Is Wetlands Ordinance Working?

Since 1973 Independence Township wetlands have been protected, at least in theory.

by Dawson Bell

According to its Planning and Building Department head. Ken Delbridge, Independence Township has "one of the toughest wetlands protection ordinances around.'

Under the terms of the ordinance, wetlands are defined as any area of poorly drained soils where water stands all year or where the water table is near the surface. Further, it includes lands which carry water to subsurface reserves or self-contained reservoirs.

Any property in or within 25 feet of a wetlands or watercourse of two or more acres, as defined by the township's Wet Land Ordinance Map, is protected by law.

The range of prohibited activities is also inclusive. In order to remove or deposit materials, change a shoreline, operate a marina, construct or remove a structure, lay a drain, treat wastewater, even irrigate a lawn from waters included on the map, one must pull a permit from the township.

Yet, since 1973 when Ordinance Number 67 for Wetlands and Watercourse Protection was adopted, an application to work in a designated wetlands area has never been denied.

It isn't a situation that alarms Ken Delbridge. He says developers know about the ordinance and design their plans accordingly. And if they don't know about it he tells them before they bother applying for a permit. But at least one township board member, Larence Kozma, does not share Delbridge's assurance.

And in recent board meetings he has been outspokenly critical of the way the ordinance is being applied to township policy. He says flatly, "The wetlands ordinance is designed to preserve wetlands...period."

In Kozma's view the ordinance is a 'prohibitive" ordinance, i.e., intended to disallow any work in a wetlands area except under very special and clearly defined circumstances.

But, he says, township management hasn't adequately supported that interpretation.

Delbridge's predecessor (Tim Palulian, who left the post in May) didn't view

SAYYOU SAW IT IN THE REMINDER THURSDAY, JULY 23, 1981 PAGE THREE CONTROL OF CHIRD PRACTIC The NOW OPEN!

The Cowan Family - John, Linda and sons Jeremy and Jason.

It must come as no great surprise to those who are regular visitors to Dr. John Cowan's Greater Pontiac Life Center, at 3125 West Walton Boulevard, that something big was in the air. This is especially true of those who have noticed the color photographs on the wall, showing the progress being made on the clinic's new facility, located at 1-75 and Sashabaw, in Clarkston.

The air of anticipation was evident in the staff, and has been growing to an almost unbearable peak in the past few weeks. And now the time has come to announce that Dr. Cowan's longtime dream has become a reality. The new Cowan Chiropractic Clinic opened its doors for business on Monday, July 20.

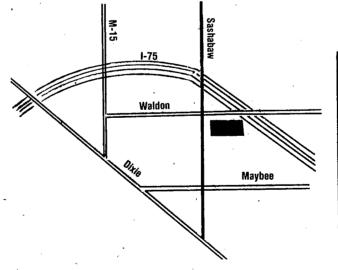

The very contemporary 4,200 square foot facility, twice as large as the Walton Boulevard facility, has two waiting rooms, four treatment rooms, two examination rooms, two X-ray rooms, a lecture hall, a large consultation room, and a special "Acute Care" section. The business section of the office has a fully computerized insurance department, and a large staff room, which houses the offices for the office manager, Dr. Cowan, and his three associate doctors.

The building has been designed to be energy-efficient, and will use less energy to heat and cool than a normal building half its size. Special features include electrostatic heating and cooling, which permits the continual introduction and circulation of fresh, clean air from the outside throughout the interior of the building. They also include toned-down fluorescent lighting that is easy on the eyes, and customized, color-coordinated interior decor designed for patient comfort.

As noted above, the new facility, due to its expanded floor space, has a separate section for the treatment of acute or emergency patients, such as those who have been involved in work-related injury, falls, or automobile accidents. There is also a special section for new patients who, having been treated elsewhere for such chronic conditions as headaches or other nerve-related health problems, are visiting Dr. Cowan for the first time.

