editor's note

Our country's well-being, to a great extent, depends upon its workforce. No where is that more evident than right here where unemployment is higher than any other area in the nation.

Fortunately that doesn't mean everyone is suffering. The Reminder found many small industrial firms in the area doing quite well despite the rocky economy.

These industries are highlighted in our annual "Focus on Industry" special section that appears in this issue.

Writers Kathy Rush, Cindy Harrison and Mike Wilcox spent several days accumulating information about the small industrial firms in this area for the special section.

When James Hibler came to town the Independence library was in an uproar. People had spent the better part of a year trying to force his predecessor out as librarian. They claimed circulation was low and the library sponsored virtually no special activities.

Hibler, in his quiet manner, has changed all that. No one takes pot shots at the librarian anymore. No one complains about a lack of special activities.

Reporter Dawson Bell interviews Hibler in an effort to identify the changes he has made in his first year as the township's head librarian. The story starts on page 6.

poetry

OH, THE DISHES TOO
by

W.L. Jennings

There comes a time in all our lives,
When we should stop to think,
Of life and death and don't forget-
The dishes in the sink.

Because

I could have been a Congressman,
I could have been a shrink,
I could have been a lot of things
But for the dishes in the sink.

When I was young and growing old,
'Bout ten or twelve or so,
I'd only one ambition that
Those dishes I'd outgrow.

Because

"Have you finished your dishes yet?"
My mother used to say.
"You have to finish your dishes
Before you go to play."

My friends stood clustered at the door,
Their loyalty was strained,
Adventure awaited down the block,
For me to be unchained.

Oh

I could have been a baseball star,
A pitcher with a name.
But, I had to do the dishes,
I traded suds for fame.

The years passed by and I grew-up,
A young man straight and tall,
With opinions on everything,
In fact, I knew it all.

But

I still had to do the dishes,
The curse of single life.
I would have to do the dishes,
Until I got a wife.

And, then, I found a woman, yes,
A woman to share my life.
She loved me, she cared for me and
She was to be my wife.

But

She had a funny notion that
Because she worked like me,
We would divide the household chores,
So, I still wasn't free!

More years passed as the kids were born,
Four daughters, ah, the sink.
"It will help your growth," I said,
With just a little wink.

Still

All four are active youngsters
And they're busy every night,
So, Mother has to drive a lot and,
You've guessed my job all right.

My life's been good, I've few regrets,
But, just to name a few:
There's war, poverty, sin, disease,
And, yes, the dishes too.

forecast

by Robert C. Davis

The summer heat arrived in Michigan during July, bringing with it plenty of humidity and thundershower activity. Precipitation was above normal in most areas of southeastern Michigan, as most stations reported more than 3 inches of rainfall for the month. Isolated thundershowers producing heavy rainfall amounts were a common occurrence during July; the heaviest thundershower to hit the Clarkston area occurred during the early morning hours of July 22, as the eastern Clarkston station picked up 0.95 inches of rain.

The Clarkston area received measurable rainfall on 14 days during July, which did include every Saturday during the month. Oddly enough, the Clarkston area has received measurable precipitation on every Saturday except one (June 21) since May 17. Rainfall totals from my rain gauge network for July are as follows (with calendar year totals through the end of July in parentheses):

Bishop Airport/Flint - 5.61" (18.02")

St. Clair Shores - 4.50" (23.10")

Davison - 4.35"

Detroit Metropolitan Airport - 4.33"

(23.77")

Eastern Clarkston - 3.59" (19.63")

Van Norman Lake/Waterford Township -

3.57" (20.18")

Johnson & Anderson/Waterford Township

- 3.46"

Oxbow Lake/White Lake Township - 3.37"

(20.20")

Union Lake - 3.19" (21.85")

Elizabeth Lake/Waterford Township - 3.09"

(24.43")

Sullivan Lake/Tyrone Township - 3.04"

Fenton - 2.86" (20.45")

Northville - 2.57" (19.01")

Temperatures during July averaged about 1 degree above normal per day, with the eastern Clarkston station recording a mean temperature of 71.6 degrees. Clarkston temperatures ranged from a low of 47 degrees on the 3rd to a high of 92 degrees on the 15th. Although temperatures only reached into the 90's on one occasion during July, the Clarkston area experienced daily high temperatures in the 80's on 24 days during the month. Our warm temperatures here would have been welcome in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, however, as that area experienced daily high temperatures of over 100 degrees on every day during July.

Before closing I would like to welcome two new volunteers to my network. Bill Williams will be providing data for the Ann Arbor area, and Judy Coy will be covering the Davison area for us.

WHAT SHOULD NOT BE SAID TO A CHILD ASKING ABOUT DEATH?

