Election Reflections

Caught up in a wave of election frenzy, The Reminder decided to conduct a straw vote amongst the Independence Township electorate. We called up a number of residents and asked them which tax proposals (if any) they were voting for, and who did they favor in the race for supervisor, Tower or Place.

The results were surprising in that there were NO CLEAR-CUT RESULTS. For the most, most of the people questioned did not know enough about either the tax limitation proposals or the supervisor candidates to make a decision on who or what they were going to vote for.

In the words of our pollster, "If I got past the undecided answer, the person quite often would say 'Well I guess I'd be for the one that says he'll limit taxes--what's his name, Tisch?' Those in favor of the Headlee proposal were few and far between, with the citizens for the Voucher plan even sparser.''

It's a down right shame, when only a week before the election, people still didn't know or care enough about the tax limitations to have taken a little time to study each. Each, if passed, could have a profound effect on you and your local tax dollar.

So, if you haven't voted yet (most people get The Reminder on Wednesday--but there are some areas that receive it Tuesday) make sure you know how and why you're going to vote before pulling that curtain shut.

Lions Club Appreciates Leader Dog Article

Dear Mr. Wilcox:

The Members and Board of Directors of the Clarkston Lions Club would like to extend their sincere appreciation for your recent article about Leader Dog. Lions Clubs throughout the world are dedicated to work which can assist the blind and near blind residents of our individual communities.

Michigan Lions were instrumental in providing the Rochester Leader Dog School for its work with blind individuals. This work is supported throughout the world by contributions from Lions Clubs.

Thank you again for your article. All Lions appreciate your recent contribution to local understanding of the wonderful work that is done by this fine facility and staff.

Sincerely yours, CLARKSTON LIONS CLUB John J. Moreau, Secretary

Carolyn Place is a Proven Leader

Carolyn Place is running for the office of Township Supervisor in Independence Township. Mrs. Place is a woman of proven leadership ability who has dedicated many hours to public service. She is a woman who is well qualified for the office she seeks and can provide the type of leadership which Independence Township needs. Carolyn is campaigning on a program for the types of things that will make Independence Township a strong and viable community. She stands for a well balanced and people oriented program that deserves our support. I encourage each and every voter in Independence Township to give her the opportunity to show us what

Clarkston Cinema Explains "Old Dracula" Mistake

Dear Editor and patrons of the Clarkston Cinema:

We would like to apologize to everyone who saw the first showing of "Old Dracula" on Saturday, October 28. The movie was sent to us as a "Kiddie Matinee" but it was quite obvious that it was adult entertainment. Because of this fact, the movie was immediately pulled and not shown again.

We are very sorry for any inconvenience or embarrassment that you or your family may have encountered because of this. As new owners, it is our intent to provide our customers with the best possible family entertainment. In the future, we will make every attempt to screen all movies before presentation to our customers.

> Respectfully, Dan & Kathy Daniel - Owners

Independence Center Accepting Food Contributions

TO THE EDITOR:

Independence Center is accepting food contributions for Thanksgiving baskets until Friday, November 17th. If you as an individual (or your group) would like to donate an entire basket, or even just a few items, please drop them off at 5331 Maybee Road Monday - Friday from 9-4. We have a large freezer in our kitchen, so we can store meats, breads, vegetables and desserts as well as canned goods or dry foods. Staples as well as Thanksgiving extras are needed. Your appearance at a wake or funeral is always a support and expression of love to the bereaved. The words you express as you embrace or extend the clasp-of-hand can add a sincere feeling of warmth and concern -- but the words aren't nearly as important as your "just being there."

'Here are some expressions you might consider: "John was such a fine person. I will miss him." "My warmest sympathy to you and the family." "Mary was such a dear friend."

"Mary enjoyed life and shared her joys so often with others."

You may find it easier to say these words of comfort if you practice them beforehand when you are alone. Sometimes just hearing yourself say the words out loud makes them easier to express to others.

Santa to Visit Christmas Bazaar This Saturday

Winners Announced at Davisburg Halloween Party

by Kathie Dice

Halloween has been special in Davisburg for a long time. Every year Halloween night is reserved for the big party sponsored by the Jaycees and Jaycetts. This year 👚 it was held at the Springfield Oaks Activities center, formerly it was at the Town Hall and in the street.

The Halloween Party is one of the yearly Jaycee projects, there's always plenty of cider and donuts and lots and lots of mass confusion as I'm sure President Jeff Stills will attest to.

First there was a money scramble, for which all participants were winners, coins were hidden in a pile of straw; all you had to do was find them.

The pumpkin contest had very few participants, winning by default were Kelley and Kurt Peters in different catagories.

The marshmallow catching contest had eight winners. Kindergarten - 3rd grade winners were, 1st. place -Michelle Fulton, 2nd - David Pfenning, and 3rd - Stacey Banaszak. Fourth grade and up winners were, 1st - John Barrett, 2nd - Mike Nygaard, 3rd - Betty Blum. The parents even got in on it with Jackie Kennedy winning. The kids won a silver dollar and parents a gallon of cider.

The biggest event is the costume judging, there are

THOUGHTS THINGS C

It is interesting to me, that the communications media is finally catching up with the scientific interest in parapsychology. There seems to be an increasing number of journalists, as well as script writers, who are treating the occult subjects with less humor and more dignity. Those who "don't believe in such nonsense"

 $\mathbf{c}$  are becoming a little nervous, for fear that the last laugh will be on them! The same thing is true of the U.F.O. followers. After all, nobody wants to be the last to know the truth of a subject! On the other hand, nobody wants to be made a fool, either. The problem is how to remain open-minded without being gullible.

It is also interesting, that the communications media is getting a little less sophisticated on the subject of new

The morality as a road to social and emotional success. There seems to be a move toward the old morality, along with a tightening of family relationships expected in the future. How are we supposed to know how to think and act when the experts keep changing their minds? And what about all the nutrition and diet and exercise expert's arguments? No sooner do we get the latest findings, then we get a report on the dire results of such programs, along with alternate "latest findings."

What's going on anyway?

