1979 Year of Challenge

Nationwide problems of inflation and costly energy present challenges to our congressional leaders. Problems of such magnitude are not easily solved, nor should we expect to be rid of them by 1980.

Local officials also face challenges during 1979. They may be of lesser magnitude, but they still have a tremendous bearing on the well-being of this area.

Springfield Township has faced angry residents on separate occasions over the construction of adult foster care homes. It isn't easy to disallow the construction of such homes. These people have just as much right as anyone else to live their lives in a natural setting. Yet, neighbors are making a lot of noise. One group is circulating petitions to recall the entire township board.

Springfield has the responsibility to stock and use their new library facility. It's been a long time, since the library idea first materialized. Now it's here. Let's hope residents support it!

Many of Independence's current problems revolve around growth. Groups of neighbors crowd board meetings with complaints against developers and what they're doing to our vanishing rural settings. Obviously, better tabs must be kept on these developers.

Although all's been quiet in recent months, the township police department is running on a shoestring budget. A committee was appointed to look into the police situation—but they have rarely met and have not begun to offer any solutions. The police department is going to need some special attention this coming year.

1978 NOVEC Grads Asked to Respond

Clarkston Community Schools is conducting a survey of all 1978 high school graduates who completed a vocational class while in school. The purpose of the survey is to find out what the vocational graduates are doing and how well they feel school programs have served their needs.

Ms. Alberta Donlin is coordinating the survey for students who attended the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center and Marvin Hess is coordinating the survey for students who completed a vocational class at the high school. The information obtained from the survey will be used in planning better school programs.

Survey forms have been mailed out to vocational graduates. Completed surveys should be returned by January 1, 1979. Prompt return of the surveys will be helpful in completing an accurate survey.

Scabies in Davisburg Elementary

There have been a few cases of scabies in the Davisburg Elementary School. Scabies is caused by a mite that burrows under the skin; produces a raised rash which itches intensely at night. The rash may appear on the finger webbing, back of wrists and elbows, under the arms, around the waist, abdomen, and buttocks. The rash may take up to four to six weeks to develop. Transmission is by close person-to-person contact, shared intimate clothing, sleeping in same bed, shared towels, etc. Treatment is by using Kwell lotion (prescription) following a bath, putting on clean clothes, washing bedding and any clothing. Heat will kill the mite. If you have any questions, call the health department at 634-4418, ext. 8-1348 or 858-1348.

THOUGHTS 'N THINGS

One of the nicest gifts I get each year is usually on everyone else's "least favorite gifts" list. That's at least one new calendar, and I welcome several of them.

To me, a calendar is a bankful of time, and I do a lot of day-dreaming about how I'll spend it! At the same time, I like to look back over the past year's calendar, and see how I've done personally, and how the family has fared.

Of course, like most, I have to carry over a lot of unfinished projects, and even discover some that I forgot to start at all. If they are worthwhile, I vow that this year, they will get started, and finished!

There are sad things to remember. Some friends are gone for good, and others have moved away. On the other hand, each year brings new friends, new experiences, and new opportunities. The beginning of a new year is the time to review, but not to hang onto the past. That's why, after a quick look at last year, I turn to the new calendar with enthusiasm.

I really do vow each year that I will not get older, but better, and I give some thought to how that can be accomplished. Nature is a help, because it has taught me that patience pays off, and not to try to hurry things along that take time to ripen and mature. At least that is what I hope that I have learned. Sometimes, I'm apt to worry that it is a bit of rationalization, and that what I have really learned is to put off until tomorrow what I don't want to bother with today!

It is then that I begin thinking about the fact that "a fault is just a virtue carried to extremes!"

I think about it, because I never look at the old calendar, and the new one, and try to make resolutions about being better, that I don't have to take a look at my faults. When I do that, I find myself ready to defend them as virtues, and immediately, I find something good to say about criticism.

All life is free to grow to perfection, and as only a pine tree knows how to be a perfectly healthy pine tree, only one man or one woman can seek and know what individual perfection is for him or her.

