Women Find Arcades Enjoyable

by Mike Wilcox

How would three middle-aged ladies react if sent to a video arcade and told to have fun for the evening? Better yet, what would they say when they came back?

With Independence Township attempting to impose stiff restrictions on arcades located in their township; and currently battling one would be arcade owner in court, arcades and their merits have been a topic for discussion at virtually every board meeting held in the last three months.

Thus The Reminder thought it appropriate to see what it was that had stirred up all the discussion and controversy.

The Reminder gave three middle-aged women, who shall be known as Betsy, Karen and Joan, $5 and told them to go spend it one night at three video arcades in the Waterford area (Independence has no arcades). When they returned, they were asked to stop by our office to report what they found and how they felt about video games and arcades.

Betsy, a 46-year-old mother of two teenagers, aged 17 and 19, had never played in an arcade before. She had read about the controversy but hadn't formed any opinions.

"I went in open-minded," said Betsy. "I couldn't see what they were kicking about (in not allowing Robert Warrington's Ortonville Road arcade to open). Now I am more convinced than ever."

Betsy spent $3 of the $5 that was given to her. She found "Frogger" to be her favorite game.

"I enjoyed the experience. I really think it's good for kids. You really develop coordination playing some of those games."

For the most part, Betsy found the atmosphere quite comfortable. Arcade managers were courteous and helpful at two of the three arcades, and the kids did not congregate or hangout. They pretty much stuck to playing games.

"I thought I might feel uncomfortable in that type of atmosphere, but I didn't," said Betsy.

Karen, a 39-year-old with two kids ages 17 and 19 had had experience playing a pinball machine that she had bought for her kids several years ago, but until Thursday night, she had never set foot in an arcade.

Karen said she expected to run into a bunch of rowdy kids. Frankly, she claimed, she wasn't looking forward to the encounter.

Her apprehension never materialized. "We encountered absolutely no problems. All three were pretty well run and I didn't feel out of place at any time," said Karen.

Out of the $5 given to her, Karen spent $3. "But," she warned, "I could easily have spent a lot more."

She continued, "I don't see where there is any harm to it. It's challenging, develops coordination and makes people think."

Karen did notice that most of the people at each of the arcades were young adults between 17-20. She didn't feel out of place, however.

"I would go back again. I thought it was kind of fun," she said.

Joan, a 35-year-old with two kids, ages 12 and 10, had never played a pinball machine or a video game.

She was a bit concerned about playing in the arcades. "I expected them to be hang-outs for older kids," she said.

Joan continued, "But they weren't. The kids were all on machines and not paying attention to anybody else."

Joan spent every bit of her $5 in the 2-1/2 hours she spent playing the games. Her favorite game was the "Frogger".

"I thought I would never drop my kids off to play at a video arcade, but now after this experience, I would not have any qualms about it," said Joan.

Joan did notice a considerable difference between the three arcades she visited. "I felt funny at one of them. It was full of kids and they kind of looked at us as if they were asking, what are you doing here?"

Her personal favorite was Videomania Arcade on Dixie Highway in Waterford. Joan felt that was well run because it was supervised by adults and they helped teach us how to play the different games.

"Wait Until Dark" Opens

"Wait Until Dark" will open a four-week run at the Meadow Brook Theatre on Thursday, March 25, at 8:30 p.m. on the campus near Rochester.

"Wait Until Dark" is the story of a lovely blind woman who pits her courage and ingenuity against the desperate schemes of three thugs who invade her Greenwich Village apartment in search of a rich prize she doesn't even know she has in her possession. It turns out to be something concealed in a doll that the criminals will do anything to get -- not excluding torture and murder.

They try to take advantage of her sightlessness through trickery, but ample use of her other senses foils them. After several preliminary demonstrations of terror, the psychopathic leader of the trio prepares a gory end for his victim, in a scene that all the New York critics agreed provides the most exciting suspense that has been experienced in a theatre for many years.

Tickets for "Wait Until Dark" may be reserved now by calling the Meadow Brook Theatre box office at 377-3300.

Dr. Raymond Mayor will be conducting the series of programs that combine films and lectures with behavior modification techniques that have proven helpful in breaking the smoking habit.

To register for the clinic, or for further information, call Pontiac General Hospital, 857-7125.