Any kind of fantasy or fairy tale about death will eventually have to be corrected or repudiated. Let's explore some common fantasies:

"She went on a long journey." This can be interpreted by the child to mean the person has abandoned him without saying goodbye. It can further foster the false hope that the person will return some day.

"God took him to heaven." If God took the deceased to heaven because He loved him, the child might conclude that God will take him too! This reaction can be fearful for a child to accept and more that he should have to at his early years.

"She is just sleeping." This can quickly cause a child to fear bedtime, believing that he will not wake up when he should.

Many more expressions could be included. The wisest course is to answer questions about death without such cliches or expressions that will have to be changed or un-learned. Even if an adult cannot provide the correct answer immediately, the search for an answer together can often help you and the child come to grips with the "truth of death."

If we can be of more help on this important subject, please call us.

Librarian Seeks Improvements, Greater Visability

by Dawson Bell

If you want to sit down and talk to Independence Township Librarian, James Hibler, make sure you catch him when he isn't showing films to pre-schoolers, running the summer reading program, planning a Halloween costume party or conferring with any of the half dozen community groups that have taken an interest in the library.

It's been a little over a year now since Hibler assumed his post. And when asked how he likes it he says, first, "Really busy," and then, "It's great!"

"There's always something new to do...acquisitions to the collection, planned programs, audio-visual aids, the budget, student needs."

"I like to think of the library as an information center," he says.

"Not just books, but materials that fit into the interests of everyone in the community."

Hibler spent some time before coming here as a librarian for Market Opinion Research in Detroit, so he knows the value of good public relations. He wants to make the library more visible, a bigger part of everyday life.

One way he hopes to do that is by increasing the number of people who frequent the library. Much of his time thus far has been spent "building up holes in the collection." The library now has several shelves of how-to-do-it books on auto repair, gardening, furniture building, etc. Additions have been made to include bestsellers in both hardcover and paperback. Browsers can read through the daily papers or the periodicals.

Of course, all government services are feeling the effect of a tightened economy. Hibler says his initial budget for this year of $100,000 has been cut by 10%. That means his plans to replace some shelves and integrate oversize books into the regular stacks have been thwarted, at least for now.

For the time being, he is concentrating on programs, like the recently completed summer reading club for children, that depend on hard work and volunteer help for success. This year's session had 280 participants--up

He is also quick to point out, "Libraries should prosper during hard times. After all, they're free."

Librarian Hibler is nothing if not optimistic. He seems to be excited about everything he does. From working with his staff, through handling the swarms of youngsters that come his way, to coordinating the help he receives from the Friends of the Library, the Women's Club and the Garden Club.

And if the funds are ever forthcoming he says he'll know what to do with them. One project he is especially keen on would be an addition to the library building to include an activities room.

Right now, if he wants to show a film to a group of 30 or more he has to set the projector up on the circulation desk. That tends to "disrupt our normal business," he says.

The new space could also be used for township meetings and activities that require barrier-free access. The township hall itself has four flights of barriers.

For the meantime James Hibler is enjoying his tenure in Clarkston. As a semi-professional historian and archivist (one of his degrees is a MA from Wayne in History), he enjoys working with the Historical Society. As an ex-schoolteacher (5th and 6th grade), he enjoys helping children use the library. As an amateur road-runner, he enjoys running 8 miles every morning in Independence Township.

"I like it here," says Hibler.

"Do you plan to stay?"

"Sure do."

Local Duo Score High in Soap Box Derby Finals

Donnie Spangler, 11, of Louella Drive, Drayton Plains, had the fastest heat time as he competed against 88 other city champions from 33 states, the District of Columbia, Canada, Germany and Venezuela in the Junior Division (Age 10, 11 and 12) of the All American Soap Box Derby at Akron, Ohio, August 16, 1980.

Nosed out by inches in the final heat by the winning car from Indianapolis and the runner-up representing Cleveland, Donnie had won the right to compete by winning the Detroit race at Dorals Park on July 12, 1980. The runner-up in the race was another area boy, Scott Luzi, 11, of Dixie Highway, Clarkston.

In his second year of derby racing, Donnie was the runner-up in the 1979 Detroit Derby and the 1980 Detroit spring rally, 2nd place winner in the 1979 Detroit Fall Rally, and 6th place finisher in the 1980 Columbus, Ohio rally.

Donnie is the son of the Don Spanglers and the grandson of the Jewel Spanglers and John Witherups of Clarkston. His car was sponsored by the Clarkston Village Players.

Quarter Midgets

Local Race Track Site of Grand Nationals

Mark Misegadis, a young racer from Colorado Springs, Colorado psychs himself up for the grueling 40 laps to come.

Even the girls participate. Yet, this little racer, Heidi Heller from Dubois, Pennsylvania was not pleased with her run. It's easy to see that safety is number one in this sport. Helmets, seat and shoulder harnesses, leather gloves and jackets are all required.

