THE THORN BIRDS

by Colleen McCullough

Colleen McCullough's "The Thorn Birds" is good vacation reading, though it could hardly be described as "light."

The excellent characterization by Ms. McCullough brings each of the human subjects to life, as well as sheep, kangaroos, and rabbits.

Love and tragedy march side by side through the chapters of the book, but the author doesn't reach for such high points of her story, they just happen.

Beginning in 1915 in New Zealand, the novel and its subjects move on to Australia, to Rome, and finally, to London in the late sixties. In the years between, there is drought, flood, fire, dust, and hardship, and a love affair that begins between a child and a priest, and continues between a Cardinal and a woman.

A moving tale that is difficult to put down long enough to tend to other matters, "The Thorn Birds" is better read a little at a time than not at all.

Larry Teal's Trophy Room

by Larry Teal

MAD DOGS AND ENGLISHMEN...

...submits the poet, go out in the noonday sun. Your demented scribe is neither canine nor English (being of the Irish persuasion himself), neither does he have the good sense of either of the aforementioned species.

He has, of late, adopted the rather odd practice of hitting the deck at the ungodly hour of 3 in the A. of M., Eastern Standard Time. This recently acquired habit has been enough to cause your mild-mannered, left-handed reporter to question his own sanity (by the simple expedient of repeating the same questions that others have been asking about him for years). It has also inspired nearby neighbors to insist that he have the family jalopy Midas-sized or risk being tarred and feathered.

There has been a feeling here at the Trophy Room that a few extra bucks to fatten up the familial coffers might be a welcome acquisition, what with vacation just around the corner of July and college tuition a not-too-distant expense.

With that thought in mind, your lethargic scribe has joined the ranks of the early birds, reporting for the daily grind at 4:30 a.m. Ods Bodkins! Fools they are, who go out in the early morning mists. Unsound men, these, and full of folly. Having followed this routine for what seems like a year but in reality has only been a week, I am still unable to identify that peculiar madness that makes a man shun the comforts of his own warm bed simply to generate a few extra tax dollars for the beaurocracy to squander.

It is enough to report some of the singular insights gained by such nonsense. There are these points to ponder:

1. If you apply toothpaste to your Gillette Trak II, do not then brush your teeth or you will have bleeding gums like you will not believe.

2. By the same reasoning, it is O.K. to smear shaving cream on your toothbrush. However, the resulting shave will not last all day.

3. Do not waste time trying to adjust the fine tuning on the mirror. It is your face which is out of focus, not the glass.

4. Mistake the hair spray for underarm deodorant and you will spend the rest of the day being mistaken for a Piper Cub.

5. It is a sobering experience to retrieve your teeth from the glass in which they were soaking all night, re-insert them in your mouth, and then realize - too late - that you do not wear dentures.

6. There are very few other cars on the expressway at that time of the morning. Those that you see are headed home to bed. That single pair of headlights in your rear-view mirror probably has a police car attached to them. Slow down.

7. You will arrive at work a few minutes later than planned. Those lights did have a police car attached.

8. A County Mountie has absolutely no sense of humor at 4 o'clock in the morning.

Once at work, you take consolation in the fact that everyone else there looks as bad as you do, some even worse if that were possible. You also glean what small comfort there is from the realization that from here on, it's all downhill. The hardest part was dragging your protesting carcass out of bed.

If, during the middle of such a week you have a golf match scheduled, expect no pity whatsoever from the other members of your foursome. Any other time or place, these are good, charitable men; but there is something about a golf course that transforms these good men and true into cold-blooded, merciless assassins. Terminal illness couldn't induce them to spot you a stroke. You say you're pooped, Bunkie? You say you really ought to be allowed a mulligan where you sliced your tee-shot on number 5 into Macomb County? You believe in the tooth fairy, Bunkie?

THERE IS NO REDEEMING...

...feature about maintaining such a schedule, even for a week. There is no virtue to be gained, no building of character, no nothing. It can be summed up in 2 words - it's a pain (okay, so that's 3 words. I'm a writer, not a mathematician).

However, there is the paycheck to consider, and your greed-ridden scribe will probably feel inspired to do it all again, once it arrives.

How shall I spend thee? Let me count the ways...

editor's note

Now That Results are In, Let's Do Something With Them!

Boy, am I glad the Citizens' Advisory Committee has finally issued their final report. Now, maybe, someone will talk about the overcrowded conditions at some of our schools and what can be done about them.

For six months, all I would hear was we can't talk about that because there's a committee of some very important people studying that problem and we would be stepping on toes if we were to make a statement.

Five candidates vied for a school board vacancy recently. The Reminder sent each a questionnaire. One of the questions asked how they would handle the overcrowded conditions. Three of the five sidestepped the question by insisting they had no right to tackle the problem until the Advisory Committee presented it's recommendations.

Well, in today's Reminder, you have the recommendations in full plus a little background on how the committee went about it's business. Don't get me wrong, the committee did an outstanding job and school administrators better consider their recommendations carefully.

But, for the committee members' sake, I hope the recommendations are sound. Because, a lot of people in the Clarkston School District are counting on you.

Why is Library Advisory Board Silent?

To The Editor:

As I understand it, the purpose of the Library Advisory Board is to study the library and the librarian and to then extend such recommendations and advice as the situation demands.

During all this controversy about Mr. Lahiri, I have not heard one word from the Advisory Board. Why have they been silent while Mr. Lahiri has been allowed to petition the public in a most unethical way? Also, why has the Township Board not allowed the Library Advisory Board to attend the hearings regarding Mr. Lahiri?

I feel that the Township Board cannot possibly make a fair judgement in the Lahiri case without all of the available facts before them.

How about some legitimate fact on this issue from the people on the Advisory Board who, for years, have been directly involved with the library?

Sincerely,
Christie Shull

Sheriffs Being Unjustly Attacked

Dear Mr. Wilcox:

The controversy over the Roll Definition Bill 1517 has escalated now to the point where the Michigan State Police, local police, many local politicians, and some of the media have joined in an unfortunate attack on all of the Sheriffs in Michigan through the use of misstatements and untruths.

This Bill was based on the recommendations of two special committees appointed by the governor in order to end some of the confusion concerning the role of Sheriff's Departments in patrolling secondary roads.

This Bill will not decrease the size of the State Police or force them to cut any of their services. In fact, their new budget has been increased by $29 million dollars this year to a total of $130 million.

If the State Police are so concerned about patrolling the freeway system in the state, then why did they pull out of the metropolitan area in 1974 and tell all of the local departments that if an expressway system ran

Are your arts and crafts talents looking for a place to surface?

If so, then the First Annual Old World Market scheduled for July 14-15 is just for you.

Sponsored by the East Dearborn Association of the Dearborn Chamber of Commerce, the event will take place on Schaefer Road (it will be closed to traffic) north and south of Michigan Avenue.

