Centennial Speculation

Did Nathan Hall Kill His Wife?

DR. NATHAN C. HALL.

MRS. ANNA HALL.

by Dawson Bell

In contrast to much of the research that goes into the formation of a historical account of the mundane events of life and death in a pioneer town like Davisburg or Clarkston, there is no dearth of material on the case of Dr. Nathan Hall.

The newspapers of the period (1880-82) are full of trial transcripts, sensational accounts of new developments, and ample speculation. The Pontiac Gazette, following the close of the trial, published a folio edition of the arguments for and against Dr. Hall. And a limited edition book form account was published in Pontiac and circulated throughout the county.

The problem, instead, is in organizing the material into some semblance of fact. Unfortunately, the nature of the case and the contemporary sources that deal with it are not congenial to the task.

A few circumstances seem clear -- Dr. Hall

(Editor's Note: This newspaper, in the normal course of events and especially in its regular supplement, Davisburg-Springfield Monthly, has been in the practice of publishing articles pertaining to the general history of the area. Famous people, events, historic buildings and the like have all been featured. And we hope they have been of some interest to our readership.

Most, however, have been completely free of controversy.

Such is not the case with an epoch in the history of Davisburg which reporter Dawson Bell came across in the process of researching an almost entirely unrelated matter.

What follows is a contemporary look at the strange case of Dr. Nathan C. Hall, a practicing Davisburg physician in the 1870's, accused and convicted of murdering his wife by the administration of poison.)

The Hall Murder

and his wife Anna Hall nee Clough were residents of some standing in the farming community of Davisburg in the 1870's.

Mrs. Hall died after an illness of two weeks in the spring of 1880. She had been under the care of her husband and two other physicians, but her death was attributed to "unknown" causes.

Following her death, Dr. Hall became the subject of some suspicion. Rumors were circulated that he had done away with his wife in order to pursue an amorous affair with one Sarah M. Murgittroyd.

Under pressure from the community, the Oakland County Prosecutor's Office investigated the circumstances of Mrs. Hall's death. And Dr. Hall responded by having his wife's body exhumed from where it lay in the Davisburg cemetery and had the viscera examined by a chemist.

No traces of poison were found, but suspicion continued and even increased when it was alleged that Dr. Hall had purchased a stomach from a doctor in Detroit at the same time his wife's remains were being examined. In October, Nathan Hall was arrested for the suspected murder of his wife and released on bond.

When the grave was once again investigated Anna Hall's body had been removed. Dr. Hall was tried and acquitted on a hung jury when no scientific evidence could be produced that his wife had indeed been poisoned.

Weeks later, on 30 June 1881, Anna Hall's decomposing body was found buried under a straw stack in a field on the Davis farm, now the Springfield Oaks golf course. The nightgown she wore bore the inscription, S.M. Murgittroyd.

"The body had been doubled up so that the head rested between the knees, and thrust into an old salt barrel, with the feet and limbs protruding a few inches from the open end of the barrel. They got the body in that position and forced it into the barrel, the back bone had been broken." (from Hall Murder Trial)

The clamor for Dr. Hall's neck increased to fever pitch and he was ordered to stand for a new trial. Public interest in the case was so exaggerated that 184 potential jurors were ruled ineligible before the trial could commence.

Additional evidence in the second trial included a new series of examinations on Mrs. Hall's remains to establish the presence of poison and a witness who testified that Dr. Hall had confessed everything to him while the two were incarcerated in Oakland County Jail.

Nathan Hall was convicted in this second trial and sentenced to serve natural life imprisonment at hard labor in Jackson State Prison.

According to one account, the State Supreme Court later ruled the testimony of Dr. Hall's fellow prisoner was inadmissible and overturned the conviction.

That account also said, however, that he was tried a third time (with an apparent disregard for the concept of double -- triple?? -- jeopardy) and again convicted.

It was said he then served five years at Jackson, moved west, died and returned to be buried in the same (Davisburg) cemetery where his wife had once lain.

Except for Hall's third trial those bare outlines seem to be fairly well established. They are enumerated in almost every account, in the volumes of court testimony the Gazette and its competitor, the Pontiac Weekly Bill Poster, printed, and in the curious little volume, "The Hall Murder Trial".

