, must be mailed to Chrysler no later than February 28, 1978.

The new Omni or Horizon will be awarded to a family picked from a random drawing of all verified entries for the $25 savings bond.

Clarkston Upsets Kettering, 59-53

Clarkston's basketball team opened its league season against tough Waterford Kettering, Friday, December 2. In a pre-game interview, Coach Gary Nustad commented that "Kettering is always well-coached and has a good shooting record." Kettering was the league champion last year.

Tim McCormick, towering at 6'7", had an outstanding performance scoring 17 points and capturing 13 rebounds. Kettering's star performer, Conrad Gardner, had 26 of the 53 points scored. Clarkston's other double-figure scorers were Kit Pappas with 12 and Matt Wenzel with 11. Kit had an exceptional 4th quarter with 5 for 6 at the free throw line. Steve Evans, a 6'3" senior at the center position, was below his average, but still in the double-figure category at 10. Other pointers for Clarkston were Skip Kuleszewski with 4, Greg Robertson and Craig Czinder, 2 and Tim Birtsas, 1 point.

Coach Nustad said after the game that "we held together under pressure. Kettering is tough to beat on their home floor. We didn't play particularly well, but got away with the victory."

In pre-league play last week, Clarkston met Davison for a victory. Clarkston's Steve Evans scored 21 of the 58 game total. Dennis Hammond had 16 of Davison's 52. Other outstanding individual efforts were displayed by Matt Wenzel, 11 points, and Tim Birtsas with 7 points. Craig Czinder and Greg Robertson each added 6 points, Kit Pappas had 3 and Tim McCormick and Skip Kuleszewski scored 2 apiece.

Anne Vaara Receives MVP Award

Clarkston's girl's basketball team met defeat in the first game of district playoffs Monday, November 28 against Lake Orion. It was a low-scoring game with Lake Orion - 48 and Clarkston - 35.

Coach Moddisitt commented after the game, "The kids didn't play well. The girls clutched. They didn't do the right things at the right time. It was not a good game for either team."

"Clarkston played a good defense. They'd get the ball and then lose it at the other end of the court," said Moddisitt.

Anne Varra was the sole double-figure scorer with 11. Kay Pearson had 8 points with Jane Tatu close behind adding 7 points. Other netters scoring were Pat Killian with 5 and Marcia Mason with 4.

At the fall sports banquet Anne Varra was voted Most Valuable Player and Pat Killian received the trophy for Most Improved Player.

Coach Moddisitt had six graduating seniors with 3 or 4 players returning from the bench. It will be a building season next year.

"We played much better ball on paper than our season record of 12-9 shows," analyzed Moddisitt. "Statistically, the only problem area throughout the season was in turnovers." Clarkston averaged 27 per game compared to other teams in the league who averaged 20-21 turnovers. Moddisitt's team outscored, outshot and outrebounded all other teams in the league.

Wrestlers Take First in Invitational

Coach Toby Carter was exuberant over Clarkston's win over Waterford Township on November 30. "It was the first time Clarkston has ever won a first in an invitational tournament," commented Carter. Lake Orion took second and Waterford finished third.

Senior Paul Grant at 112 lbs. was the outstanding wrestler at the tournament. He spent the shortest time on the mat, finishing in 3 minutes, 47 seconds. Other firsts were taken by senior Mike Nagel in the 126 class and Bill McClusky at 145.

On Tuesday, November 29, Clarkston had a mat match with Birmingham Seaholm and victored with 60 to Seaholm's 6.

"Seaholm had lots of returning lettermen and should have been tougher. We thought they had more experience, but with a new coach, you don't always know what to expect," Coach Carter surmised.

Carter's team is looking optimistically toward the December 10 tournament at Lake Orion. They are also anticipating the Oakland County Christmas Tournament with 32 schools competing on December 16, 17, and 18.

March of Dimes Benefit

by Kathy Greenfield

Marilyn Turner's new women's apparel shop sponsored a March of Dimes benefit fashion show to celebrate their grand opening.

This reporter anticipated with glee a chance to cover the potential media star-gazers' event.

And I wasn't disappointed.

I arrived at Marilyn Turner's of the Winchester Mall, Rochester, on November 26 with my husband on hand to help with the photography.