I could go on an on, listing item after item that confuses and concerns those of us who try to stay abreast of the happenings in today's society. The list is endless. Most of us feel like small boats caught in the middle of the ocean during a storm. We're lifted and dropped and tossed every which way, and it's all we can do to hold

I together and stay afloat. It is, therefore, only natural that we reach out for any means of steadying ourselves. We grab at any anchor or line that attaches to a steadying influence. An empty promise seems better than none at all! In fact, a refusal to recognize our unstable condition seems to some, to be better than nothing. That of course, is akin to hiding under the bed, or in a closet during a storm. It doesn't make it go away, but at least it isn't something that has to be faced. The big question is, what to do about it?

After giving the subject a good deal of thought, I always return to the basic consideration - the reason why. Why do we feel insecure in the first place, and why are attitudes and ideas continually changing, and why are we so uncertain about which direction to take, which expert to listen to, which fad to follow, and what to do about life in general?

After giving the subject a good deal of thought, I always return to the basic consideration -- the reason why. Why do we feel insecure in the first place, and why are attitudes and ideas continually changing, and why are we so uncertain about which direction to take, which expert to listen to, which fad to follow, and what to do about life in general?

The problem is that we have moved further and further away from the ability to concentrate on any one thing, and when we seek solutions, we so often borrow somebody else's cure or solution, and it only gives rise to new problems. We each must seek out, and find, our own individual "medicine" or "anchor." We may find temporary quiet by using someone else's "leaning post," but it will not prove to be the lasting answer for our own individuality.

The word concentration is the key to the solution we are all seeking. When we concentrate on anything, we draw all our energy together, and aim it in one direction. At the same time, the concentration of a substance is the drawing together of the particles of the substance, which makes it more powerful. In other words, concentration refers to power and strength, and that is what most of us feel that we lack in our world.

The successful person, the one who "has it altogether" in any field, is the one who has concentrated, or specialized, in something. "Practice makes perfect" has always been true, and perfection draws respect and admiration, which leads to self-confidence, which leads to success, steadiness and security.

Goose Strangler Wanted

It's a strange world we live in when even a goose isn't safe on the streets of Oarkston in broad daylight.

Last Friday, an adult male came out of the Clarkston Mills, grabbed a Canadian goose out of the Mill Pond, broke it's neck and walked away, leaving the bird on the ground.

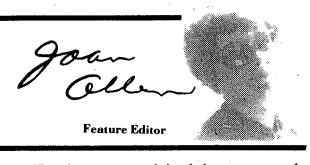

Employees and shoppers at the Mills were both sick and horrified at the incident. So much so, that the police were notified, and a report filed.

Apprehension of "the strangler" could result in a possible fine of $500 for his actions.

a page designed to stimulate opinion

When the experts tout their solutions to our everyday problems, they always offer us an exercise in concentration. Jogging is concentration. Dieting, on any diet, requires concentration. All exercise programs require concentration. Learning to play the piano requires concentration. Developing one's personality, or improving one's looks require concentration. Building a bridge requires concentration. The results are always nice, but I believe it is the act of concentrating, of p 1g all of one's energy and power together that is beneficial to us, not the finished product! That is why the "doing" of the thing gives us more satisfaction than the final results, and why we are so soon bored with what we have accomplished, and why we must seek "something else" to concentrate on so soon afterward. When that possibility is considered, and we accept the fact that it is the act of concentrating which gives us feelings of happiness and satisfaction, we are better able to solve our problems on an individual basis. We no longer have to try out everyone else's field of concentration, searching for miracle cures, but can design our own program, and solve our own problems as they arise.

What is magical about concentration? In order to concentrate, we made a conscious withdrawal from confusion, and it rests us. When we don't concentrate on one thing, we leave ourselves open to every sight and sound in the universe, and that's tiring! When we are over-tired, we become nervous and agitated, and our energy and strength become scattered in the same way that any concentrated substance can be weakened by dilution, or by the force of a greater energy. When we concentrate, we move from a passive state to a state of strength and power, and it makes us feel better because we are better. (To be continued.)

Residents React to Davisburg Foster Care Home

by Kathie Dice

After a prolonged, and somewhat heated court battle, Davisburg has become the locale of an Adult Foster Care Home for Retarded and Handicapped people. As of now, the Home has 6 people in residence there.

A poll that I took of area residents turned up some surprising reactions. the first of which seemed to be "I don't really know much about it". One person said "You don't really get upset about something until it happens in direct relation to you."

Most of the interviewers did seem to think that it was a good idea that these handicapped people are now getting a chance at life. Gwen Thomas made the comment that it is now a state law and that retarded citizens must be treated as normally as is possible.

Wilsons Win Costume Contest

The Oakland County Easter Seal Parents Club, had a Halloween Disco Dance, at the Spring Lake Country Club on Maybee Road, Clarkston, October 28th from 9:00 - 1:00, music by the "SOUNDERS", with costume judging. First prize went to Gar and Shirley Wilson of Clarkston, dressed as the cookie monster and the cookie. Merchants from all over donated door prizes for a total of 12 costume prizes and 38 door prizes.

Dora Lloyd made the comment, "I can't see anything wrong with it (the foster home). Live and let live. I don't really see why they will devalue the surrounding property."

The feeling of June Hasen is that as long as the residents of the home are able to care for themselves and their property, having them live in the area is all right. "It's a good idea that these people have a home to go to, and a place to be," said Inez Samuel.

Mrs. Beeler, an area resident, feels that "it's good that people care enough to help these people. Everybody needs help sometime.

The people who spend their lives working with retarded citizens deserve some type of a medal, since work like this requires much in the way of patience, skill and understanding. And it is necessary that we have people who will take jobs like this."

Petitions Highlight Effort to Get Signal Traffic Problems Widespread in Independence Township

by Carol Balzarini

A series of related events in a single day brought into focus a situation residents of this township may be only too aware off--that of increasing traffic and the increased traffic hazards accompanying it.

Friday, October 27, Tom Boothby, owner of Boothby's Gift Shop on the corner of Dixie Highway and White Lake Road, presented petitions bearing over 4,000 signatures to State Representative Claude Trim and to two representatives of the State Highway Department requesting a traffic signal at that intersection. In business at that location for some years, Boothby is only too aware of the hazards of that intersection having witnessed more than his share of accidents and had more than his share of speeding cars end up in his front, ) yard.

