

With a state economy in the doldrums and the subsequent failure of the legislature to carry their traditional share of financing, Mason is busy juggling numbers in an attempt to stretch his newly won millage as far as possible.

And he has to be hoping he can manage it long enough to let the furor over a recently negotiated salary increase for central office administrators die down.

Of course, the principle task of education is to educate and school year '81 is more than an exercise on the balance sheet. To see how the Superintendent was feeling about the budget, the present, the future, and the furor The Reminder visited with him last week. Reminder: What kind of educational goals do you have for 1981-82? New programs? Ongoing programs? What's up? Mason: Well certainly I want to continue the track we've been on, the improvement of instruction...that was the thrust we started last year with. I can't tell you explicitly today what (new) programs...that, of course will be up to the (school) board. I am going to recommend that we initiate a program for academically gifted children. That was a goal for last year -- but then we shelved it when we didn't know where the money thing was going.

pen of three rabbits. The pen sold at livestock auction to David Coreless of Holly, far right, for $55.

Ethan Russell was one of many area youngsters who were a part of the weeklong fair held at Springfield Oaks on Andersonville Road in Davisburg. For more pictures, see page twenty-nine.

I don't know how we'll finance it...if we wait 'til we have all the dollars necessary to do it...we'll probably never reach that day.

It will probably start in elementary, and, if it's successful, we'll walk it right on up through the school system.

The other thing which is on the agenda is community education. I'm recommending to the board they adopt a program for community education, effective January 1982.

Reminder: What form would you expect a community ed program to take?

Mason: Well, first of all we would have to hire a director and give him the report submitted by the community ed committee (last July).

Certainly the first step is putting together an offering of credit courses, because there's the revenue you generate to run many other things.

Reminder: What about money? You have three more mills, but your deficit ballooned during the course of the year last year; what if that happens again?

Mason: I don't see that same dynamic happening. We've adopted a budget in which we are going to spend more than we take in, but it's much more controlled. From everything I can gather the reduction in state aid to education...is beginning to level off.

Reminder: And you think you can stay within that this year, the $350,000 deficit?

Mason: Well, you spoke about goals, that's also a goal.

Reminder: You feel confident then that you can make this most recent millage last through 1981-82?

Mason: Oh yes.

DPW Building Dispute Resolved

The Independence Township Board approved last week an agreement to consummate the $312,000 purchase of a new DPW building on Flemings Lake Road. Although occupied by the department since December of 1980, the purchase deal had been held up while the township attempted to settle financial disagreements with its builder, Clements and VanWagonen Construction Company.

The close was precipitated by an order from U.S. District Court Judge, Harold Bobier, who is presiding over Chapter 11 Bankruptcy proceedings for Clements and VanWagonen.

Under the agreement, drawn up by township attorneys, representatives of Clements and VanWagonen, and Lapeer State Bank and Trust (from whom Clements and Van-Wagonen obtained construction loans), Independence will pay the full price of $312,000 for the building and drop its claim against the builder for damages incurred when occupancy was held up for eight months and interest rates rose. Clements and VanWagonen, in turn, has agreed to drop its suit against the township for failure to pay off on the contract.

Township attorney, Robert White, said Independence got a fair shake.

