editor's note

Opinions are strongly divided as to whether M-15 should be widened from Dixie Highway north past the commercial strip. In its Special Report of two weeks ago, The Reminder asked area residents to respond in a mail-in poll to a question asking whether the road should be widened. Believe it or not, the poll split right down the middle--50% for widening and 50% opposing.

Some of the comments we received from anonymous participants included:

"This area is a nightmare to do business in. If it doesn't improve I will take my business elsewhere."

"This question should have been asked before the commercial strip came into being. Some better question would be 'Where were the members of the planning board when the approval was given for the construction of the buildings in that area?' Do we need so many medical clinics, banks, and hardware stores jammed into such tight quarters?"

"As fast as this area is growing, I believe 5 lanes are needed. It will be hectic while they are doing the work, but worth it in the end. Look at M-59 toward M-23 (nice). The sooner they start, the sooner they finish."

"I'd rather M-15 be re-routed than lose the small town atmosphere Clarkston Village allows."

"Get to the solution instead of ruining Clarkston. That is I-275."

"Why don't they leave the area if they do not like the traffic. Perhaps shopping at Kroger's will help. Build the 4 lane highways in Birmingham or Bloomfield."

As Dawson Bell reported in his Special Report, it will be a long time coming if changes are made along M-15. That's unfortunate, because I think we can all agree, whether it be widening, re-routing or something else, that stretch of M-15 is in desperate need of help. And with the addition of the new dental clinic, the problem will only be compounded in 1981.

In this week's Reminder, writer Bell attempts to unravel the sewer fund discrepancies in Independence Township. If you recall, before the election, trustee William Vandermark and newly elected Supervisor Jim Smith questioned the township's reasoning behind levying the sewer tax this year. We decided to follow-up on their questions. The story begins on Page 19.

Cold temperatures and generally cloudy skies were the dominant weather features across southeastern Michigan in October. Most of our volunteers received below normal precipitation during the month as nearly all of the month's precipitation occurred in the form of light rain or snow showers. Oddly enough, there was only one thunder-shower in the Clarkston area during October. Precipitation totals (including the melted equivalent of snowfall) during October from my faithful network of volunteers are as follows (with calendar year totals in parentheses);

Davison - 2.65"
Elizabeth Lake/Waterford Township - 2.49" (39.5")
Bishop Airport/Flint - 2.17" (28.19")
Fenton - 2.10" (30.97")
Sullivan Lake/Tyrone Township - 1.99" Union Lake - 1.89"
Oxbow Lake/White Lake Township - 1.87" (32.57")
Eastern Clarkston - 1.78" (29.89")
Johnson & Anderson, Inc/Waterford Township - 1.70"
Northern Clarkston - 1.48" (27.33")
St. Clair Shores - 1.30" (33.60")
Detroit Metropolitan Airport - 1.26" (34.06")

Temperatures took a nosedive during October, as the eastern Clarkston station recorded a mean temperature of only 45.5 degrees for the month. This is 5.9 degrees below normal, and also 16.3 degrees colder than the mean temperature in September. For the Clarkston area, temperatures ranged from a low of 19 degrees on the 30th to a high of 77 degrees on the afternoons of the 1st and 9th. A breakdown of morning low temperatures shows one morning in the teens, 4 mornings in the 20's, and 20 mornings in the 30's. Daily high temperatures showed 2 days in the 30's, 9 days in the 40's, and 10 days in the 50's.

Probably the biggest surprise of the month was the appearance of snow flurries on October 3rd and 4th. While this is quite early for seeing snow in our area, the earliest snow on record for the Detroit area occurred on October 1st. The eastern Clarkston station reported snowfalls on four different days during the month, but the only measurable snowfall occurred during the early morning hours of the 28th. The eastern Clarkston station reported 0.5 of an inch of snow from this storm, but some areas to our south received substantially more. Detroit Metropolitan Airport reported nearly three inches of snowfall, and areas around Monroe received approximately five inches. Normal snowfall for our area during October, is only 0.1 of an inch.