Through a cooperative effort these petitions were circulated in the schools and placed in local banks and businesses. They were signed by school bus drivers, UPS drivers, truckers both local and otherwise, residents of the Clarkston area and visitors alike.

Larry Carlson, owner of Carlson's Corners, turned in ten petitions himself signed on both sides of the paper. () When he ran out of official petitions, he had people signing on butcher paper. These, however, were deemed unacceptable.

Also present that morning were former village president Keith Hallman and township supervisor Whitey Tower who both expressed concern over the hazards of the lightless intersection. Letters of support were presented, along with the petitions, from the ) Independence Township Board, County Commissioner Robert Gorsline and the Waterford Township Schools, whose buses travel that route to the vocational school.

The discussion included the problem of increased pressure on other routes such as Andersonville Road, the last traffic light for people traveling west of the Dixie, and Parview, also used by people trying to avoid the White Lake Road intersection. It was mentioned that many drivers were using, although illegally, the A & P parking lot as a means of getting into the village.

Paul Riley, district traffic engineer for the highway department, said it was his understanding the village wished to avoid increased traffic, but Hallman said he would prefer increased auto traffic if commercial traffic could be cut down.

Riley accepted the petitions with a promise of ') "exhaustive studies" to get a better picture of the accident problem. He maintained a traffic light would not eliminate accidents but merely change the type of accidents. He will check further with the Oakland County Road Commission and get back to Trim when he has some answers. No promises of "when" were made.

Less than one hour after that meeting broke up, an accident occurred at the White Lake Road-Depot Road intersection. There were no injuries but both cars had to be towed away. Increased traffic here, too, is a problem coupled with the grade of Depot Road itself.

Work on this intersection is scheduled for next spring in a project funded jointly by the village and the county. White Lake Road will be widened to 26 feet with the county paying the $11,000 cost. The village will raise the grade of Depot Road with a $22,000 price tag attached. In the village, Gar Wilson of the DPW has put up two-hour parking signs in the lot on the corner of Washington and Holcomb. Increased traffic, due in part to the opening of The Clarkston Mills, has made enforcement of the time limit necessary as many are ignoring the limits and still others are using the lot as a commuter lot. Charles Kimbel, acting director of Police Services, is in the process of interviewing applicants for the position of parking enforcement officer to be paid by the village. The officer will probably work three hours a day, three days a week, anywhere from 9 a.m. on Monday to 6 p.m. on Saturday. Only Kimbel and the officer will know the exact hours. Soon after the first accident at the Depot Road, intersection, another one occurred, this one on M-15 in front of the Nickelodeon. The vision of one driver was blocked by a large delivery truck parked on the shoulder of the highway. Seeing a northbound car stop before truning into the parking lot, the driver apparently assumed the way was clear and drove into the path of a

Access to the restaurant and delicatessen is hampered by the condition of the parking lot itself, in need of paving, the volume of truck traffic, and the lack of flaring from the highway to the parking lot. The Nickelodeon is currently involved in court action for failure to complete site plans as required by the Zoning Board of Appeals.

Still another trouble spot, although primarily a seasonal one, is the Sashabaw Road area of I-75. Known by local law enforcement agencies as a hazardous area, mainly because of the traffic generated by the Pine Knob Music Theatre, a report is being prepared by the State Highway Department for submission to the Federal Highway Administration designating it as a "high hazard" area. Construction of a cloverleaf is possible in 1979 or 1980 as no land acquisition is involved. According to Chief Kimbel the original plan called for a cloverleaf but none was constructed at the time and, in the meantime, the Pine Knob area expanded.

Ninth Graders Tell Their Own Camping Story

For the past three years, ninth graders from Clarkston Junior High have been participating in a camping program designed to promote closer student/teacher and student/student relationships while engaging in environmental studies. In spite of cold weather and somewhat "primitive" conditions at the camp, the students seem to have thrived.

In the words of teacher Kate Germuska, this year's 180 ninth graders deserve "I Survived Camp Nahelu" badges. Despite clogged toilets and chilly temperatures, students agreed overwhelmingly that their five-day camping experiesnce was not only fun but a valuable learning experience.

The Monday following their return from camp, students were asked to think about their time at camp at a deeper level than "did I have fun?" Here is a sample of their reactions to their experiences. Each paragraph contains the thoughts of a different student.

"At camp for the first time, I caught myself giving more of me to others rather than holding back like I do at school. I had the best time of my life because I opened up and was myself...It was almost a camp of survival. It taught us how to get along with each other. It always makes me think of how much for granted I took the things I have at home."

"My thinking of teachers did change. Instead of seeing them as people that give a lot of homework, I saw them as friends. When you had a problem, they were there to try to help you."

"At first my reaction to teachers was that they were boring, but during camp, you really got to see what the teachers were like and my idea about them has changed a lot...Camp really is a valuable learning experience. I mean, you learned a lot about nature and especially being with people for a week, getting out on your own."

"I felt the camp was worthwhile and had a lot to offer like academics, athletics and, most of all, friendship. All of the above are important, but I tend to think friendship most needed. Personally, I think it would be a pretty () lonely place without them...On the whole I think everyone enjoyed themselves in spite of some unpleasant conditions."

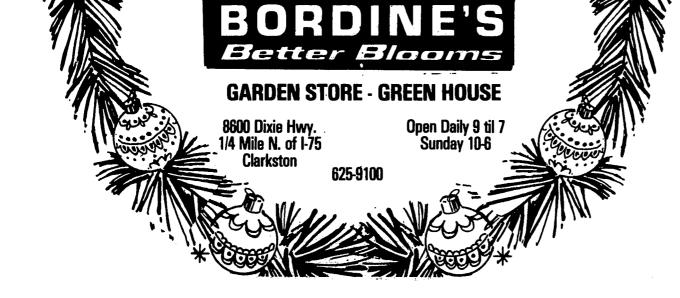

"I think the most important thing camp taught us is that everybody needs help at one time or another and working together can solve most of the problems that we have to get through. Camp probably brought everyone closer and showed us how the world works---everyone I) helping everyone."

