"Insults for all occasions"

You all know the feeling, someone has just done something very rude to you but all you can do is sputter. It's not until later that you think of all those brilliant comebacks.

Well, to change all that here is a list of insults for all occcasions to clip out and carry in your wallet. Then when the need arises take out this column and fire away. For instance:

To a rude waitress: "I'm going to ask for vou the next time I eat here since you saved me so much money on the tip.

Or to a Doctor who has kept you waiting hours: "Thats o.k. Doc., I didn't mind waiting, it gave me just enough time to finish my letter to "60 Minutes" about your unusual double billing policy." See how fast he gets you in next time.

The next time your stuck wading through red tape with some petty official try this one: "How often do you have to get filled up with that hot air?"

Instead of fuming silently next time someone takes cuts in front of you in line say to him, "It's a good thing you're so pushy because you'd never get anywhere with those looks.

For those occasions when a specific insult isn't needed you can pick from the following: 1. "Were you born this rude or do you have to practice?'

2. "It's truly rare that I meet someone with a personality as nasty as their breath.'

3. "You're awfully good at being a creep, have you considered giving lessons?"

4. "Thanks so much for your help, I only hope that someday I can do the same for you. Even though I don't think I could be that rude, for you I will certainly try."

After years of rude treatment from everyone from the paper boy to my elected officials I've become an expert at insults. In fact if there is someone you'd love to insult send me a letter in care of this newspaper and I'll see if I can help you out with one.

editor's note

It's all over now. The electorate has spoken in what may be one of the most unpredictable elections in America's history.

At the national level pollsters called the election between Carter and Reagan a tossup. They were insisting it was too close to call right up until they called Reagan a winner by a landslide. And to think all the years we had put all our trust and faith into these sophisticated pollsters to tell us what America is thinking. They couldn't even tell us who was going to win a presidential election when the final electoral count was something like 370 to 50 in favor of Reagan.

Equally confusing, was the voters' refusal to pass a couple of propositions on the state ballot. For the life of me, I can't understand why voters refused Proposal G, especially at a 65-35 percent margin. The proposal simply would have removed from the state constitution the immunity state legislators now enjoy from civil prosecution while they are in session. With Watergate, ABSCAM and other scandals involving our lawmakers so prevalent these days it would seem voters would like to see them collect traffic tickets like ordinary citizens.

And then there was Proposal H which was soundly defeated 59-41 percent. Proposal H would have removed the lieutenant governor as presiding officer of the State Senate, and enable the governor to appoint a Number 2 man if the office of Lieutenant Governor became vacant. Despite having the support of present Lieutenant Governor James Brickley, voters defeated it.

It was a surprise to many people to see the Tisch Amendment go down to defeat, especially when polls in mid-summer showed it had overwhelming support. But, as they did in 1978, the Michigan Education Association to the tune of nearly $1,000,000 campaigned vigorously to defeat the measure. Don't count Bob Tisch out, however. Expect him and his tax cutting measures to be back in 1982, particularly if Richard Headlee decides to make a run for governor. At the local level there were surprises too. In Independence Township, Jim Smith surprisingly defeated 4-year supervisor, Whitey Woter by a substantial margin. Smith rode the crest of Reagan's landslide to gain the margin. But even without Reagan it would have been nearly impossible to beat Smith's organization this year. Facetiously called "the machine", the Independence Residents for Responsible Government ran ads, put up signs, donated money, printed literature, phone canvassed, carried placards at busy intersections and passed out brochures at the polls in what could be called the most effective campaign effort in many years. The effort did not win for Carol Balzarini, however. Carol had to overcome a wellknown name and her sex (Betty Hallman has been the only female on the Board for many years) to get elected. She came close. But Ritter (Fred had his signs plastered all over the township and his brother Dennis who is treasurer in Waterford, likewise all over Waterford and Drayton Plains), proved to have an effective campaign organization of

The Reminder didn't have time or staff to conduct "exit" polls. Although in the case of precinct six at Bailey Lake Elementary (where, at closing time, the line stretched around three corners) we had until eleven o'clock Tuesday night to do it.

Most voters did a pretty good job of expressing their feelings in the booth anyway.

Carter was swamped here, as elsewhere. John Anderson didn't take enough votes away from anybody to make much difference. And if Independence and Springfield voters had their way, the State of Michigan would be getting out the old tax rolls to check up on 1978's assessments. Tisch passed by comfortable margins in both.