But most of the other facts are blurred by discrepancies from one source to another and distorted by the florid, but one suspects not particularly veracious style of the day.

"The Hall Murder Trial", for instance, is introduced as "a simple narrative of facts..." Three paragraphs later, speaking of Nathan Hall, the author says the crime "had its inception, growth, fruition and final consummation in a moral nature tainted with evil."

Nowhere, except in the trial summaries of his attorneys, is the doctor depicted in a favorable light.

His foul deeds, though given full credence, are evidenced by a tenuous string of circumstances. His adulterous relationship with Mrs. Murgittroyd, treated as common knowledge, is vaguely established at best. And how he managed to arouse the huge wrath of public opinion, which seems to have contributed most to the ultimate conviction, can only be guessed at.

From the transcripts of the trial it is certain Dr. Hall was not well loved by his mother-in-law, Mrs. Eleanor Clough.

The Mistress
Mrs. Sarah M. Murgittroyd

She presents as evidence against her daughter's husband the alarming revelation that, when she had visited in the summer previous to Anna's death, Mrs. Murgittroyd, a house guest, had been seen by her in the Hall's bedroom (Dr. and Mrs. present) "having a jolly good time, laughing and talking to the defendant."

And, worse, when Mrs. Murgittroyd was leaving the house to return to her own home Mrs. Clough heard him tell her to come again in a "soft and tender voice". She did deny at trial that she told someone he had also tried to poison her with a tainted pear immediately following Anna's death.

But there were many others who testified against Nathan Hall; often with similar innuendo. Former friends, neighbors, acquaintances - everyone seemed to have some damning information. One part of the transcript printed in the Weekly Bill Poster indicates there was a society formed in Davisburg for the sole purpose of "prosecuting and detecting" Hall.

No one but his young sister testified for the defense and Sumner Howard, Hall's attorney, closed his final address to the jury with, "Let us all pray to be saved from the jealousies and suspicions of such a neighborhood as Davisburg."

Hall, for his part, seems to have done little to quiet those suspicions. His behavior, even in its most favorable light, is somewhat inexplicable.

He does seem to have been obsessed with establishing the nature of his wife's death, blaming it on tainted ham, maple syrup, "paris green" potatoes and actually initiating the first exhumation himself.

Some of his alleged actions, in relation to Mrs. Murgittroyd, are suspect. Anna Hall was buried, for whatever reason, in Sarah Murgittroyd's nightgown. One witness claimed Hall had bragged to him of her seduction. And another said he had overheard a conversation in which Mrs. Murgittroyd had asked if the doctor thought anyone would be able to detect the poison in his wife's system.

In "The Hall Murder Trial" the suspect is on the months following his wife's death, to have lived the classic life of the guilty conscience.

"His conversation was ever upon poison. The subject of poison filled his mind during the day, and his dreams during the night. Uneasy, restless, wretched he went...from place to place, talking of poison."

In fact, it is a wonder there is any dispute on this question at all. Whether Dr. Hall poisoned his wife maliciously or not, the treatment she received makes one wonder how anyone ever got better in the nineteenth century.

Accused of murdering his wife by the steady administration of arsenic in minute doses, the doctor admits to having treated her for over a year with something called "Fowler's Solution", which contained arsenic. One of Anna Hall's consulting doctors is reported to have remarked that the dosage she had been receiving from him was "moderate".

And, in the course of her two week illness, Anna Hall was also prescribed sulphuric acid, ammonia, atropia (another poison), sulphuric ether and morphine (which she, no doubt, needed).

Yet even in the second analysis of Mrs. Hall's remains, conducted by several doctors and chemists, there was significant evidence to indicate that she had not been poisoned to death.

The prosecution's main witness, a man allegedly hired by Hall to dig up the body and bury it under the straw stack, refused to testify.

And his conviction in the second trial was ultimately won on the testimony of one John Hickey, a bank robber - "one of the shrewdest and most dangerous of (his) profession" - who told the court Hall had given him a full account, while in "sleep-walking trance", of how he had poisoned his wife and mistreated her remains.

As the author of "The Hall Murder Trial" says, it was "unfortunate" that the prosecution had to rely on Hickey's testimony.