Although the speeds are quick, the injuries are infrequent and rarely ever amount to anything more than bumps or bruises.

The quarter-final midget Grand Nationals that took place on August 15th and 16th at Waterford Race Track brought fans from throughout the United States to cheer on their favorite racer of the over 330 entries. The required racing specifications change from each different classification. The first four classes are limited by age and engine modifications and the last six classes are restricted by weight and engine modifications. According to race official Ron Dethloff of Wolverine Lake, the Oakland County Sheriff's Department clocked a higher class car at 72 MPH two years ago.

The racers have 5 minutes to test the track, warm up their engines and make any final adjustments. After the fine tuning has been done the race begins. The racer with the fastest time at the end of 40 laps is the winner.

After the race, each winning car engine is pulled from the car and torn down by race officials to check and see that engine modifications have not been exceeded.

Schultz Treats Parks with Tender Loving Care

Schultz checks out algae problem at Davisburg Mill Pond.

After having been a bartender for thirty years at Bob's Chicken House located in Pontiac, Karl Schultz retired in 1976. He thought it would be a time for rest and relaxation.

Two years later, restless from extensive leisure, Karl applied for and was hired by Steve Dice of the Davisburg Parks Commission, to be in charge of maintenance for the four recreational parks located in Davisburg--Green Lake, Rotary, Dilley and the Mill Pond parks.

This part-time job has turned out to be an 8:00 to 5:00 occupation. Schultz said, "I tried the job and liked it--so I stayed on." Since Schultz began upkeep of the parks, Steve Dice and others, comment that the parks look the best ever. Karl remarked, "I must be doing something right!"

Karl's responsibility involves overseeing installation and repair of recreational equipment, mowing the lawns, putting in new park facilities, repairing security fences and overall maintenance of the parks.

An example of Karl's dexterity is the algae problem that developed on the Mill Pond on Tuesday morning. Lifeguards requested Karl to check it out who in turn prohibited swimming until Oakland County officials could investigate the matter and give it a clean bill of health.

Schultz has been a life-time resident of Davisburg. He has three children living nearby; a son residing in Rose Center, another in Clarkston and a daughter in Waterford.

Louise Kasl

Energy Station to Open September 2

"The Energy Station" a retail affiliate of KASL Sales, Inc., which has been a distributorship for the past seven years will be opening September 2, 1980 at 16745 Dixie Highway (just north of Oakhill Road), with hopes of being completely stocked within a very short time.

This retail outlet will carry a complete line of wood and coal heaters, furnaces, fireplace inserts and wood burning accessories as well as other dependable energy-related products and information.

Louise Kasl, who will be managing the new store, says she intends to "sift through the many new ideas in energy conservation in order to keep the consumers informed and offer products of proven quality. The store's aim is to be the community's reliable resource center for safe and efficient energy conservation."

Safety has become a big concern with wood heaters as demonstrated by the law passed in Michigan in April stating that all factory-built fireplaces and wood heaters must have the seal of a nationally recognized testing agency and must be installed in accordance with the standards of the National Fire Protection Association.

Enforcement of this law has been left to local authorities, so the requirements may vary in different areas. "We are in support of this law," said Louise, "and will help people abide by it in any way we can."

Another concern regarding wood heating is the availability of wood. "Studies at Michigan State University and discussions we have had at conventions this spring assure us that wood is available, but the distribution and management of this resource is a problem," said Louise.

"In Michigan we are quite fortunate with an abundant and nearby supply" which people are taking advantage of by, "getting together to buy semi-truck loads which come in 8-foot lengths leaving only the cutting to size and splitting to the consumer," she concluded.

Savoie Celebrates 25 Years in Insulation

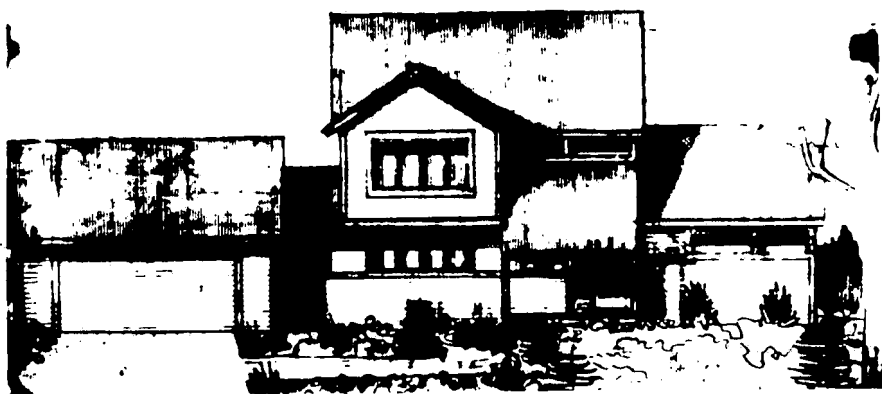

The month of September marks 25 years of running a successful insulation business for Gerald Savoie.

