editor's note

As the school year winds down, the number of school-related special events seems to increase. This week's Reminder contains reports on many of those events.

Obviously one of the most important events during the entire year is graduation. The Reminder along with over 30 participating businesses wish their best to all graduating seniors. The top honor students from Clarkston, WOLL and Springfield Christian Academy are highlighted in this issue.

Also highlighted is the annual school election that features a 4-way race for two school board seats. Statements by each of the candidates found inside should be read carefully -- and hopefully will help you in selecting two members to the Board.

On the lighter side, Special Report features a personal account of a lengthy hot air balloon ride taken by myself a couple of weeks back.

I'd always had a great yearning to float through the skies in a balloon and when I met an old school friend and balloonist Phil Empey, he quickly offered to take me up.

I tell my experiences with photos and words beginning on Page 7. At least I try to tell. Few, if any words can explain the excitement that occurs when your balloon slowly floats above lakes, homes and trees, 1000 feet above ground level. It's just one of those things everyone has got to try at least once!

Rep. Trim Seeks Help in Getting Restitution Bill Passed

Letter to the Editor:

I would like to commend The Reminder on the article that appeared in the May 29 issue, regarding Roger Campbell, and I would like to take this opportunity to make some clarification.

The article made mention of a House resolution being introduced, with regard to restitution by criminals, and I would like to point out that a resolution is a vehicle by which something is brought to light, while a bill deals with making something into a law or changing a law. In this case, it was a House bill that I had introduced.

I have done extensive research in the area of restitution by criminals, and subsequently I introduced a package of bills dealing with that area. These bills have now been consolidated into one bill. This consolidated bill has now passed the House and will be taken up in the Senate Judiciary Committee, of which Senator Basil Brown is Chairman.

I would urge citizens to write letters to Mr. Brown with regard to the urgency of such a bill in order to help instill responsibility into our citizens, and especially our youth.

why not ask Carolyn?

Unexpressed Feelings Reason for Depression

Dear Carolyn,

I have a very open relationship with a young woman who seems to have everything, but suffers from depression. What kind of support can I give her?

Concerned
Dear Concerned,

There are volumes written on depression, however, a simplified definition of the cause would be unexpressed feelings, such as sorrow, loss, anger, sadness, and hurt. When a person holds in these feelings they act like poison in a person's system. That poison must come out in some way. Depression is one way.

One way to work toward dissolving depression is to learn to talk about what bothers you. If you could help your friend talk about what bothers her, that is, express her pent-up thoughts and feelings, she may begin to experience some relief from her depression.

If she does open up and begins to express herself, I suggest you listen carefully, maybe ask some clarifying questions, and refrain from advice-giving.

Thoughtfully,
Carolyn

According to Fire Chief Frank Ronk, "The one mill would get us into bringing our equipment up-to-date, get us into our building program and get us back into emergency medical service (EMS)."

The ½ mill for safety paths would provide the township with approximately $110,000 each year for the next ten years. According to safety path committee member Joe Figa, that's enough to construct 4 miles of safety paths every year.

WHAT DOES IT COST TO PRE-ARRANGE A FUNERAL?

First off, you can make your funeral wishes known to us at no cost whatsoever. We can provide you (or your lawyer or estate executor) with all the information needed for your planned funeral with no charge or obligation. It is just a matter of filling out the forms with us and making your personal wishes known.

SAVE TWO WAYS

You can plan all the funeral details in advance with us and keep costs within the limits which you set up. The extent of service and the casket you select will be priced and established for you, now at today's prices. The full amount can be set aside in a trust fund at your bank, payable when the need arises. The trust can (if so arranged) even earn a high rate of interest.

Your lawyer or banker can assist you in this, along with the counsel and forms we provide.