REACT Helps CB'ers

If your Citizen Band Radio License was issued in 1976, you should be planning to renew your license. Richard Olsen, President of the local Oakland County REACT Team reminds CB operators that the FCC issues these licenses for a term of five years. Unlike your state driver's license, the Federal Communications Commission does not send you a notice of expiration with the renewal form.

The Oakland County REACT Team is one of 1,300 local volunteer groups affiliated with REACT International, Inc. and dedicated to public service and emergency communications on Citizen Band Radio.

Olsen stated, "At this time, no fee is required to renew your license. REACT and other interested CB operators are hoping to encourage the federal government to restore fees on CB radios and other licenses to permit the FCC to have adequate funds so they can send renewal notices, enforce CB rules, and improve the service for everyone."

For more information and your license application, contact Oakland County REACT at 5640 Williams Lake Road, Drayton Plains, MI 48020...673-9683.

WHY MAKE FUNERAL PLANS NOW

With the fast pace of today's world it is hard for some people to deal seriously with funeral pre-arrangement. We set aside the question of death by saying "all life is uncertain".

There is a kind of panic that pushes people from one day into the next. The busy round of activities, trying to pay bills, trying to raise kids, worrying about job security, all are features of an environment that resists planning. There's almost no time to plan!

But, death, being certain, demands a time for planning. We know it is coming. To think about death is to think about certainties. Some of the "uncertainty of life" can be relieved by making funeral arrangements in advance. For instance:

1. Pre-planning allows you the freedom to have your wishes carried out.
2. You can achieve peace of mind through pre-planning by knowing that your family won't have to worry about it later.

Because we understand the importance of pre-planning, we are glad to answer any questions about funeral pre-arrangement you may have. Contact us anytime.

Local Senator Has Eyes on Governor's Seat

by Dawson Bell

Kerry Kammer, State Senator (D-Springfield), drove his family down Main Street in Clarkston last Saturday in the 4th of July parade. He did the usual amount of waving and gladhanding, required of a public figure. The sign on his auto said, simply, State Senator Kerry Kammer.

But this time next year, Kammer will probably be changing that sign to -- Kerry Kammer Democrat for Governor.

The ex-city clerk from Pontiac and two term legislator is slowly but surely gearing up for a race on the office William Milliken has held for 15 years and most political observers feel can continue to hold for just about as long as he feels like.

Kammer is undaunted.

"I feel like the executive has let the State of Michigan down," he says, "and I can impact on the problems that face us more significantly as Governor than I can as a Senator."

The major problems facing the State, as Kammer sees it, are the economy, education and an inequitable tax structure.

He says Michigan has been woefully neglect in anticipating and reacting to economic problems. The state has become to dependent on automobile production and fostered an economic climate that is hard on everyone.

"We need to make the State a less volatile place to do business," he says.

In education, the longtime advocate of increased funding for schools, says the Governor has been a devastatingly negative force.

"The Governor is the one who draws up the budget. And, in three years his recommended allocations for education have gone from $911,000,000 to $580,000,000," says Kammer.

"We (the legislature, where Kammer chairs the Senate Finance Committee) have fought back; now we have $602,000,000 for

SIMPLE TESTS TO DETECT BACK PROBLEMS IN YOUR CHILDREN

"As a twig is bent, so grows the tree" could also read, "As the child's back is bent, so grows the adult." A surprising number of back problems that show up in later life can be traced back to childhood accidents. Falls, twists, jars, any number of things. This folder describes four easy checks of a child's posture that any parent can make to discover potential back problems early. If any are present, a professional examination is recommended.

1. SHOULDER CHECK

Have child stand straight. Both shoulders should be level. One shoulder high is an indication of problems.

2. HEM CHECK

Check a daughter's skirt hem to see if it hangs crooked—or if every new skirt purchased has to be altered on just one side.

3. BENDING CHECK

Have child bend straight forward from the waist, head level with the back and arms hanging relaxed to the floor. Check on either side of the spine to see if the muscles "bunch" up (one sign of scoliosis—curvature of the spine).

4. SHOE CHECK

Children wear out shoes in a hurry. This is expected. But if one shoe wears out well ahead of the other—especially if the wear is centered on the edge of the shoe—the possibility of spinal problems exists.

Kammer Gears Up for '82 Governor's Race

education. But it's a losing battle."

