HOME & HISTORY

The Reminder has been awarded a membership in the Titanic Historical Society as a result of two stories on the famous ship which ran in the April 12 Reminder. Dallas Kiefer, of Clarkston, who submitted an original account of the ship's sinking, and other Titanic buffs, will be happy to learn that still another recreation of the events surrounding the ship's maiden voyage is in film production in Hollywood. Susan St. James, of McMillen and Wife TV fame, will star in the movie.

Since the nation has had little experience with gasoline rationing, the plan in effect during World War II has been given much scrutiny lately by those attempting to deal with our current problem. The Detroit Free Press noted recently that during the gas rationing period from May 1942 through August 1945, among those receiving "unlimited supplies" were clergy, medical personnel, and reporters. The freedom and mobility of the press to keep people informed was protested at a time when even some of the mail was being censored.

Sunny skies prevailed over the annual airshow at Oakland-Pontiac Airport. Residents near the airport unaware of the show's presence could have been confused by the myriad of sights and sounds as planes of many types circled, approached from opposite directions; climbed, dived, flew in formation, and dropped parachuters-including the "Red Devils" sky-diving team. It at times resembled a WWII movie scene. The "sound effects" received a little extra touch of reality when the county tornado/air raid siren sounded its regular monthly test signal.

History of another sort was made locally the same weekend. TV news coverage in the Detroit Metropolitan area focused on the confusion of motorists at the gas pump when confronted with a reading of ".52¢ per gallon." Some thought "the good ole days" were back; while others were extremely angry that gasoline had broken the "$1.00 per gallon" barrier, rendering many pumps obsolete for pricing purposes.

The statesman said, "These are the times that try men's minds...." To this, we add: "...and of which history books are written!"

CAROL BALZARINI

Is INDEPENDENCE OPERATING IN THE PUBLIC INTEREST?

by Carol Balzarini

Events in the months following the November election could lead one to ask if the Independence Township Board were really operating in the public interest.

Most recently a private citizen has filed suit against the local American Legion post, the national organization, the township board, and Floyd J. Tower. The citizen objects to the post being given a club liquor license when it has allegedly not complied with all requirements set down by the planning commission in 1972. Tower, now township supervisor, was a member of the commission at that time.

Only last week the present planning commission approved an amendment to the zoning ordinance which would allow a high rise hotel in the Pine Knob Resort complex. Although their recommendations are only advisory, there is every indication the majority of township board members approve the concept themselves. All this despite the fact there appears to be more opposition than support from township residents.

A citizens police advisory board deliberated some 10-12 months and finally recommended to the township board that an independent local department was not economically feasible and that it should be reduced to a public service function. At the same time, it was recommended the strength of county deputy manpower be maintained.

Instead the board voted to use surplus funds to maintain the local department and cut one deputy from the sheriff's contract. There is every indication board members did not even have the courtesy to read the report. It's recommendations were apparently no in the board's best interests although the advisory committee members felt they were operating in the public interest.

The township board has been sitting on a considerable surplus for many months. True, it continues to gather interest at least equal to the rate of inflation due to investments, but citizens on more than one occasion have demanded something be done with that money.

The township clerk has sent a memo to all board members suggesting the surplus be used to benefit all township residents by collecting no township taxes next year. There has been no official response to that suggestion.

It can be documented that closed meetings have been held despite recent legislation outlawing them. Labor negotiations or legal matters have been used to cloak the real purpose of those meetings.

Isolated murmurings of discontent appear to be snowballing into something much more organized. Public interest may be aroused even more unless the township board pays greater attention to making decisions truly in the public interest.

Dear Editor:

When I first saw the plans for the proposed High School next to the Independence Library and saw the expanse of glass in the new plan I thought "wow" this will be a continuing expense replacing glass. Then a few days later the glass in the Library and the High School was broken causing thousands of dollars of expense.

I don't think we need an elaborate school for the type of juveniles now inhabiting the Township. What we really need is a form of Juvenile Detention School to teach the dopers, drinkers, truants, bullies and pupils going to school only because they have to, rather than because they want to. The Detention School could be taught not only by teachers but also by physiologists and physiotherapists to try to improve their attitudes. This will mean that the only children attending regular schools will be those interested in getting an education. As those of the detention school improve their attitude they can be transferred to a regular school. This should improve the quality of education and be of great assistance to the attending pupils not to have the distraction of dopers, bullies, fighting, vandalism, etc. Detention School should cover ages 10 to 16 township-wide and be a very austere building with no frills and nothing that can be vandalized by attendees.

Screwball idea maybe but the good students or those wanting to learn should be segregated from those not interested in learning. Please do not sign my name as I am actually afraid of these Juvenile Delinquents running around this Township.

THOUGHTS 'N THINGS

One of my favorite Peanut's cartoon characters has always had my sympathy. That's Lucy, the crabby little brunette who is always trying to run things. I think she must remind me of myself at times! At any rate, I once bought a whole pad of notepaper with her picture on it, and the caption beneath the picture said, "Nobody understands us crabby people!" I think most mothers and homemakers can identify with that!

The problem is that nothing would ever get done if we stopped to explain our reasons for everything we want done at a given time. We say to a child, "clean your room." We do not stop to discuss the psychological lift we get out of orderliness, much less the added convenience and beauty to be obtained. We just imply that "because we say to do it" is good enough reason.

The trouble today is that our children are learning through all other forms of communication, that accepting orders without reasons is not always the best way to go. Educators and psychologists have learned that mentally and emotionally healthy people are people who have learned to think.

Parents can set good examples by giving some thought to what they believe and say and do, and by encouraging their children to do the same. The more discussion there is on the subject of thinking and thoughts and feelings, the better off the family will be, and the better they will understand each other. The place to start is with the things that are taken "for-granted."

Parents take certain "no-no's" for granted. Their children do not take them for granted unless the children have incorporated them into their system of values. Being "good" or "bad" today does not depend on complete obedience to parents, teachers, and churches. (I do not intend to discuss the merits of that--it is just something that is common in our society today. Different ages are allowed to have different value systems and still get along.)

The result has been that young people have followed the leader blindly. It is society which is wrong to "hound" the failure and the criminal. It is the thief and the cheat who are too often the heroes. The underdog is always right. The hard-working, responsible person is "square" and boring, and made the butt of laughter.

Be that as it may, the "no-no's" of the parents may have a great deal of good sense to them, and though they might not be forced on the younger generation, they can be offered to them as reasonable thoughts to be considered.

One of the biggest issues that parents and children overlook is the discrepancy between their views of responsibility for themselves, the family, the community, and society as a whole. Strangely enough, not all young people hold the same views or attitudes and not all adults hold the same ones. It is just that the young people and the adults in the same families often disagree. The disagreement itself, however, is usually based on "feelings" vs. "thinking" and that's what should be worked out in family conversations. It is all a matter of philosophy, and philosophy is a system of beliefs. Those beliefs are based on each individual's perception of truth, as a result of experience and knowledge. Therefore, each person's philosophy is as unique as each individual is. There is nothing to argue about. There is no "bad" and "good" to it. Those are simply the facts. Discussion, however, can clarify, simplify, explain, and sometimes work like a pair of eye-glasses. Sometimes perceptions are "off" because of external influences, and other times they are "off" because of internal influences. It isn't so different than thinking something is blue in a store, and finding out it is purple when you get it home. Different lights cause us to perceive some colors differently at different times. The same is true of "truths."

During the sixties, young people developed an attitude of loyalty toward other young people. They combined to view their elders as the "enemy." As they pulled other younger members of society into their age effects of such steps as the decontrol of oil prices.

One can also point to widely read newspapers and magazines that have run numerous articles saying that the energy shortage is contrived.

Reports by government agencies discussing possible misconduct by the oil companies have also served to complicate any effort to get a grasp of the actual energy situation.

In a report by the General Accounting Office, the investigative arm of the Congress, charges are made that major oil companies are cutting back in the gasoline allocations to their dealers far in excess of their shortfall from the Iranian crisis.