SHOULD DEATHBED PROMISES BE KEPT?

Near death from a lengthy illness, a woman asks her husband to promise that he will never re-marry. He promises, and she passes away. But after he has overcome the grief of losing his wife, the husband finds solace in the company of another woman. He would like to marry her. Should he keep to the emotional promise he made to his late wife, or should he go on with his life by marrying another woman?

It's a difficult decision, as are most problems stemming from promises made to a dying loved one. On the one hand, the husband would be very happy if he were to marry again. On the other hand, promises are promises.

The important thing to remember, if ever you are faced with a similar problem, is that deathbed promises are nearly always made under severe emotional stress. They may not always be carefully considered by both people.

The man finally did decide to remarry, knowing his first wife would have wanted him to be happy. It should always be kept in mind that the memory of the departed must be honored, but that survivors must be free to continue with their own lives.

Special guests at Pine Knob Cub Scout Pack 199's Pinewood Derby professional drag racer Steve Novosel (above) with his 1969 C/SM Camaró and Dough Souver of the 'Screaming Eagles Racing Team', who was 5th in the National Quarter Midget Races. Two of the most publicized issues facing our governmental officials these days are the establishment of an arcade ordinance and whether or not property taxes are to be collected in the summer.

Independence Township officials have been wrestling with an arcade ordinance that would post rigid controls on the operation of arcades, if passed. So rigid, that one board thinks many passages in the ordinance are absolutely ridiculous.

Those officials favoring rigid controls, are doing so, so they say, to have as much control as possible over the operation of arcades. They fear such businesses could become "hangouts".

Our cover story this week addresses the issue of arcades from the perspective of three middle-aged women. They were each given $5 by The Reminder, and told to spend it at three arcades in Waterford.

We wanted to see how they would react to the latest teenage fad. Each of the women has two kids, so they had heard plenty about video games, but none had ever played one.

Each came back with a new perspective. Video arcades were not deserving of the "bad press" they had received. Video arcades, according to the women, were places, where young and old could mix and have "good, clean fun".

I suspect most open-minded individuals would have come back with the same conclusion. I sometimes think some of us believe arcades to be "undesireable businesses" on the par with adult bookstores or pornographic movie houses. Nothing could be further from the truth.

I believe some of our township officials have lost their perspective on this issue. I don't believe they should be in the business of regulating business as such. Too many controls are worse than no controls at all.

Summer taxes appear to be dead after both Independence and Springfield Townships voted "no" to Clarkston Schools' request to initiate procedures to begin a July collection.

I wrote awhile back that summer tax collection had merit and should be given serious consideration. Fortunately, both township boards had the fortitude to do just that. And after hearing hours of discussion on the issue, I truly believe the right decision was made.

A reoccurring question came up time and again, as school officials were asked, "Are you willing to put the proposal on the June School Election ballot?"

Since the start of discussions, the answer has been "no". Many school officials have indicated doubt as to whether the proposal would pass or not.

If that's the case, and the proposal is not popular enough to pass an election, then in my opinion, it should not be instituted.

One final note...This Saturday voters have a chance to "really" get involved in township government as both Independence and Springfield Township will be holding annual meetings beginning at 1 p.m.

All voters present have an actual vote on important decisions like setting salaries for township officials and approving the annual budget. If you care, this is one township meeting you shouldn't miss.

TRIVIA

by Mike Morrow

Those TV commercials featuring Henry Block giving his 13 reasons that you should see H & R Block to get your taxes figured should add a 14th reason. Fear.

After I finish figuring out my taxes I always need a stiff drink and a nap to calm down.

Every year it's the same. My fear starts when I get my W2 form and doesn't go away until the check is in my hands. My paranoia is at its worst though when I am actually filling out the return. I live in terror of screwing up and ending up in prison for failure to check the appropriate box. By the time I'm done I'm a wreck.

At the moment that I finish, it doesn't matter that I'm getting a return because I've convinced myself that I'm going to need it all for legal fees anyway.

I'm not sure why I get so afraid that I've screwed up because Heaven knows I'm careful. I go over each line five times to make sure there aren't any hidden meanings before I set my shaky-from-fear handwriting to paper. I check and re-check my addition and subtraction too because I'd hate to get in trouble for forgetting to carry over a three. Usually I go through three sets of batteries before I throw the calculator out (I don't trust a machine when my life is on the line).