Switching to a lighter subject, how many times have you planned an outing, only to have it rain or snow on that day? Well, I will let you in on an interesting and intriguing bit of information that I discovered during this past month. Using our northern Clarkston station (for which hourly precipitation data is available), I calculated the number of days on which measurable precipitation was recorded for the period beginning January 1, 1979 and ending August 31, 1980. I then determined which days of the week were involved in each of these precipitation events. For the above 20 month period, the results are as follows: measurable precipitation fell on 45 Mondays, 44 Saturdays, 43 Fridays, 42 Thursdays, 38 Wednesdays, but only 29 Sundays and 28 Tuesdays. So if you are planning an outdoor event in the Clarkston area, the odds favor better weather on Tuesdays and Sundays!

Robert C. Davis

Also this week we officially begin our Christmas coverage. On Page 2 several area businesses present unique Christmas ideas. And Feature Writer Kathy Rush tells us what you may expect to get under your Christmas tree if your family is into following this year's gift giving fads and trends. Her report begins on Page 4.

Fabulous Fred, Tom Ton Popular Gift Ideas

by Kathy Rush

Now that pet rocks, skateboards, stick pins, slumber sacks and mood rings have all at one time or another had their place under the Christmas tree, it's once again time for shoppers to hop aboard the band wagon and on December 25th bestow that trend-setting present upon family or friend.

Of course, not all fashionable gifts disappear from the market the following year. There are those that become the rage one year and continue to be in vogue for many years thereafter, like televisions, food processors, stereos, electronic games and microwaves.

Although all fashionable products will not be suited to everyone, but, this year as every year, there is a tendency for a variety of chic ideas that will appeal to man, woman or child and even "for the person who has everything".

What trendy item do you suppose will be hidden away in that bright, smartly wrapped box that lies under your Christmas tree on this rapidly approaching Christmas day?

According to Dave Petchell, manager of Toy Town in Bloomfield Hills, electronic games, in general, are going to be a hot number this Christmas for kids and grown-ups alike.

Petchell says, "Fabulous Fred" has already proven itself to be number one in electronic games. Petchell explains, "Most (electronic games) have only one function but for roughly the same price Fabulous Fred offers ten different games in one."

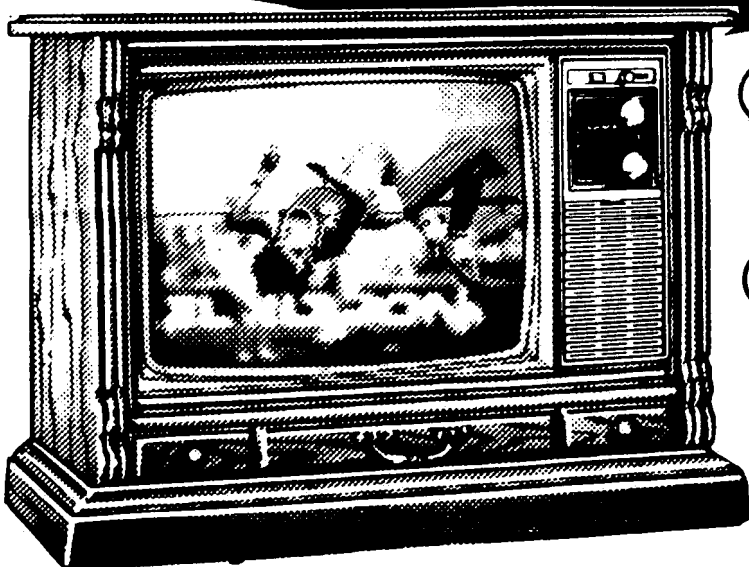

Another big rage, predicts Petchell will be toys and games that are related to Star Wars. "One of the biggest requests we're getting right now is for a type of Star Wars doll call Tom Ton."

Dean's dancers, most trained in ballet before joining her company, must also be trained singers and musicians. WHY MAKE FUNERAL PLANS NOW?

With the fast pace of today's world it is hard for some people to deal seriously with funeral pre-arrangement. We set aside the question of death by saying "all life is uncertain."