Located at 9650 Dixie Highway (1½ miles north of I-75) for the past five years, Savoie Insulation is proud of having one of the largest warehouses in the area - a feature that allows Savoie to "buy in large quantities" thus enabling them to always have insulation in stock and ready to go at any time.

Savoie Insulation is pleased with being recognized as a member of the North Oakland County Chamber of Commerce, North Oakland County Builders Association, and the National Association of Home Builders. Also, recently, Owen-Corning (one of the leading brands of insulation), acknowledged Savoie as a Certified Insulation Contractor.

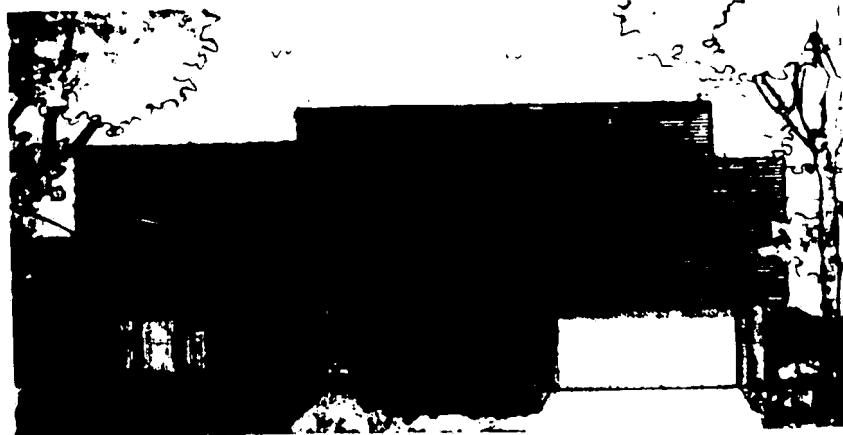

This certification has been given to a mere three companies in the state of Michigan and is "given only to contractors who not only offer quality materials but who have been trained in the most up-to-date methods of installation."

Besides stocking insulation products for new construction and existing homes, Savoie has recently added a line of wood-burning units. The Briar Elite, "cadillac of fireplaces," is designed to fit into an existing fireplace making it the most economical and efficient heating unit that one could pur-

Currently there are 20 employees working at Savoie Insulation, although some are part-time workers. The office employees are Agnes Persinger, secretary/bookkeeper for the past five years; John Boyle, Savoie and his two sons Joseph and John.

"We are fortunate in having Floyd Shotwell in our re-installation market, who brings with him 36 years of experience and knowledge," added Savoie.

OOM Keeps Up with Latest Technology

The technological advances made in office machines in recent years has made many a secretary, bookkeeper and cashier a much happier person.

John Priebe, sole owner of Oakland Office Machines, located in the Clarkston Commons Building, has been providing these up-to-date systems to businesses in Oakland County since 1974.

The firm retails and services all types of office machines including Facit and Smith-Corona typewriters, Sharp, Casio and Facit calculators and Mita, 3M and Sharp copy machines. Priebe is also one of two companies in Oakland County that carries a new line of products called Teknika.

In addition, they have phone answering machines, paymasters, cash registers and a number of used machines for sale.

