editor's note

We are essentially a bedroom community for Detroit's huge auto industries. Most of the dollars spent in this area were earned either directly or indirectly from the automobile and its by-products.

Thus it is with caution and grave concern that we discuss the ills that are infiltrating the auto industry.

Despite record profits, on the eve of the 1979 model year, the auto industry must deal authoritatively with some grave problems, if it is to continue with the success it has enjoyed since the days of Henry Ford, Walter Chrysler, etc.

New automobiles, more than ever before, are displaying shoddy and careless craftsmanship. Each week brings a new series of warnings and recalls because this or that is discovered wrong with one of our American Made wonders.

This combined with steep price increases each year (sometimes three or four times a year) and very little innovation and change in models from year to year is making the American car less and less appealing.

Somewhere, somehow these trends must stop. The Japanese and Germans have made significant dents in the once solid American industry. If we don't grasp these problems and deal with them intelligently and efficiently, the auto industry may follow the same course as the once great American electronics industry. And if that were to happen, Clarkston and surrounding areas would no longer live the good life they now enjoy.

Firefighters Collect $15,500 for MD

Dear Editor:

The Independence Township Fire Fighters appreciate all those people who donated in any way to the Muscular Dystrophy fund raisers in Independence Township this fall. The fire fighters in September collected over 15,500.00 clear to contribute to the Jerry Lewis national telethon for M.D. on Labor Day weekend. Without the cooperation of the business places that allow the firemen to accept donations at the business places along with the Pine Knob Music Theaters interest in the M.D. collectors plus the Pancake Breakfast at the central fire station on Labor Day morning, the M.D. program in Independence Township would not be such a huge success.

Is There Life After PTA?

BY Carol Balzarini

When the last child advances from the sixth grade to Junior High, two schools of thought (pardon the pun) prevail. One group of parents will heave a sigh of relief, having left behind the era of milk, cookies and homeroom mothers. The other group is left with an uneasy feeling that not only have they lost their babies on one hand, but contact with the school on the other.

Fear not, parents of the second group, there is life after PTA. Just ask any secondary school administrator, and he'll tell you about parent dialogue groups. They're a sort of PTA in disguise, but on a more informal basis, and you don't have to volunteer to be mother or father vice-president.

The sessions for parents of high school students takes place the second Thursday of each month at the high school at 9:30 a.m. Parents of Junior High students meet at their respective schools the third Wednesday of each month also at 9:30.

At the first High School session, over 30 parents were present. Counselor Marilyn Hanson discussed the ACT test (American College Testing) and how to interpret the results. This test is usually taken between the Junior and Senior year. It was also compared with the SAT (Scholastic Aptitude Test).

Assistant Principal John Kirchgessner explained scheduling procedures to the parents, stressing they should not expect every student to be happy; but that the school does its best. Parents will be able to observe this process in action in January as scheduling takes place for the second semester.

Although school administrators plan future meetings, parents are encouraged to contact them if they have any ideas of their own. In its third year, parent dialogue groups are there to answer questions, clear up misconceptions, and to keep parents informed as to the workings of their children's school.

A similar dialogue group has been in operation at Sashabaw Junior High for the past five years, and is well attended. The September meeting had over 40 parents in attendance, some one third of them new, either to the school or to the district.

Dick Swartout, head of the English department, talked about the newly revised curriculum for all three grades and its three levels of speaking, writing and reading skills; with a special emphasis on writing skills including handwriting. All three tracks in the seventh and eighth grades, plus the two in ninth grade, are included in the new curriculum. (Tracking is the term used for grouping students according to their abilities in any given subject.)

Parents were shown the new supplemental English texts used in the seventh and ninth grades. These books have not been adopted system-wide but are being used on a trial basis. Current English texts are ten years old. The new books are visually more appealing and have been well-received by parents and students alike.

One of Swartout's projects is to compile a list of commonly used terms students will encounter in their three years of junior high in the basic courses, math, science, social studies, and geography. With the aid of the other teachers, some 1,000 words have been collected for use in the English classes.

Following Swartout's presentation, parents were given a question and answer period both about the English program and whatever else came up.

In the future Sashabaw parents will meet with other department heads, tour the building and have the opportunity to discuss career education. At the October meeting, they will most likely tour the building and look at the media center.

Clarkston Junior High parents were given a long list of possible topics and asked to rank the seven they were most interested in for future meetings.

Principal Duane Lewis emphasized his high priority on communication between parents, teachers and administrators. He announced a meeting for parents of students attending ninth grade camp on October 2, a meeting for those whose children are in the ninth grade interdisciplinary block on October 3 and an open house on October 11.

He also brought up the idea of having evening meetings in homes for working parents and those who couldn't attend school meetings. Ideally, these would be spread out geographically.