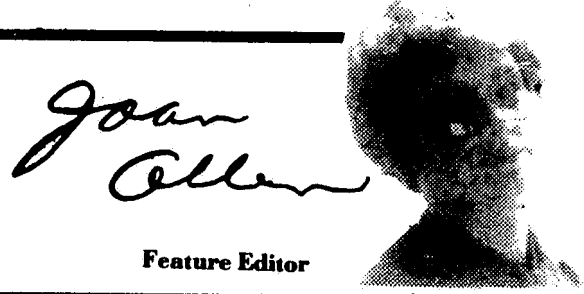

Secretary of Energy Schlesinger has also stated that because of the desire for greater profits, oil companies are diverting petroleum intended for this country to Europe.

To finally get a definitive view of the energy situation, I have joined in sponsoring a seldom used "resolution of inquiry" instructing the President to provide to all Members of Congress all of the information the Administration has relating to our crude oil situation.

Simply put, the resolution seeks information pertaining to the status of our crude oil stocks; requirements; levels of demand; extent of shortage, if any; methods of allocation and any changes in those methods; and information on any actions by the oil industry to withhold or reduce supplies to the public. Upon passage of the resolution, the President will have fifteen days to provide this information.

The resolution is not to nit-pick or to place blame. Instead, it is designed to provide all of us with necessary information on this vital matter.

If we are ever to win this moral war on our energy shortages, then we must stop this confusion and distrust. This will not happen, however, until we can all see what the actual energy picture is. Thus, it is important that this resolution be approved.

Feature Editor

group, they spread the word. "Don't trust those in authority."

The result has been that young people have followed the leader blindly. It is society which is wrong to "hound" the failure and the criminal. It is the thief and the cheat who are too often the heroes. The underdog is always right. The hard-working, responsible person is "square" and boring, and made the butt of laughter.

Ask your children what they think of the children in their classes who cheat on exams. Ask them what they think of the ones who skip class and school; who fake their parents signatures; who sneak beer and alcoholic drinks; who shop-lift. Nine times out of ten they'll agree that they consider those things wrong and wouldn't do them, but, they do NOT condemn or judge their classmates who do. It is a "live and let live" society.

The problem with this kind of attitude is that our broad-mindedness, and that of our children has already had far-reaching effects on our society, and we are just beginning to notice what's happening on a large scale.

People who are irresponsible (no matter how likeable) can make "one little mistake" and set the wheels in motion that could poison a whole community; burn down forests; start epidemics; kill through misuse of equipment; maim and cripple others, and, and, and. That's the way life is. There are people in every walk of life who have managed to get there by cheating--because someone else felt it wouldn't be "nice" to tell on them.

Our children must realize that our "look the other way" attitude has resulted in poor workmanship at every level of society, and what is worse, is that honest people willing to do a good job have been "left behind" because it often takes longer to do a good job.

Perhaps it is time to convince the kids, and some parents, that it's time to turn things around! At least it is something to think about, and while you're at it, discuss it with the kids.

Representative Broomfield Reports From Washington

Two years ago the President called upon the Nation to wage a moral war against our energy problems. Today, we are losing that war for want of a truly comprehensive energy plan, lack of determined leadership, and because we are riddled with feelings of distrust and confusion.

These feelings of distrust and confusion are wide spread. We have all heard or thought, "the energy crisis is an artificial manipulation by the oil companies," or "we have plenty of gas and oil because we're exporting it to other countries," or "we're just being ripped off by the greed of the OPEC nations and the oil companies," etc.

These feelings, to a great extent, have kept us from developing a broadly supported response to our energy problems, and their seeds lie in the jumble of messages, which bombard us daily, giving us varying assessments of the energy picture.

The Administration is certainly part of the problem. It sends out a mind-boggling array of conflicting messages. In a one-week span of time, the President talked about "the inevitable prospect of an energy shortage." A few days later, the Secretary of Energy said "the worst is over." Finally near the end of the week, the President's Press Secretary was warning the press against being "overly optimistic" about gasoline supplies "this summer."

Beyond the Administration, however, there are other sources that add to the confusion. Members of Congress, for instance, with the deepest of convictions, have disagreed with the Administration and with each other as to the nature of the energy situation, and to the

WHERE CAN A WIDOW GET ADVICE ON FINANCIAL MATTERS?

If your deceased husband had not assigned a trust company or an attorney to handle his affairs, legal advice is a wise move.

The financial decisions which must be made immediately following a husband's death should be accomplished with the competent advice of an experienced professional, such as an attorney or banker. The "brother-in-law" route is fraught with problems and high risk.

Certain aspects of the estate, whether there is a will or not, will be decided for you by law. The will--and you definitely should have one for husband and wife--will be of utmost importance when pondering these first decisions.

We suggest you prepare yourself by some library work and by reading certain books which have been written with the widow in mind. I suggest:

Just One of Those Days

The women's move for equality on the job and in the home keeps moving on, and, of course, the younger the couple is, the easier it is to get things off on the right foot in marriage.

One of the local matrons who didn't think her daughter's modern ideas would ever work in a real marriage went to visit her after she had been married a year. Mom was really surprised at how much fun the couple seemed to have sharing the cleaning, the shopping, and the cooking. She was so impressed, in fact, that she made up speeches to deliver to her husband upon her arrival home.

That poor man met her at the airport, and listened to her monologue about women's rights all the way home. Nothing happened right away though.

It was last week, when the lady in question fell and broke her arm that her "new" ideas took affect. While she was resting from the trauma of her fall, her husband decided that he should be less male chauvenistic. After all, his son-in-law wasn't the only man who could have young attitudes.

Pop was a little embarrassed by it all, so he decided to work "out of sight." He went down the basement to the laundry and quickly read through the directions for the laundry equipment--then did his first load of wash.

Nobody will ever know how the red sweatshirt got into all the white clothes, but the hot water spread the color through everything, and it's going to take a lot of time and energy to recover the original state of many of the items (if ever).

Believe it or not, mom was so pleased she just laughed it off. She said it was just one of those days! (Pop, in the meantime, is taking lessons from her in "advanced laundry techniques!")

St. Joseph's Festival JUNE 23

The general public is invited to take part in a festival on Saturday, June 23, on the grounds of St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac. The affair is sponsored by the hospital auxiliary in commemoration of the 50th anniversary of the group's founding. Festival hours are from 12 noon to 10 p.m. There is no charge for admission or parking.

Attendees will be treated to a continuous flow of entertainment throughout the day by groups including the Wolverines of Oakland County, guitar strollers, belly dancers, singers and clowns.

Members of the medical staff will act as proprietors of the Blind Pig, a 1920's style beer garden. Hot dogs, hamburgers and other refreshments will be available at The Eatery.

A grand prize drawing will be held at 9 p.m. on the day of the festival. The first prize, a 1979 Ford Mustang, was donated by both the departments of medicine and obstetrics/gynecology of the medical staff, and also Flannery Ford Inc. Other prizes include an original oil painting donated by Auxilian Kitty Paulis and a trash compactor donated by Oliver Supply Co. of Pontiac. Tickets can be obtained during the day at the volunteer services office at the hospital.

Other activities include antique auto rides; games of skill; bingo; and a white elephant sale. A variety of items and services will be awarded to the highest bidder as part of the festival silent auction. The Green Shop will offer plants for sale, souvenir items will be on display at the Keepsake Korner, and products of the oven will be available at Ye Olde Bake Shoppe.

Richard and Pamela Schmaltz of Stone Trail in Clarkston are the proud parents of Elizabeth Rebecca born May 26. The new arrival weighed eight pounds and measured 22 inches.

The Time to Stop High Rise Structures From Being Built In Independence Is Now

--before they start. If we lose this opportunity, we will never have another to preserve the natural beauty of our township.

If a large number of interested and concerned voters forcefully register their opposition with the Township Board, we believe the Township Board will be responsive.

We can succeed in our fight but we have to act NOW! Please help us in this effort to save our township from the blight to high rise zoning.

— Sign the petition one of our volunteers will be circulating in your neighborhood.