Jack Kelly was the first celebrity I spotted. He was dashing through the store, looking busy and together.

Then I saw Marilyn Turner who was working with the models in the back room and checking to make sure the media notables were on hand.

She looked calm and collected with her well-groomed blonde hair and petite, size four figure.

As I stood there, pad and pencil in hand, a teen-aged girl walked up and said, "Are Jack Kelly and Marilyn Turner married?" I assured her that they are.

My husband was chatting with a curly-haired man who wore a black leather vest and jacket and pointed-toed black cowboy boots.

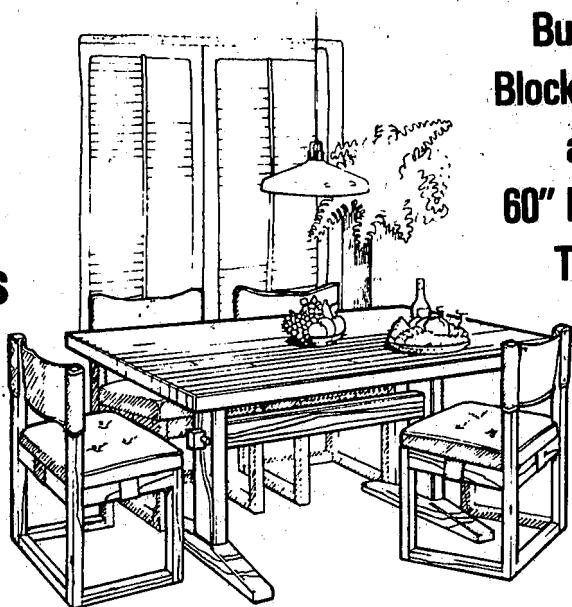

"Have you met Bob Talbert?" he asked.

"No," I said, and trying to maintain my cool, I shook Talbert's hand.

With his slight southern accent, the Detroit Free Press columnist told us he does two or three benefits a week and enjoys doing fashion shows - especially since he lost over 100 pounds.

Oakland Press columnist Jackie Kallen then appeared on the scene. Her shoulder length hair has reddish highlights which matched her fur jacket.

I couldn't help wondering if she saw the sign at the store's entrance which reads, "Fur products will not be sold in this store. We believe fur belongs on the back of its original owner."

Turner reappeared and started to walk to the Mall's large central area where the fashion show was staged.

She then rushed back to the shop and told the saleswoman to call WXYZ and remind them to send out their camera crew. (They never did appear).

Then, on to the stage. Kelly announced the event and Talbert and Turner moderated the fashion show. Turner's teen-aged son played the background recordings.

WXYZ jockey Dick Purtan auctioned the clothing and Kallen drew the tickets for the March of Dimes contest.

Lions' wives Karen Yarbrough, Georgan Sanders, Janeen Landry, Nancy O'Neil, Martha Barney, Stephanie Reed, Betty Jarvis and Ruth Ann Hudspeth modelled the fashions.

Jackie Gordon, widow of Lou Gordon of Channel 50, received the most applause from the crowd of over 650.

The auction and raffle tickets netted $2,500 for the March of Dimes.

Before the fashion show started, I talked with Turner's partner, Linda Strickroot. They met early this summer when they went out together to dinner with friends, she said.

They both wanted to open a women's store and "she accepted me as her partner," Strickroot said. "I'm very glad; we get along beautifully."

Strickroot was in management and customer relations at General Motors.

The store features moderately priced "fashionable clothing for sizes four to 14 from the lower end of the designer group," she said, and they pride themselves on personalized service.

They carry everything from sports to evening dresses including four brands of jeans. A section called Jack Kelly's Closet features shirts and sweaters for men.

Marilyn Turner is in the store afternoons between 2:00 and 4:00 and between 7:00 and 9:00 evenings unless she has other engagements.

Will the famous name pay off? Checking the store while the fashion show continued, I found it packed with customers - more than any other store in the Mall.

Single Parents to Meet

Single parents are invited to attend the general membership meeting of Parents Without Partners Orion-Oxford Chapter, Tuesday, December 6 at 8:00 p.m. Meetings are now being held at the Clear Lake Elementary School, west on Draher Rd., off M-24, Oxford.