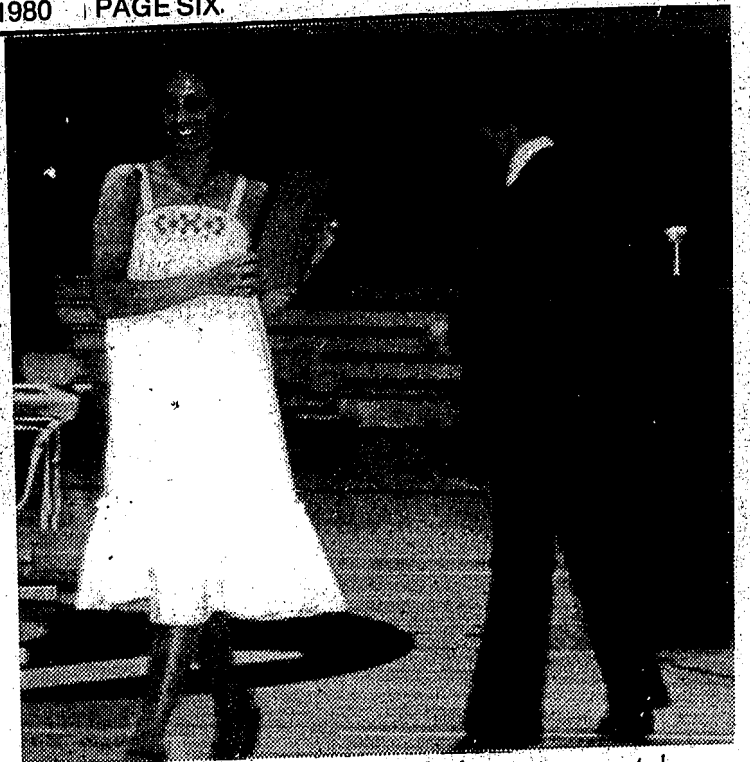

There is also the No-Payment form of funeral pre-arrangement in which you simply specify what kind of service and casket you will want. You keep a copy in your family records, as do we, so that at death, your family can act according to your wishes. Your family then spends no more, or no less than that which you specified. Stop by for full details any time.

Up, Up and Away in a Hot Air Balloon

Inside the balloon as it inflates

Another look inside the 8-story high balloon.

Mark Treffehn holds the balloon during inflation.

by Mike Wilcox

We were floating a thousand feet in the sky -- over buildings, over lakes and over untouched forests. Suddenly we dipped down, brushing tree limbs, coming within a few feet of lake water.

No, we weren't in danger. Just goofing around in a hot air balloon!

The Reminder contacted Fly By Night Balloons, Inc. owners Phil Empey and Mark Treffehn, to see if editor Mike Wilcox could experience first hand what it was like to float through the sky in a hot air balloon.

They consented and we planned our takeoff from M-15 at Oakwood Road in Ortonville. We had a choice at flying at dawn (6 a.m. in the morning) or at dusk (7 p.m. at night). I chose the latter.

We arrived at the takeoff area at 6:15. The balloon was taken out of its 4'X4'X2' storage basket, and unraveled in the grass. Three propane tanks that are stored in the balloon during flight were also unpacked, as was the propane torch and accompanying fan that are used to inflate the balloon.

On this particular night, four men, Empey and myself were there to assist in takeoff and because of the shifting winds, everyone of us were put to work.

The propane was ignited and the fan blew it into the center of the 80' long nylon balloon. For five minutes the fan blew. The heat emitted by the propane was scorching. The balloon began to inflate and rise -- but not enough. We stopped, took a brief rest, and turned on the propane again. This time, success. Empey and I jumped into the passenger basket, the cords holding the balloon to the ground were cut, and within 10 seconds we were flying at an altitude of one thousand feet.

Empey said that because of the shifting winds, it was one of the roughest takeoffs he had been involved with for a long time.

Empey has been flying for seven years, long before the sport became fashionable and popular. His balloon, made by an English firm called Cameron, cost about $8000 at today's prices, but according to Empey is well worth it, being much safer than any of the Americann balloons now available.

The balloon is powered by propane gas. Empey estimates he uses about $25 of gas for every hour he's up in the air.

Propane is obviously expensive, but it can also be dangerous. Empey found that out the hard way when one day last summer while taking off he destroyed not only his balloon, but his truck also.

That was caused by a freakish mishap, however, and Empey sternly instructs his passengers on safety features and regulations.

Back to the flight. From Oakwood we traveled southwest at about 10 MPH. We had very little control over which direction we could fly, obviously because the balloon follows the wind currents. But, we could go up or down from touching ground up to 10,000 feet in a matter of seconds.