Also discussed was the new program where teachers contact parents by phone on a regular basis, and not just when a child was having problems. Both teachers and parents reacted favorable to these contacts.

Lewis was presented the idea of parent volunteers to his teachers and received a mixed reaction. There has never been an organized program before, but the possibility is now being considered. Assistance could involve tutoring in math classes, playing the piano for music classes or even monitoring the halls during lunch periods.

Next month's meeting will have Bill Potvin as speaker.

What Should the Deceased Wear?

Clothing helps to express the unique characteristics of an individual. Even in death, clothing can convey the special personality of the deceased. In the planning of funeral details, the matter of clothing for the deceased should not be overlooked.

Has there been a request in the past from the deceased concerning his or her feelings? Sometimes a uniform of office or volunteer leadership has been requested, because of the significance to the deceased. Medals and jewelry may be considered to complete the uniform or dress.

Is clothing worn by the deceased during lifetime appropriate? By all means. A suit or dress which was a particular favorite of the deceased—or the survivor—may be the prime consideration.

We invite your questions and will answer them privately or publicly through this column.

THOUGHTS 'N THINGS

Strange though it may seem, women of two personality extremes are most apt to develop the courage that leads to self-direction. Those who are encouraged to move in that direction as children, and those who are taught to be extremely pliable and dependant.

The first group are taught to stand on their own feet at a very young age in life. There is little parental interference, so they participate in a number of activities that allow them to develop a certain competitiveness or "toughness." Simply surviving in the childhood jungle gives a child the confidence that leads to courage, and the pursuit of what they wish to acquire or achieve is not interrupted by anything or anyone who gets in their way.

Aggressiveness is often the trademark of such females, and adjectives as "unfeminine" are considered a compliment to them, rather than a derogatory label.

At the other extreme is the "good little girl" who wants to grow up to be a good wife and mother, and live in a rose-covered cottage, and have her husband protect her from all enemies. She usually imitates her mother, and only lives to love Papa and her brothers. In return, Papa and the boys protect her from foolish concerns like boys with less than honorable intentions, and other things that might give her wrinkles. This type of girl is usually sweet and pliable, and that's the way her family wants her to be.

This old-fashioned girl who lives for love and male approval is fully expected to live happily ever after as she moves from the kitchen dishes to the unmade beds, and to the laundry room and back—stopping to sprinkle herself with rosewater on her busy way. According to some unwritten agreement, she must be sweet and pretty twenty-four hours a day! Hardly the type to develop courage or care about self-direction she has as much chance of doing it as the first type. It just won't be easy on her.

I have exaggerated, of course, in my description. On the other hand, there are a great number of women who will read this and recognize something of their girlhood concepts. Happily, there are others who have never been disillusioned. On the other hand, there are a great many who have had to adjust their rose-colored glasses more than a little.

Once beyond the protective eye of "Papa and the boys" these naive and vulnerable females have found themselves completely without defenses. Reality and experience hit them where it hurts, right in their tenderness and goodness, and they find that they lack any rewards that make life worth living. In fact, it often seems that the "bad" girls are the ones who are getting the goodies of life. That lack of reward and recognition for good behavior leads to depression, and depression must be dealt with.

The first question a woman must answer is whether or not she is emotionally ruled. If she is, she is unlikely to be able to hold out for a career if it means that family life and marriage will be disrupted, even if the family needs the money. That does not mean that she has chosen the easy route. Sometimes staying home is much more difficult than taking a job, and it can be a lot less satisfying. On the other hand, her contribution to the stability of the community and society as a whole should not be underestimated.

Some women get help from groups or individuals who know how to help them to adjust to the way things "are." Some look for another male-female relationship which will be more like the one they had within the family (and some will fail to find it a second and a third time.) Others, however, who have healthy self-preservation instincts are very apt to end up on the same level of courageous self-direction that their "tough sisters have achieved.

It is not as difficult a process as it might seem. When you have nothing to lose, fear is useless, and courage is the only choice. It is a sink or swim position, so trying to swim just makes good sense! That is the first step in the direction of "looking out for the self." It is also the most difficult, but once taken the going is easier, and making choices eventually becomes habit-forming.

In between these two extremes lie infinite variations of adaptations and attitudes. Conflicting emotions are caused by the recognition that a price must be paid everytime an adjustment in behavior is made. "In order to get one thing, something else must be sacrificed, and I don't want to sacrifice anything I have because I want everything," is totally unrealistic. Sooner or later, there is a time and energy price involved in progress and attainment, and women have to learn to pay it. Men, on the other hand, learn that at a young age. To be rich and successful, a man must expect to spend the better part of his life at work of one kind or another.