The hours are from 9:30 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. both days...and the activities will include free entertainment, and all sorts of refreshments, and exciting exhibits.

If you want to be included in this project by renting a booth, call the Dearborn Chamber of Commerce today for details. Organizations as well as individuals are invited. Telephone number is 584-6100. Deadline for booth assignment is July 1.

through the local jurisdiction, then that local police department would be responsible for handling that portion of the expressway?

The Sheriffs of this state are not out to empire build, but are attempting to serve the citizens of their counties to the fullest extent. In 1976, the majority of fatal accidents occurred on the secondary roads in those areas patrolled by the Sheriff's Departments and local police. The 83 Sheriffs in Michigan are the only police officials in the entire state that are directly answerable to the citizens they serve. The Sheriffs must place their record of performance in law enforcement on the line and in front of the voters every four years. Who do the State Police answer to?

The politicians, local police chiefs and State Police officials, and those in the media who opposed the Sheriffs' Departments and claim the money that will be allocated to the 83 Sheriffs' Departments is a waste of money must not regard very highly the lives of those citizens that they allegedly serve. This money will be used to provide for increased patrols of all of the secondary roads within the counties in order to prevent accidents and serve the citizens.

Opponents of the Sheriffs' Departments claim that the bill will further fragment law enforcement. To the contrary - this Bill, for the first time, defines the roles of the State Police and the Sheriffs' Departments and gives the primary responsibility for patrol of the freeway system to the State Police and the primary duty for patrol of the secondary county roads to the Sheriffs' Departments. It will eliminate duplication of effort and the waste of taxpayers' money for that duplication. Actually, it will alleviate some of the horrendous law enforcement problems caused by fragmentation.

TALKING IT OUT

With

WHAT'S THE VALUE OF A FULL-SERVICE FUNERAL?

Since the beginning of time, man has publicly viewed and buried his dead with dignity and ceremony. Although rituals differ, the funeral service meets the needs of the survivors, the living, as well as providing for the deceased. What are some of these needs and how does a full-service funeral fulfill them?

Realization: First, it declares that death has occurred and it offers testimonial to a life well-lived. Denial of death is common. The very fact of a funeral and the viewing of the body (or casket) facilitates the realization of that death.

Emotional Expression: The full-service funeral is of deep psychological significance to the living. Sorrow-shared is sorrow-diminished. The full-service and the facing-of-facts is the first step toward emotional adjustment after bereavement.

For more information about the full-service funeral, stop by or call us.

THOUGHTS 'N THINGS

I cannot stress it enough - if parents would treat their children the way they themselves want to be treated, a number of parent-child relationships would be immensely improved.

Unfortunately, it is much easier to pass on frustrations to children than it is to establish a better relationship with them than has been established with others in the past.

Parenting is too often an act of imitating, rather than the initiation of new and improved methods of establishing close human relationships. We are all amateur parents when our first-born arrives, and we must learn to cope with the new situation quickly. It is, as a result, far easier to rely on emotional training than the thought process.

It is not difficult to trace the reasons for our attitudes. A youngest child in a large family, for instance, who has been the victim of the "pecking" order, will be apt to bully those who are younger. After all, that is the example which has been set.

We play "pass it on" in many of our relationships unless we learn to hold on to our emotions until we can convert negative energy to positive. The trick is to refrain from reacting to emotional stress. If we use the tension energy of emotional stress to seek solutions rather than satisfaction or relief, all of life can be a learning and growth experience.

Understanding that process by which we absorb external energy, and in turn express it, can help us learn to deal with it. Energy is not "good" or "bad." Its use can be positive or negative, however, and that positive or negative usually depends on our perception of it.

For instance, if a friend accidentally steps on our foot, they apologize, and we smile and say "it's quite alright," and "only an accident." Our foot may feel uncomfortable, but the "hurt" is limited to the discomfort in the foot.

If a stranger steps on our foot, however, we may become annoyed (unless they apologize very nicely,) for something else is "hurt" as well as the foot which was stepped on.

When someone deliberately steps on our foot, the least of our discomfort is in the foot. The better we know our "attacker" and the more we care about him or her,

"Go shopping, and no matter how you feel, smile at everyone you can. That includes other people who are shopping, salespeople, elevator operators, waitresses, children and senior citizens. Simply smile at everyone!!"

the more we are "hurt."

The amount of pressure or "damage" to the foot may be exactly the same in all three instances, but something else takes place which has a greater affect on us. Our own feelings about ourselves and others comes into play, and too often determines the eventual outcome of such experiences.

How we react to others, and how much affect they have on us depends on how we feel about ourselves. By the same token, if we are unhappy in our relationships with others, we must view it as a problem to be solved - no more and no less. It does not mean that we are at fault for all problem relationships; but rather that the unhappiness is ours, and so the solution to our unhappiness is also ours. We cannot hope to control the rest of the world except indirectly.

If you are in the habit of blaming others for making you unhappy, and crediting still others when you are happy, a simple test may give you some insight into the control you have over your own moods.

Go shopping, and no matter how you feel, smile at everyone you can. That includes other people who are shopping, salespeople, elevator operators, waitresses, children, and senior citizens. Simply smile at everyone! Keep a tally of the number of smiles you get in return.

Then do the same test, but glower at everyone, and again keep a tally of responses.

If you manage a sincere smile, and do well with your frown, you'll discover that people imitate the expression with which they are greeted, more often than not. That is one way that human energy is "passed on."

When people smile at us, we feel good, liked, and successful - which all adds up to security. When people frown at us, we feel like squirming, and often wonder "what we've done to put them in a bad mood." That puts us on the defensive and we feel insecure, and often react by frowning at someone else. Then, like a line of dominoes, frowns get passed on until someone converts that energy to a positive form such as a smile or a kiss. Then the dominoes go the other way until a frown topples them again. In that way, we are all victims of the bad moods of others, and others are victims of ours. In just the same way, we benefit from the good moods of others, just as they benefit by ours. That goes double in the home!

Common sense is the result of experience and observation, and my common sense tells me that all living things on the earth have the potential for reaching a perfect state of being. Life, other than man, achieves perfection if it is not damaged in some way by external conditions. Only man can damage himself internally as well.

We have found a way to protect the potential for perfection in the rose and the apple, as well as many other living things, but we are far from learning how to protect the potential for perfection of the newborn baby. We have made great strides in the physical sense, but we are still moving at a crawl in the area of the emotions.

The power of life energy, and our ability of renewal, can accomplish wonders for life which has been damaged, however. We see it in other forms of life, and in ourselves in the physical sense. It is called the healing process, and we all have the "power." It is the power to resist negative effects that threaten us, and the ability to absorb the energy which we need for renewal. The free will that allows us to choose is, however, a responsibility that we can assume or not, but we must ultimately accept that "truth" that we cannot "blame" someone else for causing defects in ourselves. We are the only ones who can reach for our "inner" selves.