Despite the fact that Empey has been flying in this area for several years, people still come out of their homes, stop their cars and holler and shout his name whenever he flies by. It's amazing, said Empey, to see their interest. And Empey enjoys it, waving and shouting "hi" to everyone in sight.

Flying over Lake Narrin in Groveland Township, we noticed two fishermen in a rowboat on the lake. Empey suggested we dip down and see how the fishing was. In seconds, we were skimming the lake, conversing with the fisherman. Just as quickly, we ascended again to a thousand feet to cruise over acres and acres of rural farmland.

Soon we were flying over Wildwood State Park. There a person was taking movies of our flight. Others had cameras, obviously enthralled with the big blue balloon.

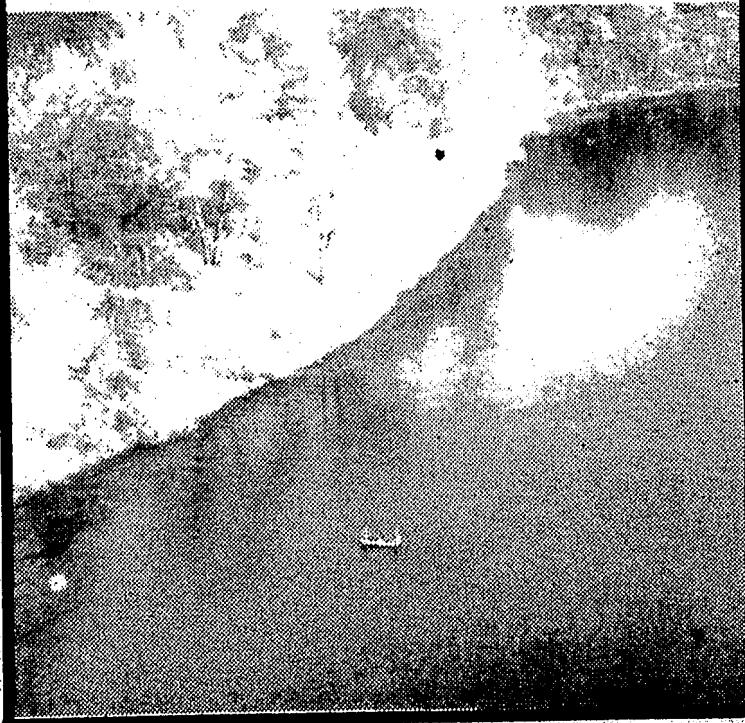

Across Dixie Highway we went. People stopped their cars to get a glimpse of the passing balloon. We were headed over a gravel pit -- a possibly good landing place (we had been in the air for over an hour). Empey touched the balloon down and I got out looking to see if the balloon's crew, which had been following us in a pick-up truck could get into the gravel pit. In the meantime, a man in a suit came running from a nearby wooded area. He claimed to be a reporter from the Oakland Press, and he was snapping pictures profusely.

I found that the crew was unable to reach the gravel pit, thus I jumped Jack into the balloon and we again ascended.

Soon we had passed I-75 and were approaching another gravel pit. Men, working the late shift, stopped to converse with us, as we descended to make a landing at the far end of the pit.

The landing was smooth. As we touched ground, Treffehn grabbed the basket and pulled us to a spot where we could easily fold-up and pack the now deflated balloon.

Phil Empey poses after successful landing.

It was over -- and I was sold. There's not a more peaceful feeling than floating through the skies in a balloon.

Phil Empey discovered that seven years ago. He flies 3 or 4 days a week, often taking one of his three kids with him.

He and Treffehn, who has been training with Empey for six months and soon hopes to become a certified pilot (by passing both flight and written tests) are now emarking on a new business venture.

They call themselves Fly By Night Balloons (627-4612), and are offering their balloon rides, promotions and flight instructions. Empey hopes to use the profits from this venture to buy a bigger and better balloon.