— Write or call the township offices (625-5111) to let the Township Board know your opposition to high rise zoning

— Contact Township Board members who you have personally supported in elections to let them know of your opposition — Appear at the Township Board Meeting when it is scheduled on this issue to personally register your opposition.

If you are interested in circulating petitions and assisting us in this effort, send a postcard or note with your name, address and phone number to our post office box #210.

Thank you for your help.

Store Hours: Daily 9 to 9, Sunday 10 to 2

The ticket-seekers were orderly and the litter at a minimum considering about 15,000 people had been at the Silverdome that day.

I came to be standing in line early one Saturday morning at the Silverdome to buy tickets for the BeeGees concert in July.

When I arrived at 9:30 there were easily several thousand people, the line stretching from the box office all the way out to gate 5. Some had reportedly been there since 11 a.m. the previous day.

For the most part the ticket-seekers appeared to be teens and young adults, white and middle class. There were a few grey or thinning hair types scattered here and there.

The crowd was orderly and quiet, the parking lot virtually litter-free. Security was impressive with lots of no-nonsense looking men of bigger than average size.

By ten o'clock the crowd was moving rather quickly. Silverdome people told me later they had not waited until that hour to open the box office because the line had been so long. They saw no point in making anyone wait longer than necessary.

At that time the Channel 7 "action news team" showed up complete with Rick Edlund, a cameraman and a soundman. If they were looking for action, they must have been disappointed. They interviewed a couple of teenagers, talked to some Silverdome people and left without much of a story, I imagine.

Fifteen minutes later, I had six tickets clutched in my hot little hand (kids aren't the only ones who like the BeeGees). Upon leaving the box office area I noticed most of the ticket-seekers had what they had come for, the parking lot was nearly empty and the remaining line very short.

One of the Silverdome people said they had already sold 15,000 of the 35,000 available for the Mini-Dome concert scheduled for July 28. Although the nine windows of the box office were only advertised as open until five o'clock that day, they said they would stay open as long as there was someone in line.

The BeeGees 1979 tour includes over 50 performances in 38 cities. The Silverdome is one of only three stadiums on that tour and was selected for the type of audience attracted, according to Tom Hulet of Concert West; they prefer a mini-dome setting to a full stadium.

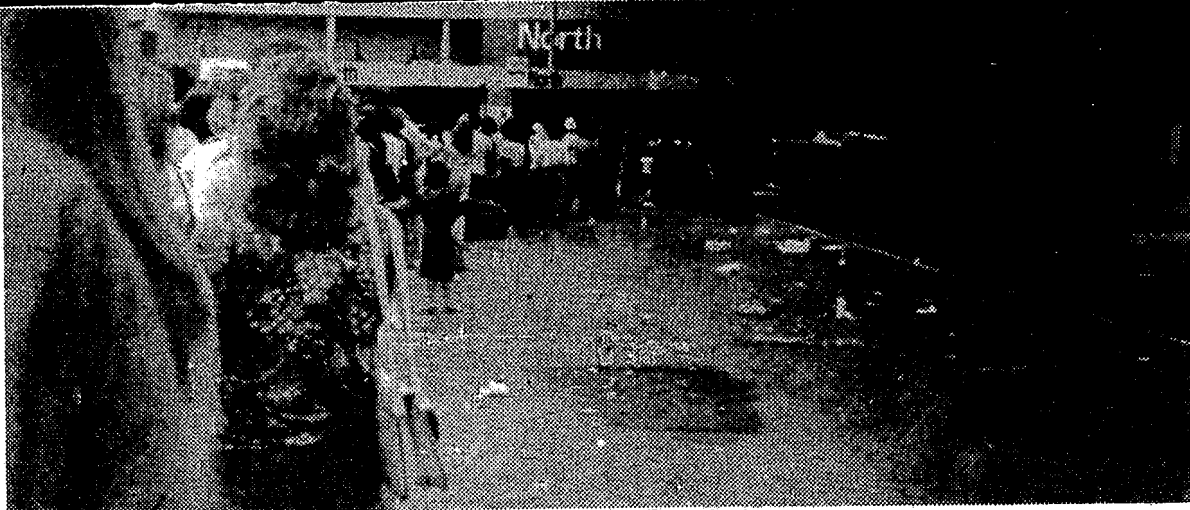

Touring with the BeeGees are the Sweet Inspiration the three black women who toured with Elvis Presley in the past.

At a press conference, Tom Hulet, President of Concert West, promoter of the concert, said the set for the show was "super" having cost some $20,000, expensive for a one-night traveling show. It will take eight semis to transport it, an impressive figure. The length of the show, he said, is still undetermined, although it will run at least an hour and a half. The BeeGees are having difficulty trying to decide which of their many hit songs to include and which to leave out.

The three Australian Gibb brothers are probably most universally known for their songs included in the soundtrack of "Saturday Night Fever," a disco-themed movie starring John Travolta which recently played at the Clarkston Cinema, making its second tour of the country.

The BeeGees not only wrote the title song but also wrote and co-produced most of the soundtrack album. In addition to "Night Fever" their hits include "Staying Alive," "Jive Talkin'," "More Than a woman," and "If I Can't Have You."

Last year they launched the International Year of the Child with a special television production "A Gift of song." An all-star cast donated the total proceeds to UNICEF with the BeeGees donating all proceeds from their hit single "Too Much Heaven."

Basketball Clinic To Feature Frieder, McCarter

Basketball. You say, "It's June, time for baseball, hot dogs, apple pie and Chevrolet." True, but the Varsity Basketball team of Clarkston High School is already gearing up for next year.

On June 11, the team will travel to Detroit to play in the Detroit Summer Basketball League that will last till July 26. This "season" encompasses 11 games, including an All-Star game. Some teams they will be playing against are: Mt. Clemens, Plymouth Salem, River Rouge, Mackenzie, Lahser, Saginaw, and groups of others.

While this mini-season is going on, the team will be hosting a clinic at Clarkston High School directed by Coach Gary Nustad. Coach Nustad has 7 years experience coaching (3 of which were at Clarkston), two consecutive GOAL championships, a 43-20 record at Clarkston, and is a highly respected clinician.

The head instructor will be Coach Larry Mahrle, assistant coach at CHS (coach of Junior Varsity), who has a 39-21 overall record and he also has 2 consecutive GOAL championships. His assistants will be: Tim McCormick-all-state, all-suburban, all-metro, all-county, all-league, all-American candidate, co-captain of CHS Varsity basketball for 2 years, and All-time Season Scoring Record holder; Ed Haddad-2nd team all-league, and co-captain 1979-80 season; and John Sheldon-Honorable mention all-league and co-captain 1979-80 season. (Guest speakers at the clinic will be Scott Thompson from the University of Notre Dame, Bill Frieder from University of Michigan, Willie McCarter from University of Detroit, Tony McAndrews University of Iowa, and Tom Domke from St. Mary's College.

Reading Program Has Openings

The summer reading program got underway at the Independence Township Library Monday, June 11, but there is still time for young people to sign up and start reading. The program runs through July 20.

Acting Librarian Lucy Embrey said the young people just have to fill out a card at the library to register and check out some books. They will have to keep track of each book they read by jotting down the title, the author and maybe a sentence or two about the book. Their parents are asked to verify the children have read the books they checked out.

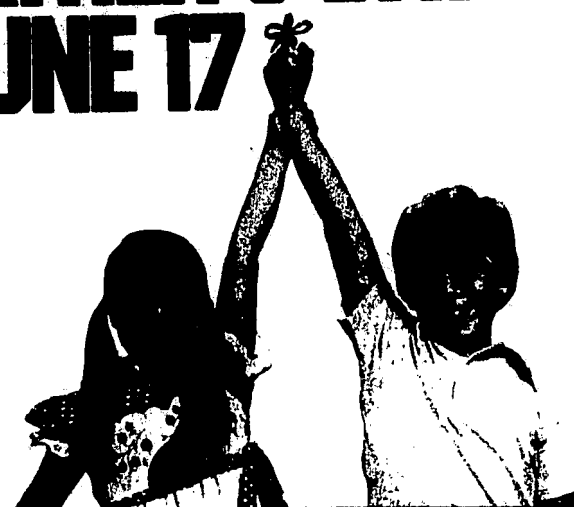

The boy and girl who read the greatest number of books will each be awarded a book at an award party given on July 25, by the Friends of the Library. All of the children participating will be given certificates, punch and cookies.