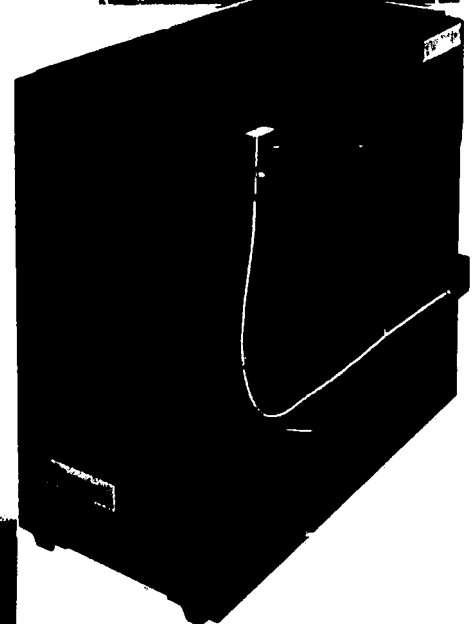

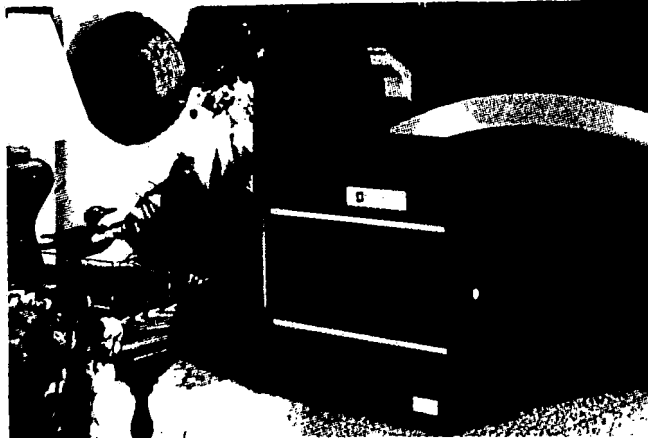

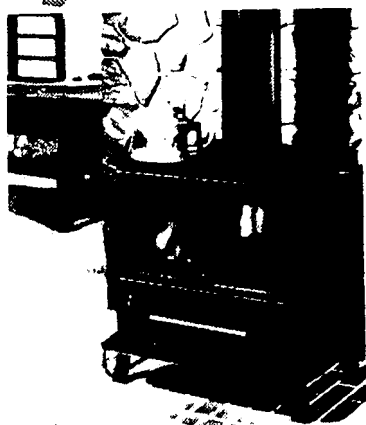

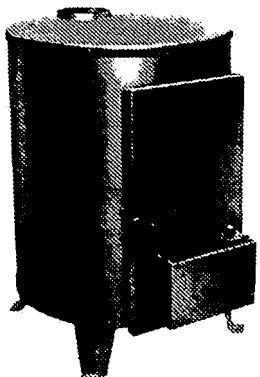

The service department is equipped to handle maintenance and repair on all types of office machines with the exception of calculators having circuit boards. They plan to start offering this service in the fall.

Priebe, along with service manager, Pete Koned, have recently "devised a new method for cleaning machines," which, according to Priebe "is an even more proficient and effective cleaning system than used traditionally."

The company services machines all over North Oakland County and in parts of Livingston, Macomb and Genesee counties.

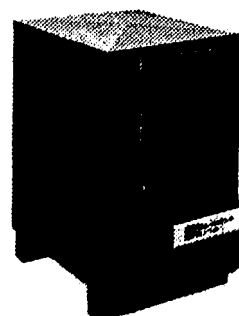

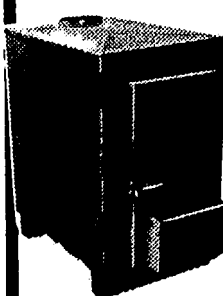

Along with Priebe and Koned there are eight other full-time employees including Margaret Priebe, Pat Rehfus, Ed Walker, Mike Alcock, Keith Addis, Jeff Smith and two salesmen Gary King and "Dub" Benson.

Mosher-Kapelczak Engineer for Municipalities

At Left: Harry Mosher, Joseph Kapelczak and Raymond Cousineau.

"As far as we know, we are the only consulting engineer staff who limits themselves to municipal engineering only." Harry Mosher, Joseph Kapelczak and Raymond Cousineau, the three working owners/administrators of Mosher-Kapelczak, Inc. want to stress this point because "municipal engineering is our primary interest."

Since most municipalities do not have their own engineering staff, the role of Mosher-Kapelczak, Inc. is to "contract its engineering and surveying services to small cities, villages and townships," according to Joseph Kapelczak.

Currently their engineering skills are provided in roads, sanitation systems, storm drainage systems, water distribution and a variety of other municipal related facilities.

The company has been located in the Clarkston area since March of 1978 and moved to their new office, at 9215 Dixie Highway, in December of last year.

Mosher-Kapelczak, Inc. located their principal office in this particular area, not just because the three partners live nearby, but because they anticipate and have faith in the growth of North Oakland County and therefore wanted to establish their firm in this area.

Counting the office and field personnel there are 20 people employed at Mosher-Kapelczak, Inc. of which none are in sales since "we are a professional business whose quality of work speaks for itself."

Davisburg Home Builders Have Proven Record

The Davisburg Home Builders, under the previous name, The Davisburg Lumber Company, has been managed by brothers Marlan and Elwyn Hillman since 1943 and 1946 respectively.