Each step of the way I refer back to the booklet that comes with the return. My sister the tax wiz (she can add and subtract) makes fun of me for how much I use the book, but I don't care. Just because it says print name and address here, doesn't mean I'm going to be smug and do it without checking first.

After finishing the Federal I have to do the State. This is the worst form of all. Federal is pretty much cut and dried compared to State. With the Federal the amount of tax you are supposed to pay is all printed there. You just pick the one that fits. With the State form, you have to figure it out for yourself by multiplying. When the form calls for multiplication, I call for my sister.

Three Mylanta tablets and two packs of cigarettes later, I mail the returns and wait. Wait for the IRS to show up at my door with their axes poised to tear down the door to find the criminal that dared to fill the information that was supposed to go on line 13 a in on line 13 b.

Fortunately they never show up. What does show up eventually though is that nice check. By that time I've almost forgotten how afraid I was. A tax check will go along way in making you forget your fear. Unless they are just waiting to see if you have the nerve to cash it knowing that you messed up. Oh boy...Maybe I'll move to Canada, I wonder if they have to pay taxes there?

To Whom It May Concern:

I wish to make a public disclaimer as to any involvement with the TRIM tax proposal. TRIM is an acronym for Tax Revolt in Michigan.

There has been a good bit of confusion on this matter and I want to advise that I am working with another separate proposal, Citizens for Property Tax Relief and Quality Education.

I would be pleased to furnish information with regard to the proposal I am involved with. Petitions can also be obtained by contacting me.

To the Editor:

This year marks the 40th anniversary of several important engagements of World War II. Among these are the Guadalcanal Campaign and the Battle of Coral Sea. Special reunions are being planned by certain veteran associations which may be of interest to veterans of these events which live in our Oakland County area. The Guadalcanal Campaign Veterans and The Battle of Coral Sea Association will appreciate it if you would make mention of these reunions in The Reminder.

The Battle of Coral Sea reunion will be held in Norfolk, Virginia on May 6 through May 9, 1982. The Guadalcanal Campaign Veterans will hold their reunion in Winter Haven, Florida on August 5 through August 7, 1982.

Your publication of a notice of these events will be greatly appreciated.

FRIEND OF THE COURT

by Roland C. Fancher

The Office of the Oakland County Friend of the Court does not deal solely with divorce cases involving minor children, although these cases constitute the majority of its 42,000 cases. In addition, as mentioned in earlier articles, it also deals with paternity, family support, and U.R.E.S.A. (Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act) cases. In general, these three types of cases are instituted by the Oakland County Prosecutor's Office in cooperation with the Michigan Department of Social Services. They may, however, be filed by private counsel. The Friend of the Court does not file these cases, but once a judgment of support is entered, the Office assumes enforcement responsibility.

A paternity case is instituted against a man when an unmarried woman bears his child. The biological father owes that child a responsibility to assist in his support. Often, an agreement will be reached, and the father will consent to the entry of an order requiring him to help provide support for the child. If no agreement is reached, or if the alleged father denies paternity, a trial may be needed before a support order can be entered.

A family support action is sometimes used in a paternity situation where an agreement is reached, but generally such action is instituted where married parents separate and the children begin receiving Aid of Dependent Children (A.D.C.). Where this occurs, the State, through the Prosecutor's Office, will file an action to require the absent parent to assist in supporting the children by payment of support.

An URESA action is initiated where the children and custodial parent live in a different state (or sometimes different country) than the non-custodial parent. In this situation, one state will request the other state to require the absent parent to pay support. For example, if the children reside in Michigan and their father resides in California, an action can be filed in California for support. In return, Michigan agrees to assist California in collecting support for children in that state with a parent in Michigan.

These three types of actions are quite different from divorce actions. They are not based on the breakdown of a marriage. Also, they generally deal solely with the support obligation, and not with the issues of custody, visitation, property settlements, etc. They deal only with the children's right to support, and not with any rights of the parents.

If you have any questions concerning the operations of the Oakland County Friend of the Court, address them to Roland C. Fancher, in care of The Reminder. Questions regarding individual cases should be submitted to the Office of the Friend of the Court.