Wednesdays will continue to be movie day at the library with those for pre-schoolers being shown in the morning at 11:00 and those for juniors at 3:00 in the afternoon. Movies to be shown will be posted at the library a week in advance.

Holly Students Take Over Village Council

On Tuesday, May 22, a special meeting of the Holly Village Council was called. The winners of an election held at Holly High School were sworn in and took over the council meeting at that point.

Elected as President of the Council was Nancy MacKenzie, the clerk was Cathy Thomas, the treasurer was Patty Osborn and the trustees elected and present were Jim Ashley, Laura LaBarge, Lora Solkberg, Scott Hill, Angela Reid and Roger Yeuan.

The meeting was conducted as a regular council meeting is, with the meeting being called to order at 1:55 p.m. Letters from Senator Kerry Kammer and the Chessie (Railroad) System were read regarding a proposed historic district in Holly.

A police report was given by Police Chief Robert Downing, who felt that the whole experience was worth his while.

The students who took over the jobs on the council, did what the clerk, treasurer, etc. do during their normal day.

Cathy Thomas, clerk, felt that she had gained a worthwhile experience, as well as seeing exactly what the clerk's job entails. Patty Osborn, treasurer, recounted her experience of receiving money for the sewage system, the cemetery, etc.

Appointed by President MacKenzie, and sworn in by Clerk Thomas were Mark Corless, Health Officer, and Mark Hummer, Village Attorney.

FORECAST

by Robert Davis

by Robert C. Davis

Relatively cool and dry conditions persisted over most of our 4-township and surrounding area during May. Rainfall totals for May ranged from 1.42 inches at Fenton to 3.96 inches near Van Norman Lake/Waterford Township. Locally, the northern Clarkston station recorded 2.07 inches and the eastern Clarkston station recorded 2.66 inches of precipitation during the month. The eastern Clarkston station has received just under 13 inches of precipitation since the first of the year, which is a little over an inch above normal.

Based on data from the eastern Clarkston station, temperatures during May ranged from a low of 27 degrees on the morning of the 5th to a high of 87 degrees on the afternoons of the 9th and 11th. This year I gambled by planting our garden early and paid dearly for that decision when we received a frost on the morning of the 22nd. The mean temperature for the month was 56.0 degrees in the Clarkston area, which is a little more than one degree below normal per day. Since the 1st of January, our temperatures are averaging about 3.5 degrees below normal per day.

Because we have experienced so many months of below normal temperatures during the past few years, I decided to do a little research into whether there was any significance to these figures. I did find some very interesting statistics which I will share with you.

Recently some European climatologists have been able to reconstruct the major climatic features of Western Europe over the past 1000 years with considerable accuracy. Based on a concept called "teleconnection", certain conclusions about the climate of the Great Lakes during the same period can also be made. Basically the "teleconnection" concept says that Western Europe and eastern North America experience similar weather or climatic patterns at the same time; therefore climatic trends occurring in Europe during the past 1000 years would have been occurring in the eastern portions of North America at the same time.

What can we learn about our past climate from this study? First of all, the study shows that from about the year 1300 A.D. to the latter part of the 19th century (which includes the period of the colonization of our eastern seaboard), we experienced a progressively colder climate. This period has been called the "little ice age" by climatologists. Then near the end of the 19th century we experienced a warming trend which reached its peak in the 1930's, but lasted into the 1940's and 1950's. Since then, however, the climate has been turning colder again, possibly back to the more "normal" cold pattern.

What does all this mean? Well, when we say today that our temperatures are above or below normal, we are comparing present day figures to averages based on a standard 30-year period covering the last 3 full decades. For the 1970's, we are using the 30-year period from 1940 through 1969. Since we have established that the 1940's and part of the 1950's was an unusually warm period in our past history, we can say that the 30-year period that we are using for "normals" may not be so "normal" after all. Indeed, if the last 700 years has been a basically cold period, we should really expect our temperatures to be below the 30-year normals. (The isohyetal map was prepared by Robert C. Davis and Robert Ihrke, and was sponsored by Johnson and Anderson, Inc., Consulting Engineers.)

Springfield Library Pre-School Program to Start June 25

The Springfield Township Library Reading Program for pre-school and elementary school children will start the week of June 25th. It will run until August 17th. There will be a weekly film during the summer on Wednesdays at 1:00 also starting the week of the 25th.

The public is invited to an Open House the Library is having to dedicate the new building on Sunday, June 24th from 1:00 to 3:00. Featured speakers will be State Representative Claude Trim and Norris Walls, longtime resident of Davisburg. Refreshments will be served.

The Friends of the Library are sponsoring a 50-50 Raffle to benefit the Library. The drawing will be held the day of the Open House. For ticket information, call the Library.

Alvin and Clara Day purchased books from National Geographic for the Library.

This month the Library received 110 new easy picture books for children and about 50 new paperbacks for young adults.

The Last Flight of the Hindenburg

Editor's Note:

Dallas Keffer of Clarkston is a student historian th has done extensive research on the Hindenburg.

by Dallas Keffer

During the 1936 season, the German airship Hindenburg had flown over the North Atlantic many times. It had made ten round-trips between Europe and the United States carrying passengers, cargo and mail.

On May 2, 1937, the Hindenburg left Germany on her first 1937 flight. On board were 97 passengers and crew. The passengers had been checked earlier for any metal objects, when found they were taken to another part of the ship until it landed, this was done because any metal objects could create sparks and ignite the flammable hydrogen with which the huge ship was inflated.

The ship was 803 feet long, 135 in diameter and was propelled by four Daimler-Benz engines. It was divided into 16 main compartments which housed each of the hydrogen filled gas cells. The passenger section was up in the hull of the ship just aft of the command gondola (a "car" hanging under the ship).

During the trip a few strange things were encountered, including St. Elmos fire (static electricity). The entire ship was "electrified" and sparks flew from window sills, ceilings and rails. Although harmless, many people feared this and were afraid to touch anything. Once the ship came to a lower position it left and everyone went about as usual.

While coming lower, passengers noticed icebergs beneath the ship. As one survivor said, "It was a beautiful sight. The first thing I thought of when I saw them was that passenger ship Titanic."

On Thursday, May 6, the Lakehurst Naval Air Station in Lakehurst, New Jersey was swarming with people awaiting the arrival of the "Queen of the Sky".

It was shortly before 4:00 p.m. that the Hindenburg swept over the station. Captain Max Pruss had flown the

Say You SAW
it in
THE REMINDER

Queen to her destination before the scheduled arrival. But winds and thunderstorms had delayed landing.

At a few minutes past 7:00 it was recommended that the Hindenburg be landed as soon as possible. Passengers checked their bags and prepared to disembark.

The Hindenburg overed about 500 feet above the mooring mast.

Gas was valved off and water ballast dropped to trim the ship, and at 7:21 the first landing rope was dropped. The steel cable for pulling the ship down inched out from the bow but never made it to the ground.

The monstrous, silvery hull of the Hindenburg hung over the field in almost total silence. Then, at 7:25 p.m., there appeared a red glow in the back of the ship and a huge ball of fire burst out and began mushrooming upward. The stern lost its buoyancy and began to fall as the bow rose higher and higher. Flames shot through the back of the ship and burning fabric and molten aluminum fell to the ground. The spectators ran in panic to keep from being consumed in the falling inferno.

"Run for your lives!" shouted someone near the mooring mast.

In the command gondola Captain Pruss was preparing to drop more ballast when suddenly the ship jerked violently and he was thrown against a window. He saw the spectators run as a red glow spread across the ground. Then the ship's stern began to fall rapidly.

The stern hit the ground and flames spread through the ship to the bow which was at a 45 degree angle. The name Hindenburg on the side of the ship "disintegrated" in the flames and the bow hit the ground.