That goes against romanticism to a certain extent. It is somehow a lot less romantic to say, "I let my heart be broken by myself," than to say, "He (or she) broke my heart." It is a lot closer to the truth, though.

It is especially important in marriage to keep sight of the fact that the spouse's actions and behavior are often simply normal behavior, and not personally intended to annoy, anger, or frustrate the marriage partner. Love does not "change" behavior which is the result of years of experiencing and conditioning; neither does hate.

In normal growth, from babyhood to adulthood, we have a number of responses we develop that we feel will keep us "secure." They arise out of personal experience, and they become second nature to us. These responses remain with us in spite of maturity and marriage, unless we find more satisfactory methods of behavior, or develop better problem-solving techniques.

A "Poor Man's Ticket to Pine Knob

Editors and reporters alike are ever on the lookout for new and different angles to the same old story. My editor and I are no different.

For the past several months, the Pine Knob Music Theatre has been covered from the usual outside viewpoints available to almost anyone ranging from interviewing a very accessible community relations person to talking to those standing in line waiting for either tickets or performances.

Although the music theatre people do expound at great length about the good things they do for some citizens of the community, the same considerations apparently are not extended to some newspapers in the community.

Theatre people never come right out and flatly refuse to advertise or send out press passes or to allow a behind-the-scenes feature. They are, however, very adept at giving the "runaround" guaranteed to discourage even the most persistent reporter.

Recently, it was brought to my attention that an interview I did with the Music Theatre's community relations persons brought tears to the eyes of some of my readers. Now there is hardly a writer alive who isn't gratified to learn that he has moved his readers to tears.

Imagine how I felt when I found they were not moved by my eloquence, my skill with words and phrases. These were, instead, tears of hysterical laughter because I had received a somewhat distorted view of the "idyllic" relationship existing between the Pine Knob Music Theatre and the nearby residents.

They offered me what I choose to call a "poor man's" ticket to Pine Knob. Armed with my favorite date, a blanket, and a six-pack, I sat on the lush green lawn about a mile from Pine Knob surrounded by towering pines which whispered in the breeze until shortly after eight.

Then it was as though the kid next door had turned his stereo on full blast. The difference was that the kid could be told to "knock it off", but the neighbors cannot do the same with the music theatre. That music will go on until the concert ends. It will then be followed by shouts, firecrackers, horns, and whatever sounds accompany retreating concert-goers.

The neighbors concede the degree of noise does, indeed, vary not only with atmospheric conditions but also with the featured attractions and the audiences they attract. They also admit that decibel meters are used to measure the noise but that it's been done during intermission and not always during the concerts themselves.

Carol Bazarini Commentary

Jobs for their kids and complimentary tickets which follow complaints do not, in any way, decrease the frustration that stems from the knowledge the noise can't be turned off like an offending stereo.

Instead, many of them simply endure feeling their complaints have fallen on deaf ears. They have learned to send their children to bed after the concerts have ended, to go away for the evening, to time their departures and arrivals carefully so as not to get caught in traffic, to dodge Kamikaze drivers if their timing is off, to get used to seeing drunks on the lawn and hearing windows rattle when conditions are right and decibels are high.

Neighborhood reaction ranges from just enduring to complaining to the authorities to putting their houses up for sale, an extreme measure to be sure, but the only solution for some. A thousand and one nights may have been great for Scheherazade, but a hundred and one nights are too much for some people who live near the Pine Knob Music Theatre.

Question of the Week

by Sharon Springborn

What is the one thing that you think of when you recall that we're going to be celebrating the Fourth of July pretty soon? Are you like most people who associate fireworks with the Fourth?

For this week's question, The Reminder called ten people living in Independence Township and asked them if they felt that fireworks - of the type sold in stores - should be legalized in the state of Michigan.

Five people called answered "no" to the question; two people gave an affirmative answer; two people were undecided; and one person gave a yes/no type of answer.

Most of those who feel that fireworks should remain illegal just feel that they are too dangerous and too many injuries occur as a result of using them. One registered technologist that was called didn't want the fireworks made legal because she has seen too many injuries in emergency rooms as a result of using some type of firecrackers.

Opposition to fireworks is only when they are sold in stores, and no one opposed the fireworks displays put on by civic or community groups. Ms. Faith Nelsen, who feels that fireworks are too dangerous to be made legal, only opposes them in the hands of kids, not trained professionals. She feels that civic or commercial groups who put on a fireworks display are all right.

Though most people feel that smaller firecrackers can do little or no harm, Ms. Alice Orr feels that all fireworks are unnecessary. She feels that "even if a cherry bomb is smaller, it can do just as much damage if you put it in someone's ear."

Mr. James Patton couldn't really give a "yes" or "no" answer to the legalizing of fireworks in Michigan. He could recall the days when he was young, and it was legal to buy firecrackers, and Mr. Patton was tempted to use them. He feels that they should be controlled as they were rather than run the risk of having some kids hurt with them.

Those who answered in the affirmative to legalizing fireworks always added certain conditions to their "yes" answers.

Both Mr. Walter Myers, and Mr. Thomas Palmiter are for the legalization of fireworks in certain instances. The men would both make legalization dependant on the amount of powder in the firecracker, and Mr. Myers would make adult supervision necessary.

Most of those who opposed legalizing fireworks mentioned cherry bombs and M-80's as those firecrackers that someone could get hurt using or watching being used.

Ms. Jennifer Radcliff feels that if a firework is more powerful than a sparkler, it shouldn't be in the hands of someone not trained to handle it. As she sees it, "I could go for the rest of my life and not see any fireworks (except at the Hudson's display) if it meant saving a young child's hand or eye."

Clarkston Professor Receives NCHPSS's Highest Award

Dr. Thomas K. Stone of Clarkston has received the highest award of the National Center of Human Potential Seminars and Services (NCHPSS). He was certified as a trainer of Advanced Seminar leaders and trainers on June 9, after successfully conducting a training session in Evanston, Illinois.

The award was conferred by Dr. James McHolland, NCHPSS Director, making Dr. Stone the only certified Advanced Human Potential trainer in Michigan and one of 75 in the United States. Thousands of people across the country have participated in HPS since 1967.

A Professor and Admissions Counselor at the Highland Lakes Campus of Oakland Community College in Union Lake, Dr. Stone began his Human Potential Seminar (HPS) activities by being trained as a leader of Basic Seminars in 1972. Later, he became a trainer of Basic leaders and a leader of Advanced Seminars. In these six years, about 300 persons have participated in seminars led by him at OCC and throughout the state of Michigan.

Human Potential Seminars are structured small group experiences founded on the assumption that something is "right" with the participants. They focus on helping people identify resources and potentialists rather than on weaknesses and self-criticism.