Have you ever noticed that when someone criticizes you, you can find a defense for something that you ordinarily label as a "fault" of yours? It's healthy you know, because "faults" and "virtues" are so often value words. If your reaction is guilt, you have carried a virtue to an extreme.

If I could accomplish something great in the year to come, I would want it to be a grand accomplishment? I would like to have convinced everyone that they "have a right to be here." If I could do that in 1979, I would feel that I had achieved greatness!

Perhaps that is a little ambitious on my part, but anyone who has ever had the opportunity to deal with groups of young people, realizes eventually, that many of the world's woes can be traced back to childhoods that left people in doubt as to whether they had a right to "be here," or not.

Now, this is not a religious sermon. I think that everyone should have a religious education, so that when they say they believe or disbelieve something, they at least know what they are talking about -- but this is one subject that does not need to be discussed in religious terms.

Some things are "built in" in life. We cannot control the sun or the moon. They are there, and we use them to the best of our ability. They have a right to be. The repopulation and rebirth of all forms of life is due to "built in" systems of nature. The attraction, and drawing close of one human to another is part of that "built-in" system, and when it occurs between a male and a female, we call it love. When it is used to the best of our ability, just as we use the sun, moon, fire and water, and children are born of the union, they are born to loving, responsible, parents. When it is misused, children are often born of the union, but they don't always have loving, responsible, parents. Then, the children often feel that they were "bad" for being born. Obviously, if an error was made, it was not by the child, but by the male and female who misused nature's gift.

Joan Allen

The earth is a place where life can flourish, and all life should flourish. Sometimes there is accident or weakness which does damage to life, and sometimes, a bigger, stronger, enemy of one type of life will seek to destroy a smaller, weaker, form. That too is a working part of nature. It is only among humans, however, that the adult so commonly destroys the young by too much interference and meddling in what nature has created. It is only among humans that the "values" of one can imprison the thoughts, the feelings, and the creativity of another -- and that, before the other has lived a fraction of its life.

All life is free to grow to perfection, and as only a pine tree knows how to be a perfectly healthy pine tree, only one man or one woman can seek and know what individual perfection is for him or her.

It just so happens that a man named Jesus Christ taught the same rules to man that other religious wisemen taught, and that those rules are still valid. No matter what your faith or belief, he pointed the way to achieving human perfection, and he taught the way to successful parenting. "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you" is the key to all successful relationships. Sometimes it takes a lot of faith and hope to keep "doing," but those who have tried it, swear by it. If everyone would make it a rule to live by in 1979, this year's calendars would be full of bright stars -- all marking special occasions of love and kindness! Does it sound difficult? Well, it is, -- but there's no harm in trying! Happy New Year!

Modern Interpretation of Ancient Art and Scripture at Calvary Lutheran

by Carol Balzarini

The new addition to Clarkston's Calvary Lutheran Church, dedicated only last October, contains eight stained glass windows representing Biblical events in a stylized design in jewel-like colors.

Prophecy depicts the Christmas story with the Star of Bethlehem at the top, radiating beams of light.

In the initial planning stages, Pastor Robert Walters and the music and worship committee agreed on the themes they wanted depicted: Creation, Covenant, Exodus, Prophecy, Baptism, the Lord's Supper, Easter and Pentecost. Pastor Walters then met with the designer Margaret Bouchez Cavanaugh of Warren.

She interpreted the chosen themes into scale, color drawings and submitted them for approval. Once approved, she prepared full size drawings designating the size, shape and color of each piece of glass.

In the meantime she and the craftsman John J. Mohler, owner of Spectra Studios in Hazel Park, purchased the necessary glass in West Virginia. The type of glass to be used is Norman slab glass. The pieces, called dalles, are about 12 inches square, one inch thick and are made by blowing molten glass into a rectangular sided mold.

A wooden frame was made and filled halfway with sand. Then each piece was hand cut, faceted by striking it with a hammer and placed in position. Faceting creates greater reflection and refraction of light.