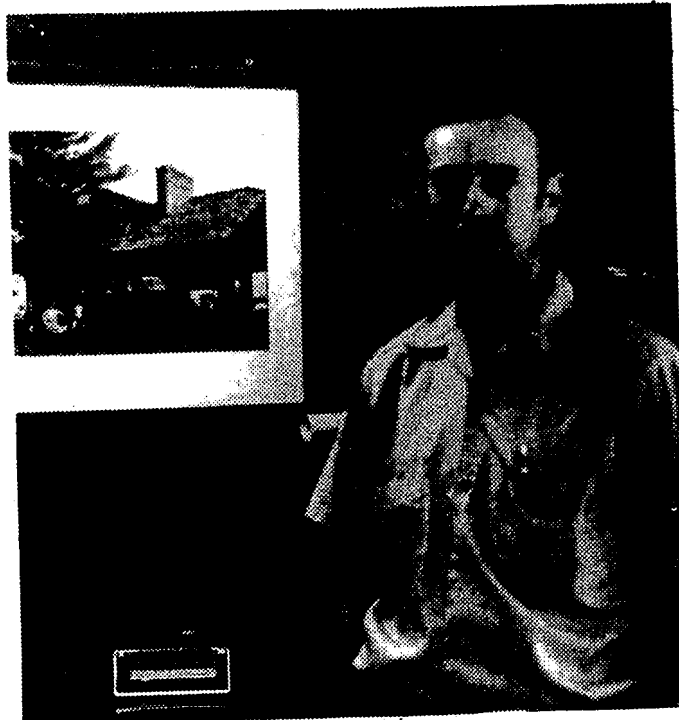

Originally dealing in lumber, feed and coal, they dropped the latter two items when sales fell off in the 50's, leaving them exclusively in lumber.

Then in 1961 they started actively building and contracting custom homes, serving roughly five townships in Northwest Oakland County.

The home building business has kept the Hillmans so busy, that they sold the retail lumber store to Marlan's son-in-law, Steve Dice in 1977 and now concentrate solely on construction.

With the help of only two other employees, Marlan's wife, Norma and nephew, Jeff, the business runs very efficiently, demonstrated by over two hundred homes built thus far.

"Our relationship with our customers is excellent both before and after the home is built," said Marlan. "We get a lot of work referred to us by word of mouth, relatives and repeat orders," he added.

A home designed by Ballerini and Maniaci

Good Time to Build

Contrary to popular belief, now is a good time to build a new home.

That's the advice of Ballerini and Maniaci Assoc., Inc., who specialize in designing new homes.

"By no means is the new home market dead," said Peter Maniaci. "There's a good opportunity to get some excellent prices. This is a very good time to strike a good deal on new construction."

Many of those good deals can be found in passive solar design where a number of government grants and rebates are available.

Ballerini and Maniaci have a comprehensive listing of all the solar monies available. They'll help you get your share, if you wish.

"A lot of people aren't aware of the different grants and monies available," said Joseph Ballerini. It's free money. You don't have to pay it back. Why not take advantage of it?

Ballerini and Maniaci have diversified experience accumulating over 15 years in the design business. Together, they have been partners for 3 years, first starting out in Ortonville, before moving to 9340 Dixie Highway, Springfield Township, in February of this year.

They charge nothing to sit down and discuss plans at an initial meeting.

According to Ballerini, "a lot of people don't know where to begin. A lot of people feel you should go to the builder first. That's not true. Your design should come first."

Ballerini and Maniaci offer a comprehensive design package from the initial concept through completed construction.

They have designed homes in Clarkston, Fenton, Grosse Pointe, Farmington and elsewhere.

With the help of their up-to-date equipment, Clarkston Roofing can deliver shingles right to the top of your roof.

Clarkston Roofing Makes Shingling Easy for Do-it-Yourselfers

June McGowan says, "I'd much rather be up on a roof than behind a desk anyday!"