LETTERS

Mr. Fancher:

I have been following the articles in The Reminder, of the Friend of the Court.

In the March 11, '82 issue, I have to disagree with you on a couple of statements you mentioned.

First one, is about the bench warrants. Anyone, who has had to go in, and sign one, against the father, knows that very seldom, if ever, is the person arrested. Your article makes it sound as though these fathers are picked up that same day. Wrong, from my experience, they do not try very hard at all. A person receives their paper to appear at a certain time. You go and, if the father doesn't show, maybe after an hour or so, when they figure he isn't going to show, you're asked to fill out the bench warrant, with a description of the guy. This takes another twenty minutes or so. So you've had to take all this time off from work, thinking, oh well, they're going to arrest him. That's a laugh. I got tired of waiting three months, so I call Friend of the Court and was told, that they were doing the best they could. Another laugh. I then called my attorney and asked why they were having such a hard time picking him up, when they had his address and where he worked. My attorney told me, they would not pick him up, unless the police happen to stop him for a traffic violation and found out there was a bench warrant out against him.

The other statement was on the wage assignment. Unless your ex-husband's case isn't up for review, or you don't notify the Friend of the Court he's not paying, the wage assignment means nothing. My ex signed one and was even told by Judge Gilbert, if he missed just one week's payment, the assignment would go into effect. It just don't happen the way you print it. My ex payed fine for a few weeks and then started skipping a week here and there. So after waiting to see about the assignment, I called Linda Hallmark's office, and talked to someone on her staff and told her of the situation. She told me his case wasn't up for review for awhile, but she would pull his file out and put it on Ms. Hallmark's desk. Well it's been a month and a half, my ex still pays two or three weeks, skips a week and I have heard nothing from her office in regards to this.

I'm sure I'm not the only one who has gone through this, with that office. But for those who do not deal with the Friend of the Court, paint the picture like it is.

Thank You
Gail A

Strike Benefits Hungry

The Atonement Presbyterian Church Junior and Senior High School youths from Mason Junior High went on a hunger strike for 30 hours from Friday at 12 p.m. to Saturday at 6 p.m.

The program is sponsored by World Vision International an international organization involved in fighting the problem of world hunger. The youth spent their time learning about the hunger problems of the world, in Bible Study and Prayer.

Saturday a nutritionist spent about an hour teaching the students about malnutrition and the effects of hunger on the human body. They played games, saw films, and did exercises and spent time in discussions, all to become more aware of the world hunger situation.

The young people received donations that will be used to help relieve the problem of hunger. Forty percent of the money collected was sent to the World Vision organization and 60 percent was sent to various hunger programs of the students' choosing. The purpose of the program was two-fold, to learn about the problem and actually experience being hungry and to raise money to help alleviate the problem.

Variety is the Spice at Carmen's

It reminds you of an old country roadhouse, where old friends meet and new friends are made. In the waiting area there is a large blackboard displaying the daily fare in a distinctively neat printing style.

You are at Carmen's Family Restaurant at 650 South Ortonville Road, Ortonville.

Probably the most popular item from Carmen's extensive menu is their famous Breadstix and dip. The Breadstix were born by accident one evening several years ago when suddenly there was not a single dinner roll in the house. Through the ingenuity of the Chef while preparing a pizza, he took some of the pizza dough, shaped it into stick-like form, baked them, and presto... Breadstix. The method is no secret...the recipe is. But, the highest held secret is the concoction of over a dozen ingredients in the dip that accompanies each order of Breadstix. It has yet to be copied.

Carmen's is also renowned for it's many Italian Pasta items including mostaccioli, ravioli and a very tasty vegetarian lasagna available only as a luncheon special. You may choose from a dozen plus different toppings for a round or square pizza, another popular menu item.

For the light eater or the tummy watcher Carmen's offers a Greek Salad, Italian Antipasto and Maurice salads, all in single or family size portions. The salad bar exudes with a large variety of salads and appetizers...enough to make a meal in itself.