A Keffer drawing depicts the tragedy

Suddenly, a multitude of people came running out of the wreckage. Some pushing red hot girders away with their bare hands; others covered with fire.

The blackened frame of the Hindenburg lay on the field in a cloud of black smoke. From the first explosion to the time the bow hit the ground was only 34 seconds. 36* passengers and crew died, including Captain Ernst Lehmann. 62 survived the fiery disaster.

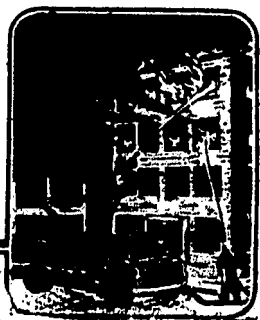

Thus, on May 6, 1937, at 7:25 p.m., the age of passenger airships came to an end as the smoldering wreckage of the Hindenburg lay scattered on the airfield at Lakehurst.

Wild-Flowers MICHIGAN'S NATURAL BEAUTIES

Pictures by Lee McArthur

During the past twenty-five years Lee McArthur has captured the beauty of hundreds of Michigan wild flowers. Here are some of his photos, taken in this area.

Mandrake or May Apple found in woods on high ground, the whitish blossom is hid under the large leaves which produce a small round May apple.

Woods south of Ortonville with thousands of Trillium, one of the many protected flowers.

Bunchberry - small and delicate and comes out of the middle of a well arranged group of semi waxy leaves, often grows close to hardwood trees.

The bloodroot with leaves still tight letting us know this is just beginning to blossom.

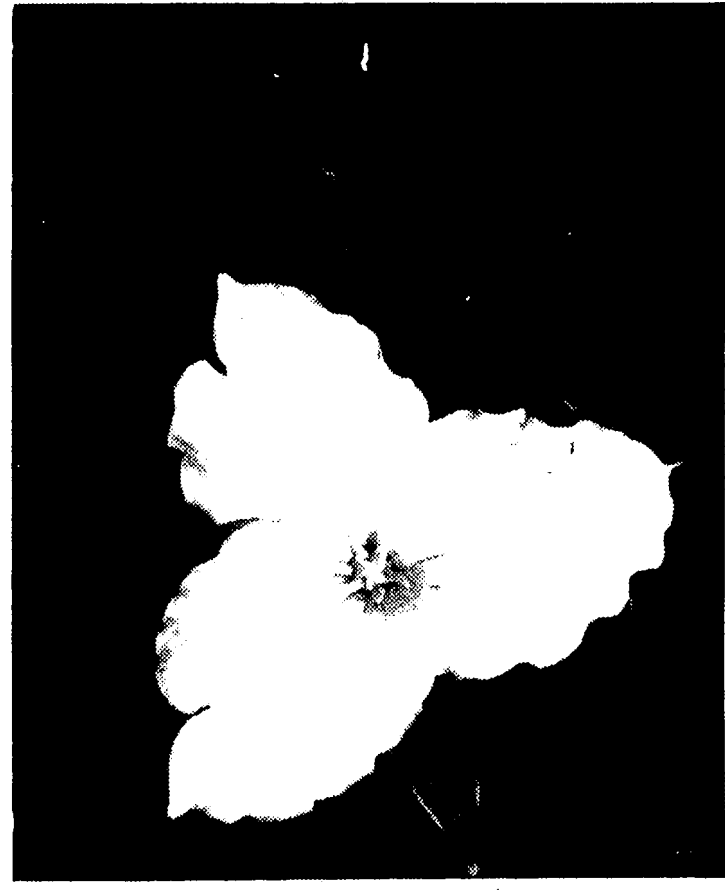

A massive group of bloodroot, the stems of which when picked by small children leave a sticky orange liquid on hands.

Jack In The Pulpit, an old familiar name among the wild flowers colors of blossom are very close to shades of the leaves.

Delicate but stately this perfect miter wort can be found all during May.

Single trillium with a drop of morning dew on the delicate white petals.

The Merchant...diser

The North Oakland County Merchant...diser has arrived...just in time for Father's Day.

According to Oxford businessman Arnold Simmons, who dreamed up and put together the coupon book, the Merchant...diser would make an excellent gift for Father.

The book includes 100 coupon pages from nearly 50 stores in the Oxford, Clarkston, Ortonville and Lake Orion areas.

Some of the values found in the Merchant...diser are: Several free passes to the Oxford Twin Cinema and the Huron Theatre.

Complimentary dinners at a number of area restaurants.

Free dresses from the Clothes Tree and the Clothes Closet.

Said Simmons, if one were to take advantage of just one-third of the theatre passes offered, they would still realize a good savings. And that's not including the food car, clothes and other merchandise being offered.

Although the coupon book concept is nothing new, it's the first time this area has been the exclusive benefactor of one. Inherent to the Merchant...diser is the fact that most of the coupons are good at anytime. That's different from other books, that usually prohibit redemption during weekends and holidays.

Those stores with coupons in the book are Oxford Twin Cinema, Huron Theatre, Medaugh's, Harps, Oxford Big Boy, Patterson Pharmacy, Al B's Beauty Salon, Grampian Mountain, Jim's Restaurant, Hocus Focus Magic, Submarine Center, Clothes Closet, The Fabric Shop, The Book Place, The Antique Nook, Fine Tree Lighting, Town Club Pop, Queen Size Shop, Tubby's Subs, Skandia, Artstree, Convenience Stop, Growing Pains, David Orser Photographer, The Tire Store, Evola Music, Berg Cleaners, Deer Lake Travel, Coutures Custom Floor Covering, Palace Fine Foods, The Clothes Tree, Doubl D. Rototilling, Advance Floor Decorators, Town and Country Pant 'n Paper, The Village Photographer, Frames by Marilyn, Willow Pointe, Village Dry Goods, Owen Motors, Featherston Hardware and the A&W Restaurant.

For more information about the Merchant...diser call Simmons at 628-7100 or see his ad in this week's Reminder.

MAX BROOK RELOCATES DOWN THE STREET

Max Brook Inc. has moved their offices in Clarkston down the street to the Garter Building at 27 S. Main, allowing them to expand their office space and staff. There are now 16 associates with manager-broker Valerie A. Phaup.

Max Brook founded the Real Estate firm in 1895. After his death in 1915, his son Ferd, carried the firm on through the depression years. Grandson Bowen took over running the business in 1972 with co-partner Stephen E. Pew.

Max Brook carries the distinction of being the oldest Real Estate firm in Michigan. They are members of 5 Realtor Boards.

For their new office, they restored the Garter Building. In keeping the decor as close to the original as possible, they tastefully used the old decorative tin paneling.

New Cheerleaders Announced

by Bill Grobbel

Twenty-nine girls showed up at Clarkston High School a few short weeks ago to compete against each other to become members of the 1979-80 cheerleading squad. Only 16 would make it (8 on Varsity, 8 on Junior Varsity).

