Bother Me!

by Mandy Mitts

Dear Mandy,

I have always loved cats, and it broke my heart to give up Fluffy, who was a white and orange beauty. My husband's father came to live with us recently, and since he is allergic to cats, it was necessary to find a new home for Fluffy. A friend of our daughter always adored our pet, so I offered Fluffy to her, and she accepted. Well, day before yesterday, Fluffy presented her with four kittens. None of us had guessed that Fluffy was expecting! My niece said she would love to have one of Fluffy's kittens, so I called the new owner and she was snippy. She said she planned to sell the kittens, and my niece could call her about prices! What can I do I'm just sick about this.

Disillusioned!

Dear Disillusioned,

I am sorry, but I don't believe you have any rights in this instance. You gave your cat to the new owner, and thereby gave up your rights to it, and the kittens. If your niece wants one of the kittens, you will have to advise her to buy it. Since the new owner is a friend of your daughter's, your daughter may be able to persuade her to give up one kitten, or at least make a minimum charge to cover and care until it is old enough for a new home. It might be more sensible, and simpler to go to the Humane Society, however, and get a kitten there. There are pets of all kinds there, just begging for homes, and the whole situation with Fluffy can be forgotten. It should be, since there is little that you can do about it.

SOMETIMES WINNERS ARE LOSERS

Sometimes winners turn out to be losers. Just as the Balzarini and Burkemo families of Clarkston and the Patterson family of Royal Oak. For the past two months they have been entering ski races at Pine Knob billed as the Equitable Family Ski Challenge. The races were for father-daughter, father-son, mother-daughter, and mother-son combinations with one final winner from each category.

Don Balzarini, his fifteen year old daughter Angela, and his thirteen year old son Andy captured the father-child positions while Flo Burkemo and twelve year old Lisa and Elizabeth Patterson and seventeen year old Dan were the mother-child winners. All are season ticket holders at Pine Knob, all of them love to ski and all of them entered with the idea they would be competing in the regionals, if they won, scheduled for Pine Knob on March 13.

It never occurred to them they would have to ski anywhere else, especially since they knew any regional competition was to be entered at their own expense. But for a possible rip to Snowbird, Utah, to compete in the nationals, they all figured it was worth the effort.

All were notified last week by Capital Sports in New York, apparent organizers of the event, they were not to be allowed to compete at Pine Knob but could have the choice of going to either Belleayre in the Catskills in New York or Keystone, Colorado. Their reasoning was that competing at Pine Knob would give them an unfair advantage as it was their "home" ski area. With that same reasoning, maybe some of our American ski team will not be allowed to compete in the Winter Olympics next year because it will be held at Lake Placid where they may have skied.

This past week Balzarini made his share of telephone calls to Capital Sports and to the Equitable Life Assurance Society, sponsors of the challenge in cooperation with the U.S. ski team. Capital Sports remained firm in its contention that the families will not compete at Pine Knob despite additional calls in their behalf from members of Pine Knob's staff. Ken Vetter, director of programs for the insurance company in New York, was equally discouraging when contacted and seemed to suspect the families were just looking for financial assistance to get to New York or Colorado. That definitely was not the case, they only want to be allowed to ski at Pine Knob as they had assumed they would all along.

Time is running out, however, as the regionals here at Pine Knob have been rescheduled for Sunday, March 4. Local skiers could never figure why they had been set for the 13th originally because anyone who knows anything about ski conditions in Southeastern Michigan knows you take your chances with the weather once the first of March rolls around.

The families really aren't out a great deal money-wise except maybe for the Balzarinis. What they have invested in entry fees just about equals the Bogner turtle-necks they have discovered are their local prizes. Balzarini now is wondering if he will get two turtle-necks because he was a winner in two categories or whether he'll just get one. The same holds true for the Salomon backpacks they are all scheduled to received.

Balzarini had a number of things to say about his plight, not all of them printable, but mainly he feels the parents and children have been cheated out of a chance to win a trip to Snowbird. He doesn't think it's fair that Challenge organizers expect them to spend a possible $4-500 to go to New York to compete for a possible $8-900 trip to Utah.

Two of Pine Knob's top ski instructors are so angry they have volunteered to take Angela and Andy to New York posing as their father and "blow the rest of them (the contestants) off the hill." That is neither possible nor practical but nevertheless shows how emotionally involved they have become in the whole affair.

Representative Anderson Speaker at Lincoln Banquet

U.S. Rep. John B. Anderson of Illinois will be the featured speaker at the 90th Annual Lincoln Banquet, Friday, March 2. The Lincoln Banquet sponsored by the Oakland County Lincoln Republican Club will be held at the Raleigh House in Southfield.

Rep. Anderson of Illinois, a 1980 Presidential aspirant, is described as one of the most able debaters in the House, and "an accomplished orator" with a clear grasp of complex issues. First elected to Congress in 1960 as a spokesman for the moderate wing of the party, Anderson first drew nationwide attention in April of 1978 when, as a member of the strategic Rules Committee, he cast the deciding vote which permitted the entire House to vote on Federal Open Housing legislation.

"Highlights of the evening will include announcement of the winners of the 1979 Lincoln Essay Contest and entertainment by the Lincoln Marine Band made up of persons of all ages from Howell, Michigan" announced Mr. Rick Fessler, Lincoln Club President.

The Lincoln Club purpose is to revere and perpetuate the great emancipator, Abraham Lincoln. The Essay Contest is open to all Oakland County High School Seniors, and is a means of making the life of Abraham Lincoln meaningful to young citizens.

Dinner tickets can be obtained by contacting the Oakland County Republican Headquarters at 646-8414 or Mike Batchik at 682-8800.

Strep Throat, Scarlet Fever Reported up in Oakland

The number of cases of strep throat and scarlet fever reported to the Oakland County Division of Health from area schools is exceeding the number of cases reported this time last year. To date, 225 cases have been reported compared to 143 cases at this time last year.