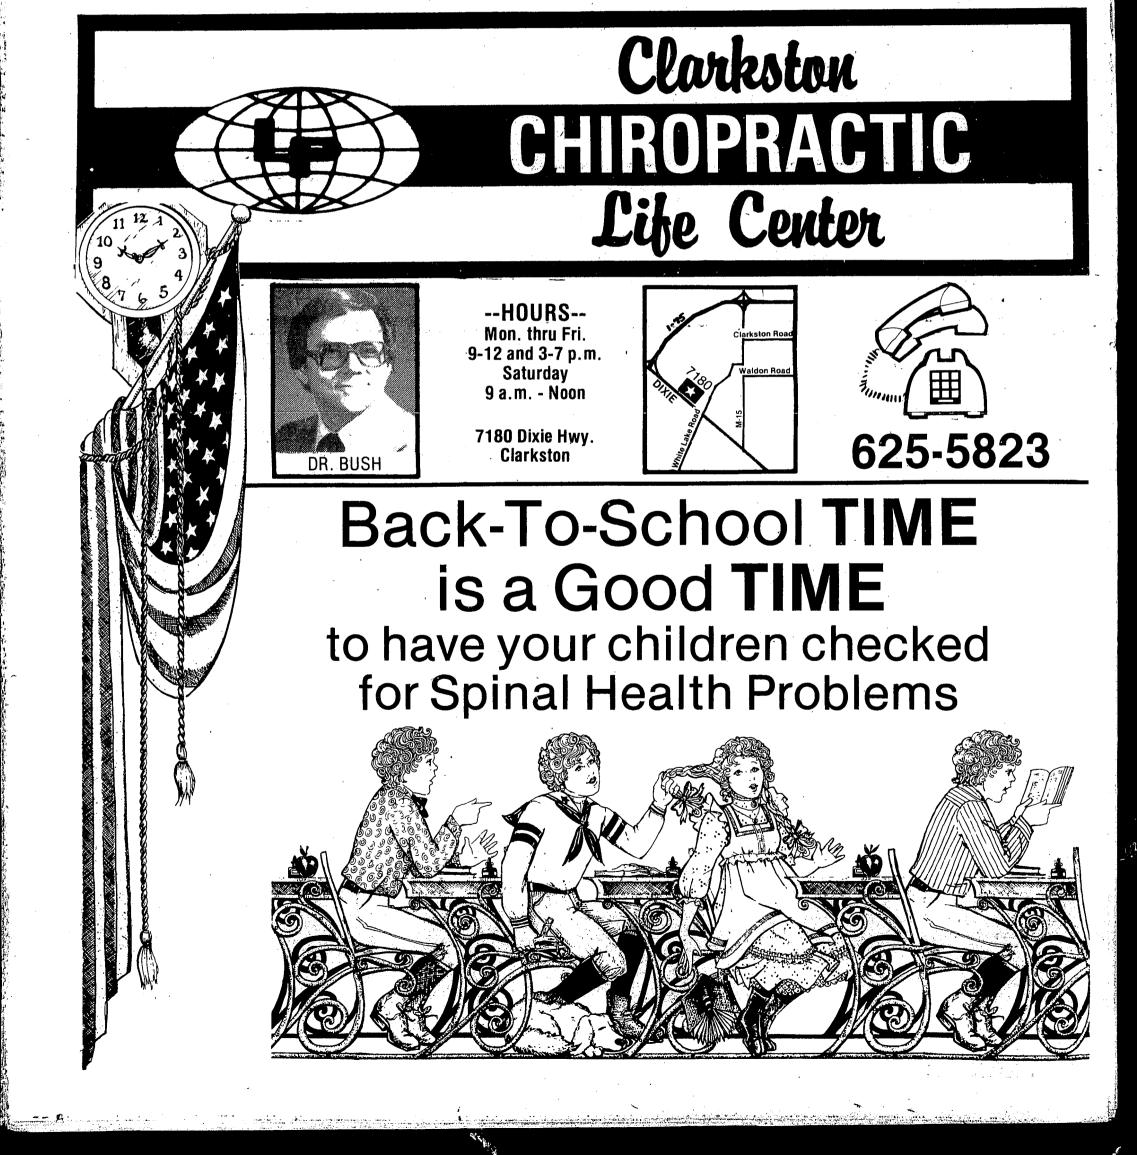

"When it comes right down to it, we got eight months free rent," he said.

By occupying, but not paying for, the building White said the township had the use of $36,000 for eight months it would not otherwise have had.

"At the end of fifteen years (the life of the land contract) we'll save $64,000," he said, "and that's as much as asked for in the first place."

Independence had sued Clements and VanWagonen for construction delays which resulted in an increase of 1½ percent on the township's land contract agreement with Pontiac State Bank.

White said he expected the court to approve the deal and end Independence's involvement in the bankruptcy proceedings.

Boat Ramp Decision Awaits DNR Hearing

by Dawson Bell

Independence Township and the Village of Clarkston governments held a meeting of minds Monday evening on the hotly disputed issue of the Deer Lake boat ramp and both sides seemed to come away with partial satisfaction.

But the decision on the installation of a new ramp, which had been approved by the township board and subsequently quashed by the village council, will wait at least until after a Department of Natural Resources (DNR) hearing set for September 3.