There is a kind of panic that pushes people from one day into the next. The busy round of activities, trying to pay bills, trying to raise kids, worrying about job security, all are features of an environment that resists planning. There's almost no time to plan.

But, death, being certain, demands a time for planning. We know it is coming. To think about death is to think about certainties. Some of the "uncertainty of life" can be relieved by making funeral arrangements in advance. For instance:

1. Pre-planning allows you the freedom to have your wishes carried out.

2. You can achieve peace of mind through pre-planning by knowing that your family won't have to worry about it later.

Because we understand the importance of pre-planning, we are glad to answer any questions about funeral pre-arrangement you may have. Contact us anytime.

Clarkston Students Score High on State Tests

by Dawson Bell

Clarkston School District students scored generally higher this year in the recently concluded Michigan Educational Assessment Program tests. But William Potvin, Director of Planning and Evaluation for the schools, expressed the same kind of reservations about this year's results as he has in the past for lower scores. The scores, presented to the School Board at their November 10 meeting, showed tenth grade improvements which were particularly dramatic, 91.6 percent of the district's 10th grade students achieved a minimum level of attainment in reading compared to last year's 73.4 percent. With the leap in math even higher, from 55.6 percent to 80.6 percent.

Potvin said, however, that doesn't necessarily mean "the kids know any more math. We just motivated them to test as high as they are capable of testing."

Likewise, last year's low figures didn't mean that only half of the kids in the district were learning their math, Potvin said, but that Clarkston school teachers and administrators haven't yet learned enough about setting up the conditions under which the students could test up to their abilities.

Other scores were also higher. On the seventh grade level from 86.1 percent to 93 percent in reading and from 68.1 percent to 77.5 percent in math. Fourth graders went from 79.8 percent to 87.3 percent in reading. The only drop in scores from the previous year was fourth grade math, where the number fell off more than 10 points from 91.9 percent to 81.2 percent.

Potvin repeatedly emphasized that the tests only measure minimum levels of attainment. That is, the "success" ratio reflects the percentage of students who answered

3/4 of the test questions in math or reading correctly. The tests don't, he said, allow for very much flexibility in evaluation.

Other factors that Potvin thinks may have distorted this year's figures are changes in the length of the test and some new skill areas not previously included which make direct comparison of scores impossible.

Statewide results are not yet available. Potvin said those figures and the district's report and analysis on the tests, including a report to parents, would be forthcoming.

The School Board also received a report from William Dennis, on an engineering study conducted to test the energy efficiency of the high school.

The study, conducted by mechanical engineer Vernon Kors, concluded that 10 percent of the present fuel and electricity costs at the school could be cut by the installation of a "programmable controller". The controller (which would itself be monitored by computer) would automatically regulate the operation of air intake, exhaust fans and the boiler in the building.

The project would cost, if installed by school personnel, $25,000. Dennis estimated a pay back period of two and a half years given current fuel cost estimates.

He also pointed out that the estimate might even be conservative. A similar system, also designed by Kors, has saved the county 1.3 million dollars in fuel costs in its first year of operation.

The computer could also be used to store maintenance records and food service information and, under certain conditions, even be used for classroom instruction.

Kors said, too, that any buildings the school system wished to add to the energy saving program in the future could operate off the same computer.

Superintendent, Milford Mason, expressed an interest in touring the county buildings to see their system in operation. He intends to return to the board with a recommendation.

Independence Planners Approve Ordinance Changes

After narrowly defeating an amendment which would have removed the requirement for township approval of "structures" exceeding 35 feet in height, the Independence Township planning commission unanimously approved a new set of ordinance revisions at their Thursday, November 13 meeting.

The ordinances, which address a wide range of issues, have been before the commission since last spring, when it was decided that emendation and tightening of certain ordinance provisions seemed necessary.

But the final discussions Thursday centered around the controversial proposal to include structural height limitations among the changes.