With that one exception, though, local voters weren't bucking any trends. Every other proposal was turned down, including the local road miliage. Claude Trim won overwhelming endorsement for another two years wearing his legislator's hat in Lansing. And the Republicans wore most of the

Dear Editor:

Some time ago as a reporter for the Reminder, I wrote an article about the residents of Lake Oakland Woods who organized to fight the unkept promises of their builder and the shortccomings of the township government. I referred to their efforts as "people power."

Only last year two separate groups of citizens organized to fight a proposed hotel and a possible height variance. As a result seventy-three percent of the voters who turned out for the special election said "NO" to both questions. "People power" got out the vote and told the township board just exactly how they felt.

On a larger scale that very same "people power" elected six good citizens to the township board last week.

The Independence Residents for Responsible Government recruited a veritable army of people to mail out cards and letters, make phone calls, carry signs, and hand out literature in behalf of the Republican team. In addition, each candidate recruited his own group of workers.

These three instances point to one very clear conclusion: never underestimate the power of dedicated people to bring about change if they really work at it.

These people were all dedicated, they all worked hard, and their efforts were rewarded. They brought about the changes they sought and they are to be congratulated.

Sincerely, Carol D. Balzarini

Dear Editor:

Congratulations are due the voters of Independence Township. Almost 80 percent of you who are registered, voted in the election of November 4th. Some of you stood in line to vote till 11 p.m., even though it was possible you knew the national race was over.

As fellow residents and neighbors of the Township, we as a committee want to thank the voters for their support of the candidates we endorsed.

HOW DO I SAY GOOD—BYE

TO A FRIEND? The terminally-ill person and the friend of that terminally-ill person often find themselves trying to comfort each other while dealing with their own sadness and fears.

Many find consolation in their religious eliefs. Clergymen are helpful and we encourage you to turn to them so they may help the person as well as his loved ones regard death in a more positive way. Each of us must learn to face dying or the loss of a loved one with courage, even when we cannot understand it.

When Socrates, the Greek Philosopher, was condemned to death, he was able to say "good-bye" to his friends with faith and sincerity. "Now it is time that we were going, I to die and you to live; but which of us has the happler prospect is unknown to anyone but God.'

For a more thorough understanding of facing death may we suggest a book by B.G. Glaser and A.L. Strauss called, Awareness of Dying. Please call or write us if you would like more information on this topic.

New Faces to Dominate Independence Board

especially significant on the township level. This is probably borne out when one realizes that the Republican slate in Independence was running, at least in part, on a controlled growth platform-not exactly an attitude one associates with the grand old party.

But it would also be hard to deny that Jim Smith's victory was partially attributable to the Republican landslide. Although his margin fell nearly a thousand votes short of Ronald Reagan's in the township, voting Republican for a change obviously counted with some people. Another factor that can't be overlooked is the contribution to Smith's campaign of the Citizens for Responsible Government. The group worked long and hard on behalf of a whole slate of candidates, but it's not stretching a point to say that Smith was the one who most benefited from their efforts.

Either way, Responsible or Republican, businessman Smith faces more than a cut in pay when he assumes the role of supervisor. As the outgoing Whitey Tower said, "I won't mind being able to go deer hunting while Jim Smith starts to work on the budget."

Other election notes--Barry Commoner didn't get much support for his matching funds effort in Clarkston with fifteen votes. Trustee, Jerry Powell, who lost a re-election bid in the primary, was a write-in candidate on five Independence ballots. So was Gerald Ford on two; Teddy Kennedy on one; and the biggest longshot of them all, Reggie Jackson received one write-in for Vice-President. 161 of the total 9932 voters in Independence didn't vote for any presidential candidates at all. They were probably the last ones in line out at Bailey Lake and were Petitioners before the Independence Township Board will be facing a new line-up when the board next convenes. Gone are trustees Jerry Powell and Michael Thayer, defeated in August's primary, along with Rudy Lozano, who chose not to run again. Gone too, will be four year supervisor, Whitey Tower, who was unseated by Republican Jim Smith in last Tuesday's general election.

Joining Smith will be new board members, Dan Travis, Dale Stuart and Larry Kozma. Along with returnees - Trustee William Vandermark, Clerk Chris Rose and Treasurer Fred Ritter.

Voter turnout in the area was heavy, 72.5%. Some precincts worked overtime and the final absentee ballots were not fully counted until the early hours of Wednesday

But it had become apparent before 10 p.m. to the anxious candidates waiting on results at Township Hall that a change was forth-

A smiling Jim Smith was still saying at 9:30 he wasn't going "to count any chickens before they're hatched". But when, moments later, he was asked to make some appropriate victory remarks to a local radio station, he couldn't find any excuse to put it

With the exception of Carol Balzarini's unsuccessful bid to unseat Ritter, which fell short by 560 votes, the entire slate of candidates backed by the recently formed Citizens for Responsible Government will be sitting on the board's next session.

