Life in the Country Not a Matter of Choice at Camp Pontiac

Camp Pontiac - Not someplace you want to send your kids for the summer.

by Dawson Bell

On the southern border of Springfield Township lies a couple of square miles of dense, spruce bog called the Huron Swamp.

In an area of relatively well settled farms and subdivisions it stands out as one of the last large parcels of land that has remained "impenetrable" to the advance of civilization. Much of the area has now been set aside for "primitive" parkland.

But the Huron Swamp serves another purpose -- it stands a sort of guard over the 50-70 female inmates at the Michigan State Department of Corrections trustee camp called "Camp Pontiac".

It's not the kind of deterrent that one associates with maximum security.

Guards can't tell would-be wayward residents that the waters of the upper Huron are infested by sharks or alligators.

But scaled down to meet the need it works.

Tekla Miller, camp administrator, says that whenever they do have escapee problems (basically, whenever someone gets 'fed up and walks off) they head for White Lake Road which runs across the front of the property.

"We tell them it's all swamp, mosquitoes and snakes back there."

And the fact is that at Camp Pontiac they really don't have much in the way of security problems to deal with anyway.

Most of the prisoners there are within a year or two of release and sensible enough to realize that it's not worth the trouble, even without alligators.

Likewise, the other classic prison related problems, drugs, sexual harrassment, violence, seem pretty far removed from the atmosphere at the camp.

Miller says her biggest problem is "that this is an old, old, old facility."

Something is breaking down every day and the biggest headaches of managing the camp belong, not to guards worrying about being taken hostage, but to the maintenance crew.

It sounds pretty tame.

But one would be mistaken to think that life at the camp is jolly.

It is, afterall, a prison. And even if the only thing keeping inmates within the boundaries of the "camp limits" signs is knowing it's a long way to the bus stop, the fact that they don't walk away isn't any indication that anyone enjoys being there.

The amenities, especially during the months when everyone is inside, are limited. Camp Pontiac is definitely not a "spa" for white collar criminals.

Almost all of the half dozen buildings at Camp Pontiac are cinderblock, furnishings

Taxpayers Flood Independence with Tax Calls

The clamor for some kind of property tax reform reached Independence Township Hall last week.

Fred Ritter, Township Treasurer, contacted on Friday, said, "Oh man, it's been crazy...phone calls...incessant."

The reason for all the uproar was the unwelcome arrival of 1981 assessment notices, up on a township wide average of 15 percent.

Ritter said his office and the office of township assessor, Dave Sherrill, were hit the hardest.

"People come to us because we issue the notices," he said. "But we're only issuing what state law requires and the county implements."

"I'm getting all legitimate questions."

People want to know why their assessments are up when the real estate market, upon which the increases are based, has disappeared, he said.

"The question I can't answer is why."

Property owners who do have a legitimate complaint -- that is, a complaint based in error of fact, not simple outrage -- are entitled to a hearing before the township's Board of Review, that meets March 9 and 10.

But those who contend that, no matter what method of computation, property taxes are just plain too high, will probably have some other options.

Among them, a tax proposal out of Governor Milliken's office which would reduce property taxes by about 35 percent and increase the sales tax by 1 percent.

It is similar to a proposal that was defeated in last November's general election, but markedly less of a tax shift and more of a tax cut.

Local units of government would be reimbursed by the state for 89 percent of the revenue lost under such a proposal.

Milliken's tax plan may be on a special ballot May 19.

Longtime tax cut crusader, Robert Tisch, whose proposal fell a half dozen percentage points short of approval last fall, may also be working for another shot, with a slightly modified version of his 50 percent plus cutting plan.

Another, perhaps less welcome alternative, may present itself if the Clarkston School Board chooses to request additional millage monies to offset a projected budget deficit of $1 million.

Ritter said, "I don't know what will happen if the school asks for a millage."

But he said he did think that Tisch would have passed in a walk if voters had had a voice in the matter last week.