Women have not been raised to believe that they must spend the better part of their lives at work. They have been raised to believe that they can spend some time at work, and some time at home, and juggle housework, kids, husband, family pets, parents, in-laws, and job-responsibilities while looking beautiful twenty-four hours a day. That means that priorities must be set, and choices must be made. The conflicting responsibilities and desires, and the pressures of the boss versus the family versus society are enough to make a strong man cry. Women, however, expect to somehow cope with it all. The truth is, they can't. That is why they have to live in a state of confusion or develop courage for self-direction.

example of this fact. While this worthwhile amendment would have provided for a reduction in the governmental growth rate, a lower deficit, and a real tax cut, it still could not get enough votes to win.

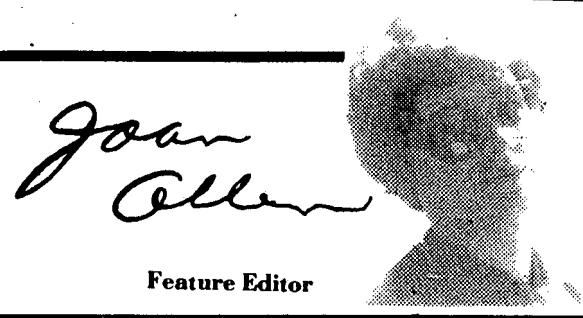

"This was an important vote because the way the Congressional budget process works, the Second Budget Resolution sets binding spending and tax figures for the 1979 fiscal year.

"The Holt Amendment, while it would have affected only the 1979 budget, would have also set the foundation for a Republican proposal to balance the federal budget by 1983.

"With its reduced governmental growth rate and tax cut provisions, and its role in a larger plan for a balanced budget, the Holt Amendment mirrored the feelings and desires of the American people for tax and inflation relief. It is truly unfortunate that a majority in the House would not go along with this important proposal," Broomfield said.

The Holt Amendment, proposed by Congresswoman Marjorie Holt of Maryland, called for budget outlays of $480 billion as opposed to the House Budget Committee proposal of $490.5 billion; and a deficit of $35 billion as opposed to the Committee's $43.5 billion.

It also called for a 7 percent growth in the federal government's spending as opposed to the Committee's 10 percent figure. This 7 percent figure would allow for

Now, courage for self-direction is something I've worked around in this column more than once. I've also been fortunate enough to talk to some of my readers that have summoned that courage. None of them have claimed that it is easy. All of them have stated that the effort was worth it. Confusion can sometimes be worse than the work involved, however, and it has kept them moving ahead.

To disentangle the threads of confusion is like unknotting a ball of string that the cat has played with. It's a mess. There are some points where one can start though, and with patience, do the job up right!

The first question a woman must answer is whether or not she is emotionally ruled. If she is, she is unlikely to be able to hold out for a career if it means that family life and marriage will be disrupted, even if the family needs the money. That does not mean that she has chosen the easy route. Sometimes staying home is much more difficult than taking a job, and it can be a lot less satisfying. On the other hand, her contribution to the stability of the community and society as a whole should not be underestimated.

If she is not emotionally ruled, the decision can be just as difficult. Even though mental pursuits hold a greater appeal than the warmth of family relationships, most humans want and need companionship and lasting relationships with others. The desire to have a home and someone to share it with also has its practical advantages. There are still responsibilities to be considered, such as food and house cleaning, and a good number of working women would find life easier if they had "wives" to take care of details for them. Few husbands care to bother with those things in spite of "women's liberation."

The whole question of what comes first depends on insight, and the ability to work through to the meaning of life. Goals cannot be set until values are determined. To accomplish anything beyond confusion and impulse, we must have a sense of purpose. We also must have successes or rewards to "stay with it." Money and things are not enough. Inner satisfaction is necessary if any job is to seem worthwhile, whether it is one in the home or away from the home. It is impossible to obtain inner satisfaction without understanding what is truly pleasing to the inner-self, however. That is why an individual search for meaning and purpose is the first step in the pursuit of self-direction.

the continuation of existing programs adjusted for inflation.

Finally, the amendment would have provided for a $20 billion tax cut. This is almost double the size of the recently passed House proposal, and it would off-set the upcoming Social Security tax increase, and the inflation impact.

Many in the majority party who argued against this proposal claimed that the amendment would throw the budget process into disarray because of the money bills already passed by the House. They said that the House would have to stay in session until Christmas to straighten out the amounts already appropriated so that they would fall into line with the Holt spending levels.

To this, Broomfield argues that the Congressional budget process was established to control spending, and not to be controlled by it. The budgetary spending levels were supposed to be set with the aggregate program spending levels complying with it, and not vice-a-versa. "If we have to stay until Christmas to bring spending into line, then that is Congress's duty," Broomfield said.

"The burden of the government, borne by the people, is too great. The double plague of inflation and high taxes caused by the government's action must be corrected. The Holt Amendment would have set the foundation for this needed cure. It is a shame that the House did not accept it," Broomfield said.