At the same time, Kammer says the times don't warrant expectations of large scale largess in any sector. He expects the legislature to enact a property tax relief that will be a "straight-forward, across the board tax cut" sometime fairly soon.

Although a supporter of increased funding for schools, he says the most important consideration presently is simply making both ends meet. "What we're going to have to learn how to do is to live within our means. We've got to adjust expenditures to meet revenues, rather than the other way around."

Kammer's not likely to arouse much opposition making statements like that; but what kind of support does he think he has?

At this stage of the game, he points out no one except the Governor is going to have much in the way of statewide name recognition. But that, he says, is what campaigns are for.

By primary time in August of '82 the Senator says he expects to have spent a minimum of $500,000 in campaign advertising. Money, he says, that can be largely generated here in his own district and supplemented with state matching funds.

Kammer says he has broad support locally and expects his advocacy of education will earn him votes across the state.

He says he has backing from conservation and sportsmen's groups for his stands on environmental issues. And, with a little party support and an appeal to the independent voter (who the Senator says he is probably closer to than most Democrats), he hopes an early concern about a young and fairly obscure Senator getting in over his head will be dissipated.

State Senator Kerry Kammer waves to his constituents along the parade route in Clarkston last Saturday. The rest of the family, wife Carole, 18-month-old daughter Nora, 3-year-old Claire (also waving), and 6-year-old son Shea (greeting parade watchers on the other side of the street) helped Clarkston's aspiring politician spread the good cheer.

In the immediate area Kammer is probably best known for his outspoken opposition to the proposed Levy Company gravel mine. He says he has "encouraged" his friends in the State Department of Natural Resources (DNR) to deny permits for the mine, which he views as definitely not "the best and highest use of the land."

Another use that he has worked hard for is the acquisition of more than 100 acres of that property by the so-called Kammer Land Trust, a fund set up by the legislature to buy and preserve highly valued wildlands with money from oil and gas royalties.

Facade Improvements Important Step for Revitalized Davisburg

This week's Reminder unveils facade improvements suggested by Oakland County planners for downtown Davisburg.

They are ambitious improvements, both in the number of changes and in the cost of the project. On the other hand, the improvements are worth a second look.

For, despite the obvious potential, the quaint hamlet of Davisburg has, the past several years shown a decline as both a commercial and population center.

The Village, despite its obvious charm, is presently in a state of disrepair. Some shops are empty, and others could use widespread cosmetic improvements.

It was a giant step forward when the Springfield Township Board commissioned the County to do the study. For a cost of $200, they received an exceptional study, something that could cost upwards to $10,000 if a private firm were to have done it.

Thus it is now important to keep the momentum going. Most of the suggestions in the study should be reviewed. A township committee should be appointed to make recommendations, and the federal government should be solicited for funding.

Davisburg is much too valuable for its citizens to allow it to become a "ghost town". Now is the time to put that "gigantic step" forward in an effort to bring Davisburg back to the bustling commercial center it once was.

Also this week Dawson Bell chats with State Senator Kerry Kammer, an announced candidate for the Governor of Michigan. Senator Kammer, who has proven to be a highly successful legislator, is a resident of Springfield Township.

What might develop, if everything were to fall into place, is a governor's race that features Kammer and another local resident, L. Brooks Patterson, who is currently conducting a statewide poll to see if a Patterson candidacy would be viable.

If that were to happen Reminder readers would have the unique opportunity to vote for not only one, but two candidates, not only from the same county, but the same hometown.

The chances of that happening are farfetched. But don't sell Kammer or Patterson, short. As Bell's interview indicates, Kammer's candidacy is not a "fly by night" operation. He has considerable support and will be most likely in the thick of the primary race come next year. Patterson, if he decides to run, will be there too.

Terrible Injustice Done to Dungeons and Dragons Players

Dear Editor:

I would like to voice the opinion of a large group of local Dungeons and Dragons players. We feel that a great injustice is being done to this game. Lately, some people have begun degrading Dungeons and Dragons, as well as its players. Some even went as far as to call us players "Devil worshippers". I disagree with this as much as anyone else who understands the game. The key is, those who don't understand the game are those who are against it.

The game is not a cult, as some people would like you to believe. It's just plain fun to play. So naturally, those who try it usually enjoy it and continue playing. It does nothing but benefit the individual who plays it. Not only does it give the individual an imagination (something that television has almost eliminated in our society), but it also keeps the mind very active and (not to mention keeping us off the streets) it has many other advantages which are too numerous to count.