On Monday Independence Supervisor James Smith understood a defense of the township's decision to fund the ramp by saying that as leaseholder on the Deer Lake Beach property the township was responsible for maintaining safe access to the lake.

He said any liability attached to lake use was the township's and from that standpoint "we can't stand to wait any longer."

The present ramp posed a serious hazard to the safety of boaters attempting to launch at the site, according to Smith. Speaking of the inter-governmental clash, he said, "Hopefully, there was some misunderstanding." And he suggested the more serious question of the large number of highpowered boats on the lake was another consideration that deserved scrutiny but was unrelated to the ramp.

Smith said the township board had approached the new ramp as a simple, needed replacement for the ramp presently in place.

Council member, James Schultz, responded to Smith by saying, "The village has not been trying to be in anyway in conflict with the township...but we did not consider these concrete pads (for the ramp) to be temporary."

Under the lease agreement with the village the township must confer with the council on any "permanent" construction undertaken at the beach.

Some of the citizens in attendance, however, were not so conciliatory.

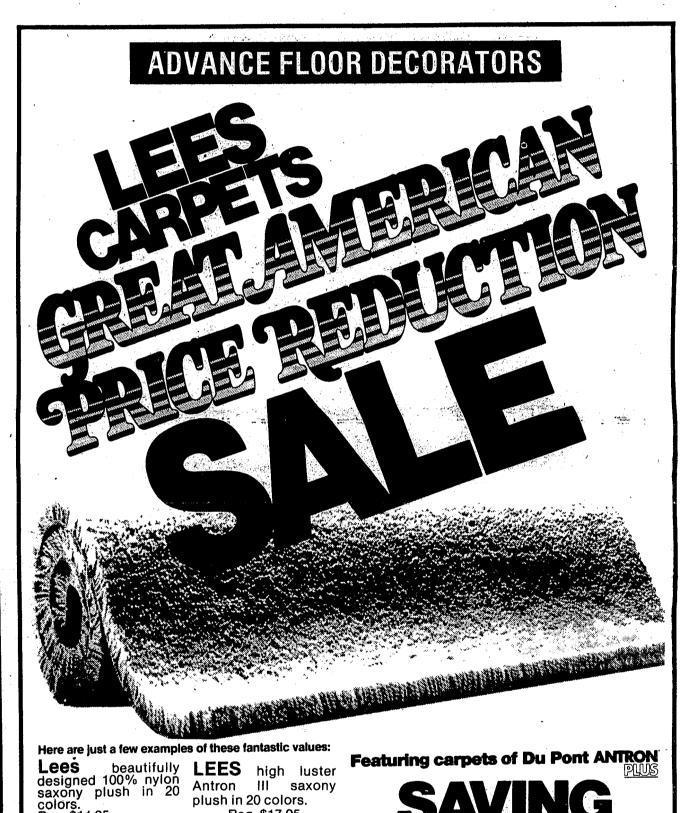

"Apparently Mr. Smith does not live on the lake," said Leo Wischman. "He's worried about cuts and bruises; I'm worried about boats crashing into each other."

Wischman also suggested the use of Federal Revenue Sharing money to finance the ramp would open the door to potential litigation should the township continue to restrict the issuance of access permits to residents only.

Representatives from both sides in the dispute expressed interest in requesting the DNR to discuss the question of instituting "Watercraft Rules" for Deer Lake which might in some way limit the number or size of boats qualifying for access.

Rose said his conversations with the DNR indicated their willingness to discuss new rules, but said that they were not receptive to a strict limit on the number of boats allowed on the lake.

Smith also apologized to the council for not notifying them of the impending decision on the ramp. "If we were to do it again, clearly, we would contact you."

He did deny, however, that the board's decision not to fund the ramp at their Federal Revenue Sharing hearings in March had been a final one. He said the minutes of that meeting showed the board's intention of taking action on the ramp in the future.

Correction

The boat ramp approved for installation at Deer Lake Beach by the township board last month would not, as previously reported here, extend from the water's edge to White Lake Road.

Constructed of concrete sections measuring 12 foot wide by 6 foot, the ramp's total length would be sixty feet. It would start at the existing access gate and extend to, and into the water a distance of 18 feet. We apologize for the mistake.