"After observing people this past week at camps, I found that people can be cruel to each other, and I thought 'Man, am I like that to other people?" Of course I am. Everyone is at some time in their life...So what I would certainly change is my attitude toward other people."

"The camp naturalists took us around taking pictures /) with our minds. Your mind was the film, your eye was the lens, and your hands made into fists and placed on top of each other were the focus. We got down on our knees and took pictures of frost and plants. Mine turned out pretty good except concurses that a start of the out pretty good except one was a little out of focus. I got some really good close-ups."

"As a camper I've been taught to stop and take a minute to look around. However, I re-learned that we should take time to drink in the beauty of nature for all too often we do not take time to appreciate our sight and the beauty God has Given us...I found that I could easily adjust to my environment even if it's below the standard of living I'm accustomed to...I was capable of turning what I had anticipated would be a miserable time into a wonderful experience."

"I think that now after camp I will look at people from a different perspective. I think that I am more aware of people's emotions. I feel I have learned to like people for who they are, not just what they believe or look like...We have all gotten to know each other for who we really are, and that is very important...I learned that I was me, my own person."

"I learned a lot about nature. When I was walking through the woods, I saw many small creatures. Squirrels scurrying through the fallen leaves, searching for nuts. Chipmunks and many small birds running and flying by...I learned a lot about people, too...It was a great experience."

"Prior to camp, when I went for walks, I would look down at the ground in front of me...I didn't notice such things as the color of the leaves changing, birds flying south, or a wild deer roaming through the woods...Now when I walk, I hold my head up high, listen for different sounds and notice nature's beauty. This is something that can be learned only outdoors in the midst of it all."

"I learned that I could do things on my own and that I was more independent and able to cope with my parents than I thought. I also learned that I didn't have to be afraid to show myself, the 'real' me, and I didn't have to put up a front...I could live without the luxuries of home...It wasn't really so bad, and it taught me many things like edible foods, hiking, and learning about nature, using your senses, and many other things I most likely would never have learned or done."

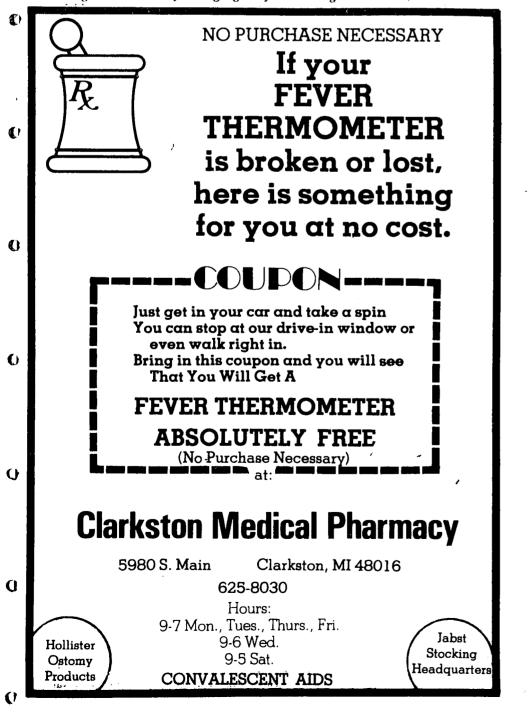

"Was the camping trip worth it? Heck, yes! With one exception...The food!"

Art projects provided some indoor activities."

A Gong Show was one of the highlights of the evening

A deck high up in the trees gave campers a place to look and listen near the wetlands.

as do other schools. By virtue of their nature, funding and goals, they are unique.

Each program at NOVEC has an advisory committee which reviews that program and makes recommendations as to its methods and procedures. Most of the committees meet at the beginning of the school year to evaluate these programs although formal evaluation is required by law only every three years.

According to specific guidelines, three members of a committee must be knowledgeable in that particular occupational field, representative of management and/or labor, and representative of a broad geographical base within the district.

Two should be educators knowledgeable of that program. One may be a high school student or a former student.

One vocational counselor is recommended, as are representatives of community interests.

Serving on the advisory committee for the major appliance repair program which met recently are Clark and Connie Morgan of Keasey Electric, Therm Nichols, self-employed in Clarkston and former instructor of the program, and Harvey Sorensen, owner of an appliance repair in Holly. These people all represent those working in that particular field.

Others serving on the committee are Jeff Smith, a former student now employed with Oakland Office Machines, Dave Elliston, vocational counselor at Waterford Kettering, Dr. James Hannemann, a consultant from Oakland Schools, and Bob Brumback, director of special education for the Clarkston Schools. Principal Dan Manthei, assistant principal Alberta

Donlin and counselors Gene Lewis and Neal Sage, all from NOVEC, complete the committee.

Some of the topics discussed by the advisory committee included employability and employment, safety, equipment, and storage problems.

Major appliance repair is a one- or two-year course, although two is recommended. Some students take the course more for their own personal use than as an occupation. Since the success of the program is judged by the number of students employed in related fields after graduation, a problem arises.

Also directly related in the fact that employment is difficult to find in the immediate area. Although there are a number of large applicance service centers in the Detroit area, many students are unwilling to take jobs in other areas

Since last year's meeting, a number of better safety precautions have been instituted on the committee's recommendation. A greater emphasis has been placed on student attitudes and employability skills.

Storage problems, not limited to this one program, have not been resolved due mainly to a lack of funds, but it is being recognized by the state as a legitimate need. Ub Instructor, Jay Farrell felt that clutter created by lack of space led to problems with neatness and student work habits, but was unable to correct the situation.

The advisory committee noted greater motivation in this year's students, many of them seniors. They also felt the classroom was better organized than last year.

Because major appliance repair students go into so many diverse fields, Farrell, in his teaching, emphasizes the application of certain skills to other areas such as automatic gate openers in parking lots and beauty shop equipment. Since the program provides a basic knowledge of heating, plumbing and electricity, among others, he would like to see more of these factors taken into consideration when his program is evaluated.

Of the nineteen 1978 NOVEC graduates in that program, five are still in school and fourteen are employed but few of them in related fields, Donlin reported.