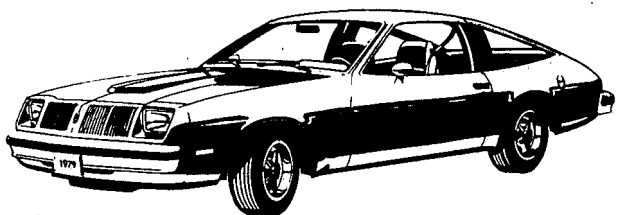

Congressman Broomfield Reports From Washington

To this, Broomfield argues that the Congressional budget process was established to control spending, and not to be controlled by it. The budgetary spending levels were supposed to be set with the aggregate program spending levels complying with it, and not vice-a-versa. "If we have to stay until Christmas to bring spending into line, then that is Congress's duty," Broomfield said.

The public demand for fiscal responsibility by the government has encouraged many in Congress to talk a good money game, but unfortunately, in many cases, the talk is not backed up with their votes, remarked Congressman William S. Broomfield (R-19th Dist.).

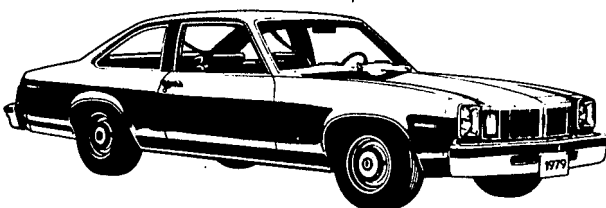

The Holt Amendment to the Congress's Second Budget Resolution, Broomfield points out, is a perfect

First Annual Clarkston Invitational

Band Boosters Sponsor Marching Band Contest

The Clarkston Band Boosters will be sponsoring an event of major proportions Saturday evening, September 30th. at the High School Athletic Field. The First Annual Clarkston Invitational Marching Band Competition will take place featuring twelve of the most outstanding marching bands in the state of Michigan. With trophies for first, second, and third place in three classifications, special awards for percussion, winds, color guard, drum major, and marching and maneuvering, the over 1,000 competing band members will be presenting the fall season efforts for the first time in competition.

A distinguished panel of judges from across the state will evaluate each band in minute detail to determine the outcome, with the highest scoring band, regardless of class, awarded the overall championship trophy.

Bands arriving for the event include the nationally recognized Flushing Raiders, Plymouth Centennial Park High School and Reed City High School Bands in the Open Class. Class "A" bands include Durand Area High School, Flint Northern High School, and Southfield High School. Bands participating in class "B" are Bad Axe High School, Vassar High School, Saginaw-Carrolton, Ithaca High School, St. Charles High School, and the Tecumseh Shawnee marchers. Several of these groups will be traveling to Atwood Stadium in Flint the following day to appear in the prestigious Governor's Cup Tournament, The Michigan Invitational, sponsored by the Flushing Band and Orchestra Boosters. Three of the competing bands will stay over Saturday night as guests of the C.H.S. Band and Clarkston Band Boosters.

The contest begins at 6:30 p.m. with the opening flag ceremonies featuring the American Legion Honor Guard and the Clarkston High School Band. Immediately following will come the class B, class A, and open class contests. The Clarkston High School Band will perform in exhibition, as host units do not compete.

The Clarkston Invitational is fully sanctioned by the Michigan Competitive Band Director's Association. This organization establishes the rules and guidelines for competition and maintains a list of qualified adjudicators to serve the member bands. Cliff Chapman, C.H.S. Band Director is currently Vice-President of the organization.

Ticket proceeds will benefit the instrumental music programs of the Clarkston Community Schools.

Women's Club Begin New Season

The Clarkston Women's Club is in full swing for another season. Their newly-elected officers (Connie Morgan, Pres.; Gail Ferguson, V.P.; Helen Colburn, Recording Sec.; Rosemary Fedewa, Corr. Sec.; Cheryl Futrell, Treas.; and Bev Shaver and Sandy Meyer, Bd. Members) would like all to know that their meetings are open to anyone wishing to attend. All meetings will be held at Independence Center on Maybee Road and the first one is scheduled for Sept. 28 at 7:30 p.m.

This year they have a variety of monthly programs beginning with Valerie Foerster, an astrology "buff" from Dearborn Heights. She has delved into this as a hobby for the past ten years and is a believer that astrology can foretell the future but never compels it. She suggests that people use it only as a guide.

Holly Selected as Issue Site for Christmas Stamp

The U.S. Postal Service has announced that the 1978 Christmas Stamp, depicting a Christmas tree and a child on a Hobby Horse, will be issued in the Village of Holly, October 18th.