Strep throat and scarlet fever are caused by a streptococcus bacterium which is spread by direct contact, such as touching or kissing someone who has a strep infection. Strep throat is characterized by a sore throat, pain on swallowing and fever. Scarlet fever is a form of streptococcal disease which is associated with a skin rash, in addition to the above symptoms. Medical treatment is advised for all streptococcal infections. Untreated cases can result in rheumatic fever, heart damage and hearing loss.

The Oakland County Division of Health advises these precautions:

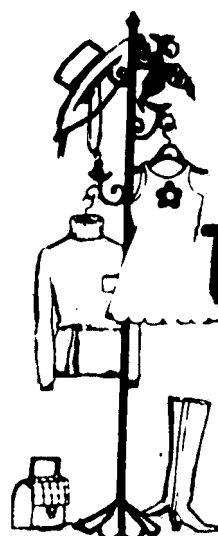

1. Dress properly in cold weather
2. Avoid crowded conditions which may enhance person to person transmission
3. Seek medical care if any family members exhibit symptoms of strep throat or scarlet fever.
4. If your child is diagnosed as having a streptococcal infection do not send him/her to school until directed to by your physician.

THOUGHTS 'N THINGS

I saw a poster today that caught my eye. By it's design and huge words printed on it. The design that covered the whole page was a huge cross-section of a snail. The words that accompanied the design were something similar to "We carry within us the world that we live in." That may not be exact, but it is very close to a truth that I recognized a long time ago. It is not one of my favorite truths, because it is a constant reminder to work and I am inclined to be lazy at times.

The truth is that we judge others by our own failures and accomplishments, whether they are internal or external ones. We see ourselves as "controls" by which we can judge the possibilities and probabilities of the behavior of other humans. In affect, we expect no more of anyone else than we can expect of ourselves, and we expect no less of anyone else than we expect of ourselves. The result is that we perceive the world as one which is made up of people just like ourselves.

When we say "people are jealous of what I am, or what I own," we are really saying, "If I were someone else observing what I am or what I have, I would most certainly be jealous!" Now that is not all wrong. Jealousy does exist, and we can be harmed by it when others feel it where we are concerned. The problem is that we have no way of knowing whether or not others want the things that please us. If they have no interest in our "prizes" they obviously will not be jealous of our ownership.

Perhaps this is confusing. It really is something that we all must work through as we grow out of childhood, however, and so I have begun to wrestle with it when I have confronted it. As a matter of fact, I have not only confronted it recently, but been "bowled over" by a couple of sad examples of it. Perhaps an example will make it clearer.

A middle-aged woman who really does have a great many of the world's goodies, cried on my shoulder recently. Though I have considered us friends, it has been a "social" sort of friendship which has involved our families--so we have not "shared personal confidences" as one might do with an old friend. However, this woman saw fit to tell me how awful it is, that none of her friends really like her. "It's because they are all jealous of what I have," she told me.

There was more, but that was her major complaint about "other women." I, presumably, am also jealous, and don't really like her since I too am "another woman." Needless to say, I was annoyed by her charges against all the "other women" that she was judging, and she was fast on her way to losing another would-be friend.

There was more, but that was her major complaint about "other women." I, presumably, am also jealous, and don't really like her since I too am "another woman." "Needless to say, I was annoyed by her charges against all the "other women" that she was judging, and she was fast on her way to losing another would-be friend.

This woman and I have many mutual acquaintances and friends. It is true that she is not "universally loved" by all the other women she knows. It is because she is overly suspicious, overly jealous, and overly critical of every other woman she meets. When that shows up in her personality, she "turns people off." She knows how she feels toward others--and using herself as an example of an average human being, believes that everyone else feels that way towards her--and she is hurt by it. In other words, she is transferring her feelings to others, and thereby carrying the world she lives in within herself.

Now, I stated that that is not one of my favorite truths, because it is a constant reminder to work. That is because I am aware of the need to be on guard against such transference. It is one of those "instinctive" ways of learning a general truth when there is no way of learning more specific ones--sort of a "rule of thumb" for self-preservation. We can learn a great deal about the needs and wants of others by our own human condition. We can make an educated guess that other humans need love and kindness and sympathy, just as we do. We can also assume that other humans may react in anger when attacked, etc. That is helpful to us. When we stoop to a display of poor manners, selfishness, self-centeredness, bad dispositions, greediness, laziness, etc., and then blame our friends negative reactions to such behavior, on "jealousy" however--we are misusing the "instinct."

Joan Allen

I wanted to tell this woman that she was lucky that some women have tried to get through to her by criticizing her to herself. They are the truest friends she has--because they don't give up on her and walk away, as I was sorely tempted to do! We so often tell each other about our observations of other people, and how they are their "own worst enemies," and then keep them a secret from the very people who would be helped by those observations.

If you've followed me this far, you've run into a problem by now, and I will appreciate any help you can offer me--because this is where I run into a problem.

What do your friends tell you if somebody comes up and says, "I'm only telling you this for your own good," and then proceeds to criticize you--and you relate it to said friends? Why, if they are good friends, they say, "Oh, whoever said that is probably just jealous of you!" There must be a way of finding out who is trying to hurt--and who is trying to help. I just haven't figured that one out yet. I think we should all try though, it might even end up with everybody being everybody's friend.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Dear Carol,

Thank you so very much for coming to our Easter Seal-Waterford children today.

We appreciate the time you spent with us. It is important for children to know that many people help us and we will remember our special newspaper reporter. Thanks, Carol, for your nice and easy way with the children and for all the information you shared with us.

Sincerely,
Mary Ann Hacker

Dear Ms. Good:

Enjoyed your struggle with trying to find a difficult way to get into a parking lot that is an easy access lot. It was enlightening to read of a newspaper dynamo being "intimidated" by traffic flow or considering using a private parking lot for something it wasn't intended, rather than use public roads.

Probably going back into the archives of your grade school time you'd have remembered that the shortest distance between two points is a straight line. Glad you finally used that old principle.