The point I'm trying to make is: Why should someone who doesn't even understand the concept of the game try to condemn it? It's like convicting a man before reading the charges, it simply shouldn't happen.

Speaking on behalf of my fellow players, I hope that in the future, people will try to understand the concept before condemning the idea as evil. This goes for any issue, as well as Dungeons and Dragons.

Sincerely,
Ted Strobenn

mike morrow's trivia

by Mike Morrow

My next door neighbor asked me yesterday why I never haul any garbage out to the curb to be collected. "It's quite simple actually," I told him. "After I fill up my garbage cans I take them into the garage, dump them all over the floor and have a garage sale. Within two hours all the junk is gone and I am at least twenty dollars richer."

Needless to say he didn't believe me so to prove my point I invited him over the next day to see for himself.

The crowds started collecting about six in the morning. By seven when it started they were lined up six deep, banging on the garage door. One poor woman at the front of the line was pushed against the door so hard that when I opened it she went up with it and was never heard from again.

My neighbor was amazed and somewhat frightened as he huddled in the garage. "OK," he admitted. "You got the crowd here but once they see that you're selling your garbage they'll leave." "Not true," I said. "They don't care what you're selling. If it has a price tag on it they'll buy it. I found out a couple of years ago when some joker put a garage sale sign in my yard during the night. When I woke up there were three hundred people at my front door. I sold my mailbox, geraniums and my screens in the first five minutes."

Promptly at seven I threw the door open and took my place behind my cigar box cash register.

The whole event took less than an hour. In that time I'm sure my neighbor saw things he never dreamed of, like the two women circling the same garden rake, growling with teeth bared seeing who was the strongest and would walk with the rake (which was broken in the first place). Or the man who lost his balance and fell into the crowd. He called for help for ten minutes but his cries went unanswered until someone noticed he was lying on a torn piece of garden hose for sale.

After the dust had cleared and the crowds had moved on to strip another garage I counted the day's take. "$37.50," I said. "Not bad, but it's nothing compared to the bucks I'm going to make from my book about garage sales called 'Garage Sale, The Trash Can Lined with Gold'."

Planners Give Davisburg A New Look

by Dawson Bell

Davisburg, according to a Facade Improvement Study recently completed by the Oakland County Planning Division, lies in an "attractive setting with well defined entrances". Unfortunately, the study goes on to point out, those entrances presently provide access to a town where there is "very slow, possibly regressive economic growth" and the "lack of even the most basic service retailers."

What the planning division suggested, in a presentation of their plan to an audience of Davisburg property owners, is a renovation of the downtown "core" area designed to "bring out the turn-of-the-century quality" it once had.

Planning head Phil Dondero and two division architects, John Morgan and Kent Smith, outlined the basic elements of their eight month long study at the meeting held in the Springfield Township Hall on Monday, June 29.

The study was commissioned at the request of Township Supervisor, Collin Walls, who strongly emphasized it was not mandatory and required no immediate action.

"We believe it can be done on a voluntary basis," he said. "It may take a little more time...but, (with this plan) we can start thinking about it."

What the county planners have come up with, in the words of John Morgan, is a "nuts and bolts" approach to the reinvigoration of the downtown Davisburg area.

Morgan said in his opinion the most serious obstacles that would have to be overcome in an effective restoration project were (pedestrian and auto) and utilities.

The absence of sidewalks and haphazard parking presently constituted a deterrent to pedestrian access and comfort, he said. To alleviate that condition Morgan suggested a parallel parking-only plan for Broadway

"Keep that great GM feeling with genuine GM Parts"

The facelift recommended for downtown Davisburg (above) by the Oakland County Planning Division through the business district and the construction of brick, pedestrian walkways defined by street lamp posts, bollards and plantings.

It is also his feeling that the utility lines would, at some point, have to go underground if development of a viable and aesthetically pleasing shopping district were to be established.

Morgan admitted those kinds of improvements would take time and, more importantly, money. "But," he said, "it's like anything else; you've got to spend a little to make a little."

To complement the street remodeling, the county plan detailed exterior improvements for Davisburg's historic, but in some cases, deteriorating buildings.