Speaker for this meeting will be Dr. Art Jalkanen, who will be speaking on "Being a Single Parent During the Holidays."

Just One of Those Days

An attorney, graduate and ardent fan of the University of Michigan, attended the Michigan-Ohio State game with a group of fellow alumni and their wives. He was in a happy daze of excitement as they made their way from the stands following the game, and he was reliving the game by reminding his wife of the highpoints as he made his way towards the men's room. Unfortunately for him, he was so busy talking that he failed to note his wife's startled look as he reached his objective, and pushed the door open.

He developed a startled look of his own, as he suddenly realized he'd entered the wrong door, and was in the ladies' room with a crowd of strange women. In desperation, he pulled and pushed at the door he'd come in, but to no avail. It was a one-way door, and was not about to open from the inside.

Finally, red-faced and sheepish, he made his way through the surprised women, and finally emerged through the exit door - only to find that his wife had gathered all of their friends to greet him with a round of applause as he emerged.

Needless to say, our hero will read the "small print" on signs from now on!

Frosty the Snowman [Chris Rose] tells Mrs. Claus [Judy Rood] that Rudolph the Red-nosed Reindeer has been stolen as the elves Doubtfull [Rosemary Fedwa] and Fret [Pam Randall] listen in horror.

The Villain [Jerry Bennett] points an accusing finger as he complains that no one has ever given him a Christmas present.

Blitzen [Rox Needham] and elves Fret and Impy [June Rose] try to figure a way to get Rudolph back.

The real, live Jack-In-The Box in the play is Andy Needham.

Nancy Needham [left] and Matthew Nowak had front-row seats at last week's dress rehearsal of "Where's Rudolph?" It will be presented at Clarkston High School after the Christmas parade.

The stores are not to blame if 18-year-olds buy liquor for younger people. "It's the kids buying alcohol out in the parking lot," said Deputy Wark, "and that's our problem."

Police don't feel they're dealing with hard-core delinquents. But, as one policeman said, if he was a parent, he'd want to know if his child was involved.

"If we we can make a dent, it's got to be done," Deputy Dennis Davis said.

Three years ago, the legal drinking age was lowered to 18. Since that time, a lot of younger people are drinking because it's easier to convince someone close to their own age to buy.

"There's a lot of kids drinking - more 15 and 16-year-olds," Deputy Davis said. "It was hard (for them) to find people to buy when the age was 21."

Plain-clothes police have been watching the M-15, Dixie Highway area for about a year-and-a-half. They patrol the area periodically; there is no set time.

The biggest cause of automobile accidents with young people is drinking, police said. They're working to stop the minor violations, because, as one deputy said, the small crimes turn into major crimes. Young people "high on dope or drinking" can work up the courage to commit serious crimes.

Friday night was relatively quiet, police said. The last time they were assigned to the area, they issued about 15 tickets and "some of those kids were 12, 13 and 14."

"Me and Thee" a Very Funny Play

by Carol Balzarini

Just between you and me, "Me and Thee" is a very funny play about a middle-aged couple whose marriage has reached a critical stage.

Paul and Alice, concerned when their college-student son is arrested, ask their psychiatrist friend Grant

Reeves to talk to him. He concludes that Roger is normally abnormal but that his parents are abnormally normal. Their psychic gears are rusty and their pendulum of life just doesn't swing like it used to.

Determined to swing a little, Paul finds his life is complicated by Lela, a Greenwich Village refugee who is wild and sensuous when she's sober and only behaves herself when she's drunk.

His life is further complicated by a karate-chopping meter maid who arrests him on New Year's Eve and by his friend, Reeves, who's helping Alice swing a little.

The play is loaded with funny lines and situations the audience had no trouble relating to. Director Cheri Broome brought out the best in her players.

torn-Levi generation. Sally Inman, as the meter maid, is an actress for whom character parts are written. Miriam Parr was uninhibited without overdoing it while Dennis LaLone was entirely credible as the psychiatrist. The middle-aged couples in the audience had no difficulty identifying with Sue LaLone and Jim MacArthur.

Special mention must be made of the unique set designed by Denny Colwell and Russ Inman. Representing the living room and foyer of an apartment, it features an elevator which grinds noisily up and down and frequently gets stuck between floors.