Only one adder: the company you were looking for was Oakland Office Machines in my new building "Clarkston Commons". Would have loved some credit since we were the brunt of your day of confusion.

Very truly yours,
Edward W. Santala

Representative Claude Trim Introduces Legislation to Let those who Commit Non-violent Crime Make Restitution, No Jail or Fine

A person convicted of a non-violent crime could be ordered to make restitution as an alternative to jail or a fine under Legislation just introduced by State Representative Claude A. Trim (D-Daviburg).

The restitution alternative would apply to both adults and juveniles. "If a person commits a crime which results in damages or losses to others, sending that person to jail or fining him does not compensate the victim," Trim said. "The package of bills I have introduced gives consideration to the victim, whether it be an individual or a business. If property is stolen or vandalized, bad checks written, a company cheated, money or goods obtained under false pretenses or any other type of losses suffered in a non-violent crime, justice can often be better served by restitution than jail or a fine."

"I feel that restitution is especially important in the cases of juveniles," Trim said. "Often, it would be much more impressive and more of a deterrent than any other penalty, no penalty at all or ordering the parents to pay. It would impress the young person that he or she is responsible for criminal acts."

Trim stressed that his legislation applies only to non-violent crimes. "In armed robberies, assaults and other violent crimes the guilty party deserves punishment, but for non-violent acts restitution can be a much more equitable route," he said.

FACTS EVERY FAMILY SHOULD KNOW

That's the title of a free booklet which may answer a lot of questions you may have.

Many residents of our community have used this guide in deciding NOW (when there is no stress or emergency) about making arrangements for funerals IN ADVANCE OF NEED.

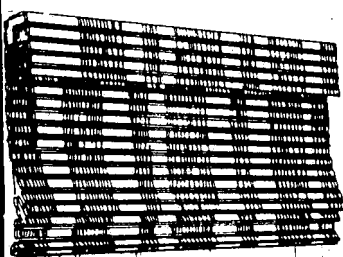

Why pre-plan a funeral? First, you can make decisions and choices yourself, with full composure instead of under the unfortunate circumstances of grieving and emotional stress. Second, you need not "overspend." You should select only that service and that casket, and those touches which you feel are important.

That beloved and meaningfully significant Scripture passage, that special hymn, the minister whose understanding and compassion you so admire--all can be part of your service, if you make your wishes known and arranged-for in advance.

The "Planning Guide" covers a great deal more. Call or write for a free copy.

Independence Moves Toward Solutions to Problems

For a time it seemed as though Lake Oakland Woods was going to be the only situation to prompt special attention by the Independence Township Board as other problems such as a senior citizen coordinator, the surplus, CETA, the librarian, the police department, and all of the annual budgets went unsolved.

At last week's board meeting angry, irritated senior citizens lit a fire under board members when they requested a senior citizen coordinator be hired while there was still a program left to coordinate. At their age, the seniors said, time was most important and they wanted to make as much use of their center as possible. One said, "We need the green light, we want to turn on."

As a result it was decided to authorize Parks and Recreation Director Tim Doyle to interview applicants for the $12,000 a year post and to present the top three candidates to the board for a final decision. The job would be effective April 1, the beginning of the new fiscal year and would not be a CETA position as it was previously.

The township surplus, with increases due to investment by Township Treasurer Fred Ritter now stands at roughly $198,000 in the general fund and some $115,000 in the improvement and revolving fund. Ritter's investments in certificates of deposit, paying an average ten per-cent interest, will realize an additional $49,000 by October 1.

Individual funds which would not draw great interest by themselves have been combined. Also interest rates have increased in the past six months. These two factors Ritter attributes to the increased amounts. He estimates that if the township is not actually beating the rate of inflation, it at least is keeping up with it.

When questioned about the disposition of the surplus, Supervisor Floyd Tower indicated he did not anticipate any action for some months, adding the township was just hanging on to it and waiting for some interpretation of the Headlee proposal passed in the November general election. Prior to November, the township was not inclined to spend it, waiting to see if any of the tax limitation proposals were passed.

CETA employees are due to be phased out by October 1, starting with 25 percent of them by July 1. Due to a vacancy, at least one has found a regularly funded position in the treasurer's department and has left the police department. Of the rest, they seem to be playing a waiting game although some have applied for jobs elsewhere. Tower said the matter of what to do with employees will be dealt with department by department as their budgets are discussed.

At least 2, or 3, it is estimated, or more of them will be kept because of their seniority even though their positions may be eliminated. Some of them will be able to "bump" other general fund employees with less seniority. New CETA employees can be hired but, due to stiffer requirements, probably will not be.

The township librarian was given a nine-month probationary period during which his operation of the library was to have been monitored. That period is up April 1. Librarian Sushil Lahiri said he has prepared his budget and met with Tower once to discuss it, another will be held this week with the entire board. Neither his performance nor his future with the township has been discussed, Lahiri said.

The police department, which lost a bid for an additional operating mill last November, faces its own uncertain future. The Police Advisory Board, currently back in session, has frequently been used as the reason for the township board not making any decisions about the future of the department.

Although Tower was not inclined to discuss the situation in specific terms "for the record", it has recently become known that Chief Charles Kimbel has submitted a $277,000 budget with a recommendation that two of the county deputies be dropped and two local officers hired, presumably those two who are now CETA funded. This year's figure compares with $221,570 of last year, a figure which includes subsidies from the general fund but nothing from revenue sharing.

Tower quotes the proposed contract figures for the Oakland County Sheriff's Department at a base rate of $32,448 per deputy, an 8.2 percent increase over last year. He estimates present coverage by the OCSD at the new rate would run some $155,000. The present one mill levied for police protection would bring in a projected $178,000. Kimbel, with submission of this budget, is counting on the board to make up the difference between the millage income and the budget total, Tower said.

With the new fiscal year fast approaching, nothing had been heard about budget meetings. At this same time last year nearly all general fund budgets had been finalized or at least discussed. Apparently nothing was heard because the department heads have been meeting privately with the supervisor to discuss preliminary budgets. This week, however, budget meetings have been scheduled which both the entire board and the public may attend.