According to Ardath Regan, President of the Holly Area Board of Commerce and Co-ordinator for the Dedication Program, this is the first time a small community has been selected as the site for the first day of issue of a Christmas Stamp. Regan explained that the first Christmas Commemorative Stamp was issued as a four cent denomination, November 1, 1962. From 1962 through 1973, Washington, D.C. was the issue site and continues to be except several special stamps issued in major cities, New York, Boston, Mass., Omaha, Nebraska and Valley Forge, P.A.

The Postal Service designated Holly, for the honor because it felt the name of the little Village will add a special Christmas identification to the first day of issue.

A second Christmas stamp displaying and Andrea della Robbia Madonna and child will be issued in Washington, D.C. that same day. The "Madonna and Child with Cherubim" is the terra cotta relief sculpture that was used for the stamp by designer, Bradbury Thompson.

The Hobby Horse Stamp was designed by Dolli Tingle, Westport, Connecticut. Tingle previously designed the 1973 Needlepoint Christmas Stamp and the 1977 Christmas Mail Box Stamp. This year's stamp personifies the joys of giving and receiving the festive spirit of Christmas.

The Postal Service believes that postage stamps reflect the culture, the arts, the economy, the character of the people and the history, in every aspect, of the country which issues them. Thus, they have a significance and variety beyond their postal utility. The issue of a new stamp stimulates wide interest among those who collect stamps as an avocation and among those who have a particular concern based up geographical, professional, cultural or historical characteristics of a specific stamp. Mrs. Regan, Co-Chairman, James Halstead - Manager, Citizen's Bank and James J. Alexander, Postmaster, Holly have worked closely on the preparations for the First Day of Issue Program with Postal Directors Ray Blozis, Stamp Division, Washington D.C., Bill Lefever, U.S. Retailing, Chicago, Bill Flemming and Leonard Palinsky, Retail Sales & Service, Detroit, William Schwartz, Postmaster, Flint and Don Lasher, Flint Postal Division.

The First Day of Issue Program will be held at 11 a.m. on Wednesday the 18th at the Holly Senior High School, 920 E. Baird St. This program is open to the public.

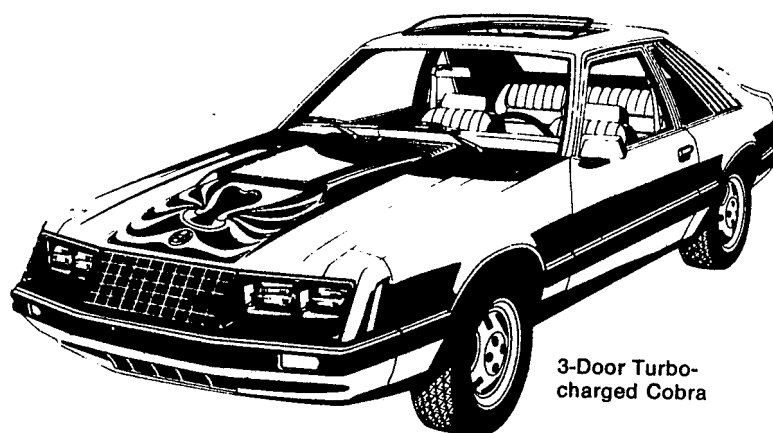

Holly is expecting an overflow of dignitaries both on the national and statewide level. John P. Doran, Postmaster General, Central-Region, will give the keynote address at the ceremony.

A luncheon program is scheduled for some 600 guests at 12:30 p.m. the same day at Vladimirs' Inn. Ben East, Holly resident and nationally recognized outdoor life and nature writer, author of Survival, This was the North, The Last Eagle and his most recent offering, Bears, will be the guest speaker.

(The Holly Area Board of Commerce, the J.C.'s., J. Cettes, Senior Citizens, V.F.W., Lions, Kiwanis, C.B. Club, Northwest Oakland County Historical Society, Garden Society, Police Dept. and Fire Dept. are all co-operating in planning a gala celebration.)

Orders for the First Day of Issue Stamps may be obtained by the public through "First Day Cancellations", Postmaster Holly, 48442 and Postmaster, Washington, D.C., 20013. Sub Postal Stations will open Wednesday Oct. 18th. at the Holly High School, 10 a.m. and Vladimirs Inn, Noon.

O'Neill, Johnston, Huttenlocher Honored

Dr. James O'Neill, Lynn Johnston, and Susan Huttenlocher were honored at the annual meeting of the Clarkston Area Youth Assistance (CAYA) held last week. O'Neill in appreciation for years of service, the girls as volunteers with the Youth Involvement Committee.

Youth Assistance involves local citizens and community resources in its efforts to prevent juvenile delinquency and neglect. Those concerned, interested citizens are willing to devote their time and skills to this purpose.