Commission member, James Brennan, sought an amendment to delete that section, saying, "The message from the people in the last election was, I think, clear. They don't want to add another level of bureaucracy."

Brennan had earlier expressed the opinion that the legislation was "very specific", pertaining directly to Pine Knob's intention of erecting a ski "platform" on their existing ski hill.

Brennan received a certain amount of support for his objection, but not quite enough. The vote on the amendment went: Ayes: Gardiner, Lozano, Saile, Brennan. Nays: Gray, Smith, Benzing, Vaara. Ties constitute defeated motions.

Shortly thereafter John Gray's motion to approve the set of ordinances as proposed was passed unanimously.

The next step is township board action. Chairman Jim Smith, who led the fight for planning commission approval, will also chair that discussion as the newly elected Township Supervisor.

The planning commission also intends to review at its next meeting, December 4th, a second set of ordinance revisions.

Stablex Back in Court

The Stablex Corporation has shown every intention of investing a significant sum of money in their effort to construct a waste disposal plant in Groveland Township. But so far most of it has gone to legal fees.

The Pennsylvania firm was brought to task in court again last week, this time by Tri-City Aggregates, the sand and gravel operators who had contracted to mine on the property prior to construction of the plant.

At issue is a ten-acre site Stablex says was set aside for construction of the plant and for which they received a preliminary injunction to prevent Tri-City mining earlier in the week.

Tri-City is now asking the court to stall construction of the plant until the dispute can be settled or to retain an insurance bond from Stablex which would reimburse any Tri-City losses resulting from construction of the plant.

Stablex, in two previous court appearances, had received favorable rulings from Circuit Court Judge William Beer, once in a suit initiated by Groveland Township to block construction, and more recently to force the State Department of Natural Resources to grant permits necessary for construction.

Consortium Takes Care of Mental Disorders

by Mike Wilcox

It's probably true that most people in the Clarkston area are unaware of the existence of The Consortium for Human Development, but since its move to new offices on Sashabaw Road in 1979, the out-patient mental health clinic has served hundreds of patients with a broad range of problems.

Now, with nearly one-quarter of this area's work force unemployed, The Consortium's role in serving the community has become even more important.

"Substance and alcohol abuse is really increasing," said Fred Bauman Assistant Director. "They (unemployed husbands) don't know how to deal with their time. Plus there is a family reaction to the dad being home most of the time."

He added, "The economy is definitely tied into our business and unfortunately it is tied into our ability to be in business."

By that, Bauman expects his non-profit state funded agency will be a victim of Governor Milliken's budget cuts. Bauman doesn't expect the agency to go out of business, but he is prepared to make severe cutbacks to work within the framework of the State's budget.

Right now the agency boasts five therapists (all with Master's degrees), one psychologist and one psychiatrist. The staff is headed by Jim Evans, a Clarkston resident, who also is top man at The Consortium's office in Troy.

Each of The Consortium's employees has their own area of specialization, but Bauman pooh-poohs the idea that they are specialists: "Really, most of our problems are intertwined. We like to stay away from specializing."

And that's just as well because their clientele spans a broad range of problems. Some of the more common disorders they try to help are personality problems, adjusting to divorce, sexual orientation problems, occupational maladjustments and of course the major problem--alcohol and substance abuse.

The Consortium also offers counseling for teenagers. Typical situations they lend their expertise to include vandalism, theft, school related performance, family disorders and again alcohol and substance abuse.

Although a large share of their cases are referrals from schools, doctors, the courts, and former patients, Bauman said the agency welcomes individuals who call in for appointments. "Our attempt is to see everyone who calls within 48 hours of their phone call."

The Consortium is approved by Blue Cross/Blue Shield and other insurance agencies. Individuals without appropriate insurance coverage are assessed on an ability to pay basis. No one is refused counseling services because they lack money. An average visit costs $5-$10.

For more information about The Consortium, call 625-9600.

Group Seeks $60,000 for Football Field Lighting

by Dawson Bell

With the "blessing" of the Reverend Robert Walters and his fellows on the Clarkston School Board a Community wide fund-raising effort to finance the installation of a new lighting system at the Clarkston High School football field got under way last week.