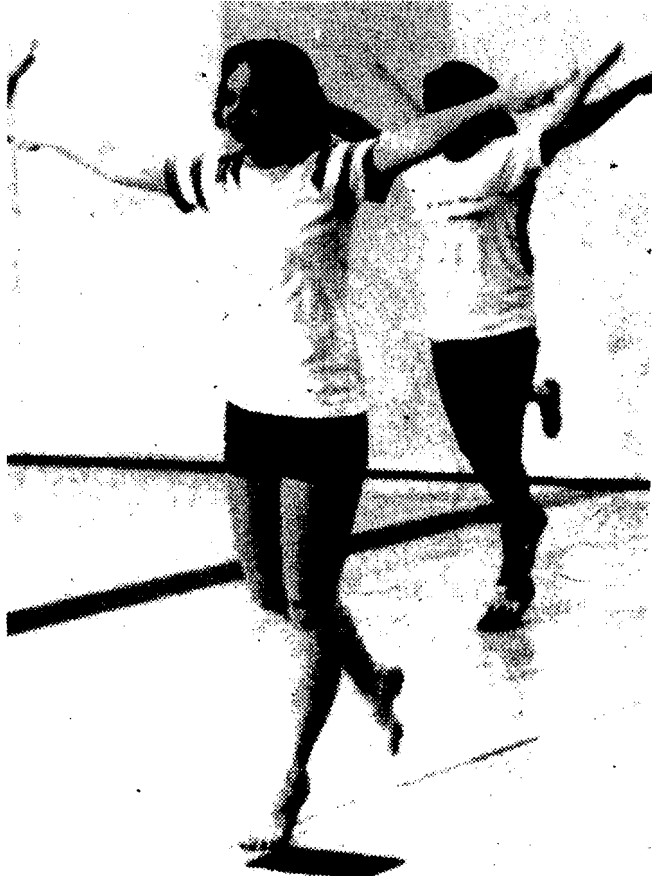

When asked what type of girl they were looking for, Tami Baldwin, a senior on the 1978-79 Varsity Squad, said, "We're looking for someone who will stand up to peer pressure and be able to make the right decisions. They'll be judged on their attitude, and how well they'll represent the school at different functions." Besides that, the girls had to successfully perform 5 different jumps, 2 sideline cheers, and 1 floor cheer. They also had to make up their own motions to the words of the cheer "Spirit Explosion." They practiced for 10 days in the high school gym, being carefully watched for their enthusiasm and participation.

The Varsity Cheerleaders for 1979-80 are: Amy Bixby, Nicki Collins, Tammy Larkin, Lori Lewis, Cere Schraw, Mary Olney, Sherry Williams, Sue Jorgenson, and their new manager Chris Savas.

The Junior Varsity Cheerleaders for 1979-80 are:

Kathy Wenzel, Karin Kalstrom, Kari Joe Svenkson, Sonya Funck, Leann Carlson, Cindy Larkin, Kelly Swift, and Cathy Goldner.

DAD'S A WINNER!

A SALUTE TO AREA FATHERS

JUST THINKING

As I sit here thinking, of all the joys I've known
There is a very special man, though older now he's grown--
Who I can see with girl of five, walking hand in hand
The smile on their faces, is one I understand.

He says, "I'll push you on the swing, if you will sing a song"
And she says, "OK daddy, if you will sing along."
You hear "Yes, Jesus Loves Me" in voices out of tune
It's been this way so many times on sunny days in June.

Soon after Daddy's quiet and little girl goes on Singing every song, she knows about the great beyond Those days of swings have come and gone--little girl has grown
And Daddy's hair has long turned grey, but of their joys I've known.

Now girl is with another man who often holds her hand
The smile on their faces is one I understand.

CLARKSTON MAN NAMED SEN. RIEGLE'S PRESS SECRETARY

Michael B. Russell of Clarkston has been named press secretary for Senator Donald Riegle effective June 25, when Russell, his wife Rita and their 13 year old daughter Michele move to Washington, D.C.

Russell has been the assignment editor for Channel 7 in Detroit for the past two years. Prior to that he was with WJRT-TV in Flint where he began as a reporter and rose to a position as its managing editor. He has received numerous awards for his work in broadcasting.

Russell got his start with a television station in Pennsylvania following his graduation from Boston University with a Bachelor of Science degree in broadcasting journalism.

It was during his years in Flint that Russell first became acquainted with Senator Riegle, first as a reporter then on a personal basis. Riegle approached him early last month with the offer of the job of press secretary.

Russell said the decision to get out of the news business was not an easy one, Channel 7 was a "good group" to work with. But he said he decided the offer was an "honor" and that, perhaps, the job offered "the best of three worlds: working with Riegle, keeping the Michigan connection and being in Washington where it's happening."

Russell's present job requires he start his day at 6 a.m. He decides who covers what and how. Any one assignment involves a reporter, a soundman, a cameraman, and many others. Just last week, he had to work with two fatal fires, the freighter fire in the Upper Peninsula and the Democratic Committee touring Detroit all in one day.

Russell said he expects his new job to be every bit as exciting as the one he has now. He will be expected to set up a smooth operation and have a hand in policy-making. He will work with the Senator to get his message back to the people in Michigan and to the news media, something Riegle himself is too busy to do particularly when Congress is in session.

As a professional, Russell feels he will be an asset to the Senator's staff. Riegle has established seven offices throughout the state, twice as many as any other senator. He has spread out the majority of his staff here and not in Washington as others do. The closest regional office to Clarkston is in Flint or Detroit.

Russell anticipates traveling with Riegle on occasion and plans to visit all seven offices right away himself to assess their needs.

Russell's family in Clarkston include his grandmother Mrs. C.W. (Mary) Russell and aunts and uncles Frank and Helene Russell and Mathew and Ann Hubchen.

LEGISLATORS Life More Than Glitter and Glamour

by Carol Balzarini

The lives of Representative Claude Trim and Senator Kerry Kammer are far from leisurely. To spend a day in Lansing with them recently was an enlightening experience.

Perhaps the best way to describe the lives of these legislators is to compare them with a mother of small children. Someone always seems to be tugging at their sleeves wanting something. The demands made on them and on their time, aside from what they demand of themselves, seem incredible.

They appear to be forever jumping from one meeting to another, from one bill to another, from one person to another. To the casual observer, their lives seem to be in a state of constant confusion with very little continuity.

Both Trim and Kammer agreed, however, that particular day was unusual and more hectic than most. Activity at the Capitol increases in the spring as field trips, particularly, increase.

The hour and twenty minute drive from Clarkston was pleasant and due to good weather, good roads and little traffic. Both Trim and Kammer use their expense allowances to commute daily. Only rarely does either of them stay over night in Lansing. Each takes advantage of those eighty minutes of solitude to relax, unwind and collect his thoughts.

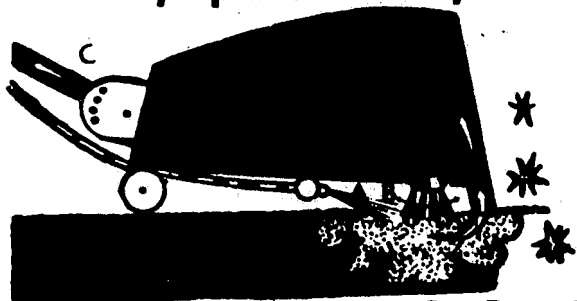

It took only minutes after arriving in Trim's office to realize how valuable a secretary can be. Trim's provides him with a neatly typed card with his daily schedule on it—who to meet, where and when. With the schedule he sometimes keeps, he really needs that card.

Trim's staff also includes two interns from Michigan State, an aide and a high school volunteer. He qualifies for the aide as chairman of the mental health sub-committee. Membership on the public health committee qualifies him for an office on the main floor because he frequently meets with handicapped people. Representatives normally have smaller paid staffs than senators.

The first meeting that morning was with the taxation committee. Committee members sit around large tables in the center of the room. They are surrounded on three sides by chairs mainly filled with lobbyists, visitors and people who want to speak on various issues on the agenda. In the corner was a table with coffee and doughnuts on it. It soon became the proverbial

"smoke-filled room." Each subsequent committee meeting followed this same pattern, only the topic

The ultimate in steam cleaning is only a phone call away!

Note this bottom-side view of the Rug Doctor Vibra Brush method carpet cleaner in action.

- Hot water and cleaning solution jets into the carpet.
- Vibra Brush (like electric tooth brush) agitates carpet back and forth 3,400 times each minute. This breaks soil loose and polishes each carpet fiber to a clean, brilliant finish. This type of brush does not distort pile.
- Powerful suction extracts hot water and loosened soil back up to waste tank.

Periodically Trim left the room to run down the hall to check on the progress of the state affairs committee of which he is also a member. He had to stick with the taxation committee, however, because he was co-sponsor of a bill to list and assess a valuation for all tax-exempt properties.

At ten o'clock, Senator Kammer was on his way out of the Senate chamber to meet a group of students and teachers from Fowlerville. He chatted briefly with a number of groups and individuals. Back in the Senate Chamber, he introduced seven visiting school groups to his colleagues.

Kammer ducked out briefly for a taped interview with a reporter from a radio station. The subject was the successful passage earlier that week of Kammer's controversial wetlands bill. He was repeatedly congratulated throughout the day.