In this rapid-paced era of fast food eateries and precisely scaled portions, it's a delight to find a restaurant that still prides itself on homemade foods and abundant portions. All of Carmen's soups and pies are homemade. The Cream of Broccoli or Cream of Mushroom are two of the most popular. But do save room for the Peanut Butter or Chocolate Pecan Pie. It is absolutely irresistible, even to the most disciplined dieter. (These are not always available, so when they are, don't miss the chance to indulge.)

Carmen's Chef is constantly introducing new menu items and offers daily luncheon and dinner specialties. A couple of the newer offerings are the Nachos and Pub Fries and dip.

Carmen's offers an extensive carry out menu of salads, pastas, pizzas, nachos, southern fried chicken by the bucket, deep fried fish, BBQ ribs by the full slab, sandwiches and extras among which are french fried mushrooms, cauliflower and a brand new deep fried vegetable stick plus many more items.

Complete catering service is also available for weddings, banquets, etc. How about a Party Pizza Tray of 35 pieces or the Party Submarine Sandwich in four, five or six foot lengths.

There are so many pleasant aspects of Carmen's Family Restaurant...from the excellent palette pleasers at affordable prices, to the friendly, courteous and efficient service...that make it the place to dine in Ortonville.

House of Creatures... Crawling with Pets

This place is really "for the birds"...as well as the fish, the snakes, the lizards and the spiders. Customers can browse freely around the House of Creatures and soon find themselves on a friendly basis with all manner of fish and fowl.

The House of Creatures is located at 9 South Washington in Oxford and is owned by William Langley and his wife, Kathi. Manager is Shannan Shidler. The store not only sells a variety of exotic pets, but has equipment, food and supplies for just about every imaginable creature.

You can pick up a fish for a very paltry sum...or you can invest in a cockatoo for about $1100. Some of the pets are not for sale...like Toucan Luke who reigns in haughty splendor from his cage, his beak soaring outward, his head turning from side to side as he views his visitors from first one eye then another.

Langley grew up in Oxford and, through his friendship with Shidler, became interested in animals. The House of Creatures is a result of the love of wildlife these men share.

But the real personalities in The House of Creatures belongs to the creatures, who soon become as idiosyncratic and charming as any human can ever be. There is Hercules, a ten foot python who seems to be the curious sort, poking his nose in every corner. He is also lovable and allows Shidler to plant a kiss on his nose.

There is also Polly, a parrot, with a 16-word vocabulary. There is an incredibly ugly Tokay Gekko, an equally ugly agama, and an even uglier horned lizard.

We met Fred Cockatoo, who ruffled his feathers and glared at us; and watched as Shidler dipped his hand in a tank filled with piranha, which destroyed our image of these vicious predators by swimming swiftly away from the invading hand in panic!

We met tiny little finch, a freshwater stingray, a hermit crab, and colorful parrots of every description. We met the Snakeheads...fish which grow to be six to eight feet long and eat 100 goldfish daily. We met...but did not pause to dawdle with...Cookie, the cuddly tarantula.

Zoological tours can be arranged at The House of Creatures for both large and small groups by calling 628-5203. The store is open seven days a week, from noon until 9:00 p.m. Monday through Saturday...and on Sunday, from noon until 5:00 p.m.

The much renowned Detroit Raiders, a wheel chair basketball team, and Class B Champions for the State of Michigan, will be supported and challenged by The House of Creatures this April 3, at Pontiac Catholic High School, 1300 Gedding Road in Pontiac. The cost is $1.00 and we're hoping for a great turnout. The game starts at 7:30 p.m.

Physical Harmony Offers Aerobics to All Ages

"I have always been interested in physical fitness," says Roberta Henderson, owner of Physical Harmony. "I don't think fitness is being thin or having an hour glass figure. It is the way you feel about yourself; in body, mind and spirit, being able to handle stress and having the energy to do everything you want to do."

With that philosophy as her backdrop, Ms. Henderson has begun Physical Harmony, a new aerobic exercise business, that offers morning, afternoon and evening classes. Ms. Henderson's studio is located on Williams Lake Road in Waterford.

Ms. Henderson hasn't always been physically fit. "I started taking classes at Waterford Parks and Recreation and really enjoyed them. But they were only two days a week. In a short time my friends were asking me to lead them on Saturday for a third day."

Then things started to snowball for Ms. Henderson. Before she knew it she was teaching a class three days a week to fifteen people. Now her classes total 75 people. Thus, the need to get her own studio.