Another new department of particular significance in today's advanced approach to health care, is one specifically geared for the consideration of matters pertaining to nutrition. The nutritional needs of a patient will be carefully analyzed. Specific guidelines that will best serve the patient's good health will be determined, and strict adherence to them advised. In addition, spinal exercise classes and lectures on healthy living will be offered weekly in the facility's lecture hall.

In line with Dr. Cowan's continuing policy, the new office will continue to be staffed by highly skilled, expertly trained professionals, dedicated to offering his patients the most advanced and meticulous health care available.

Bring the whole family to our weekly health lectures Wednesdays 7:30 p.m.

County, Bavarian Owner Discuss Sewer

Dinnan Thinks Agreement Possible

by Dawson Bell

A happy resolution to the Bavarian Village wastewater treatment plant quandry seemed more likely last week as the project's developers huddled among themselves and with Oakland County officials to try and come up with an ownership assumption plan for the county.

Both Donald Ringler, manager of sewer, water and solid waste for Oakland County, and Bavarian developer William Dinnan say they are optimistic an agreement can be reached within 60 to 90 days.

If the deal goes through, that is, if a plan is worked out and adopted by the County Board

Commissioners, it appears that Springfield Township will have averted the legal battle that was predicted over the township electors decision to turn down a Springfield ownership plan. It would also pave the way for the resumption of sale and occupancy of 57 empty condominium units at Bavarian Village and the construction of 112 additional units.

The development has been on hold since the fall of 1979 when the State Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and the Department of Commerce ruled municipal ownership of the wastewater treatment facilities must be established prior to further occupancy.

Arrangements were made for Springfield . Township to become that municipality, although Dinnan now says that effort was dictated by the County and the DNR. And that he has felt, since 1977, the county really should have been the responsible party.

Dinnan says it has been his understanding from the outset that the county was to be responsible for, and ultimately the owner of, the system. And they have, in fact, supervised its operation since 1976. Despite Dinnan's assumptions and indications from Oakland County DPW that they would accept ownership, however, deeds to that effect were not voted on by the county commissioners and never recorded.

Subsequently, the county took the position that the executive form of government would not allow them to become the municipality of record. Ringler says he now feels there may be "some way around" that stricture.

Although not all of the obstacles have been removed.

"Obviously, the county has got to protect itself. This situation was created by necessity, not by any desire on the county's part to own the system."

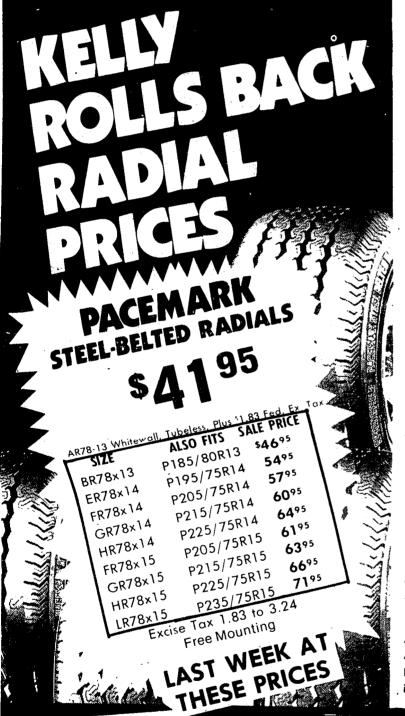

He says the major hangups would be in establishing sufficient reserve funds to pay for the operation and maintenance of the system. The developers, by the same token, don't want the liability of property ownership in the complex to be so steep that the condominiums are priced out of the market.

Dinnan says he could have the empty units ready for occupancy in a few weeks if the matter is resolved. And he is still holding deposits for 22 condominiums that were placed in 1978.

Dinnan certainly wants to move on the plan. The delays have forced his corporation, Softwater Lake Development into Chapter 11 bankruptcy reorganization. He says the reorganization plan hinges on the sale of the sewer and water system, and that he loses $20,000 for every month spent in waiting.

"We feel we have a project that has all the ingredients of success." he says. "But the only way it is going to become an asset to the community is to have people living in it."