Individual site recommendations varied, from the complete renovation of the Davisburg House (the Walls Real Estate/Wells, McCann, Kirk Agency building) to the moderate cosmetic changes and maintenance suggested for the Candle Factory.

Although the county plan included specific, detailed recommendations -- even to the positioning of TV antennas -- both Morgan and Kent Smith described it as "one place to start" in the process. They said real construction plans should be based on professional advice and that other engineers and architects might have different ideas of equal merit.

Morgan said the study was intended to provide Davisburg and Springfield Township with professional consulting services they might not otherwise be able to afford. Cost to the township for the county study was $230 in film processing fees. Independently commissioned, Supervisor Walls said it would have cost $10,000.

Dondero also said his department would be available in the future to advise and direct interested parties on the implementation of improvements.

The plan's reception from the Davisburg merchant community was, in general, favorable.

Charlie Moor, owner of the building on the southside of Broadway at the corner of Andersonville, was skeptical however. He said

Local Geology Student Honored

Thomas Bullard, son of Rockwood and Marietta Bullard, 6745 Park Lake Drive, Clarkston, was the recipient this past spring of two prestigious awards from the graduate school in geology at the University of New Mexico at Albuquerque.

Bullard, a second year student in the masters program, was named the school's "Outstanding Graduate Field Geologist", an award presented by the Estwing Corporation, a manufacturer of mining tools. He was also selected for recognition as UNM's 1981 Vincent Kelly award for accomplishments in field geology. Kelly is the geology department's professor emeritus.

Tom Bullard is a 1968 graduate of Clarkston High School and holds a degree in anthropology from Colorado College in Colorado Spring, Colorado.

Since graduation he has worked for the United States Geological Survey in several western states and on archaeological digs in Alaska.

He entered the graduate school of geology at UNM in 1980 and has been involved in surveys conducted by the university at various mining sites in northwestern New Mexico.

Recently, the work has involved assessing the impact of open pit uranium mining in the San Juan River watershed.

Say You Saw It in The Reminder

the improvements might look nice but they also looked to him like "dollar signs".

Referring to Morgan's remark that there was no place to sit down in downtown Davisburg (and therefore little opportunity for shoppers to linger in leisure in the business district), Moor said, "If they want to rest, they can go down to the beach and lay down."

Walls was also skeptical, although not on the same issues. He said progress on the county's ambitious concept would be "very slow". In addition to the monetary restraints which he hoped might be partially offset with federal grants, he said the township must deal with a basic impediment to downtown development, wastewater disposal.

An engineering study commissioned by the township board on that subject is near completion and will be presented to the board this week.

At present, the lowlying area around Davisburg is nearly at its water and septic absorption capacity.

But Walls promised to maintain the momentum that had been established by the county in drawing up the initial plan.

He said he was looking at some options on the role the township might be able to play in fostering the development of some aspects of the plan, including the possibility of tax abatement on business construction and applying for federal monies under the block grant program.

He expected the study to be an agenda item at the township board level some time in the near future.

Job Training, Good Benefits Attract Recruits

by Dawson Bell

If you see a strange man hanging around the Deer Lake Beach this summer in Army drill and black patent leather shoes don't be deceived. He is not a refugee from the Clinton Valley Center; he's First Sergeant James Strong of the U.S. Army Recruiting Station in Waterford and it's not rays he is seeking but recruits.

Sergeant Strong, along with Sergeant Dennis Christopher, says if you're going to succeed in drawing youth off the streets and into the Army you have to talk to kids, and kids don't hang out around the Army's inconspicuous three-room office on Dixie Highway.

Actually the Army's two recruiters for northwest Oakland County don't consider the summer and its glorious, youthful allure of irresponsibility a prime time for their business anyway.

"We do most of our work during the school year, sending out letters, visiting high schools, making phone calls. Most of our recruits sign up in the winter and spring for fall enlistment," says Strong.

And business, according to the Sergeant, is good.

"Kids are a lot more open to the military than they were five years ago," he says. "There is less antagonism...and the benefits have improved."

The pitch from Strong or Christopher can be attractive. The military may spend billions on planes and missiles, but they also spend a lot on people.

Although base pay, the rate which enlistees receive for the first six months or so of service, remains low -- $501.30 per month -- the pre-requisites, room and board, hospitalization, 30 days of vacation for every year enlistment, are substantial.