Ms. Henderson said many people misunderstand what aerobics is all about. "Aerobics is an endurance exercise that raises your heart rate and sustains it for 20 to 30 minutes," said Ms. Henderson. "Anything less is simply not aerobics."

She continued, "It is not some cute little exercise. It is a cardiovascular work out which strengthens your heart and lungs on a progressive level."

Physical Harmony has classes for men, women, teenagers and mixed groups. "They're a lot of fun. Everyone seems to leave feeling great," concluded Ms. Henderson.

Fresh from victory over the Troy Reds, The Moody Blues take time out to pose.

Ethnic Mix Makes Moody Blues Mighty Tough

The subject of this article is the Moody Blues - not the famous singing group, but rather, a team of middle-aged men who spend their spare time playing the youthful sport of Soccer.

The team is a combination of Yugoslavian, Romanian, Greek, Peruvian, German, and American players from the North Oakland area. A motley group at best, claims team member Ted Lakkides.

But the group has managed to combine their experience and talents to finish third place in an indoor soccer league at the Square Lake Racquet Club.

According to Lakkides, that was quite an accomplishment, considering the competition. Detroit Express players, college coaches, and the like made the indoor league very competitive.

By contrast, half the Moody Blues hadn't even played soccer until a year ago.

Said Lakkides, "Those that we played against have forgotten more than we will ever learn."

The team only organized this past year. John Moody, owner of the Springfield Inn, agreed to become their sponsor.

"He saw the merits of a bunch of old men knocking themselves around," said

"Those that we have played against have forgotten more than we will ever learn..."

Ted Lakkides

Lakkides.

The Springfield Inn has kind of become the unofficial headquarters for the Moody Blues. Periodically, the team, their families and friends get together at the inn for a big potluck feast. At other times, it's much more informal.

The Springfield Inn typifies the nature of the team," explained Lakkides, "Kind of laid back and having fun at it. As a result a strong camaraderie has developed among the group of men and their wives."

Now the Moody Blues, with the indoor league through for the year, are itching to play outside. Lakkides said he and the other team members are attempting to organize a North Oakland Over 30 Men's League.

Lakkides asks anyone who may be interested in participating in the league to give him a call at 623-7918. They would like the league to consist of at least six teams.

Late Spring Shouldn't Hinder Steelheading

Michigan's spring steelhead fishing season may peak later than usual because of this winter's heavy snows, but the excellent runs expected should be worth the extra 7- to 10-day wait, according to the Automobile Club of Michigan.

Anglers should watch for peak runs in early to mid-April in West Michigan, mid-April to mid-May in East Michigan, late April through mid-May in Southeast Michigan and in mid-May across the Upper Peninsula.

"The snowmelt which helps trigger the steelhead's spawning urge could be later in parts of northern Lower and Upper Michigan because of the heavy snowfall," stated James Drury, Auto Club Travel Operations manager. "The melting snow would keep rivers cold, meaning a longer-than-usual period of stream temperatures below the optimum 40- to 45-degree range needed for spawning activity and best fishing."

Some 300,000 six- to 15-pound silvery fighters planted as six- to 10-inches in 1979 and 1980 will enter the 36 streams listed on Auto Club's Spring Steelhead Guide. There also should be a good run of immature "skippers" weighing 2 to 4 pounds.

"Best West Michigan fishing should be on the St. Joseph River up to Buchanan and the Grand River system," Drury said. "Both streams have received heavy plantings and the Grand will have runs nearly within sight of the state Capitol because of new fish ladders between Grand Rapids and Lansing's Moore's Park Dam."

Other productive spots along the western shore include the Muskegon and Manistee rivers.

Lake Huron standouts should include the Oscqueoc River near Huron Beach, the Au Gres River's East Branch, and the Au Sable near Oscoda, which should peak in

Potholes: A Primer for State Drivers

Q. What causes potholes?

A. Moisture seeps into the soil beneath the road surface after snow or rain. Then, when temperatures drop below freezing, the moisture freezes, the ground expands, rises and pushes the pavement up. When temperatures rise, the ground returns to normal level before the pavement does, creating a cavity. When cars and trucks drive over this cavity, the machinery, making for a more permanent, well-sealed patch.