Ritter guessed that the reaction to the assessment notices was more pronounced this year than in the previous two years combined.

"I recognize the need for property tax relief probably better than anyone in the township," he said.

After a week like that, he ought to.

CAMP
PONTIAC

No, we're not celebrating St. Patrick's Day a month early. Nor are we thinking "money green" because of the "economic" turn around President Reagan promised us in his speech last week.

Rather, the green ink we have used exclusively in this week's Reminder, is our way of saying WELCOME SPRING, we hope you're here to stay!

In other words, the mild weather we have experienced the past week is a welcome reprieve from the below zero temperature and the mountains of snow we had to put up with earlier this winter. We're hoping the mild temperatures are here to stay.

Many of our advertisers feel the same, and are getting the jump on Spring in this issue by offering specials on Spring related merchandise.

In this week's cover story, The Reminder taken an in-depth look at the minimum security prison located in Springfield Township. Camp Pontiac is the home for 50-70 female inmates who have been imprisoned for less than "classic" crimes.

Prisoners at Camp Pontiac talked with Dawson Bell about their crimes, their lives, and their aspirations. Many of the things they had to say were thoughtful and realistic. If you want to know what life is like "behind the bars" then this is not an article to read, but if you do care to learn about what prisoners think in a minimum security prison that is the final step to the free "real" world read on.

Earth's Drug Letter is Misleading

Dear Mr. Bell:

The only "sad" part of Earth's letter on the editorial page of the February 12 issue of the paper is the fact that the contents are as misleading as he claims government information to be.

Just because Earth feels that he has not suffered any ill effects from smoking marijuana for fifteen years does not substantiate his premise. He introduced no facts relative to the amount of pot he smokes and he asks us to accept his word that the effects are not detrimental.

A better pseudonym for Earth would have been Sand because, obviously, he has had his head in the sand for the last fifteen years. Where has he been while the effects of pre-teen and early teen pot smoking have been destroying individuals and tearing families apart? I could relate a dozen true heart-breaking stories which would make an intelligent young person think more than twice before he blindly followed his peers into the world of grass.

All mind-altering substances affect individuals differently. Until a drug is used, no one can determine the consequences. For some people, the immediate effects of pot smoking may not be apparent. However, the cumulative effect of the drug which remains in the body can cause everything from irritability to paranoia.

One of the most apparent effects of pot smoking is delayed adolescence. The growing pains that accompany the transition from childhood to adolescence must be coped with by each person if he expects to reach full maturity. I have seen many pot smokers who avoided this vital transition. How sad it is to observe a twenty-five year old person who maturation process has not functioned for ten years!

I think I have read or heard every excuse propounded by teenage drug users and none of them has a reasonable foundation. What the pot smoker is saying is, "I don't like the world around me so I'm going to smoke myself into a state of euphoria in order to survive." If he does not like the society he lives in then he should attempt to change it. Social evolution can come about only if we face problems instead of hiding from them.

Obviously, Earth does not know much about the history of mankind. He stated, "The kids now are just preparing for the high pressure business of success at earlier ages than Dad and Mom did." In fact, the very opposite is true. I suggest that Earth take his head out of the sand and direct it to the nearest library. It is true that we have many problems to solve in today's society but some knowledge of man's historical development might lead Earth to believe that this age is almost utopian.

Sincerely yours,
Anne Hubchen

P.S. Keep up your good reporting, Mr. Bell. Many true stories related to pot smoking can be found in this community. May I suggest that a series of these stories might be beneficial to our youth who really seek the truth.

Homeowners Can't Afford New Millage

The Reminder
About Your Tax Survey!

I just can't believe the homeowners of Clarkston will vote for a tax increase. There is no way the homeowners can keep picking up the tab.

I say let the township sell off some of the property they bought with my tax dollars.

I believe the teachers are overpaid for the 8½ months they work, and for the amount of dedication and caring they put in their work. It is no longer a teaching job but a money job.