Farrell also told the committee he felt the instructors needed more practical in-service or workshop experience. This problem is apparently being addressed by the state department of vocational education.

The advisory committee will continue to meet periodically and its members will continue to be available for assistance should the need arise.

Fantasies Come True at Meadow Brook

Fantasies come true--literally--during "Christmas at Meadow Brook Hall."

For five days (Wednesday, November 29 through Sunday, December 3) Meadow Brook Hall will be transformed into a Christmas setting to match the Christmas dreams of almost anyone, but particularly the 17 floral designer who will create holiday decorations to be used throughout the Hall.

This year, according the chairmen Mr. and Mrs. F. James McDonald, there will be no central theme; only time and space will limit the creative genius of these florists who donate their services to benefit the preservation of this historic home on the campus of Oakland University, Rochester.

Hours for the Christmas walk will be: Wednesday-10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. for group tours, 5:30 to 9 p.m. for general admission; all other days--10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. For further information, call Meadow Brook Hall, 377-3140.

Just One of Those Days

Sometimes it's just one of those days when something nice or funny happens, to add a little interest to life - like the housewife that received a visit from the U.P.S. man on the day after Halloween.

The basket of assorted treats had been kept on a table in the front hall, so that when the costumed kiddies had called Trick or Treat, the lady of the house could just reach in and grab a handful of goodies to drop into their bags.

Since she was sleepy by the time the last visitors had departed, she left the treat basket where it was, and so she wasn't surprised when the delivery man asked her if she hadn't had many children stop by the night before.

"Oh, yes," she said, "I just refilled it towards the end of the line." She noticed his fascination with the basket by that time, so said "would you like some of the candy?" The young man looked embarrassed, and said, "Well, if you don't mind," and took a piece. "Take some more," she said, and he took some more. She in the meantime, signed the receipt that he'd held out to her, then he thanked her again, and turned to leave. He then turned back, with a sheepish grin, and said, "I just kind of felt left out last night," and walked off munching a chocolate bar.

PWP Hosts Regional Conference at Silverdome

The Pontiac - Waterford Chapter #273 of the Parents Without Partners will be hosting a conference of the Eastern Michigan Regional Council P.W.P. #57 at the Pontiac Silverdome, on November 10 and 11.

The conference will start with a Touchdown Ball on Friday, November 10, with music provided by Blue Water. The dance will be open to the public.

Continuing on Saturday, the conference will begin with a coffee hour and registration at 8:00 a.m., and will continue with business meetings, workshops, cocktails or a tour of the Silverdome and an awards banquet. Then the weekend's festivities will end with another dance, the Silver Ball, with music by the Sounders. This dance isn't open to the public, and a membership or courtesy card are required.

The objective of P.W.P. is helping parents and their children through crises of a divorce, death or separation. The speakers at the conference will discuss things such as finances, career planning, child management, communication skills and coping with loss.

Many low-cost activities for parents and children are provided, and P.W.P. also provides new singles with the opportunity to re-learn social skills, test new behaviors and reenter the world of dating and courtship. Bi-weekly meetings help the single person get along in the world.

To be eligible for membership in Parents Without Partners, a person must be the parent of one (or more) children, and be single by reason of death, divorce, separation or never married.

Autumn In Springfield

A Picturesque Look at Springfield Township Barns

Somehow barns and autumn just seem to go together. Their weathered boards provide a lovely contrast with the brilliant reds and golds of the changing leaves.

Barn lovers have only to drive along Andersonville Road in Springfield Township in September and October to see a never-ending variety of shapes and sizes of barns and ever-changing colors of leaves.

Question Of The Week

LIABILITY-FOR WHO?

by Sharon Springborn

With the great Fall weather upon us, and the highways and byways of the states crowded with Sunday (or Monday, Tuesday, etc.,) sight-seers, many auto owners are finding out if the machines that they own have defects in them. And if they DO have problems that the auto company knew about, but took no steps to correct, should said company be liable for any losses caused by that defect?

We at the Reminder wanted to know how different Clarkston-area residents felt about just that subject. So, we called 10 people who were selected randomly from the phone book, and asked them about the liability of the producing company. Not one respondent felt that the company shouldn't be held accountable, but 2 persons were undecided as to exactly how they felt. The 8 remaining folks felt that the companies should have to pay for any damages or loss of life that result. and any injuries resulting from owning that car, if they know about the defect at the time." Mrs. Watson expresses the way that the other seven respondents felt about this question, but condensed the feelings.

Grace Wilson felt that as Carol Watson does, and Marian Schwab thinks that if you buy something, it should be perfect, and you shouldn't have to worry about the possibility of anything going wrong.

Standing up for consumer rights is Mrs. Connie Tindell, who feels that it is the manufacturer's responsibility to test their product's reliability before they're put out on the market. "It's their responsibility to put a safe car on the market, because we(the consumers) have no way of knowing if it is safe or not. They should listen to the people they pay to test the cars."

Neither Eva Spencer, or another area resident, had thought too much about cars and defects, so they had no opinions to offer either way. And no one offered an opinion in favor of the auto companies and the cars that they manufacture.