County One Step Closer to Bavarian Sewer Ownership

For the past five years Oakland County DPW has been maintaining and operating the sewer and water treatment facilities at Springfield Township's Bavarian Village condominium and apartment complex. In the next few weeks, if a deal worked out between DPW and Bavarian developers is approved by the Board of Commissioners, the county may finally own the system it operates.

By assuming ownership the county will have reversed itself on a position it has held since 1977, when deeds to the treatment system properties were turned over to the county but never recorded.

Developer William Dinnan said last week, "We have a piece of paper that we've signed." He also said, and DPW head Donald Ringler confirmed, that DPW will recommend approval of the agreement to the commission.

Commission approval would free Dinnan and his co-developers to resume sales on the condominiums in the complex and continue the construction of additional units. The State Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and Department of Commerce have refused to allow further occupancy at Bavarian pending municipal ownership.

The agreement would turn over complete responsibility for the system's present and future maintenance to the county, while requiring residents and condominiums owners to pay for all operating costs.

In addition the condominium association and the managers of the rental units would be responsible for providing $200 per unit in sewer system "reserve" to guard against future-maintenance and equipment breakdown costs. At full occupancy the total reserve would be in the neighborhood of $50,000, according to Ringler. But the county will also be empowered to pass along additional maintenance costs to the system's users if the reserve should prove inadequate.

Ringler said he felt the reserve was a "reasonable" sum to cover the potential costs of breakdowns in the treatment system. But, he added, "It is virtually impossible to set aside a sufficient reserve to guard 100 percent against failure.'

The reserve question was a central concern to Springfield Township voters when, two months ago, they turned down a proposal for township ownership.

That vote was expected to result in court action against the township from Dinnan and Bavarian's other developers. With the county's change of heart, the township now appears to be off the hook.

The ownership plan will be presented to the planning and building committee of the Board of Commissioners on Thursday at 1:30 p.m. With their sanction it could reach the full board by their August 20 meeting.

Dinnan said with the approval of the com-

Reagan's Decisiveness Refreshing

Never a strong Reagan supporter, I must admit, I am pleased with the way the President had conducted himself since taking office last January.

In particular I am pleased with his decisiveness. It seems when he decides what he wants he pulls out all the stops to get it. Thus, Reagan has virtually gained control of Congress, despite the House having a large Democratic majority.

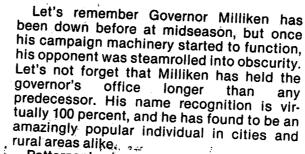

He won a major victory with the tax cut. He expects it to stimulate the economy. If it doesn't, and I'm not so sure it will, Reagan, and Reagan alone will be responsible. That takes guts.

Nor is he "waffling" with the air con-trollers. Reagan ordered PATCO back to work or be fired. They didn't return for the most part, so he immediately fired them, and started training replacements. If that strategy works, he'll be applauded. If not the stands alone, and must bare, the brunt of the. criticism. Again, that takes guts.

It's been a long time since we've had someone so decisive in this country's top political office. I find it refreshing.

Some politicos and media types are already conjuring up epitaphs for Governor William Milliken's gravestone, speculation continues over the 1982 Governor's race. On the eve of Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson's announcement that he will run for the governor's seat, some people are overzealous in their perceptions of the Governor's weakening popularity base.

Patterson's chances of unseating Milliken in a primary are slim. His popularity coun-tywide is unsurpassed. His popularity statewide is unknown.

Of course, if Milliken chooses to retire or run for Senator Donald Riegle's seat, then Patterson's chances increase by a thousandfold. I'm sure all of Patterson's supporters are waiting for either one of those announ-cements. A governor's race without Milliken would indeed thrust Patterson into a very good position. And that's where many people in Oakland County would like to see their prosecutor.