I wish I could tell my boss that my taxes raised, my IRS raised my lights, gas, oil raised so I need $100.00 more. He would tell me to get two jobs. When your taxes are more than your mortgage payments it is time to say no.

Part of high taxes is unfair tax assessments. The assessors do not come look at your home. They just look at what was sold in the area or built. If the new home was $200,000 to build and it cost you $30,000 ten years ago you pay taxes on the cost of the new home. It is very unfair. It is time we in Clarkston stand up and be counted.

For God sakes stop paying this rip off. Let's stand together on this new millage and say no, no, no!

THE FUNERAL IS OVER, WHAT MORE CAN I DO?

When someone we are close to loses a loved one we offer them comfort and hope by attending the wake and funeral services. These activities are very helpful because a period of grieving is needed as an emotional outlet. They help the survivors to accept the deceased's death through the presence of friends and relatives.

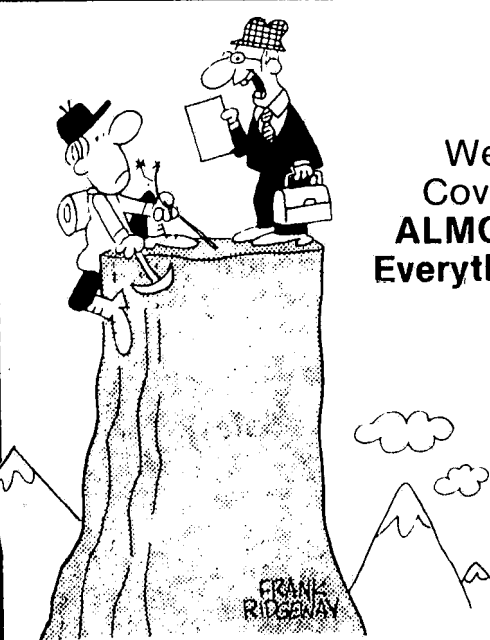

But, a feeling of emptiness often follows when those closest to the deceased are back home alone after the formalities are over. You might ask yourself "now that the funeral is over, what more can I do to help?"

In his book, Death and Dying, Leonard Pearson suggests two things:

1. It is necessary for the bereaved to have some time alone to think and finish the grieving process.
2. At the same time, frequent-and-short-visits from friends and relatives are in order...especially visits which encourage the bereaved to take part in some activity they enjoy.

Pearson also says that we should visit in the spirit of real friendship for the bereaved and not just because they have lost a loved one. People want our love, not our pity.

We invite you to consult us for books and articles on this and other related subjects.

Solid Waste Plan - An Idea Whose Time Will Arrive Wednesday Night

The public unveiling of an Oakland County solid waste disposal plan remains set at February 25, but speculation continued last week about certain aspects of the plan, especially the location of landfill sites.

Two of the likely spots, one the old Pontiac Collier Road landfill, and the other, the on again/off again controversial Marlowe's Landfill in Rose Township, will be the subject of a county financed hydrogeological study to determine if continued or resumed use would be feasible under new state groundwater guidelines.

And another proposed site in Orion Township, which had been the subject of extensive maneuvering between its owner and township authorities, now appears to be alive again and in the running for a spot in the county plan.

County Executive, Daniel Murphy, remained closemouthed about plan specifics, even while requesting the county commission to approve the Marlow/Collier study.

And, according to Independence Township Solid Waste task force member, Ted Thomson, it is likely that even the Wednesday meeting will be designed only "to test the political winds".

The county has a number of options, but it is widely believed that the plan will include at least one incineration plant, several transfer stations and the continued use of landfills.

Seniors Subject of Study

Independence Township Supervisor, James Smith, has set the wheels in motion on yet another citizen's task force designated to examine a pressing local problem.

The most recent, Senior Citizens-Housing, Programs and Facilities, was approved by the township board at the February 17 meeting.

It is charged with examining four specific areas of concern; inflated living expenses for the elderly, recreational opportunities, the dearth of retirement and nursing home facilities in the township and the absence of public transportation for senior citizens.