Curious Situations Exist in Independence Township

A curious situation exists in Independence Township when the officials feel it important to call a special meeting to discuss problems with a real estate development, but allow such vital problems as a senior citizen coordinator, the surplus, CETA, the librarian, the police department, and all of the annual budgets to go unsolved.

There has been no senior citizen coordinator since last summer. Failure to replace her could result in a dying, if not dead, program by the time their center finally opens.

With increases due to investment by the township treasurer, the surplus now stands at $198,000 in the general fund at $115,000 in the improvement and revolving fund. The township board was reluctant to commit that money before the election but that was over nearly four months ago.

The township has about sixteen CETA employees who are due to be phased out by October 1, starting with 25 percent of them by July 1. Their future with the township is uncertain at best.

The librarian was given a nine-month probationary period during which his operation of the library was to have been monitored. That period is up April. No doubt he would like to have some indication of his future as the local librarian.

The police department, which lost a bid for an additional operating mill in November, faces its own uncertain future. The new Oakland County Sheriff's contract is up, unofficially, about ten percent over last year's and will be effective April 1. No decision has been hinted at for Independence Police Services although the supervisor has discussed the budget with another local paper but not with his own board.

So far this year, no budget hearings have been scheduled for any departments. At this same time last year nearly all general fund budgets have been finalized or at least discussed. But these can't be discussed until the CETA problem is solved.

All of these special meetings can be scheduled by the supervisor or, if he fails to do so, by three members of the board.

Another curious situation is found in the negotiation of a new fire contract. The board is negotiating with representatives of the firefighters association. One member of that board is a volunteer fireman, his wife is a fire dispatcher. In the negotiating process, the board has occasion to discuss the situation with the fire chief who, although not himself a member of the union, is the father of one.

Still a third curious situation exists in the school district. At least one bus driver will not hesitate to report an incident of children throwing snowballs at the bus but, for some unexplained reason, neglects to report cases of both cigarette and pot smoking on the bus itself. Other incidents of "rowdyism," particularly among the older students also go unreported. Similar incidents of drug usage, at least at one junior high school, apparently go unobserved or at least unreported.

Suggestions for Saving Energy of Various Kinds

by Betty Good

"Saving energy" has become a hot (no pun intended) new literary topic, with a local power company recently publishing a booklet entitled, "Saving Energy is a Family Affair."

Saving energy has been "a family affair" in our family since the first son started Cub Scouting many years before Americans in general became aware of limited supplies. Each child's awareness seemed to last just long enough for the achievement to be recorded in his book. "Mother" seems to be the only one with a long memory!

Therefore, the following energy-related comments should be taken somewhat tongue-in-cheek--realizing that all suggestions and solutions are not equally "workable."

(1) "Don't entertain an empty room." (The booklet suggests turning off TV, stereo, lights, etc. when leaving a room.) With all due respect to the power company, may I suggest that--as any Mother with several children knows--it's possible to have everyone present and still "entertain an empty room!"

(2) Local people are really beginning to feel the effects of disrupted oil from Iran. One women's group is already making plans for summer activities with their husbands, who "won't be able to travel far for entertainment because of the gas shortage." Suggestions centered around a corn roast. The pit will be dug when the garden is planted...presumably on the assumption that with inflation energy costs will always be higher later on.

(3) For those wondering, "Why is the grass always greener on the other side of the street but higher on mine? Energy saving answer: "Maybe it's astroturf!"

(4) If only it was possible to harness that energy that makes teenagers disappear with one word--"dishes."

(5) The free glass of ice water has all but disappeared from the restaurant scene. Management of a chain restaurant explained, "It's because of the energy crisis." It takes energy to wash glasses and run ice machines. Why doesn't anyone question the cost when the glasses have pop or iced tea in them? Hooray for those restaurants that still provide customers with drinking water, and double hoorays for those who offer "free refills on beverages!"

(6) My son--the one who empties the hot water tank with each shower--has found the perfect gift for both of us...a shower head that meters the water down to 2 1/2 gallons per minute. He figures it will cut down on both water usage and my nagging with one flip of the wrist! Click!

Just One of Those Days

Have you heard about the two friends who were company wives in the same company, and went shopping for dresses for the company's big party, together?

They had met for the first time when their young husbands had started up the company ladder at the same time, and a lasting friendship had built up between the two couples. Their children played together, they bought houses in the same neighborhood, etc. In fact, they wanted their friendship to live "happily ever after."

What happened? Well, both husbands were in line for the same promotion at work, and both couples were invited to a party which included as guests, all the Board of Directors of the company. The women, as was their habit, shopped for new out-fits for the party, together. Mrs. A spotted a dress that she really liked, and tried it on. She asked Mrs. B. how she liked it, and Mrs. B. said she really didn't care for the color on Mrs. A., so they kept on looking.

Then Mrs. B found a dress that she liked, and tried it on for Mrs. A, and Mrs. A said she really didn't like the style on her friend. The outcome was that neither lady bought anything, and each one of them went out to shop on her own later on.

When party time came, and the two couples met at the home of the host and hostess, Mrs. A and Mrs. B took one look at each other, and dissolved in fits of giggles. It seems that Mrs. A was wearing the very dress that Mrs. B had picked out, and Mrs. B was wearing the dress that Mrs. A had picked out. When neither of their husbands got the promotion, they wondered if their peculiar behavior had offended the boss, but they were relieved to have the friendship out of danger,--even though it seemed to be "just one of those days" to their husbands--who are still wondering what the joke was about.

Richard Harlan and Shelley Glenn plan the romantic duo of Frank Butler and Annie Oakley in Clarkston High School's upcoming production of "Annie Get Your Gun."

"Annie Get Your Gun" In Rehearsals at CHS

Rehearsals are underway at Clarkston High School for the spring production of Irvin Berlin's "Annie Get Your Gun," coordinated by director Barb "Ma" Gibson, music director Grayce Warren, music conductor Clifford Chapman and choreographer Nancy Albyn.