Lawn sprinklers and backyard swimming pools got plenty of use during July 1981, as very dry and at times very warm conditions persisted over the Clarkston area. The bulk of the month's precipitation came from only two storm systems; the largest storm of the month occurred on the 28th, as scattered rain showers dumped more than an inch of rain over our area. Some areas in the state, received more than three inches of rain from this particular storm. Available precipitation totals for the month of July from my volunteer network are as follows (with calendar year totals in parentheses):

Detroit Metropolitan Airport - 4.29" (18.75") Bishop Airport/Flint - 3.93" (17.45")

Elizabeth Lake/Waterford Township 3:43 (20.89'')

Sullivan Lake/Tyrone Township - 2.87" (17.84'')

Oxbow Lake/White Lake Township - 2.70" (17.79'')

Northern Clarkston - 2.42" (16.20") Fenton - 2.36" (15.63")

Eastern Clarkston - 2.16" (17.44")

The mean temperature recorded for July at the eastern Clarkston station was 70.8. degrees, which is exactly normal (for the second consecutive month). Temperatures ranged from a low of 44 degrees on the moren ning of the 23rd to a high of 93 degrees during the afternoons of the 7th and 8th. Daily high temperatures climbed into the 90's on six days during July, including four days in a row from July 6 to July 9. The first half of the month was generally much war-mer than normal, and the last half of the month was generally much cooler than normal. During the first half of the month, daily high temperatures reached 85 degrees or higher on 10 of those days, while the last half of the month saw 85 degrees or warmer tem-b peratures on only 4 days

Dear Editor:

Does Clarkston need a new boat ramp??? If you make an inspection of the existing Boar ramo as Luid today, you will find there is no need for this expenditure. I will admit it is not red carpeted and that it could be some what on the small size for large boats, but who wants large high powered boats on small narrow Deer Lake. There are already over 100 resident boats, plus the transit boats that together makes weekend boating on the hazard side, particularily some of the high powered jet speed boats.

There are many ways we could make Clarkston, more interesting with these Federal funds, and everyone would benefit, not just a few, I'm sure a new boat ramp does not come under this category.

The local Township Board claims the $6,000 of Federal funds expended for a new boat ramp in Clarkston would be only available to Township residents. The legal guidance I have received relative to this Federal charity, does not agree with the Township.

I would hate to see Deer Lake open to the public, creating another Orchard Lake catastrophe, just to satisfy a few and jeopardize the future of Deer Lake.

for their callous attitude. As sick as I was they had the nerve to go to work and leave me there at death's door.

As my illness worsened I tried to be a brave little soldier. That night I tossed and turned before finally drifting off to a fevered sleep: It wasn't long before I awoke to the smell of burning feathers. To my horror I discovered that my fever had set my pillows on fire. I begged my roommates to shoot me and put me out of my misery. They wouldn't (although they considered it), so I decided I ad to the doctor's office in the morning.

The next morning when I saw the Dr., he laughed off my illness. I started feeling silly for bringing a packed suitcase so that I would be ready when he wanted to rush me to the hospital. He told me I might have a slight touch of a bug. I tried to tell him it had gone beyond a touch all the way up to a punch. I asked him worriedly if he thought my high fever might cause brain damage. I was not pleased with his answer. "I don't think the fever had anything to do with it." I fixed himthough, on the way out I got sick all over his appointment book.

Through sheer will and determination I hung onto the thin thread of life and recovered, no thanks to my doctor or friends.

I am now writing the full story of my illness for publication. The only problem I'm having with it is the title. My first choice, "Death and Dying" is already taken.

I guess I should stop writing now. I feel a headache coming on, I think I had better lie down for awhile.

Girls Raise Ruckus When Wounded Bird is Killed

by Dawson Bell

It started as a fairly unremarkable incident. A crowd of sunbathers, a flock of seagulls and some boisterous young people throwing stones out at the Holly Recreation Area in Groveland.

But one dead sea gull, some possible confusion about who was responsible and a couple of angry bystanders later and it became an investigation ordered by the Parks Division of the Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

A week later there still isn't very much agreement on what really happened.

A seagull was injured by the stonethrowers. Some other sunbathers, including the angry bystanders, Elizabeth and Allison Pridmore, stepped in. The park office was called and two park' (maintenance) employees showed up.

These two took the bird, asked a few questions, and a few minutes later went back to their truck where either they or another unidentified man rung its neck and shove it in a garbage bag.

The Pridmores think the park employees acted callously and irresponsibly. And, further, they think the bird was killed by the order of park manager, Robert Bos.

They say no action was taken against the young man who injured the bird. They say they offered to take the bird somewhere to have it treated and were told, "Don't worry, we'll take care of it."

Upset by the destruction of the gull, the Pridmores went to find the park manager. They say he admitted to having ordered the employees to do "something like that" (kill the bird).

acting like the whole incident was of little concern. "He said things like, 'Well, animals get killed all the time,' " according to-Elizabeth Pridmore.