Human Potential Seminars assume that each person is unique and gifted. What makes that so is the immense individual potential as a human being. The challenge is to recognize one's talents and learn to use them effectively in achieving life goals and improving self-esteem. The goals of the Seminars are to increase self-affirmation, self-motivation, self-determination, and regard to others.

Dr. Stone received three degrees from Wayne State University; he worked there for 10 years before joining OCC in 1969. He is married, has two children, and resides on Robertson Court in Clarkston.

Disney World or Europe? Both Summer Vacation Hotspots

by Sharon Stuffleben

The traditional vacation time is upon us, when people forget their routines, schedules, and commitments and go with the wind for places either unknown, or a familiar spot which is special to them.

Perhaps you know exactly where you will go this year, but if you are considering several spots, the following information from local travel agencies may be both interesting and helpful.

Although Christmas, Easter, and the early spring are the most popular times for families to go to Disney World in Florida, this particular vacation spot is still popular in the summer for families.

A tour plan for Disney World would probably include Cypress and Busch Gardens, and the cost, including air far, is not prohibitive, say the travel agents. Families often choose super saver flights. These air fare accommodations have to be booked 30 days in advance, but the savings involved make prior planning worthwhile.

Such a budget flight would cost approximately $452.00 for a mother, father, and two children. While at Disney World, if motel accommodations are on their property, the cost would be around $234.00 for the lodging, entrance fees to Disney World and Magic Kingdom. Also included would be 18 attraction tickets, use of the monorail and a dinner.

They say that other family attractions are Hawaii, California, and in May, Washington D.C.'s cherry trees beckon.

Let's say this is the year to go on vacation without children, or perhaps there are no children involved or a single individual is going on vacation. Where does one go? Again, according to travel agencies, there are several popular areas such as a Mediterranean cruise, a trip to the North Fjords in Scandinavia, or an Alaskan vacation, but the most popular are trips to Europe.

It is not unusual to spend $80.00 a day just for lodging in major cities in Europe such as London, Paris, or Munich. We were told of one modest tourist hotel in Europe which cost $25.00 a day four years ago. Today it costs $54.00 a day.

So, who goes to Europe? As stated, mainly couples go to Europe and they can be broken into three categories according to ages.

First, there is the 50 and up age bracket. These couples usually go on caravan tours and this age group is divided into the "once in a lifetime" traveler and the "repeat" traveler. The couple who is returning to Europe tends to be more casual about the trip.

The second group is the 30 to 50 age group. These couples usually go on a show tour of perhaps London and Paris with hotel and theater tickets included. Typically, this age group rents a car and sees sights on their own.

The last group is the 18 to 30 age group. These couples most often take a charter flight over and then roam around Europe on a shoestring budget. There are not as many people taking this particular type of trip presently, as foreign governments frown on the custom. They want some money spent by tourists while they are abroad.

It appears the choice is unlimited. People can go anywhere time and money allows.

It's true. In continued tests using multiple cars, from compact to full size, at varying speeds over Interstate highways, the Gas Pincher squeezed from 14.5 up to 31.7 more miles out of a tank of gas than our non-radial tires. How'd we do it? By building in economy from the ground up.

We started with the classic radial design and made it lighter. We used a polyester cord body and made it smooth riding. We put in two steel belts and made it strong. And we added an all-new computer-designed tread to make it handle in the wet.

Advisory Committee Recommends New Junior High

The four-page final report of the Citizens Advisory Committee presented to the Clarkston School Board at a special meeting held Thursday, June 22 was accompanied by selected information related to the committee's deliberations, including the most important data assembled by the three subcommittees.

The majority selection of Option B, that of building a new junior high school comparable to Sashabaw and using the present Clarkston Junior High as an elementary building, is the most expensive option involving some $9 million in construction costs and about five mills for both bonding and operation. It was, however, felt to be the most practical in the long run.

The final report is as follows.

In December of 1977, the Clarkston Community Schools Board of Education presented the following charge to the Citizens' Advisory Committee: "This past September, the administration recommended to the Board that a Citizens' Advisory Committee be established to look at the existing facilities and, after study, present recommendations on what course of action the district should pursue now and for the future...The three charges from the Board, (1) facility utilization, (2) enrollment projections and (3) fiscal considerations were studied by the administration prior to the June 1977 vote. Your recommendations should reflect an independent analysis of the data and the feelings of the school community..."

The committee came into this study with many different opinions. Many members had voted either for or against the prior millage proposals. Membership ranged greatly in occupation including C.P.A.s, municipal administrators, attorneys, teachers, school administrators, builders, barbers, housewives, businessmen and senior citizens. Many have changed their thinking regarding the needs of the school system in the course of the study.

The committee began by touring the existing facilities and talking to teachers and administrators when classes were in session and during off hours. Following the tour, three separate subcommittees were established with responsibilities in the areas of enrollment, facilities and finance.

Examples of crowding at the elementary level were found. Crowding at the junior high level is due both to the inadequacy of Clarkston Junior High and to the pressure of having elementary students from overcrowded Andersonville School located there. These conditions are influenced in part by the increased special education programs and support services mandated by the state, a demand of which the average citizen is probably not aware. In addition it appears that continued expansion of these mandated programs is likely in the future although general enrollment is projected to rise only 0.3 percent per year for each of the next five years (see attached sections C and D). All of the above puts pressure on facilities used in the past for basic education.

The committee deliberated upon the individual reports of the enrollment, facilities, and finance subcommittees (see attachments) and, in response to these existing needs, the committee considered the following options.

OPTION A

ELEMENTARY - Retain all present facilities and add required square footage to each individual building.

JUNIOR HIGH - Retain all present facilities and add required square footage to each individual building.

HIGH SCHOOL - Enlarge media center-library and renovate other existing space to meet required needs.

OPTION B

ELEMENTARY - Retain all present facilities, use present Clarkston Junior High as an elementary school (gain some 30 rooms).

JUNIOR HIGH - Construct a new junior high comparable to Sashabaw Junior High.

HIGH SCHOOL - Enlarge media center-library and renovate other existing space to meet required needs.

OPTION C

ELEMENTARY - Construct a new elementary school (some 30 classrooms).

JUNIOR HIGH - Retain all present facilities and add required square footage to each individual building.

HIGH SCHOOL - Enlarge media center-library and renovate other existing space to meet required needs.

OPTION D

ELEMENTARY - Retain all present facilities, and some 1-10 rooms.

JUNIOR HIGH - Consider grades 6/7 at Clarkston Junior High (with required renovations) and grades 8/9 at Sashabaw Junior High.

HIGH SCHOOL - Enlarge media center-library and renovate other existing space to meet required needs.

OPTION E

ELEMENTARY - Renting or buying an existing facility.

JUNIOR HIGH - Retain all present facilities and add required square footage to each individual building.