Dinnan says he expects to be able to submit a document to county officials this week spelling out the terms of a county ownership agreement. If it meets approval there, it will then go on to the Board of Commissioners for ratification. Dinnan says the vote is likely to come in August.

WIDOWS ARE EASY PREY OR ARE THEY?

Widows must be wary of frauds and schemes. C.O.D. deliveries for clothing, appliances, expensive fishing tackle or "telephone ordered" merchandise and subscriptions are suspect and need not be honored by the widow in most instances.

We have seen published an account of one wise widow who was approached by a publisher's "representative" who wished to iclude her late husband in a scientists' "Who's Who" book. The text would be $500 and the inclusion of a photo brought it to $750.

The widow agreed to meet with the representative at a certain place, date and time...during office hours at her lawyer's place of business! Having a lawyer expose the fraud neatly saved the widow more than just anxiety and annoyance . It saved her $750!

Officials Differ on Wetlands Intrepretation

it as prohibitive."

As a result, work has taken place and continues to take place under conditions Trustee Kozma thinks are, at best, questionable.

"What has to be asked is, 'Can the land be developed without the destruction of wetlands?', I don't think the engineers have ever adequately answered that question."

He thinks there should be a clear demarcation between "developing" wetlands for aesthetic or economic purposes and the minimum of modification that may be necessary to allow the development to take place at all.

Unfortunately, no one seems to be able to establish that clear line.

Despite its relatively tough language, Ordinance Number 67 reflects the overall ambiguity that is inherent in a mix of development and wetlands protection.

The major purpose of restricting the alteration of the natural state of a wetlands, as outlined in Independence's ordinance and almost everywhere else that like regulation has been adopted, is to maintain the ability of the wetlands to contain and purify water.

Recognized for their ability to absorb stormwater runoff and gradually release that water to watercourses and underground water supplies in a filtered state, the wetlands are touted as a more efficient and economical means of flood and water purity control than can be devised by man. In theory, to modify a wetlands creates more problems than it solves.

Yet development, even when it takes place completely outside of a specific wetlands area, affects that ability, largely by increasing the rate of water runoff to the wetlands and concurrently by adding to the "pollution" (in sedimentation, nutrients, etc.) of the water entering the wetlands.

Thus a developer may be faced with a situation in which he may be perfectly willing to stay out of the wetlands, conduct no dredging or filling in a wetlands or watercourse, and as a result find that the natural system is no longer adequate to handle the accelerated load of stormwater leaving the developed portion of his land.

And since Ordinance Number 67 (and others) require a developer to guarantee the water leaving his property after development will be in a state comparable to that which it was in before the development, he may then be forced to modify the wetlands in order to improve their water handling capacities.

To do so, without violating other provisions of the ordinance, which include the protection of wildlife habitat and the minimization of environmental deterioration in general, is a neat trick. And, from the developer's perspective, mandates a certain amount of give and take from the township.

In addition, the specific capacities of wetlands to absorb and purify water runoff are not completely known.

Tom Beale, an engineer with Hubbell, Roth and Clark, says, "There are no hard and fast rules that say, 'You do this, you'll have this much impact.'"

In especially difficult situations, he says it is often necessary to conduct an extensive inventory (or environmental assessment) of the land's natural features and the components of the development to determine if a project would be in violation of the ordinance.

So far, although that safeguard is written into Number 67, it has never been required of a developer.

Ken Delbridge doesn't think the hard line approach is necessary anyway. "I think the ordinance is written in such a way that it discourages developers; they try to go around (the wetlands areas)."

And when they are forced to work in an area designated on the township's wetlands map, and pull a permit for it, he thinks the township should try to act reasonably.

"You have to be able to bend the lines on that map some," he says, pointing to the fact that the township itself has discovered it will need to procure a wetlands permit to construct bikepaths along Clarkston-Orion Road.

"The bike paths cross wetlands in three places along that stretch," he says. "And it's hard to tell if there's ever been any water there."

Kozma, however, thinks any bending of the lines or compromise should come from the township board.