Next epoxy was poured in and a colored aggregate bonded to its surface. After hardening, the frame was turned over, the sand replaced by another layer of epoxy, and covered with a different aggregate. Each aggregate blends with the surrounding building materials.

Just One of Those Days

The young mother of two daughters has been taking a lot of complaints from her husband that the children are too dependant on her. She does not want to be an over-protective mother, but the children are only five and eight, and she feels that that is a bit young to fend for themselves. Wanting to be sensible about the whole thing, however, she decided to let the children have more freedom of action.

And so it was, that when she was hanging draperies, and the five year old wanted an orange, and insisted on cutting it in half by herself, her mother agreed to let her. Of course, the child cut her hand, and mom was off the stepladder in a few seconds. She rushed the crying, bleeding, child into the bathroom, and called to her eight year old to "run and get the flour" so she could put it on the cut to stop the bleeding. In the meantime, she held the child's hand up and applied pressure, and could see it was not a deep cut, but she did grow exasperated when her eight year old didn't appear on the double.

She called, "What are you doing, hurry up!" and the child appeared in the doorway, holding a bunch of mums in her fist.

"I said flour, not flowers!" the exasperated mother snapped. "What do you think I want flowers for? I want flour to stop the bleeding!"

By that time, both children were crying, though the bleeding had stopped, and mom realized that she was dealing with two very young and inexperienced people. She decided that daddies didn't know everything, and vowed to protect her children for awhile longer.

That evening, daddy arrived with a surprise. He brought grandma home for dinner. When his wife related the events of the day, daddy's mother said, "Why, how could you let those babies take so much responsibility anyway?" When she discovered who's fault it was--that was one daddy who had "just one of those days!" The result? He decided that some things were better decided by mothers!

Health Department to Offer Expectant Mother Classes

Oakland County Division of Health is offering a fall series of Expectant Parent Classes that will begin Thursday, January 4 at 7:30 p.m. and the last class will be February 22.

The classes are taught by a Public Health Nurse and co-sponsored by the Oakland County Medical Society and various adult education departments throughout the country.

Classes will be held weekly for eight weeks from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m., at the Oakland County Division of Health, 1200 North Telegraph Road, Pontiac.

To register, call 858-1394 before January 2. Pre-registration is advised as classes are limited as to the number enrolled. There is no charge for these classes.

Poet's Corner

SIMON

Making your dash for freedom
Out the door
Between the legs of my dogs.

You hide in the forsythia
Leaving me
To explain
To your Father

Exactly how his favorite cat
Evaded my best grasp.
I call you,
"Pretty Kitty!"
I coax you,
"Pretty Simon!"

Your tail twitches from my fingers.
You circle my approach,
Then press your nose
Against my hand
With arrogance.

Dog
Whimpers on his chain
Outside the door
And looks betrayed
When I unhook him, his brown eyes
asking,
"Why didn't you come out to watch me run?"

He doesn't understand
Telephones
Electric bills
Favorite songs
or impatient lovers;
He doesn't comprehend Responsibility or that all of us are chained and few of us run free:
He only wants to play

Christmas....Past but Still Present

by Betty Good

"To see Christmas through the eyes of a child--let this be your gift" read one of the first cards received this year. With two elementary-schoolers in the home, that isn't hard to do since they "see" Christmas coming long before adults do; and their preparations begin early. Presents are wrapped before the Thanksgiving turkey wishbone is completely dried, and actual count of the days 'til Christmas is kept by removing one link daily from a red and green paper chain constructed especially for this purpose.

Children are singing joyously at school Christmas programs and making "no bake" cookies before most of us have completed our list, let alone our shopping.

"Seeing Christmas through the eyes of a child" has made for a longer "countdown" period this year--and the sustained anticipation can be wearing on an adult.

Nevertheless, while sharing the world of children--as teachers, school bus drivers, and pediatricians do every day--one can find both wisdom and innocence reflected in their conversation.

Here are a few memorable remarks overheard during this Christmas season:

(While driving Cub Scouts home after a fresh snowfall)

"Gee, Alan, look! There's a yard that hasn't even been stepped in yet!"