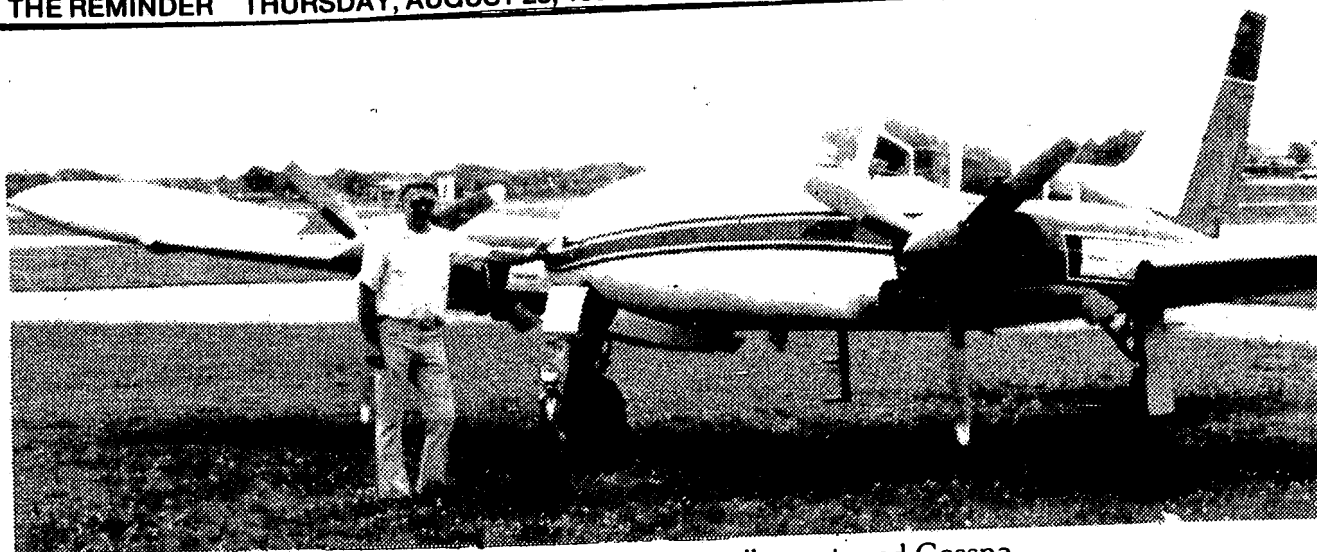

June and husband, Harry, have been in the roofing business in the Clarkston area since 1963. They currently own and operate Clarkston Roofing, a retail outlet located at the base of Waterford Hill on Dixie Highway.

Clarkston Roofing is stocked with a wide variety of shingles. Not only do they supply shingles for large contractors but also for homeowners.

Equipped with two modern lift trucks and two conveyor trucks the company is able to deliver shingles right to your rooftop. It is for this reason Clarkston Roofing "enjoys selling shingles to homeowners that are do-it-yourselfers."

The company's concern for the homeowner is also displayed by their idea of beginning a class in the future to be offered to the public on how to lay shingles.

Along with June and Harry there are six other employees at Clarkston Roofing. There is Paul McGowan, roofing manager; Carter White, chimney flashing man; Rick Schael, roofer; Walter Johnson, yard man; Barb McGowan, office manager; and Audrey White, bookkeeper.

Gary Stonerock and his specially equipped Cessna.

Stonerock's Business is in the Air

What average person does not feel a tinge of excitement when looking at professionally done photographs or viewing the landscape from 3,000 feet above sea level?

Gary Stonerock, owner of Stonerock Aerial Surveys, Ltd. (S.A.S., Ltd) has been doing this and much more nearly every day of the year since 1967.

S.A.S., Ltd. specializes in aerial photography, photogrammetric mapping, land surveying and construction layout.

Photogrammetry. What is it? It is the science and art of obtaining reliable measurements by photography. Its uses are limitless, the most common use being preparation of topographic maps. A competent pilot logged with over 2,000 hours flying time, Stonerock performs precision vertical photography.

With the use of his modified Cessna 320 Sky Night twin engine aircraft equipped with a Fairchild T-12 distortion free mapping camera and facilities for negative development.

After the photos are taken, glass plate copies are produced and then projected from a large plotting instrument whose position and altitude is adjusted to correspond with position and altitude of the aerial camera at the time of exposure.

"This type of work is very complex from the beginning to end product due to its highly technical and fastidious process," said Stonerock.

The company has provided its surveying services throughout the United States as far north as Superior Wisconsin, east as New York, south as Georgia and west as Wyoming.

Currently Stonerock and staff are involved in air-land survey work for the General Motor plant to be constructed in Orion Township.

S.A.S., Ltd. is located at 7990 M-15 in Clarkston.

Inside Sherwood

From Garage to Large Plant

It was only 14 years ago that Bill Wilson started his own patternmaking shop in his garage in Walled Lake.

That sparsely equipped garage has evolved into a new 22,000 square foot plant that employs 70 people.

"When we first started Sherwood Metal Products Inc., there was only one other guy working with me," recalled Wilson. "We had just a very few dollars."

Sherwood makes production pattern equipment for General Motors foundries. Specifically they build engine parts like blocks, heads, water pumps, etc.

The plant, which is located on Hatchery Road in Drayton Plains, was built in 1973. Since then, Wilson has built two additions to bring it to its present size.

Wilson claimed his pattern shop is different from most others, because he has been able to hire top notch employees.

"We are tops as far as men are concerned. Our employees pride themselves on the work they do," he said.

Wilson added, "We are fortunate there are a lot of good patternmakers that live in this area."

Wilson admitted his business fluctuates with the ups and downs of the economy and for the past six months business has not been up to par.

But that's all in the past, thinks Wilson. "It looks like the next 3 or 4 years are going to be real good," he said.