HOW A HOT AIR BALLOON OPERATES

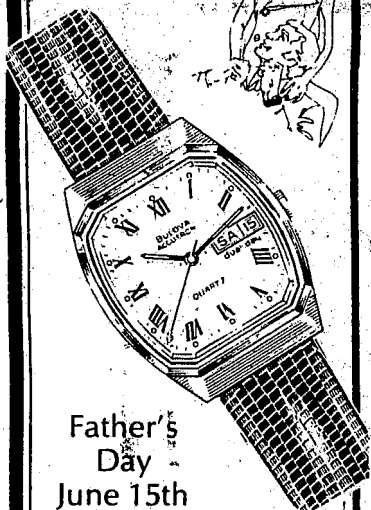

Most people have the same basic concept of a balloon. Usually they think it has some kind of gas in it, like helium, and that it carries sandbags draped over the side of the wicker basket. Although some balloons still are like this, their numbers are few. Modern balloons -- called hot air balloons -- get their lift from heated air trapped inside the bag or envelope. The envelope is made of nylon which is tough, light and non-porous. Propane gas is used as the source of heat, which is a relatively inexpensive and convenient fuel. The basket is connected to the balloon by steel cables which have far more strength than can ever be used. Instruments are carried in the basket to measure altitude, the rate of ascent and descent and the temperature at the top of the balloon. This is important, since extreme heat can weaken the nylon fabric and cause possible air leaks.

The balloon operates as follows: When the air inside the nylon balloon is heated, it expands, becoming lighter or less dense than the ambient atmosphere. The air inside the balloon is heated by burning propane which is stored in a liquid state in 10 gallon tanks located in the balloon's basket. When the pilot operates the control throttle, the liquid propane passes through the hose that is connected to the burner system, passes through the coiled burner and quickly becomes a combustible vapor. The burning vapors have the capabilities of putting out approximately 100,000 BTU's. As the balloon ascends in flight, there is more pressure at the lower part of the balloon than at the upper part, causing it to continue to rise.

Although the pilot can control the rate of ascent or descent, he cannot "steer" the balloon. It travels at the same speed and in the same direction as the wind. However, the wind blows in different directions at different altitudes. So, if the pilot chooses the altitude where the wind is blowing in the direction he wants to go, he has a better than average chance of getting there.

3 Mill Renewal, 2 Board Seats Up for Grabs in Clarkston Election

The Annual Election in the Clarkston School District will feature four candidates vying for two four-year terms on the School Board and a 3-mill tax renewal request.

Polls open at 7 a.m. on the day of election, June 9, and will remain open at the eleven precincts until 8 p.m.

The four candidates include incumbent C. Vincent Luzzi, Ann Glenn, Addison Hubbard and Carol Townsend. The Reminder asked each candidate to submit a brief biography and explanation of their objectives and concerns.

Ann Glenn

Ann Glenn lives with husband Richard and three children on a Reese Road farm. She attended Duke University and the University of Utah.

Mrs. Glenn has served on the Chittenden South School Board in Vermont from 1971 to 1976, on the Vermont Governor's Commission on Women and Children, on the Michigan White House Conference on Families and as a member of the Michigan Citizens Committee for the Arts.

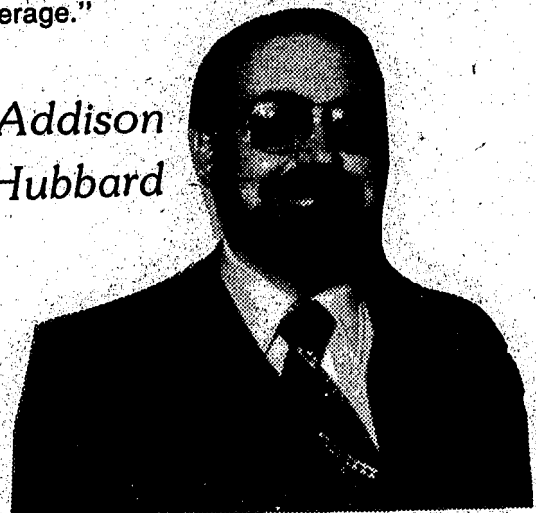

Mrs. Glenn said, "I favor new buildings and improvement of old, and millages, but I firmly believe that you cannot wait for utopia structurally to deal with program, philosophy, and attitudes toward youngsters."

"I believe learning at the elementary level is related to individual growth patterns and to exposure to physical education, and areas of enrichment beyond a text book. These things can and should be done with little or no cost implication."