The task force is expected to work with the existing Senior Citizens Advisory Committee and to draw up recommendations for presentation to the Township Board.

Smith has suggested the group report at ninety-day intervals and aim for some kind of full presentation at the end of a year's time.

Members of the Senior Citizen Task Force are: Mr. L.A. Volberding, Mrs. Maryetta Bullard, Mrs. Jane Kennedy, Mr. Tom Rademacher, and the Reverend Robert Walters.

Clarkston 4th, 7th and 10th Graders Score High in State Tests

William Potvin, Director of Planning and Evaluation, was almost apologetic about interrupting the February Board of Education meeting with his report on statewide results on the Michigan Education Assessment Program tests.

With a million dollars in school budget cuts on the agenda, he realized that the crowd of 100 plus in attendance wasn't there to hear from him.

But he certainly had nothing to apologize about.

The test scores, compiled from results tallied all over the state earlier in the school year, clearly indicate that Clarkston kids are better than average.

In every single age group and category Clarkston District results came in higher than statewide totals.

The tests are administered to fourth, seventh and tenth graders and attempt to measure their abilities in two basic areas, math and reading.

The results indicate the percentage of students in each category who have attained a minimum level of competence.

Clarkston kids scored in the eighty to ninety percent bracket in almost every category, with sharp jumps in tenth grade scores for both reading and math, and with some decline in fourth grade levels in math.

Potvin said that neither change was that significant.

The fourth grade drops he said, "did not reflect a drop in the learning by the kids...but a change in the way the tests are measured."

That is, the questions were harder and scores dropped by almost the same in fourth grade math all over the state.

The tenth grade increases were, too, deceptive he said, in that this year school teachers tried harder to motivate the kids to do well on the test and provide "optimum test conditions".

The MEAP tests have been administered annually since 1976 and were instituted initially to address concerns over the failure of public schools to teach basic skills.

Talks on Deer Lake Zoning Revision Go Behind Doors

Negotiations between Independence Township and developer, Hugh Garner, are scheduled to move into closed session after action taken by the township board last Tuesday.

Garner has applied to the township for revision of a consent agreement entered into in 1975 which allowed him to develop Deer Lake Farms, a single family residential subdivision, and which set aside a thirty-acre parcel west of Deer Lake Farms along Dixie Highway as a commercially zoned area.

Garner is now seeking township approval of a plan to build condominiums on all but five acres of the property.

The Independence Planning Commission had approved the idea, but on the condition that the entire thirty acres go condominiums.

Garner, however, balks at that idea, saying that "(all condos) limits my ability to get rid of all the land."

Some neighboring residents have also requested the township to establish guidelines over highway access and buffers between the development and residential areas.

The board approved a motion for Garner and the planning department (in consultation with the supervisor) to enter into negotiations and come up with a proposal for the board which would allow the property to be developed in a fashion suitable to the interests of both its owner and the community.

Life in the Country Not a Matter of Choice at Camp Pontiac are minimal, sleeping quarters are in the "army barracks" style, the only phones are outside.

And, although the premise of the trustee camp system is based on the opportunity for prisoners to participate in work programs, in the winter activities are limited and inmates suffer from boredom and depression.

The latter may even be heightened at Camp Pontiac, which became an all female camp last summer, because so many of the inmates (Miller guessed almost all) are mothers separated from their children.

Heightened too by the fact that for many it was a desire to "provide" for their children that landed them in the prison system in the first place.

Shirley Olson, is the mother of three children who she says she couldn't support on ADC.

"Your children need something and you try to provide it. You couldn't see another way. ADC doesn't even pay for groceries."

No bars, barbed wire on watch tower at Camp Pontiac.
But there's no mistaking it for the Cote d'Azur.

mom in prison will affect the relationship between parent and child.

But the adjustment to life on the outside, when it does come, is a frightening prospect in any case.

Connie Gist says, "The people you associated with are not going to accept that you've changed."

Connie is thinking about moving to California.