(Brother and sister reading the Classifieds together)

"Save this paper, Mom. We're thinking about getting Uncle Don a puppy for Christmas."

(Through 8-year-old tears when Dad didn't buy the right gift for the school party)

"Ohh, Dad..I only wanted to spend a $1.00. It isn't that big a party!"

(Little boy eying large display of Mattel toys at shopping center)

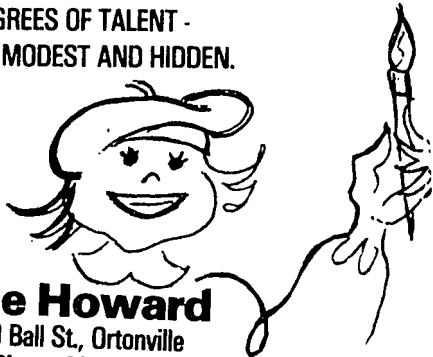

"Hey, Mom. Can I have all these?" Answer: "No, Jimmy. We have to save some for the other children!"

But the child who almost made a believer in Santa out of me was the little boy who, with his parents, left the church Christmas party pictured. Looking up to the top of the three-story-high steeply pitched church roof he said, "I wonder just where on that big roof Santa is!"

Lake Oakland Woods Plat Rejected

by Carol Balzarini

Gene Komarynski representing Edward Rose Building Company appeared before the Independence Township Board again, this time bringing attorney John Shantz with him. Shantz read a letter to the board requesting approval of phase III of Lake Oakland Woods, assuring board members that all requirements had been complied with, that telephone, electrical and sewer lines and some curbing were in, and that 27 building permits had been applied for. Further delay would be costly to the builder, he warned.

Shantz then cited the subdivision control act which requires that a plat be approved if it complies with that act. It further requires that action be taken within 20 days of the request or at the next regular meeting of the township board. The original request was made November 21.

A letter was read from township engineers Johnson and Anderson stating only one area in the subdivision qualifies as a wetland and that is adjacent to Lake Oakland. The letter also stated no serious disturbance of the area was noted during an inspection; the township, however, must get a drainage easement for it.

Supervisor Floyd Tower reported that township attorney Richard Campbell was still reviewing the items requested by the board at their last meeting and was not prepared to report to them at that time. Del Lohff of Kieft Engineering was satisfied that all procedures had been complied with. A letter from the state stated approval can be held up for only a few specified reasons.

Clerk Chris Rose then brought it to the board's attention that no tentative preliminary plat approval had ever been granted and that no monument bonds had been posted with the township.

Trustee Bill Vandermark questioned the fact that the original application referred to four wetland areas of some 56 acres and now Johnson and Anderson only refers to one ten-acre site.

A lengthy discussion ensued with the problem appearing to be one of the interpretation of "compliance with requirements." Lake Oakland Woods residents present agreed many of their problems have been resolved since postponement of plat approval at the last meeting.

Rose then moved for rejection of the plat for six specific reasons which apply to phase III only.

1. Apparent lack of compliance with the wetlands ordinance, i.e., the discrepancy between the original 56 acres mentioned and the present 10.

2. The final plat is different from the approved final preliminary plat, i.e., an open area south of phase II has been omitted and labeled unplatted.

3. Lack of a permit to work in a wetland area. It had been applied for but never granted by a previous township board.

4. Lack of tentative preliminary plat approval. The request was tabled in July of 1974 and not discussed again until October of that same year when final preliminary plat approval was granted. There is no explanation for this either.

5. Lack of funding in escrow to insure placement of lot stakes and monuments required by the state plat act.

6. No recorded drainage easement across the aforementioned open area south of phase II as noted by Johnson and Anderson.

Shantz noted Rose was "leading the board down a very dangerous path." He noted further the word "apparent" did not constitute sufficient reason for rejection and reiterated 20 days was the limit for board action.

Trustee Jerry Powell responded, "We've been down dangerous paths before and have come out pretty well." He added, however, he would move to table rather than to reject.