"On the high school level, I believe we need a good look at discipline procedures and possibly in house suspensions. A student should be able to make choices, select programs, and be able to make amendments for mistakes, so as not to have a permanent effect on his future or grade point average."

Addison Hubbard

Addison Hubbard, 36, lives with his family on Glenburnie in Clarkston. He graduated from Clarkston High School and Ferris State with a B.S. in accounting/business. He currently works for GMC Truck and Coach in accounts receivable.

Hubbard served in the U.S. Army four years, is father vice-president of the Clarkston Elementary PTO and chairman of the Playground Committee for the same school.

Hubbard said, "My first goal would be to improve the standard of education for our students. Clarkston has the potential of reaching a higher standard and to be a leader in education in Southeastern Michigan. I was not satisfied with our results in the Michigan Education Assessments, Metropolitan Achievement, and Otis-Lennon Ability Tests. These tests showed where improvement is needed in Math, and improvements could be made in other basic areas. I do not understand why we have to be satisfied with results that show an average rating and why we are not reaching for ratings that are above average.

"I feel the biggest problem facing our school system in the years ahead is the budget. Due to the Headlee Amendment, a decrease in state funds, and the possibility of the Tisch Amendment passing, the school system will have to make sacrifices and work harder on controlling the budget. If elected, I plan to be in on the decision making policies and make sure that we do not sacrifice the learning principles of our students due to lack of funds.

"I fully support the operational three mill renewal on the June 9, 1980 Ballot. As for other millage increases to cover a bond issue for financing a new school, whether it be a new high school or junior high, I would have to study the proposals very closely. With what information I have now, a new high school would solve the most problems, but before I could fully support the millage issue I would have to study the needs and costs of such a package."

C. Vincent Luzi lives with his family on Dixie Highway in Clarkston. He earned a B.A. from Western Michigan University and has done post graduate work at WMU, MSU, Oakland University and Detroit College of Law. He is currently Assistant Director of Personnel for Oakland County.

Luzi is presently a member of the Clarkston School Board, the National School Board Association, the Michigan School Board Association and two personnel management organizations.

Luzi said, "My main concern continues to be providing the best possible education for all kids in Clarkston and to stretch our dwindling resources in the most effective manner possible to reach that objective. I was disappointed to see our bond issues fail in the last burden made even more difficult by skyrocketing inflation. I think we should continue to assess our facility needs, to inform the public of these needs, ask their support for improvements and respect the voice of the people when their decision is made. I support more involvement of the Board in the school budget review process to do more in representing their taxpaying constituents' interests.

"I think we've done much recently to assess what's being taught in our schools and how well we're accomplishing our objectives. I think we need to do more in this area and will support continued efforts in this direction.

"I strongly support the operational millage renewal. The millage is essential just to continue current programs. Serious cutbacks will result if it is not renewed. A cutback in operational millage would adversely affect all segments of our community."

Carol Townsend

Carol Townsend lives with her husband Donald and two children on Edgar Road in Clarkston. She attended Waterford Kettering and the American Institute of Banking. She is currently employed as a computer terminal operator at Motorcar Transport Company.

Mrs. Townsend is a member of the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation, and is presently helping form a local chapter of that group.

Mrs. Townsend said, "I believe that physical fitness and learning go hand in hand. I'm very dismayed, as many parents in the district are, that our schools (elementary), are not equipped with gymnasiums. Our children need physical as well as intellectual education. I would like to see a formal physical education class for Kindergarten - 6 in each of our elementary schools, taught in reasonable sized gymnasiums.

"We need a whole new districting plan, taking into consideration the newly populated and potential growth areas. I want to see our elementary age children in schools nearest their homes, and not shuffled back and forth from school to school. I feel children, especially in Kindergarten-6th grade are still at the age where they seek the comfort and security of routine.

"Our school district is having monumental financial problems this election year, stemming partly from the legislatures misuse of the Headlee Amendment. However, I don't feel that by voting in another 3 mills is going to be the answer to our problems. I believe that we need to analyze the areas where we can cut the waste and misue (if any) of our tax dollars."

The 3 mills up for renewal represents approximately $953,000 in revenue to the school district. If approved the request will allow the school district to continue the 3 mills for another ten years.