The musical version of the Annie Oakley-Frank Butler romance set against a Wild West Show background stars Shelley Glenn as Annie and Richard Harlan as Frank. Scott Turnbull has been cast as Buffalo Bill with Kevin Fetter as Sitting Bull and Arnold Brooks as Pawnee Bill.

Others in the cast include Gretchen Weger as Nellie, Patti Porter as Jessie and Leslie Wirpsa as Minnie. Todd Pettit plays the role of Charlie with Steve Hyde as Foster Wilson, Rebecca Watson as Dolly and Bob Morse as Mac. Clarkston Elementary sixth grader Art Binard, cast as Little Jake, completes the cast of main characters.

Written over thirty years ago, "Annie Get Your Gun" contains some very familiar melodies such as the rousing "No Business Like Show Business," the romantic "The Girl That I Marry," and the hilarious duet "Anything You Can Do (I Can Do Better)."

Tickets for the production go on sale at the high school on March 14. Performance begin March 23 with a dinner theatre, followed by an evening performance the next night and a Sunday matinee on the 25th. Additional evening performances are scheduled for March 30 and 31. Show times for evening performances are 8 p.m., the matinee is at 1 p.m., and the buffet dinner on opening night from 5:30 - 7 p.m. The dinner has been planned and will be prepared by the quality foods class at the high school.

The Reminder Goes to School

by Carol Balzarini

The Reminder went to school last week or, at least, I did. The pre-schoolers at the Easter Seal Society in Pontiac had been talking about people who help them starting with policemen and firemen, doctors and nurses, and so on down the line. When they came to the media, newspapers, television, and radio, Joyce Thomas, their telethon coordinator, had the bright idea to contact some "real" media people to come in and tell the children about their work. She and I had met during the Super Ski Weekend last month at Pine Knob, another Easter Seal fundraiser.

And so it came to be that Chris Allen, of WXYZ, who is really Joyce Moffat of Clarkston formerly with WPON, Barry ZeVan, TV-2 weather fore-caster and honorary chairman of Super Ski Weekend, and I were invited to talk to the children about our jobs and the media. Unfortunately at the last minute ZeVan was out of town making ski movies, his other occupation in addition to being a television weatherman.

Explaining a newspaper to the little ones was really not too difficult because I had brought along some of the layout pages. Putting those pages together, I told them, is much like putting a jigsaw puzzle together without having to make a picture. The pages just have to have their spaces filled with the right sized ads, photos or copy.

My own job was demonstrated to them as I photographed them having crackers and juice, playing, and taping their voices and hearing them played back. I also took pictures of them listening to Joyce showing them her scrapbook, telling them about her job and a little bit about what radio stations do.

It was an interesting afternoon that neither of us would have missed for the world. The children were a delight, charmed by Joyce and excited about having their pictures taken. It was also an opportunity for an outsider to see how the Society works and to see what is involved in the annual drive for contributions.

The children's special teachers are just that, very special. They seem dedicated to helping these handicapped pre-schoolers prepare themselves for the school years ahead. Although the teachers employed by the Waterford school system, the children come from all over the Pontiac area including Clarkston. In addition to learning experiences, they also receive both physical and speech therapy while they are there.

Just as the school room was jammed with toys and equipment designed to help little bodies develop, so were the hallways jammed with boxes of envelopes, Easter seals, and the familiar blue canisters. Much of Joyce Thomas' time these days, and that of hundreds of volunteers, is taken up with preparing for the Easter Seal Telethon culminating the annual fundraising drive. The telethon will be held the weekend of March 23-24 at the American Motors Building in Southfield and hosted by WJR's Marc Avery.

To the left Mary Ann Hacker has the children tape their voices to replay so they'll know what they might sound like on the radio.

Joyce Moffat, also known as Chris Allen on WXYZ radio, is treated to "lunch" in the playroom kitchen.

Dawn shows The Reminder's Carol Balzarini the camera the children have to play with.

4-H Workshop

A 4-H workshop having to do with clowning, mime, clown makeup, costuming and puppetry will be held on March 29, 30 at the Springfield Oaks Activity Center in Davisburg. The registration will be on Friday at 7:00 and the workshop will adjourn on Saturday at 5:30.

All participants are to bring clown makeup, a costume, etc. The purpose of the workshop is to help 4-H'ers explore clowning as a means of communication, as a public relations device and as a means of gaining attention. This is done through mime skits, demonstrations, makeup and costume.

This program, which is sponsored by Oakland County 4-H Youth Programs, has a limited enrollment, so all applications must be sent in as soon as possible, and should be received no later than March 15.

LaLeche League to Meet

"Are there any foods I should avoid if I breastfeed my baby?" This and many other questions will be answered with the latest medical research and personal experience at the Pontiac-West La Leche League meeting held Thursday, March 8, at 7:30 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Lee Bates 4941 Ennismore, Drayton Plains. The discussion will include suggestions about nutrition for nursing mothers and their families, as well as information about weaning the breastfed baby. For further information call 338-6759.

Annual Shrine Circus at State Fair Grounds

The 71st Annual Shrine Circus will move into the State Fair Coliseum for a 17-day run March 16-April 1.

The circus, sponsored by Detroit's Moslem Temple, will feature 45 acts in its 2-1/2 hour presentation utilizing three rings and two stage areas.

The all-new show this year, slated to be the world's largest indoor circus, will feature such headliners as:

- * The Great Wallendas--following the great tradition of this world famous high-wire act founded by the late Karl Wallenda, Granddaughter Rietta, 17, and Grandson Ricky 23, lead a four-member troupe.

- * Rix Bears--four giant Polar bears compete for attention with Syrian, Siberian and Canadian Black bears under the guidance of Trainer Jeannette Rix.

- * Lions Galore--trained but untamed black-maned lions fill a cage with snarling fury as Jorge Barreda leads them through an amazing array of tricks.