Rose and trustees Rudy Lozano and Bill Vandermark and Treasurer Fred Ritter, voted for rejection of the plat. Tower and trustees Mike Thayer and Jerry Powell voted against the motion.

The board's rejection means Rose Builders must reapply for final plat approval after complying with the six items set forth by Clerk Chris Rose in his motion.

When contacted later in the week, Komarynski told The Reminder he and his associates had already met with township officials for "clarification and direction."

"There's no way we want to go to court," he said. "That's a no-win situation. It's expensive for us and the township...I think these problems will be cleared up without having to go to court."

"We Can't Control the Quality of the Doorknobs...."

by Carol Balzarini

In a recent interview with Independence Township Supervisor Floyd Tower he discussed briefly the situation existing at Lake Oakland Woods.

Tower explained the township could step in if it were a question of health, safety and welfare. The township is responsible for code violations, whatever is in writing.

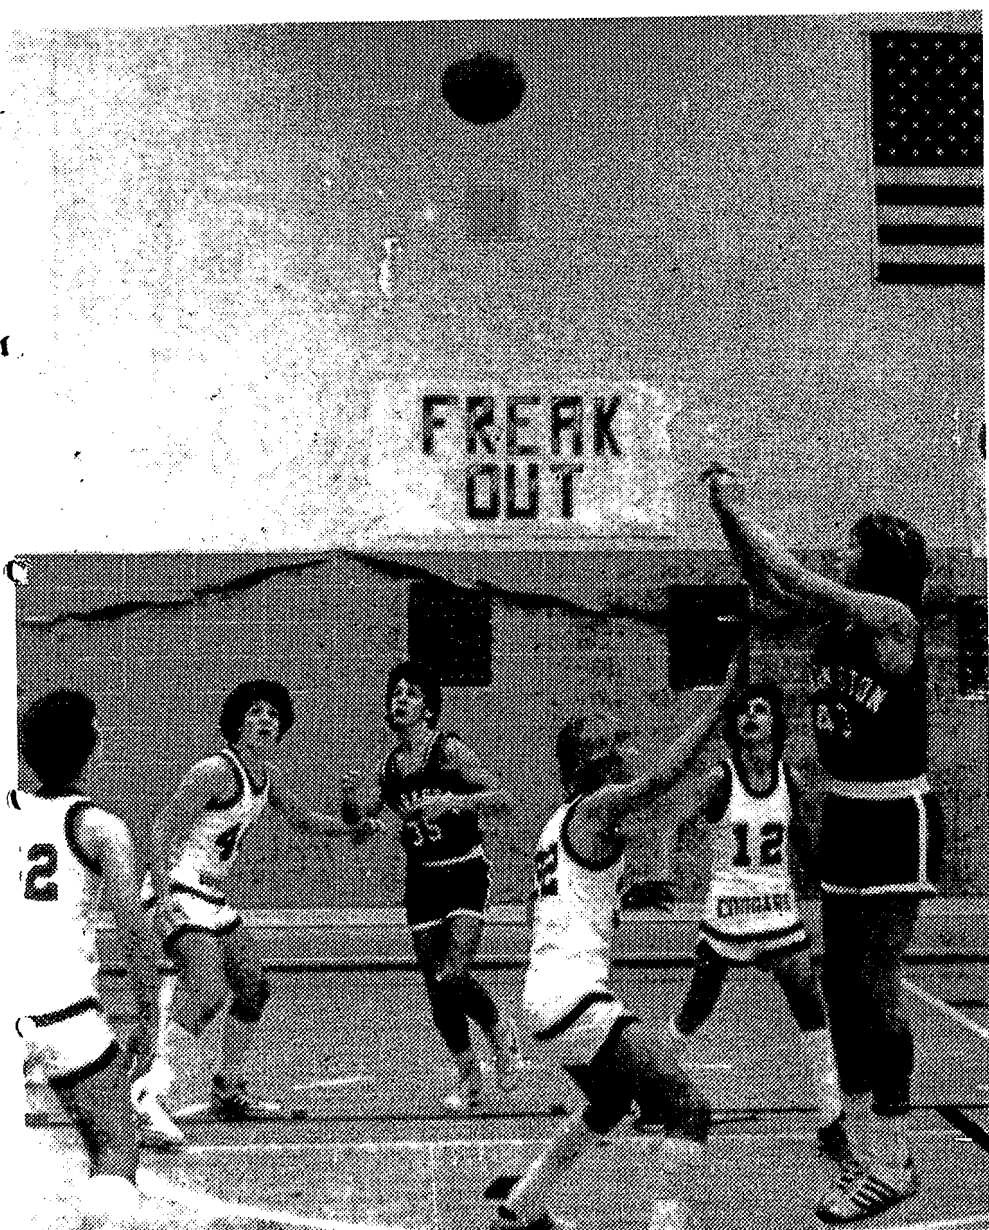

There's not much we can do," he said. "In my mind, the county won't go along with the safety aspect. It's a production building company (Rose). It's a long fight to get the problems cleared up. Getting the house built is their primary concern."

He explained that the township no longer had its own building codes but used those of BOCA, Building Officials Code Administration, which set minimum standards and he stressed the word "minimum." He said it was to their (the builder's) advantage money-wise to follow that code.

Tower said much of the homeowners' frustrations stemmed from the fact that no one person was responsible for the entire operation. "The maintenance crew is separate from the real estate crew, for example. It's a big corporation," he said. "Each aspect of building is a whole separate operation."

"We (the township) can't control the quality of the doorknobs and paneling. They're following minimum standards according to the code."

He said he felt the homeowners were looking for custom-built quality in a production home, on one hand, while the builders were producing homes in a size and price-range in great demand, on the other.

Gary Carte [43] shoots for the basket, 35 is Brad Collins, Cougar Cagers are Kevin Teague [42], Jim Locher [12], and Klaus Ohrnberger [32] attempting to block the shot. The game matched cross town rivals Clarkston Junior High and the Sashabaw Junior High Cougars. The Cougars won.