HIGH SCHOOL - Enlarge media center-library and renovate other existing space to meet required needs.

OPTION F

Year round school.

OPTION G

Do nothing at all.

Option B received majority support of the committee present while D received half that of B. Options A, C, E, F, and G received little or no support of the committee present.

Option B accomplishes the following: it adds 127,000 square feet (approximately 30 classrooms) to the school system. Under this option, the current Clarkston Junior High School would be used as an elementary school. It would provide a new junior high school equalizing the facilities available for junior high education throughout the system. The classrooms, media center or library, gym, shops, etc. in Clarkston Junior High are below the standards for a good junior high facility today. By housing grade school students in the existing junior high building, we will greatly relieve the burden on our elementary schools and squeeze the last drop of utility out of Clarkston Junior High.

"By housing grade school students in the existing junior high building, we will greatly relieve the burden on our elementary schools and squeeze the last drop of utility out of Clarkston Junior High"

Although it appears to be the most expensive of the alternatives, Option B solves the greatest number of long range facility problems and should be the least expensive in the long run. Many members felt the other proposals would only buy a short amount of time until Clarkston Junior High would have to be replaced.

The Citizens' Advisory Committee presents to the Board all of these options with B as their recommendation. Finances are estimates only and should be studied by professionals before any proposals are put forth by the School Board. The committee calls to the Board's attention that the information considered under the other options addresses also expansion of facilities and programs. Prior to making any final decisions, it is hoped the Board will review all information presented.

This report has only provided for the very basic of education; there are no frills in any of the proposals. We call to the Board's attention that facilities for future program and/or curriculum changes have been included in this final recommendation. It is keeping with the reputation of the Clarkston Community Schools for good, basic academic education and sound management of our resources and, most of all, our hope for the education of our children that this report is submitted to the School Board.

Thirty-two Dedicated People Made Report

by Carol Balzarini

Thirty-two dedicated people spent untold numbers of hours during the past six months studying the Clarkston Schools literally from the ground up. They are, by now, probably the most well-informed people in the school district as to the specifics of enrollment, facilities and finances because those were the subcommittees in which they participated.

It seemed appropriate at this time to sample their thoughts on those many months and many more hours now that their final report has been presented to the school board.

Larry Beamer, Pontiac Elementary School principal, said, "I feel very good about the work of the committee, personally and collectively. I was impressed with the interest and the work that went into it; it was thoughtful and well-founded. It's the first of it's kind and I hope all will see the value of the committee and have more of them in the future."

Gloria Bellairs, Springfield housewife and farmer, said, "I think it was something that will really help the school board have a real feeling of the community. They tend to be somewhat isolated...they will be closer to the public. It took time I don't have a lot of but I was interested particularly in the vocational school...I wanted to know more."

Mary Jane Chaustowich, Springfield housewife and newly-elected member of the school board, said, "The citizens committee has done a difficult job and done it well; I hope it's the first of many."

Overall, Connie Daros was pleased with the work of the committee, but, she added, "I'd hate to think it was for nothing. I never realized how much time it would take...it was not an easy job. It really opened my eyes about the facilities of the school system when I served on that sub-committee."

Tom Bullen's initial interest in the committee was that of a lifelong resident of Clarkston with children in the school system and bringing to it his perspective from a financial background. "My concern is the concern expressed by the California residents. We have to be cost-conscious, as conservative with the community's money as we are with our own. I also feel the talent of the teachers is as important as the four walls around them."

Dave Larkin, a barber, said, "It was a learning experience for me, how the schools are financed and the data the board could come up with when committee members requested it. We had to think of what was good for the whole district and not our own areas."

Richard Degener, chairman of the enrollment subcommittee, emphasized one point above all others, "We represent the majority opinion whether or not it was unanimous. The thing that meant the most to me

"There was a definite pulling together at the end and an increased appreciation even if not everyone agreed completely". Richard Degener was to see a rather diverse group of people come together and reach a consensus, as our enrollment subcommittee did. There was a definite pulling together at the end and an increased appreciation even if not everyone agreed completely."

Leonard Cotter, Springfield truck driver, and Karen Ohrmberger, Clarkston housewife, expressed similar opinions. Each became involved in the committee because of a concern for children in general and their education in particular. Cotter's interest centered around school financing while Ohrmberger said she was concerned with the future of Clarkston as a whole.

Lowell Chuba, an engineer who served on the facilities subcommittee, is not entirely convinced the committee was a true cross-section of the community, too many educators. The mechanics of construction are his job, but he feels that facilities are secondary to the quality of teaching. "We do need space, but...is this the way to get it economically?" he asked.

Credit must be given to Bill Neff who served as the liaison between the administration and the committee. Neff not only "chaperoned" the bus trips in near blizzard conditions to each of the schools, but also attended at least thirty-four scheduled meetings, both general and subcommittee, during those six months. He was responsible for gathering the reams of data requested by committee members, he answered whatever questions were asked, and provided whatever information was needed.

Other committee members included Jim Brennan, a finance officer for Oakland County who served as chairman of the finance subcommittee; Sue Cattin, teacher at Andersonville Elementary; Karen Eckert, housewife and former teacher; Julia Johnson, village resident and registered nurse; John Klockow, teacher in Warren Woods; John Moreau, school administrator in Pontiac; Doug Pierson, Clarkston High School teacher and newly-appointed assistant principal at Clarkston Junior High; Jim Randall, new president of the

Clarkston Jaycees; Duane Richardson, active in the Clarkston Athletic Boosters; Donna Rudolph, Janet Salter, Mary Scharfenkamp, Joyce Valentine, all homemakers;

Robert Vandermark, general chairman of the committee and tax assessor; Robert Van Voorhies, engineer with GMC; Barbara Vedder, chairman of the facilities committee and special education consultant for the Wayne County Intermediate School District; James Vollbach, builder/contractor; Stanley White, retired village resident; Ann Wood, new Clarkston resident and mother of four children; Henry Woolfenden, village resident and lawyer; and Carol Balzarini, secretary of the general committee and reporter for the Reminder.

Findings to be Presented to Public at Meetings

The Clarkston School Board met in special session Thursday, June 22, to accept the final report of the Citizens Advisory Committee.

Following a motion to accept the report "with deep gratitude," a motion was made by Eric Reickel to hold a public hearing to acquaint the people with the findings of the report.

Committee member Ann Wood asked, "Is the crowd here tonight typical of Clarkston public hearings? If so, it doesn't seem to be a very good method of educating the public."

The audience was made up mainly of advisory committee members, teachers and administrators in addition to the board members.

Dick Schmaltz, who described himself as an interested citizen, suggested that more meetings on a local level might be "less intimidating" than one large public hearing.

The motion was amended to indicate a plurality of public hearings.

The final report of the Citizens Advisory Committee will be the main item on the agenda of the July 10 meeting of the Clarkston School Board with an attempt made by Superintendent Milford Mason to keep all other items to a minimum.