If that means a radical shift in board policies or special interest string pulling though, no one is saying so now.

Smith says he has no intention of wading in the first day he's in office and "shaking

"We're going to have to go through a period of assessment and evaluation," he

Smith also says, though, that he intends to soon initiate a series of citizen task forces to evaluate areas such as private roads, senior citizen housing feasibility and townshipschool district cooperation. Things he feels have been neglected in the past.

The outgoing Tower says he'll be around to lend a hand in the break-in period (that is, after he takes a couple of weeks off to go

Tower believes "it'll be interesting" to see how the new people respond to questions on growth, roads and police.

He predicts, "They'll adjust-each issue has its own merits."

Whether or not the new board will adopt a more restrictive attitude on growth pressures remains to be seen.

"controlled" growth and Although adherence to the master plan were prominent in most of the successful candidates' campaign pledges, the divisive questions often involve departures from or modifications to the master plan and zoning ordinances.

Tom Ritter, president of B.A.I.T. (Business Association of Independence Township), says the board shouldn't think that their election was a mandate for "no-growth" in the township.

"Whitey lost on the same ballot with Jimmy Carter," he points out, "and Fred won in the face of a Republican landslide. That should be a message to the board."

Many interested parties seem not to anticipate so much a change in policy as a change in attitude from the new board.

Jerry Powell, the deposed trustee, thinks it will be more conservative and that builders will be more reluctant to bring ambitious site plans up for board review.

No one seems to feel, however, that growth pressures and the assortment of problems that plagued previous board are likely to go away.

What Hank Radcliffe, a spokesman for the Citizens for Responsible Government, anticipates is a more long range approach to the maintenance of township welfare. He sees a stronger sense of "direction" coming under Jim Smith's leadership that will give local residents more control of their destiny.

Not surprisingly, the prevailing outlook for the time being is bright. Even Fred Ritter, who one might expect to be feeling outnumbered, says, "No big deal. I've been in this situation before (as a Democrat in '74)."

"Everyone should realize, though, that it's a completely different situation being on the hot seat and just being a candidate."

Jim Smith, at least, seems to be looking forward to his term on the hot seat. His feeling--"The sky's the limit."

news in brief

The Stablex Corporation won another skirmish in front of Circuit Court Judge, William Beer, last Wednesday. Beer ruled that The State Department of Natural Resources was unnecessarily delaying approval of plans for Stablex's proposed solid waste disposal plant in Groveland Township. The DNR had argued that the soon to be convened statewide site board, established under the Hazardous Waste Management Act, should be allowed to review the plans. But Beer determined that such a delay would unfairly place Stablex in a position that would deny them "interim status" (before November 19th federal deadline) as an "existing" facility under present law.

Beer also rejected arguments from the Groveland Township attorney that the township's interests would not be protected if interim status was granted. Groveland is appealing an earlier ruling by Judge Beer in which he found the township's denial of site plans for the plant illegal.

The prospects for road construction and improvement projects in Independence Township took a couple of direct hits last week. The first came when the Oakland County Road Commission announced it's proposed budget for 1981. Of the $2 million available for road construction in the budget, more than 80 percent has already been allocated. The commission expects to be able to maintain it's present level of patching and road grading, but any paving or resurfacing would have to come from the Tri-Party Program (matching funds from Road Commission, County Board of Commissioners and the local unit), and that money is in increasingly short supply. The second was the defeat of the local road millage. Without the millage township officials don't expect to have enough money to compete for much in the way of Tri-Party funds anyway.

An 87 year old Ohio woman missed the Columbus exit on I-75 last week and ended up in Clarkston instead. Mary Elma Yinger, of St. Mary's, Ohio, left her home at 8 am last Monday morning for Columbus, where she was expecting to attend a meeting. But, after apparently missing her exit, Mrs. Yinger pressed on regardless and wound up at the Dixie - I-75 interchange in Clarkston instead. Oakland County Sherriff's deputies, notified by a passing motorist, picked up the alert but hungry traveler and took her to the Clarkston Motor Inn. Mrs. Yinger's pastor from St. Mary's took a bus to Pontiac the next day and drove her back to Ohio. Mrs. Yinger said her only concern was getting back home in time to vote.

An attorney for Hillview Memorial Garden's owner, Frank Pilara, has claimed that his client is essentially a victim of circumstances in the ongoing imbroglio surrounding the Springfield Township cemetery. Ronald Grossman says that the cemetery was in dire financial straits when Pilara took over in 1977 and that his efforts to turn things around have been unsuccessful.