- * World Wheelers--basketball rules fall aside as these noted cagers offer superb play and trick routines from the seats of unicycles.

- * Geronimo--this Indian daredevil makes a 60-foot dive of death into an air-filled Apache war drum.

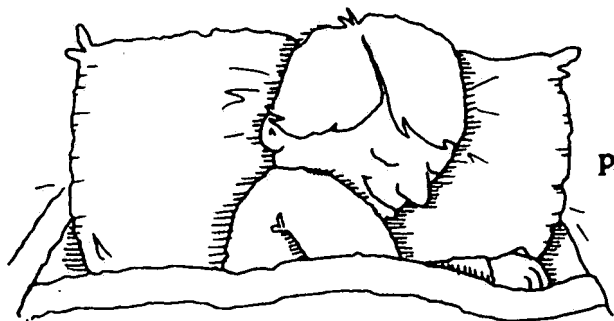

- * Les Dollies--direct from France, this talented troupe performs cycling feats and aerial acrobatics high above the crowd.

- * Beeswax--the world's funniest mule outwits human friends in a return to slapstick comedy at its best.

Advance tickets for the Shrine Circus are on sale at the State Fairgrounds main ticket office and at Hudson's, Sears and Wards.

Performances will be offered at 1:30 and 7:30 p.m. daily with special early-bird performances set for 10:30 a.m. on each of the three Saturdays during the run and on Sunday, April 1.

MY MOTHER

In my minds eye, I can see
You there by the apple tree.
With your floppy hat, and trowel in hand.
Or on your knees digging in the sand.
It seems I can almost see you smile
As you rest there a little while.

The fragrance of flowers blown with the wind
Makes my heart light, and I want to sing.
I see your hair shining in the sun
As you look at the work you've done.
Each plant is a special prize.
As you look at it with your blue eyes.

No one can count the hours
That you've spent there among your flowers
Tho others look, they can't see
The peace and contentment
You find there beside the apple tree.
Wrote for my Mother-Easter 1974 Ruth Elizabeth Slack

GENTLY

by vi carlsen

Gently take my hand in yours, make me feel secure,
Open all the ways of love, before you close the door.
Press my body close to yours, let me feel the heart,
That beats in rythm with my own, before we have to part.

Won't you kiss my tears away, let me feel the thrill.
Of being lost to all the world, before my heart is still?
Lead me down the path of love; make me one with you,
Fulfill my life and every dream, before you say we're through.

CLOSING OF A DAY

The closing of a day,
In its very own special way.
Bringing in nature to rest,
Is what I love truly the best.

A cool breeze,
Starts to blow.
The wildflowers are dancing free.
The sun with its last flare,
Sends us a yellow glare.
In hoping what tomorrow will be.

We know, of course,
That we should not be here.
Yet here is where the magic is.

Here is the magic of a touch,
The magic of a look,
Of being close,
Of saying words,
Some words we never meant to say.

We know
That we should not be here.

Yet here we are.

Is There a Need For Senior Citizen Housing?

Is there a need for senior citizen or retirement housing in the area.

If you are 55 years of age or older now is your chance to be heard. A survey, prepared by the Northwest Oakland Senior Citizen Housing Advisory Committee and paid for by Oakland County Community Development, is ready for mailing this week. The survey will be mailed to a random sample of registered voters 55 or over. If anyone, in this age group, would like to participate and does not receive a survey in the mail they can obtain one from township offices.

Cooperation in filling out and returning the questionnaire is of the utmost importance. It is hoped all those who do receive this survey will participate. Good results can give us clout with private and governmental developers if we find a real need does exist.

The most important thing for those who participate to remember is NOT to put their name or address anywhere on the questionnaire. All responses are to be anonymous and confidential.

The survey, at first, appears long and involved; however, the committee spent much time and thought in preparation so that little or no writing is involved. It is also computer coded for speed in tabulating the results. There is space at the end for any comments you might wish to make.

Please return the survey no later than Monday, March 19. A stamped, addressed envelope has been provided for returning the questionnaire to the township offices.

If anyone would like assistance in filling out the questionnaire or has questions concerning the activities of the committee, please contact either Wilma Merritt, Senior Citizen Co-ordinator at 627-2804 or Sue Nelson, Vice-Chairman of the committee at 627-3355.

Instrumental Departments

On Monday evening, March 5, at 7:30 p.m. the instrumental department of the Clarkston Community Schools will be presenting Clarkston and Sashabaw Junior High Schools, as well as Clarkston High School. The musical selections to be performed comprise the repertoire each band will present at the upcoming District IV M.S.B.O.A. Band Festivals on March 10 and March 17.

The Sashabaw Bands, under the direction of Mr. Doty will host the evening with the Seventh Grade Band opening the program. Selections include "A Little March", "Norwegian Folk Suite", and "Early English Suite". The second band to perform is High School Symphonic Band Directed by Mr. Cliff Chapman featuring "Bandology", a popular concert march by Eric Osterling, "Prelude and Fugue in D minor" by J.S. Bach, and "Overture in B Flat".

Clarkston Junior High will be represented by their Wind Ensemble conducted by Mr. Barton Connors. Their repertoire includes "March Lamar" by Clifton Williams, "Pageantry Overture" and "Dorian Overture".

The last portion of the program will feature the Sashabaw and Clarkston High School Wind Ensembles. The Sashabaw band will present "KMB March", "Tanglewood Overture", and "Landmark Overture". The high school ensemble will bring the concert to a close with a taste of British band music performing "H.R.H. Duck of Cambridge" march by Sire Malcolm Arnold, and "First Suite in E Flat for Military Band" by Gustav Holst. The finale will be the exciting "Fanfare and Allegro" by the late eminent American composer, Clifton Williams, featuring the CHS trumpet section.

The concert will be held in Sashabaw gymnasium. Admission is complimentary.