Acting on a request from Eric Reickel, the Board moved to lend its moral, if not fiscal, support to the drive which Reickel said hopes to raise $60,000 before the first of the year.

Reickel said that to delay the project (with the hope of more prosperous days ahead) would likely mean an end to nighttime football, band and related activities at the school.

"Measurements taken on the field register between one and five foot candles now. The recommended level is twenty-three foot candles," he said.

The $60,000 would pay for the installation of new standards and fixtures, connected by underground wiring. Reickel also suggested the new system be set back from the field to allow for possible future expansion of the running track.

Because of the immediacy of the need and the amount of money required, the group has decided to undertake a direct pledge program instead of trying to mount a bake sale/car wash campaign.

Reickel said that he felt the community realizes the benefits of a nighttime activities and would be supportive of the effort.

"It's just not possible," he said, "to generate as much interest in Friday or Saturday afternoon events."

The group intends to request from the Board at their December meeting financing for the initial engineering study for the project so that bids could start going out in the winter (when they would be most competitive). That money would be repayed with collected pledges.

Superintendent Milford Mason voiced his approval of the idea, saying, "The lights there are 25 years old. We can't even get maintenance men to climb up there to change the bulbs."

Reickel presented the fund's first contributions to Administrative Assistant, Conrad Bruce, at the meeting. That $250 represents the first notch on the fund-raising thermometer the group will erect on the Waldon Road side of the football field.

Contributions (which are tax-deductible) should be made out to, Clarkston Community Schools, and addressed to the Board of Education, 6389 Clarkston Road, Clarkston, 48016.

owner of Coach's Corner in Clarkston, for-sees a run in exercise equipment sales. Mc-Neven also feels cross country skis will be another popular item, but added, "Because of what happened last year, people may hold out to see what the weather will bring."

And then, what would Christmas be without jewelry? Jewelry is in...or better said, Gold is in. So says both Don Lovett of Lovett
Jewelers and Tom Brown, Jr. of Waterfall Jewelers.

An increasingly popular item at Lovett Jewelers is a gold nugget that's been melted down from a gold coin or an old class ring worn on a gold chain around the neck. The unique thing, says Lovett, is the fact that no two are alike.

Brown predicts long gold chains will be the chic thing this Christmas, as will be gold watches. Gold watches are not only a nice, fashionable piece of jewelry but also they serve a vital function.

On another expensive note, John Paalman, manager of Danny Paris TV & Appliance believes the big fad will be Video Cassette Recorders.

"Last night was a good example of its selling potential," related Paalman. "Rocky and The Godfather were shown at the same time and people who own video recorders were able to watch one, record the other and watch it later at their own convenience."

Paalman also feels that microwaves will be a big seller, as they were last year.

So taking into account for whom you are buying and the thickness of your wallet, remember this: Christmas is just around the corner.

Fathers Gain Better Understanding at Workshop

The consensus of the Dads attending the "Caring To Be A Dad" workshop sponsored by the Clarkston Area Youth Assistance Committee, on Saturday, November 8, at Calvary Lutheran Church, was that they would like more programs like this one, geared to discussion on the role of father and mother. Most of the fathers wanted another such program to include their wives. A need was also expressed for programs on single parents.

Almost unanimously they agreed that they received a better understanding of their role as a result of the discussions led by John Bodary, M.A., Human Growth Center, Dearborn, Southfield; Dr. Michael Levitt, M.D., Child

Psychiatrist, Tri-County Mental Health; and Al Katzman, M.S.W. Center for Contemporary Psychology, Birmingham.

This program was conducted as a part of the Youth Assistance Committee's continuing effort to aid young people and their parents by combating delinquency and neglect and in promoting better, more constructive parent-child relationships.

Independence Officials Still Question Its Purpose To Levy or Not to Levy the Sewer Tax

by Dawson Bell

Independence Township residents will be paying the 1 mill sewer and valorem tax for this year at least. But it looks more and more like the tax life expectancy will be reduced fairly soon.