Featured speaker at the annual meeting was the Hon. John J. O'Brien, Oakland County Probate Judge. Judge O'Brien praised the CAYA for serving as a model program for the rest of the county and the concept of Youth Assistance in general for its work in preventing juvenile delinquency and keeping kids out of juvenile court whenever possible.

O'Brien cited the lack of a strong, consistent adult as the source of most juvenile problems. He said young people have to be taught that happiness is not guaranteed in spite of the materialism and affluence of today's society. He said parents should not value their children for what they do or produce, but for themselves.

O'Brien went on to say, "most kids with problems do not have a sense of right and wrong, they are lacking a set of values. It is important that parents adopt a positive attitude toward their children, and that the children are given a sense of self-esteem."

Community problems are our problems, O'Brien said, stressing that interdependence. He added there will likely be an increased responsibility on such groups as Youth Assistance.

The CAYA operates in the Clarkston School District and is sponsored and supported by the Oakland County Probate Court, the Village of Clarkston, Clarkston Board of Education and Independence and Springfield Townships.

One program Youth Assistance is currently presenting is L.O.V.E., Little Ones to Value and Educate. This workshop for parents of young children is a six-week series of discussions about kids which began Tuesday, September 19.

Another program in the developmental stages is P.L.U.S., People Listening, Understanding, Sharing, with Bob Arend as a temporary committee of one. Arend is looking for more people to either work on the committee itself or to devote several hours a week to kids on a one-to-one basis. The concept is similar to the Big Brother and Big Sister Programs.

Other CAYA programs include summer camp or recreation for as many young people as funds will allow at Camp Oakland, Michigan Christian Youth Camp or Independence Township recreation programs. Last year's parent education program dealt with sex education while this year's is L.O.V.E.

Individuals or organizations wishing to donate time and/or money to the CAYA can contact chairperson Virginia Walter, Clarkston Schools Special Services or social worker Gary Pullins at Independence Center.

Question Of The Week

By Sharon Springborn

When your mail isn't delivered on time, or you need the aid of a policeman or fireman, but no one is on duty to respond to your call for help, do you think that public officials shouldn't be able to go on strike? Or, if you happen to have a friend in public service, do they tell you how it's hard to make ends meet when you're trying to make it on the salary that you signed a contract for twelve months ago?

The Reminder tried to come up with an answer to whether or not public employees should be allowed the right to strike -- for higher pay, shorter working hours, more benefits, etc. Six people don't think that strikes by public employees should be allowed, two people felt that a strike would be alright, because no choice is left when the cost of living goes up, and one person remained undecided, with another person not wanting to answer the question because she is a public employee, herself.

Even though a city unattended by a police and fire department is, according to Mrs. P. Gould, a "sad situation", she feels that public employees should be allowed the right to strike. And a musician, who is in a similar situation to the public employees, and she doesn't feel that it's good position to be in economic-wise. If the cost of living goes up, what other alternative do they have?"

On the exact opposite side of the fence is Mrs. Katherine Koehler, who feels that public employees shouldn't stop working because they're getting paid by the government to do their job, and if they're not around to take care of the work, the work won't get done. And it isn't right to have to pay other people to do the work that was already paid for once.

Though she feels that all employees, public and private, should enjoy the same rights, Mrs. Becky Knapp doesn't want people left "helpless because the police or fire departments are on strike."

Mrs. Carol Knoff has mixed feelings on the subject, and sometimes thinks that public employees should be able to strike, and at other times she thinks that they shouldn't. She feels that the best solution, but an unlikely one, is for the government to give its employees raises and benefits so that striking would be unnecessary.

Mrs. Knoff wouldn't mind a strike by postal workers as much as by protection agencies such as the police and fire departments. This was the attitude expressed by most of our respondents, who also said that mail could be picked up even without home deliveries, but a strike that would pull police and firemen off duty on the city streets would be a lot harder to accept.

One man, Mrs. Larry Johns, doesn't agree with the right to strike, but for a different reason. Mr. Johns, who is in business for himself, must do business with public agencies, so if they go out on strike, he is out of business. Or, to put it another way - "If G.M. went on strike, I could go buy a Ford. But you can't do this with public agencies -- you're forced to do business with them."

Photographer John Murphy discusses some of his work.

Springfield's Joyce Hovis was a hit with her miniature crates and egg baskets.

Jim Freel and his wife had a large assortment of candlesticks in a variety of shapes and woods.

CRAFTS, CIDER & SUNSHINE

Mary Himburg (left) offered a fantasy world of soft pillows and bedspread decorations in kit form, everything from ice cream cones to clowns to sundaes. Naomi's woodcarving was a source of fascination for weekend shoppers in the park. Naomi and her friends will be back in the Village Park on October 7 from noon to 10 p.m. with musical entertainment and a drauction [that's a drawing and auction combined.] Just look for Drongo Dragon signs.