Township Board Meeting

Parview, Pine Knob Residents Complain About Roads

"You shouldn't be influenced by what the county wants, but what the people want. We want action!"..... Scott Robeson

The dust had barely settled on North Holcomb and Algonquin when more annoyed citizens turned out for the June 20 meeting of the Independence Township Board to complain about Parview Drive and Pine Knob Road.

Parview residents and those of neighboring streets, according to spokesman Scott Robeson, want Parview to become a dead-end road instead of the high-speed shortcut to Andersonville Road it seems to be now.

Robeson has gone to the Oakland County Road Commission with petitions seeking the dead-end road. The road commission is awaiting the results of a traffic survey as yet incomplete. A spokesman for the commission also told Robeson he would need the approval of not only the Independence Township Board but also of the police and fire chiefs.

Robeson, in his arguments for the dead-end street, cited last year's survey which clocked an average speed of 48 mph. He claims violations have increased this year with a ticket recently issued for a speed of 94 mph. He said residents of the area have just had enough and asked the township's approval of their proposal.

Supervisor Floyd Tower responded, "We have to wait for Oakland County to contact us...we're waiting for an opinion from the people who do the studies."

His remarks drew angry response from the audience. "These are the people who voted for you," Robeson shouted. "You shouldn't be influenced by what the county wants, but what the people want. We want action!" Robeson's supporters applauded.

Roger Carlson, president of the Waterford Hill subdivision and father of small children stated it was "poor" if the township board could not take a stand to help "when we get the runaround from all other agencies...We'd like to see the board stand up and take a position."

Acting Police Chief Charles Kimbel said, "I can see they have great problems there, ours is lack of personnel. Most speeders we clocked were local residents." He explained Independence Township had only one radar unit for 36 square miles.

Another resident disagreed with Kimbel's estimate that creating a dead-end would add 2-3 minutes to the response time of emergency vehicles. "Are those minutes worth a child's life?" he asked.

Bob Wark, sheriff's deputy and Parview residents, sat on the street one Wednesday night from 6:30-9 p.m. with a radar unit. Of the 19 tickets issued, 17 were for through traffic; most were in excess of 40 mph. He added that enforcement was not possible without a radar unit but that it was not the responsibility of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department to furnish one.

Apparently, during the time the deputies shared office space with Independence Township Police Services, one such unit had been shared. Part of the ensuing hassle between the two departments had to do with the care and treatment of that unit, referred to as a "damage problem" by Tower.

Fire Chief Frank Ronk, in a letter dated October of 1977, cited increased response time and possible increased insurance costs as two reasons for opposing the dead-end. He has not changed his opinion since then, but will not "beat the pavement" to oppose Robeson and the rest.

Tower reiterated his desire to go through "normal channels" saying, "We're not passing the buck."

"I can't buy that," Robeson said. "I need some help...I'm bumping my head against the wall."

His apparent frustration drew angry support from a Pine Knob Road resident who told Tower, "We all have problems and you don't sound like you give a damn...you've talked for 45 minutes and said nothing."

Trustee Fred Ritter ended the disagreement with a motion to support the petition seeking blockade of Parview Drive, Clerk Chris Rose supported.

Before supporting the motion, Treasurer Betty Hallman said she objected to the tactics of the petitioners although she appreciated their problems. She added, "I hope this decision will not be detrimental in the long run."

Tower did not support the motion for reasons he did not care to go into, he said. Trustee Jerry Powell was absent.

The second group presenting a petition was from the Bailey Lake School area of Pine Knob Road. They were asking for posted permanent speed limit signs for at least a half hour before and after school hours as well as during.

Spokeswoman Linda Sommers stated speeds up to 55 mph endangered not only school children but ones who lived in the area also.

Her concern stems not from what might happen, but from what has happened. Her seven-year-old daughter was hit by a car in front of her old school in Oak Park two years ago.

Her leg was shattered, she spent six weeks in the hospital, another six in a body cast and was disabled for nearly four months altogether. The family will consult a plastic surgeon this week to see about removing the scars that remain.

Mrs. Sommers was supported by Jody Nelson whose own son was struck and killed on his way to school a number of years ago, although not on Pine Knob Road.

Although motivated by personal experience, Mrs. Sommers expressed concern for all children. She considers the traffic problem at Bailey Lake a "permanent situation" due to the summer activities of the township recreation department there from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. for eight weeks. Aside from the "terrible" road conditions, vision is often obscured by the dust, she said.

Her plea for speed control brought this comment from Tower: "I can't understand the county's not making money available for road improvement if they are stressing safety."

Larry Sommers asked, "Aren't school zones usually posted?" to which Tower responded that it seemed to depend on the condition of the road, gravel, blacktop, etc.

John Nelson reiterated the group's position that the section of Pine Knob Road be posted at all times. He also asked about the possibility of re-routing gravel trucks from Stickney Road.

"The trucks are not only speeding," he said, "They're racing. They've even ended up in the school yard."

A motion by Rose that the board make a recommendation to the Oakland County Road Commission that a permanent speed limit be posted in that area of Pine Knob Road received unanimous support.

There's just one thing they forgot - a New CB for instant communication. It's not only fun but for protection for a Happy 4th of July vacation.

Browning's new mini-mobile is less than 2" high x 5 1/2" wide - but don't let its small size fool you - it's BIG in performance with features such as a series gate automatic noise limiter (ANL) and high level class B modulation! Best of all, this remarkably engineered little package has been designed with a price tag to match its elf-like size.

I've Got to Cut it Out

by Penny Fortune

THOUGHT FOR FOOD:

When planning mashed potatoes, benefit from the nutrients from the boiled water by combining it with instant dry milk for use in mashing.

It is the season for coolers. Save water in quart or half gallon clean milk cartons in the freezer. The chunk ice is ideal for the maxi-picnic coolers.

Shopper's hint: The heavier the citrus fruit - the juicier it will be.

When making caramel or jelly apples, put a stick in both ends, so tots can use two hands for easier eating.

Make your own pancake topping for a change. Heat some fruit jam in warm butter and water, stirring until smooth. Serve warm, too.

Don't throw away leftover coffee. Use it for flavoring for gingerbread or spicecake.

PENNY'S THOUGHT FOR TODAY:

"Beware of little expenses. A small leak will sink a great ship."

It wasn't spaghetti and meatballs, but Homer Biondi enjoyed the food just the same.

Despina Christides made loukoumathes [honey puffs] that melt in your mouth.

St. George's Greek Orthodox Church sponsors a Greek Festival every June. The festival held just south of Pontiac attracts close to 15,000 people. Among the workers and people who attended this year were many residents of the Clarkston area.

Tom Nickols worked behind the scenes making those luscious Greek salads, complete with feta cheese, beets and olives.