Clarkston Earns Share of League Lead McCormick Scores 31

Friday night was parents night for both the Junior Varsity and Varsity basketball teams. Both sets of parents had something to cheer about, J.V. beating Troy Athens, and Varsity beating Rochester 72-54. In what was expected to be an extremely close game, the Wolfpack simply overpowered the Falcons and destroyed their offense with their super strong defense. The Clarkston fans were really super in their support of their team as 2,500 people (a total sell-out) were on hand to watch both teams win.

"The last time we were sold-out was 1967 in a tournament against Pontiac Central," said Mrs. Allen, a secretary at the high school and head of ticket sales, "I remember because my son was in it."

Rochester scored first and had a 3-0 lead after one minute of play, but Tim McCormick put the Wolfpack on the board just 15 seconds later, and put them in the lead, 4-3, a mere 20 seconds after that. The tension was extremely high when John Sheldon connected on a jump shot to give the Pack a 6-3 lead. Seconds later Rochester had pulled to within 1 point, and a minute later, had taken the lead, 7-6. But it was John Sheldon who again gave Clarkston the lead, 8-7. This time they did not lose it. With 2:30 to go in the period, Greg Robertson scored to enlarge the lead to 3 points, 10-7. Rochester scored on their next drive to pull within 1 point, but could not take the lead as Ed Haddad sunk a baseline jump shot to put beyond their reach, 12-9. The period ended 14-9 with a standing ovation from the crowd.

It was Ed Haddad, again, who scored to expand the lead to 7 points, 16-9, just 30 seconds into the second period. Clarkston was now in complete control, offensively and defensively. Goals by Haddad and McCormick (3 in one minute) summed up the scoring in the second period. At half-time, the score was 35-13 following one of Tim McCormick's infamous slams. After the teams left the floor, the Clarkston Competition Color Guard performed their competition winning show for the crowd. After this colorful detour from the game, the players returned and the second half began.

It was the "Ice man", Ed Haddad, who started the scoring with a lay-up just 10 seconds into the period. Greg Robertson, John Sheldon and the big guy Tim McCormick capitalized on scoring opportunities to give the pack a 45-19 lead mid-way through the period. Rochester scored a few drives later, but seconds after Tim McCormick got those 2 points back on a tremendous dunk. The period ended on a jump on the buzzer by Rochester, 53-30.

In the fourth period, Rochester surged and scored 15 points in 3 minutes. But it still seemed like they could not take control of the game, and mid-way through the period, Clarkston led 58-45. In the final 4 minutes of the game Clarkston outscored the Falcons 14-9, closing out their scoring with a super lay-up by the "Ice man", Ed Haddad for a final score of 72-54.

This victory ties Rochester for the league title. Going into the game Rochester was rated 7th in the state and undefeated; Clarkston was rated 14th with one defeat in league play, now both teams are 8-1 in league. This Clarkston's second year in a row sharing the co-championship. But the season isn't over yet. They still need to beat Andover (in league) this coming Friday as Coach Gary Nustad said, "We've got to beat them next week. The guys are all thinking about Andover. I told them, 'you better get ready, because it's not over yet.'" When asked about the game, he said, "the Express was rolling tonight! We've been playing better and better each game, and I'm proud of the boys."

On top of the scoring list were Tim McCormick with 31 points and a whopping 24 rebounds; the "Ice man", Ed Haddad, played cool with 14 points and 9 rebounds; Greg Robertson added 11 points and John Sheldon helped out with 10 points and a great 7 assists.

J.V.'s Chinch League Title

The Clarkston High School Junior Varsity basketball team, nicknamed the "Cubpack Express," posted a 55-49 non-league victory over Troy Athens this past Friday.

Clarkston scored first on a jump shot by Scott McKoin at 6:40 in the first period. Athens played them close in that period, but it ended with the Wolves in the lead, 11-10.

Buckets by Rick Schebor, Scott McKoin, and Doug Hagyard helped them to enlarge their lead to 5 points at the half, 21-17. On the buzzer, the half ended with a tremendous throw from half-court by Don Moore of Athens, but the Wolves had the lead and were in control.

Both teams went on a scoring blitz in the third period, but Clarkston outscored and overpowered Troy, leading 42-34 on a shot by Jerry Tatu with 15 seconds left in the period, 42-34. The first half of the final period was much the same story as the "Cubpack" hit 4 successive buckets to lead 50-34. But Athens turned the period around and began a surge that lasted until Scott McKoin sank a long jump shot with 30 seconds left in the game to give the Wolves a 53-40 lead. Athens scored once more, but the final scoring was done by Clarkston's Kevin Douglas on 2 free throws. The final score was 55-42.

Leading the scoring was Scott McKoin with 35 points and 20 rebounds. He's where the action was! His coach, Larry Mahrle complemented Scott on his performance. "McKoin dominated the game. It was his best all-around game of the year." Coach also talked about the game, "We had 16 turnovers, that's not bad. But the key of the game was our free throws. We emphasized our free throws making 17 of 22. I'm proud of the boys. McKoin did a lot, but he was helped a lot by the rest of the team."

"It was a nice win. We can't lose the title now. We've got it in the bag. We're preparing for next week's game against Andover. That'll be the deciding game."

Efficient Wood Heat You Can See, and Circulated Hot Air you Can't

The air-tight Russo High-Heat Series wood stove has a special glass window that lets you watch the fire as it heats your home. But you can't see the draft-free hot air the stove circulates. Here's how it works: A baffle deflects hot gases within the fire, swirling them around two internal heat exchange tubes. Cool floor air is heated in these tubes then circulated in all directions by a quiet blower for efficient draft-free heating. To make the fire burn hotter and cleaner, the fire chamber is lined with fire brick and fed pre-heated air through a separate air-intake system. Internal, folding steel doors can also be closed for an even more efficient overnight burn. Several Radiant models are also available. With a Russo Glass-View wood stove, you can get warm just by watching it burn wood...not money.

Writer Likes "Backstairs at the Whitehouse"

by Sharon Springborn

I don't claim to be a TV critic a la Rona Barrett (although she does review movies) I do know what programs I enjoy.