Clarkston Basketball Team Evens Record at 2-2

The Clarkston Girl's Varsity Basketball team has evened their won-lost record for this year at 2-2, with a win at Walled Lake Western on September 19, 51 to 44, and a loss at home to Rochester Adams on September 21, 49 to 36.

On Tuesday's game with W.L. Western, the outstanding job was done by Pam Blower, who scored a total of 18 points, and had 11 rebounds and 5 steals. A good game was also played by Kay Pearson, who scored 18 points and 10 rebounds. Other scorers in the game were Linda Foster (6), Lisa Steele (5) and Jeannie Odell (4 points and 8 rebounds).

No points were scored by Kelli Ketzler, but she aided the team in gaining their come-from-behind victory by making 9 rebounds. Good free-throw shooting was also evidenced by Linda Foster.

The girl's Varsity basketball coach, Jan Modesitt, was pleased with the girls defensive plays which allowed the scoring of some quick buckets and the scoring of 10 unanswered points by Clarkston before Walled Lake came back, and Clarkston ultimately won the game.

Thursday's home game against Rochester Adams wasn't a bright spot for the host team. Clarkston lost the game by a score of 49-36.

The only high spot of the game was Kay Pearson's scoring of 13 points in the 1st. half. The total scoring was - Kay Pearson (13), Pam Blower (6), Kelli Ketzler (6), Kass Conway (2), Linda Foster (2) and Lisa Steels (2).

WHAT'S HAPPENING

by Marilyn Bridgeman

For all you lovers of the "good ole' boy pictures" like Smokey and the Bandit, Burt Reynolds has done it again with his newest movie Hooper. As in Smokey (one of the biggest grossing pictures of all time) Reynolds again joins forces with Sally Field with hysterical results.

Burt Reynolds has achieved a special kind of Hollywood distinction through his sly sense of humor, his on-coming physicality and a remarkable blend of toughness and sensitivity. These are the very qualities which he brings in abundance to "Hooper" the Warner Brothers release Oct. 4 at the Oxford Twin Cinemas.

"Hooper" is a story centered around the perilous profession of Hollywood stuntmen. Reynolds involvement in this movie comes naturally. He worked as a stunt actor during the lean, early years of his career. "They would give me a few words or a line," Reynolds recalls, "then set me on fire or push me out a third story window. If you were willing to do it you could always get a job."

"Hooper" costars Jan-Michael Vincent as a young threat to the throne of "the greatest stuntman alive" (played naturally by Reynolds) and Sally Field as the girl who loves "the greatest stuntman alive." Also included in the cast are Brian Keith, Adam West (of Batman fame), John Marley and Robert Klein.

Reynolds is not the only one involved in this picture who has stunt experience. "Hooper" was directed by Hal Needham, who for 20 years was a leading Hollywood stuntman. Needham also directed "Smokey and the Bandit."

For Burt Reynolds fans, or lovers of exciting action footage, "Hooper" should be a real treat.

For the culture-conscious (which all of us should be occasionally) Cranbrook Institute of Science and Christ Church Cranbrook in Bloomfield Hills have some great activities available. Cranbrook Institute of Science on 500 Lone Pine Road is presenting "Colors in the Sky" as their planetarium topic. Discussions range from why there is color at all to explaining the colors as seen from the moon or Mars.

Know-It-All Grow-It-All

by Bonnie Hale

After you have enjoyed your avacado, save the pit. Although avacados are not generally considered houseplants, they do make very attractive plants which can grow and be treated as such. To start off with, you need an avacado that comes from Florida, as the California varieties more often than not, won't sprout. If you are not sure which variety your grocer stocks, more than likely the produce man can tell you where they come from. Generally though, the large ones come from Florida.

After very carefully removing the pit, the brown outer coating should be removed to aid in the process of germination. This can be done by gently scraping with your fingernails after the pit has been soaked in warm water for four or five hours.

There are two methods of turning your pit into a tree. Personally, I prefer the water method; as it is more fun to watch the pit split, send out roots and stems, than to imagine what's happening in the soil. Poke three toothpicks around the middle of the pit and suspend in a glass of water with the base of the pit (the broadest end) down in the water. Replenish the water as it evaporates.

With the soil method simply place the pit in a pot of all-purpose potting soil and cover it with one inch of soil. The water method will take a little longer than the soil method. With either method, germination can take as long as two months. If after three months with either method, nothing happens, discard the pit and try again.

Once the pit splits and a sprout pushes up, it's time for the plant to start receiving the light. This is also the time to transplant your pit into potting soil if you started it in water. Since avacados need much light, place it in the sunniest window (preferably a south) you have.