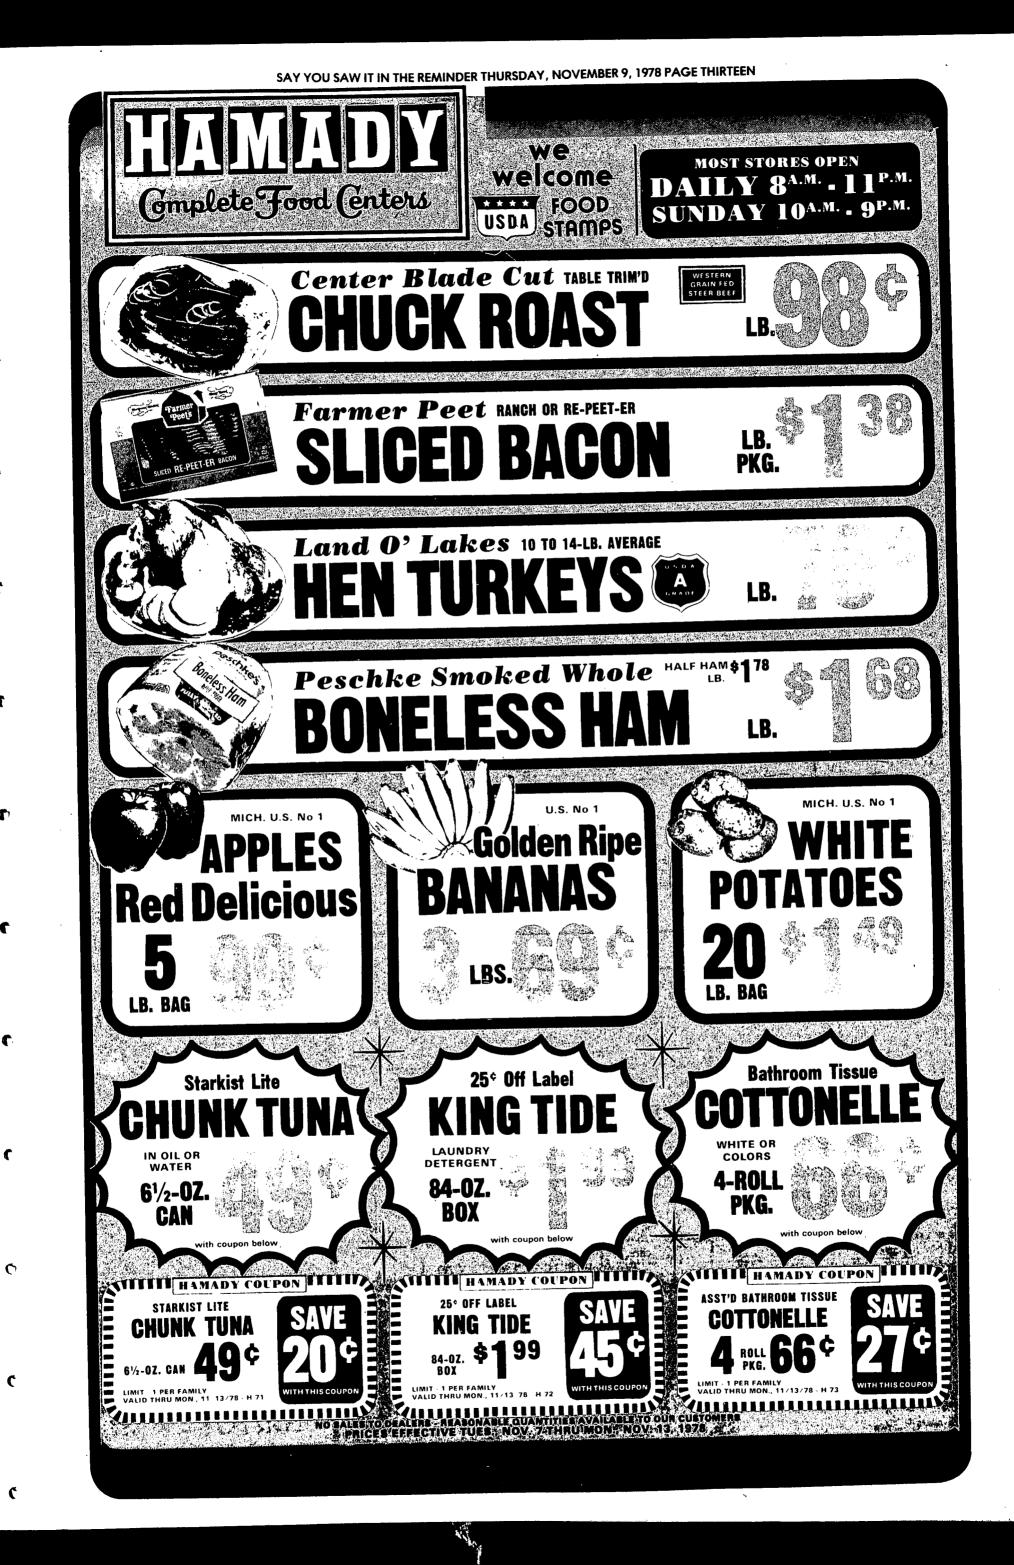

But the remaining call-ees were all in favor of holding the auto companies liable for any damages occurring for the use of their product. Mrs. Carol Watson said, "I feel that the auto companies should be liable for the defect Two women feel that a car is too expensive to have a defect in it. Mrs. Lela Parsons and Mrs. Nadine Schultz think that the companies, who won't do anything to change their product, should be forced to make corrections to make the product consumer-safe.

Having had a car with a defect, Mrs. Barbara Thayer can sympathize with those who buy cars that don't hold up. Her car's engine went out, but caused no damage, but Mrs. Thayer still thinks that the manufacturer should "definitely" have to pay for any damages that do result.

Summing the whole question up was Mrs. Diane Webster, who asks, "If they shouldn't be liable, who should?"

WHAT'S HAPPENING

by Marilyn Bridgeman

The trials and tribulations of putting on a play. I recently was involved in Brandon STAGE's production of COUNT DRACULA. The play closed last weekend, so now I can look back and enjoy the memories of the grueling days of rehearsals, the anxiety over whether the set and cast would be ready at the same time, would there be an audience, plus countless other worries.

Happily, the play turned out very well with great community support though one particular evening really sticks out in my mind.

We had a Halloween performance of Count Dracula.

That afternoon, I received a call that Dracula's cape was missing. I was horrified because this was a most important prop and without it the play would have been sorely lacking.

The cape had been stored in a locked area off the stage which had been broken into the evening before (Devil's Night). We assumed it had been borrowed and offered a $10.00 reward over the schools P.A. system for its return. At 6:00 p.m. (2 hours before curtain) Judy Hostettler, a teacher at Brandon brought the cape to my house. She had received a tip from a student that the cape was in another student's locker. Luckily, Ms. Hostettler was able to retrieve it.