Funny Faces

Ten drama students from Clarkston Junior High arrived at Pine Knob Elementary to make up faces for the youngsters a couple of weeks ago. The children were given a choice of faces: puppets, clowns, mimes, witches, wizards, Indians, devils, Raggedy Ann and Andy, "Kiss", princes, princes or animals. Ms. Janet Gleeson, the drama teacher at Clarkston Junior High, was the supervisor of this program.

Springfield Approves Industry Tax Break

by Kathy Rush

Although recently unemployment rates have hit record highs in Oakland County, the Springfield Township Board has approved a plan that will spur employment in the area conceivably to the tune of 15 new job openings.

The Board received an application for an Industrial Facilities Exemption Certificate from Functional Gage, Inc. at Wednesday evening's township board meeting.

The approval of this application, although subject to the approval of the Board of Appeals for variance, means Functional Gage, Inc. can receive up to a 50% tax break for a minimum of 12 years. Half the total land and machinery value would become tax exempt.

Applicants, like Gage Functional, will be eligible for a yearly savings of an equivalent of up to $5000 yet this savings provokes a loss to the township of approximately only $350 per year.

However, in the long run, the township will benefit greatly by this approval contends Township Supervisor Collin Walls, keeping in mind the increased tax base and additional available employment positions.

Another tax relief program for business that was discussed was a request for the establishment of an Industrial Development District by the Sys-T-Mation Company for a parcel of land in the Holly Greens Industrial Park. This request by Sys-T-Mation plus expected future requests from other landholders in the Holly Greens Industrial Park for the same relief will be discussed further at a Public Hearing held December 3, 1980 at the regular Board meeting. In other developments, the tax exempt funding for the facility expansion of the Harding Leasing Company already accepted by the Economic Development Corporation (EDC) Board received the stamp of approval from the township board Wednesday night.

Also, two new members were appointed to the EDC Board strictly to review the Harding Leasing Company project. The new additions to the Board are Marvin Menzies, a builder of Farley Road and Larry Hartman, who resides off Crosby Lake Road and is a U.A.W. Regional Director.

Finally, residents in this area will most likely be seeing some ground-breaking by the Dixie Baptist Church in the near future. Site plans submitted for the construction of a gymnasium were approved but subject to the Board of Appeals granting a variance concerning the required screen wall on the west

The Village Book Store in Clarkston opened up its international market recently. Responding to a request from Switzerland, storeowner Nancy Bennett last week mailed off a collection of Agatha Christie novels.

The customer, Mrs. Dane Kurth of Busswil, had seen the bookstore's ad in a copy of The Reminder which came in a Christmas package a friend had sent. Frustrated in her attempts to get the books from British sources. Mrs. Kurth decided to cross the ocean.

And Mrs. Bennett, whose store is not normally engaged as an overseas mail-order house, was happy to oblige.

Remember to "Say you saw it in the Reminder".

Phase II of Deerwood, the ongoing project of developer, John Helveston, had its grand opening last weekend. Located off M-15 north of Clarkston, the second phase contains 126 lots in the 15,000 sq. ft. range, priced from $29,900.

Phase II had been a little slow getting under way, sufferring with the rest of the housing industry through a slow year in 1980.

But area builder, Joe Noll, says paved streets and utilities have been completely installed, he's moved one family in, and the 5 or 6 other builders are expected to get homes under construction within 60-90 days.

Completion of Phase II is expected to take two to three years. A Phase III is also on the books for an additional 160 acres to the north of I & II.

Another occupant has been added to the growing list at the new Clarkston Corners Shopping mall.

Daisy Chain, a gift shop owned and operated by Marguerite Sonia and Jan Sutton, opened its doors for the first time last week. The shop specializes in personal monogramming and personalized music boxes.

Clarkston Corners is located in the old Haupt Bump Shop at the corner of Church and Main.

Surviving Spouses Can Turn to Clarkston's Widowed Coping Together

by Dawson Bell

Planning for one's own death is not something most people take much pleasure in. But it is something most couples will take some time to work out in order to insure the security of a surviving spouse.

More painful however is the task of reassessing those plans after the death of a husband or wife. It is a critical period; a time when most people are overwhelmed by the prospect of a life alone with little energy left over for long range fiscal planning.

Who can a surviving spouse turn to for comfort, guidance or counsel?

A good place to start in this area would be the group that meets the first Wednesday of each month at Clarkston High School, Widowed Coping Together.