When the plant becomes four to five inches tall, pinch back the stem, so that it is only half as tall. At first the plant will rebel-it will burn brown and wither. Don't despair, as you will be rewarded with two branches that will grow large leaves. You can pinch back the two new branches as soon as they grow four to five inches long. Repeated pinching back will give your avacado a tree like effect.

When the top one inch of soil is dry, it is time to water. During the winter, you may have to resort to some humidity raining tricks, as avacados are tropical plants and they need lots of humidity. A balanced fertilizer can be applied every two to three weeks.

A common problem with avacados is the dropping of the lower leaves. This is a natural process to trees, so don't be alarmed. Usually no fruit will appear, as there is not enough light indoors for the production of fruit. Even so, the avacado does make an attractive tree-like plant that will grow taller and taller throughout the years.

If you own a multi-family dwelling, you are probably familiar with the problem of the wandering tenant. The way to get a multi-unit house to pay is to have all the apartments rented all the time. But, especially if there are a lot of apartments, this might mean constant interference and inconvenience in your life. Why not let a broker handle all the headaches? Let me have all my meals interrupted, waiting around on Sundays for those phone calls from prospective renters? Wouldn't you rather go swimming, skiing, or play golf?

When it comes to real estate, BOB WHITE REAL ESTATE, 5856 Main St., your area broker since 1947, can take the headaches out of your life. Buying, selling or renting, our experience allows us to bring to you the solutions you are seeking. Real estate is not a do-it-yourself hobby. Real estate involves substantial financial investments and successful transactions which depend on knowledge and expertise. You can depend on BOB WHITE REAL ESTATE. of the word. Not only will it be outside, but it will also be open to public scrutiny.

They will be building a three-bedroom 1,250 square foot ranch house on the corner of Paramus and M-15, under the direction of Dick Moscovic, Industrial Arts teacher and licensed builder.

The plans were drawn up by Larry Thibault, Drafting and Architectural Design teacher at CHS and a licensed residential designer.

The sub-contractors working on the project will be teaching as they work. But the students will do as much of the work themselves as possible.

Moscovic was pleased with the project has progressed so far saying, "Everybody has been really cooperative."

By "everybody" he means Kieft Engineering who donated the site surveying Clarkston Disposal who donated a large trash container, and the neighbors who have shown an interest in the project.

The trailer on the lot will serve as a combination office classroom/storeroom where the sixteen morning students and sixteen afternoon students can change their clothes and clean up.

Instructor Dick Moscovic [left] keeps an eye on his students and on the progress of the excavation at the same time.

Larry Lotan is doing both the excavating and the finish grading for the ranch-style house.

Residents Present Ideas for Use of Revenue Sharing

Independence Township residents were on hand last week at the regular meeting of the township board to give their views on how $125,665 in federal revenue sharing funds should be spent.

Long-suffering residents of the unpaved portion of Holcomb between the village and the I-75 overpass continued to press the board for funds for pavement.

People in the new Lake Oakland Woods development would like to see a sidewalk constructed along Maybee Road between Pheasant Run and the three Sashabaw Schools.

A Walters Lake resident complained of the lack of maintenance of the gravel roads in that area saying that they had been seriously neglected.

Squirrel Hill Court, a private road, has had road problems since the sewers were put in. There has been no ditch maintenance.

Still another citizen questioned inaction of the township as far as private road maintenance in general was concerned suggesting that occasional grading would be a help.

The much-discussed issue of the sewer tax was again brought up by one of the township's more vocal critics, Iva Caverly. She stated that public hearings and citizens' petitions had no effect on the board whatsoever. She asked if they were waiting for a taxpayers' revolt and concluded that nobody had any faith in elected officials anymore.

Librarian Sushil Lahiri presented three suggestions for use of the federal funds: building expansion to aid the growth and development of the library, a bicycle path from Snowapple to the library along Clarkston Road, and more money for the book budget.

Usually book money amounts to $4,000 from the budget and an identical amount from revenue sharing. This year, however, Lahiri made no request for federal funds and was allotted a token $600. From the next entitlement period he is asking ten times that, $6,000.

Acting Director of Police Services Charlie Kimbel put in his request for $49,000 to balance his budget and an additional $25,000 for building renovation.

The second revenue sharing hearing will be held at the October 2 meeting of the township board at the township library.

Three CHS Students Receive National Merit Commendation

Principal, Dom Mauti, announced that 3 senior students at Clarkston Senior High have been named Commended students in the twenty-fourth annual (1979) National Merit Scholarship Program. This honor recognizes each student's outstanding performance on the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test which was administered nationwide to high school juniors in October 1977. Letters of Commendation were presented to Robin Bisha, Paul Boberg and Cynthia Stevens.

A total of almost 35,000 Commended students throughout the United States are being honored by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation; students in this group represent the top five percent of more than one million participants in the Merit Program.