Upon arrival at the school at 7:00 p.m., we discovered that the strobe light used in Act 3 was also gone. This was the last straw. Without the strobe, the whole effect of the third act would be ruined. A frantic search was started to find a replacement. Jim Vantine of the Ortonville Jayees offered to lend us one of theirs. Unfortunately, the Jaycees 4 lights had also been stolen the night before.

With the help of Pete Kier and Tom Amos, custodians at Brandon Schools, an effort was made to find the stolen strobe. The police were called in at 9:00 p.m. to the school to assist in the search. The play had begun at 8:00 p.m. and the strobe was needed by 10:30 p.m.

Officer Damon Shields of the Oakland County Police Department said he would see what they could do to find the stolen property. I was frantic. How could they ever come up with our strobe light in such a short time?

I was too nervous to even watch the play. I waited in the school hall for some ray of hope that meant we would pull this production off. The audience seemed to be enjoying it so far.

At 9:15 intermission was over and Act 2 began. Still no sign of a strobe.

At 10:15 a call came into the school from the dispatcher saying that the police were on their way to the school with our stolen property. I couldn't believe my ears. I eagerly awaited their arrival at the door.

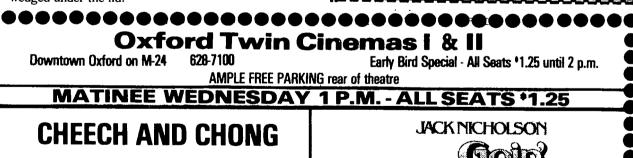

Deputy Shields gave me the strobe which I found out had already been in 3 different people's hands since Monday night. Without his persistance, I am sure we never would have had the strobe light returned to us.

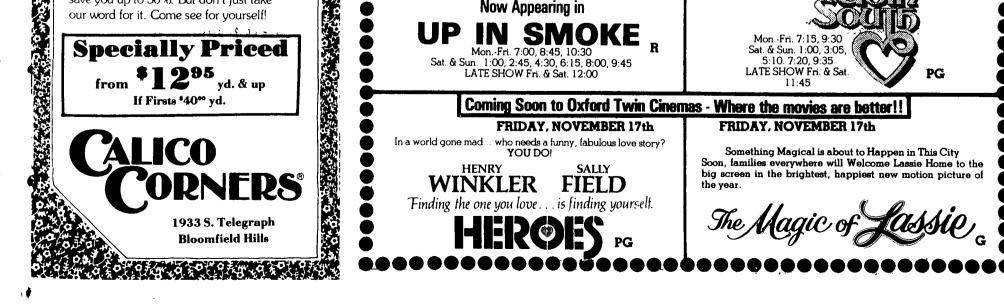

Merrily, I went in to watch the end of Act 3. Everything was all right now and I knew I could enjoy the end of the play.

The crypt scene was set. Everything looked properly eerie. The cast played their parts to the hilt. I was overjoyed. Then the big moment when our beloved strobe light was used--Dracula's death scene. The stake is placed over his heart and is slowly pounded in as the strobe light flashes over the blackened stage. The moment was perfect. Then the coffin lid fell on Dracula's head.

This obviously was not an intended part of the play. The audience, including myself, roared. The laughter just wouldn't die down. Finally the cast broke and started to giggle and smile. The only straight face was that of Dracula who lay in his coffin with his head wedged under the lid.

Know-It-All Grow-It-All

SPLIT LEAF PHILODENDRON

by Bonnie Hale

A jungle vine from Mexico and Guatemala, the split leaf philodendron is a very interesting plant for two reasons: first it very readily attaches, by means of very long, thick brown roots, to brick, stone or cement walls. For this reason they are commonly grown against bark-covered slabs of wood. The roots help stabilize the plant to help keep the plant propped up. The second most interesting factor about the split leaf philodendron is the species name, monstera deliciosa, which means delicious monster.

Monstera refers to the huge plant they eventually become; they often take over an entire room instead of the "little corner" they were originally intended for.

The reason the species name is "deliciosa" is because when the plant is well established it will produce a huge flower, which later becomes a seed pod containing hundreds of the sweetest tasting seeds one could imagine. The 8 to 12" roughly heart shaped leaves are perforated and lobed in a variety of unusual patterns. The leaves have the feel of soft polished leather; as they unfold they are pale green but become deep green as they mature.

Split leaves do best in bright indrect or curtain-filtered sun light. The soil should be kept barely moist at all times. If the soil is kept too dry, the plant will begin to make long roots to help search for more moisture. These can either be tucked into the soil or cut off if they become an eye-sore. Fertilizer should be applied sparingly; twice a year, in early spring and early summer. Propagation can be done several ways: stem cuttings into perlite, vermiculite or sand, sections of main stems, air layering or by seeds.

The split leaf philodendron can be summed up by saying it is one of the best plants for enduring a wide variety of growing conditions, as nothing short of freezing seems to hurt it.

What Happens When All Three Tax Proposals Pass? Analysis by Rep. Charles Mueller

WHAT WILL HAPPEN IF ALL THREE TAX PROPOSALS ARE APPROVED? -- There has been a great deal of confusion and controversy concerning what will happen if all three tax amendments -- the "Headlee" amendment (Proposal E), the "Tisch" amendment (Proposal J), and the "Voucher" plan (Proposal H) -- are all approved. Officials now agree that all three of the proposals can be dovetailed into the constitution if each receives a majority of votes for #### passage.

What would it mean to you if all three amendments come up winners in November? Roughly 75 percent of property taxes would be cut, with property taxes for school operations completely eliminated and property taxes for most other purposes cut in half, in a combination of the Tisch and Voucher plans.

It would also mean that State taxes could be increased by the same amount they were decreased at the local level, because the Headlee amendment contains a provision permitting a tax tradeoff if one is constitutionally authorized and there is no increase in the total dollar amount.

The Headlee amentment (Proposal E) would freeze State spending at about 9.4 percent of personal income for the coming year, would limit any increase in State spending in the future to the increase in personal income in the State, and would permit voters to shift the cost of operating local programs to the State level.

The Voucher plan eliminates property taxes for school operating purposes and requires State aid for all K-12 students in public and private schools.