"The engineer can merely make an ascertation of what the effects will be, it's up to us to enforce the ordinance."

Local Postal Strike Unlikely

At press time, local members of two postal unions who had threatened to go out on strike if a contract agreement had not been reached with the United States Postal Service were still on the job, awaiting the outcome of negotiations in Washington.

A strike had been scheduled for Monday at 12 p.m., but Dave Froling, president of the Clarkston Chapter of the National Association of Letter Carriers, said he had received word from union headquarters Tuesday morning that negotiations were continuing and no work stoppage had been ordered.

Froling said it was unlikely that local members of the two affected unions, the letter carriers and the clerk's union, would go out in any event. Union leaders had instructed the members of smaller locals, like Clarkston, to stay on the job while the counterparts at post offices in Pontiac, Royal Oak and Detroit walked out...

By staying on the job, the local members could protect their jobs even as postal service was interrupted by the strike at the central handling offices.

Two other unions represented locally, the rural carriers and the mail handlers, have already reached agreements with the postal Froling said that, while the ultimate decision would be up to management, he thought local service within the Clarkston area could probably be maintained even as a strike was carried out at the main post office.

Clarkston Postmaster, Donald Stoll, would not comment on how a strike by the lettercarriers and clerks would affect area mail

Froling said Tuesday he was optimistic an agreement would be reached and no strike called

Sashabaw Elementaries Get Playground Improvements

Water sports will be removed from the official list of activities for North Sashabaw Elementary School students this fall thanks to Clarkston School Board approval of drainage improvements on the school's playground.

The board authorized expenditures of up to $5,000 for grading on the site to aid in the dispersal of rain water which gathers in "huge puddles" in the play area under present conditions, according to elémentary school administrator William Neff.

The grading and possible seeding of the site will serve as preparation for the installation of new playground equipment at both North and South Sashabaw. The playground equipment is to be paid for with $9,000 raised by the schools' students in candle sales over the 1980-81 school year.

Members of the Sashabaw Elementary Schools Parent Teacher Organization (PTO) requested the board authorize the earthwork prior to the installation of the equipment.

The new playground equipment will include spiral slides for both schools, a physical fitness course at North Sashabaw, and rocking animals and new seesaws at South Sashabaw.

Grading and equipment installation is expected to take place before school opens in September.

Administrators Settle for 7Percent Increase

The Clarkston School Board went into closed session last Monday following their regular meeting to discuss salaries for the district's "non-affiliate" employees. The wage agreement they came away with amounts to a 7 percent across the board increase for the group of central office administrators and service supervisors.

That increase compares to the previously negotiated 10 percent increase for instructional personnel and building administrators, and reflects a wage concession several of the employees made during the course of the board's pre-millage discussions on budget cutting.

Ten district employees are affected by the latest agreement: Mel Vaara, who will receive $43,112 in 1981-82 in his capacity as assistant superintendent; William Neff and Conrad Bruce, administrative assistants, will receive $41,819; William Dennis, another assistant, $41,435; Stan Darling, business manager, $29,652; Gary Bliss, transportation supervisor, $23,540; Debra Dillon, food service director, $19,360; Barbara Cowan, executive secretary, $19,260; Mildred Rundell, data processing supervisor, $18,126; and Cliff Kintz, grounds supervisor, $18,000.

The salary of Superintendent Milford Mason was upped 7 percent for 1981-82, to $49,787 under the second year of a two-year contract.

My Complaint List Seems Endless

This is a crazy world we live in nowadays. If you read the newspapers, current event magazines and watch television news like I do, you get the feeling that there are a million and one problems in this world -- none of which can be solved without the threat of catastrophe.

I've decided to sit down and make a list of some of those problems that bother me most. Let's see if you agree:

Strike, strike, strike -- Why is it that everyone feels it so necessary to strike? Baseball players make more money on the average than most any other group. Postal workers want a 50 percent increase over three years. Ridiculous.