Trim, Kammer and other legislators representing the Oakland County area met with a delegation call Caravan for Kids. These people from the county's schools were seeking increased appropriations for education.

At eleven o'clock, it was back up the stairs for a meeting of the public health committee. Trim and the others were discussing a somewhat controversial death and dying bill.

At 12:15 we left for lunch although the committee meeting had not ended (Trim would have stayed had a reporter not been tagging along). Lunch consisted of a roast beef sandwich from a fast food restaurant eaten in his office. He was scheduled to meet some people there in just forty-five minutes.

The afternoon was much like the morning, up and down the stairs, in and out of meetings, shake hands, talk, meet and greet, plus the House session. By four o'clock, exhaustion had set in for me but Trim and Kammer were still going strong.

It was easy to see why they both appreciate the drive home.

State Representative Claude Trim takes his attendance at committee meetings seriously.

Lobbying For the Arts in Lansing

by Carol Balzarini

For the average citizen, the term "lobbying" is one heard on news broadcasts or read in newspapers. The image it connotes is not always a flattering one but basically it refers to the efforts of an individual or group to influence legislation.

Being a naturally curious person (and the resource representative for Clarkston and Independence), I grabbed at the chance to accompany Joan Kopietz to Lansing recently. She was joining a large delegation from the Oakland County Cultural Council and many others from around the state to lobby for the arts.

Kopietz has been a member of that council for nearly two years having served as a resource representative prior to that.

For many of these lobbyists, or advocates as they prefer to call themselves, it was on-the-job training in grassroots lobbying. They had participated in one of four regional workshops earlier in the year sponsored by the Michigan Association of Community Arts Agencies (MACAA).

The day's schedule began early in the morning with the annual Michigan Council for the Arts (MCA) advocacy meeting and a state of the arts report from Mrs. William Milliken. Following that was "Luncheon With Your Legislators," a special feature of the MACAA gathering with their annual meeting afterward. The luncheon provided an opportunity for arts funding on a personal basis.

The Michigan Council for the Arts' funding is part of the executive budget with the MCA presenting their budget figures to the Governor and his presenting his own recommendations to the legislature. This year the Governor's recommended figure stands at nearly $8 million as compared to last year's $5.5 million. Additional funds are being requested to dramatically increase fulltime positions in the under-staffed MCA and to fund individual artists, something never before done in Michigan.

One speaker at the advocacy session was Democratic Representative Gary Owen of Ypsilanti, a member of the House Appropriations Committee. He gave a legislator's point of view of budgeting funds and of lobbyists, one of the external factors influencing legislators who are trying to establish priorities.

Owen said he was having a difficult time trying to reconcile a requested 44 percent increase in the MCA budget while the cost of living was only rising some 10-12 percent.

While MCA representatives have told him art contributes to the "quality of life," he said many of his constituents consider food, clothing and shelter the only factors contributing to their quality of life. Owen conceded, however, exposure to art in the schools, for example, can have a long-term effect on the quality of life.

One member of the audience reminded Owen that one plan advocated by the MCA was granted to individual artists providing them with food, clothing and shelter while allowing them to work. That certainly contributed to their quality of life.

The second speaker was Jack Feheeley, a professional lobbyist and director of governmental affairs for the Michigan Consolidated Gas Company. He stressed to the gathering their group was the type which depended on personal contact for success, the director's opinion would not suffice. He contrasted the MCA with the UAW whose positions on many matters were automatically well-known to legislators. He said the greatest cuts were made in budgets with no known constituency.

Feheeley further stressed being informed, knowing something about your legislator and about the bill itself. He said personal contact was better than a letter, an individual letter better than a form letter, and a telephone call effective at the last minute. If the legislator votes your way, he advised, write a letter and thank him.

Highlight of the morning session was an address by Mrs. William Milliken, standing in for her husband who had a previous commitment. She alluded to a recent Harris poll showing people were looking for quality in arts today rather than quantity, most of them recognizing the importance of the art in the quality of life.

The poll further showed the majority recognized the necessity of cultural facilities in the community and their importance even to its economy. Ninety-one percent of the respondents wanted more exposure to the arts in schools. For many, Mrs. Milliken said, the arts are only a promise because of high cost and low availability where they live.

She went on to emphasize the importance of integrating art in our daily lives because of the benefits derived. She said it relieved boredom and tension, provided a catalyst for activity in the community, expanded our imaginations and enriched our lives.

Mrs. Milliken also brought a message from the Governor who said, "Government at every level has a responsibility to support the arts." Both of them recognized the controversial aspects of funding the arts in a world of social needs but felt art helped us to cope with life.

CRANBROOK FESTIVAL, JUNE 16-17

Laser shows, hot-air balloon rides, a silent auction and a family marathon are features of a fund raising event at Cranbrook Institute of Science June 16 (rain date: June 17) from 1 to 7 p.m.

The "Lighter Than Air" festival will feature over 30 activities both inside the museum and on the Cranbrook grounds.

Weather permitting, three hot-air balloons will be tethered on 125-foot lines to provide rides. If wind velocity is too high, balloonists will demonstrate their equipment and answer questions about the increasingly-popular sport.

Three-laser light shows with music will be in the planetarium, plus a hang-glider display, shadow puppet shows, tin-type photographs, observatory demonstrations, folk dancing, guessing games, origami workshops and more.

The festival will begin Saturday morning with the Cranbrook Run, a family marathon on the Cranbrook grounds with runs of three and six miles for adults and one-tenth of a mile for children.

The price of a used home should relate to its condition. If the house is not in good condition but is priced accordingly, it may still be a good buy. Before deciding to buy, however, it is a good idea to find out the cost of repairs and improvements necessary to put the house and equipment in acceptable condition. Some people also ask a qualified engineer or home builder to make an inspection. A fee is normally charged for this service, but it may save heavy expense later. The names of people who make these inspections may be obtained from a financial institution's mortgage department, or from a reliable real estate individual.

Let the knowledge and experience of a reliable real estate office such as BOB WHITE REAL ESTATE, 5856 S. DID YOU KNOW?

Location of a house lot should conform with the deed and with zoning regulations.

by Mandy Mitts
Dear Mandy,

What do you think about a woman who sends her four year old to nursery school to "get rid of him" so she can enjoy herself--going shopping, playing bridge, and other nonsense? My wife does that--and calls herself liberated. I think she's goofing off! Raising children is her job and she should stick to it--I can't leave my job in someone else's hands while I goof off--why should women be able to?

For Men's Liberation!

Dear Friend,

If your wife quits work at five o'clock every day, and has someone in to fix meals, do dishes, put your son to bed, and sits in front of the TV all evening or otherwise relaxes from her hard day--and if she sleeps through the night when the child is ill, because she has to "work" the next day--I agree with you. However, most women work all the time at being a mother and must take breaks when the house is in order and the children are happy and healthy. Your wife deserves relaxation too and you and your son benefit when she is smart enough to see that she gets it. Aside from that, your son is getting a very valuable experience from nursery school. It's good for him to be with others. Mothers who are never separated from their children do them a disservice. Such a child has a very difficult time adjusting when an emergency or illness demands separation.

Mandy

Dear Mandy,

Please say a word to people who have garages facing the houses across the street, and go away all day and leave the garage door open. We paid quite a lot for a nice house in an attractive neighborhood but we're thinking of draping all our front windows because our view consists of garage interiors! It only takes a minute to close a garage door and it certainly improves the appearance of a house--and the whole neighborhood!

Beauty Lover

Dear Beauty Lover,

I agree with you that a house looks more attractive with the garage door closed. Why don't you ask your neighbors if they have a particular reason for leaving theirs open? If they simply don't have time to close them--ask if they'd mind if you do--and tell them why. It is most likely thoughtlessness on their part and they'd be happy to oblige once the situation is brought to their attention. Closing the garage door is safer too. An empty one is a dead give-away that there is no one home! An open garage, when there are sprays and gasoline in them are an invitation to children too--and a very dangerous place to play. You might mention that worry too!