If the courts rule that the Tisch amendment (which cuts property taxes 50 percent, puts a lid of 5.6 percent on State income tax, presently at 4.6 percent, and establishes a one percent limit for a local school district income tax to be authorized by voters) is in fact a shift or transfer of funding, all taxes lost at the local level could be made up dollar for dollar at the State level. Tisch would allow the Legislature to recover $532 million a year by raising the income tax; in addition, the Single Business Tax probably would be raised from 2.35 percent to 3.34 percent to recoup an additional $400 million, according to officials in the Department of Management & Budget.

If, however, the courts rule that Tisch is not a tax shift, but a tax cut, the State will have no means of raising taxes to reimburse local units for the $1.7 billion they will lose in local property tax revenue. But the State would be able to raise some of the money lost through the Voucher plan, or the Legislature could allow cities to levy more taxes on themselves, or decrease aid to colleges and universities, thus increasing tuition.

If all three propoals are adopted, there will be some losers whose taxes go up, and some winners whose taxes will decrease, because the burden of taxes would be shifted from one group to another. Those who would get a reduction in local property taxes would lose the property tax credit they may have been receiving, and would also find they are paying higher taxes on their incomes, business holdings, cigarettes, liquor and various services.

Independence Honors Hallman, Soulby

Elizabeth J. Hallman and Max S. Soulby were honored by special resolution at the October 31 meeting of the Independence Township Board. Hallman for her sixteen years of "faithful service" and Soulby for twenty-five vears of employment. Hallman is retiring as township treasurer while Soulby, township finance director, receives a gesture of appreciation for his years of work.

Trustee Jerry Powell, in paying tribute to one of the "oldtimers" on the board, said, "If my mother were on the township board, I'd want her to be like Betty."

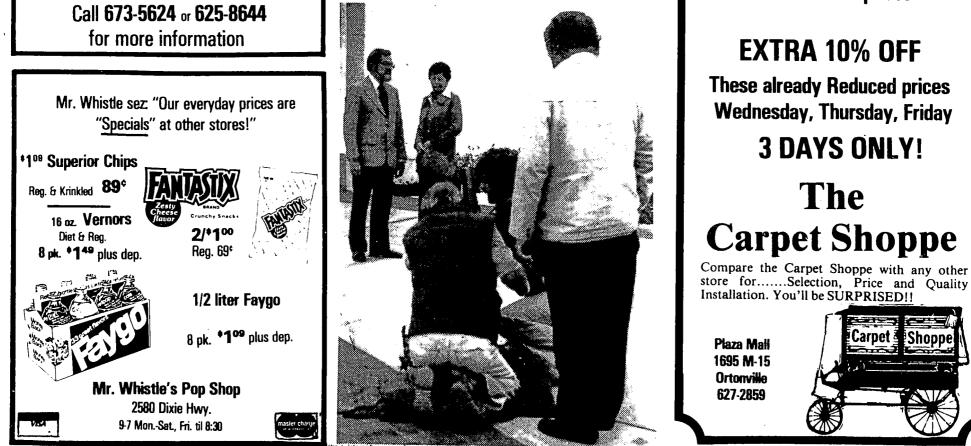

Hallman said in reference to the supervisors she has worked with, "I've worked with four gentlemen all these years...but I'm ready to guit.'

Hallman and her husband Keith, who recently resigned as village president, made it a policy to never attend each other's meetings, but they did attend each other's last ones.

Commercial Center

Once again Clarkston serves as the backdrop for an advertising agency. Camera equipment and technicians came to town several weeks ago to film a sequence for Community National Bank. The commercial will be aired during Hudon's Thanksgiving Day parade on November 23 and features Keith Hallman, marketing consultant for The Clarkston Mills and member of a CNB advisory board and Betty Redder, new manager of the Clarkston Branch of CNB.

V.

Hallman's association with the township began in 1962 when she served as an election worker. Two years later she became a seasonal employee assisting in tax collections. In 1967 she joined the staff of the treasurer's office on a full-time basis. In 1972, she was elected to the office of township treasurer, which she has held until this year when she decided not to seek re-election.

Soulby began working with the township on November 1, 1953. He was cited in a special resolution for twenty-five years of service greatly appreciated by the township.

In presenting the resolution, Clerk Chris Rose commented, "It's a milestone not often seen in local government.'

Ad-Ventures McAnnally Realtors

Gale and Judy McAnnally have had a real estate business in Clarkston since 1972.

The McAnnalley's who live on Waterford Hill in Independence Township with their three children, moved their office to M-59 in Waterford in 1974. In the fall of 1977 the office was moved back to Clarkston. McAnnalley said, "If I'm going to be in real estate for the next 20 years, I'll do it where I want to. Not that I don't like Waterford, but I love this area.'

Located in Clarkston, McAnnally Realtors is growing to the point where a dozen people now work there. McAnnally Realtors is a member of the Local, State and National Board of Realtors. The average amount spend on a house, according to McAnnally is $60,000. Spring and summer seem to be the biggest selling season, because of weather and school vacations.

McAnnally handles primarily residential and vacant land.

McAnnally has started a new building company and hope to build 20 new homes next year.

Kolos Completes Navy Training

Navy Fireman Recruit Nicholas B. Kolos, son of Alice M. and Parker Bates Jr. of 5390 Columbia St., Clarkston, has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill.

During the eight-week training cycle, he studied general military subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic occupational fields.

Included in his studies were seamanship, close-order drill, Naval history and first aid. Personnel who complete this course of instruction are eligible for three hours of college credit in Physical Education and Hygiene.

A 1978 graudate of Clarkston Senior High School. he joined the Navy in August 1978.

Smith Earns NCO Status

 Daniel W. Smith, son of Charles O. Smith of 30050
Dequindre, Warren, has been appointed to noncommissioned officer (NCO) status in the U.S. Air Force. The newly selected sergeant completed required training in management, leadership, human relations and NCO responsibilities, before being considered for this new rank.

Sergeant Smith is a fire protection specialist at K.I. Sawyer AFB, Michigan.

The sergeant, a 1975 graduate of Warren High School, attended Norther Michigan University, Marquette, Michigan. His mother, Mrs. Janice C. Smith, lives at 3861 Red Bud Lane, Clarkston.