The controversial assessment, which was first put into place back in 1976 when it became apparent that the township was in danger of defaulting on its bonded indebtedness for sewer construction, has unquestionably served its original purpose. The question remains, however, how much longer and what rate should it continue to be called on.

Original projections from the financial consultants hired by the township, The Ohio Company, suggested that $210,000 tax dollars would have to be generated each year until 2001 to meet debt payments.

But Township Trustee, William Vandermark, has argued that the sewer system fund has been accumulating surpluses which make continued tax levys absurd.

He has also argued that another fund, held by the county in excess sewer construction funds is larger than had previously been thought.

Both funds were expected to have some surpluses in the year 1988, at which time they would cover expenses not covered by other revenue.

But Vandermark thinks they have both grown beyond all expectation and it was only over his objections that the tax was levied at all this year.

Disagreement over the issue, which surfaced during many of the debates waged during recent township elections, centered around exactly how much extra money there actually was and whether or not utilization of the apparent surplus ahead of schedule would endanger the solvency of the fund at some time in the future.

One thing is certain—neither the surplus held by the township or the extra construction funds held at the county are in any

best in business

This Week:
J. Navarre, Smith & Assoc., Inc.

How do you turn a part-time job running around with two push mowers in the back of a pick up into the full time headache of trying to keep a tractor/front-end loader, back hoe, three dump trucks, a parking lot vacuum sweeper, two commercial lawn mowers and fifteen employees busy?

Well, if you're Jim Navarre, Clarkston native, you work hard, form partnerships and find a long line of credit.

Jim won't be called a self-made man because, in his opinion, he hasn't made it yet. But the expansion of his business undertakings, J. Navarre-Smith and Associates Inc., Navco Enterprises and Salvador Construction have been nothing short of phenomenal.

In 1975 Jim was working for A.C.E. Hardware as a store manager. He'd been with the company for two years and was, he thought, providing them with quality performance. But, as is the way with a lot of big companies, employees, store managers included, were relatively small cogs in the overall scheme of things at A.C.E.

So Jim decided to try his hand at private enterprise.

The results have been mixed. Over three years Navarre-Smith (Bruce Smith came in as a partner in 1978) established a sizable landscape construction business, Salvador Construction, ((with managing partner Paul Salvador) an excavating and sewer installation firm, was formed and, although it's always tough to finance a new business, things were going along well enough.

Unfortunately, construction was one of the hardest hit of all industries in the recession/depression of 1980. And without new construction there's not much call for landscaping and sewer line installation.

Jim remains optimistic, however. "We're

Paul Salvador, right, construction supervisor for J. Navarre-Smith unloads some of the 500 assorted shrubs and bushes for the Clarkston Professional Plaza on M-15.

probably going to be off about thirty percent this year," he says, "but things are starting to pick up."

One place they are starting to pick up is down on M-15 in Clarkston. Navarre-Smith have the landscape contract on the new office building being constructed by the Danash Corporation for Dr. Charles Munk. The plans call for over 500 shrubs and trees and over 2000 yards of sod and hydro seeding.

In good times and in bad, Navarre-Smith have placed a high priority on quality workmanship.

Bruce Smith says, "We'll sacrifice speed (and profit) if we have to, to get the job done well."

Jim responds, "Well...up to a point. If we don't get any snow this year there isn't going to be any profit to sacrifice."

That is probably the most difficult thing that Navarre, or any small, independent businessman, has to face. Success or failure is based, to a frightening degree, on external events.

Last year the summer construction business was good, then it didn't snow all winter and they didn't make a dime on snow removal. This year the economy struggled to hit bottom throughout the construction season and the weather isn't something to bet on.

Through it all Jim Navarre has said his goal was not to be an instant millionaire but "to stay in business for five years without going bankrupt, then maybe we can start thinking about making money."

Bruce Smith takes the philosophical approach too. His advice to anyone thinking about going into business: "Have lot's of money and be single."

danger of insolvency right now.