Mandy

Dear Mandy,

This may sound silly, but I'm seventeen, and have been letting my hair grow since the sixth grade. My family wants me to have it cut in a short style like some of my friends have done, but I'm scared!

What if I look awful? It would take years to grow it back again, and with Graduation coming up next year, my senior pictures might show me looking like a freak! Do you think I should put the haircut off until after Graduation, or do you agree with my family? We decided to get an outside opinion.

Gert

Dear Gert,

I think you should get an outsider's opinion--but from

You may decide on a shoulder-length style rather than a short one. Then go to a hair-styling salon and tell them the length you'd like to have it and let them give you advice on styles. You might also look through magazines for models with similar facial structures to yours and see how they wear their hair. You might get some ideas that way.

Mandy

Dear Mandy,

My husband has just retired and has a lot of time on his hands. He wants me to take up tennis, golf, bowling, and swimming with him. I think he's nuts. What will people say if they see two old goats trying to keep up with the kids? I'm really not sure how to handle this because I don't want him to get depressed about not being needed on the job anymore. Do you know of some alternate ideas I could suggest?

Grandma

Dear Grandma,

I think it's wonderful that your husband has so much energy and think you should forget what other people think and join him in having fun. Both of you should check with a doctor to make sure it's safe to participate in all those sports—he may warn you to take one of them at a time! Remember all the entertainers in their 70's that are still very active have always been active and you may have to work on some of those muscles. If you really can't bring yourself to the point of enthusiasm over sports, do join the Senior Citizen's group where you can both make friends with similar interests, but don't complain if your husband is off with the boys enjoying his golf game etc. Good luck and good health to you both!

SOMERSET MALL TO FEATURE PIANISTS JUNE 17

On June 17 from 2-4 p.m. the Somerset Mall's Sunday concert series will present the solo and four-hand piano, with Thomas Barna and Paul H. Burns. The concerts are staged in the center mall and are open to the public.

Both of the featured players have been acclaimed as If concerts aren't exactly your "thing", a fashion show will be held on Thursday, June 14 at 7:00 p.m. at the Mall. Featured as models will be members of the Detroit Express Soccer Team, along with their wives and possibly some of their children.

Twelve members of the Express that will act as models are: David Bradford, Eddie Colquhoun, Keith Furphy, Paul Hunter, Ted MacDougall, Graham Oates, Bob Rohrbach, Johann Scharmann, Steve Sargeant, Brian Tinnion, Danny Vaughn and Trevor Francis, if he makes it from England in time to model.

The players, when the modeling is over, will talk soccer and give out autographs to the audience.

To launch the show will be Jimmy Launce, the popular WJR host of his own talk show and a Dinner Theatre performer. First, he'll give the audience a preview of his new act and then will take over the emcee chores.

Life is a mixture of sunshine and rain
Laughter and pleasure
teardrops and pain
All days can't be bright
but it's certainly true
There was never a cloud
the sun didn't shine through.
So just keep on smiling
whatever betide you,
Secure in the knowledge
God is always beside you.
And you'll find when you smile
your day will be brighter
And all of your burdens will seem so much lighter.
For each time you smile
you will find that it's true,
Somebody, Somewhere
will smile back at you.
And nothing on earth can make life more worthwhile
Then the sunshine and warmth of a beautiful smile!

PAUL BUNYAN & OX BABE

Paul Bunyan grew very high.
He grew until he touched the sky.
He was such a very big man,
That he could hold the world
In the palm of his hand.

Paul had an ox, whose color was blue
And one day the ox had a job to do.
But, all he would do was stand and cry.
He wouldn't help Paul drink the river dry.

Paul drank and drank from the river cold.
The water went down and down we're told.
Then, all at once Paul began to shake
There on the Bottom lay a big black snake.

Babe jumped in and caught the snake.
The snake gave Babe a bad stomach.
Babe's teeth began to rattle and his Eyes began to roll.
Poor Paul knew, it was time to dig Babe's hole.

He dug the hole without delay
For poor ole Babe had passed away.
Paul's heart was broken, his back was bent.
His life grew miserable, as his day was spent.
Poor Paul lay down in the River to sleep
Then the water rose and buried him deep

UNEMPLOYMENT RATE DROPS

Michigan's unemployment rate dropped substantially in May to 7.2 percent from April's unusually high 8.6 percent, according to estimates released by Michigan Employment Security Commission Director S. Martin Taylor.

Taylor said the number of workers unemployed in May fell by 55,000 to 311,000. Employment, on the other hand, rose by 128,000 during the month to 4,016,000.

The state's civilian labor force in May was 4,328,000, an increase of 74,000.

The current May unemployment estimates for the state are higher than last year's when Michigan had a jobless rate of 6.6 percent with 273,000 out of work and 3,893,000 working.

"Michigan's May jobless estimates signal a return to a more normal spring pattern of lower unemployment following April's unusually high jobless rate," Taylor said. "April's rate reflected several factors including the teamsters' labor dispute which created short-term layoffs in a number of industries and problems in gathering employment data because of the Easter and Passover holidays and school vacations."

"Generally, we have a decline in unemployment in May as the warm weather generates a heavy pick-up in construction activity along with employment gains in the manufacturing and retail trade industries," Taylor said.

Nationally, the unemployment rate remained unchanged from April to May at 5.8 percent as the number of unemployed fell by 8,000 to 5,929,000.

COUNTY WANTS TO Display Artists Work

Wanted: Artists to loan their works to Oakland County for display in the lobbies and halls of county buildings for three month intervals. Artists may be established or developing, individuals or groups.

Interest in purchasing any of the works on display will be referred to the artist by the Oakland County Cultural Council, the group behind the project known as "Art in Public Places."

Interested artists may contact Jean DeWard at 858-0415 (OCCC), 645-1150 (toll free number) or 673-6368 (home).

"Art in Public Places" is a pilot project for the OCCC but may soon become a statewide program if a bill introduced by State Representative Ruth MacNamee is passed.

FEATURES DANCE

Guest instructors from some of America's most respected classical and modern dance companies will be in residence June 25 - August 3 for dance workshops at Oakland University.

the important decisions should be made at home.

The Stars and Stripes flies full-mast on fair days in front of U.S. government buildings—including post offices.

The American flag must always be given the place of honor; higher, in front of, or to the right when flown or positioned with other flags. Here, it is shown with the State of Michigan flag and one bearing the familiar "golden arches."

Flag Day JUNE 14

"Oh, say, does that star-spangled banner yet wave O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?"

--Francis Scott Key

by Betty Good

On June 14, 1979, the nation will once again celebrate Flag Day--established as an annual national celebration on May 30, 1916, by then-President Woodrow Wilson.

But Francis Scott Key's lyrics, written during a battle at sea in 1814, have an historical significance dating back to the Middle Ages.

In those days of battle on horseback and on foot, as in modern-day warfare--and even moon landings--the flag signified territorial rights. Soldiers in the rear of battalions often kept informed of a battle's progress by whose flag flew at the front--or over a particular piece of territory. When a flagbearer fell, others rushed to raise the banner high. The famous picture of the Marines planting the flag on Iwo Jima, during WWII, poignantly depicts such a scene.

The official United States flag Stars and Stripes, adopted by resolution of the Continental Congress on June 14, 1777, originally contained thirteen alternating red and white stripes and thirteen white stars on a blue field to represent the thirteen original states. As new states came into the Union, additional stars were added in a variety of patterns until the number now stands at fifty-one for each state.

Both a flag code and federal laws govern the use and display of the American flag. It must always be given the position of honor--higher, in front of, or to the right, depending on its use.

Most elementary school children study a unit on the flag; and, since it is flown on airports, government buildings, schools, camps, parks and naval vessels, flag-watching can be an interesting and informative pastime.

Nearly all ceremonies important to the citizens of America, ranging from voting to graduation to marriage, take place with the flag displayed prominently. It is a symbol of the land, its people, and its ideals.

Though it is illegal to use the American flag for advertising purposes, many institutions--like university athletic fields and, even, local restaurants--fly the Stars and Stripes as a symbol of freedom and the American Way.