Q. Who is responsible for fixing potholes?

A. Michigan Department of Transportation crews, county road commissions or municipal maintenance workers, depending on the location of the pothole. The transportation department directly maintains all state highways (routes marked by an "M", "US" or (deterioration) sets in, it moves rapidly. Roads which don't get fixed when they should eventually need to be completely reconstructed -- an extremely costly process.

Another key to pothole reduction is restricting weight loads during the "spring break-up" time when pavement is so vulnerable. In Michigan, weight restrictions on trucks are imposed when the ground first begins to thaw, and rain seeps into the soil below the road surface. This moisture freezes when temperatures drop below freezing, causing the ground to expand, rise and push the pavement up.

Then, when temperatures rise, the ground returns to normal level before the pavement does, creating a cavity, or pocket between the ground and the pavement.

ANATOMY OF A POTHOLE

surface cracks and falls into the hollow space. Thus another pothole is born.

Michigan's climate enhances this proliferation of potholes. Our northern winter climate is modified by the Great Lakes, resulting in heavy winter snows and frequent freeze/thaw cycles -- perfect conditions for the formation of potholes.

Q. How are potholes repaired?

A. Several ways. When the weather is still cool, as in March and April, maintenance crews usually apply a "cold patch" to potholes. The patch is comprised of bituminous, or asphalt, materials. It is considered a temporary remedy until crews can return when the weather warms up and apply a "hot patch" of heated asphalt.

A newer type of cold patch made of asphalt materials and a patented "secret ingredient" has helped crews in recent years because it can be applied in holes containing water and moisture. The regular cold patch process requires crews to remove and dry all moisture in a hole -- a tough job on busy, pot-marked highways.

Once temperatures stabilize above 50 degrees Fahrenheit, crews may apply hot asphalt to potholes and roll over them with heavy machinery in 21 counties, and contracts the work out in the other 62 counties to county road commissions. The county road commissions also are responsible for maintaining all other local and primary roads except those in cities or villages, which are maintained by the local government.

The Michigan Department of Transportation estimates it will use approximately 18,000 tons of patching materials during the six-month period from January through June of this year to patch potholes on the state's 9,500-mile highway system. Cost of the work is estimated at $1.8 million.

Q. What can be done to reduce the number of potholes?

A. The key to stopping and preventing potholes is ensuring we have good roads. Roads with good drainage and well-sealed surfaces help keep water out of the sub-base where potholes begin.

Michigan's 1,728 miles of freeways, constructed with elaborate drainage systems and reinforced pavement nine or 10 inches thick, generally have fewer potholes than lightly paved roads. But many freeways, and many highways too, are growing older. As pavement ages, it's harder to prevent potholes.

Once the aging process remain until late spring when the frost is completely gone from the ground.

Steelheading Forecast Excellent

late April or as late as mid-May because colder water released from upstream dams will delay runs.

Pier fishermen should find good results at the Pigeon River's mouth at Caseville in the Thumb.

In Southeast Michigan, best steelheading should be on the St. Clair River for trollers and on the Huron River for shore and wading fishermen.

Upper Peninsula anglers should find peak action at Thompson Creek's mouth and on the Big Cedar along Lake Michigan, the Ontonagon, Little Garlic and Two Hearted along Lake Superior and the Carp on Lake Huron.

Auto Club advises steelheaders to check specific rules for individual rivers in the DNR's Michigan Fishing Guide. Some rivers are open year-around while others open April 1 or April 24, the start of general trout season. The guide is free to anglers purchasing license passbooks.

Although contaminant levels of Great Lakes gamefish are declining, the State Department of Public Health continues its advisory that steelhead from Lakes Michigan and Huron should not be eaten by children, pregnant women, those expecting to bear children or nursing mothers. All others should consume no more than one steelhead meal per week.

Thoughts of Spring

by Rebecca Roberts

Will Spring every come?

I keep trying to peer into this barricade of snow for evidence of growth. But the snow, stern and white, is too thick to see through.

Under there, though, things are happening. Rhizomes are moving out toward rhizomes, growing more of themselves; green nubbins are breaking through the dark musty hide of hidden roots.

If I put a glass to the ground, I wonder if I would hear a great rumbling.