Bridge Lake Market Celebrates 4th Anniversary

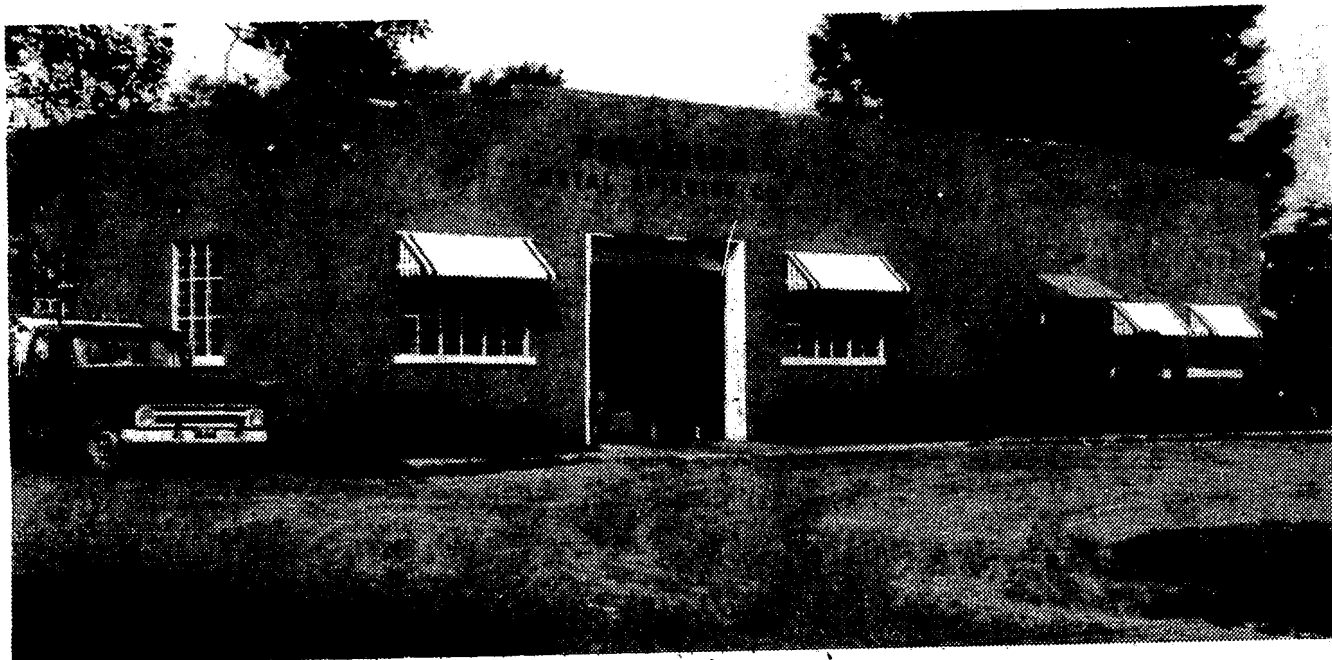

"We enjoy meeting the people and want to thank them for patronizing the place," said Mike Ganley, owner of Bridge Lake Market. Mike and his wife JoAnn celebrated their fourth anniversary with the business this August. They both really enjoy it.

The market carries groceries, bait, ice and now beer, wine and liquor. The liquor license was obtained by the Ganleys when they first opened.

The Ganleys have recently built an addition onto the market. It was built for the liquor and extra space needed for returnables. Mike said, "It's been working out real good."

The Ganleys have four other employees, their daughter Ann, Evelyn, Greg and Tom. Evelyn has been with the market for the past eleven years.

Precision Makes Experimental Metal Spinings

"Customers come to us with a design concept, searching for a finished product from that idea," says Dennis Fredericks manager of Precision Metal Spinning.

The family-owned business makes metal spinings, almost exclusively experimental, for the automobile, aircraft and chemical industries. A major portion of the company's orders come from out of state and includes such items as rims, wheels, pulleys and engine components.

Also, according to Charles Fredericks, owner of Precision Metal Spinning for the past eight years, some components made in their shop have become parts of rockets sent on space flights.

Yet Precision Metal Spinning does not only produce items that are related to industrial use. Occasionally they will get orders for items that are normally taken for granted by the average person, such as an order for a headlight rim or hub cap for an antique automobile no longer available through the normal channels.

In fact, they have made a bone replacement for the human body. Precision at one time "produced a hip implant that would replace the body's own."

The firms is located at 9861 Dixie Highway in Clarkston.

New Owner Brings Experience to Armstrong

After 25 years experience in manufacturing management and ten years with the desire of some day owning his own business, Tom Miller finally got his wish, who recently purchased Armstrong Screw Products located on Dixie Highway in Springfield.

Miller handles the management end of the business while wife and partner Mary takes care of the office procedures. The company also employs two experienced machine operators, brothers Larry and Dick Armstrong.

Working with ferrous, non-ferrous, plastic and phenylic materials the company designs and develops prototype and custom components.

Miller, with his experience in engineering design, performs the sketching of plans for parts and when given specifications has been known to draw them up over the phone.

Armstrong Screw Products has a fully qualified quality control staff who are approved by both General Motors and Chrysler Defense (now a subsidiary of the New Chrysler Corporation).

This firm is equipped to manufacture both low production as well as high production parts according to Miller, who says he "runs 2, 2000, or 20,000 parts." This feature has enabled Armstrong Screw Products to supply other suppliers with their parts.