Another inmate, Gwen Franklin, says that, she would like to go someplace else (rather than home) for awhile when she gets out "to build (herself) up stronger."

In other ways, prison life, they say, is going to help them to deal better with freedom.

Gist says, "Before...even though we had kids we didn't have any too much responsibility."

They think the camp's work regimen, which makes prisoners responsible for much of the upkeep at the facility and which provides them with "jobs" working for the DNR and the Department of Social Services, has helped "get them ready."

"The majority of the women here have learned self-denial," says Franklin. "We're more in tune with hard times."

Most, too, seem to think that if they had spent all their time in the Huron Valley, the women's maximum security prison in Brighton, they wouldn't be so optimistic about release.

There, the women have private rooms, maintain wardrobes, and carry on in many ways as if they weren't "convicts" at all.

"(Huron Valley) is just like the street," says Gist. "Except you're locked up."

There's no mistaking Camp Pontiac for the "street". Life there is pretty spartan.

It's more of an ante-room, with (at present) 58 women waiting to pass through the invisible gates to the outside and trying to keep from doing anything foolish in the meantime -- like exploring the Huron Swamp.

mike morrow's trivia

Living with a puppy or a kitten is only slightly easier to do than trying to stop a moving train by standing in front of it and makes about as much sense.

After all, would any of us invite a person to live with us if we knew ahead of time that the person was going to shred the curtains, go to the bathroom on the carpet, ruin the furniture and cover everything with a coating of hair? Not likely (unless you have kids that shed).

Yet for some reason, even though we know better, only the strongest willed (or the smartest) among us can resist the charms of a puppy or a kitten.

The first puppy I fell for was a cute, little, pink ball of fur with big soulful brown eyes. Years and a hundred pounds later (hers) she's still with me. They have been years of dental bills (hers), irate neighbors and ruined furniture. And as if she wasn't enough we picked up a sister for her along the way, a fat little dog we call the pig because of her love for garbage. If you put it in a Hefty bag this dog will eat it.

For a long time I was quite content with two dogs. Two dogs are more than enough pets for anyone in their right mind I always say which makes it even harder to explain why I just got a new cat.

The funny thing about this kitty was that she stayed little and cute just long enough to destroy all the furniture then she immediately grew up into a haughty animal that recoils in horror when we try to touch her. The only time she'll let anyone near is when she is in the mood to hurt someone. After she's done slicing you open she walks away with a very satisfied look on her face. For this I had to recover the couch I thought the last time I bandaged my wounds.

Now I think I've finally wised up. No more puppies or kittens. Three pets are more than enough for anyone in their right mind.

I'm going to keep saying that to myself as I feed the stray puppy who is standing outside my front door right now looking very lost and very cute.

Time is Right for Heating Repairs, Replacements and Alterations

February and March are traditionally the slower months for heating and cooling companies. Heating contractors, during these slower months, have a little more time to better serve their customers whether it be replacing that old furnace, cleaning and checking a good operating furnace, installing a vent damper, or installing that humidifier or electronic air cleaner the doctor prescribed for your health and comfort.

The price of equipment, parts and materials continue to increase at unbelievable rates. To hedge against inflation, call now for the best prices of the year on any of your heating needs before the busy season starts.

Wolves Almost Upset Central

by Dawson Bell

The Clarkston High School basketball Wolves almost pulled a giant killing on the giant killers last Tuesday, but came up just shy.

Pontiac Central, Oakland County's perennial powers, dropped the Wolves 59-49 on their own home court.

It marked the first Chief victory over Clarkston since 1979 and spoiled a chance for Clarkston to make some headlines by beating a team that had set down two state ranked class A squads in the preceding two weeks.

Pontiac Central was coming off a Sunday afternoon victory over the Pontiac Northern Huskies at the Silverdome and coach Ralph Grubb had worried that his team might be a little complacent.

As it turned out it wasn't so much a complacent Pontiac as a fired up Clarkston that made the score close.