The township fund balance, as of March 31, 1980, stood at $914,516. On the schedule drawn up by The Ohio Company, the accumulated surplus up to 1980 was expected to be $491,976.

The township's share of the county fund is determined to be approximately $1.5 million. The Ohio Company projected use of that fund to pay off $2.4 million in debt service beginning in 1990. At interest rates of 10%, by 1990 the county fund would have grown to over $4 million.

So why is the township assessing a tax to pay into funds that could conceivably be three or four times the size they need to be before they are ever utilized?

Township Treasurer, Fred Ritter, says the reasons are obvious.

"Most of those wild figures you hear about (one estimate pegged accumulated surplus by 2001 at over $15,000,000) are based on earned interest on substantial sums of money," he explains. "If we start using that money now, it's obviously not going to be there to earn interest."

Ritter himself, however, has some reservations about the tax.

"I don't disagree with Bill Vandermark. I don't want the tax there. But we have a debt to pay—we've pledged the good faith of the township."

And until better information is forthcoming, he says, "we have to rely on someone. We paid for expert advice and we should listen to it."

Vandermark thinks "we" should listen to expert advice, too. New advice.

"I don't think there's been anything devious going on here," he says. "But it's time we found out where we stand."

Projections of this sort are necessarily imprecise, based as they are on unpredictable variables like interest rates, growth and the rate at which people pay off their assessments.

Updated information must, as a matter of course, be scrutinized. And the newly elected township board is likely to have some new figures, worked up by township auditors, Doeren Mayhew and Co., in the near future.

Ritter says their initial findings indicate that it will be necessary to levy the ad valorem tax for at least two more years. After that, he says, it may be possible to reduce the assessment and eventually eliminate it in a more timely fashion than The Ohio Company had predicted.

He says, though, that is what he expected all along and that the flap over assessing the tax this year was "political".

"The sooner we can get rid of this tax the better. But I would rather not take it off now and then come back in ten years and have to say to the taxpayers—'Now we need three or four mills.'"

profile by Dawson Bell

Acton as in Action

Jane Acton, Independence Township resident and CHS student-athlete, has that quality that coaches are always looking for but seldom find, even in the professional ranks, maturity.

Jane's basketball coach, Dave McDonald, says, "Jane probably acts more like an adult than a lot of adults I know."

What that translates into on the basketball floor is solid, steady performance. In her two years as a varsity starter for McDonald, Jane has averaged just under five points and seven rebounds per game.

He calls her a "kind of leader out there" (McDonald doesn't appoint an official captain).

"When I take her out it's usually because she's been playing with such intensity she's just worn out."

Jane doesn't let up in the classroom, either. She has carried a straight 4.0 grade point average throughout high school. That is, if she holds on for another nine weeks--Jane doesn't take anything for granted.

This season has been particularly satisfying for the three-year veteran of the CHS basketball program. Although, they needed a win Tuesday night to finish the year at .500, the nine victories that the team already had in the bag represented an improvement of 300% over last year.

Jane is pleased, too, about being able to play healthy all year. She missed 12 games last season with a severely sprained ankle.

After high school Jane plans on enrolling at some small college, probably in Michigan, and probably at Alma, where the Acton tradition extends back over three generations. Jane's sister, Laura, a '79 graduate of CHS is there now.

Laura, sports fans in the area may recall, holds five track records at the school.

The Acton's, one gets the impression, know how to get things done.

The Indianwood Christian Academy soccer team closed out a highly successful season by defeating Calvary Christian School of Armada 3 - 2. The Chiefs were led by senior John Dalby who scored the first two goals. Captain John Walters, a junior from Lake Orion, scored the winning goal midway through the second half. Goalie Bill Schwartz of Lake Orion held off many good opportunities to preserve the victory. The Chiefs finished the season with a 5 - 1 record losing only the first game of the season to Calvary Christian. Other victories were against North Branch Wesleyan School 5 - 0 and 4 - 0 in a home and home series. The Chiefs lose only two seniors this year. Varsity basketball begins December 2 with the first game at home.