Our sick economy -- It amazes me that no one can get a handle on what appears to be a very complex science. Everyone seems to have different solutions. Yet no one can make our economy right.

School Financing -- Every school district in our immediate area is crying for financial help yet no one at the state level wants to

The American Automakers -- They seem to persist with their conservative design. The foreign imports have become popular because of better mileage, better workmanship and flashier design. The Americans have improved upon their mileage and workmanship, but the designs are still dull and in my opinion downright ugly.

Utility Price Ripoffs -- Consumer's announcement that natural gas would jump 50 percent because they had to buy Algerian gas was the clincher. Utility prices keep going up, up and up, with the consumer having virtually nothing to say about it.

GAS, GAS, GAS -- Gives me gas every time I think about it. If it's not higher prices to satisfy our huge oil conglomerates that make enormous profits each quarter, it's the State saying gas taxes must go up because we the consumers aren't buying enough. In the end the little guy gets penalized no matter

People that always complain -- Sound familiar. I think I'll get off my soapbox. Better yet, let me list some thing I do Like about the world we live in. Because, despite all its problems, it's still the best country, U.S.A., and the best time period, 20th Century, in which one could ever wish to live.

I like freedom -- I like being able to come to work everyday and doing what I want to do, when I want to do it. I like living my life the way I want to do it. I would have been dead long ago if my home were Russia.

I like Davisburg -- Despite its dumpy appearance, the people, particularly the businesspeople are the nicest people one will ever run in to.

I like Clarkston's sense of community --The community awards banquet, the vote for more school millage all means that people care in this community. And that's rare.

I like you, because you've bothered to read my ramblings. Thanks for taking the time.

forecast

by Robert C. Davis

Summer officially arrived in June, bringing with it generally very pleasant vacation weather all across southeastern Michigan. Precipitation was generally below normal north of the Detroit Metropolitan area during June, with most areas receiving between 1/2 to 1 inch less rainfall than normal. The largest storm of the month occurred on June 21-22, with most of our volunteers picking up about 1 inch of rain from this storm. Precipitation totals for the month of June from my network of volunteers are as follows: (with available calendar year total in parentheses)

Detroit Metropolitan Airport - 3.33" (14.46")

Davison - 3.20'

Bishop Airport/Flint - 2.95" (13.52") Elizabeth Lake/Waterford Township - 2.85" (17.46'')

Sullivan Lake/Tyrone Township - 2.58" (14.97")

Eastern Clarkston - 2.49" (15.28") St. Clair Shores - 2.45" (12.65") Northern Clarkston - 2.43" (13.78")

My girlfriend and I went on a romantic picnic last weekend and we had a great time until I gave her a bloody nose. Well, to be

forecast

Highland State Recreation Areas - 2.25" Fenton - 2.23" (13.27")

Oxbow Lake/White Lake Township - 2.21" (15.09")

From the data above, you can see that precipitation totals for the first 6 months of 1981 are quite variable. For comparison purposes, normal precipitation for the period January through June is as follows: Detroit Metropolitan Airport - 15.52 inches, Bishop Airport/Flint - 14.48 inches, and Clarkston 14.82 inches.

The mean temperature for the Clarkston area in June was 66.8 degrees, which is exactly normal. Temperatures ranged from a low of 39 degrees on the first to a high of 90 degrees on the 15th and 29th. Outdoor conditions were ideal for vacationers as daily high temperatures rose into the 70's on 16 days and into the 80's on 11 days during June with significant precipitation occurring on only 7 days during the month.

Before closing, I would like to welcome a new volunteer to my rain gage network. Tom Weiberg joined the network in May and his gage was listed as the Milford gage in last month's report. Tom's gage is actually located just east of the Highland State Recreation Area in White Lake Township, and beginning with this report, his gage will be identified as the Highland State Recreation Area gage.

honest we weren't having that good of a time before that but believe me it sure went down hill after that.

It all started when I had a bright idea (mistake number one) to have a picnic at a local park. The second mistake was when I did the cooking, although I don't feel I deserve all the blame for that one because after all she didn't think the potato salad would spoil either.