And "Backstairs at the Whitehouse", the NBC mini-series first shown at 8:00 the evening of Monday, January 28, qualified as a program that I really enjoyed. If the rest of the installments in the series measure up to the quality of the #1 installment, TV viewers are in for a treat--for a change.

The series was enjoyable because, in watching it, Presidential families were made as 'living and breathing' as the family living next door. In one scene, President Woodrow Wilson, as played by Robert Vaughn, was doing the dance rage of the 20's, 'Ballin' the Jack' with his three daughters. He certainly didn't seem the puritanical goody-good of the history books, who only write about his involving Americans in WWI and his failure to get the U.S. into the League of Nations.

President Taft, as played by Victor Buono, was shown as a real human, with the feelings of a human being. He seemed truly distressed when discussing the "betrayal" of his friend Teddy Roosevelt when he formed a third party to run against Taft for the Presidency and when reading the articles and cartoons in the newspapers, lampooning his heaviness.

But even with his problems, he found the time to be nice to the young Lillian Rogers Parks, who was discovered by Taft playing in his bathtub and was taken by Taft to his sitting room and given a dish of ice cream.

If anything negative could be said about the program, it was that "Backstairs" was shown at the same time as the movie "The Corn is Green" with Katherine Hepburn in the starring role.

THEATRE REVIEW

by Joan Allen

"Blithe Spirit" - the new play at Meadow Brook Theatre, is not very blithe in spots. In fact, it seems to drag at times. That is not necessarily the fault of the actors, however. It seems more likely that the play is simply not proving to be timeless, and Coward's sophistication and witticisms simply aren't as entertaining by today's audience's standards.

The cast is good, the time is good, the scenery and costumes and special affects are all well done, and yet, it falls flat.

Bright spots are provided by Jeanne Arnold as the medium, Madame Arcati; and Mary Benson, as the foolish maid Edith. Benson's part was meant to be funny, and it was, though in an obvious way. Arnold's, on the other hand, was a more complex role, especially in light of today's serious consideration of psychic phenomena. She is, as always, a wonderfully entertaining actress, and her performance was worth the price of admission by itself.

If you're looking for a pleasantly entertaining evening, consider seeing it, but it may prove disappointing when compared with some of the past presentations.

READERS REVIEW

by Joan Allen

Night Stalks the Mansion
by Constance Wesbie and Harold Cameron; a Bantam Book

This book, winner of the 1977 National Writer's Club Award for Non-Fiction, is a must for everyone who is interested in supernatural phenomena. Less frightening than the Amityville Horror, and even humorous in parts, the book tells the experiences of the Harold Cameron family, and their two year residence in a real "haunted house."

This mansion, which the Cameron's rented when Harold Cameron was transferred to Philadelphia by his company, appeared to be a real bargain when a two year unbreakable lease was signed. It was only later that the family came to understand why it was a bargain. It seemed that the house already had tenants. A couple of ghostly ones, as a matter of fact.

This is not a horror story. This particular family made peace with its ghostly "landlady," and managed to trace the sad account of the tragedy that befell her. It has not been written with the aim of frightening anyone, nor persuading anyone of anything. It is merely an account of a family's experience with unusual events, and how they were affected by them.

Where Do We Go From Here?

by Sharon Springborn

The book The Fifty Worst Films of All Time (and how they got that way) will appeal mostly to would-be film critics and people who bought (or borrowed) The Book of Lists. Another population section appealed to are the people who enjoy a thoroughly bad movie-one that takes it self so seriously that the results are laughable.

This soft-bound book was written by Harry Medved (in collaboration with his brother, Michael) and Randy Dreyfuss. In putting together the films considered to be the "worst", thousands of candidate films had to be viewed in order to narrow the competition to a suitable number. In other words, they had to separate the wheat from the chaff.

Films winnowed out before consideration were silent films, foreign films (the final list was limited to one each of Italian, Japanese, French and Russian productions), travelogues, porno films, movies made for TV, and U.S. Army training films. But though these films were eliminated, a rich crop of bad movies was left, and from this group, the authors selected 50 "worst."

Would you believe films such as 'The Terror of Tiny Town', a musical Western starring an all-midget cast? Or 'Santa Claus Conquers the Martians'? Or 'Eegah,' the film which ask the timeless question--Can a lovesick, prehistoric giant find true happiness with a fun-loving teeny booper from Palm Springs?

All of the films listed by Medved and Dreyfuss are divided into main sub-heads, such as Big-Budget Flops, Grade "Z" Atrocities, Over-rated Art Films, Implausible Oddities, Popular "Triumphs", Egregious Examples and Tarnished Stars. In researching this project, over 2,000 poor films were seen within the span of 2 years, but no claim is ever made that every poor film ever made was viewed.

And after being put under major sub-heads, the plots of the films were summarized, the story behind the film given, how well the film did at the box office (or how poorly) given, and a summary of the critical reviews, unforgettable performances and some immortal dialogue reviewed.

Altogether, the book is for those who want a little light entertainment and fun, without being subjected to having to analyze the contents of "The Fifty Worst Films of All Times to get anything out of it.

Certain unavoidable expenses are incurred in the process of buying a house. It's always better to know in advance what the closing costs are likely to be and to plan them accordingly. The expenses from purchase and finance of a house fall into two groups: Those from acquiring title to the property, and those from financing and transaction. Legal procedures vary in different states and some of the costs will vary with the size of the purchase. So that the best idea is to be informed of all costs in advance. We so advise our clients to the best of our ability and we urge you to inquire about them from your broker as well.

For all the details involved in buying or selling real estate see the professionals at BOB WHITE REAL ESTATE, 5856 S. Main Street, your area broker since 1947. Real estate transactions involve a great many details in addition to a sizeable financial investment. The wise individual has a professional on his side who is familiar with the property, the nature of the transaction and other significant details. If you are such a wise individual, call us today. Telephone 625-5821.

Helpful Hint:

A survey, or map of the lot, is essential not only to the buyer, but the lender will also want a copy of it.