Davisburg Lumberyard Has Lady Manager

If you call the "lumberyard" in Davisburg, you would expect to hear a deep male voice, but instead you hear a sweet, female voice saying, "Lumberyard, may I help you?"

The voice belongs to Sandra Robbins of Davisburg. She has been employed by Davisburg Building & Landscape (The "Lumber Yard") for 6½ months.

Due to financial difficulties manager Steve Dice had to get an additional job. The problem? Where do you get a good manager for a fairly new business on short notice? Mr. and Mrs. Robbins are building their own home and they had been purchasing all their supplies at the lumber yard, after talking to the Robbins, Dice asked Mrs. Robbins if she would like a job. Mrs. Robbins accepted, henceforth, the Lumber Lady.

Mrs. Robbins does almost every thing from cutting lumber to trying to carry 4' X 8' sheets of plywood, which she says get a little difficult at times.

Mrs. Robbins really enjoys the job, it's a hassle at times especially when there's no one around to help, there is also so much to learn.

"In the lumber business, when men come in and see a woman behind the counter and doing most everything the men do, I get a lot of peculiar looks, they probably wonder whether I know what I'm talking about, but most men are very helpful and understanding," Mrs. Robbins says.

Everything seems to be working out quite well, all is adjusting and Davisburg has a Lumber Lady, maybe a first for the ERA.

Calvary Windows Depict Ancient Art and Scripture is a relatively new one, perhaps only thirty years old, as compared with other styles which date back to the very early centuries.

Although colored glass was used as early as the fourth century to decorate the windows of churches, historians consider the windows of St. Denis in France to be the first accurately dated in 1144. Stained glass windows were the hallmark of the Gothic style relating the stories of the Bible to the illiterate worshippers.

Stained glass art grew, flourished, and reached its peak during this period. The windows became so glorious that some of the clergy feared they were valued more for their beauty than for their message.

Religious and social change, plus the Black Death that swept across Europe in 1348, cause the art of making stained glass to deteriorate until a revival began in France in the early nineteenth century.

Early stained glass in this country was imported from Europe. Art glass, using opalescent rather than transparent glass, became popular in the 1880s. Louis Tiffany is the name most commonly associated with art glass.