Spring, for the stealth of its coming, has always been rich turf for the poets and philosophers; no one has ever seen or heard it arrive. We have only known signs of its coming.

About the middle of every February, we begin window-gazing, as though a primitive memory stirs, signal to begin the watch.

Spring does not come crashing out of the sky, like a fiery meteor. It is not slipped in behind us on pulleys, like a backdrop. There are no loud and sudden claps, no beginning sounds, no one moment of recognition, that brings us to that window.

There is a feeling, a nudging awareness, and like the rest of earth's creatures, we know it's about time.

Except, unlike the others, we are less the participants of the ritual, more the onlookers. We are the watchers, the listeners.

Did you ever wonder where everything goes, where life goes, for Winter? We know about leaves, of course, how they drop, decompose, become compost for new growth. The cycle. But what about the higher forms of life? Animals. Insects. The squirrels? All the birds (do they really, in one great huff, fly south?) -- earthworms, grasshoppers, butterflies.

At what point last year did they all stop being visible to us? There was of course no single moment. It was a gradual quieting, an emptying of the air, barely noticed until the snow.

Now we are watching, greatly encouraged by the watery eaves, the thinning slope of the drift, an occasional bird -- the gentle leave-taking of a harsh winter.

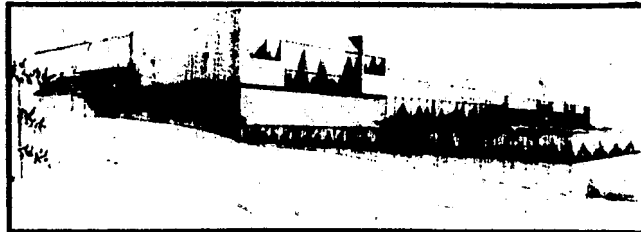

We won't hear any thunderous beating of wings; there will be no bone-rattling vibrations, no sound of earth splitting, as grasses and flowers come alive; no precipitous flash of color as the grasses green and lilacs become lavender.

Life is returning the same way it left: In gradual moments, tone by tone. It is happening even as we trudge heavily through the last hard crust of snow.

Barricades are lifting, or rather seeping into the ground. Life out there is becoming more and more visible and we, the Watchers, are moving out toward it.

Running and Your Health

by Dr. Alan Bush

With spring approaching many people will again start exercising more. Running is one of the oldest and most popular exercises, and with good reason. It's something anyone can do, with or without other participants, it doesn't require equipment (only proper clothes and shoes), and it's inexpensive. If you are one of those people who are considering running for exercise, the following information may be of interest to you.

If you haven't been running because of the weather, you should start out at a slow pace and work toward a reasonable goal. If you would like to get a jump on the weather, you might try skipping rope indoors until spring arrives.

When deciding on a pair of running shoes, two essentials to look for are shock absorption and biomechanical stability. Good shock absorption in running shoes are important to eliminate or prevent problems with arches, ankles, knees, hips and low back. The pounding of your feet, legs and spine can be devastating to your health. It can cause not only present problems, but future problems as well. Shoes should have good shock absorption in the heel, but also at the ball of the foot where the impact takes place.

Stability is important in controlling the rolling motion that occurs during running. If you are a runner with shoes you have put a wear pattern on, you can see if the shoes are wearing too much in one area, such as the edges. This may be due to instability, or it may be due to a physical problem with the foot or a hip being misaligned.

One way to check for possible misalignments in your body structure is to stand in front of a full length mirror disrobed, and close your eyes for a moment, get relaxed and stand in the posture that feels normal to you. Then without moving, open your eyes and see if one shoulder is higher than the other, or one hip is higher. If they aren't even it is an indication you have a structural problem. If you suspect a structural problem you should consult a chiropractor, he's an expert on spinal structure.

According to some authorities running can even become addictive. However, this addiction is a positive addiction, unlike some addictions. Some runners describe a feeling of euphoria. This may take months, runners say. Although most people start running for a various number of reasons many may continue, in part, because of this positive addiction.

Whatever your reason for starting or continuing to run, make sure you don't move to a higher goal of running too soon, that your shoes are good shock absorbers with good stability, and that your body is in good structural shape. This will insure that you are improving your body, not damaging it.