The Wolves managed to stay within striking distance of the red-hot Chiefs through three and a half quarters. But in the end a 32 point, 11 of 22 shooting night for Central guard Kevin McAdoo was too much to overcome.

Overall PCH shot 50 percent from the floor and hit 15 of 17 from the line.

Although Clarkston's Scott McKoin dropped in 24 of his own, it wasn't enough.

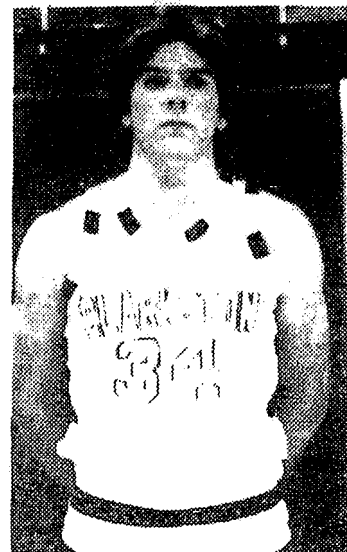

Senior forward, Brad Beattie, also scored in double figures for Clarkston with 13.

Clarkston's hustle may have been offset in part by the fact that another win for the Wolves would have made it three straight in head to head competition with Central, something very few teams in the state ever consider.

Wolves Win When It Counts Stay Tied for League Lead

The Wolves won in league play on Friday, handling Milford 50-39.

Combined with a Waterford Kettering loss

Brad Beattie (left) had an excellent week, scoring in double figures in both games.

Color Guard Places Second at Flushing

The Clarkston High School Winter Color Guard hosted their own Midwest Open Color Guard competition last Saturday at the high school.

And, if they hadn't been so gracious, would have walked off with first place honors.

As the host team, Clarkston was ineligible for trophy competition. But had they been eligible, judges scores would have placed them on the top of the heap.

On Sunday the guard traveled to Flushing where they placed 2nd among Class A Color Guards.

The next step on the winter tour is March 1 at the Winter Guard International, Rolling Meadows, Illinois.

to West Bloomfield, the win reduced the company Clarkston is keeping at the top of the league from four teams to three.

Gary Nustad's Wolves are now tied with Lake Orion and West Bloomfield for a share of the Greater Oakland Activities League lead at 6-3.

If they win at home on Friday against Rochester they are assured for a tie for the title with the winner of an Orion-West Bloomfield face off.

Scott McKoin again led the Wolves with 17 against Milford. The senior center/forward also snared 13 rebounds.

Brad Beattie contributed to the cause with 11, his fourth straight game in double figures. And sophomore, Ray Kubani, added

Sashabaw Junior High Boys Entertain Pre-School

The Sashabaw Junior High Boys Chorus performed for the Clarkston Pre-School on Wednesday, February 18th. Under the direction of Miss Jan Knapp the 7th through 9th grade boys entertained the pre-schoolers with selections such as "I've Got Two" from Sesame Street, Tom T. Hall's "Sneaky Snake" and a musical interpretation of "The Old Lady Who Swallowed a Fly".

This year's chorus includes seventh graders Richard Ashley, Curt Eckert, John Guadarrama, Robin Hull, Chet Jeffrey, Tom King, Scott Klingler, Charlie Moore, Forest Rose and John Worster. The eighth graders are Jerry Alley, Ron Barden, Carl Chupa, Barry Collins, Richard Dix, Phil Eddy, Mark Griffiths, Chuck Hill, Steve Kent, Tom Lawson, David Simpson, Tom Smith, Henry Vanderp, Bobby Williams, and John Wurm. The ninth graders include Steve Adcock, Mike Harnes, Tim Kirby and Jeff McIntock.

First: let me tell you what CHIROPRACTIC IS NOT!