The group is open to any widows or widowers who want to get together with people who may be suffering under the same circumstances and provides them with an opportunity to learn from each other and, more pragmatically, from the mini-seminars presented by the group's monthly speaker.

Widows Coping Together was initiated last March by Lew and Diane Wint, funeral home owners in Clarkston. They say the idea was borne of the many inquiries they received about a program of this kind. And, finding none in the area, they decided to start one of their own.

Their guest speakers have ranged from professional counselors to a sherriff's department deputy who instructed unwary widows on some fundamental security measures they might not have considered.

At the most recent session Michael J. Cavanaugh, attorney and underwriter for John Hancock, addressed the difficult questions of retirement security and disposal of estate after death.

His message was clear--Property which will carry over into probated estate should be managed with an eye to that eventuality.

There is no reason, he said, for assets that are intended to provide for children or charity to benefit the government instead. Yet too often this is just what happens.

Estate planning has two elements,
Cavanaugh said,--the assessment, and elimination where possible, of tax liabilities and the necessity of "sitting down and thinking about what specific goals and objectives one has for the estate".

Lew Wint concurred with Cavanaugh, "Too often we see the husband and wife planning well for each other. But when one dies a single spouse neglects to plan for family or others they wish to benefit.'

In December, the group will be addressed by a tax specialist, who will discuss the preparation of income tax returns.

At each meeting Diane Wint provides refreshments. All widowed people are invited. The meetings start at 7:30 p.m. in the library at Clarkston High School.

Tennis Whiz Regrets Starting Late

by Dawson Bell

Clarkston High School tennis whiz, Mary Smith, used to fool around with other sports.

In 9th grade she played basketball, and before that baseball and volleyball. She was, in short, a pretty typical kid who liked to play games and it didn't much matter what the game was.

Now she worries over all that "wasted" energy. As a fifteen year old sophomore she has begun to harbor regrets.

For Mary has become a one sport athlete, and that sport - tennis - requires, to her way of thinking, total devotion.

If one is to judge by the progress she has made in four years since she first picked up a racket it is hard to imagine what she could have done to improve any faster. Mary started winning age group tournaments almost as soon as she knew the difference between "let" and "love". In her first year on the Clarkston team she took over the number one singles spot. She finished first in her regional this fall and earned a trip to Grand Rapids to play in the state tourney. She is ranked sixth in her age group by USTA, (United States Tennis Association) Southeastern Michigan. So what could she have done?

'Started sooner," says Mary.

"I'm playing against girls who started hitting around their parent's clubs when they were four years old.'

With the intention of making up some of that lost time Mary has committed herself to a winter training program at the Deer Lake Racquet Club. She says she'll probably play ''just about every day.'

And asked if she might get a little tired or stale from that kind of regimen she responds, "Heck no. I love it."

According to Mary's tennis mentor over at Deer Lake, Chris Pedano, that attitude is paying off.

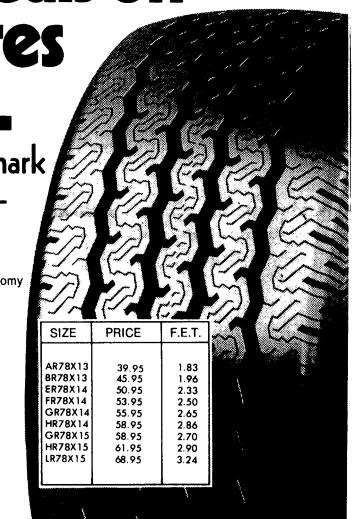

Her game took it's "biggest jump yet, in the past year", he says. Chris doesn't seem to have too many reservations about Mary's ability.

He flatly predicts, "She'll be one of the top players in the area.'

To Chris she's on her way. To other observers she may already be there. But to Mary, one gets the feeling, really "being there" means something like center court Wimbledon and if she could only have a few of those frivolous youthful years back.....

In any event, Mary says she'll go "as far as (she) can", try to win a scholarship to college, and, from here on out, concentrate on tennis.

ANNOUNCING A Change in The Reminder's Delivery System

Due to the increasingly high cost of postal delivery, The Reminder is converting to a personal carrier system. Phased in over the next few months, this system will provide our readers with the same high degree of reliable service to which they are accustomed.

Our carriers will be, for the most part, responsible adults in automobiles. A few city routes will be served by newspaper boys and girls. The paper will be enclosed in a plastic bag and attached to a hook placed on the mail box post or delivered door-to-door.

We hope this system will help us continue to deliver the satisfaction you have come to expect from The Reminder-the Clarkston area's only full circulation newspaper.