Stained glass is currently enjoying a resurgence of popularity. The ancient art, once associated mainly with churches, can now be found in homes, restaurants and other public buildings. Lamps, planters and little ornaments are some of the many items now being created from stained glass.

New Book Details Guyana Massacre

CO-AUTHORED BY SAN FRANCISCO
CHRONICLE JOURNALISTS INVESTIGATING THE PEOPLES TEMPLE SECT FOR TWO YEARS

The first book about the murders and mass suicide of more than 900 people at the religious commune in Jonestown, Guyana--THE SUICIDE CULT by San Francisco CHRONICLE correspondents Marshall Kilduff and Ron Javers--went on sale recently. The book is an outgrowth of that newspaper's long-term coverage of the People Temple, from its simple origin and its shocking notoriety as "The Suicide Cult."

Published by Bantam Books at its 64th Extra, THE SUICIDE CULT has as its subtitle THE INSIDE STORY OF THE PEOPLE TEMPLE SECT AND THE MASSACRE IN GUYANA. It features Javers' exclusive and riveting eyewitness account of the slaying of Congressman Leo Ryan and four others, coupled with an in-depth investigative report on the mysterious cult and its leader, the Rev. Jim Jones.

Marshall Kilduff has been covering the People Temple and its leader for more than two years and co-authored an expose of the cult published in the August 1977 issue of NEW WEST magazine. Kilduff's investigative reporting was influential in bringing the controversial activities of Jones and his followers to the attention of the slain Congressman Ryan. Reporter Ron Javers had accompanied the Congressman to Guyana on his fact-finding mission, was an eyewitness to the ambush and was himself wounded. Nationally-known columnist Herb Caen had interviewed and regularly corresponded with the Rev. Jones in both San Francisco and Guyana.

Revealed for the first time in book form in THE SUICIDE CULT are details of:

*Javers' first-hand account of his trip to Guyana and his 12-hour denial of entry by customs officials; his interview with Jones; his encounters with disaffected cult members; the ambush; his escape into the jungle and his almost fatal 18-hour wait for medical assistance.

*Jim Jones' early years in Lynn, Indiana; his precocious religious proclivities; establishment of the People Temple; its migration to Ukiah, California, then San Francisco and finally Guyana.

*The staggering riches accumulated by Jones and the People Temple (some $10 to $15 million by mid-1977, according to the authors); how it was collected and dispersed; and by whom.

* The weekly "White Night" devotionals to Jones during which sect members rehearsed for a mass suicide.

* The custody battle waged by Grace Stoen and former Temple lieutenant Jim Stoen over their six-year-old son John Victor, whom Jones claimed to have sired. (Jones reportedly said the principle reason he would never return to the United States was because he would be forced to give up custody of the child).

DSS Institutes Complaint Procedure for Residential Care Facilities

The Michigan Department of Social Services (DSS) implemented in November, 1977 a complaint procedure for accepting and investigating reports of abuse, neglect and exploitation of adults living in nursing homes, homes for the aged and adult foster care facilities.

According to Luella Bingham, Adult Community Placement Complaint Coordinator for the local DSS office in Pontiac, her unit has investigated 32 complaints to date in Oakland County. A breakdown of these complaints show 19 related to nursing homes and 13 involved adult foster care facilities.

Mrs. Bingham feels that not all cases are being reported because the public is unaware of who to contact regarding these complaints. In addition, they may fear retaliation to the resident of the facility.

"The name of the complainant or other identifying information will be kept confidential if requested," assures Mrs. Bingham.

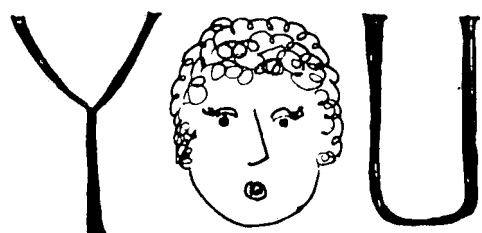

Any person wishing to file a complaint relating to a nursing home, home for the aged or adult foster care facility in Oakland County may contact Mrs. Bingham at 196 Oakland, Pontiac, 48058, telephone 855-4902.