Chiropractic is not the diagnosing or the treatment of disease:

Any disease In any way At any time

That's medicine – and chiropractic is not medicine

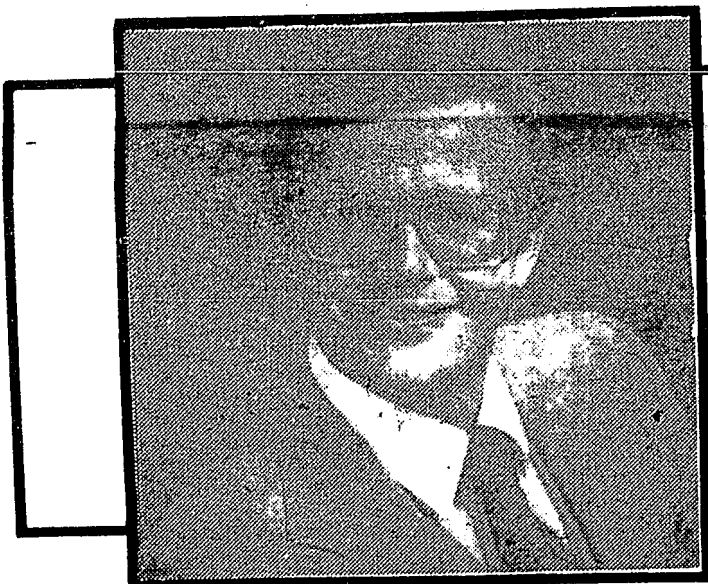

There are various types of medicine:

Spiritual: prayer, meditation, Christian Science

Natural: vitamins, herbs, acupuncture, exercise, diet

Artificial: drugs, surgery

Whatever value you place on any of these you must know they are not chiropractic!

To fully understand what chiropractic is,
one must understand what chiropractic is NOT:

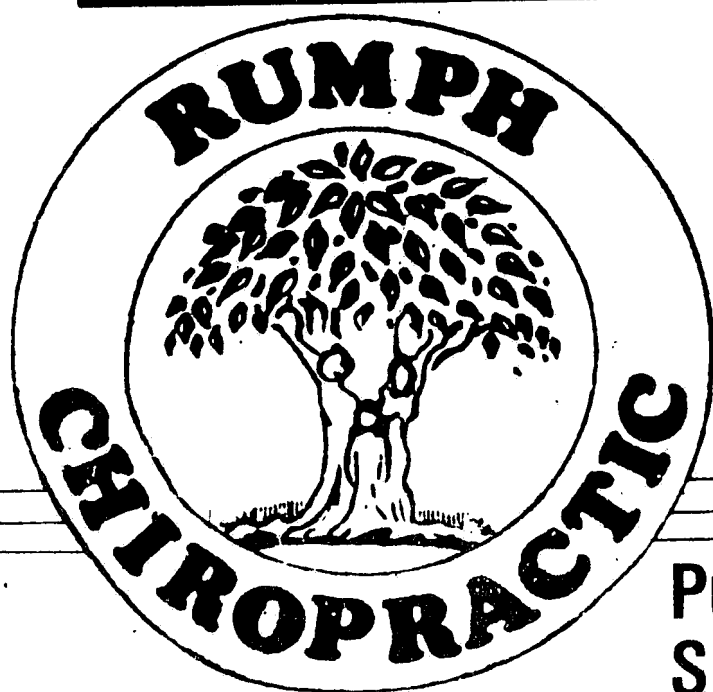

Chiropractic is not the diagnosis or the treatment of disease, in any way or at any time. Why? Simply because the treatment of disease is medicine, and Chiropractic is not medicine.

There are various types of medicine and healing available to you. There is spiritual medicine or spiritual healing which includes prayer, meditation, Christian Science and things of that nature. There is natural medicine, or natural healing which includes the use of vitamins, herbs, acupuncture, exercise and diet. Then there is artificial medicine, or artificial healing, which is familiar to all of us. This involves the use of drugs and surgery as practiced by the general practitioner, the obstetrician, the psychiatrist and other medical physicians.

Whatever value you place on any of these,
you must know that they are not chiropractic.
Chiropractic is something else, totally completely something else.