WWI Veterans Win State Awards

Clinton Valley Barracks #2803 and Auxiliary of World War I Veterans met Saturday, June 10 at the Springfield Township Hall in Davisburg for their regular monthly meeting. All enjoyed a pot luck dinner followed by a discussion period for the Veterans and a regular Auxiliary meeting for the ladies presided over by the President, Minnie Schneller.

Cards were signed by all the members to be sent to our sick buddies, Vern Ridgeway and Tom Ibbeson who are home from the hospital now. June 17th birthday of our president, Minnie Schneller, was recognized by all singing "Happy Birthday." A letter was read from Mr. and Mrs. A.B. White, former members, who are now settled in their apartment in Woodbridge, Virginia.

Jeanette Atkins read an article on Americanism, "The Flag Speaking." And Alice Rioux read, "What Memorial Day Means to the Veteran" by Floyd Tower, Supervisor of Independence Township.

Two decorated cars of Veterans took part in the Memorial Day Parade in Holly, and placed a floral piece at the grave of deceased War veterans. Dr. Hazen Atkins took part in the Clarkston Memorial Day parade along with three other W.W. I Veterans. Four members, Lucile Gries, Eva Lucas, Alice Rioux, and Iva Leach attended the annual Department Convention at the Pantlind Hotel in Grand Rapids, June 6, 7 and 8th. Three awards for $3.00 each were received for entries of Scrapbook, Publicity Book and number of inches of publicity. Also, a citation for 100% membership for 1977-78 was received.

The U.S. Veteran Administration tells us that as of September 1977, there were 770,000 living veterans of World War I. A total of 378 men and 107 ladies of the state membership were taken by death this last year. It was voted to send $25.00 to the Veterans' Facility at Grand Rapids to help with their Carnival in July. Our next meeting will be a picnic at the home of Alice Rioux of Davisburg Rd., Davisburg with pot luck dinner at noon. Crazy Bingo will be the entertainment, so everyone bring your white elephants wrapped for prizes. All WWI veterans, spouses and family are invited to attend.

is counting on you.

Seven Year Old Dies in Bike Auto Accident

An accident involving a bicycle and an automobile claimed the life of a 7-year-old Independence Township youth Wednesday afternoon, June 21.

Frederick Melvin Roe of 8561 Andersonville Road was struck and killed while bicycling, by a car driven by

Planning Groups Asks Highway Commission to Reverse M-275 Decision

The Michigan State Highway Commission has "put a cloud" over the long-standing cooperation among state, county and local officials, declared Franklin D. Meyers, Executive Director of the Inter-County Highway Commission.

Meyers said the seven-county highway planning group has called for the State Highway Commission to reverse its decision cancelling the M-275 freeway project in western Oakland County.

"The real implication to all counties and to other communities is that a long-standing process of cooperative planning and actions was shortcircuited by the unilateral decision of the State Highway Commission. Any major highway that's been built in the last 25 to 30 years has been after a long process of planning and cooperation, including actual co-operative actions taken by state, county and local communities. Over that period of years, it has been the only way major highways could be built, or not built once placed in the planning process," said Meyers.

"This is the first time a major facility has gone this far, actions and plans made, decisions made - following this long-established procedure; when all of a sudden one part of the cooperative process, the State Highway Commission, has cancelled the project. And they did it without any data on which to base their decision, without any advice to county or local units of government who had been cooperating with them, and without any notice."

"The State Highway Commissioners completely ignored all the planning, commitments, cooperative efforts that had preceded on the M-275 project - and which is going on for other projects."

Stephen Paul Ragatz, 17, of 11321 Andersonville Road. According to deputies, Ragatz said he was travelling north about 40 mph. on Andersonville Road when a bicyclist suddenly appeared from a weed-covered field to his right.

A second bicyclist then appeared riding behind the first, and proceeded across the road without stopping. Ragatz said he swerved but could not avoid the collision.

Frederick was pronounced dead on arrival at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital shortly after.

Area Residents Testing Rural Drinking Water

Some randomly selected residents of this area are participating in a national study of rural drinking water for the Environmental Protection Agency.

The study currently underway involves a 45-minute interview with rural residents all over the U.S. on the characteristics of their household water as well as an analysis of water samples taken from their taps and wells.

This project, the first thorough national assessment of rural water system, was required of the EPA by Congress in the Safe Drinking Act of 1974 because complete information on rural water conditions was not available.

WHAT'S HAPPENING

Since I haven't written in a few weeks, this column will be primarily about what already happened in June. What a busy, exciting month.

On June 3 and 4, the Pontiac Airshow and Balloon Rallye took place at Pontiac-Oakland Airport. I was able to get a glimpse of the activities at a mini-airshow for the press on June 2.

The Acrojets, "The world's smallest jets" performed precision, tight formation aerobatics at speeds between 300 and 600 mph. There was also a parachute demonstration and wing rider (like in the barnstorming days of early aviation).

For someone who has never been in an airplane, the show was very thrilling. No, I did not do an "On-The-Job" as a wing rider.

To add to the flying feats, local entertainer Bob Posch was the M.C. for the air show. Bob is a great singer and comedian as well as a super person. You can catch his act Wednesday through Saturday at the Old Mill on Dixie Highway in Waterford.

Speaking of comedians, last Tuesday and Wednesday at Pine Knob, Steve Martin performed. Martin has got to be the zaniest funny man I've ever seen. His on-stage antics kept the audience laughing for over an hour.

Who else can wear a plastic nose and glasses with an arrow through his head and get away with it? His humor is refreshing and childlike without the profanities many comedians feel they need to use.

After seeing the Foreigner concert the week before and coming away disappointed; Martin renewed my excitement in Pine Knob.

To get your Pine Knob tickets easily and without hassle, go to Deer Lake Travel on Dixie in Clarkston. Cathy Klender and Laura Negip, two lovely, friendly ladies, will help you purchase Pine Knob seats as well as assist you with any travel plans. Deer Lake Travel is a fairly new business which is becoming quite successful with its reputation for prompt efficient service.

This weekend, the Wildwood Inn on Bird Road in Groveland Township is planning a big 4th of July weekend celebration. To kick off the proceedings, Salem Witchcraft will perform June 29. This may be one of the last times you can see this fast-rising group play in the area. Holy Smoke will take over for June 30, July 1st and 2nd. Call the Wildwood Inn for reservations.

I would sincerely like to thank all of you who attended Brandon STAGE's recent production of Li'l Abner. Because of you, it was a great success. After witnessing the crowds at the last weekend of "Abner," I truly understand the meaning of community theatre.

Members of the community, friends and relatives being well-entertained by other community people is a joyous sharing I will remember for a long time.