And Strong says the pay is going up. In addition, recruits who qualify for certain programs and under certain conditions can receive a $5,000 enlistment bonus and earn $14,000 in college tuition upon discharge.

The basic incentive, he says, is secure employment and preparation for the future. The army offers a contractual "guarantee" the recruit will be placed in the field for which he or she signs up.

"We can find something (in the Army) to suit the needs of anyone who comes in here," he says. "We're trying to fill the needs of the Army but we want to help the community too."

So, how is the volunteer Army working? Is America ready for war or capable of maintaining peace?

That, according to Strong and Christopher, is not their area of expertise. "We're soldiers, not strategists," says Sergeant Christopher.

They are, however, confident the recruits they send out to Fort Dix and the like are capable individuals.

"When someone 10,000 miles from here on an Army base gets in trouble it makes the front page, six columns with a picture. The same thing might happen ten times on any Saturday night in Pontiac and it gets buried," says Christopher.

Strong was in the Green Berets in Germany, and, from his perspective then, there wasn't any question about preparedness.

But the overall picture is something they worry about in the Pentagon; at the recruiting station the task is straightforward -- get 'em signed up.

Strong and Christopher are, after all, soldiers. When asked if Ronald Reagan was better for the Army than Jimmy Carter, Strong replies, "I've got to wait and see my next pay raise."

Fire Contract Talks "Close"

Contract talks between Independence Township firefighters and town hall may end up in arbitration if a "final offer" from firemen/negotiators, Gar Wilson and Mike Fahrner, is rejected. The township board was expected to discuss the offer at their Tuesday, July 7, meeting.

The township's eight-man department has been working without a contract since April 1.

Negotiations have continued intermittently between representatives of the International Association of Firefighters and a township team made up of Supervisor James Smith and Clerk Chris Rose.

But Wilson said last week he thought the talks were just about finished. "I would say it's close," he said. "But if they don't go with this (our latest offer), we'll probably go to arbitration."

Supervisor Smith did not necessarily agree with that assessment.

"We have arrived at a point in the discussions where we have had a tentative meeting of minds. But then they made some additional demands which may or may not be acceptable."

He said he could not predict how the board would react to the latest proposal.

Smith said it has been recognized that budgetary constraints will not allow for the immediate reopening of fire station No. 2 at Sashabaw and Clarkston Roads, which had been an early goal of the firefighters. The primary issues that remain concern monetary considerations for the fireman already on active duty.

"All I can say is we gotta keep up with the cost of living," said Wilson.

Get in the Swim at Doten Pools

Michigan is graced with an abundance of lakes and streams that each year relieve the summertime misery of heat and humidity for thousands of the state's residents.

Unfortunately not all of us live on or near one. For those who don't there is a new business in Springfield Township designed to ease the pain.

Begun last spring and now in full swing, Doten Pools Company, offers an alternative to the crowded beach -- your own backyard in or above ground swimming hole.

Ben Doten, owner of Doten Pools, has been in the swimming pool business as a licensed installer for the past fifteen years, first in Canada and then in Madison Heights, Michigan.

Doten Pools offers installation and maintenance services on nearly every kind of swimming pool, spas, filters and a whole line of pool accessories.

Doten says he has been in business long enough to know that quality and customer satisfaction come first. "We will try to maintain a top quality business in service and equipment," he says. "We try to be honest with our customers and give them the best information available."

Doten Pools is located at 10645 Dixie Highway, at the corner of Holly Road, in Davisburg. Open daily 10-5, Saturday 9-6, and Sunday 12-5.

Food Town Adds to Oxford Supermarket

The twelve-year-old Oxford Food Town supermarket is undergoing a thorough remodeling this summer with the work expected to be finished by September, according to the owner of the Clarkston based supermarket chain, Edward Adler.

The present store's 18,000 square feet will be expanded to 27,000 square feet allowing for the introduction of a delicatessen, expanded meat and produce sections, and additional grocery space. The store will also add to its number of service and checkout counters.

Food Town operates five supermarkets in Oakland County, Clarkston's Sashabaw Road location, Highland, Hartland, Rochester, and the Oxford store at 999 Lapeer Road on the corner of Draher Road.