Bother Me!

by Mandy Mitts

Dear Mandy,

I have no one I can talk this problem over with and I need a quick answer.

Last weekend I went out with a boy (I'll call him Arnold) and he said we were going to go to the movies. This was our first date. To make a long story short he drove right past the theater and we ended up at some parking spot. We stayed there for three hours; my mind kept saying "go" but my body said "stay", I guess my body won out. Nothing bad happened and luckily I read the book so when my mother asked me about the movie I could answer her questions. Arnold and I have another date for this weekend; I don't mind parking for about one hour, but three hours is a little tiring. Besides I can't keep reading books that were made into movies!! I think I'm in love so don't tell me to stop seeing him, but I do want to control him. What should I do?

Helpless

Dear Helpless,

It's difficult to give you a quick answer. You are facing a problem that no amount of advice from outsiders will solve, and that you are not prepared to solve for yourself-or it would not have arisen in the first place. Take heart though-the only people who know enough to be prepared for such problems are those who have faced them before, and found themselves unprepared.

You cannot gain control of Arnold. You can gain control of yourself. The problem you face now is that if you gain control of yourself, Arnold may wander away looking for someone else to have fun with. If you don't gain control of yourself, he will probably wander away eventually anyway. Now is better than later as far as you are concerned.

You are greatly attracted to Arnold physically, or you would not have parked with him for three hours. Arnold is attracted to you or he probably would not have asked you out in the first place. As a result, you are both on an ego trip. You make each other feel attractive and wonderful, but the relationship is based on the fact that you are of opposite sexes. Need I remind you that there are a great many other people of the opposite sex in the world-and that you could fall in love with any one of them that makes you feel the same way that Arnold does?

The only physical relationship you can trust, is one that has grown out of mutual admiration and respect.

That means that you have to know and like the other person first, and have the physical relationship grow out of your feelings for each other. I am fully aware that our society has taught young people that it is the other way around, which accounts for much of the disillusionment that exists today-but it is a fact that a physical relationship is not a workable tool for getting acquainted.

Loving someone else because they are good, kind, and responsible, is a wonderful experience, even if they don't love you in return. It is a lasting kind of satisfaction that tends to make one want to grow into the type of person the loved one is. Loving someone because they make you feel great is only self-love - and if they stop "loving" you, it is as if you had lost those qualities. The result is extremely negative.

Most young men are aware that love demands responsibility-that love-making is fun. Most of them are not looking for responsibility-a great number of them are looking for fun. Arnold got right to the point. You can suggest a date aimed at getting acquainted with him, rather than parking for several hours-and he might just take you up on it-and you will have gained control of the situation. If that happens, you may find that you have gained a friend. If he declines, don't waste time worrying about it-you won't have lost one.

Mandy

P.S. For further information on the subject of love, read "The Art of Loving", by Erich Fromm.

the Arts.

Imagine no theatre No music No sculpture or painting Picture the arts gone and you picture a lot of beauty missing

But the arts not only create beauty they create jobs

Because the arts attract tourists And the dollars tourists spend in restaurants and hotels on transportation and in stores

The arts attract industry Businesses prefer to locate in communities with a rich cultural life

And the arts are an industry in themselves Like any other industry they employ people buy goods and services and generate taxes

Picture your community without the arts and you have to imagine industry and jobs gone, too And after that, the people

So it'd not only be pretty dull, it'd be pretty lonely

It was the week after Christmas and all through the house
Not a creature was stirring not even my spouse
The stocking had hung
by the chimney with care
And Santa had filled them with all he would dare
Now Mom with her pencil
and I with a pen
Were steeling down
to settle up again
There were bills from the baker
the toyman and more
From uptown and downtown and every darn store
Our worries seemed many our budget a wreck
When Mama remembered
our Christmas Club check
It paid all our bills with something to spare at 1st National Bank of Fenton they really do care!