Says her sister, "It was like nothing you would ever expect to see in a park."

Bos and Russell Cooley, who investigated, the incident for the DNR, say the girls were "in a high state of emotion" and that there are discrepancies between their story and the one told by the employees, who they declined to name.

Both suggest the situation was mishandled and should never have been dealt with at all by seasonal maintenance workers. But, they say, Bos had learned of the injury and dispatched some regular employees to the lake; they just arrived too late.

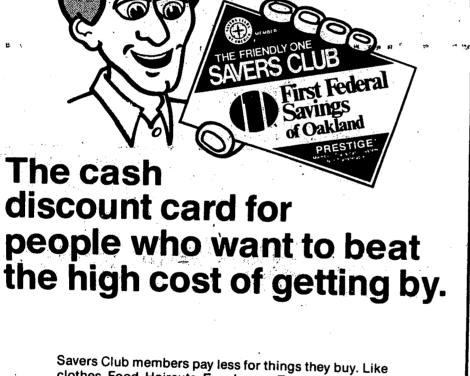

Cooley says the young man who threw the stone would be ticketed if they knew who he was. But the seasonals say he left before the conservation officer arrived. The Pridmores contend the park employee knew him_in the first place and seemed disinclined to pursue the matter because of it.

Bos says, "The situation wasn't unusual; we get people bringing animals to us all the time. It's just unusual the way they (the seasonal employees) handled it."

Elizabeth Pridmore says Bos told them he animal, while she found someone within five minutes by calling the Drayton Plains Nature Center.

Cooley is satisfied the park management acted correctly. He feels the Pridmores didn't understand who the employees at the beach were, and later talked to Bos before he understood what had really transpired.

"Commissioned rangers wouldn't have acted that way. Bob Bos wasn't aware that the people he had sent down got there too late."

Superintendent Talks About Coming School Year

Reminder: Farther than that?

Mason: It's possible it could last anywhere from 2-5 more years. But, it's just anybody's guess. I can't see beyond 82-83.

But the odds have got to be in our favor. Because of the support we got in June we're going to be in much better position than many, many other school districts in the State of Michigan.

I think that gives us the opportunity to keep our programs reasonably intact while we weather these economic times.

Reminder: What about farther down the road? Do you have any building projects in mind right now?

Mason: No, I don't. If you mean a ballot proposal...that's out of my mind...how to deal with the situation we have is not out of my mind...no active plans for addition or expansion though.

Reminder: You still feel though that Clarkston Junior High is inadequate?

Mason: Oh sure. Every year we get closer to the point where we will have to face up to that issue.

Reminder: Well, do you have any long range projections on what kind of facility you will need in, say, 1990? Do you have an idea of when declining enrollments are going to level off, and maybe start to increase again?

Mason: The declining birthrate is working its way through the grade levels. It's now at the junior high and pretty soon we can expect smaller class sizes in the high school But I can turn around and ask you, 'If the GM plant that's under construction in Orion Township goes into full production...and people can start building homes again...is that going to affect enrollment?'

Future projections are just going to be extremely difficult to come up with until things settle down here a little bit.

Regardless of what the future holds though, we will have to spend some money in the very near future on some of our older facilities, some of our older elementary buildings. And rule of thumb says we don't want to throw a whole lot of money into our

Food Service Administrator Resigns

Debra Dillon, Food Service Director at the Clarkston Schools, has turned in her resignation and will leave the district before the 1981-82 school year begins.

In two years with the Clarkston system, Dillon has, in the words of Superintendent Milford Mason, "turned our food service around".

She has accepted a position with the Grand Rapids based private food service, Canteen Food Corporation. In the new position, Dillon will oversee the food service perations of eleven western Michigan school districts with Canteen Corporation Dillon said she was satisfied with the progress Clarkston achieved during her tenure here. "I think we have made some good changes...learned how to control our costs," she said. Dillon's departure comes at a time when the Clarkston district is facing another fiscal crunch in food service, however. Federal subsidies have been cut and the district has applied for a waiver of the State mandate on l'unch programs. Both Dillon and Mason said last week, though, that they felt the district's lunch program would continue to provide nutritional, inexpensive meals for students In a cost effective manner. Mason said he hoped to be able to recommend a replacement for the exiting Dillon at the school board's Monday meeting.