Whys and Wherefores

Choice Tidbits from Our News Files

Those wondering how Carolyn Place, a candidate for Independence Township Supervisor, would be conducting a meeting, could have seen her in action first hand at last week's school board meeting. Ms. Place was called upon to conduct that meeting when the president and vice-president were not in attendance. Ms. Place is secretary of the Clarkston Board of Education.

Jaws II, that supposed tremendously scary sequel to Jaws, is not all it's made out to be. It has only shades of a plot, no veteran actors or actresses with the exception of Roy Scheider, and the shark is not the least bit realistic. Despite these problems, it's a good horror flick that will keep your kids screaming.

Bob Posch, one of the funniest comedians in the Detroit area (he's currently at the Old Mill) was to meet a Reminder staffer in the Clarkston Village parking lot to pick-up some printing he had ordered. Somehow their signals got crossed, and Posch didn't show. So that night, the bold Reminder staffer, her husband and another couple marched into the Old Mill with several boxes of printing in hand. At the appropriate time (right in the middle of one of his funniest numbers), the four jumped onto the stage and presented Posch with his printing.

One of the area's magic political names (Ritter) surfaced again in the election for Oakland Community College trustees. Political newcomer, Sandra Ritter far outdistanced incumbents Dennis Rogers and Lila Johnson to win a seat on the OCC board. Mrs. Ritter's husband is on the Waterford Township Board.

Davisburg's somewhat eccentric attorney Leonard Horwath has asked producers of the zany America Tonight television show to allow him to appear on the show as a guest. No word back yet from the producers.

Did you wonder how Bob Posch reacted when he received his printing while on stage in the middle of his act? Well, Posch, a master at "on the spot" comedy, promptly ripped open a box of 500 envelopes and passed it out amongst three ladies at a table nearby. Nothing ruffles that guy!

Tony Bennett Returns to Meadow Brook

Tony Bennett returns to Meadow Brook Music Festival for the third time as the star of the Friday Jazz Series on June 30. His distinctive style, soft tenor voice and repertoire of songs makes him a Festival favorite.

Family fare for the holiday weekend is the dynamic Up With People show on Sunday, July 2. This talented group of young people, age 17 to 23, abound with enthusiasm and excitement as they musically present a message "about people - their dreams, their concerns, their feelings." Following the Up With People performance, a spectacular fireworks display is scheduled.

All concerts begin at 8:30 p.m., except for Sunday evenings when the show starts at 7:30 p.m. Tickets may be purchased at the Festival Box Office or at any Hudson's, Sears, Montgomery Wards or Grinnell's ticket services. For additional information, call 377-2010.

Firefighters to Sponsor Clarkston 4th of July Parade

Plans are underway for the annual Fourth of July parade in Clarkston, sponsored by the Independence Township Firefighters. This year's parade has a miscellaneous theme.

Lineup will be at 9:15 a.m. at Clarkston Junior High School with the parade scheduled to begin at 10.

Clarkston's three school bands and some ten to twelve entries already committed will follow Church Street to Main Street and turn north with the parade terminating at Clarkston and Miller Roads.

There is still time to enter. Individuals or groups wanting to do so may contact the firefighters.

"The Amorous Flea" Opens at Hilberry July 5

The Hilberry Theatre will have three openings in one day when Wayne State University's Summer Theatre Festival opens on July 5.

"The Amorous Flea," the Hilberry Repertory Company's revival of its 1977-78 musical success, will open on the Hilberry stage at 8:30, following performances at the American College Theatre Festival in Washington, D.C. in April. The Jerry Devine-Bruce Montgomery version of Moliere's "The School for Wives" again will feature Erick Devine, Cynthia Dozier and Bruce Matley and will be directed by Robert T. Hazzard.

"Bohikee Creek" by Robert Unger, a series of four vignettes about life in a South Carolina swampland, will debut at the same hour in the Studio Theatre downstairs. It will be performed by the Festival's Black Theatre Company under the direction of Martin Molson.

"Step on a Crack," a children's play by Suzan Zeder, opens the same day at 10:30 a.m. on the upstairs stage. It will be presented by a cast of Hilberry Company actors. Gary M. Witt will direct.

The Festival will include four other productions. On the upstairs stage, Agatha Christie's "Ten Little Indians," directed by Robert Emmett McGill, will open July 19 at 8:30, and Alan Ayckbourn's "How the Other Half Loves," directed by Robert T. Hazzard, will have its first performance August 2 at 8:30. In the Studio, a puppet show conceived and directed by Philip Micheal (sic.), will open July 26 at 1:00 p.m., and a double bill consisting of Tom Stoppard's "The Real Inspector Hound" and Noel Coward's "Red Peppers," directed by N. Joseph Calarco, is scheduled to begin August 2 at 8:30.

Performances will be weekly Wednesday through Saturday, plus three Tuesday children's matinees, from July 5 through August 12.

This is the eighth summer festival at the Hilberry Theatre. The summer program was started in 1969 and has been repeated each summer except two - in 1973 and last summer.

For further information, call the box office at 577-2972.

TARZAN

Good lord, he is the greatest man
My eyes have ever seen!
A bulging mass of muscled strength
Too good to be a dream!
He swings into the jungle dark
From tree to branch to tree;
There isn't much that he has on
Which leaves too much to see.
He stands before the jungle beasts
And pounds upon his chest,
And tells them all that he's the king
From farthest east to west.
I tiptoed slowly up to him
And touched him with my hand.
He only stood and glared at me,
He didn't understand.
I said, "My name is Marion,
And Tarzan is your name."
He stared in quiet ponder, then,
"Me Tarzan!" he said, "You Jane!"
"No, no," I said, "You have it wrong!"
But then, who cares, so what,
"Just take me where you usually stay,
Some tree, a cave or hut."
But when he grabbed me by the waist,
Was then I came to know

That Tarzan wasn't quite the man
His legend comes to show.
Deodorant, mouthwash and soap
Are things he's never had...
Oh, Edgar, how could you create
A man who smells so bad?

Vandermark Appointed to State Tax Commission

Robert O. Vandermark of 6657 Snowapple Drive, Clarkston, has been appointed by Governor William G. Milliken to the State Tax Commission and designated as its chairman. He will serve for the remainder of a term expiring September 13, 1981, subject to Senate confirmation. His appointment is effective July 5, 1978.

Vandermark, Madison Heights City Assessor, will also serve as the tax commission representative on the State Assessor's Board for a term expiring at the pleasure of the Governor. He succeeds Robert L. Purnell of Okemos who formerly held both positions.

Vandermark holds a level four certification from the State of Michigan and is certified by the state as a personal property auditor.

He served as Independence Township assessor and supervisor prior to his present position. He also served for two years as assessor for the City of Berkley and appraiser for the City of Troy.

Vandermark attended Wayne State University where he majored in business administration. He has taken additional courses at Oakland University, University of Michigan, and Oakland Community College.

Vandermark and his wife, Mary have two children, Alice, 16, and Sally, 12.