Anyway, after we ate all the food we could beautiful view of the whole park. Shortly after I moved everything we found out why no one was there in the first place. The hill belonged to about three million ants who had a huge ant hill there. They did not take it kindly when we came to visit. In our haste to get all the ants off we jumped around as if we were wearing electric underwear. My girlfriend succeeded in not only removing the ants but one contact lens also.

This is where the story gets messy.

We didn't have to crawl around on the ground too long before I found the missing lens. In my excitement I grabbed the lens and jerked my arm smack up into her nose. This not only caused it to bleed but also knocked her off balance and sent her rolling down hill with the picnic basket following right behind her. Fortunately there was this little group of trees that she rolled into which stopped her from rolling into the swamp. In thinking about it later however it might have been bet-salvage (you have no idea how the smell of bad potato salad spreads into other food in the same picnic basket), my girlfriend was ready to go home but I was determined to have a romantic afternoon if it killed us. So I moved the blanket to the top of a hill with a ter if she had kept going into the swamp because then the potato salad wouldn't have spilled all over her.

We went home right after that.
You know after reading this I can now understand why she slapped me yesterday when I suggested that we go sailing.

Local Man Aids in Rescue

Eighteen-year-old Greg Kratt of Clarkston experienced the adventuresome side of park rangering last week when he aided in the rescue of a Holly man who had fallen into Stewart Lake and Groveland Oaks County

Kratt is a ranger at the park where he was on duty last Monday when the man, 21-yearold Carey T. Lyon Of Holly, apparently fell from the banks of the lake while fishing. Lyon was listed in fair condition at Pontiac General Hospital this week.

According to Kratt, he was summoned to the lake at about 3:45 p.m. by a child who told him a man was drowning in the lake. After a frantic search along the shoreline in waist deep mud, Kratt located Lyon and pulled his head back above the water. With the aid of two other men, Kratt pulled him to Lyon, who police said apparently suffers from epilepsy, was treated at the scene by paramedics and transported by ambulance to Pontiac General.

Tiny Tumblers at Springfield Oaks

Tetherball teaches hand/eye coordination

by Ann Bennett

Excess energy, characterized by running, skipping, crawling and moving in every direction all at the same time, is the essence of childhood. By the age of 6 or 7, children develop a foundation for physical motion that often becomes a lifetime trend.

Kay and Glen Riley of Davisburg recognize the importance of early elementary physical education. Owners of the Glen Riley School of Gymnastics in Auburn Heights, they have designed a program that provides children with a structured outlet for their energies. Tumble Tots classes emphasize the grossmotor or big muscle skills. While the exercises and strength-building activities are fun, they offer a positive opportunity for the growth of self-confidence, directly affecting the child's personal achievements in school and everyday living.

Tumble Tots weekly classes at Springfield Oaks explore the areas of depth perception, hand/foot/eye coordination, balance, action and reaction through the challenge of obstacle courses, various animal walks, imagination and simple tumbling stunts.

"If a child hasn't had the opportunity to develop skills of running, bending, stretching, even crawling, or has been hindered in some way, spacial, directional, or reversal problems can occur. Often the result is clumsy adults," Kay Riley says.

A Tumble Tot is a child, any child, who understands why and how their body moves. Whether the child joins the program with natural ability or needs to develop physical coordination, the classes are intended to promote a sense of accomplishment.

Fall sign-up for children 3-7 is available now. For more information, call Kay or Glen Riley at 852-5151 or 634-5788.

Mattingly Ground Water Opens First Dealership

A lot is happening these days at Dan Mattingly Ground Water. For instance the growing business once headquartered in a house on Clarkston Road, has now taken over most of the Clarkston Cinema Secondly, the company, just last week, opened up its first dealership. Owned by Mr. and Mrs. Wilber Townsend, longtime area residents, the new dealership is located on Dixie Highway in Springfield Township.