There are other things that can impact on . us too. If the State of Michigan continues to discuss and ultimately does something about the consolidation of some of the smaller school districts, it could affect our facilities requirements.

What we can do now, is wait and watch, try to be as aware as we can be of what's happening and what we think will happen.

Reminder: What about administrative salary increases?

Mason: I knew you were going to ask that...and I'm not going to say a whole lot about it.

Before the millage, I based my projections on what cost increases we could expect and one of the things I decided was that I wanted to stop increases in the administrative budget.

I've done that. In 1980-81 we spent $788,715 on administration. This year we should spend $756,030. That's less money and it's also a lower percentage of the total budget. And it includes the increases given to the central office administrators.

The seven percent increases were no secret...they were part of the budget that we presented during the millage campaign.

I hope, just by these numbers, we have done what we set out to do, and that's reduce administrative costs.

I admit the timing was bad, but there wasn't very much we could do about that.

On Monday, I'm going to present a new bus drivers' contract to the board...their increases over two years are set at 7 percent and 7½ percent. I don't know, but I think that's the lowest settlement that's been made anywhere around here.

We're making the effort to come back the other way...I feel like I've met my committment to moderate our expenses consistent with the economy.

Reminder: Are you concerned about a loss of credibility with the voters?

Mason: Sure, I'm concerned...but I don't know what I can do about it.

The event, which benefited ALASEM, was sponsored by The Durbin Company Realtors on South Main Street in Clarkston. The sender of the balloon, Jana Tyler, of 6331 Peach Street in Clarkston, wins a 10-speed blke, donated courtesy of Robert Cring of R-K Design Service, Inc. in Auburn Heights.

The finder of the balloon, Brad Haworth, of 4 Deer Park Court in Grimsby, Ontario, wins $25.

Participants sent off a balloon at "The Great Balloon Send-Off" by donating $1.00. to the Lung Association. New Junior College Opens This Fall in Oxford

Roger Mastrantonio, academic dean at the newly created Chapin Junior College of Business in Oxford, is two years away from conferring the school's first diploma. But that isn't keeping him from devoting a lot of attention to the post-graduate future of those students who have yet to spend their first day in a Chapin classroom.

Chapin is initiating its program with the idea that one of the most difficult things about going into business is getting in the first place. And Mastrantonio says the school is setting its priorities accordingly.

"We will take an active interest in our students' eventual job placement," he says. Coupled with a strong emphasis on providing financial aid counseling and an affiliation with the Pontiac Business Institute (and its 88 years of experience in business education), the new dean says he hopes "to help make Chapin The business college of Oakland County".

Chapin's major course offerings will be in the area of secretarial skills and business administration. Graduates will receive an Associates in Commerce degree from the school.

Dean Mastrantonio is a graduate of Eastern Michigan and Oakland Universities. At Oakland he earned a Master of Arts degree in guidance and counseling.

He has worked as a teacher in the Warren Schools system and as a counselor in the U.S. Army. Most recently he has been employed by the Brandon School District as a counselor.

As academic dean, Mastrantonio will direct the school's general operations. Other staff members include Brenda Kapuscinski,

Cheff Opens Chiropractic Clinic in Holly

The former assistant director of Michigan's largest chiropractic clinic has opened a private practice in the Village of Holly.

Dr. Floyd R. Cheff and family will also reside in the converted two-story home at 423 North Saginaw Street. The first floor of the building has been remodeled for office and patient treatment use.

Same Barrie and Breaking Street

The second story serves as living quarters for Dr. Cheff, his wife, Cindy, son Rick, 12, and daughter, Jessica, 7.

The area's newest chiropractor has been engaged in the relocation effort for some months. But it was not until June, when he left Herfert Chiropractic Clinics of Detroit, that Dr. Cheff was able to devote himself fully to the completion of the new office.

The Cheffs chose Holly not only for its excellent business climate and growth potential, but for its "hometown" atmosphere. In addition, as lovers of the outdoors, Dr. Cheff says for his family north Oakland County is "ideal".

Cheff is a graduate of the Palmer College of Chiropractic in Davenport, Iowa, where he was awarded merit certificates in clinical