According to Dan Mattingly, owner, the company which exclusively sells a heating and cooling unit that's energy is derived from groundwater, three more dealerships will be opening in the next three weeks in Metamora, Oxford and Holly.

Mattingly has developed a comprehensive training manual and three day school in which alldealers and employees must partake. Likewise, Mattingly's own research and development department are working on perfecting a groundwater system of their own and the marketing department is feverishly studying the best possible method of marketing the product.

Groundwater heating relatively new. The cost of the unit can pay for itself in a few years. To operate it costs as little as 50 cents a day. That, says Mattingly, is cheap compared to the cost of other energy alternatives like oil and natural gas.

And if Wilber Townsend's first day in business is any indication as to the popularity of the system, Mattingly may be sitting on a gold mine. No less than sixteen people walked into the door that day to discuss and ask questions about the system.

"I'm pleased," said the understating Townsend.

For more information about the system, call 625-7800.

Wilber Townsend and sign in front of his new offices.

Walk-Ins Welcome

Youngsters Participate in Games Day at Library

On Wednesday, July 15, the Adventures '81, Summer Reading Club, held an Outdoor Games Day on the Library lawn. Relay races and frisbee games, the threelegged dash and a spoon walk were the highlights of the afternoon. One hundred and thirty-five young members took part and were rewarded with BOG's for sundaes or hamburgers at Mc-Donalds. Certificates for french fries from Burger Chef were given to 69 youngsters who, by Monday, July 13, had turned in book reports for at least four books. There are two weeks left in which to read and report on, the eight books necessary to receive a library certificate. There are many who are only one or two books away from this score.

On July 22, Jeff Gee, owner of the Tropical Fish Tank in Royal Oak, gave an animal talk. One of the first things he had asked for when he agreed to pay the library a visit, was room for his python to stretch out!

Pre-School Story Time Tuesday, July 28 at 4:30 p.m. and Wednesday, July 29 at 11 a.m.

Films for these dates are: "House that Jack Built", "Casey at the Bat" and "The Puppy that Wanted a Boy".

The library recently purchased the following books: "The Night She Died" by Dorothy Simpson, "The Scent of Fear" by Margaret Yorke, "Missing Persons" by Jack Olsen and "Murder on Martha's Vineyard" by Kelley Roos. Chilling mysteries to read on a hot summer's day. Also two Science-Fiction books have been added to the collection: "Universe 1.1" edited by Terry Carr and "Arbor House Treasury of Horror and the Supernatural" compiled by Bill Pronzini. New paperbacks are: "The Rich by Elizabeth Villars" and "The Love Token" by Priscilla Hamilton.

State Farm Reduces Car Rates

A State Farm Mutual representative said today his company is reducing auto insurance rates for many drivers over 65 and many motorists under 25 when it introduced changes in its rating plan July 15.

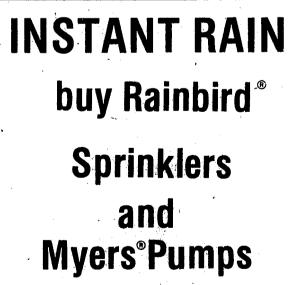

The net effect of the changes will be a decrease of 2.2 percent -or almost $4.9 million annually -- in State Farm's auto insurance premiums in Michigan, said Bud Grant, CLU, the insurer's Clarkston agent.

Grant said State Farm will also begin basing premiums for collision and comprehensive coverages partially on the damageproneness and theft-potential of each car model. Twenty-three 1980 models will get premium decreases averaging 15 percent, while 20 models will get 15 percent average increases. Among 1981 models, rates will go down for 20 and up for 20.

Drivers over 65, who use their cars for pleasure driving now pay about 90 percent of the basic adult rate. They will pay about 85 percent under the new plan, Grant

Most drivers from 21 to 25 years of age will pay lower rates, with the largest decreases going to those who are 23 and 24 years old. Rates will go up for some drivers under 21, Grant said. Young motorists who drive less than 7,500 miles a year will now pay a lower rate than those who drive more than 7,500 miles.
